Mr P. PAPALIA: There are concerns that the Premier has been meeting with Tatts representatives and having secret meetings about the sale of the TAB. Has the Premier had meetings?

Mr C.J. Barnett: I want to know what secret meetings we were talking about.

Mr P. PAPALIA: They are the secret meetings I am talking about. I am glad the Premier confirmed that. Other political parties have also been having meetings. My concern is that they are secret as well. The only people who are not in on the secrets are the people who are directly affected by this industry and are completely behind retaining the TAB in the state's hands. Those people do not know what is happening at the secret meetings. Those people are being told in some quarters that the Premier will be stopped and that any plans he has for the sale will be stopped in the upper house, as outlined by the member for Collie-Preston. Other quarters see indications of a sellout by a very small number of people in the racing industry who have decided, for whatever reason—perhaps due to some inducement through promises that the Premier has again made in secret—that they will come out on behalf of the Premier and support his call for the sale of the TAB because maybe the Premier made them a little promise. The vast majority of people in the industry do not agree with those people.

Mr C.J. Barnett: What is this alleged promise? Please educate me.

Mr P. PAPALIA: I do not know. All I am saying is that it was a secret meeting. I do not know what the Premier said in his secret meeting with Perth Racing. I do not know what commitment he gave to Perth Racing, which suddenly changed its position. I do not know why Perth Racing suddenly abandoned the entire racing industry that had been unified in its opposition to the sale of the TAB and started to make sounds that it might be supportive. I do not know why that was. The Premier should tell me. The vast majority of those 30 000-plus people who care about this industry and who want to keep the TAB in state hands want to know what is really going on. They do not trust the Premier or the minister at the moment. They do not trust some of the other people that they used to trust. It is appalling. The only way to regain that trust is to be open, honest and transparent and engage with people in the industry and tell them what is planned. If that is what the Premier has planned, to sell it out at a fire sale and for the future of this industry to be put in complete jeopardy as a result of his short-term mismanagement, he should tell them that that is what he has planned, because they deserve to know. These are good people and they deserve to know that.

MR C.J. BARNETT (Cottesloe — Premier) [6.45 pm]: I am just going to make a few brief comments because there are members on this side who are closer to the industry than I am and who have more knowledge, and they will talk about some of the issues that the industry faces.

I confess that I am not a great follower of the racing industry and I do not pretend to have detailed knowledge but I did grow up in a household in which my father's greatest passion in life was horseracing. He was extremely knowledgeable. He had a punt on Saturdays—probably 10 bets at $5 each because he was not a wealthy man. His knowledge of racing, horses, breeding and jockeys was exemplary. Although I do not follow the racing industry and I am not a punter, I grew up in a racing household. As a young boy I was dragged around to not only Ascot and Belmont but also Helena Vale, York, Northam and Toodyay—to every country race meeting. Even though I was not an enthusiast—I loved the horses—I absorbed a bit of knowledge about the industry and its people.

My father always said that he had more faith in the jockeys than the horses. As a young man I remember him supporting Damien Oliver as an apprentice. I presented the last Perth Cup to Damien Oliver, who rode the winner. I cannot remember the name of the winner; the expert does not know either. I was having a chat to Damien Oliver and telling him how my father admired his skill as a jockey. He followed Damien and he always had a bet if Damien was riding the horse. I have a bit of background knowledge of the industry and what drives it.

With respect to the TAB, if we had a clean sheet of paper and we were forming government today, would government have a betting agency? Probably not. It is not a natural, logical function of government to run a betting agency. That is the reality. No modern government would decide that it needs to be a bookmaker. However, the history of the industry is that is the way it has evolved so we have to deal with the reality.

Members opposite talked about secret meetings. I have been told today that apparently I had secret meetings with Perth Racing. That is not true; I have had no meetings with Perth Racing, none at all. A lot of rumour and innuendo is going around the industry.

In the precursor to the Liberal conference, Liberal members of cabinet met with a group of about 15 different organisations, companies, lobby groups and the like. One of them was Tatts.

Mr P. Papalia: How much did they pay for the privilege?

Mr C.J. BARNETT: I do not control that; I literally have no idea. Any political party has supporters and groups. Those meetings were transparent; they were entirely proper. Some 15 different companies came along and simply made a presentation about themselves, about what they were doing and about their aspirations.

Mr M.P. Murray interjected.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: The member should grow up a little bit.

To my knowledge, Tatts does not have a presence in Western Australia; it came along and simply described its history as a company. It talked about the sorts of areas it was involved in. Ministers here can verify that. It made a professional presentation at a corporate level to Liberal members of cabinet, as did other companies from a range of different industries, and lobby groups.

Mr M.P. Murray interjected.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: No, we conduct ourselves with propriety, unlike the Labor Party.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER (Mr N.W. Morton): Members!

Mr C.J. BARNETT: Mr Acting Speaker, I am happy to make a contribution, but I will not if these clowns opposite will not treat this topic seriously. It is a serious topic and it should be debated in Parliament.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Collie–Preston, you have made your contribution. I have given the call to the Premier.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: I will make one comment with respect to the meeting with Tatts Group. It simply presented its company credentials, what it was doing and its arrangements. There were no negotiations, but the two issues were the future of Lotterywest—the Lotteries Commission of Western Australia—and the future of the Totalisator Agency Board. I made it very clear that Lotterywest would not be privatised, so members can forget that.

Mr M.P. Murray: You said that about the TAB!

Mr C.J. BARNETT: Those were the two issues that were discussed.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members, please.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: I will happily sit down and we can conclude this debate, but if members opposite actually want a serious response, maybe they will listen.

Tatts runs lotteries, TABs and probably some other businesses. It is a diversified and very successful company. I made it very clear that the state government was not in any way contemplating selling Lotterywest. We are the only state that has a government-owned state lottery from which all the proceeds are returned to the community through health, sport, the arts and community grants, so that was the end of that conversation.

I made the point that we were considering the future of the TAB and that we would consider whether it would be privatised. I made the government's position clear, and that is on the public record. There was nothing new or secretive about that at all; it has been my public position for some time. I think the member referred back to 2012 or whatever it was, and the issue of the TAB came up. I do not know how the rumour started—maybe members opposite can educate me on that—but there was a rumour running around on a weekend in 2012 that the state government was going to sell the TAB. I remember it well because I was out in my ute in the paddock, feeding the sheep. I had the radio on and I heard that, so I rang up Bob Maumill on 6PR and I said we were not selling the TAB, and we were not; there was no consideration of that at all. I do not know who started that rumour.

We have now moved on two or three years, and we are looking at a range of potential privatisations, and the TAB is one of them. Let me make it clear, as I have said publicly: there will be a first group of privatisations, and the TAB will not be amongst them. I can say quite clearly today that if we make a future decision about the TAB, it will not be during this calendar year.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members!

Mr C.J. BARNETT: No decision has been made about the TAB, but there will be, and we have been very open about that. We will consider the future of the TAB, but it will not be amongst the first three or four privatisations. They alone will probably take a couple of years to roll out. The TAB is not for sale, but we may consider that in the future. Some of the issues raised are —

Mr P. Papalia: Shameful.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: Well, honest. Refreshing for the ALP, I would have thought.

Mr P. Papalia interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Warnbro!

Mr C.J. BARNETT: There are issues about the TAB and there are issues about the racing codes—the gallops, the trots and the dogs, and their funding. There is no doubt about that; that is perfectly true. There are issues about the franchise holders; we are very conscious of that, and when we look at the TAB, we will discuss the issues and consult—whatever the opposition likes—with all those interested parties. Other members will probably say a little more about this, but the opposition is focusing on the TAB; fair enough. It is not a logical role of government, but the government happens to own it —

Mr P. Papalia: Like lotteries.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: Lotteries are, because we care about the people of Western Australia.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members, there are about six minutes left for this debate. It has been heard in relative silence so far and I would like to see out the last few minutes of today's proceedings in the same fashion.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: The environment in which the TAB operates is vastly different from what it was 20 or 30 years ago. I can remember when dad took me to the races that there would be 15 000 to 20 000 people there. How many are there today? Maybe 2 000 if they are lucky. That World War II generation liked their footy and they liked their horse racing, and they would have a punt on a Saturday. Today there is a whole range of different entertainment opportunities, including television and fixed price betting. The world has changed, and racing has found itself somewhat left behind.

Mr P. Papalia interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Warnbro!

Mr C.J. BARNETT: Some of the issues that have been flushed out in this debate needed to be flushed out, including the racing industry, by which I mean the gallops. Can the racing industry seriously afford to run both Ascot Park and Belmont Park? I would say, with only 2 000 people turning up on a Saturday, that it cannot. That is a realistic issue to look at. Can the trots continue to run Gloucester Park, which is prime real estate? It is probably losing money. Greyhound racing no longer has a facility. What is good about this debate is that it is not simply about the TAB, but about modernising the racing industry. I do not pretend to be an expert, but a lot of studies have been done and there has been a lot of debate, and maybe we should have only one prime race track in the Perth metropolitan area. I do not know whether it should be Ascot or Belmont, but I do not think there is room for two anymore, when we are getting only 2 000 people turning up on a Saturday. That is the financial issue for the racing industry, more so than what will happen to the TAB. Can we afford to have greyhound racing and trots separate, when in other parts of Australia they are combined in one facility? Maybe that makes a bit of sense, and that has been forced out into the open by this debate.

Mr Mick Murray; Mr J.E. McGrath; Acting Speaker; Mr M.P. Murray; MR P. Papalia; MR C.J. Barnett

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Warnbro, there is only four minutes to go. I am going to call you to order for the third time. I have asked on numerous occasions for this to be heard in relative silence and you continue to interject.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: Yes, this motion is about the TAB, and I do not criticise that; I think it is important, but it has sparked a wider debate around the racing industry. We are not living back in the 50s, 60s and 70s; it is the 2010s and the industry no longer attracts the crowds, the participation and the betting because there are so many alternatives. Some of the practical people in the racing industry have realised that the TAB is one issue, but there is an even bigger issue, which is the future of the thoroughbred and greyhound racing industries, and this government is up for dealing with the industry to modernise horseracing, the trots and greyhounds. I hope people in the industry are also up for it, because those codes are not making any money; in fact, they are losing money. They have an industry that has had great days in the past, but it is losing money and could well fail. It would be a negligent government that simply stood back and let the horseracing industry in this state fail. We are not prepared to do that, so we are prepared to look at the future of the TAB. Who knows, if the TAB is sold, it may generate a large amount of money and it may well fund a modernisation of the industry. There are sensible people in the industry who can rise above the pettiness of members opposite and look to a long-term future. Grass tracks are beautiful, but maybe we need all-season, all-weather tracks, and maybe there is an issue for the safety of jockeys also, and fewer horse falls. There are a whole lot of issues there, and at least this government has members with some real background, such as the members for Belmont and South Perth, who know this industry intimately.

Mr M.P. Murray: The member for Belmont's been silent the whole way through!

Mr C.J. BARNETT: Well, just wait, because the member for Belmont will speak in this debate and tell members opposite something about this industry. The member for South Perth will tell them something about the financial problems that the industry faces, and the Minister for Racing and Gaming will tell them that this state government is prepared to take on the real issues of the industry.

Mr M.P. Murray interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Collie–Preston, there is a minute to go.

Mr P.B. Watson interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Albany, I call you to order for the second time.

Mr C.J. BARNETT: This debate is not going to finish today—no way at all.

Mr Speaker, we are willing to take on the serious issues. As I said, I am not a racing person but I have some sentimentality to my father who loved this industry and was knowledgeable.

Mr M.P. Murray: Did he ever back a winner?

Mr C.J. BARNETT: He did. His best bet—I think it was Arwon—won the Caulfield and Melbourne Cup double. He put $1 on and he won $2 000, which was a hell of a lot of money at that time. He kept meticulous records and he could demonstrate that he won every year.

Debate adjourned, pursuant to standing orders.

Standing for a strong Collie-Preston

Shadow Minister: Barnett must listen to industry concern over TAB privatisation

Thursday 14 Aug 2014

Fast Facts:

- Key racing industry figures are concerned over the Barnett Government's plan to privatise the TAB
- The Premier and Racing and Gaming Minister appear to be at odds over the sale of the TAB
- The Premier must end the uncertainty and explain his plan for an asset that returns more than $40million a year to the Government

The Barnett Government must listen to industry concerns about the privatisation of the TAB before pushing ahead with the asset privatisation plans.

Representatives from all major racing codes have voiced their opposition to the possible sell-off of the TAB citing the uncertainty of returns to the industry from a private operator and the poor standing of racing in other states that have privatised betting agencies.

Premier Colin Barnett said that the TAB is on his asset sell-off radar while Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron said just last month while no decision had been made, it was probably not in the best interests of the State to privatise the TAB at this stage.

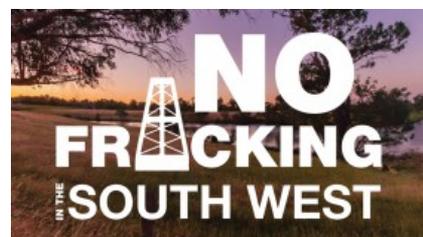

Key industry players are concerned about the future of racing in Western Australia if the TAB is privatised. WA Labor would not sell off an asset that returned more than $40 million a year to the Government.

Comments from Shadow Minister for Racing and Gaming Mick Murray:

"There are conflicting messages from the Premier and Mr Waldron about the future of the TAB and both need to come clean on the Government's plan.

"There may be grounds to examine how Racing and Wagering WA is run and to look at ways to reduce costs in that area. However, the privatisation of the TAB would not be in the best interests of racing in WA.

"The TAB gives the government a guaranteed income stream and some of that funding gets put back into industry improvements. It doesn't make sense to sell off an asset that is providing income and supporting its base at the same time."

TAB — PRIVATISATION

Grievance

MRS G.J. GODFREY (Belmont) [9.09 am]: My grievance today is to Hon Terry Waldron, MLA, Minister for Sport and Recreation; Racing and Gaming. Many people have contacted me concerned about recent media reports and speculation surrounding the future of the Totalisator Agency Board, which is more commonly known as the TAB. Although I covered this issue yesterday, I wish to raise it as a grievance. At a recent visit to the Belmont and Ascot tracks, accusations were stronger than usual that the sale of the TAB was imminent, and my grievance today relates to the sale of the TAB.

Many of the uninformed and negative comments I have read in the media and other sources, and from some members in this place, amount to nothing more than the claim that there is no reason for government to be involved in the gambling business. This is an over-simplified statement about an industry that employs thousands of people. That statement does not reflect the employment, sporting, entertainment and tourism potential that this industry holds. Should the sale of the TAB be up for discussion, members of the industry would appreciate being involved in a thorough and balanced debate, rather than leaving everything to shallow comments. After all, it is the future of their livelihoods at stake. Another argument that concerns me is that Western Australia should sell the TAB simply because it is what other states have done. This argument is often put forward without any discussion about what those sales have done to other states' local racing industries. Western Australia is very different from the eastern states geographically and its structure of betting. Lotterywest and the TAB, although controlled by government legislation, provide a large social dividend to the Western Australian community. Two differences are that WA does not have pokies and the racing industry provides the third-largest sporting attraction.

The sale of the TAB would be a short-term gain for long-term pain. It is my understanding that over the past 14 years at least three investigations have been made into the racing industry and two more are currently being prepared. In 2000, the first report from an independent committee chaired by Mr Ray Turner, AM, included a recommendation for a whole-of-industry governing body to be established by statute. The framework of governance that was recommended was to provide the racing industry in Western Australia with greater cohesion and the capability to develop a strategic direction. This resulted in the formation of the current Racing and Wagering Western Australia, which is known as RWWA. In 2010, the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts conducted a second inquiry. Its report had 92 findings and made 53 recommendations. I ask the minister: which of these findings and recommendations have been implemented? In 2011, there was a third report entitled, the "WA Racing Economic and Social Impact Report". This report was prepared for the entertainment and racing industries by IER, which is a leading independent consulting and economic research firm with extensive experience in the area of economic and financial assessment. The facts from this third report are: the direct expenditure of the WA racing industry is $550 million, which includes producing racing animals through breeding and rearing; preparing racing animals, as in training; on-course customer expenditure, including admission charges, food, beverage and race book sales, hospitality and memberships; and off-course customer expenditure, including accommodation, transport and entertainment linked to race attendance. The total number of Western Australians who work in the racing industry is approximately 33 686 people. State government tax revenue from wagering was $34 million and the goods and services tax paid on wagering revenue was $24 million. That is an ongoing income stream that this government has benefited from and one that future governments should also have access to.

Belmont is the home of thoroughbred horseracing in the metropolitan area. The residential buildings and stables at Ascot have been heritage listed, as has Ascot Racecourse. In Belmont we are proud of our history of horseracing and there is a racehorse in the crest of the council's emblem. Due to the importance of horseracing for economic and employment reasons in the area, I have invested a considerable amount of time since being elected to talk to people involved in horseracing and to listen to their concerns about the industry. Horseracing is not just about gambling; it is a sport. It is entertaining and it pays its own way. When I travel overseas to Singapore and Hong Kong, I always enjoy attending the thoroughbred races. They are promoted on airlines and at airports, tourist centres and hotels. The races offer a wonderful experience for tourists, including being picked up from and returned to their hotel, buffet meals and good seating. I am told this is similar to experiences in Kentucky in the United States, Ascot in England and Longchamp in France. If selling the TAB means reduced investment in racecourse infrastructure, we are missing a great tourism opportunity to promote Western Australian to Asia. I have attended the Sydney Easter carnival, which involves two race meetings and several other events. It is promoted on the airlines and makes a wonderful week's holiday in Sydney. I am yet to be convinced by the current style of the TAB advertising. Marketing of the metropolitan events needs to be improved to increase attendance figures. The current system works well; however, a closer link between Tourism WA and the racing industry would be beneficial. Minister, what is being done to promote racing on the WA tourism agenda?

Eastern states' governments have changed the structure of their racing industries. The effect that these changes have made to the industry and the community is not clear. South Australian veteran racehorse trainer Leon Macdonald has warned of dire consequences if the WA government decides to sell the TAB.

Western Australia has geographically the largest racing jurisdiction in the world, and regional race clubs are its lifeblood. Any government that operates in a fiscally challenging environment may consider the sale of assets as a means to strengthen the economy, but the TAB is not an ordinary asset. The TAB provides our budget with an ongoing income stream worth millions of dollars. Although I strongly oppose the sale of the TAB, I appreciate that it is something that the minister may consider. Should the minister do so, I ask that he consult with the industry and its many stakeholders to make it financially viable.

MR T.K. WALDRON (Wagin — Minister for Sport and Recreation) [9.16 am]: I thank the member for the grievance. I know that she has a great interest in the industry, which she talked about last night and again this morning. The first point I want to make is that the TAB has not been sold. The Premier reiterated that there has been no decision to sell the TAB. The Treasurer announced that because of state debt, the government would look at an orderly sale of some state-owned assets in his budget speech. As part of that process, the government will be undertaking a strategic review of state-owned assets including the TAB. However there are complexities involved and a lot of the issues the member mentioned need to be taken into account and considered. Consideration of the sale of the TAB will not come up until the second tranche of asset sales, which will not be before 2015. In the meantime, we are doing a lot of work with Racing and Wagering Western Australia and it will go through that. Since the Treasurer's budget speech, he and I have met with and discussed the issue with Racing and Wagering WA, which is the owner of the TAB and the peak body that represents racing. We also meet with the Premier from time to time to keep him informed about what is happening in the racing industry. I completely agree with the member for Belmont that the industry needs to be consulted as part of the process. I have already been doing that. I consult with the major stakeholder, RWWA, on a regular bi-weekly basis. RWWA has continued to meet with Treasury officials and other parts of government as part of this process.

I have stated lots of times in Parliament and am on the record as saying that I would only ever support the sale of the TAB if it were in the best interests of the racing industry and the community. I need to be convinced of the benefits to the industry before I would support the sale. I will continue to advocate for an outcome, whether or not it is the sale of the TAB, that produces a sustainable future for the racing industry. This is not so much about the sale of the TAB; it is about the future of the racing industry. As I said last night, the racing industry has been through some torrid times with outbreaks of equine influenza and the impact of the global financial crisis. During my time as minister, the commercial environment has rapidly changed and presented lots of challenges. Under the leadership of Jeff Ovens, his board and chief executive officer Richard Burt, the racing industry has weathered the storm. Turnover and distributions have steadily increased, producing jobs, economic development and, of course, taxation returns of about $42.8 million to WA taxpayers. The TAB is performing well. It has grown by over 30 per cent in the last five years and turnover has increased from $1.6 billion to $2.143 billion in 2013–14. It is performing well and that is why we need to look at all these issues before a decision is made. The member raised the issue of other jurisdictions that have privatised their TAB. She is right; there are important lessons to be learnt from privatisations in other jurisdictions. They have all gone about it in different ways and each one has produced varying outcomes for its respective racing industry. It is important that before any decision is made, we understand this properly.

The member for Belmont also referred to country racing, which is very close to my heart. There are 55 race clubs in WA; some 52 of those are in regional areas. Let me assure members that country race clubs will play a really important part in any decisions. On a weekly basis, I see in country communities the importance of our race clubs for not only the racing industry but also those communities. The member also mentioned aspects such as tourism and entertainment et cetera. We want to make sure and I in particular need to be convinced that any sale will be—it needs to be—in the best interests to maintain those racing clubs into the future. We provided a boost to the industry. The member talked about tourism, and country race clubs were recently provided with $2.25 million from royalties for regions to boost tourism and highlight the fantastic benefits that our country cups, such as Broome, Kalgoorlie and Bunbury, bring to regional WA. We have seen performances by Jimmy Barnes, Icehouse and Paul Kelly wrapped around these events, which has made a terrific difference to those events. We are very aware of tourism and are proactively working in that area.

The member also raised the government's response to the 2010 parliamentary joint standing committee's review of Racing and Wagering Western Australia. People may remember —

The SPEAKER: Hold on a minute, please. Members who are talking, please go outside and have your meeting.

Mr T.K. WALDRON: The government response tabled in 2011 outlined that many of the initiatives recommended had been implemented. Many others have since been addressed and we are now in the process of finalising the draft of the legislation to make some future legislative changes, so that has happened and is happening.

The Premier said that before we do anything, we need full consultation. As racing minister, I have already been doing that on behalf of the government. As well as meeting with RWWA regularly, I have met with various people from industry groups about the privatisation issue. That includes the recent alliance established by the industry itself, which is exclusive of RWWA, that includes racing luminaries such as Fred Kersley, Ron Sayers and David Simonette. These are people who I have worked with quite closely, who I admire greatly and whose opinions I take very seriously and take on board. I have to say that my discussions with them have been really beneficial, and, like myself, they are keen to ensure that the industry continues to have the opportunity to grow and develop. I have also met with people from TAB agencies about the issues that they will face should the TAB be privatised.

It is really a complex issue; it is not simply a decision to sell the asset and get on with it. We have to keenly and properly look at all the financial, social, economic and employment issues that surround this matter. I reiterate that, as racing minister, I will need to be convinced that privatisation of the TAB will be in the best interest and that the industry will be strong into the future. Our government will do the work to ensure that we have the right information to make the right decision that is in the best interests of the industry and the community. I reiterate that we need to continue the process we are going through. However, let us not jump the gun: the TAB has not been sold.

Libs and Nats set for war

The Sunday Times · 7 Sep 2014 · JOE SPAGNOLO

---

WAR was officially declared yesterday between the Nationals and their governing partner, the Liberal Party, over controversial city local government mergers.

The National Party voted to torpedo Colin Barnett's plan to cut the number of Perth councils from 30 to about 14.

The Sunday Times revealed last week the Moora branch of the party was preparing to put forward a motion that the party "withdraws support from the metropolitan local government reform process".

Yesterday, the party passed the motion at its state conference in Margaret River.

The Nationals also voted yesterday to oppose Liberal plans to sell off the TAB – part of Mr Barnett's $6 billion asset sale considerations.

The decisions signal the biggest fracture in the Nationals' alliance with the Liberals since 2008, and certainly the greatest rift since Terry Redman became the country party's leader last year.

Mr Redman said yesterday the Nationals had been willing to support city council amalgamations as long as country local government authorities were not touched.

But the Liberals had made noises about also targeting country areas, he said – infuriating the Nationals.

"While the public commentary remains that the bush will be next, the National party will withdraw support for amalgamations in the metropolitan area," Mr Redman said.

Liberals believe they can push through their local government reforms without support from the Nationals.

But a National party source said that would change if the Liberals needed support for forced amalgamations.

This week, Local Government Minister Tony Simpson is expected to receive the long-awaited recommendations from the Local Government Advisory Board.

TAB — PRIVATISATION

Motion

Resumed from 20 August on the following motion moved by Mr M.P. Murray —

That this house condemns the Barnett government for breaking its word in relation to the privatisation of the TAB.

MR M.P. MURRAY (Collie–Preston) [4.00 pm] — in reply: What a change we have seen since the last time I spoke on this motion. The member for Belmont became very organised and gave a nicely written speech, which I am sure she had a lot of help with, in which she stated —

The sale of the TAB would bring a short-term gain for long-term pain.

We will see the truth at the end of this; we will see which way the member for Belmont votes.

Do I have 35 minutes, because I can use it?

The ACTING SPEAKER (Mr N.W. Morton): Yes, you have 35 minutes.

Mr M.P. MURRAY: Wow! I will not rush half as much as I was going to. To be fair, I thought I had 10 minutes left in my speech. You had better check that with the Clerk.

The ACTING SPEAKER: No, member, you have 34 minutes. You are in reply and rounding out the debate on this motion.

Mr M.P. MURRAY: That changes things a little; maybe I can slow down a bit.

In the last couple of weeks I have seen one of the biggest shuffles of policy on the racing industry ever to happen, mainly on the part of the National Party. The National Party has been the greatest windsucker we have ever seen. It has said it all and no doubt when it went into its meeting, a gust of wind came out of that door that no stable would have ever withstood. Anyone who knows about windsuckers would know what I am talking about. The National Party is just full of it—full of wind. As the National Party went down to its conference, it said it would do wonders with the TAB. However, the National Party came back and it was out of wind; it had left it all in the party room. There was an explosion of sorts in that room and the wind was out—out of their sails and out of everything else that we know of. What do I mean by that? The National Party had a position that was very strongly reported in the press that it would oppose the TAB sale. I know what has happened; just like the proverbial tea bag, the Premier has come in and given them a jiggle. It was just a small jiggle and out of the tea bag came all the gunk, which went to the bottom of the cup; the National Party forgot what it went down there for, and that was to oppose the sale of the TAB.

On the way back up from the south west, the National Party got a different position. That position has an “if” on it—“if it suits us and local and country racetracks”. What a selfish position! The National Party is selling out the people in Ascot and Belmont. The National Party is selling them out because it has gone forward and put its selfish spin on this, when the whole thing is about the whole of the racing industry in Western Australia. It is not about one small part of it.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members! There are a lot of interjections across the chamber, which makes it very difficult for Hansard. The member for Collie–Preston has the call and I would like to hear the member for Collie–Preston.

Mr M.P. MURRAY: How can we believe that the National Party will stick with that position when it changes by the day? As I have said before in here and in the previous part of my speech, it is about where it was headed. What did the National Party say to people in the industry? It told them not to worry about it and that it would not embarrass the Premier by voting against the bill in the Assembly, but it would block it in the upper house and move amendments so that country racing will be well assured and looked after. What a terrible thing to do to an industry! To put a split down the middle of a very, very strong industry that employs over 30 000 people directly and indirectly is a terrible thing to do. The member for North West Central will be at the Carnarvon Cup. I heard he has won a couple of cups up for his riding; he has done pretty well from what I hear. We will look at what happens to this industry; once it splits, it will be the old story of conquer and divide. Who will win if there is a development that means the moneys go mainly to country race areas? In talking about the country areas, I can tell members —

Mr T.K. Waldron: Can I say one thing?

Mr M.P. MURRAY: No, the Minister for Racing and Gaming cannot say anything; he had his say before. He has had plenty of opportunities to speak and it is all wind, as we know. The Minister for Racing and Gaming is the windsucker of the midwest. The secretary of the Country Racing Association of WA, John Biggs, said —

 Mr Mick Murray

“We believe it would have an enormous effect on the racing industry, particularly the small community clubs throughout the State which don’t present a lot of turnover or a lot of investment as far as TAB is concerned,”

He went on to say —

“The small clubs that don’t present a turnover or a profit to the TAB are ... going to be the first ones to be affected,”

The final quote in this article from the Kalgoorlie Miner of 1 September 2014 is from the minister —

Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron said he would only support the sale of the TAB “if it were in the best interests of the racing industry”.

Again, it was a change of position. We do not know where this minister sits. Then we pick up The Sunday Times of 7 September 2014; it stated —

The Nationals also voted yesterday to oppose Liberal plans to sell off the TAB—part of Mr Barnett’s $6 billion asset sale considerations.

That is not entirely true, because it did not put the limitations put by the National Party. Then we move to the North West Telegraph. I am sure the member from up Carnarvon way would have looked at this; I am not too sure as it may be a bit too far into the Pilbara. The article states —

Port Hedland Turf Club president Arnold Carter, who runs six races a year including the Hedland Cup, said he was against the sale of the TAB and the State Government would have to show him some dramatic figures to change his mind. “Once you go into private hands, you don’t know how much they are going to take off before you get a distribution point,”

That is the problem. We come back to: what is being promised around the place? I believe that Tabcorp has been meeting with certain people within government and industry. I refused requests for meetings from the Tatts Group Limited because I believe our position is so clear that we do not need to meet with it. Our position is a total no to the privatisation of the TAB. It was well put on the steps of Parliament by our leader, Mr Mark McGowan, the other day. We know our position and we will stick by our position; we will not put two bob each way like the National Party, which is full of all the wind in the whole world and no substance. We will not be a tea bag that is jiggled around in a cup so that all the goodness runs out of it. We will not sell out the whole industry for the sake of retiring some debt that this government has incurred. The government must find its own way, leave the TAB alone, and get on and do the job properly. We will help the industry go forward, not backwards, as the government proposes.

TAB — PRIVATISATION

Motion

HON DARREN WEST (Agricultural) [10.08 am] — without notice: I move —

That this house calls on the government to rule out any proposed privatisation of the TAB due to the —

- (a) adverse implications for regional and metropolitan racing, pacing and greyhound clubs;
- (b) adverse implications for community sport and recreation organisations; and
- (c) money being wasted investigating such a clearly flawed action.

Hon DARREN WEST: I rise today to make a contribution on a very, very important issue in my electorate—the future of regional racing. I refer to not only thoroughbred racing, but also trotting and greyhound racing as well as the spin-offs from the TAB back into community sport and recreation programs. Anyone who visits a country racetrack would see the importance of the backing of the TAB and putting back the funds that are injected through betting into stakes for racing, which is the cornerstone, of course, of the meetings. Many very well-known jockeys and trainers began their career on small country racetracks through the opportunities that were provided on some of the less capable horses that are bred; they got those opportunities to begin their apprenticeship in regional areas. With the privatisation of the TAB, as has been mooted—I will go into more detail during my comments—there is no doubt, members, that country racing as we know it will finish. That would be a very sad day. Therefore, the idea of this motion is to put forward the very good reasons as to why the government should not proceed with the sale of the TAB and why it should not even investigate the sale of the TAB. The government should rule this out here and now as something that it is considering.

As I have said before both in this house and outside this house, this government has completely trashed the state's finances. The government has lost this state's AAA credit rating and been totally fiscally incompetent, and it is now looking for ways to plug the holes in the financial dyke. However, the privatisation of the TAB should not be one of those ways. The government should consider changing the way it spends money, rather than looking at the privatisation of assets at all costs and no matter what the implications may be.

I will now do something that I have never done before and that I may never, ever do again. I am going to agree with something that Jeff Kennett, the former Premier of Victoria, has said of a political nature. Of course I support the work that Jeff Kennett does with beyondblue and other organisations, but when it comes to politics, I do not think there would be two people who are much further apart. On 21 August last year, there was an article in The West Australian by Gareth Parker, state political editor of The West Australian, titled "Kennett rues selling TAB in Victoria". As members may know, Jeff Kennett wreaked a trail of havoc through the state of Victoria. He brutally amalgamated local governments. He did some things as Premier that I find very, very unsavoury. One of those things was the privatisation of the Victorian TAB. If Jeff Kennett says that the privatisation of the TAB in Victoria was one of the biggest mistakes that he ever made, it clearly would be a big mistake, in my view, to privatise the TAB in this state. The article says —

Former Victorian premier Jeff Kennett said privatising his state's TAB was one of the worst decisions he has made.

That is what he said in hindsight—after the sale of the TAB in Victoria. The article continues —

As debate rages around whether the Barnett Government should follow suit two decades after Mr Kennett became the first premier to sell a betting business, Mr Kennett said it was incumbent on governments to act in the interests of the racing industry.

Of course, at the heart of this motion this morning is that very question—what is in the best interests of the racing industry, especially, in my case, as a member representing a regional seat, all the small country race clubs not only in my seat, but across the state. The article goes on to say—

"If, when we sold the Victorian TAB, we knew what was going to happen with corporate book-making, we wouldn't have done it," he said.

That should be endorsement enough that this is a bad idea and should be shelved immediately. The rhetoric from the government should be that it is not even considering this; it is not going to waste any more of the state's money investigating this; it is dead and buried and not an option. But I fear that is not the case. The article goes on to say —

“We privatised it in the best interests of the racing industry but what happened is these foreigners have come in here knowing they have the most liberal laws to operate in any country and they are stealing TAB customers so they can dominate the market.

“They are not interested in racing, the horses or the welfare of the trainers and owners. They just see racing as a product, along with every other sport.”

The TAB has an equalisation scheme under which country meetings that would not be viable in their own right are cross-subsidised by betting in other places. A person who lives on the other side of Australia can bet on a horserace in Northam, and the proceeds from that betting will go back to that race club in Northam. I often cite the story of a couple who now live in Northam—he is a teacher, and his wife works at the Wheatbelt Development Commission—who were sitting in a pub in Coffs Harbour and saw that the trots were on at Northam and thought if that town is big enough to have a trotting track, maybe they should look at moving there; and they are still living there five years later. So, in addition to the financial benefits for country race clubs, the fact that a town is flashed up on Sky television or a racing channel somewhere and people can get involved in a race in that town raises awareness of some of our regional towns and regional race clubs. I always like to tell that very good story about how some very good people came with their skills to Northam in Western Australia because of a race that they saw on the telly.

Paragraph (b) of my motion refers to the spin-offs that are available to other sports—not just the three codes of racing that I have referred to—as a result of the TAB being in public hands. I want to quote from an article in The Weekend West of 13–14 September 2014 headed “TAB sale ‘threatens sports’”. The article goes on to say —

WA’s peak independent sports body says selling off the TAB would rip the heart out of community sport and recreation by robbing it of about a third of its State funding.

Not only are we now looking at gutting the racing industry, we are looking at cutting by as much as one-third, according to this article, the funds that go to other sports. The article goes on to say —

WA Sports Federation chief executive Rob Thompson said funding made available through the sports wagering account, which is topped up using TAB profits, made up 32 per cent of the $14.3 million allocated to community sport and recreation organisations.

Mr Thompson said the account, which received $4.5 million in sports betting income and unclaimed money in 2013–14, had grown almost 15 per cent each year, helping to bolster WA’s sport and recreation industry.

He said a privatisation of the TAB would almost certainly mean the sports wagering account would cease to exist — a “devastating” blow for junior and senior sport.

He was concerned that the significant threat to the sport and recreation industry was being left out of the debate.

I think that largely it has been left out of the debate, and it is too important an issue to leave out of the debate. I expect that the line from the government and members opposite will be, “We have not made a decision; we have not ruled the sale of the TAB in or out”—even though I will quote later in my contribution remarks to the contrary. I think that will be the position of the government. I would say to the government, in response to that: stop wasting money on the sale of an asset that should not be sold; stop wasting money on a clearly flawed idea; rule out the sale of the TAB immediately, and target that spend into something that is of more value. That is what I would call on government members to do. As I said, the state’s AAA credit rating has gone. A lot of money has been wasted by this government. The state’s finances are in disarray. Two ratings agencies have downgraded the state’s economy from AAA to AA+. The federal economy, in which there is allegedly a budget emergency, still has a AAA credit rating. The position in this state is worse than that. State debt has gone from $3.8 billion to $25 billion. I say to the government: do not spend any more money on a flawed idea; rule out the sale of the TAB, and spend that money on something valuable and useful.

There has been much speculation about the sale of the TAB. Usually, when there is such strong speculation, I think it is fairly safe to assume that there is something in the story. I will quote again from The Weekend West of 13–14 September 2014 and a feature that I often read and find very interesting called “Leadership Q+A”. This particular question and answer session was with David Hobbs, the chief executive of Greyhounds WA, and he was asked questions about what does he do in his spare time, what is his favourite television show, and what is his favourite place to go on holidays. He was also asked the very important question, “Do you think the TAB should be privatised?”, and his answer was — possibly in the second round of asset sales but the three codes in the racing industry—thoroughbreds, harness and greyhound—are still waiting on a consultant’s report that will tell us how we would fare if the TAB is privatised.

It’s now looking likely that the TAB will be sold, —

This is a very senior industry player who is of that view —

If a consultant’s report has been commissioned on how the codes will fare after privatisation, it is fairly safe to draw the assumption that there will be a privatisation, or certainly there is a strong chance that there will be a privatisation. His answer continues —

How will distribution be dealt with in the future? We need to be assured that we won’t be worse off under a private sale than we have been under government.

I can tell the chief executive officer that there will be a privatisation because Jeff Kennett has told us there will, given his experience of two decades ago. I think the chief executive officer is being somewhat hopeful, but I think the reality is that his worst fears will certainly be realised.

I will quote the debate that happened in the other house on this in a few moments, but a regional newspaper ran an article on it. Being a regional member, I researched the implications for regional areas. As a regional member, I thought that was my duty; I will let others make a contribution about the issues in the metropolitan area. Heather McNeill wrote a very good article headed “Discussion of TAB privatisation heats up” that appeared in the North West Telegraph on 3 September. The article reads —

The debate about whether to privatise the TAB continued in Parliament last month, with the sale considered as part of the State Government’s second round of asset sell-offs.

I interpolate that the asset sell-offs are a direct result of fiscal mismanagement, not because they are a good idea. The article continues —

In an often heated exchange, shadow minister for racing and gaming Michael Murray said privatising the TAB could reduce the State’s racing clubs from 55 to as low as 15.

Let us just think about that for a moment. If there are only 15 racing clubs left in Western Australia, where will the opportunities for owners, trainers, jockeys, strappers and feed suppliers come from? We will have just the elite—the very wealthy who own the horses; all the part-timers, the hobby owners and the interested souls will not have any opportunities, if we have 15 race clubs, to be involved in the racing industry. What a shame that would be. That would tear the heart out of so many of our rural communities. The article continues —

“A percentage of the turnover that goes through the betting machines goes back to those clubs,” he said.

“If that money is gone ... Leinster, Roebourne and maybe even Port Hedland will be gone because if they do not have support from the TAB, they will not survive.”

Port Hedland Turf Club president Arnold Carter, who runs six races a year including the Hedland Cup, said he was against the sale of the TAB and the State Government would have to show him some dramatic figures to change his mind.

After reading the article, I contacted the largest racing club in my electorate—the Geraldton Turf Club—which holds 19 meetings a year. Tremendous horses have run on that large provincial track—some very eminent Western Australian horses and some of our finest jockeys. The spokesperson for the club told me that without the TAB, that club is finished. That is the biggest provincial centre in my electorate and the largest club. Members could argue that Northam is a more significant club because it has the backup track should there be inclement weather in Perth, but Geraldton—a significant regional club—has told me that there is no way known it can survive in an environment without the support of the TAB. It would just about completely gut racing in my electorate, and we would all have to come down to Perth. What a shame that would be.

Another article of regional significance appeared in the Kalgoorlie Miner. Kalgoorlie is very famous for its racing round. The article reads —

Racing clubs in small regional towns such as Leonora and Leinster will be the first to suffer if the State Government sells the TAB, according to the Country Racing Association of WA.

Secretary John Biggs said the detriment to provincial clubs would also have a significant flow on effect in small towns where race meets are often the biggest event of the year.

Concern over the potential privatisation of the TAB has prompted the racing industry to engage consultant Ray Gunston who is in the process of preparing a report detailing the implications for the industry.

Such is the fear of the Country Racing Association of WA, it has already commissioned a report to see what the impacts will be. The article continues —

“A race meeting in some of these country clubs is the biggest thing they have in town for the whole year and it’s important that we’re able to continue that because it does affect the morale.

That is another good reason. Not only will opportunities for the racing industry be lost, but everybody loves to dress up and go to the races. Just because people live in a regional area far from the city, why should they not have that opportunity? Those people will not have that opportunity if the TAB is privatised. The article continues —

A portion of TAB revenue is tipped back into the industry every year with distributions totalling about $130 million in 2013–14.

That is $130 million, members, that goes back into regional racing as a result of distributions from the TAB! The article continues —

Each club receives a certain sum of money per race 100 per cent of which must go to race stakes.

The race stakes are very important, because a winning horse has a trainer, jockey, requires feeding, has a strapper, and the owner needs to move the horse around. The racing industry has so many ripple effects in regional country towns. It is one of the best for putting money directly back into towns. I will not generalise, but most people I know who are into horses spend more money on their horses than they do on themselves. They are happy to put that money back through feed merchants and staff, and provide rural jobs and opportunities.

The article continues —

Mr Biggs said he did not think there was any doubt those distributions would fail if the TAB became privately owned.

“The small clubs that don’t present a turnover or a profit to the TAB are always going to be the first ones to be affected,” he said.

“The owners are going to want to ensure they look after wherever they can get their best returns.” Kalgoorlie–Boulder Racing Club chief executive Tim Beaver said the industry would want a guarantee from the Government that distributions would be unaffected if the TAB was sold.

This is ongoing, sustainable money coming from the TAB, not just a one-off grant to fix up the grandstand. This is the sustainable money that clubs need. The article continues —

Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron said he would only support the sale of the TAB “if it were in the best interests of the racing industry”.

I think that comment might lead someone to think that it is dead in the water and it is not going to happen, but it does not seem that way when we read on a bit further.

There is some concern over the National Party’s position on the TAB. I have with me a media release from Mick Murray, MLA, member for Collie–Preston, shadow Minister for Regional Roads; Racing and Gaming. The media release states that he moved a motion in the Parliament and the Liberals and Nationals failed to oppose the TAB sell-off. The media release reads —

- Liberal and National MPs have backed the privatisation of the WA’s TAB
- Not a single Liberal or National Party MP supported WA Labor’s motion condemning the privatisation of the TAB.
- Liberal and National MPs have ignored the pleas from the racing industry and their electorates

That is what happened in the Parliament. I have the debate here; I am pressed for time so I will not read it all, but anyone who wants to check Hansard from that debate in the other place can.

I also have with me some comments from the Premier that appeared in the press. An article by Daniel Emerson—a very highly regarded journalist—that appeared in The West Australian on 1 August states that the Premier said —

... the Government “probably will” sell the TAB, ...

Can members see the many mixed messages flying around here? The racing and gaming minister has said he will sell it if it is in the interests of regional racing—it has been clearly demonstrated that it will not—and now The West Australian reads —

Colin Barnett said yesterday that the Government “probably will” sell the TAB, his strongest indication yet after previously ruling it out and then putting the agency on a list of asset sales for consideration. The Premier said the Government’s first round of asset sales, made necessary by the loss of the State’s

AAA credit rating in September, would focus on land but the TAB could follow. “I think the Government probably will sell the TAB but it’s not going to be in the first group of asset sales,” ...

I think we have a fairly strong indication there from the leader of the Liberal–National government that the TAB will be sold. I think I have put some really good arguments to members on why that should not happen. I think in the interests of racing in my electorate and the flow-on jobs and quality of life that that provides, it is a silly idea. As I have indicated, there are flow-on effects for not only racing, but also other sports, and significant amounts of money are being tipped into community sport and recreation. But I would also call on the government to come out and be clear about it, rule out the sale of the TAB, and not waste any more money investigating such a silly idea. The government has wasted enough; let us get serious about the TAB and keep it publicly owned.

HON PETER COLLIER (North Metropolitan — Leader of the House) [10.28 am]: I will make a few comments about this issue on behalf of the Minister for Racing and Gaming. I am very conscious of racing, particularly in the regions. The Hannans Handicap was held yesterday in Kalgoorlie, my home town, and the Kalgoorlie Cup will be held next Saturday. I have attended those events a number of times over the years and have a deep personal regard for racing in the regions. Having said that, we are talking about something that may or may not occur, and I want to make that perfectly clear from the outset. The Treasurer announced in his budget speech the government’s decision to address the state’s debt issues through an orderly sale of some of the state’s assets. As part of that process, the government will undertake a strategic review of state-owned assets and that includes the TAB, and we have made that quite clear from the outset. However, as the Premier and the Minister for Racing and Gaming have regularly confirmed, the potential sale of the TAB will be considered as part of the second tranche of asset sales next year. I emphasise yet again that no decision has been made at this stage about the sale of the TAB.

The state government and the Western Australian racing industry are the TAB’s major stakeholders. The state government is the owner of the asset and the racing industry is the provider of racing product and a major beneficiary of the TAB’s wagering revenue. Since the budget was delivered in May, the Treasurer and minister have met with Racing and Wagering Western Australia, as the operator of the TAB but also as the racing industry’s governing body, to discuss this issue. RWWA therefore will play a key role in the consideration of a potential sale. I emphasise that again: it will play a key role in the potential sale of the TAB—and it is a potential sale. RWWA has met and will continue to meet with Treasury officials as part of this process.

The Minister for Racing and Gaming, as the minister responsible for racing, has stated that he would support the sale of the TAB only if it were in the best interests of the racing industry and the wider community to do so. However, as most people would understand, in the interests of the broader state finances, the government needs to look at all options. Privatisation itself is a complex issue, but it is important, whatever the outcome, that a sustainable future for the racing industry is achieved.

It is without doubt that distributions to the racing industry under RWWA’s stewardship of the TAB have grown strongly. Returns to community sport via the sports wagering account have also increased steadily over time. The government will carefully consider both these funding streams in any decisions being made.

There are of course important lessons to be learnt from privatisations in other jurisdictions. They have gone about the sale process in very different ways, all producing varying outcomes for the respective racing industries. It is important that we understand the pros and cons of these sales, and the government will certainly do that. Regional racing clubs are often the community glue and provide significant recreational and social values to the community. This will also be a key consideration. The government is also aware that TAB agents have made important investments in the business of the TAB and tens of thousands of Western Australians gain their employment directly and indirectly through the racing industry. This issue is extremely complex. It is not simply a decision to sell the asset, take the money and retire debt. The racing industry is a significant industry, contributing more than $600 million to the state’s economy each year, and the government is well aware of the requirement to consider its future. The government will do the work to ensure that we have the right information to make a decision that is in the best interests of racing, community sport and the broader community. As I have said, RWWA will continue to be consulted on this issue, but at this stage no decision has been made.

HON SAMANTHA ROWE (East Metropolitan) [10.32 am]: I am very pleased to rise to participate in this debate this morning. I would like to thank Hon Darren West for bringing this motion to the house today and I put on the record that obviously it will receive my strong support. The racing industry in Western Australia is vitally important to our economy. The industry employs approximately 34 000 Western Australians. Any significant loss in revenue will clearly have flow-on effects on employees and families who work in that industry. I think Hon Darren West also mentioned that it is not just about trainers and jockeys; we are also talking about strappers, track workers, those who work in hospitality, retailers and the cleaners associated with this industry. It would have quite a devastating impact on the WA racing industry if the privatisation of the TAB were to go ahead, as has been strongly indicated by this government. We are of the view that it will most likely happen, if not in the government's first round of asset sales, possibly in the second round. The Premier has made very strong comments about this matter and has supported these comments. It is certainly our view that any privatisation of the TAB will have adverse impacts.

As a metropolitan member of Parliament, I will focus my comments on this motion specifically on Ascot Racecourse in Belmont in my electorate. I would like to point out that racing at Ascot Racecourse and Belmont Park Racecourse has had a proud history, and we should not diminish its sustainability for the sake of propping up this government's mismanaged budget. There have been tough times for this industry. Other forms of entertainment are already competing with racing and of course there is also online gaming, so we need to make sure that we are doing everything we can to support the WA racing industry, and privatising the TAB would certainly not achieve that. The racing industry is also important to the local economy. We know that many families are employed around the Ascot area and that would have huge implications for their employment. Some residents in Belmont and specifically in Ascot have invested millions of dollars in setting up racing-related businesses and enterprises in the area. They have purchased property in historic stable areas and there could be an adverse impact on these people if the privatisation of the TAB were to go ahead. The government also needs to consider these issues when it looks at whether it will go ahead with the privatisation.

The industry obviously offers Belmont the opportunity to be a tourist destination. Ascot racing brings in a large number of tourists each year, so it is a major attraction in the Belmont area. Racing has been conducted at the heritage-listed Ascot Racecourse since 1848 and we should celebrate this.

The PRESIDENT: Order! I am sure the honourable member on her feet is finding it is a bit disconcerting with members in front of her turning around and talking to members next to her.

Hon SAMANTHA ROWE: Thank you, Mr President. As I was saying, we should celebrate the fact that racing has been taking place at Ascot since 1848. We do not want the industry to be at risk or damaged because this state government cannot manage its budget. We know that the government has lost its AAA credit rating. We know that the state government cannot manage its finances. But why is it up to the racing industry to prop up a mismanaged budget? This is not about any benefit to WA racing; this is purely and simply about selling a state asset to patch up a poorly managed budget. The government will not get away with this. The residents of Ascot and Belmont and the surrounding communities know what is going on and why the government is doing it, so it should just come clean.

The chief executive officer of Racing and Wagering WA, Richard Burt, said in February that the reason the government will sell the TAB will not be the lack of performance of RWWA or the TAB; it will be purely a financial need. Michael Grant, the president of the Western Australian Racing Trainers' Association, said that the Western Australian TAB successfully operates in a competitive wagering environment, there is no groundswell of support within racing to change the existing structure and the WARTA is cognisant of the government's financial motivation, and nothing more.

I would like to put on the record that an article entitled "Government probably will sell TAB, says Premier" in The West Australian of 1 August this year states —

Colin Barnett said yesterday that the Government "probably will" sell the TAB, his strongest indication yet after previously ruling it out and then putting the agency on a list of asset sales for consideration.

The Premier said the Government's first round of asset sales, made necessary by the loss of the State's AAA credit rating in September, would focus on land but the TAB could follow.

We believe it is absolute nonsense that this government is not considering the privatisation of the Totalisator Agency Board. Mr Mick Murray moved a motion in the other place about whether the TAB should be privatised. I think it is disappointing that the member for Belmont, who has previously commented in her local paper, the Southern Gazette, and in the other place that she is not for the privatisation of the TAB, when push came to shove, was not prepared to cross the floor and stand up to the Premier and stand up for the Belmont community. She is all talk —

Hon Alyssa Hayden: How do you know?

Hon SAMANTHA ROWE: I am so glad Hon Alyssa Hayden asked that question. I will tell her how I know — Several members interjected.

The PRESIDENT: Order, members. All in your own time, not somebody else's time.

Hon SAMANTHA ROWE: Thank you, Mr President. An article in the Southern Gazette on Tuesday, 2 September, states —

BELMONT MLA Glenys Godfrey spoke against privatising the TAB in Parliament on August 20, but when pressed by Collie MLA Mick Murray as to whether she would cross the floor in a vote she said she would not.

We now know that she did not cross the floor. The member for Belmont not only refuses to stand up for her electorate on the privatisation of the TAB, but also on the forced council amalgamations. Quite frankly, I believe the member for Belmont is asleep at the wheel; she refuses to stand up for her electorate. It is all talk!

Several members interjected.

The PRESIDENT: Order, members. Order! It was going very well for quite a long time. Let us get back to one person speaking at a time and that is the member on her feet.

Hon SAMANTHA ROWE: Thank you, Mr President. There was quite a lot of hysteria from the members opposite. I must have hit a nerve.

Several members interjected.

The PRESIDENT: Order! It is inappropriate, before the member even had a chance to resume her comments, that there were three interjections.

Hon SAMANTHA ROWE: The hysteria across the other side of the chamber is deafening and it can only mean that we have hit a nerve.

Several members interjected.

The PRESIDENT: Order. That time there were not three interjections, there were seven. Let us try and start again.

Hon SAMANTHA ROWE: Thank you, Mr President. I would like to comment on this media release. It states —

The TAB provides the Government with an ongoing revenue stream returning $40 million each year. In addition, it provides an estimated $120 million to the racing industry each year.

Representatives of Belmont Racing and Western Australian Racing more broadly have expressed concern at any move to privatise the TAB, believing that it will seriously damage the industry ...

“This abandonment of the Belmont Racing Industry by Glenys Godfrey must leave people asking if they can trust her to represent their wishes” ...

The press release continues —

“In Glenys Godfrey’s own Parliamentary grievance, she claimed to strongly oppose the sale of the TAB and labelled any such sale as ‘short-term gain for long-term pain’. Yet when push came to shove and there was a vote on the issue in Parliament, she refused to stand up — — for her electorate of Belmont. I think that is highly disappointing and the member is clearly asleep at the wheel. I believe that the Western Australian racing industry deserves more.

Several members interjected.

The PRESIDENT: Order.

Point of Order

Hon LIZ BEHJAT: I have been listening very closely to the member on the other side of the chamber and, in accordance with standing order 45, I find her last comment that the member for Belmont is asleep at the wheel quite offensive. The member for Belmont is a very hardworking member of Parliament, and I ask the member to withdraw that comment.

Several members interjected.

The PRESIDENT: Members, standing order 45 is there for the good reason that we do not become a kangaroo court in this chamber in terms of condemning members in the other place. But Parliaments are a place for reasonably robust debate at times, so we all have to have a little bit of a thick skin, and I do not think the phrase used by the honourable member on her feet crossed that line. There is not point of order.

Debate Resumed

Hon SAMANTHA ROWE: Thank you, Mr President. I have only 26 seconds remaining and I want to make it clear that I fully support the WA racing industry and that I believe any move by the Barnett Liberal government to privatise the TAB will have an adverse impact. I think it is about time the government told the people of Western Australia what it intends to do with the TAB.

HON COL HOLT (South West — Parliamentary Secretary) [10.45 am]: It is good to have this debate during the Kalgoorlie race round. I would like to quickly congratulate my niece Jerry Noske who won the Boulder Cup last weekend on Red Blast, which is a horse from the Morton stables—so, excellent work!

I want to put on the record that I remain completely unconvinced that the sale of the Totalisator Agency Board is in the best interests of the racing industry. That is my perspective as a regional member. I want to state some of the key stats from the “Western Australian Racing Industry Economic & Social Impact Report”. The report was released in 2012, which is only a couple of years ago. Some of the key stats are: there are 55 race clubs in Western Australia, of which 52 clubs are in regional Western Australia; there are 874 race meetings held each year, of which 570 occur in regional areas; there are 10 092 race club members, of which 6 717 are in regional areas; 54 per cent of breeders in the racing industry are located in regional areas; 43 per cent of the 16 700 people who have an ownership in racing live in regional Western Australia, particularly in the Peel, wheatbelt and south west regions; nearly 70 per cent of the 1 690 trainers registered in WA live outside the metropolitan area; 2 555 of the 6 737 full-time equivalent jobs are located in regional areas; the industry generates around $550 million in direct expenditure; and over 50 per cent of the 33 680 people directly involved in racing are in regional Western Australia. It is a significant industry, economic driver and employer in regional Western Australia.

My concerns about the privatisation of the TAB include who will look after those regional interests if the TAB is privatised. Do we expect a commercial operator to look after those regional interests? I want to put a couple of examples to the house. In an event such as when the grandstand roof blew off the York race club, which only has a few race meetings year, but is a significant part of the social fabric for York, would a private organisation running the TAB see fit to invest in a new grandstand? If a self-serve betting machine in a remote or regional area breaks down—let us pick anywhere: Kojonup, Tambellup or Nannup—would we expect a private operator of the TAB to rush to the town to fix the betting machine? If they are making a commercial decision, they probably would not. However, as a service obligation, the operator probably should do so.

I have met with people from the racing industry and they believe that there are two main groups of people who support the racing industry in Western Australia. Firstly, there are the poor and long-suffering owners, who continually invest in racehorses, greyhounds or trotters, hoping for that one big win out of the thousands that race every week. They are integral to and actually prop up the industry. The other group of people who really continue to support the industry are the punters, who make their own choices about what they want to spend their money on and who like to have a flutter on the ponies at the weekend. They are really the biggest financial supporters of the racing industry and I am not sure, from the viewpoint of the government supporting the industry, why we would take away that major element of backing for the racing industry and put it into private hands. I am yet to be convinced, but I think it is diligent to look at the whole issue from a broader perspective. There have been a lot of changes in our communities and our society and in the ways in which we do business; it all changes continuously, at an increasingly rapid pace.

I turn to the second report of the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts’ inquiry into the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts. Finding 60, at page 148, states —

While privatisation of the TAB has occurred in most other states, there is no long-term benefit for the industry in Western Australia. There is extensive industry support for the existing structure and wagering ownership arrangements under Racing and Wagering Western Australia to continue.

That was in 2010.

Hon Adele Farina: How many recommendations from that report has the government implemented?

Hon COL HOLT: I do not know.

Hon Adele Farina: Zero.

Hon COL HOLT: That was four years ago. If we consider the rapid pace of change in our lives, that is quite a long time ago. Are we to not ever say that we should go back and investigate what is now going on in the racing industry in case there is a really good reason to change what we are doing? That is the point. With regard to the motion moved by Hon Darren West, I am of the view that paragraphs (a) and (b) are quite correct, but I certainly will not commit to not looking at the industry in full depth to see what the best outcome would be for the industry. I listened very carefully to Hon Darren West’s arguments. Paragraph (c) of the motion is worded, “money being wasted investigating such a clearly flawed action”, and I had hoped that Hon Darren West would provide evidence to show that the action is clearly flawed, but all he came up with were some media releases and a comment by a former Premier who, in hindsight, said that it was the worst mistake he made, which again came from a media release. I hope Hon Darren West is not basing all of his rigorous thinking on media releases and things that have been reported in the press, because we on this side of the house will look at all the issues and make our decisions based on the best interests of the racing industry and the Western Australian people.

I reiterate that I am still unconvinced that privatisation of the TAB is the right way to go. I think the racing industry itself is taking an approach of saying, “Well, let’s look at how things are changing in terms of our product and the way that we sell it". We know that there are now many, many different players in the punting scene in Western Australia; the TAB is no longer the only one. There are attacks all the time from online, interstate and international betting agencies, and we would be mad to not see how that will impact on the TAB and the racing industry. That is why we need to look at those things. Again, I remain unconvinced that we need to sell the TAB because of the impacts it could have on regional racing, but let us look at it, because there are going to be impacts into the out years that are going to change how the TAB operates. I actually think the TAB is doing a really good job in response to its external pressures and I back the TAB, but the racing industry itself has employed Ray Gunston to look at this issue. He was heavily involved in the privatisation of TABs in other states, but the WA racing industry, which is opposed to the sale of the TAB, has gone to Ray Gunston and said, "Look at this on our behalf to see what the best outcome can be for our racing industry", and that is exactly what is happening. The racing industry is not putting its head in the sand like Hon Darren West is; it is actually saying, "Let's have a look and see what the best outcome is for our racing industry."

Again, all the information I have received points to the sale of the TAB not being right for regional racing, and I will keep saying that until I am presented with evidence to the contrary. But if the racing industry came to me tomorrow and said, "Actually, we think we've got this wrong; we actually think we can get a better deal doing this", then I will be prepared to listen to it. That is exactly what Hon Darren West should be doing; instead of putting his head in the sand and dredging up newspaper articles and comments from a Premier who left office 25 years ago, he should do some rigorous thinking and backgrounding and come up with an option that actually helps the racing industry into the future.

HON ADELE FARINA (South West) [10.55 am]: I would like to speak in support of the motion moved by Hon Darren West and commend him for moving it, because this is a very important issue in regional Western Australia. The state government has flagged that it is possibly going to sell the TAB as part of its $6 billion asset sale to pay off its state debt, because it is unable to manage its finances. The very first question one needs to ask is: why are we selling state assets simply because this government is unable to manage its finances? Surely the government should be looking at better financial management in terms of the amount of money it is spending and where it is spending it, rather than selling off state assets.

The sale of the TAB will have a devastating impact on the racing industry, and the lack of any position from the state Liberal and National Parties is creating great uncertainty and loss of confidence in the industry. It is also devaluing the TAB outlets; a number of them are for sale but they cannot be sold because of the uncertainty that is being created by this government's inability to state a clear position, and the fact that it is taking so long to form a view on this issue one way or another.

The TAB is integral to funding racing in Western Australia, but it is also an important contributor to community sports. The industry feels very, very betrayed by the Premier and the National Party because of the position they have taken on this issue. The minister commented that he would only ever consider the privatisation of the TAB if it were in the best interests of the racing industry, but the state government has failed to provide any reassurance to the community that this sale will not go ahead, and that is really not good enough. For the government to come into this place and say, "Well, a decision hasn't been made", is again not good enough because of the uncertainty it creates within the sector.

I would like now to go through some stats. The racing industry adds $594.6 million to the WA economy each year, and 48 per cent of that comes from regional WA. There is $264.1 million in net wagering revenue and 55 racing clubs across the state, all but three of which are in regional Western Australia. There are more than 33 000 people employed through WA racing, including both paid employees and volunteers, and 6 737 full-time employees. A sum of $349.3 million is generated in wages across all sectors of the industry and between 2010 and 2013, the turnover for WA wagering grew by eight per cent. We have heard statements from the minister and the government that the industry is in a mess, but the stats show that not to be the case because it has grown by eight per cent. Turnover has increased from $1.6 billion in 2008–09 to $2.15 billion in 2013–14, which is a 34 per cent increase. Distribution in 2008–09 was $106 million; in 2013–14, it was $130 million, which is an increase of 23 per cent. Again, the stats show very clearly that any suggestion that the industry is in a mess is just wrong.

There is ageing infrastructure in regional WA racing clubs and insufficient investment is currently going into racing in Western Australia under the current model. If the TAB were to withdraw the funding it provides to the industry, it would have a devastating impact on racing in regional WA and there would be many job losses as a result. The experience of all other Australian states that have privatised their TABs is that it has had a devastating impact on the racing industry. That is not a path we should go down. I do not know what further evidence the government needs to make a decision on this matter; all the evidence that exists to date strongly indicates that we should not go down this path.

In regional WA racing clubs are very important to not only the racing industry, but also their communities. They provide significant recreational, social and economic value to their communities. The impact is on not only the racing sector, but also on community sport and recreation. Privatisation of the TAB would rip the heart out of community sport and recreation by robbing it of about one-third of its state funding. Funding made available to clubs through the sport wagering account uses TAB profits, with up to 32 per cent of the money allocated to community sport and recreation organisations coming from TAB profits. The chief executive officer of the Western Australian Sports Federation has been reported as saying that this would be a devastating blow for junior and senior sport across the state; it would impact on support for the training of coaches, administrators and officials, and many support agencies for community-based sports also rely on this funding and would be devastated without it. Parks and Leisure Australia WA president, Mark Casserly, said that losing the sport wagering account would set recreation in WA back 10 years and decimate participation in physical activity. It is important for members to understand that more than 160 community organisations utilise race club facilities and resources, and that more than 110 community organisations and charities in WA are financially assisted by race clubs. Over the past decade, sport and rec organisations have received over $29 million in funding support. It is a significant source of funding for community-based sport and recreation groups, and they would not be able to continue the work they do without that critical funding. The ramifications of this very bad policy decision or consideration will have deep impacts on the community.

Last year Racing and Wagering WA distributed over $12 million in participant funding—that is, race day stakes—to clubs in the south west. That included Bunbury Turf Club, Albany Racing Club, Mount Barker Turf Club, Pinjarra Race Club, Collie Race Club, Bunbury Trotting Club, Harvey District Trotting Club, Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, Albany Harness Racing Club, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Collie Harness Racing Club and Busselton Trotting Club. Eight south west communities were beneficiaries to varying degrees of that very important funding. It will be a significant blow to those regional communities if $12 million is pulled out of those communities.

Ross Price is a local trainer and the vice-chair of Bunbury Turf Club. He has provided, through my office, some comments in relation to this issue. He is very concerned; his view is that once the TAB is privatised we can neither expect a private company with shareholders to grow the industry the way the WA TAB has done, nor expect the continual increases in distribution that have been experienced with the TAB. The primary concern of a private company once it owns the TAB will be its shareholders, not the industry.

Hon Helen Morton interjected.

Hon ADELE FARINA: If the minister thinks that is a laughing matter, she should look at the company law code and understand how companies operate. Their primary responsibilities are to their shareholders. The concerns expressed by Mr Price are very valid. He has also indicated that 95 per cent of all stakes paid by Bunbury Turf Club in 2012–13 were provided by Racing and Wagering Western Australia—that was over $2 million. All those moneys are distributed direct to participants in the industry—owners, jockeys, trainers et cetera—and they keep those people employed.

Bunbury is poised to undertake a $10 million redevelopment that has been signed off by all the parties and will see the first synthetic race-capable track installed in WA. That project is now under threat because of the uncertainty created by this government because it is unable to state a position on this issue. Bunbury Turf Club has eight permanent employees. On busy race days the club employs up to 100 people. Local trainers often employ young people with poor literacy et cetera who struggle to find employment elsewhere, so it provides a first job opportunity for young people in the area.

Racing is a long-term industry. If a person buys a yearling it is likely to be two years before it races, and until that time they have no idea whether there will be a return on that investment. Uncertainty around the possible privatisation of the TAB is really hurting the industry. Last year Mr Price indicated that he spent approximately $500 000 at the yearling sales, and this year, due to the uncertainty, he is yet to decide whether to attend the sales.

HON ROBYN McSWEENEY (South West) [11.05 am]: Although I do not agree with the way the motion is worded, I think we need to discuss the issue at length. The TAB is an integral part of racing and we know that in other states where it has been sold people are saying that race clubs are in deficit. I would like to put on the record that Hon Glenys Godfrey and I have spoken many times about the TAB and the history of horseracing and I find her to be a very good local member who stands up for her community of Belmont. There is absolutely no question about that.

For those members who do not know, my great-grandfather owned Belmont and Goodwood racecourses and I have been doing research to write a book on the history of thoroughbred racing in Western Australia. I think that we should always take note of what history tells us, so I am going to go back to 1933—nineteen frozen to death! In 1933 the people coming through the gates for race meetings in Western Australia were decreasing and that was causing much angst amongst the racing fraternity. In 1929 the amount going through the gate of the totalisator was £255 000; five years later it had risen to only £313 000. On 15 June 1933 the Daily News published an article written by Albert, my great-grandfather, in which he supplied answers to what he thought was wrong with racing. The article reads —

In view of the events of the past few weeks, the question is being asked everywhere today where sportsmen gather.

Mr. A. E. Cockram supplies his answer in this article, specially written for “The Daily News”.

His views are entitled to the widest respect for there are probably few better judges of horseflesh in Australia.

In addition to owning, breeding and importing horses, Mr. Cockram has been for a long time financially and actively concerned in controlling racing clubs and courses. He is chairman of the Belmont Park Club.

According to my notes, the rest of the article reads —

Case for Reduction of Taxes and Charges.

Horse racing is considered the Sport of Kings and the great thoroughbred the King of all horses. Horseracing is the most important of all sports and has come to be an industry of National importance. Primarily horseracing has fostered the breeding of thoroughbreds and any breed of horse will be improved to a class of the thoroughbred.

Horseracing is to be given every encouragement to maintain the high standard to which it has reached.

Race clubs and race horses are therefore carried on to primarily improve breed of horses.

But in Australia it has come to be an industry in which enormous capital is invested and in which a great number of people depend on for employment and their livelihood.

... trainers and jockeys, stablemen, saddlers and the large number of men and women who are required on race days to manage the course depend on racing for their existence. Much capital is invested in valuable breeding studs, property and buildings.

Racing and training stables employ large staff which keep the stables in working order and many more when renewal and repairs to valuable building and property are necessary.

The same could be said today, and we all are. A lot of people depend on the racing industry. The article goes on —

Government Benefit

From all those employed in the racing industry the State and Commonwealth Governments receive revenue in taxes such as land tax, income tax, and hospital tax — and from the racing club they derive many taxes that they are worth detailing.

Whatever that is; I have not gone into that yet —

There are taxes on totalisator investments, 1 pound per 1,000 pound. Stamp tax on tote tickets. State and Commonwealth Governments tax on course admission tickets. Tax on Stakes and Salaries, on bar purchases and on printing. In addition, the Government takes tax on dividends, fractional and unclaimed dividends. On top of all these taxes the clubs pay rates to the various municipalities.

Therefore from many monies the country benefits and the Government collect these revenues without any cost.

Racing therefore is a useful industry but there has arisen a menace which threatens to wipe it out.

The starting price evil is one which if allowed to continue will close up the racing clubs and paralyse the industry.

The racing bodies are doing all in their power to combat it but without governments, their efforts are proving unavailing.

Starting prices or away from the race course betting grows and prospers to the disadvantage of the racing clubs, the government and the industry. Yet the Governments have taken little action to stamp the evil out. Rather they hamper the clubs by imposing heavy taxes which they receive without cost, while in the puny fines they impose on those found guilty of starting price betting they receive little more than that which it cost to collect.

I will not read all the article. I just wanted to read that out to show that things have not changed much in those years, except for the big money that racing generates these days. I think there is half a billion dollars in prize money now, whereas back in those days the prize money was not as huge. The TAB also injects more than $126 million into the WA racing industry. A report I read indicated that the government collects $43 million a year from racing. The report states —

The State Government will get $43 million in tax from a betting turnover of $2.15 billion and the Federal Government will get $28 million in GST revenue.

It is therefore not a small industry. I will read a letter from Michael Grant, president of the WA Racing Trainers Association—an association that is concerned and has the right to be. Whenever there is a mooted change in an industry and the industry is not given certainty, people come out and start agitating against a government.

Albert's last sentence in the article back in 1933 reads —

A conference between representatives of the Government, the racing clubs and the press should be held to discuss the situation immediately.

I do not see that anything much has changed now. However, Michael Grant wrote a reply to an editorial by Paul Murray. Paul likes a flutter himself, so I know that he is certainly not against racing. Michael Grant writes —

As a long-time participant and passionate member of the Western Australian racing industry I felt compelled to respond to the inaccuracies of Paul Murray's opinion piece in the West Australian on ... May 28, advocating the sale of the TAB.

Mr Murray says there is no legitimate reason for the Western Australian government to be involved in the business of gambling and underpins his argument by pointing to the sale of the Victorian TAB in 1994.

The NSW TAB was privatised in 1998; Racing NSW is currently in a funding deadlock with its state government. Two weeks ago, Racing Victoria Limited ... raised race field fees to all wagering operators in an effort to protect jobs and sustain the Victorian racing industry into the future.

Michael says that one can surely take heed from that. He goes on —

Members of the racing industry that were 'emboldened' to speak out against the Government's plan to sell the TAB were apprehensive participants who have genuine and legitimate concerns about their livelihoods and the future wellbeing of the industry they work within.

It is rare for various sectional interests of racing to unite but attendance of representatives of Trainers, Jockeys, Owners and Breeders exemplifies a growing anxiety about the lack of clarity and consultation from government.

If that is how the racing industry feels, it behoves this government to sit down with all the players concerned and discuss these issues. It is not good for the racing industry to see in the paper one day that the TAB may be privatised. I do not know whether it will be privatised, but we really need to flesh out those issues.

HON LJILJANNA RAVLICH (North Metropolitan) [11.16 am]: Mr President —

The PRESIDENT: The question is that Hon Ljiljanna —no!

Several members interjected.

The PRESIDENT: The question is that the motion be agreed to and Hon Ljiljanna Ravlich has the call.

Hon LJILJANNA RAVLICH: Thank you, Mr President, for that wonderful introduction!

I rise to support this motion. In fact, how can anybody not support this motion? There is no doubt that should the TAB in Western Australia be privatised, there will be serious adverse ramifications for regional and metropolitan racing, pacing and greyhound clubs—without doubt there will be. There will be adverse ramifications for community sport and recreation organisations—without doubt there will be. Of course, we know that this government is very good at wasting money on investigating all manner of things, and no doubt the report that has looked at whether the TAB should be privatised is no exception.

When I first came to this place more than 17 years ago, the Court government was in power. The Court government ran a very similar agenda—spend, spend, spend, spend, spend, spend! After it had absolutely mismanaged the finances by and as a result of incompetent ministers, what did it do? It sacked public servants and started to sell the assets of Western Australian taxpayers.

I want to refer to my maiden speech from 17 years ago in this place.

Several members interjected.

Hon LJILJANNA RAVLICH: Members, just listen to the parallels between what happened then and what is happening now. I said —

I now briefly turn to the issue of financial management. I believe all Western Australians are hurting under the Court Government's policies. Since coming to office the Court Government has promoted a record of strong financial management which has been highlighted by its preoccupation with debt reduction. Privatisation and the sale of government assets have been the vehicle by which debt has been reduced. The Court Government refers to this as its "sale for public benefit policy", with Western Australians being told repeatedly that they will be better off as a result of privatisation, that jobs will not be lost, and that competition will reduce costs and flow ... for key services. In fact, in the recent state Budget, the Government increased AlintaGas rates by an average of 3 per cent, Western Power rates by 3.75 per cent and Water Corporation rates by approximately 4 per cent. In addition, motor vehicle licence fees, public transport fares and drivers' licence fees increased substantially. I ask the Government: Where is the public benefit?

Hon Sue Ellery: Hallelujah, sister!

Hon LJILJANNA RAVLICH: Hallelujah, sister! Absolutely!

We know that there has been an absolute and total mismanagement of the state's finances. We know that debt has gone out of control. We know that Western Australian taxpayers are being punished for it. It has nothing to do with them, it is not of their own doing, but they are being punished for it. We know that public servants cannot rely on any assurance that they will have a job; and, increasingly, businesses are folding because of the incompetence of this government in managing the state's economy.

We know also that the government is embarking on privatisations. But we do not know exactly what is going to be privatised. The government needs to stump up and be transparent. Western Australians are sick and tired of hearing the government say, "This might be privatised, or that might be privatised; oops, no, we are going over there and we are going to privatise something that you have not heard of." Western Australians do not want privatisation. They also do not want the dishonest process of how this government goes about privatisation. But, be sure, the government will pay a hefty price at the next election for any privatisation agenda. The government should pay a hefty price for the fact that it did not go to the last election and say that it was intending to privatise a whole lot of things. It is only now that the government is starting to tell the people of Western Australia about its privatisation agenda; it should be punished for that, and it will be.

I have had the pleasure of being the Minister for Local Government; Racing and Gaming. After I left Education, I went to Racing, Gaming and Liquor. I thought Education was a challenge. But when I got to Racing, I thought, "Oh, God, I don't even know whether these people are going to like me." At my first race meet, there was a big fellow who was one of the part-owners of a horse that had won. So I walked up to him, and I thought I hope he likes me, and I was introduced and he was told that I was Ljiljanna Ravlich, the new racing minister, and he grabbed me with both arms and said, "Come here, darling! I love you!" I thought that was the nicest thing that had happened to me in politics. He then said that he was my biggest fan.

Hon Helen Morton: Was it Eric? Does he have a racehorse?

Hon LJILJANNA RAVLICH: No, it was not Eric. I had never met this bloke in my life, and I thought I am going to enjoy this portfolio, and indeed I did. The point that I want to make is that as soon as I got there, the equine flu hit.

Hon Alanna Clohesy: An awful coincidence!

Hon LJILJANNA RAVLICH: Yes, an awful coincidence!

But, anyway, it ended up being a very pleasurable portfolio. I did say to them when I got there that I do not really know a lot about racing, but I do know that it is a very important industry; I know that there are many small, medium and large businesses that survive on the strength of that industry; and I know that racing is important to local economies. I have not changed my mind on any of that at all. So, for those reasons, I support the motion that is before the house.

Hon Darren West; Hon Peter Collier; Hon Samantha Rowe; Hon Col Holt; Hon Adele Farina; Hon Robyn McSweeney; Hon Ljiljanna Ravlich; Hon Helen Morton; President

I want to quickly put on the public record the value of the racing industry. An article in The Weekend West of 15–16 February 2014 talks about a Racing and Wagering WA report that was commissioned in 2010–11 on the economic and social impact of the racing industry in Western Australia. The report found that 33 686 people, or the equivalent of one in 54 adult residents, participated in the state’s racing industry. The report found also that the state government received $34 million from wagering tax revenue in that year. Mr Burt, the chief executive of Racing and Wagering WA, is reported in that article as saying that this figure would rise to $42 million this year, with a further $23 million to be paid to the federal government in GST. The report goes on to state that TAB turnover was $1 billion in 2003–04 and will grow to $2.1 billion this season.

The racing industry is a major contributor to the economy. The government cannot argue at any point that the racing industry is a non-performing asset. It is very much a performing asset. If we are going to privatise, the idea is that we should privatise our non-performing assets.

Hon Ken Travers: Like cabinet!

Hon LJILJANNA RAVLICH: Yes, like cabinet! We do not take a performing asset and get rid of it. Truly, we hear some dumb things in Parliament, especially from members opposite. But this idea that we should sell the TAB would have to be one of the dumbest. I will say it again: if the government sells the TAB and if it goes through with its privatisations, it will not survive the next election.

HON HELEN MORTON (East Metropolitan — Minister for Mental Health) [11.26 am]: Hon Ljiljanna Ravlich has been in Parliament for 17 years —

Hon Ljiljanna Ravlich: More!

Hon HELEN MORTON: — and she is still a waste of space. Unbelievable!

Several members interjected.

Withdrawal of Remark

The PRESIDENT: Order! I do not think there is a need to take a point of order. I just caution the minister. I have often said that when it crosses the line in terms of debate over issues and gets personal, that is the line that I draw. I think, minister, that that is uncalled for, quite frankly, and I would ask you to withdraw it.

Hon HELEN MORTON: Thank you, Mr President, and I do withdraw it.

Debate Resumed

Hon HELEN MORTON: The point I am making is that after 17 years, some ideology is being played out here that is not born in reality; and I will get to that in a little bit. It is all about this ideology-driven position about not privatising anything at all under any circumstances.

I have a very great interest in the racing industry. Most people would know that my family is heavily involved in the racing industry in a variety of ways. My husband and I have breeding properties. We have I do not know how many horses; I would not have the faintest idea. We are also involved in the educating, breaking, pre-conditioning and training. All the brothers-in-law are leading trainers in Perth. I have a nephew who is a trainer now. I have a son who is involved in that industry as well. My daughter’s partner is an auctioneer and a blood horse broker.

Several members interjected.

Hon HELEN MORTON: This is all about the racing industry.

The PRESIDENT: Order, members!

Hon HELEN MORTON: I have just lost two minutes, Mr President.

This is an ideology-driven argument not born of reality.

HON DARREN WEST (Agricultural) [11.28 pm] — in reply: In my last few seconds, I want to make the point that the uncertainty, speculation and lack of clarity from the government is what concerns the industry the most. Hon Col Holt touched on it: do not muck around doing studies; just get on and make a decision and let the industry know where it stands. That is what the industry wants.

Motion lapsed, pursuant to standing orders.

TAB sale unlikely to pass Parliament, WA Premier Colin Barnett concedes

By Jacob Kagi

Posted Tue 21 Apr 2015, 5:55pm

WA Premier Colin Barnett has conceded the Government would face substantial political obstacles if it sought to privatise the TAB, admitting it would not get through the current Parliament.

The Government flagged the possibility of selling the state-run betting agency last year, with Mr Barnett saying since then he thought the TAB's privatisation could raise $1 billion.

While the TAB's privatisation has been raised as a possibility, it has so far been left out of tranches of asset sales announced by the Government.

The idea of selling the agency, which has faced increased competition from a host of privately-owned betting companies, is complicated by the National Party's reluctance to accept it - with Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt one of the biggest sceptics.

With Labor also opposed, Mr Barnett admitted in Parliament today selling the agency would be no easy task.

"I think as it stands now a TAB privatisation would not get through Parliament and that is a reality," he said.

Mr Barnett said the proposal could be taken to the 2017 election if no agreement is reached beforehand.

He reiterated concerns about declining attendances at horse racing, trotting and greyhound events and said selling the TAB could give the industry a significant opportunity.

"The other problem is trying to maintain two inner-city racecourses at Ascot and Belmont is not working out, those facilities are no longer of the standard the public would expect at a sporting event," he said.

"They cannot survive in my view.

"Similarly separate tracks for dog racing and pacing aren't going to survive. People aren't going and you cannot ignore the fact people aren't going and the online and telephone punter is using other services.

"I would also suggest the TAB is going to lose market share as the years go by and that does not put racing in a good position."

The proposal to sell the TAB has faced significant opposition from elements of the racing industry, with especially strong fears for the impact it would have on the industry in the regions.

Liberal MP opposes TAB privatisation, raises consultation concerns

By Andrew O'Connor

Posted Wed 20 May 2015, 9:44am

The West Australian Government's push to privatise the TAB has come under fire from a Liberal MP concerned that no proper discussions with the racing community have taken place.

Member for Belmont Glenys Godfrey, whose electorate takes in Ascot Racecourse, said she was against privatising the TAB and is waiting to see the details of what her Government is proposing.

She was also concerned discussions between the Government and racing industry representatives had not included people from the wider racing community.

"They're talking to a group of people who I don't believe are representative of the whole community," she said.

"So until it goes out to public consultation, how can you know what everyone thinks?"

The TAB was included in a long list of public assets which will be sold as the cash-strapped Barnett Government scrambles to contain state debt spiralling towards $36 billion by 2018.

The racing industry has so far opposed the sale, but Premier Colin Barnett has continued to argue it could provide a turning point for an industry facing rapid change in a digital betting environment.

The Premier said funds from the sale of the TAB could be used to help consolidate the industry at a single racecourse with new facilities.

He has characterised it as a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

But the industry is opposed to the sale, and is backed by both Labor and the Nationals, who are concerned about the impact on country racing.

Ms Godfrey has written to the Premier expressing her concerns, but said she now wanted to see exactly what support the Government would offer the industry.

"Until you see the detail, how can you know if it's a good thing or a bad thing?" she said.

Mr Barnett's Parliamentary Secretary John McGrath said the TAB sale was an opportunity for an industry at the crossroads.

"The Premier has said the Government is not going to tip money into the industry if the model is broken," he said.

The Premier and other ministers have been in discussions with racing industry representatives in recent months, as the Government tries to build support for the deal.

Mr McGrath said the industry had now appointed a special group of representatives to speak on behalf of all the racing codes.

WITH the state government committed to the sale of TAB racing in the Peel region hangs in the balance with clubs against the proposal.

Sian Hughes, general manager of the Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, said the sale of TAB was a major issue for all three codes of racing ??? greyhounds, thoroughbred and harness -??? in the Peel region.

???Funds generated by the TAB goes directly back to the racing industry to support racing clubs in the form of stakemoney for races, to employ staff, conduct race meetings and in infrastructure funding to provide the best facilities for our participants, members and patrons,??? she said.

In the Peel region approximately one in every 22 people has an involvement in the racing industry either as an employee, volunteer or participant.

Racing and gaming minister Colin Holt said the sale was simply a proposal and that he would consult the country racing industry throughout the process.

???The State Government???'s focus is ensuring an open and consultative due diligence process with the industry to make sure all the relevant information is understood,??? he said.

Ms Hughes said the Peel region had the highest proportion of harness racing industry participants in the State with more than 2000 participants in harness racing in the region.

???If the TAB were to be sold, a private buyer would not necessarily continue to invest back into the actual racing product, by increasing stakemoney or funding to clubs or infrastructure,??? she said.

???With the costs of keeping horses and preparing them to race, as well as maintaining racing clubs surely only rising in years to come, this could potentially make racing an unviable industry for participants to be involved in long term.???

Shadow racing and gaming minister Mick Murray labelled the plan ridiculous.-

???The TAB injects more than $126 million worth of funding, and a further $14m in infrastructure grants, to WA racing each year,??? he said.

???There has been talk of selling the TAB for as little as $150m, which is a ludicrously small one-off amount when you look at how much money the TAB makes.???

Ms Hughes said the club was concern that Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA), experts on wagering, were not being consulted in regards to the sale of the TAB at all.

???The sale of the TAB is certainly a dangerous proposal that would have dire long term consequences for our club, other country clubs and the entire harness racing industry ??? once it???'s sold there would be no going back,??? she said.

Premier Colin Barnett has previously said if a deal cannot be reached soon, the sale of the TAB may become a 2017 election issue.

Murray Cowper MLA Member for Murray-Wellington

RESOUNDING NO TO WA TAB SALE

11 August 2015

Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt has been urged to publicly declare the universal industry opposition his department has encountered to the State Governments' proposed sale of the WA TAB.

"The process of 'consulting' with racing, pacing and chasing owners in Country WA has turned into a universal rout against the government, in favour of retaining the TAB," Murray Wellington MLA, Murray Cowper said this week.

"I joined the "Owners' Only" breakfast sponsored by Racing and Wagering WA at the Larkhill training complex near Safety Bay on Monday and was amazed at the resounding support from owners, trainers, jockeys, and even stablehands in favour of retaining the TAB," Mr Cowper said.

"The same spirit of opposition has occurred at special consultation sessions between Bunbury and Broome

"Larkhill epitomises the success of our racing industry in WA because it serves as the training centre for many hundreds of horseowners and trainers throughout country WA.

"It has thrived since being taken over by RWWA with TAB funding, because it removes the need for country racing people to take their horses to Ascot through city traffic.

"Larkhill now serves as the winter training facility for about 70 owners and trainers in the South West when the Bunbury track closes for the winter season.

"Racing facilities provided by RWWA are also shared between Bunbury, Pinjarra and Larkhill under a system that has also greatly enhanced racing in the South West.

"TAB funding continues to underwrite all forms of racing in Country WA and that is a great bonus for what is now the second biggest industry in my electorate.

"WA cannot afford to lose the stability provided by its TAB and it is time for the destabilisation to stop," Mr Cowper said.

'Absolute farce' in WA Parliament as Government MPs clash over TAB sale

By Jacob Kagi

Posted Wed 16 Sep 2015, 8:48pm

Internal WA Government tensions over the proposed sale of the TAB have flared again, with numerous MPs crossing the floor and Parliament descending into scenes described by the Premier as "an embarrassment".

Liberal backbenchers Murray Cowper, Glenys Godfrey, Rob Johnson and Graham Jacobs all crossed the floor during a Labor-initiated debate on the Government's proposal to sell the state-run betting agency.

Ms Godfrey and Mr Cowper both voted in support of a Labor motion to oppose the sale of the TAB, which was defeated by a Liberal and National majority.

At one point, seven Nationals members, including leader Terry Redman and former racing and gaming minister Terry Waldron, also looked set to vote with Labor, but they changed their mind after a discussion with Liberal Party whip Tony Kristevic.

The debate descended into chaos after four separate amendments to the original Labor motion opposing the sale of the TAB, with Parliament forced to adjourn as Speaker Michael Sutherland sought advice on appropriate procedure.

Premier Colin Barnett described the scenes as "an embarrassment for the Parliament and an absolute farce".

But the debate showed discontent within Government ranks about the potential sale of the TAB, with Mr Cowper and Mr Jacobs both admitting their regional constituents had overwhelmingly voiced displeasure about the move.

"We are here for a specific reason, and that is to represent our constituencies. I'm here to represent my constituency, of which something like 5,000 people are involved in the racing industry," Mr Cowper told Parliament.

"Not one of those people has said they wish to sell the TAB, in fact to the contrary.

"The biggest issue we have is we have a notion that we are going to sell the TAB and straight away you put uncertainty into the industry."

Supporters of TAB sale defend move

Liberal MP John McGrath, a long-time racing advocate, defended the Government's plans, and insisted the racing industry would be no worse off under any sale.

Emergency Services Minister Joe Francis also warned the existing TAB would never be able to compete with the private sector.

"Go to Google, put in TAB WA and see the first betting agency that comes [up] is. It's Sportsbet, it's not the TAB WA," he said.

"How on Earth do you think to think the WA TAB, run by a Government agency, is ever going to be able to compete with the rise of the online betting agencies?"

After Labor's motion to oppose the sale, four amendments were moved — three from the Liberals and one from Labor.

Confusion over how to handle them brought proceedings to a halt as the Speaker attempted to clarify the proper procedure.

The Labor motion was defeated, despite the support of Mr Cowper and Ms Godfrey.

The Liberals and Nationals then used their numbers to pass a motion offering conditional support for the sale.

The motion stated the State Government would only support the sale if there was a guaranteed ongoing benefit to the racing industry, and local communities throughout WA.

Premier Colin Barnett says he will push ahead with plans to privatise the TAB despite profits from the State-owned betting agency hitting a record high.

Mr Barnett insisted yesterday that the financial viability of the TAB would diminish in the years ahead amid the rapid growth of online and mobile sports betting services.

The Government body that runs the TAB, Racing and Wagering WA, released its annual report yesterday showing its net return dipped from $8.9 million to $5.9 million.

The fall was not reflected in the performance of the TAB, which increased its profitability in the 12 months to June 30 by 5 per cent to $156 million.

As a result of the TABs performance, distributions, grants and subsidies to racing and sporting bodies jumped $11.3 million to $150.1 million.

Despite the rise, Mr Barnett pointed to the "extraordinary" variety of online sports betting products to predict the TABs value would be eroded over time.

"I think the value of the TAB, over time, will fall," he told ABC Radio.

"You only have to watch a sports program on television to see the numbers of different betting agencies, the extraordinary variety of options and odds they offer.

"It is too much, too much advertising, by the way. But in that market, the TAB will gradually lose market share."

As he reasserted his view that the Government should not own a betting agency, Mr Barnett also took aim at the racing industry by saying it was "pretty old and pretty tired" and needed to modernise.

His vow to offload the TAB has put him at odds with the State Opposition as well as his Governments partners, the Nationals, who say they will block it.

Mr Barnett conceded the privatisation push faced a rocky road in Parliament but was adamant about its long-term merits.

Racing and Wagering WA chief executive Richard Burt noted the TABs profitability had risen 50 per cent in the past five years and described it as a "very credible" organisation that was delivering for the racing industry.

TAB sale: Racing group urges WA Government to end uncertainty over potential privatisation

The racing industry in Western Australia wants the State Government to make a clear decision on the future of the TAB and end more than 18 months of uncertainty.

The key group representing three codes of racing believes almost no progress has been made since the Government first flagged the potential privatisation of the TAB in 2014.

Michael Grant is a prominent racing identity and a member of the Racing Representative Group, a five-member team representing thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing.

If selling the TAB was a 10-step process, Mr Grant said the WA Government and the industry had yet to kick-off.

"I'd say we wouldn't have completed step one," he said.

That first step, according to Mr Grant, is for the Government to establish a clear and properly funded process for engaging with the industry.

The Government first raised the possibility of selling the TAB in 2014, but included in its list of assets for sale in this year's May budget.

Since then it has been consulting with the industry but has run into opposition from both its alliance partner, the Nationals, and its opponents, the Labor Party.

Government yet to 'push the trigger'

While Treasurer Mike Nahan has characterised the proposed sale of the Fremantle Port as complex, Mr Grant believes the sale of the TAB is even more challenging.

He said the Government needed to make a decision.

"At the end of the day, the Government hasn't actually pushed the trigger yet and actually said, we are going to sell," he said.

"They keep talking about we haven't made a decision yet, they're still dancing around the issue.

"What's important for the Government to understand, and we have pushed them on this issue, is that the racing industry is suffering as a result of the uncertainty surrounding the sale of the TAB."

That uncertainty deepened on Monday when Dr Nahan released the Government's mid-year review of the budget.

To pay down spiralling debt, the Treasurer flagged an expanded program of asset sales, but he appeared to cast doubt on whether the sale of the TAB would proceed.

"It is politically contentious. We understand it. And the ability to get it through parliament has to be in question. So we move on," he said on Monday.

Political headwinds too strong: Nahan

The following day, the Treasurer was clearly pessimistic about the prospects of getting the necessary political support for the sale.

"I actually think that we have a commitment to sell the TAB, but I think the political headwinds are too strong," Dr Nahan said.

He said the problem was convincing the industry.

"The key task has always been to convince the industry. The resistance to [the sale of the] TAB doesn't come from the politicians, it comes from sections of the industry," he said.

"So we've had extensive discussions with the industry to convince them that it is in their and our best interest, we're not there yet."

But according to Mr Grant and the Racing Representative Group, consultation means real engagement, not just talk.

And so far, he said, that has not happened.

"We're just still waiting and that's probably been the biggest frustration because we obviously get a lot of questions asked by industry... Where you at? What's happening with the TAB? And I'd just like to be able to give them more," he said.

Mr Grant said some Government politicians, like Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt, had been speaking with racing industry participants in rural and regional areas.

But he said that was not the level of engagement required to develop a viable plan to privatise the TAB in a way that secured a good price for the Government, and a stable, sustainable future for the industry.

"I think if the Government was focused on engaging with the industry and making the industry comfortable and giving industry the assurances that it needs, I think the politics would take care of itself."

The Racing Representative Group has already spent $200,000 funding the Gunston Report, a comprehensive assessment of the state of the industry and the issues that would need to be addressed for privatisation to be viable for the sector.

In October, it submitted to Government a detailed proposal for an engagement process, including a substantial request for funding to allow the industry to retain expert commercial and legal advice to prepare for the sale.

Mr Grant said the funding request, for an unspecified sum, was reasonable given the Government has initiated the privatisation and will be the principal beneficiary.

He believes the expert advice on a complex transaction will help maximise the return to Government and secure the industry's future.

"The cost associated with the funding will add value to the licence. There's no question about that," he said.

So far, the industry has yet to receive a response.

Mr Grant urged the Government to move on the issue quickly.

"We're just hopeful that the New Year will bring a positive engagement with the Government," he said.

Labor remains opposed to TAB sale

State Opposition Leader Mark McGowan said the fresh uncertainty over the TAB was exacerbating the industry's concerns about its future.

Labor opposes the sale of the TAB, and believes the Government's move to sell it is another indicator of its reckless financial management.

"The Government has said they're going to sell the TAB, they're not going to sell the TAB, they might sell the TAB," Mr McGowan said.

"They have no financial plan and no financial credibility and this is another example of it."

TAB

The TAB provides online and retail outlet wagering services throughout Western Australia. The TAB is currently part of Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA). As well as operating the TAB, RWWA is responsible for overseeing racing within Western Australia, which includes fostering development and ensuring the integrity of racing through the regulation and supervision of racing in Western Australia. RWWA distributes a percentage of the net profits it receives from the TAB in order to support the racing industry.

The racing and wagering industry has changed rapidly over recent years, with the increase in corporate bookmakers and online sports wagering. The TAB has operated successfully in Western Australia, and this has resulted in a strong racing industry. However, the consideration of a sale of the TAB provides an opportunity to address the likely challenges that will arise in the future.

The Government will continue consulting with the racing industry to develop an agreed solution for a sale and industry funding structure that will enable the Government to realise the value of the TAB, but also ensure the racing industry remains strongly supported into the future.

TAB privatisation in trouble as racing industry digs in against WA Government over sale

By Andrew O'Connor

Posted Wed 18 May 2016, 2:24pm

The West Australian Government and racing industry appear to be on a collision course over the proposed sale of the TAB, with growing speculation the industry is set to withdraw its support for the move.

There has been deepening disagreement over how the sale of the government-owned betting agency should be handled.

The WA Racing Representative Group (WARRG), an industry collective set up by the three racing codes to negotiate with the Government, now looks set to adopt an official position against the sale in the absence of a "commercially responsible engagement process".

The group will meet with Racing and Wagering WA on Friday to discuss a way forward.

Industry figures have been pushing for a funded engagement program with the Government, in an effort to ensure any sale conditions protect the long-term viability of the sector.

However two years after first flagging the privatisation of the agency, the industry remains deeply concerned at the lack of a formal process and the implications for racing.

WARRG wrote to Premier Colin Barnett more than a week ago seeking urgent clarification, after he rejected the industry's view that the sale should be a tripartite transaction involving the Government, industry and purchaser.

Mr Barnett had earlier met with the group in March to discuss the issue of engagement and consultation.

Industry's latest concerns follow Barnett letter

In a subsequent letter dated May 10, Mr Barnett told WARRG chairman Michael Grant he stood by his public statements that the TAB privatisation would be a government, not industry, driven process.

"Your understanding of the racing industry and views about the allocations of proceeds from a sale are appreciated, however as I made clear in our meeting and which I have made clear in the media while the Government seeks to work with the industry on the this issues, it is the Government that is responsible for the sale process," the Premier wrote.

Mr Barnett said the Government sought to consult widely with the industry and get a "good understanding" of its view.

But he said he believed the two existing horse racing tracks at Ascot and Belmont were not viable.

"It is in this context that I have made clear the view of the Government that two metropolitan racing tracks are not sustainable and the latest request for funding from Perth Racing for an upgrade to Belmont is evidence of this," he said.

Mr Barnett said the sale of the TAB would follow the existing process for asset sales, with legislation to be introduced to Parliament.

"While this will be a challenge to get through the Parliament in 2016, as I indicated in our meeting, it does not stop the Government consulting on the issue, being informed of views and undertaken analysis to better inform a sale process," Mr Barnett wrote.

Racing industry will not run sale: Nahan

Treasurer Mike Nahan backed the Premier's position, arguing the industry had an important place and would be consulted, but would not have the final say on how the sale proceeded.

"They provide vital product, in fact they provide the essential product, upon which the business runs," Dr Nahan said.

"They will have input to it but they won't control the process. To be honest they wanted more than just an input to the process, they wanted to control the process, as if they own it. But they don't."

Dr Nahan said the Government had consulted extensively with the WARRG and provided $300,000 to fund a report on the industry requirements for the proposed privatisation.

"This is in the public interest. The public of Western Australia own that asset and the government who represents the public of Western Australia will make the decision," he said.

Budget rescue plan – selling off Government assets.

The National Party's continual dithering, and opposition to key elements of Barnett $16 billion privatisation agenda (the Liberals' main proposal to reduce a projected $40 billion state debt) has made the Premier look weak and devoid of a real plan to bring the Budget back to surplus.

And this, I believe, is showing in the polls.

Dare I say it, the WA Nationals have become to Barnett what the Senate was to Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull before he called a Double D election – an obstructive force that stands in the way of making any real decisions.

Forget about blaming property developer Nigel Satterley for this week's savaging of the Liberal-National Government (Satterley attacked the Government over land tax hikes). This Government has been savaged for months.

Let's not forget, the first Newspoll – published in January this year – showed a Labor victory in 2017 and a plummeting of Barnett's popularity.

And when you are looking for reasons as to why the WA Government is so on the nose with voters, I would suggest that the Nationals are playing a significant role in this free fall.

Despite enjoying the spoils of being in Government and being an alliance partner (here in WA we don't call it a Coalition), the Nationals are behaving like the enemy.

The Nationals have been in an alliance with the Liberals since 2008. They have been part of Government decisions which have resulted in state debt increasing from $3.6 billion to a projected $40 billion.

The Nationals have opposed extended shopping hours in Perth, council amalgamations in the city and now a privatisation plan which is supposed to be the saviour of the WA Budget.

Questions put to Nationals leader Terry Redman by The Sunday Times recently show the Nationals' stubborn stance on Government initiatives.

 Joe Spagnolo.

12/6/2016

Joe Spagnolo: WA Nationals threatening to bring down Colin Barnett | Herald Sun

Q: Are there any circumstances by which the National Party will agree to the sale of Fremantle Port?

A: Based on what the Nationals were presented with last month (April) we were not able to support progressing the sale of Fremantle Port.

Q: Does the National Party still oppose the sale of the TAB?

A: The Nationals WA have always held the position that we support the sale of the TAB if there are clear benefits for the future of racing in WA and in particular, that country racing is not adversely impacted.

Q: What is the current position of the Nationals to the further deregulation of shopping hours?

A: Opposed.

Q: Can you make clear the Nationals' position on the sale/lease of Western Power's poles and wires network?

A: The Nationals WA will consider this on its merit when and if it comes on the table.

The WA Nationals have had the same strategy for several elections now: Walk as a conservative but talk as an independent.

And while this has ensured they win seats in the bush, it has come at a substantial cost to the Liberals.

The Nationals held the balance of power in the Legislative Assembly from 2008-2013.

Now, they hold the balance of power in the Upper House.

In an absurd situation for Barnett, three Nationals sit in Cabinet – Redman, Mia Davies and Colin Holt.

But on several occasions, these three ministers have walked out of Cabinet when it suits and have opposed key policies.

This has made Barnett look weak and a toothless tiger.

The Nationals need to make a decision: Do they want to be part of Government, or return to life on the backbenches?

Barnett has a right to ask himself: With friends like the Nationals, who needs enemies?

WA's more than 120 family-operated TAB businesses may become worthless upon privatisation, Racing and Wagering Western Australia chief executive Richard Burt has confirmed.

Responding to Opposition questioning in Budget Estimates hearings, Mr Burt said TAB licensees were not franchise owners and could provide no assurance they could derive any value from the licences upon privatisation.

He said the issue was "top of mind" but any assistance to businesses and families impacted by privatisation would be a decision of government, "similar to the issue of taxis".

Mr Burt said the Liberal-National Government had made no approach to RWWA to discuss plans for TAB licence holders in the event of a sale, nor done any analysis of the way in which other states handled their TAB licensees upon privatisation.

CShadow Minister for Agriculture and Food Mick Murray said small businesses have been left short.

"It is concerning to hear Mr Burt compare the situation to the one taxi drivers are experiencing where they have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars into a small business and been left very short," he said.

“The State Government has not contacted RWWA to discuss plans for the 68 licences post-privatisation and I question why that hasn’t happened as part of the planning process.

News  Business

“It is not good enough to say they aren’t franchises so we can cut them loose – these are small businesses that often represent the entire livelihood of a family.

“With no planning having been done to manage a transition, and none announced by the State Government, there is a very real possibility that these 120-plus family businesses will be left high and dry after privatisation.”

TAB sale: Minister admits privatisation could see electronic gaming machines outside Crown Perth

By Jessica Strutt and Garrett Mundy

Updated Tue 28 Jun 2016, 6:27am

Western Australia's Racing and Gaming Minister has come under fire from one of his Government colleagues over suggestions electronic gaming machine rights could be included in a potential TAB sale.

The possible expansion of gaming options as part of the potential sale of the TAB has alarmed social welfare advocates as well as Government backbenchers.

The Barnett Government has been investigating the sale of the state-owned betting agency for the past two years, as it seeks to bring down public debt.

Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt has confirmed a potential buyer could also seek to gain the rights to operate gaming machines as part of a deal.

"I think what we're saying here is any potential buyer, who may be operating in other states and have that ability, might want to come to Government with a proposal that does that," he said.

"And when that proposal comes we need to consider whatever they're proposing in terms of what the outcomes are for us as a community.

"And also what it delivers for the industry on the back of a potential sale."

Under current law only Crown Casino has the right to operate such machines in Western Australia.

TAB sale could create 'mini-casinos'

Liberal MP Murray Cowper has long opposed any sale of the TAB, and said Mr Holt was not listening to the racing industry.

"He's got a select group that he's listening too. But the vast majority overwhelmingly do not want to see the sale of the TAB," Mr Cowper said.

"And [they] certainly don't want to see any sweeteners of running some sort of gaming machines and having these mini-casinos all over Western Australia.

"I'm wondering whether or not the National Party have given the Minister, for the South West by the way, the imprimatur to go out and negotiate on behalf of Government to sell off the TAB, and in part of the deal as a sweetener, bring in pokie machines. I just think it's a pail too far."

WA Opposition Leader Mark McGowan has accused the Government of trying to open the door to poker machines in WA.

"I'm sure the Government is examining all options so they can flog off the TAB and increase its value," he said.

"So I'm saying to the Government, close the door on this, slam the door shut, bolt it closed, and never open it again."

Country pubs could get gaming machines

Mr Holt was adamant no proposal had yet been put to Government, but the ABC understands any potential buyer of the TAB could seek to operate Keno machines in TAB outlets and country pubs, as well as virtual horse racing games known as Trackside.

The Minister said any discussions along those lines would also need to include Crown Casinos.

Key points:

- WA Government wants to privatise the TAB
- Gaming machines could be allowed at country pubs and TAB outlets as part of the TAB sale
- Minister says current policy is a good one

"I am sure at the moment they see themselves as the holder of those licences and would be pretty keen to retain them," he said.

But he said even without such a proposal, the TAB would still be an attractive asset to potential buyers.

"It's still a very well-run business and I think other operators in other states see it as a well-run business," he said.

"And that's why they're interested in it. It may not be about product expansion it may be just about what they do now.

The Barnett Government has historically opposed any expansion of gambling in Western Australia, and Mr Holt admitted any decision to allow a private operator to run gaming machines outside current arrangements would represent a major policy shift.

"I think that's a really good policy that this community celebrates," Mr Holt.

"We've got the lowest gambling rates in the nation. And one of the reasons is it's destination gaming machines only.

"And I think it would be a massive policy shift to move away from that."

Cabinet proposal withdrawn

But he did not rule out such a move if it was presented as part of a purchase proposal from a private operator.

"I think it's one of the things you consider. But again those discussions need to be had. And we'll talk about it when the time's right," he said.

The ABC has confirmed a submission on the sale of the TAB was set to go to today's Cabinet meeting, but was withdrawn at the 11th hour.

Mr Holt released a statement after the Cabinet meeting, saying the Government had no intention of including gaming machine rights in the sale of the TAB.

The statement said any testing of the market in relation to the sale would take into consideration business models to "upgrade offerings in TAB retail outlets", but would also take into account potential social impact of such changes.

West Australian Premier Colin Barnett will meet racing officials again in the coming weeks as the State Government tries to secure a broad industry agreement to sell the TAB.

Premier Colin Barnett is set to meet racing officials again in the next few weeks as the West Australian Government tries to secure a broad industry agreement to sell the TAB.

The Government-owned betting agency is one of a diminishing list of assets the Government wants to privatise as part of its debt-reduction strategy.

That strategy gained momentum with the May budget , with state debt climbing to $40 billion by 2020.

But like other key asset sales, such as the Fremantle Port, the sale process has become bogged down over disagreements on how the sale would be handled and how key stakeholders would be protected.

Mr Barnett said he was not concerned the industry may have lost faith in the Government's privatisation plans.

"Not particularly, but I'm meeting again with a group in the next couple of weeks and that's an ongoing discussion," he said.

"But the TAB is a Government-owned asset and it will be the Government that decides the terms under which the TAB is privatised."

Mr Barnett said there continued to be disagreement within the racing industry about aspects of the sale.

But he reiterated his view that this was a once-off opportunity for an industry wrestling with online betting competition, diminishing attendances and reduced numbers of owners and breeders.

He said there should not be two race courses so close to each other at Ascot and Belmont.

"I think until the racing industry can get it's mind around that, it's going to struggle. I think it's going to struggle," he said.

"But if the TAB is sold, then perhaps $100 million can be ploughed back into the racing industry to have state-of-the-art facilities that will attract people back to the races."

He did not believe the industry would withdraw its support for the proposed sale.

Sale unlikely before 2017 election

"No, I don't think so because I think there's enough people in the racing industry know this is the one and only opportunity to reinvigorate, rejuvenate the racing industry in Western Australia."

But Mr Barnett said even with an agreement with the industry, a sale was unlikely before the election.

"It won't be sold before the end of this year, but I am confident that it will be sold," he said.

The Government's asset sales program has so far failed to deliver significant relief to the Government's spiralling state debt and appears set to deliver just two major asset sales by next year's state election.

The Government started announcing a string of asset sales more than two years ago, but so far has sold one significant asset - the Perth Market Authority for $135 million.

Mr Barnett believes a second asset, the Utah Point Bulk Handling Facility in Port Hedland, will also be sold before the end of the year.

Plans to sell Fremantle Port have stalled with opposition from the Nationals, and other assets have been withdrawn in a process the Premier concedes is more complex and moving slower than expected.

"More complex now because they all require Parliamentary approval through legislation. So realistically, with the exception of Utah Point, I don't think you will see a significant privatisation this year."

Undisclosed number of bids for old power station site

Another asset still for sale is the East Perth Power Station site, trumpeted by the Government in February 2015 as a prestige location for an innovative mixed commercial and residential development.

Mr Barnett said there had been a number of bids, but he would not disclose how many.

"Very awkward to develop but that is a magnificent riverfront site so we'd love to see that developed," he said.

In an effort to bolster other land assets sales, the Government announced last June it would consider unsolicited offers for Government land or buildings.

A year later it's not clear what, if any, bids have been received or assets sold under that scheme.

"Not specifically, but there's no reason why companies or individuals can't come out, they might see an opportunity in a piece of land and make a bid, and if its an attractive one, the Government will accept it," he said.

Mr Barnett acknowledged some West Australians remained uncomfortable with the idea of selling public assets.

"I know people get very apprehensive about selling off public assets but during the course of this Government, the total assets of Government have gone up by about $70 billion," he said.

Acting Opposition Leader Roger Cook said the failure to deliver promised privatisations was another reminder of the Government's fiscal woes.

"They can't be believed when it comes to their budget management. The Premier cannot be believed when it comes to their debt management program," Mr Cook said.

Nationals claim credit for racing industry change of heart on TAB sale

By Andrew O'Connor

Posted Tue 16 Aug 2016, 7:59pm

The WA Nationals have claimed credit for convincing the state's racing industry to embrace the potential benefits of privatising the TAB after previous concerns it was being sidelined.

The racing industry has spent two years negotiating with the State Government over the potential sale of the government-owned betting agency and has repeatedly expressed frustration at the Government's lack of engagement with the industry.

New Racing and Gaming Minister Brendon Grylls told Parliament his predecessor Colin Holt had convinced the industry to support the sale.

"The good work of the honourable Colin Holt has taken that industry from a fear campaign led by the Opposition spokesperson to an understanding of the issues and now asking the Government can we rapidly progress the Government's decision making around the TAB," he said.

Mr Holt stood down as racing and gaming minister to make way for Mr Grylls' return to Cabinet as Nationals WA leader.

The TAB was one of a string of assets identified by the Government for sale in its 2015 state budget, with the Premier initially predicting a potential sale price of $1 billion.

But since then, negotiations with the industry have progressed slowly.

Late last month, the Premier met with the WA Racing Representative Group which handed over its long-awaited industry requirements report on the sale.

Mr Grylls told Parliament he would meet with industry representatives this week.

"This has been a very, very good process for the industry who now understand the challenges that they face, understand the opportunities that the sale of the TAB may bring to them and they're asking the Government to make a decision," he said.

"We will make our decision and make it available to the industry."

Press Conference Colin Barnett 19 October 2016

Journalist Tatts and Tabcorp are looking at a merger, it's been reported. What impact on the price – what impact would it have have – sorry, on the price of any potential TAB sale here in WA?

CB Look I don't believe it will make a difference on the price. I mean – I guess, if they weren't merged they may bid against each other, but I think today in a very sophisticated financial world, people – any bidder would just simply do their own financial modelling, analyse the cash flow that will come from a TAB. And I'm pleased that the racing industry, in broad terms, now supports the privatisation of the TAB. Again, racing's in trouble – you know, it's been declining in terms of people going to the races, revenue is not as strong as it could be. So a privatised TAB – I think, offers a lifeline to the racing industry in terms of upgrading facilities, whether it's Ascot or Belmont and regenerating that sport and that interest.

Journalist But it would have to impact on price wouldn't it, because Tabcorp and Tatts – understanding from what Treasury have said – were the two main likely bidders for TAB, so if they're then one big conglomerate, surely that ...

---

CB No – look, I don't think it will. There may well be other bidders as well. In fact, I'd expect there to be other bidders. But the Government will only sell the TAB if it gets the right price for it. And you know, you can be pretty certain what the price is going to be for these assets. Everyone knows the finances and they've put it through the analyses – it spits out a number and that's what people will bid.

---

Journalist Have you got your in-principle Agreement with the racing industry, or are you still working towards that?

---

CB Well, the Government doesn't require the agreement of the racing industry, but now, I think, most sections of the racing industry do agree that it's the right thing to do. And I think broadly, in terms of sort of government policy, it's not appropriate today for a government to own a betting agency. I just don't think that's not life in the 21st century.

CB Well – yes, and I think we have now. The racing industry's come out in broad support of it. I mean they're looking for some investment in the facilities – we accept that. They're wanting to be assured that the revenue streams of the racing codes will continue and it will – that'll be part of the sale conditions.

Privatising TAB back on track

The WA TAB is all but certain to be privatised after the three major parties yesterday revealed they would go to the election in support of the previously contested move.

After first being touted in 2011 and added to the State Government's assets sales list in 2014, the privatisation had fallen off the political radar until Monday when the industry described continuing uncertainty as a "noose around (its) neck".

The WA Racing Representative Group has called for a "no worse off" privatisation committing $100 million to an infrastructure fund and guaranteeing recurrent yearly funding of at least $193.7 million from any buyer.

After being opposed at various stages by WA Labor, the Nationals and the industry and more recently put on the backburner by the Liberals, yesterday heralded a breakthrough. Premier Colin Barnett said "the position of the Liberal Government is yes, we would sell the TAB".

Opposition Leader Mark McGowan said: "If the racing industry is united and wants to sell it, then would agree with that."

Nationals leader Brendon Grylls said the industry model would "breathe new life back into the sport of racing".

WARRG chairman Michael Grant said last night: "We look forward to working with the next State government to find a positive outcome." The timing for the on-again, off-again Ellenbrook rail link has been brought forward but could still be more than 30 years away.

The final version of the Barnett Government's long-term transport plan was released online yesterday and has shifted the timing for the link — which is a spur line to Marshall Road in Malaga — so it will be ready before Perth's population hits 3.5 million in about 2050.

Libs need last-gasp deal with Hanson

ANDREW BURRELL; EXCLUSIVE

Support for Pauline Hanson's One Nation is soaring across WesternAustralia ahead of next month's state election, in a dramatic shift that could deliver it lower house seats and help the Labor Party win government.

The latest Newspoll, taken exclusively for The Australian this week, suggests the rapid re-emergence of One Nation will hinder Premier Colin Barnett's attempt to win a third term on March 11.

The result will increase pressure on Mr Barnett — the nation's longest-serving leader — to negotiate a preference-swap deal with One Nation, which could be his only chance of hanging on to power.

With the campaign officially beginning this week, the Labor Party under Mark McGowan has increased its election-winning lead over the Liberal-National government.

The ALP leads by 54 per cent to 46 per cent in two-party preferred terms — up from 52-48 in the last Newspoll in October — which would deliver the party 14 more seats at the election and make Mr McGowan premier.

The Liberal Party's primary vote has slumped to just 30 per cent — its worst result in the Barnett era. Labor's primary vote also went backwards, from 41 per cent to 38 per cent.

But One Nation's share of the statewide primary vote soared from 3 per cent to 13 per cent, making it more likely the party will hold the balance of power in the upper house.

Senator Hanson unveiled her candidates for the election only last month after the party had been largely inactive in WesternAustralia for years.

One Nation's leader in the state, businessman Colin Tincknell, claimed last night that internal party polling was showing it could win more than 30 per cent of the vote in several seats in regional and outer-suburban areas, where the state's economic downturn was hitting hard.

Attributing One Nation's success to voters being sick of "political correctness", he said the party aimed to win the seats of Swan Hills, Darling Ranges, Baldivis, Central Wheatbelt, Roe, Moore, Pilbara, Kalgoorlie, Collie-Preston and Warren-Blackwood.

All but two of the seats are held by the Liberal-National government. "In those 10 seats, we are running second at the moment," Mr Tincknell said. "We can win them by polling 35 per cent (of the primary vote) and then picking up another 15 per cent of the vote on preferences." The Newspoll survey also asked One Nation voters about how they intended to allocate their preferences.

The flow of preferences was split roughly 50-50 between Labor and the Liberal-Nationals, which would boost Labor's chances in several conservative-held seats that it aims to win.

The Liberals are expected to attempt to strike a preference deal with One Nation, but Mr Tincknell said last night he expected One Nation would allocate preferences equally to both Liberal and Labor in different seats.

He defended the party's policy of opposing the sale of poles-and-wires utility Western Power, a move proposed by the Barnett government that would slash state debt by about $8 billion.

"Quick fixes are not the answer (to cutting debt)," he said. "Once you privatise — the TAB, Western Power, or the ports — once we get rid of all of our assets, history tells us that the cost of living goes up.

"So when you're on the margins, when you're a pensioner or a low-income worker, you can't afford to pay more for power or going down to have a bet." Mr Tincknell said he believed debt would need to be repaid slowly, but the best way to fix the budget was to create jobs. "I'm sick and tired of McGowan, Barnett and (Nationals leader Brendon) Grylls saying we can fix the budget in one term — they're just hoodwinking the public," he said.

According to Newspoll, Mr Barnett's personal approval ratings have improved slightly but remain among the lowest ever recorded by a state leader.

Only 32 per cent of voters are satisfied with his performance and 57 per cent are dissatisfied. In contrast, 46 per cent of voters are happy with Mr McGowan and 34 per cent are dissatisfied. On the question of who would make a better premier, 32 per cent nominated Mr Barnett and 44 per cent chose Mr McGowan.

WA:WA Libs One Nation deal 'dirty, desperate'

By Rebecca Le May

PERTH, Feb 13 AAP - The WA Liberals have been warned they could lose the state election after sealing a preference deal with One Nation that the opposition has labelled dirty and desperate.

The Liberals may also have done irreparable damage to their relationship with Coalition-turned-alliance partners The Nationals after agreeing to preference One Nation ahead of the country-focused party in some of WA's upper house seats.

In return, One Nation would preference the Liberals above Labor in the lower house, Premier Colin Barnett confirmed on Sunday, describing the deal as pragmatic and practical.

Federal Nationals leader Barnaby Joyce warned Mr Barnett the deal could result in him losing the March 11 election.

"Colin Barnett has been around the political game a long while and should seriously consider whether he thinks this is a good idea or whether he is flirting with a concept that ultimately will put his own side in opposition," he told reporters in Canberra on Monday.

One Nation state leader Colin Tincknell said the agreement gave his party a strong chance of gaining the balance of power in parliament.

He also claimed One Nation would be preferred by the Liberals in the lower house in "many, many, seats" but refused to specify which ones.

"That is the bit that's going to make the difference for us because that'll mean we have more members of parliament," he told 6PR radio.

If the party secured the balance of power, it would use it to stymie the Liberal agenda to privatise poles and wires utility Western Power, betting agency TAB and Fremantle Port, Mr Tincknell said.

Last year, the Nationals announced their opposition to the port sale and after initially decrying the proposed TAB privatisation, claimed credit for convincing the state's racine industry to back it.

State leader Brendon Grylls then endorsed the Western Power sale, but only after securing a commitment to improve services at the edge of the network in rural areas.

Mr Grylls described the One Nation deal as "a little slap in the face".

He said he believed it would boost his party's first preference votes - adding he had received calls from people who previously were going to hand out how-to-vote cards for the Liberals but would now do so for the Nationals.

Labor frontbencher Anthony Albanese said the WA Liberals had "run out of ideas and they're out of time".

"This was a dirty deal done dirt cheap," WA opposition leader Mark McGowan said.

"We are at a serious point in our state's life. The Liberals, Nationals and One Nation are an arguing rabble."

He told AAP it was a desperate move that could backfire among Liberal voters in multicultural seats including Perth, Mt Lawley, Bicton and Riverton.

Delivering the franking

Upgrades to wagering forecasts, but higher industry fees remains a key risk

We have increased our FY15-17e EPS by c1-5%, reflecting the net impact of upgrades to our wagering forecasts (wagering EBITDA upgraded by c6-11%) following stronger than expected performance in 1H15. Our wagering upgrades have been partially offset from incorporating dilution from the $236m capital raising to fund the special dividend payment (our FY15-17e NPAT has increased by c6-12%). Despite our wagering upgrades, we continue to believe that higher industry fees (i.e. race field fees) poses a key source of downside risk to TAH earnings, and our TAH EBITDA forecasts remain below consensus estimates (by c4% and c8% in FY16/17e respectively according to IRESS, with our FY15e EBITDA broadly in-line) largely due to our assumption of higher race field fees in FY16/17e, in which we assume a 50bp across the board increase (i.e. across NSW, QLD and VIC) in race field fees in each of these years. Please see our note With friends like these dated 14th May-14 for further details.

Franking credits still provide further upside

With TAH still having over c$290m of franking credit balances (or c35cps of value), we believe there remains potential for further capital management potential at some point in the future (our forecasts assume c2.0x gross debt to EBITDA in FY16/17 which provides c$230-280m in debt headroom in these years assuming 2.5x max gearing).

Investment view – Sell

Whilst we acknowledge the strong growth in wagering that management have achieved over the last 18-24 months through increased investment and enhanced marketing and promotion, TAH continues to trade at a significant premium to our valuation despite our forecast upgrades and now incorporation of value for excess franking credits and a terminal value for Vic wagering, and is now trading on a FY15/16e P/E of 24.0x/24.7x based on UBSe, a premium to the market on c20x/18x (All Ind ex Fin) despite the risks inherent in TAH's wagering licenses (e.g. risk of potential race fields fees, industry fee hikes etc).

Valuation: $3.65 based on SOTP (from $3.10)

We risk weight the VIC gaming entitlement at 25%. SOTP now ascribes value for excess franking credits and a terminal value in our Vic wagering DCF (i.e. beyond FY24).

Investment Thesis

Tabcorp Holdings Limited

Investment case

Whilst we acknowledge the strong growth in wagering that management have achieved over the last 18-24 months through increased investment and enhanced marketing and promotion, TAH continues to trade at a significant premium to our valuation despite our forecast upgrades and now incorporation of value for excess franking credits and a terminal value for Vic wagering, and is now trading on a FY15/16e P/E of 24.0x/24.7x based on UBSe, a premium to the market on c20x/18x (All Ind ex Fin) despite the risks inherent in TAH's wagering licenses (e.g. risk of potential race fields fees, industry fee hikes etc).

Upside scenario

We derive an upside scenario valuation per share of $4.50 by assuming an 9.0x multiple on NSW wagering, 8x for keno, media and NSW Trackside, 7x for TGS and 100% risk weighting of the Vic entitlement. Should TAH successfully grow its TGS business into NSW and QLD, and jackpot pooling across NSW/QLD/VIC drive improved player demand, we estimate c$0.20 per share in potential longer term upside.

Downside scenario

Our downside scenario valuation per share of $3.00 assumes a c5% deterioration in our base FY15e EBITDA, a 7x multiple for NSW wagering and Media & International, 5x multiple for TGS, and excludes potential upside from the Vic entitlement.

Upcoming catalysts

FY15 result – Aug-15.

Outcome from media rights renegotiations with Vic Racing (we expect over the next 3-6 months).

Vic gaming entitlement outcome (we assume during FY16).

Business description

Tabcorp (TAH) holds licenses to operate wagering businesses (tote and fixed odds) in NSW and VIC and fixed odds wagering in the Northern Territory. Its NSW licence expires in 2097 (exclusivity to 2013). TAH's Vic license is a 12-year exclusive licence to 2024 under a 50/50 JV with Racing VIC. In Jul-04, TAH completed the acquisition of TAB, whose key assets included the NSW wagering business and racing television broadcaster, Sky Channel. TAH also operates keno businesses across NSW, QLD and VIC. TAH's Tabcorp Gaming Solutions business commenced immediately after the expiry of its Vic gaming licence in Aug-12.

Industry outlook

TAH's wagering and keno businesses are relatively low price point and non destinational in nature and hence we view as a less discretionary form of spend relative to other forms of gambling such as casino gaming. As such we view TAH's revenue base as relatively defensive, albeit low growth which is more in line with growth in household disposable income and CPI (2-3% pa). In more recent times TAH has been able to grow its wagering and keno businesses at a rate above CPI due on the back of capex including TAB venue refurbis and installation of self-service terminals, and new venue rollouts (keno). We forecast wagering revenue to grow by a c2% three year CAGR to FY16E.

Incorporating higher wagering growth and impact of capital raising

Upgrading wagering revenue growth assumptions given solid 1H performance

We have upgraded our TAH FY15-17e NPAT by c6%, c12% & c6% respectively, predominantly from upgrades to our wagering forecasts following stronger than expected performance during 1H15 (9.5% YoY EBITDA growth including media vs. UBSe of +4.3%), largely attributable to:

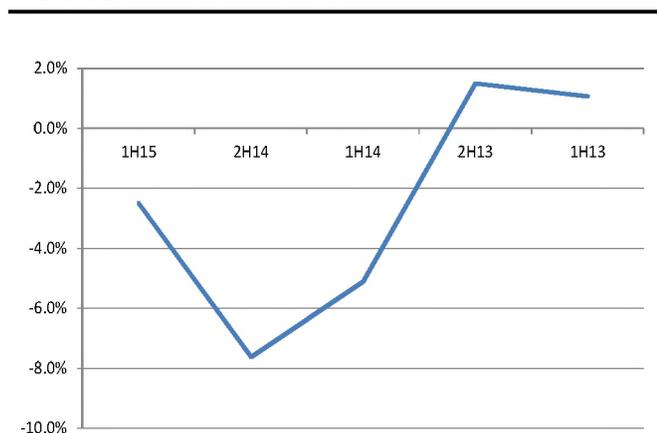

- Solid growth in NSW over VIC, reporting +8.6% YoY revenue growth vs. +3.6% VIC, driven by sports (+38% YoY vs. +19% Vic), Trackside (+16% YoY vs. +7% Vic) and racing (+5.0% YoY vs. +2% Vic).
- c33% YoY growth in fixed odds and Luxbet revenues;
- A lower than expected decline in tote revenues, down 2.5% YoY in 1H15 vs. -6.3% YoY in FY14.

We now forecast 5.2% YoY wagering revenue growth (from +2.2% previous) which compares to +6.9% YoY growth in 1H15, which included some benefit from the Soccer World Cup in Jul-14 (+$10.3m incremental revenues).

In FY16e we forecast revenue growth to moderate to +3.5% YoY (from +0.2% previously) given the solid pcp comp.

However risks from potential higher industry fees remain

Despite our wagering upgrades, our TAH EBITDA forecasts remain below consensus estimates (by c4% and c8% in FY16/17e respectively according to IRESS, with our FY15e EBITDA broadly in-line) largely due to our assumption of higher industry fees (i.e. race field fees) in FY16/17e, in which we assume a 50bp across the board increase (i.e. across NSW, QLD and VIC) in race field fees in each of these years.

We no longer assume higher race field fees in FY15e as we assume the next fee increase occurs around Jun-15 (for further details, please see our note With friends like these dated 14th May-14)

Incorporating impact of capital raising

Our forecasts now incorporate the impact of TAH's 1 for 12 pro-rata accelerated renounceable entitlement offer at $3.70 per share to fund TAH's $0.30 per share special dividend (and in turn distributing excess franking credits to shareholders).

From incorporating our wagering upgrades, and the dilution from including additional shares on issue from the raising (+63.8m new shares or c8% of shares on issue pre-raising) has resulted in net EPS upgrades of c1-5% in FY15-FY17e.

Valuation: $3.65 from SOTP (from $3.10)

Our sum of the parts valuation has increased to $3.65 per share, from $3.10 previously (or +18%), reflecting:

- Wagering upgrades, net of dilution impact from raising - Our wagering upgrades, partially offset by incorporating the impact of the capital raising;
- Increase to Vic wagering DCF – We have increased our Vic wagering DCF valuation to incorporate a terminal value equivalent to 50% of our FY24e license net free cashflow (vs. our previous methodology of valuing free cashflow to FY24 only, as per the 12 year license term), hence ascribing value to cashflow that TAH would likely receive beyond the Vic license expiry (i.e. from online) or benefit from incumbency on renewal.
- Value for franking credit balance - We now ascribe value for TAH's franking credit balance. We note that TAH had a franking credit balance of c$383m as at 30 Jun-14 (vs. c$375m in pcp). We assume this balance reduces to c$290m post the special dividend (all else constant, assumes $0.13 per share in franking credits are distributed to shareholders via the special dividend over c765m shares pre raising), or $0.35 per share, which we 50% risk weight (i.e. we assume some risk that not all these might be monetised for shareholders in future).

Our SOTP valuation continues to assume a 25% probability of a successful outcome for TAH in its pursuit of the Vic gaming entitlement (i.e. providing some weight to the chance of a successful appeal).

TAH trading at a large premium to UBSe valuation

We have seen a significant re-rate in TAH's business of late – now assuming a P/E multiple of c25x FY16e. There are, however, some arguments that suggest looking at TAH on the current trading multiple would underestimate the true valuation of the business, largely for the following issues:

- Amortisation of VIC wagering licence – TAH paid $410m for a 12 year licence (in a 50/50 JV with the racing industry) in VIC in FY12 – with the financial effect that they are now amortising c$35m pa for this intangible asset. Some argue that given the change in wagering landscape a payment of this scale will not be required to be made again – thereby underestimating the true earnings for TAH and as such this amortisation amount needs to be backed out.

We find these arguments challenged. We would firstly note that this new wagering licence began less than 3 years ago – at a time when the market structures were not that dissimilar to today. Further since then, we have seen TAH and TTS invest as much as c$850m as upfront payments for wagering licences and retail exclusivity extensions – including TAH's acquisition of ACT TAB for $106m which was the equivalent of 7.6x 1-yr forward EBITDA inclusive of synergies, and their $75m to extend NSW retail exclusivity.

Whilst we believe TAH paid a 'full' price for the VIC Wagering licence, we do not believe a likely outcome based on today's operating environment would be that if the VIC wagering licence came up for renewal in 2024, then there would be no need for any licence payment – and as such we do not believe one can add back the full amortisation.

We do concede however technology is changing very quickly and it is difficult to determine what the operating environment could look like in 2024 – but if it leads us to the assumption that there is no longer any value in retail wagering licences and hence there would be no requirement to make a licence payment for this business, then the downside from this for the existing TAH businesses (namely the NSW licence and the large write-down in carrying value of this asset) would be material.

We would also note the impact of this issue, whilst material, is less than the equivalent of a c100bps increase in racefields fee charges from the racing industry.

- Vic Gaming Entitlement - In June 2014 the VIC Supreme Court handed down their judgement in relation to TAH's c$686m compensation claim against the Victorian Government for the non-renewal of its Victorian gaming license (expired in Aug-12), with the court finding in favour of the Vic Govt. The Court accepted the State's argument that amendments to the legislation made by the State in 2008 and 2009 impliedly repealed the statutory provision which gave rise to the payment of the entitlement under the legislation.

Since then however TAH has appealed this decision to the full bench of the Victorian Supreme Court (and likely in the end all the way to the High Court), as we are of the view that the next judgement will be appealed regardless of which party were to win/lose. This however may imply a further 18-24 months before we arrive at a final outcome, in our view.

Whilst we take account of this issue in our SOTP valuation (where we risk-adjusted the entitlement at a 25% weighting), we do not include any potential payment through our P&L forecasts. If we were to include the full entitlement ($687m) and grow this by 10% per annum for 2 years (interest rate awarded by the court to reflect the PV of the payment) and tax effect this (at a rate of 20%) – the P&L impact would be to add c15% to our FY16E NPAT (and hence lower the implied P/E by c15%)..

- Franking Credits – Whilst we have not included this value in the past (given the company has not looked to monetise these) – we believe the market will look at the value of remaining franking credits with some expectation that TAH will look to further monetise these in the future. We note post the special dividend and half year franked dividend there remains circa $290m of available franking credits – which if fully monetised represents c35cps of value for TAH shareholders.

What if we give TAH benefit for all 3 positive outcomes?

So what if investors wanted to add all three positive outcomes above – i.e. add back VIC licence amortisation, give them full benefit for the entitlement and price in the value of the franking credits? Even though we think this is a flawed argument as all three outcomes have significant risks/challenges – the market to some degree seems to be pricing a fair amount of these outcomes as the current price would be implying a c13.5x P/E multiple.

Gearing forecast to remain around c2x

We forecast TAH's gearing to reduce to 2.1x by the end of FY15 from cash generation (vs. 2.3x as at 31 Dec-14) on a gross debt to EBITDA basis, adjusting for operating leases and hybrid debt (@ 50% equity rating).

In FY16/17e we forecast a modest improvement in gearing to c2.0x, reflecting our forecast for modest debt reduction and flat EBITDA across FY15-17e from assumed higher race field fees.

At gearing around c2.0-2.1x and assuming a maximum gearing limit of 2.5x in order to preserve TAH's BBB- S&P rating, we estimate c$180m in gross debt headroom in FY15e, increasing to c$233/280m in FY16/17e.

UBS EPS and consensus EPS

The UBS EPS is an adjusted diluted EPS metric. It is calculated using the UBS analyst's interpretation of earnings suitable for valuation purposes divided by the diluted number of shares. This may differ to the way the consensus EPS metric has been calculated.

Statement of Risk

We believe the key risk to Tabcorp is any change in government regulation negatively impacting its gaming and wagering licences in key jurisdictions, along with a softer than expected consumer environment, and changes to consumer preferences.

Required Disclosures

This report has been prepared by UBS Securities Australia Ltd, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as UBS.

1:Percentage of companies under coverage globally within the 12-month rating category. 2:Percentage of companies within the 12-month rating category for which investment banking (IB) services were provided within the past 12 months.

3:Percentage of companies under coverage globally within the Short-Term rating category. 4:Percentage of companies within the Short-Term rating category for which investment banking (IB) services were provided within the past 12 months.

KEY DEFINITIONS: Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Short-Term Ratings reflect the expected near-term (up to three months) performance of the stock and do not reflect any change in the fundamental view or investment case. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES: UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Committee (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

Should Tabcorp ditch Victoria Wagering?

- This analysis will no doubt raise some eyebrows but the titular question should be on the mind of investors, Tabcorp, the Victoria racing industry, the State of Victoria. This is not a dilemma that asks Tabcorp to choose between land-based or digital wagering channels. Rather the issue is that the Vic wagering licence expires in 2024 and if retail channel exclusivity becomes worthless, the Vic racing industry will not be able to source the preponderance of its funding from an in-state licensee, e.g., Tabcorp. (As it does today.) Therefore, the racing industry must embark; actually it has been embarking, on a course to diversify its funding across all bookmakers. That strategic course is unsupportive of its joint venture partner and current licensee, Tabcorp. What should Tabcorp, do?
- Our math suggests, Tabcorp can exit the JV now and operate with greater profit out of the low-tax jurisdiction of the ACT if it can figure out a way to put its JV stake back to the Vic racing industry. But this can only happen by agreement and graceful exit. Tabcorp cannot just skip the State. Nevertheless, we think it is useful for investors to consider the valuable financial outcomes from a Victoria exit either before or after licence expiry. It is also critical for the WA Government, as it considers privatising its wagering industry, to implement a funding model for its racing industry that is not dependent upon an in-state monopoly when the monopoly actually does not truly exist.
- We regard Tabcorp as good value. Our DCF-based valuation for Tabcorp is A$5.00 per share and we effectively terminate the Vic licence cash flow in 2024. We expect wagering revenue growth to accelerate in 2H 16 from the meagre 0.5% organic growth in 1H. A 5.6% fully-franked dividend yield seems attractive.

|  |         | TP ESG Risk (%): 0 TP Risk Comment: TAH for the last 9 years has been ranked number one of the Dow Jones Sustainability index for gambling firms. We note the company contributes a significant amount to the racing industry, local community and state government. Consistent with MSCI 'AA' rating, TAH has responsible gambling anti-corruption and ethical business practice policies which are stronger than peers. TAH, in our view good corporate governance, however MSCI only assigns a 5% weighting to this category. We do not incorporate any ESG upside or downside into our valuation. MSCI IVA Risk: Neutral MSCI IVA Risk Comment: CS ESG risk assessment in line with MSCI rating |               |               |               |               |                                   |  |  |  |  |

Here is our math

Financial disclosure reveals Tabcorp's Vic wagering revenue was A$469.7mn in FY15 but that is for Tabcorp's 50% joint venture share. So the joint venture, in total, captured about A$940mn from player's losses in FY15. Roughly 35% of that revenue is collected from the digital and telephone channels equating to A$330mn in revenue. The other 60% is retail including about A$55mn from the retail-based wagering game, Trackside. Now, a significant portion of retail customers have TAB accounts so they are not entirely anonymous to Tabcorp. That means Tabcorp can communicate to them.

What if Tabcorp "breaks away," somehow, from the Vic joint venture and operates an interstate wagering operation out of the low-tax jurisdiction of the ACT – very much like the UK bookmakers are operating from the NT?

Let's take a stab at what this Tabcorp ACT operation might look like. Tabcorp would need to migrate digital and retail customer accounts across to the new jurisdiction. For our math we assume that Tabcorp retains 35% of Vic wagering revenue which is less than the total digital/phone turnover today. Success, will depend on strength of the TAB brand which Tabcorp, not the joint venture, owns. It will depend on Tabcorp's ability to induce customers from their Victoria-based account to re-open an account domiciled in the ACT. But we think Tabcorp's marketing and technology is sophisticated enough to do so. In some cases, it could be as easy as sending a TAB Rewards card holder a new card with a phone number to activate the account. Look how Crownbet has secured about A$150mn in revenue switching customers from its predecessor BetEasy and competitors in a 12-month period. Sure Tabcorp will incur some "migration costs" but these costs might amount to one year of profits.

In addition to the migrating revenue, the ACT operation in its original form has about A$30mn of revenue from a small retail operation. But we will ignore this as we are concerned only about incremental business migrated to the ACT.

If Tabcorp captured 35% of Vic wagering revenue into a new ACT entity, that would be about A$330mn of revenue. The gross profit from this revenue is calculated after deducting GST, racefield fees, and a small licence fee to the ACT. Let's assume that Tabcorp's new ACT wagering operation extracts revenue from about A$2.3bn of turnover -- reflecting a blended book yield of about 13.5% (pari-mutuel and fixed odds). This yield is a bit higher than some bookmakers but lower than Tabcorp's current book yield of over 16%. With racefield fees running about 2% of turnover on average the new ACT wagering operation would incur about A$50mn of racefield fees. GST at 9.19% of revenue amounts to A$30mn. Let's say minor agency fees to support the small retail operation in the ACT of A$2mn. And finally, wagering tax in the ACT which basically includes a fixed licence fee indexed to CPI of under A$2mn and a micro-tax on international sport. So gross profit would be about A$245mn or 74%. That GP margin is commensurate with NT corporate bookmakers.

The fixed costs to run Tabcorp's ACT business may be an incremental A$100mn. Paddy Power Plc's Australian Sportsbet operation generates about A$450mn in revenue and incurs about A$220mn in opex. However, Sportsbet is a standalone operation. Tabcorp currently operates the Victoria wagering business from its combined NSW and Vic wagering infrastructure Tabcorp then passes an operating charge to the Vic joint venture. Tabcorp can lever its existing wagering infrastructure. Therefore, the ACT business we are imagining here in this research article will not have separate bookmaking, IT, credit department, data analytics etc. The only real incremental costs Tabcorp should incur relate to marketing. To gain a handle on that sum we rely on Paddy Power Australia's, financial accounts -- its marketing expense is about A$70mn.

So with A$245mn of gross profit and an incremental A$100mn of opex, Tabcorp's hypothetical ACT operation could earn about A$145mn of incremental cash operating profit. Well, as it turns out, we think Tabcorp's share of EBITDA from Vic wagering is just over A$120mn excluding allocated overheads. This has not been disclosed but we are probably not too far off. In 2012, Tabcorp felt that the Victoria Wagering and Betting Licence would generate A$120mn of EBITDA in FY14 but subsequent comments from Tabcorp suggest that it fell a bit short of expectations. FY15, the Vic wagering EBITDA grew modestly.

There is another area of major savings by migrating to the ACT. Because Tabcorp is operating a retail network in Vic but would operate a virtual business from the ACT, its capex would be lower. Tabcorp incurs between A$20mn and A$30mn per annum in Vic capex. (Tabcorp does recover some of this from Vic racing through its joint venture arrangements.) But not having a retail network would mean significantly less capex.

Can Tabcorp extricate itself from the Vic JV and Licence? Probably not.

It is naïve to say Tabcorp can just walk away from the Vic licence and joint venture and set up shop in the ACT. Such a maneuver would attract the interference of half of Australia's lawyers. Tabcorp would undoubtedly be obligated to supply the service under its licence unless it could sell to a suitable buyer.

There are no suitable buyers. First of all there is only seven years left on the licence.

We doubt that the operators in the NT would want to acquire Tabcorp's share of the Vic licence and joint venture. In the first instance, the NT bookmakers may not have the required infrastructure readily available to run a retail wagering operation and a pari-mutuel pool. Secondly, it would mean that any transaction from a Victorian resident on the customer roll of the NT-based acquirer would attract all of the taxes and fees attached to the Vic licence rendering that bookmaker uncompetitive. So that probably rules out William Hill, Ladbrokes, Paddy Power, and especially Crownbet.

Tatts is a retail wagering operator that has the capability to acquire and operate the Vic wagering licence from Tabcorp. But, Tabcorp may not want to enlarge Tatts – already a major player and potential threat.

Another buyer could be an entity that forms part of Vic racing industry but the industry itself does not have a wagering operation – just a racing operation. So, it lacks capability, in a sense. The racing industry of WA has a vertically integrated wagering operation and we suspect that the management of the two racing industries would enjoy partnering but the State of WA is seeking to raise funds from an asset sale of the WA wagering operation and the entities of the Vic racing industry lack funds to purchase the WA operation.

So, herein lies a quandary for Tabcorp's strategy department. Then, again, Tabcorp's Board is too conservative. The company is probably not even contemplating this crazy idea. At least, that is not until 2024.

2024 anything can happen but investors should consider this option

In 2024, it may be that Tabcorp's technology and marketing essentially reformat the exclusivity of retail wagering. Geo-locating tech and differential pricing are too potential tools to encourage punters to use their TAB accounts while punting horses over a beer at the pub.

But, let's say there is no value to retail exclusivity. Let's say exclusivity cannot be enforced in 2024. What then? Well Tabcorp is almost certain not to renew its licence and vacate obligations to pay enormous taxes to the State of Victoria and content fees to the Victoria racing industry.

This outcome has significant potential value to investors. If Tabcorp continues for the next eight years to gather information about its customers, by 2024, Tabcorp may have success in converting most of its customers into a low-tax jurisdiction.

Imagine, today there is about A$1.0bn wagered through the Victoria licence. In a low-tax jurisdiction, the gross profit margin is 70%-75%. As mentioned above, we think that Tabcorp's current EBITDA from the Vic wagering licence is about A$120mn. It could be significantly larger after 2024.

It is true that the Victoria racing industry will need to review its funding model and change the pricing for its content. But Tabcorp wins in that case because Tabcorp is currently carrying the largest burden of that funding and if it was to be spread amongst competitors, then Tabcorp's share of the burden is sure to diminish. Moreover, as other competitors are compelled to pay more for content, their marketing dollars diminish enabling Tabcorp to maintain or gain market share.

Our new “Total return forecast in perspective” chart helps visualize Credit Suisse and consensus views of a company’s 12-month return within the context of forecasting risks and its historical trading pattern:

12mth Volatility is calculated as the annualised standard deviation of weekly total return series over the past 12 months. It illustrates variability of stock returns; in other words, risk. The way to think about it is that one would rather take 10% forecast return from a stock that has 20% volatility, than from the stock that has 40% volatility. The shaded area shows the one standard deviation range based on past 12 months volatility. In statistical terms, once you make a number of brave assumptions, there is a 68% probability that the share price will end up inside that range in 12 months’ time.

52wk Hi-Lo is maximum and minimum daily closing price over the past 52 weeks. It is often handy to know the price momentum especially when the stock is trading close to its highs and lows: Is the stock trading close to its peak? Is the momentum against the stock?

*Consensus is IBES consensus supplied by Thomson Reuters. IBES is a survey of sell side research analysts, collecting a few dozen data points such as EPS, DPS, Sales, Target Price, ROE and so on. *Mean is the average of target returns, while the shaded area around the mean represents the range of estimates from the lowest to the highest estimate. This aids visualisation of a number of important factors such as: the range of analyst estimates; where Credit Suisse’s estimates on this stock sit relative to consensus; and where the share price is relative to consensus mean and consensus range target.

Target return is calculated as capital gain plus forecast dividend yield (net) over the next 12 months. For "CS tgt" we have used Credit Suisse’s target price and Credit Suisse forecast for 12-month forward dividend, grossed up for franking. For the consensus mean and range, we have used consensus target price and consensus dividend forecasts for 12 month forward.

As of December 10, 2012 Analysts' stock rating are defined as follows:

Outperform (O) : The stock's total return is expected to outperform the relevant benchmark* over the next 12 months.

Neutral (N) : The stock's total return is expected to be in line with the relevant benchmark* over the next 12 months.

Underperform (U) : The stock's total return is expected to underperform the relevant benchmark* over the next 12 months.

*Relevant benchmark by region: As of 10th December 2012, Japanese ratings are based on a stock's total return relative to the analyst's coverage universe which consists of all companies covered by the analyst within the relevant sector, with Outperforms representing the most attractive, Neutrals the less attractive, and Underperforms the least attractive investment opportunities. As of 2nd October 2012, U.S. and Canadian as well as European ratings are based on a stock's total return relative to the analyst's coverage universe which consists of all companies covered by the analyst within the relevant sector, with Outperforms representing the most attractive, Neutrals the less attractive, and Underperforms the least attractive investment opportunities. For Latin American and non-Japan Asia stocks, ratings are based on (1) a stock's absolute total return potential to its current share price and (2) the relative attractiveness of a stock's total return potential within an analyst's coverage universe. For Australian and New Zealand stocks, the expected total return (ETR) calculation includes 12-month rolling dividend yield. An Outperform rating is assigned where an ETR is greater than or equal to 7.5%; Underperform where an ETR less than or equal to 5%. A Neutral may be assigned where the ETR is between -5% and 15%. The overlapping rating range allows analysts to assign a rating that puts ETR in the context of associated risks. Prior to 18 May 2015, ETR ranges for Outperform and Underperform ratings did not overlap with Neutral thresholds between 15% and 7.5%, which was in operation from 7 July 2011.

Restricted (R) : In certain circumstances, Credit Suisse policy and/or applicable law and regulations preclude certain types of communications, including an investment recommendation, during the course of Credit Suisse's engagement in an investment banking transaction and in certain other circumstances.

Volatility Indicator [V] : A stock is defined as volatile if the stock price has moved up or down by 20% or more in a month in at least 8 of the past 24 months or the analyst expects significant volatility going forward.

Analysts' sector weightings are distinct from analysts' stock ratings and are based on the analyst's expectations for the fundamentals and/or valuation of the sector* relative to the group's historic fundamentals and/or valuation:

Overweight : The analyst's expectation for the sector's fundamentals and/or valuation is favorable over the next 12 months.

Market Weight : The analyst's expectation for the sector's fundamentals and/or valuation is neutral over the next 12 months.

Underweight : The analyst's expectation for the sector's fundamentals and/or valuation is cautious over the next 12 months.

*An analyst's coverage sector consists of all companies covered by the analyst within the relevant sector. An analyst may cover multiple sectors.

Target Price and Rating

Valuation Methodology and Risks: (12 months) for Tabcorp Holdings (TAH.AX)

Method: Our A$5.00 target price for TAH.AX is consistent with our DCF ($5.23 less next 12 months dividends of 24cps) Our DCF incorporates a beta of 0.95 and a weighted average cost of capital of 7.9%. Our OUTPERFORM rating is reflective of our positive view on Tabcorp's wagering division amidst improving product and channel mix, strong balance sheet and attractive 5.7% dividend yield. Our target price implies significant upside to TABCORP's current share price.

Risk: Risks to our A$5.00 target price and OUTPERFORM rating for Tabcorp Holdings include increased competition from new wagering operators, uncertainty regarding renewal of TGS customer contracts and the inability to realise A$14mn in EBITDA from the integration of ACTTAB

Some investments discussed in this report may have a high level of volatility. High volatility investments may experience sudden and large falls in their value causing losses when that investment is realised. Those losses may equal your original investment. Indeed, in the case of some investments the potential losses may exceed the amount of initial investment and, in such circumstances, you may be required to pay more money to support those losses. Income yields from investments may fluctuate and, in consequence, initial capital paid to make the investment may be used as part of that income yield. Some investments may not be readily realisable and it may be difficult to sell or realise those investments, similarly it may prove difficult for you to obtain reliable information about the value, or risks, to which such an investment is exposed. ## Odds factored in

Upgrade to Neutral following underperformance in shares

TAH shares have underperformed the ASX 200 by 12% since it reported its 1H16 result in early February. The stock is now trading at a 13% premium to the market, it's lowest premium since November 2012. With market expectations having been rebased, we have upgraded our recommendation to Neutral (previously Sell).

The market appears to be incorporating a lower growth outlook

Competition continues to build and given that less than a third of bets are now being placed in the retail channel, the new competitive focus is digital. TAH's digital share fell marginally to 29% in 1H16, but looking forward, we expect there will be an improvement on the 6% digital turnover growth reported in 2Q FY16. With wagering growth likely to remain low in the near term, TAH is expected to focus more on Keno and TGS for growth.

Possible upside from purchase of UBET (from Tatts) or increased dividends

Given the large duplication of costs, we see the acquisition of UBET as a logical acquisition for TAH at some stage. We estimate a deal would be 14% EPS accretive in a scenario where TAH paid a 32% premium to our UBET valuation of ~$1.25bn (assuming the mid-point of our $50-$65m synergy target). With that said, we don't think a deal is likely in 2016 given the underperformance of TAH shares, the WA licence overhang and the fact that discussions only ceased late last year. The positive for TAH shareholders is that free cash flow remains strong and gearing should be down to 1.6x gross debt / EBITDA by FY18E allowing TAH to comfortably retain the 90% payout ratio (excluding Vic licence amortisation).

Valuation: $4.13 per share (previously $3.75)

Following a complete remodel of our Tabcorp forecasts we reduce FY16 EPS by 1% but we have increased FY17/18 EPS 3% / 8%. Our valuation increases 10% to $4.13 per share (previously $3.75) and our price target to $4.15 given increased earnings and a change in valuation methodology to DCF (previously SOTP).

PIVOTAL QUESTIONS

Q: Did Tabcorp's wagering revenue growth peak in FY15?

Yes, we think so. It is unlikely that we will see a repeat of the 6.9% wagering growth reported in FY15. TAH is doing a good job of maintaining players as betting moves away from monopoly products (retail and parimutuel pool betting) towards competitive products (online and fixed odds), but competition has intensified. In particular, we believe that four of TAH's largest five competitors have stepped up efforts in the space, meaning that growth over the next few years will likely be in the low single digit range. Keno is a likely area of positive surprise, however the business is still small (a 15% beat relative to our revenue forecasts would only move group EBITDA by 2%)...

Q: Will TAH buy UBET in 2016?

Unlikely, in our view, though in time we believe the acquisition of UBET would be logical given the potential to extract up to $65m of estimated synergies. With the exception of the sale of WA TAB, we wouldn't expect the ACCC to intervene with the deal this time, given the changes to the industry since 2006. We estimate that Tabcorp could pay a 32% premium to our valuation of UBET and still generate 14% EPS accretion, assuming the midpoint of our $50-65m range of synergies...

Q: Will TAH de-gear to 1.6x by FY18E while maintaining a 90% payout ratio?

We believe it could. While growth in wagering might be slower, we see several positives in the TAH investment case. Capex to sales of under 6% highlights the low capital intensity of the business, which in turn allows for TAH to de-gear its balance sheet to 1.6x Gross Debt / EBITDA by FY18E, while still paying out ~90% of EPS as dividends (pre-Vic Amortisation)...

UBS VIEW

De-rate in the shares means it no longer warrants a Sell recommendation: As a low beta play on consumer spend in NSW and Victoria, TAH is arguably well positioned relative to other consumer related businesses. We think the business is run well and as growth in smaller businesses (including international) develop, we could see more upside potential. With that said, we don't see a strong case to recommend the shares ahead of other stocks in the sector and as a result we have a Neutral recommendation.

EVIDENCE

We estimate that the proportion of bets in the retail channel have fallen from 54% to 31% in the past five-years. TAH has done well at maintaining most of its customer base, but online share has slipped marginally to 28% from 29% in the past three-years...

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

In our view, the underperformance in the share price likely means that the market is factoring in lower growth and a lower likelihood that TAH sees near term upside from M&A...

return ↑

Q: Did Tabcorp's wagering revenue growth peak in FY15?

UBS VIEW

Yes. TAH has done a good job at migrating players from retail to its online platform and maintaining players wanting to switch from parimutuel to fixed odds. With that said, our view is that competition has intensified and revenue growth in wagering will likely be in the low single digit range in the near term.

EVIDENCE

We believe that four of TAH's five biggest competitors are more competitive than they were 12-months ago. The impact of this competition can be seen in 1H16 wagering growth which grew at 1.5% for TAH versus the rest of the market which grew 11.5%.

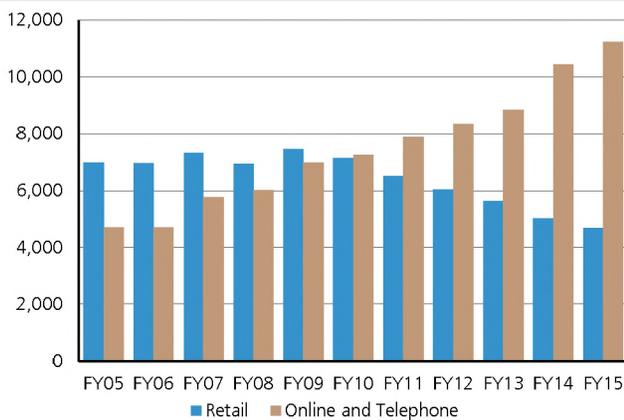

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

Expectations have been lowered and the market understands the competitive environment. Following the relative underperformance of TAH shares since the FY15 result, we think the market is now pricing in the lower growth outlook.

Shift in consumer preference from retail & tote (monopolies) to online and fixed odds (competitive products)

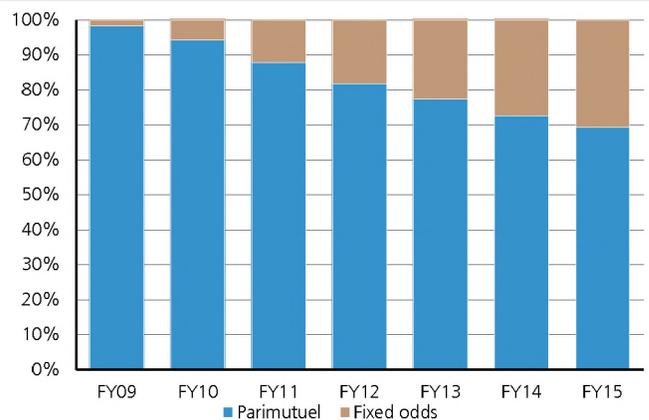

The shift in consumer preferences continues to evolve, with online betting (not surprisingly) taking share from cash based betting and fixed odd taking share from parimutuel (tote). While outside of TAH's control, this results in a negative mix shift (with the trend moving towards a more competitive environment). In our view, TAH has done a good job in adapting to these changes. The charts below show the change in trends across the market.

Given the shift away from retail, a key battle ground has been digital market share. Over the last five fiscal year halves we estimate that turnover in the digital market has grown at an average rate of 19% exTabcorp, while Tabcorp has grown at an average rate of 16%, though only 9% in the most recent half (whereas the market ex Tabcorp grew at 28%).

Has competition intensified in the past year?

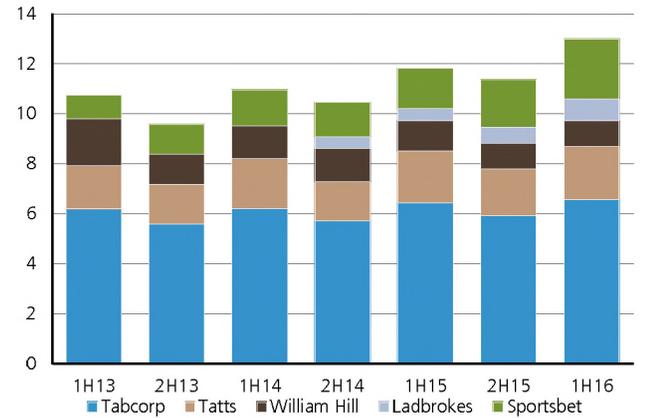

In our view, competition in the Australian wagering market is intensifying. While competition in the online space has always been very strong, the search for growth in the current environment appears to be as challenging as we have seen. The primary driver of this relates to new entrants, who have advertised heavily and have also been very active in promotional activities.

The FY15 results from TAH's Wagering and Media division showed a strong improvement relative to FY14, with the company achieving a 6.9% growth rate in wagering revenue. In our view, this was a strong operating result which benefitted from an improved product offering and some successful marketing.

With that said; strong growth has been harder to achieve so far in FY16, possibly because the competitive environment has become more aggressive. In particular, we'd highlight three smaller brands that continue to ramp up and another major bookmaker that has now finished integrating recent acquisitions. This is in addition to Sportsbet, which continues to lead the market in revenue growth.

As a result of a more competitive wagering environment and the possibility that FY15 was an anomaly in growth, we believe the new growth outlook for TAH's wagering divisions is somewhere between 2% to 4%.

Retail exclusivity comes at a big cost

The table below illustrates the variable contribution differential between Tabcorp (exLuxbet) relative to the bookmakers; based on an online fixed odds bet at a standard meeting on a race in another state that charges race field fees.

Given we are looking at the margins for incremental bets, we have ignored the fixed product / programme fees paid by Tabcorp in Victoria ($77m in FY15, UBSe) / NSW ($15m in FY15, UBSe) and the $550k annual wagering tax payment made by the corporate bookmakers operating out of the Northern Territory.

Growth outside of wagering...

Wagering makes over two-thirds of TAH's EBITDA and as a result, the division is the largest driver of earnings. With the growth outlook becoming more challenging we expect there will be a greater focus on Keno (discussed in the section below) and TGS for growth.

Positive outlook for Keno

The Keno business contributed 13% of Tabcorp's EBITDA in FY15, and while still a small contributor at the group level the business generally delivers stable growth, and is arguably comparable to a lottery business in a lot of ways. In aggregate, (Australia wide) Keno sales have grown at an average rate of 5% over the last 20 years, broadly in line with lottery sales. However, Keno is much less underrepresented as form of gambling with total sales in FY14 accounting for 2% of Australia's $22bn gambling industry.

Tabcorp holds the Keno licences in Victoria (until 2022), NSW (until 2050) and Queensland (until 2047). The business has only recently returned to growth – with recent growth attributable to both the consumer environment but also assisted by increased investment to "transform the brand". This increased investment will include a rebranding, product expansion (including digital in venue) and jackpot pooling across the eastern states (Queensland is likely to be approved within the next 12 months).

Given the increased investment within the Keno business we see the possibility of incremental growth above UBS base case. The table below illustrates the additional EBITDA contribution to both Keno / Tabcorp assuming an additional 5 – 15% revenue growth in FY17. Despite the incremental growth, the contribution to Tabcorp is marginal (~2% when assuming 15% additional Keno revenue growth), given Keno as a portion of group EBITDA is less than 15%.

PIVOTAL QUESTIONS

return ↑Q: Will TAH buy UBET in 2016?

UBS VIEW

Unlikely. The outlook for both TAH and TTS hasn't changed materially since the companies disclosed that discussions around a nil premium merger had ceased late last year. With that said, we still see some merit in TAH buying UBET at some stage, but think that time will need to pass before the two companies revisit this idea.

EVIDENCE

Looking at the previous concerns from the ACCC, we think the market has changed sufficiently to allow this deal to proceed. Amongst various scenarios, we estimate that Tabcorp could pay a 32% premium to our valuation of UBET (32% being considered a reasonable premium for control, given the multiples implied at that level) and still generate 14% EPS accretion, assuming the midpoint of our $50-65m range of synergies.

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

In our view, potential upside through the acquisition of UBET is not in Tabcorp's share price. This is possibly because the accretion of the deal is less than would have been the case when Tabcorp's share price was higher, the sale of Western Australia TAB could also be delayed (blocking a near-term potential deal), and the companies have also disclosed that they are no longer in discussions.

Rational for a deal

We estimate synergies of $50 – 65m may be achievable by combining the two wagering businesses. These synergies would be driven by

- Duplication of costs – Across both businesses there is considerable duplication that could be rationalised - both companies operate technology development teams, fixed odds bookmakers and marketing and administration teams.
- Operational improvements / efficiencies – The combined business would have better access to key talent / technology and would likely adopt best practices which should drive some operational improvements / efficiencies.
- Parimutuel pooling revenue synergies – While hard to quantify the revenue benefit, arguably larger pools would offer greater liquidity assuming pools are merged which would support high volumes with lower volatility. Additionally, combined pools should support smaller racing events / other racing codes. We note that this revenue synergy would be subject to approval by industry / regulatory bodies.

For two businesses with combined EBITDA of $529m (FY16e), $50 - 65m in synergies is a significant figure (9 - 12%). We also think the risk around achieving these synergies is limited given that most of it is driven through cost duplication savings.

ACCC concerns unlikely to materialise (unlike last time)

While the ACCC had issues around competition for upcoming licences and pooling / pricing concerns back in 2006, we believe the industry is in a different position today and as such previous concerns are unlikely to materialise should Tabcorp / UBET consolidate.

- Competition for future wagering licences – The ACCC specifically referenced the upcoming licence in Victoria (renewed in 2012) and retail exclusivity in NSW (which was due for expiry in 2013) – both of which were renewed by Tabcorp. The ACCC was concerned that if the merger proceeded it would reduce competitiveness for the upcoming licences.

The WA TAB is a potential issue for the ACCC, in our view. As a result, the sooner the tender process is completed, the less likely that this could block a potential deal from occurring. Arguments around wagering markets being in competition are less relevant now given the increase in online wagering operators. Bottom line, outside of WA, we think the prior concerns around upcoming licences might not be as big an issue for the ACCC given: (1) the next licences to be tendered is not until 2024, which the ACCC might view as sufficient time for the market to evolve further away from retail, and (2) the competitive landscape has changed given the entrance of corporate bookmakers (licenced out of the North Territory / Norfolk Island) which the ACCC could see as potential competition for licences in the event that TAH and UBET merge.

- Competition for the supply of pools – The ACCC argued that a Tabcorp / Tatts consolidation would reduce pooling suppliers (assuming consolidation of pools) for the Western Australian, Tasmanian and ACT pari-mutuel (tote) pools.

With ACT now owned by Tabcorp and Tasmania by Tatts the only state to be affected would be Western Australia (which is currently under a sale process). If WA is purchased by TAH or TTS, then in our view this may no longer be an issue.

Financial upside potential including synergies

We estimate Tabcorp could pay up to $2bn to acquire UBET and still achieve up to 7% EPS accretion within two years of the deal being completed. We have assumed Tabcorp's gearing position (gross debt / EBITDA) peaks at 2.5x EBITDA (pre-synergies).

| $m unless stated                 | Downside | Base case | Upside |
|-----------------------------------|----------|-----------|--------|
| Acquisition price                 | 1970     | 1689      | 1407   |
| Premium vs. UBSe (UBET valuation) | 54%      | 32%       | 10%    |
| Pre-synergy multiple (EBITDA)     | 14.0x    | 12.0x     | 10.0x  |
| Synergies – year two              | 57.5     | 57.5      | 57.5   |
| Post-synergy multiple (EBITDA)    | 9.7x     | 8.3x      | 6.9x   |
| EPS accretion – year two          | 7%       | 14%       | 22%    |

Source: UBSe

Note: we have assumed the deal is structured so that Tabcorp's gearing peaks at 2.5x gross debt / EBITDA (pre-synergies) while equity is raised at a nil discount.

We estimate Tabcorp could pay up to $2bn for UBET and still deliver up to 7% EPS accretion at the end of year two

PIVOTAL QUESTIONS

return ↑

Q: Will TAH de-gear to 1.6x by FY18E while maintaining a 90% payout ratio?

UBS VIEW

Yes. TAH is producing a significant amount of free cash flow that can be used to invest in growth projects, pay down debt or increase its dividend payout ratio further.

EVIDENCE

Despite slower growth, we expect free cash flow to be strong and TAH to de-gear to around 1.6x gross debt / EBITDA by FY18. The capital intensity of TAH is low and we also forecast that capex / sales will be below 6% over the next 3 years. This means that TAH can maintain a payout ratio of ~90% (excluding Victorian amortisation).

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

Investors are aware of the free cash flow story and this has been a key reason to buy the stock. In our view, positive surprise from dividends is low but the dividend yield is healthy which should be enough to support the shares in a low growth environment.

De-gearing balance sheet

We estimate that strong free cash flow will result in a de-gearing balance sheet, even while TAH maintains a dividend payout ratio of 90% (of pre-amortisation EPS).

Source: Company reports, UBS

Stable capex outlook

Part of the driver for improved free cash flow is that capex requirements are low with capex to revenue of around 6%.

Source: Company reports, UBSe

Likely to continue to distribute cash to shareholders

Tabcorp's dividend policy in FY16 is a payout ratio of 90% of NPAT before amortisation of the Victorian Wagering licence (~$35m annually) which implies a payout ratio of ~105% on an adjusted basis.

Source: Company reports, UBSe, note we have excluded the special dividend when calculating the payout ratio

Valuation... should the Vic licence Amortisation be excluded from the calculation?

Tabcorp paid $410m for the 12 year Victorian licence (until 2024, which may be extended for a further two-year period). The licence is being amortised over its duration (~$35m annually). There is an argument that Tabcorp may have overpaid for this licence and given the changing landscape within the industry a payment of similar magnitude in the future may not be made (UBSe assume a $260m payment to extend the licence for another 12 years with prior arrangements carrying over).

In general, Tabcorp's reported PE (which includes the Victorian licence amortisation) is around two to three turns higher than on an adjusted basis (excluding the Victorian licence amortisation). For example, if TAH was trading on 18x earnings on a reported basis, on an adjusted basis it would be trading on around 15x earnings.

Revisions

Following a complete remodel of Tabcorp we have reduced our FY16 EPS forecast by 1% but increase our FY17/18 EPS 3% / 8%.

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

In our view, the underperformance in the share price likely means that the market is factoring in lower growth and a lower likelihood that TAH sees near term upside from M&A.

Historically Tabcorp has been valued on its current earnings. However, since mid-2015 the market has started to price in long-term and short-term growth.

Upside valuation ($5.55): We assume wagering revenues (excluding media) grow at faster rate than our base case which would be underpinned by: (1) a better wagering growth environment and (2) through Tabcorp maintaining / growing market share. Our race field fee assumptions are unchanged relative to our base case with reduced race fields unlikely under an optimistic environment. We assume that the investment in Keno also delivers higher growth than our base case.

Base case valuation ($4.15): We assume wagering revenues (excluding media) grow at an average rate of 2.2% over the next four-years (to FY20), underpinned by continued growth in fixed odds / digital with parimutuel (tote) expected to stabilise in FY19. We assume that the investment in Keno delivers an average growth rate of 3.2% over the next four-years (to FY20). Under this scenario we value the Wagering & Media (73% of FY17e EBITDA) on 8.0x FY17e EBITDA.

Downside valuation ($2.95): We assume wagering revenues (excluding media) grow at a slower rate than our base case due to: (1) a lower wagering growth environment and (2) market share losses. We also assume a modest increase in race field fees. Despite the investment within the Keno brand we assume a slower revenue growth relative to our base case.

Tabcorp Holdings (TAH) operates wagering (including the Sky racing channels) and Keno products in Australia as well as providing gaming solutions / services in Victoria and more recently in NSW. Tabcorp operates parimutuel, fixed odds and retail betting in Victoria (retail exclusivity until 2024 - which may be extended for a further two-year period - through a 50/50 joint venture with Vic racing), NSW (retail exclusivity until 2033), and the ACT (retail exclusivity until 2064). Tabcorp also operates "Luxbet" which is essentially a corporate bookmaker licensed from the Northern Territory. The Keno business is exclusively licensed across Australia's eastern states (Victoria, NSW, Queensland and the ACT). The Gaming Services business (referred to as TGS) commenced immediately after the expiry of the Victorian Gaming license in August 2012. The business provides a mix of gaming expertise / specialized services, strategic advice and financing to licensed venues within Victoria and NSW.

The wagering industry has entered a period of heightened competition given the prevalence of the corporate bookmakers and shift in consumer preference for fixed odds betting relative to parimutuel (lower margin product) and continued migration to online (a competitive landscape). The wagering market has been growing at 6% more recently, though market share has been shifting to the corporate bookmakers (42% share, UBSe) who have been growing at a faster pace. Keno has similar qualities to a lottery business generally delivering stable mid to low single digit growth – the business is also undergoing additional investment / rebranding. The Gaming Services business generally achieves CPI price rises on an annual basis. While NSW is a new market around 85% of customers are contracted until 2022 in Victoria.

KEY DEFINITIONS: Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Short-Term Ratings reflect the expected near-term (up to three months) performance of the stock and do not reflect any change in the fundamental view or investment case. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES: UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Committee (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

INTRODUCTION

APPOINTMENT AND TERMS OF REFERENCE

The Joint Standing Committee on Environment, Resources and Development was established for a trial period from 7 April 2004 and was re-established on 30 May 2006 following the State Election on 18 March that year. The Committee as at the date of this Report was re-established by Order of the Legislative Council on 4 March 2008, agreed to by resolution of the House of Assembly on 5 March 2008.

At a regularly constituted meeting on 5 February 2009, the Committee resolved to inquire into -

- (a) the proposed sale of the TOTE. Tasmania by the Government of Tasmania; and
- (b) any other matters incidental thereto.

In announcing the Committee, the Hon. Greg Hall MLC said:

“The Committee does believe that this issue is one of great significance to the State, and it is essential that all Members of Parliament are fully briefed on the circumstances surrounding the proposed sale before we are asked to vote on it.”<sup>1</sup>

The membership of the Committee currently comprises four members of the Legislative Council – Mr Hall (Chairman), Mr Harriss, Mrs Rattray-Wagner and Mr Wilkinson; and four members of the House of Assembly – Mr Best, Mr Booth, Mr Green and Mr Gutwein.

The Committee has general jurisdiction over the following areas: Government Business Enterprises; regulation of business, commercial and industrial relations; economic and finance development; environment and land use planning; natural resources – forestry, mining and fisheries; energy; tourism; transport; and primary industry.

This is an interim report in relation to the sale of the TOTE.

As at the date of this Interim Report the Committee is still awaiting receipt of a number of documents which were the subject of summonses and addressed to the Secretaries for the Department of Treasury and Finance and the Department of Infrastructure, Energy and Resources. Once these outstanding issues have been resolved, this Committee will table its Final Report on the Sale of the TOTE.

PROCEEDINGS

Advertisements were placed in the three regional daily newspapers on 7 February 2009.

19 witnesses gave verbal evidence to the Committee in Hobart and are listed in Appendix 1. 15 documents received into evidence are listed in Appendix 2. Transcripts of all public hearings are attached in Appendix 3.

The Committee held public hearings in Hobart on 6 and 19 March 2009.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Timeline

The following timeline is adapted from one that appeared in the Mercury on 7 March 2009:

- “May 7, 2008:                    Treasurer Michael Aird first approached Treasury to provide advice about sale of TOTE Tasmania.

- November 12, 2008:        Legislation for the restructure of the racing industry is introduced to State Parliament. Mr Aird says the restructure is not about preparing TOTE for sale.

- November 19, 2008:        Treasury provides a Cabinet brief to Treasurer Michael Aird recommending the sale of TOTE. The brief is not signed.

- November 20, 2008:        Jim Cox says during debate about the racing amendment Bill: “There is no intention at this stage that TOTE is for sale.”

- November 24, 2008:        Deloitte Corporate Finance begins pre-paring advice on the restructure of TOTE and possible options for its sale.

- December 4, 2008:         Mr Aird tells a Legislative Council Government Business Enterprise committee he is “not aware” of rumours he planned to sell TOTE.

- December 19, 2008:        A second Cabinet document recommending the sale of TOTE is prepared for Treasury, including advice from Deloitte.

- December 22, 2008:        Cabinet approves the sale.

- January 8, 2009:            The sale of TOTE is announced.”<sup>2</sup>

- January 20, 2009:         Mr Greg Hall MLC suggested a review of the sale to the Joint Standing Committee on the Environment, Resources and Development.

- February 5, 2009:         The review was approved.

THE GOVERNMENT CASE FOR SALE OF THE TOTE

TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill 2009 Fact Sheet

The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill 2009 provides for:

- the Treasurer to have the necessary authority and powers to divest the whole or any part of TOTE Tasmania. This will provide certainty to potential bidders during the sale process.
- the Treasurer to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania or the business of TOTE Tasmania;
- the Treasurer to have regard to the achievement of a fair and reasonable sale price;
- the Treasurer to facilitate the sale by entering in to contracts, giving directions to TOTE and amending the constitution of TOTE;
- the protection of employee entitlements in respect of long service leave and the RBF contributory scheme;
- transitional arrangements for the business and arrangements for employees if the business is sold;
- part of TOTE Tasmania or part of a subsidiary of TOTE Tasmania to be transferred into Crown ownership upon sale completion if they are not sold;
- the Auditor-General to review the sale of TOTE after completion and report to Parliament on this review;
- TOTE Tasmania and the Government to disclose all information to bidders, and ensures that existing commercial documents are not terminated as a result of the sale process; and
- normal governance arrangements to apply to the business until the sale is completed.

Passing the Bill will provide Parliamentary support for divestment of TOTE Tasmania and will also facilitate the sale process and provide certainty to all the parties involved.

TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill 2009

Second Reading Speech

Madam President

The Government is committed to ensuring the Tasmanian community's assets are put to their best use. In this context, the Government has reviewed its equity investment in TOTE Tasmania to determine whether it is in the public interest to retain, or whether the equity could be put to better strategic use.

The purpose of this Bill is to provide for the sale of TOTE Tasmania. This is part of the Government's reforms of TOTE Tasmania and its regulatory environment.

Honourable Members will recall that in November 2008 Parliament approved the separation of the racing and wagering operations of TOTE, with the creation of the Tasmanian Racing Board from 1 January 2009. This has enabled the TOTE to operate solely as a wagering business.

The second part of the reforms is to provide a modern regulatory framework for TOTE that is consistent with the regulation of other wagering and gaming businesses already operating in Tasmania. The Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 will provide such a framework.

Madam President

TOTE Tasmania currently provides funding support to the newly formed Tasmanian Racing Board, for the benefit of the Tasmanian racing industry. The Government is replacing these funding arrangements with a legally binding Funding Deed between the Government and the Tasmanian Racing Board.

The Deed provides for the Government to fund the Tasmanian Racing Board to meet its operational expenses. The Funding Deed will also provide funding for capital expenditure upon the successful sale of TOTE. I have provided details about this Deed during the Council's debate on the Gaming Control Amendment Bill.

Madam President

Let me be very clear on this point. The sale of the TOTE will not disadvantage the racing industry. On the contrary, it will provide $40 million of funding for capital expenditure that would not otherwise have been available. These arrangements while guaranteeing the Tasmanian Racing Board's future, also place it in a clear commercial context with responsibility for improving its own performance.

TOTE Tasmania has successfully operated since 2000 as a State-owned Company in an increasingly aggressive and dynamic market. If it is to remain competitive it needs to be able to continue to expand its business both interstate and overseas and be capable of dealing with the rigours of national and international competition. There is no longer any justification for retaining the TOTE in Government ownership. Indeed there are very persuasive reasons why it should not continue to be owned by the Government.

All jurisdictions other than Western Australia and the ACT have sold their TABs. The wagering product has subsequently been successfully provided by the private sector. There is no need for the Government to continue to hold equity in a business that can be provided by the private sector.

Secondly, it is the Government's intention to reinvest the net proceeds from sale, after provision for Tasmanian Racing Board funding and sale costs, into other state assets for the benefit of the wider Tasmanian community.

Thirdly, the sale of TOTE will benefit the community and taxpayers through reduced financial risk. The Australian wagering industry is highly competitive and subject to rapid technological change. This environment presents a number of ownership risks, which are better suited to private ownership, where the business can grow without the constraints of Government ownership. These constraints include the lack of access to capital and lack of scale economies. The Government does not consider that it is either prudent or responsible to continue its ownership of the TOTE within such an environment.

The Government has retained independent expert financial and legal advisers to ensure that the State's interests are properly protected. A probity adviser has also been retained to ensure that the sale process is conducted fairly and openly.

Madam President

TOTE Tasmania currently has a successful business model and has demonstrated significant earnings growth over the last two years. Despite prevailing economic conditions, I am confident that a sale in the near future will attract significant buyer interest and yield an attractive sale price.

Both the Board and the management of the TOTE fully support its sale. The Board and the management have concluded that there are considerable constraints and commercial difficulties associated with continued government ownership of what is a successful and profitable commercial enterprise anxious to expand its business interstate and overseas.

The sale will only proceed if it is in the best interests of the State. The Bill requires the Treasurer to have regard to the achievement of a fair and reasonable price for TOTE Tasmania. The Bill also provides for the Auditor-General to review the sale of TOTE Tasmania and report to Parliament within four months on the outcome.

The community has an expectation that the sale of TOTE Tasmania will occur in a manner that:

- is administratively efficient and transparent;
- maximises financial and economic returns to the State; and
- ensures employees are treated fairly.

The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill ensures these factors will be achieved.

Madam President.

Potential bidders for TOTE Tasmania must have certainty about the sale process and, importantly, must have the assurance that the time and resources they devote to the process will be on the basis that a sale can occur. Bidders also require the assurance that there can be timely and swift execution of the sale. The market place needs to know, particularly in the current political and economic environment, that the Parliament has authorised the sale.

This Sale Bill provides the Treasurer, on behalf of the Crown, authority to enter into negotiations for the sale of TOTE Tasmania against a framework of certainty and within defined boundaries.

The Bill provides flexibility to enable the sale of the whole, or any part of TOTE Tasmania and establishes the mechanism to transfer any remaining elements of the business back to the Crown. These provisions, which are consistent with the approach taken in other Government business sales – will enable the Government to maximise the outcome for the State.

The Bill specifies provisions that will guide the sale process, including transitional arrangements such as the treatment of existing business contracts and protection for employee entitlements.

Madam President

The Bill also defines the alternative sale structures available for conducting a sale with a proponent. Under either approach, the objective is that TOTE Tasmania is sold as a going concern.

The first approach is to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania.

The second is to sell some or all of the assets and liabilities of TOTE Tasmania and transfer employees to the purchaser. The Bill provides for any remaining business assets and liabilities to then be transferred to the Crown.

The availability of two options is to provide bidders with the flexibility to consider their most preferred approach to the purchase of the business. This ensures that the best possible sale value is achieved.

Madam President

The Bill clearly provides for the minimum of disruption to employees arising from the sale process. The Bill broadly provides for the maintenance of employment terms and conditions for transferring employees and the ongoing recognition of service. It also provides a clear framework within which any potential redundancies arising from the sale of the TOTE business will be managed.

The sale of TOTE Tasmania makes sense, both from the perspective of the business and the Tasmanian community. It opens the way for the involvement of the private sector in an area in which it can appropriately contribute and enables the Government to better address the State's emerging needs.

The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill provides the enabling mechanism for this strategy to be implemented. It ensures that the sale will occur in a manner that ensures the greatest chance of financial and economic returns to the State being maximised, that employees are appropriately treated and that the sale process is administratively efficient.

Madam President

I commend the Bill to the Council.

TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Act 2009

Notes on Clauses

PART 1            PRELIMINARY

- Clause 1            Short Title.
- Clause 2            The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Act 2009 commences on the day it receives Royal Assent.
- Clause 3            This clause interprets key terms used in the Bill.
- Clause 4            This clause defines the business of TOTE Tasmania. It also allows the Treasurer to exclude a part of the business of TOTE, or a TOTE subsidiary from this Act or a provision of this Act. This provides the Treasurer with flexibility to sell part of the business.

PART 2            AUTHORITY OF TREASURER TO SELL TOTE TASMANIA

- Clause 5            This clause provides authority for the Treasurer to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries, or the business of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries. This clause also provides that the Treasurer must have regard to achieving a fair and reasonable price in exercising this power of sale.
- Clause 6            This clause provides the Treasurer with powers to facilitate the sale process.
- Clause 7            This clause provides that the Treasurer may direct TOTE Tasmania to take certain actions that would facilitate the sale. This is consistent with existing powers under the Constitutions for State-owned Companies and the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003 and removes doubt about this power of direction.
- TOTE or its Board must comply with the direction provided by the Treasurer.
- Clause 8            This clause allows the Treasurer to amend the Constitution of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries. This provision allows for the constitution to be amended without tabling the amendments in Parliament as required under the TOTE Tasmania Act, which will allow for the sale to be expedited.
- Clause 9            This clause provides the Treasurer with the power to exempt from State tax a document prepared for the sale of TOTE Tasmania or the transfer of any unsold parts of the business to the Crown. This is consistent with the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003.

PART 3            SALE OF SHARES IN TOTE TASMANIA OR TOTE SUBSIDIARY

This Part contains similar provisions to those in the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003 relating to long service leave and superannuation.

Clause 10            This clause specifies that Part 3 of the Bill relates to the sale of the shares in TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries.

Clause 11            This clause provides a formula for uplifting the long service leave entitlements of TOTE Tasmania employees covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 when the sale of shares is completed. Its intent is to ensure that employees' current long service leave entitlements are not diminished as a result of sale.

The clause specifies that employees are not covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 after the sale of shares is completed.

Clause 12            This clause provides that, if the Treasurer agrees to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiaries, the Minister administering the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 is to declare the sale agreement a prescribed arrangement for the purposes of the Retirement Benefits Regulation 1994. Declaration of the sale as a prescribed arrangement provides for a more favourable superannuation outcome for employees who are members of the RBF Contributory Scheme than would otherwise be the case. It allows them to receive a redundancy benefit if their membership ceases as a result of a prescribed arrangement.

PART 4            SALE OF BUSINESS OF TOTE TASMANIA OR TOTE SUBSIDIARY

This Part contains similar provisions to those in the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003 relating to the sale of a business.

Clause 13            This clause specifies that Part 4 of the Bill relates to the sale of the business of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries.

Clause 14            Clause 14(1) defines transferring business.

Clause 14(2) provides that, when the business is sold, unless otherwise agreed, the purchaser assumes full legal responsibility in respect of the business sold, including any legal documents and proceedings.

Clause 14(3) provides that TOTE Tasmania is, after the sale day, discharged from any liabilities and obligations that are transferred to the purchaser on the sale day.

Clause 15      Clause 15(1) defines transferred employee.

Clause 15(2) provides that the Treasurer may transfer the employment of a person employed by TOTE Tasmania or a subsidiary to the purchaser. The Treasurer may also terminate the employment of a person employed by TOTE Tasmania, on conditions the Treasurer considers appropriate, provided that any termination is in accordance with any contract, award or agreement.

Clause 15(3) provides that before transferring or terminating the employment of a person, the Treasurer is to consult with the person in any manner the Treasurer considers appropriate including, but not limited to, consultation with representatives of the person or employee organisations to which the person belongs.

Clause 15(4) provides that any termination must be subject to and in accordance with any relevant contract, awards or agreement.

Clause 15(5) provides that each person whose employment is transferred or terminated is to be given written notice of the transfer or termination.

Clause 15(6) provides that if the employment of a person is transferred to the purchaser, that person becomes the employee of the purchaser and ceases to be an employee of TOTE Tasmania.

Clause 15(7) makes provision for any transferred employee to be employed by the purchaser for the same remuneration as was received immediately before the transfer. It also provides that except where an award, agreement or law otherwise provides, a transferred employee retains all existing and accrued rights and is entitled to claim those rights against the purchaser.

Clause 15(8) provides that an award or agreement applying to a transferred employee before transfer will continue to apply upon and after transfer except where another award, agreement or law provides otherwise.

Clause 15(9) provides that the period of service of an employee with TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiaries is taken to be service with the purchaser.

Clause 15(10) clarifies that the terms of employment of a transferred employee may be altered by an award, agreement or law after the employee becomes a transferred employee.

Clause 15(11) provides that where the employment of an employee of TOTE Tasmania is terminated, that employment is terminated immediately before the business of TOTE Tasmania is sold or on the day specified in the order. The employee is not entitled to any compensation or other payment in respect of termination except as provided by the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 or the Public Sector Superannuation Reform Act 1999, any other law, award, agreement or conditions determined by the Treasurer.

Clause 15(12) provides that the order transferring the employee under section 2 is not a statutory rule

Clause 16 This clause provides a formula for uplifting the long service leave entitlements of TOTE Tasmania employees covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 if their employment is transferred to the purchaser. Its intent is to ensure that employees' current long service leave entitlements are not diminished as a result of sale.

The clause specifies that employees are not covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 after the sale of shares is completed.

Clause 17 This clause provides that in the event the Treasurer makes an order under Section 15(2)(a) the agreement for sale is to be declared by the Minister administering the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 a prescribed arrangement for the purposes of the Retirement Benefits Regulation 1994. Declaration of the sale as a prescribed arrangement provides for a more favourable superannuation outcome for employees who are members of the RBF Contributory Scheme than would otherwise be the case. It allows them to receive a redundancy benefit if their membership ceases as a result of a prescribed arrangement.

- Clause 18
- Clause 18(1) defines for the purposes of Division 3 the terms "transfer day" and "transferring business".
- Clause 18(2) provides that the Treasurer, if only part of the business of TOTE Tasmania or a subsidiary is sold, may transfer the whole or any part of the remaining business to the Crown and to specify conditions relating to that transfer. The transfer is to occur by order published in the gazette.
- Clause 18(3) provides that this transfer may occur before the sale is completed.
- Clause 18(4) provides that the business of TOTE or a TOTE subsidiary, other than a liability, vests in the Crown. It also provides for a liability specified in the transferring order to become the responsibility of the Crown.
- Clause 18(5) provides that on and after the transfer day the Crown assumes full legal responsibility in respect of the transferred business.
- Clause 18(6) provides that if any dispute arises in respect of a transferring employee, the Treasurer may resolve the matter and will provide TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiary with written advice.
- Clause 18(7) provides that the Treasurer's determination under clause 18(6) is final and binding.
- Clause 18(8) provides that an order under subsection (2) is not a statutory rule.
- Clause 19
- Clause 19(1) defines the transfer day as specified in the Treasurer's order in 18(2).
- Clause 19(2) provides that the Treasurer may terminate the employment of a person if the business of TOTE Tasmania or a subsidiary is transferred to the Crown under clause 18.
- Clause 19(3) provides that any termination must be in accordance with any relevant contract, award or agreement.
- Clause 19(4) provides that each person whose employment is terminated is to be given written notice of the termination.
- Clause 19(5) provides that terminated employees are not entitled to compensation or other payments except as provided by the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 or the Public Sector Superannuation reform Act 1999, or any other law, an award, an agreement or any conditions determined by the Treasurer.

Clause 20 This clause provides for the de-registration of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries if the respective businesses are sold. This is because these companies will still exist, without assets or liabilities, and will need to be wound up under the Corporations Act.

PART 5 MISCELLANEOUS

Clause 21 Clause 21(1) defines a potential purchaser.

Clause 21(2) provides for relevant parties involved in the sale to disclose information, including confidential information to each other and to potential purchasers, their directors, employees, agents and advisors in order to facilitate the sale.

Clause 21(3) provides that a person who receives information under clause 21(2) must not disclose that information to parties other than those specified in this clause. It also provides for a penalty if the person discloses this information to unauthorised parties.

Clause 22 This clause provides that the obligations of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries are not guaranteed by the Crown.

Clause 23 This clause provides for the proceeds of the sale to be paid into the Consolidated Fund.

Clause 24 This clause provides that the Auditor-General is to review a sale under clause 5 after the sale has completed and is to report to each House of Parliament within 120 days of the sale or the deregistration of TOTE Tasmania. This clause also provides that the Auditor-General must be given access to all information that the Auditor-General considers relevant to the report.

Clause 25 This clause provides protection for acts done or omitted under the Act if the act or omission is done in good faith. It protects contracts and agreements from being terminated and claims that confidentiality has been breached as a result of the sale.

Clause 26 This clause provides for matters to be excluded from the Corporations Act 2001. For example, this includes a sale under clause 5 and the amendment of TOTE's constitution under clause 8. This is a fairly standard provision for the sale of State owned Companies.

Clause 27 This clause provides for the Treasurer, by an order published in the Gazette, to exclude sale contracts from the Trade Practices Act 1974 and the Competition Policy Reform (Tasmania) Act 1996.

- Clause 28 This clause provides that TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiaries or any person concerned in the management of TOTE Tasmania or a TOTE subsidiary be convicted separately of an offence unless they had no knowledge of the offence or they used all due diligence to prevent the act or omission.
- Clause 29 This clause empowers the Governor to make regulations for the purposes of this Act.
- Clause 30 This clause provides that the administration of the Act is assigned to the Treasurer.
- Clause 31 This clause provides for the Auditor-General to conduct an audit for the financial year prior to the sale. It also requires the Treasurer to table TOTE's annual report in parliament. It provides for a penalty if TOTE does not provide the necessary information to the Auditor General.
- Clause 32 and schedule 1 This clause provides for the repeal of the Portfolio legislation once all the shares in TOTE are sold, or TOTE has been deregistered and the Governor has made such a proclamation on the recommendation of the Treasurer.
- This clause also provides for section 23 of the TOTE Tasmania Act 2000 to be repealed on Royal Assent. Section 23 does not permit the company to sell its assets or main undertaking unless the sale or disposal is approved by both Houses of Parliament.

2. Conditions Precedent

2.1 Conditions relating to Operational Amount

Clauses 3, 4.1, 4.3, 5.1(a), 7 and 8 do not become binding on the parties and have no force or effect unless and until each of the conditions listed below has either been satisfied or waived in accordance with clause 2.4:

- (a) the Minister's Order transferring assets and liabilities to the TRB from TOTE Tasmania Pty Ltd under the Racing Regulation Amendment (Governance Reform) Act 2008 (Tas) is published in the Tasmanian Government Gazette; and
- (b) sections 42 and 46 of the Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 or their equivalents are proclaimed.

2.2 Conditions relating to Capital Amount

Clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b) of this deed do not become binding on the parties and have no force or effect unless and until:

- (a) each Operational Funding Condition is satisfied or waived in accordance with clause 2.4; and
- (b) the Government receives the funds which are due and payable on the completion of the Sale.

2.3 Notice in relation to satisfaction of Conditions

Each party must within 1 Business Day after becoming aware of the satisfaction of any Operational Funding Condition or any Capital Funding Condition, notify the other party of the satisfaction of that condition and provide reasonable evidence that the condition has been satisfied.

2.4 Waiver of Conditions

The Government may in its absolute discretion waive an Operational Funding Condition and/or a Capital Funding Condition by giving notice to the TRB.

2.5 Failure of Operational Funding Conditions

If any Operational Funding Condition has become incapable of satisfaction and is not waived in accordance with clause 2.4 within 10 Business Days of the date the incapacity became evident, then the parties will negotiate in good faith an alternative funding agreement.

2.6 Failure of Capital Funding Condition

If:

- (a) at any time before the Capital Funding End Date the Capital Funding Condition has become incapable of satisfaction and is not waived in accordance with clause 2.4;
- (b) at any time after the Capital Funding End Date the Capital Funding Condition has not been satisfied or waived in accordance with clause 2.4; or
- (c) the Government gives notice to the TRB that it is no longer pursuing the Sale;

CONFIDENTIAL

clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b) shall be deemed severed from this deed and this deed shall be read as though clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b) did not exist.

3. Funding Term*3.1 Original Funding Term

The terms and conditions specified in this Deed commence on the Commencement Date and cease on 30 June 2014.

3.2 Extension of Original Funding Term

Subject to clauses 3.3 and 9.1 this deed, with the exception of clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b), will automatically be extended for a period of one Financial Year at the beginning of each Financial Year, commencing from the second year after the Commencement Date.

3.3 Funding term

The terms and conditions in this funding agreement cease to have effect on 30 June 2029.

4. Funding*4.1 Operational Funding

The Government will, in order to fund operational expenses, pay to the TRB the Operational Amount during the Funding Term.

4.2 Capital Funding

In addition to the amount payable under clause 4.1, the Government will, in order to fund capital expenditure, pay to the TRB the Capital Amount during the Funding Term in accordance with clause 5.1(b).

4.3 No other funding

The TRB acknowledges that in respect of the Funding Term, the amounts payable by the Government under this deed are the only amounts that the Government will contribute to the TRB and the Tasmanian thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing and breeding industries and the TRB will not seek any additional funding or financial assistance from the Government.

5. Payment of Operational Amount and Capital Amount*5.1 Payment of Operational Amount and Capital Amount

(a) The Government will pay to the TRB the Operational Amount within 10 working days of the beginning of each financial year provided that where the Commencement Date is after 1 July 2009, the amount of the first instalment will be reduced by the Adjustment Amount; and

(b) The Government will pay to the TRB the Capital Amount on the day that is 10 Business Days after the date on which the Government receives the funds due and payable to it on the completion of the Sale. The Capital Amount must only be used to fund capital expenditure.

CONFIDENTIAL*5.2 Withholding Payment

Notwithstanding clause 5.1 the Government may without liability withhold the whole or part of any payment due to the TRB under this deed whilst ever the TRB is not in full compliance with any Tasmanian legislation.

5.3 Reduction/Set-Off of Double Payment Amounts

If the TRB receives any amount of funding or financial assistance under a Previous Funding Arrangement which relates in whole or part to any period occurring during the Funding Term (or in the case of capital funding or assistance, which relates to projects or purposes to which the Capital Amount would otherwise relate) the amounts which would be otherwise payable by the Government to the TRB under this deed shall be reduced by the amount of such funding.

6. Self Generated Funding*6.1 Self Generated Funding

Nothing in this deed shall be taken as preventing or restricting the TRB from generating through its own activities income from sources other than Government.

7. Distribution of and Agreements Relating to Distribution of Funds*7.1 Distribution

The Operational Amount and Capital Amount must only be distributed or used by the TRB:

- (a) in the best interests of the Tasmanian thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing and breeding industries;
- (b) in a manner which promotes the development of an efficient and effective racing and breeding industry that accords with industry best practice;
- (c) in accordance with the TRB's obligations under the Racing Administration Act 2004 and any other Tasmanian legislation relating to the TRB;
- (d) for the purpose for which it was provided; and
- (e) in relation to the Capital Amount, in accordance with any requirements under clause 5.1(b).

7.2 Reporting

The TRB must report to the Minister the amount of the Capital Amount received and spent on capital expenditure projects undertaken in each Financial Year during the Funding Term in the applicable annual report of the TRB.

8. Investment of Funds

To the extent that the TRB is not obliged to distribute or expend funds received which comprise Operational Amount and/or the Capital Amount immediately, the TRB may invest such funds, provided that it does so through the Tasmanian Public Finance Corporation (Tascorp) and in doing so must comply with Treasurer's Instruction GBE 07-44-01 Investments.

---

9. Termination*9.1 Termination by Government

The Government may terminate this deed:

- (a) if the TRB breaches any provision of this deed and fails within 30 Business Days of receiving notice of the breach to remedy the same;
- (b) if the TRB fails to comply with its obligations under the Racing Regulation Act 2004 (Tas);
- (c) the TRB ceases to exist or its functions are substantially changed;
- (d) the TRB ceases to be the controlling body for all three codes of racing (thoroughbred harness and greyhound); or
- (e) if an Insolvency Event occurs in relation to the TRB.

9.2 Effect of Termination

If this deed is terminated then:

- (a) the provisions of this deed shall cease to have effect except for the provisions of clauses 9 and 10.
- (b) each party retains the rights it has against the other in respect of any breach of this deed occurring before the termination.

9.3 Adjustment on Termination

The TRB must repay within 10 Business Days of termination that part of any amounts paid to it under this deed prior to the termination date which relate to any period occurring after the termination date.

10.1 Damages

The Government will have no liability in respect of any claim or action for any indirect or consequential loss or damage arising from or in connection with any breach of this deed by the Government.

10.2 Notices

Each communication (including each notice, consent, approval, request and demand) under or in connection with this deed:

- (a) must be in writing;
- (b) must be addressed as follows (or as otherwise notified by that party to each other party from time to time):

CONFIDENTIAL*Government

Name: Department of Infrastructure, Energy and Resources
 Address: 10 Murray Street, Hobart, TAS, 7000
 Fax:
 For the attention of: Secretary

TRB

Name: [insert relevant contact]
 Address:

- (c) must be signed by the party making it or (on that party's behalf) by the solicitor for, or any attorney, director, secretary or authorised agent of, that party;
- (d) must be delivered by hand or posted by prepaid post to the address, or sent by fax to the number, of the addressee, in accordance with clause 10.2(b); and
- (e) is taken to be received by the addressee:
  - (i) (in the case of prepaid post) on the third day after the date of posting;
  - (ii) (in the case of fax) at the time in the place to which it is sent equivalent to the time shown on the transmission confirmation report produced by the fax machine from which it was sent; and
  - (iii) (in the case of delivery by hand) on delivery, but if the communication is taken to be received on a day that is not a working day or after 5.00 pm, it is taken to be received at 9.00 am on the next working day ("working day" meaning a day that is not a Saturday, Sunday or public holiday and on which banks are open for business generally, in the place to which the communication is posted, sent or delivered).

10.3 Governing law

This deed is governed by and must be construed according to the law applying in Tasmania.

10.4 Jurisdiction

Each party irrevocably:

- (a) submits to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of Tasmania, and the courts competent to determine appeals from those courts, with respect to any proceedings that may be brought at any time relating to this deed; and
- (b) waives any objection it may now or in the future have to the venue of any proceedings, and any claim it may now or in the future have that any proceedings have been brought in an inconvenient forum, if that venue falls within clause 10.4(a).

CONFIDENTIAL*10.5 Taxes, Charges, Rates, etc

The TRB:

- (a) must pay all relevant state and local taxes, duties, levies, rates, charges and the like and any related fines and penalties in respect of this deed, the performance of this deed and each transaction effected by or made under this deed; and
- (b) indemnifies the Government against any liability arising from failure to comply with clause 10.5(a).

10.6 Variation

This deed may be varied by a deed executed by or on behalf of each party.

10.7 Waiver

- (a) Failure to exercise or enforce, or a delay in exercising or enforcing, or the partial exercise or enforcement of, a right, power or remedy provided by law or under this deed by a party does not preclude, or operate as a waiver of, the exercise or enforcement, or further exercise or enforcement, of that or any other right, power or remedy provided by law or under this deed.
- (b) A waiver or consent given by a party under this deed is only effective and binding on that party if it is given or confirmed in writing by that party.
- (c) No waiver of a breach of a term of this deed operates as a waiver of another breach of that term or of a breach of any other term of this deed.

10.8 Further acts and documents

Each party must promptly do all further acts and execute and deliver all further documents (in form and content reasonably satisfactory to that party) required by law or reasonably requested by another party to give effect to this deed.

10.9 Assignment

A party cannot assign, novate or otherwise transfer any of its rights or obligations under this deed without the prior consent of the other party.

10.10 Counterparts

This deed may be executed in any number of counterparts and by the parties on separate counterparts. Each counterpart constitutes the deed of each party who has executed and delivered that counterpart.

10.11 No representation or reliance

- (a) Each party acknowledges that no party (nor any person acting on a party's behalf) has made any representation or other inducement to it to enter into this deed, except for representations or inducements expressly set out in this deed.
- (b) Each party acknowledges and confirms that it does not enter into this deed in reliance on any representation or other inducement by or on behalf of any other party, except for representations or inducements expressly set out in this deed.

CONFIDENTIAL*10.12 Entire deed

To the extent permitted by law, in relation to its subject matter, this deed:

- (a) embodies the entire understanding of the parties, and constitutes the entire terms agreed by the parties; and
- (b) supersedes any prior written or other deed of the parties.

Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 Fact Sheet

- The Gaming Control Act Amendment Bill amends the Gaming Control Act 1993, to enable the regulation of TOTE Tasmania's gaming and wagering activities. The Bill also repeals the Racing (Totalizator Betting) Act 1952 and the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004.
- It also abolishes the current funding arrangements between the TOTE and the Tasmanian racing industry. The new Tasmanian Racing Board will be funded directly by the State Government through a separate Funding Deed.
- The amendments provide for the regulation and financial arrangements of the TOTE or its purchaser. Specifically, amendments to the Gaming Control Act:
  - establishes a new endorsement under a Tasmanian Gaming Licence (TGL) for totalisator betting with an annual fee of 350 000 fee units ($448 000), waived for the TOTE or its purchaser;
  - establishes an agent endorsement to allow TGL holders to participate in an agent arrangement with an external (third party) gaming or wagering provider for which it receives a commission. An annual licence fee of 5 000 fee units ($6 400), will apply to an agent endorsement, waived for the TOTE or its purchaser;
  - provides that the holder of a totalisator endorsement must pay a fixed wagering levy of 4.7 million fee units ($6 million per annum);
  - deems TOTE to hold a Tasmanian gaming licence with totalisator, race wagering (fixed odds), sports betting, and an agent endorsements;
  - deems TOTE's existing agent arrangements to be allowable under the endorsement. New arrangements will be subject to disallowance by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission;
  - deems TOTE's equipment (software and hardware) to be compliant for 24 months and control systems (manuals) for 6 months;
  - deems TOTE's special employees to be licensed for 12 months;
  - enables a second exclusive totalisator licence, subject to the Treasurer's written approval, to be granted by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission if the TOTE is sold;
  - establishes a period of exclusivity of 15 years after the new operator's totalisator endorsement commences;
  - sets the term of the Tasmanian gaming licence for the new

- operator to be 50 years then renewable for 49 years while the operator holds a totalisator endorsement;
- deems the new operator's equipment (software and hardware) to be compliant for 12 months and control systems (manuals) for 6 months;
  - deems the new operator's special employees to be licensed for 12 months;
  - provides that the TOTE or new operator can establish wagering rules under the licence that are allowed unless disallowed by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission;
  - provides that commission can be deducted, dividends are rounded and the fractions retained by the TOTE or the new operator;
  - authorises commission rates (take out rates) set out in operators rules are subject to maximum rates as determined by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission.
  - waives the race wagering, sports betting and agent endorsement fees for the TOTE or its purchaser while a totalisator endorsement is held;
  - limits the maximum fee payable for multiple endorsements held by any other operators (ie without a totalisator endorsement) at 450 000 fee units per annum ($576 000);
  - abolishes the current tax on sports betting from of 0.25 per cent of turnover and race wagering (fixed odds wagering) of 1.0 per cent of turnover;
  - limits the fees for the holder of both sports betting and race wagering endorsements to 200 000 fee units ($256 000);
  - provides that a totalisator, or any other Tasmanian gaming licence holder, may operate as an agent for a third party gaming or wagering operator external to Tasmania, for which the Tasmanian based operator receives a commission;
  - provides that unclaimed monetary prizes or dividends be paid to the Treasurer after six months;
  - provides that a totalisator operator may use retail outlets as an agent to accept wagers on its behalf;
  - provides that the actions of an outlet agent are taken to be the actions of a licence holder;
  - introduces penalties for serious offences by the outlet agents, such as allowing a minor to gamble, the outlet agent will also be held responsible;

- contains transitional and savings provisions in respect of the operations of the TOTE and the TOTE's agents, employees and technicians as they come under the control of the Act;
- allows employees to wager on their employer's wagering activity only when off duty; and
- provides for an adjustment of the product levy payable to Tasmania by Betfair where it is also required to pay race-fields publishing fees, product fees, or levies to racing authorities for the same event.

Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 Second Reading Speech

Madam President

The Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 can be considered in three distinct parts. Firstly, it provides for the regulation of TOTE Tasmania's gaming and wagering activities under the Gaming Control Act and the repeal of legislation currently governing the operation of the TOTE, namely the Racing (Totalizator Betting) Act 1952 and the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004. This is achieved by creating a new Tasmanian Gaming Licence totalisator endorsement, for the conduct of pari-mutuel wagering. This is the same process that was used to provide for betting exchanges.

Secondly, it provides for a new totalisator operator, if the TOTE is sold, to be licensed and regulated under the Gaming Control Act. There are also changes to the endorsement fees and tax rates for sports-betting and fixed odds wagering that will facilitate the attraction to Tasmania of corporate bookmakers. The Government is confident that this will help to make the sale of TOTE more attractive.

Thirdly, the Bill addresses several unrelated matters that have been raised by Betfair. These matters have arisen out of administering the regulatory and tax arrangements specific to its betting exchange activities.

Madam President

Since the original TOTE operations were established, the world has changed substantially and the gaming and wagering industry in particular is now more complex and commercially oriented than ever before. At present, a self-regulatory framework is in place for totalisator operations. This essentially means two things. First, the business itself is responsible for regulatory oversight of its wagering activities. Second, in responding to new market opportunities, the TOTE is often reliant on the Government or Parliament either to approve changes to the rules under which it operates, or for legislative change to introduce new products or services. Given that the commercial world requires quick assessment and fast response times, the current arrangements can be a cumbersome and time consuming process. This can inhibit product development. It is also the case that Government, through the relevant Minister, and Parliament, should not be involved in normal commercial decisions of TOTE. In fact, in the absence of any need for policy change, this is not an appropriate role for either. In those cases where there is a relatively low level of change required, and changes in wagering rules is a good case in point, the Gaming Commission is more technically equipped to make such decisions.

Furthermore, as the Government intends to sell TOTE Tasmania to a private sector operator, this cannot be done while the current regulatory arrangements are in place. This would open the Government to unnecessary risk in terms of accountability. It would also look to be treating other gaming providers in the State differently to have a situation in which the self-regulation model was permitted to transfer from a Government-owned entity to a new owner.

Therefore, sale or no sale, the current arrangements for regulatory oversight are no longer appropriate.

Madam President

The Bill before the House will bring TOTE under the same regulatory framework as other gambling providers in Tasmania, such as Betfair and lottery providers.

This will introduce a number of new requirements on the TOTE in relation to probity and the management of problem gamblers and consumer protection. On balance, these requirements will be no more or less burdensome for the TOTE as they are for other licensed Tasmanian-based gaming providers.

There are key regulatory considerations that have been applied to the wagering business model and these are contained in the Bill. For example, under the Gaming Control Act the TOTE will:

- have certain key employees and technicians licensed;
- establish the ability for its customers to self-exclude, or for third party exclusion;
- enable its registered customers to be able to pre-commit loss limits;

- have all its wagering equipment and systems independently tested; and
- have independent oversight of its wagering rules, its agent agreements, and the operation of its retail outlets.

Madam President

The Gaming Control Act currently provides for a Tasmanian gaming licensee to hold endorsements separately for the activities of: sports betting; fixed odds wagering; major lotteries; simulated gaming; and betting exchanges.

The amendments in this Bill provide for a new totalisator endorsement and the necessary financial and regulatory provisions needed to govern this activity. However, while other endorsements are non-exclusive, the totalisator endorsement will be provided on an exclusive basis, this being consistent with the exclusivity of licensing totalisator operations in other jurisdictions.

Bringing the TOTE activities directly under the regulatory control of the Gaming Control Act does not require significant change to the way in which TOTE activities are governed at present. However, it does need to remove some key inconsistencies between current TOTE practices, and the way other gaming providers are regulated. Bearing this in mind, the Bill provides for some transitional arrangements so that the main changes required of the TOTE, for example the validation of its systems, or the licensing of its employees where required, won't have to be in place immediately the new licence takes effect.

Madam President

Along with its totalisator activities, the TOTE currently offers fixed odds (race wagering) and sports betting products. The Bill provides for TOTE to initially be deemed to hold a Tasmanian Gaming Licence to enable it to operate its full current range of wagering activities. This deemed licence will be for an indefinite period while held by the TOTE.

TOTE also offers racing products on behalf of third parties that are licensed in other jurisdictions. TOTE offers these third party products under agency agreements, which are very similar in nature to a franchise. For example, the TOTE currently participates in agreements with the operators of South African and Swedish international totalisator pools.

In order to deal with these agency arrangements the Bill provides for the establishment of what will be referred to as an agent endorsement. This will allow for the continued participation of TOTE in its current third party-agent arrangements.

Given that the TOTE does not conduct these activities itself, rather it is an agent under an agreement with the primary licensed operator, the annual licence fee for an agent endorsement will be set lower than other endorsements. The fee will be 5 000 fee units per annum (which is currently equivalent to $6 400), to reflect the lesser regulatory oversight required for this type of activity.

These arrangements have also been accommodated because they are relatively common in the wagering industry and in recognition of this these endorsements will be made available to other licensed operators.

Madam President

The Bill provides for the current use of retail outlets, most of which are not actually owned by TOTE, to continue to be operated in the same way. This includes stand-alone totalisator retail outlets (that is the TOTE branded shops); retail outlets in licensed premises (such as in hotels); and retail outlets at various race courses.

Rather than licence each outlet and its employees, the actions of the outlet owner will be taken to be the actions of the primary licence holder.

However, certain disciplinary provisions will apply directly to these owner/agents for breaches of conduct, such as allowing minors to gamble, for providing credit betting; for not enforcing wagering rules as may required by the Gaming Commission; and for not complying with player exclusion requirements.

Madam President

Transitional arrangements will apply for the certification and testing of systems and equipment. This will be achieved by deeming the TOTE's existing systems and equipment to be fully compliant for an initial two-year period. This will allow time for the progressive independent validation of the TOTE's IT infrastructure and any non-compliance issues to be addressed during that period.

Key TOTE employees requiring a special employee licence will be given a 12 month period to apply for a licence, during which time they will effectively be deemed to be licensed. Similar transitional arrangements will be given to the purchaser of TOTE, with 12 months for the testing of equipment and 12 months for the licensing of special employees.

Consistent with current practice, unclaimed winnings are held for 6 months by the TOTE. However after this period, the unclaimed winnings will be paid to the Treasurer as unclaimed monies, rather than kept by the TOTE, as currently occurs.

This requirement for the payment of unclaimed winnings to the Treasurer will also apply to all Tasmanian gaming licence holders.

Also, consistent with current business practices of TOTE, the amendments provide for the deduction of commissions from bets and for the rounding of dividends.

The roundings from dividends, which amounted to $4.4 million in 2007-08 for the TOTE, are to be retained by the totalisator operator.

Madam President

Country race meetings remain an important part of the racing industry in all jurisdictions, but particularly in Tasmania and we need to continue to have totalisator services at those meetings. While not profitable services for the TOTE to provide, the amendments in this Bill will require that where a Tasmanian racing club needs a totalisator to operate at a programmed race meeting, or betting only meeting, the TOTE (or its successor) will be required to conduct the totalisator on behalf of that club.

This ensures that the current arrangement continues whereby the TOTE conducts the totalisator on behalf of the club. However, the Government must strike a balance between the expectations of the community and the commercial viability of the TOTE, or its successor. There cannot be an expectation by clubs that they will be able to request totalisator arrangements for any number of meetings they may wish to conduct. Therefore a limit of 40 meetings has been set that must be conducted by the TOTE or the new operator.

This is 10 more Tasmanian race meetings than the total number currently conducted by the TOTE.

Madam President

I have detailed the key changes required to bring the TOTE under the regulatory oversight of the Tasmanian Gaming Commission. However, there are some issues that the Government has considered, which are of direct relevance to the sale of TOTE. I will now deal with those matters.

Once the TOTE is sold there will need to be a new licence to the new operator. The amendments in this Bill provide in the first instance for the TOTE to be deemed to hold an exclusive endorsement to cover totalisator operations in Tasmania; and this will not be transferable to the new operator. Therefore the new operator will need to be licensed in its own right by the Gaming Commission.

Potential purchasers of the TOTE will, therefore, need to apply for a Tasmanian Gaming Licence so that they can be tested against Tasmania's strict probity tests. The licence endorsed for totalisator betting can only be granted by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission with the approval of the Treasurer. Therefore, this will ensure that only the successful bidder is granted the licence endorsed for totalisator betting and this licence will be granted for an exclusive period of 15 years after the TOTE is sold.

In addition to being exclusive for 15 years, the new operator's licence will be for a term of 50 years, renewable for a further 49 years while the operator holds a totalisator endorsement and continues to meet the probity standards required of all Tasmanian-based gaming operators. In return, the Government will be requiring that the new owner establishes a corporate presence here in Tasmania for the period during which it holds the exclusive licence endorsement.

The licence term I have outlined is consistent with licences granted to totalisators in other jurisdictions.

Madam President

The tax arrangements for the new operator have been difficult to establish. On the one hand the Government wants to be able to demonstrate to the community that this wagering opportunity is valuable and can support the commitment to directly fund the Tasmanian racing industry. However, we also need to recognise that a tax-free environment will potentially generate the greatest sale value in the TOTE business. The balance must also take into account that the tax environment here in Tasmania for totalisator activities will need to remain broadly aligned with totalisator tax regimes in other jurisdictions.

Therefore, the Government has decided that a fixed annual levy, rather than a tax on turnover, will provide the right balance. The holder of the totalisator endorsement will be required to pay a fixed annual wagering levy of 4.7 million fee units (currently about $6 million per annum). No tax in respect of the turnover of its totalisator activities will be required.

By using a fixed levy, this will allow growth activities now and into the future to be effectively tax free. This means that the incentives will be right for the operator to grow the TOTE business.

Madam President

In addition to conducting a totalisator, potential new purchasers of the TOTE will most likely also wish to conduct the same or similar sports betting, fixed odds and other related third party race products as the TOTE currently does.

Sports betting, race wagering and agent endorsements will therefore be available to the purchaser of TOTE, but in recognition of the fixed annual levy the fees associated with these additional endorsements will be waived while these endorsements are held in conjunction with the totalisator licence.

Madam President

In preparation for the sale of TOTE I have been made aware of the possibly synergies in having corporate bookmakers establish in Tasmania alongside our totalisator operator. Corporate bookmakers are potential major customers for the TOTE through the use of TOTE to lay-off substantial bets on their books.

With corporate bookmakers basing their operations here in the State, this would enable further opportunities for joint business arrangements between the TOTE (or its successor) and corporate bookmakers.

However, since the introduction of fixed odds and sports betting licences under the Gaming Control Act there have been no applications for such licences because of Tasmania's uncompetitive taxation regime.

Currently, the most competitive taxation regime in the nation for these activities is in the Northern Territory, where the majority of fixed odds and sports betting operators are located.

Therefore, to make Tasmania the most competitive jurisdiction for corporate bookmakers, the proposed amendments abolish the current tax rates on race wagering of 1 per cent of turnover; and sports betting of 0.25 per cent of turnover.

In addition, the endorsement fees where both a sports betting and race wagering endorsement is held will be 200 000 fee units ($256 000) in total for both endorsements. In return, the Government will be requiring that corporate bookmakers that are licensed in Tasmania will need to establish their risk management teams in Tasmania so that the State gets the employment benefits associated with the concessions made on fees and taxes.

Madam President

Members will be aware that new governance arrangements for the Tasmanian racing industry, which came into effect in January 2009, transfer the TOTE's racing development functions to the new Tasmanian Racing Board – the TRB

By separating the TOTE from the governance of the racing industry, the proposed amendments in this Bill sever the long-standing funding nexus between the TOTE and the Tasmanian racing industry.

The current requirements for the TOTE to directly fund the Tasmanian Racing Board under the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004 will, therefore, be abolished. The amendments also abolish the need for tax and product levy fee revenue from Betfair to be appropriated to the TOTE under the Gaming Control Act and then passed-on to the racing industry.

The racing industry will now enjoy funding certainty through the Deed with Government and have growth revenue opportunities to it through sponsorship arrangements and the revenue it raises directly through product fees or race-fields levies.

Madam President

As I have said, a separate funding Deed will be finalised shortly between the Government and the TRB to directly fund the Tasmanian racing industry and I am pleased to inform Honourable Members that the that it has in-principle support from the TRB. I have tabled a draft of the Deed.

Under the Deed, which will have an initial term of 20 years, the TRB will receive at least $27 million in annual recurrent funding, and this will be indexed, together with a one-off capital payment of $40 million. The capital funding will become payable after the sale of TOTE has been completed.

There will also be a requirement in the Deed that the TRB must not reduce stakes money.

The new funding arrangements under the Deed will commence on repeal of the current funding arrangements under section 152 the Gaming Control Act and Division 3 of Part 2 of the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004.

Madam President

The other matters the Bill addresses are as follows.

Since the licensing of Betfair, race-fields publishing fees have been introduced in some jurisdictions, including Tasmania, as a means for the industry to directly receive payment from wagering operators for the use of racing products.

There is currently no nationally consistent race-fields publishing regime. Therefore, it is not possible to adjust the rate of product levy payable to the State Government by Betfair to accommodate the payment of any race-fields publishing fee paid to racing authorities in other jurisdictions. At present, our arrangements are in effect double taxing Betfair. This issue came to light on the introduction of the race-fields legislation in NSW. Betfair have raised this with me and I have agreed to address it.

The proposed amendments will adjust the tax base applying to Betfair to take into account the actual payment of publishing fees, product fees or levies in each jurisdiction, including where they may be required under Tasmania race-fields legislation. A head of power in the Gaming Control Act will enable the product levy tax base to be defined in a regulation. This will give flexibility to deal with unforeseen but legitimate needs for change as the racing environment and the use of direct product fees evolves further.

It is also recognised that for existing Tasmanian gaming licence holders (such as Betfair) or potential licence holders that may in the future require multiple endorsements, the total endorsement fees can be substantial (up to $1.5 million per annum for four or more endorsements). This can be a disincentive for establishing operations in Tasmania, or to expand existing activities.

The endorsement fees are largely in place to cover the substantial costs of regulating these activities, such as: requests to approve product changes; have approved and introduce new products; and validation of operator systems and financial controls. However, if the trend in future is for fewer licensed operators to increase the breadth of their gaming activities through holding multiple endorsements, there will be some economies of scale in regulating the same firm for multiple activities, compared with regulating different firms for individual endorsement activities.

In recognition of this it is, therefore, proposed to cap the total amount of endorsement fees to 450 000 fee units ($576 000 per annum) for any one licence holder with multiple endorsements.

Madam President

Bringing the TOTE under the Gaming Control Act will expand the scope of the Tasmanian Gaming Commission to include the regulation of totalisator betting.

This will increase the regulatory work-load of the Tasmanian Gaming Commission. The increased regulatory costs of the Commission will be recovered from the wagering levy and licence fees from wagering operators.

Madam President

In conclusion, the TOTE operating environment has changed significantly from when its activities were first established and licensed. This, together with the Government's intention to sell the TOTE, makes it important that the TOTE, or a new operator, is appropriately regulated. The community needs the confidence that all of our wagering and gaming activities under licence here in Tasmania are conducted to the high standards of regulation and probity for which this state has gained significant recognition. The Government, on behalf of the community, will want the peace of mind that the regulation of the totalisator operator falls under the independent scrutiny of the Gaming Commission. The Government also wants the confidence that the risks associated with its activities in an increasingly complex and rapidly expanding commercial environment fall to the owners of the business. They are, after all, best placed to manage those risks.

The racing industry also wants certainty. It wants certainty in its funding streams so that it can confidently plan future development of the Tasmanian racing product. This will avoid it having to rely on the revenue risks associated with a direct reliance on the performance of TOTE and various tax revenue streams.

Madam President

The Gaming Control Amendment Bill will achieve these outcomes.

Let me finish by advising Honourable members that consultation has been undertaken with the TOTE in the development of the new regulatory framework and the TOTE supports the transition to regulation under the Gaming Control Act provided by this Bill.

Madam President

I commend the Bill to the House.

Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009

Notes On Clauses

- Clause 1      Short title.
- Clause 2      The Act will commence on a day to be proclaimed to allow time for the Tasmanian Gaming Commission to put in place systems and process to be able to regulate the TOTE.
- Clause 3      Provides that the Gaming Control Act 1993 is the principal Act.
- Clause 4      Provides for a range of new definitions required in the Act which among other things, provide for the TOTE (or its purchaser) to be able to conduct its current wagering business.
- Clause 5      An associate includes someone who has a financial interest in the licensed gaming or wagering operator under the Act.
- This amendment to section 4 is required to ensure that a customer is not taken to be an associate, and therefore subject to investigation, by reason only that the totalizator has provided the customer with a rebate or discount on the normal commission taken out by the totalizator operator.
- Clause 6      Amends section 76B to remove the current exemption of TOTE Tasmania from requiring a Tasmanian gaming licence.
- The TOTE will now require a Tasmanian gaming licence under the Act.
- Clause 7      Clarifies that the endorsement on the licence must show where the wagering activity occurs (i.e. the equipment and infrastructure that facilitates the wagering activity) and that such activity can only be located at an approved location.
- This is achieved by reference to an approved location.
- Clause 8      A grammatical improvement only to an existing provision.
- Clause 9      Clarifies that a sports betting endorsement is required for the conduct of sports betting (as opposed to being just an agent).
- Omits the reference to "Tasmania" as the current drafting is unclear and potentially prevents a sports betting operator from offering sports bets on events held outside Tasmania (such as the Australian Tennis open) to persons physically present at the operator's Tasmanian premises (approved location).

- Clause 10 Replaces the term “fixed odds” wagering endorsement with “race wagering” endorsement. This enables a broader definition than fixed odds to be covered under this endorsement.
- However the definition of race wagering in section 3 excludes brokered wagering (betting exchange) or totalizator wagering which are covered under other endorsements.
- Ensures that a race wagering endorsement is required for the conduct of race wagering (as opposed to being just an agent).
- Clause 11 Fixes an omission in section 76V to a reference to paragraph (e).
- Clause 12 Creates new section 76VB to establish a new totalizator endorsement for the conduct of totalizator betting, and the accepting of wagers from approved outlets.
- Creates a new section 76VC to establish an agent endorsement. This allows Tasmanian gaming licence holders to enter into agent arrangements with third party gaming and wagering providers based outside of Tasmania.
- For example, providing an internet portal from the Tasmanian gaming licence holder’s web site to the business partner’s website. An agent endorsement can be disallowed by the Gaming Commission if the business partner is considered to be an unsuitable person to be associated with.
- An agent endorsement is not required for arrangements with third party gaming or wagering operators based in Tasmania because the third party operator will already be licensed under the Gaming Control Act.
- Clause 13 Amends section 76W to clarify that a prescribed endorsement cannot be used to conduct an activity that would require a totalizator endorsement.
- Clause 14 This amendment clarifies that a licence can be for a longer term than 5 years under section 76Z, if it is provided for elsewhere in the Act (i.e. under s76ZEE). – this is the second totalizator endorsement only, which will be issued to the purchaser of the TOTE.
- Clause 15 This provides that in the case of the TOTE, it is authorised to transfer its licence to a wholly owned subsidiary of the TOTE. This may be a necessary step before the TOTE is sold, i.e. its subsidiary is sold.

Clause 16 This is required because the current legislation does not provide a process for varying an existing licence, only the conditions of a licence.

The Gaming Commission currently has to cancel and reissue a licence if a variation such as a change of address is needed.

Clause 17 This provides that when the Tasmanian gaming licence with the second totalizator endorsement (the licence issued to the purchaser of the TOTE) ends under section 76ZEE, the Gaming Commission cannot refuse to renew the licence unless there has been no breaches and the holder of the licence or its associates are suitable.

This is to give greater certainty for potential purchasers of the TOTE as the normal renewal process set out in section 76ZC does not state the reasons a licence would not be renewed.

Clauses 18,19,20 Repeals definitions and sections that relate to registered player exclusions for betting exchange operators and will now be incorporated into a broader "TGL exclusion" process in Div 7, subdivision 2 of this part, (i.e. the exclusions provisions will include all Tasmanian gaming licence holders such as a totalizator).

Customers that wish to self exclude from a venue (including a totalizator customer) can still do so under the existing exclusions provisions under Part 5 Div 3.

Clause 21 Inserts a new Part 4A, Division 5A relating to totalizator operations. The Division applies to a Tasmanian gaming licence with a totalizator endorsement.

Provides that on “changeover day” (the day the amendment Act commences) that the TOTE is deemed to hold a Tasmanian gaming licence (“the transitional licence”) with the initial and only totalizator endorsement. The TOTE is also deemed to hold an agent endorsement, a race wagering endorsement and a sports betting endorsement [s76ZED(1)].

Provides that the TOTE can transfer its licence to a wholly owned subsidiary of the TOTE with the approval of the Minister. (This may be required as part of the sale process). [s76ZED(2)]

Clarifies that the holder of the initial and second totalizator endorsement is not required to be a registered as a bookmaker and pay taxes under the Racing Regulation Act 2004.

Provides that upon a “terminating event” (the TOTE or its subsidiary is sold either by shares or as a business), a second totalizator endorsement can be granted by the Gaming Commission with the written approval of the Treasurer [s76ZEE(1)].

The second totalizator endorsement is for a 15 year exclusivity period. ( i.e. only one totalizator endorsement is granted for a period up until 15 years after the terminating event).

Clause 21 The exclusive totalizator endorsement is authorised under the Act for the purposes of the Trade Practices Act 1974 and the Competition Policy Reform (Tasmania) Act 1996.

The Tasmanian gaming licence with a totalizator endorsement is granted for 50 years renewable for a further 49 years [s76ZEE (2)].

Provides for special conditions to apply to a totalizator endorsement similar to conditions that apply to a betting exchange endorsement that relate to the management of wagering funds, establishment of wagering rules and which rules can be disallowed by the Commission.

Provides that a totalizator operator must conduct programmed race meetings for race clubs (as currently occurs by TOTE as a service to clubs to enhance their special race meetings). A limit of 40 meetings is set, about 10 more than currently required. [s76ZEF(L)].

Provides for the holder of a totalizator endorsement to be entitled to commission (the take out rate from each totalizator pool) in respect of totalizator betting, up to a maximum rate as the Commission authorises. [s76ZEG]

Provides for the calculating and paying of dividends, and for the rounding of dividends as is current practice in all jurisdictions. [s76ZEH]

For example, under section 76ZEH(2), a dividend of $1.32 has a fraction of 2 cents so the fraction becomes zero i.e. dividend rounded to $1.30. A dividend of $1.35 has a fraction of 5 cents so the fraction becomes 5 cents, i.e. dividend rounded to $1.35. A dividend of $1.38 has a fraction of 8 cents so the fraction becomes 5 cents i.e. dividend rounded to $1.35.

In 2007-08, the amount of fractions retained by the TOTE under this method was $4.4 million.

Provides that certain key employees and technicians of the TOTE or the purchaser of the TOTE are deemed to hold special employees or technicians licences for an initial 12 month period. [s76ZEI and s76ZEJ]

Provides for the TOTE's existing wagering equipment and systems to be compliant for an initial two year period and its control systems (operating manuals) for six months, or longer as prescribed. [s76ZEK and s76ZEL].

For the purchaser of the TOTE, the deeming period is 12 months for equipment and six months for control systems. A shorter period applies as the expectation is that the new operator will have existing systems that is likely to have already been assessed by another regulator.

- Clause 22 Inserts new heading Part 4A, Division 7, Sub-division 1 “General Protection”.
- Clause 23 Registered players of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder can establish self limits on the amount wagered. This is already in place for registered players of Betfair. [s76ZK]
- This provision gives the TOTE or its purchaser a transitional period of 12 months to establish the necessary software and systems changes before this requirement takes effect.
- Clause 24 Replaces the current exclusions provisions for Tasmanian gaming licence holders in the Act that currently apply only to registered players of betting exchanges [s76ZDH to s76ZDK] with the general provisions that will apply to registered players of any holder of a Tasmanian gaming licence, including a totalizator. [sub div 2 s76ZNA to s76ZNG]
- This provision gives the TOTE or its purchaser a transitional period of 6 months to establish the necessary software and systems changes before this requirement takes effect [s76ZNG].
- Customers that wish to self exclude from a retail outlet can do so under existing provisions under Part 5 Div 3.
- Clause 25 As an account can still be active even if no wager has been made for 2 years e.g. monies deposited or withdrawn. “If no wager has been recorded” is replaced with “if no activity is recorded”.
- Clause 26 Amends section 76ZR to define “prize” as including winnings so as to include, for example, wagering winnings from a totalizator.
- Clause 27 Inserts new section 76ZRA which requires unclaimed monetary prizes or dividends in respect of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder to be paid monthly to the Treasurer after a period of 6 months.

Clause 28 Inserts new sections 76ZZ, 76ZZAAA and 76ZZAAB to allow a Tasmanian gaming licence holder with a totalizator endorsement to establish approved outlets (i.e. TOTE's retail agencies such as in a hotel or a standalone shop) to accept wagers on behalf of the licence holder.

Rather than licence the outlets, the actions of an agent are taken to be the actions of a licence holder unless the licence holder has acted in good faith.

Disciplinary action under the Act that would apply to licence holder may also be brought against the agent for such matters "prescribed offences" i.e. providing credit, not enforcing rules, not complying with player exclusions provisions or accepting bets from a minor.

Approved outlets are allowed unless disallowed by the Commission (for example if the outlet or the agent is considered to be unsuitable). It will be a requirement to give 10 days notice to the Commission of an intention to open or close an outlet. A totalizator operator will have to give 3 days notice if there is a change in occupation of the premises.

Clause 29 Extends the ability to operate a trading account with debit and credit balances to a totalizator operator. [s76ZZAA]

Trading accounts are generally used by large customers that need to make large wagers at short notice to lay off bets for example.

The licence holder accepts any financial risk of enabling a large customer to operate a trading account.

Approval from the Gaming Commission is required to operate a trading account.

Clause 30 This provision clarifies that a licensed provider (which includes a totalizator) can give its registered players discounts.

Registered players are players that operate a wagering account with the operator.

Volume discounts are given to large customers of the TOTE on the take out rate (commission on turnover).

- Clause 31 Amends section 76ZZC to clarify a prohibition on special employee wagering only in the course of that employment applies only while the employee is on duty. Thereby allowing the employee to wager with its employer when off-duty.
- TOTE employees can already bet with TOTE whilst off duty and there are no grounds to restrict this under the Gaming Control Act.
- This is also consistent with employees of a licensed premises gaming licence holder (i.e. a hotel with gaming machines or Keno) where there is no restriction on gaming staff gaming while off duty. [s56(3)]
- Clauses 32 & 33 This provision requires that gaming equipment and control systems used by Tasmanian gaming licence holders must comply with gaming machine standards as set by the Gaming Commission. [s76ZZG and s76ZZI]
- Clause 34 Clarifies that the holder of a foreign games permit cannot conduct the activities authorised by a Tasmanian gaming licence.
- That is, a foreign games permit does not allow the permit holder to conduct a totalizator for which a Tasmanian gaming licence would be required with a totalizator endorsement. [s77J]
- Clause 35 Amends section 77V to expand the existing provision for the approval of certain contracts by the Commission to include licensed providers (any Tasmanian gaming licence holder's contracts including totalizator contracts).
- Approval is required to ensure fairness, probity and to ensure that any of the contract requirements would not be in breach of Act.
- This would cover contracts between the TOTE and its retail agents.
- Clause 36 Amends section 91 to expand the coverage of the Commission's power to establish rules to include any licensed gaming or wagering operator (including a totalizator).
- Clause 37 Amends section 92 to expand requirements relating to availability of rules to include licensed providers (any Tasmanian gaming licence holder including a totalizator).

- Clause 38 Expands the existing provision enabling the removal of persons from a venue by a venue operator to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder. [s99]
- This will cover approved outlets such as a TOTE retail outlet.
- Clause 39 Expands the existing provision enabling the detention of suspected persons in a venue by an inspector to apply to retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder. [s100]
- This will cover approved outlets such as a TOTE retail outlet.
- Clause 40 Expands the coverage of existing restrictions relating to minors under section 113 to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 41 Amends section 125 to expand the functions and powers of the Commission to include the regulation of wagering activities.
- Clause 42 Expands the coverage of the existing provisions under section 127A relating to inspectors to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 43 Amends section 130 relating to the entry onto premises by police officers or Gaming Commission inspectors to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 44 Expands the coverage of the investigation of complaints under section 132 from patrons at a venue or premises to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 45 Expands the coverage of the powers of inspectors under section 133 to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 46 Expands the coverage of offences relating to inspectors under section 135 by including “wagering” in addition to gaming.
- Clause 47 Expands the provision that enables a betting exchange operator to keep records at a place other than at an approved location (for example in another jurisdiction if there are other premises outside of Tasmania) to all Tasmanian gaming licence holders (including a totalizator).

Clause 48 Corrects an incorrect reference section 77 should read section 77V.

Clause 49 Replaces the reference to a “fixed odds endorsement” to a “race wagering endorsement”.

Establishes an annual endorsement fee of 350 000 fee units ($448 000 in 2008-09) for a totalizator endorsement.

Establishes an annual endorsement fee of 5 000 fee units ($6 400 in 2008-09) for an agent endorsement.

Establishes a limit of 200 000 fee units ($256 000) where both a sports betting and race wagering endorsement is held. This is to be competitive with other states in respect of corporate bookmaker licence fees.

In other cases other than above where multiple endorsement fees are held the endorsement fees are capped at 450 000 fee units ($576 000).

For example:

Sports betting only - 200 000 fee units under s148A(a)

Sports betting and race wagering - 200 000 fee units (instead of 400 000 fee units) under s148A(f)

Sports betting and race wagering and agent - 205 000 fee units under s148A(f) and (dc)

Sports betting, race wagering, betting exchange and agent - 450 000 fee units (instead of 755 000 fee units) under s148A(g)

Waives the requirement to pay totalizator, race wagering, sports betting and agent endorsement fees in the case of the TOTE or its purchaser while a totalizator endorsement is held. [s148A(5)]

Clause 50 Repeals provisions relating to unclaimed winnings of Tasmanian gaming licence holders as this is now dealt with under section 76ZRA.

Clause 51 Amends section 150A by clarifying that taxation only applies where the section so provides. This clarifies that in the case of totalizator, race wagering and sports betting endorsements where no tax will be levied, section 150A does not apply.

Abolishes current taxation provisions relating to fixed odds and sports betting. (1.0 per cent of turnover for fixed odds and 0.25 per cent of turnover for sports betting).

Clause 52 Provides that betting exchange commission that is subject to the payment of the 20 per cent product levy under section 150AC is to be determined in regulations.

This is required to adjust the commission that is subject to the 20 per cent product levy in the case where the betting exchange operator is required to also pay a product fee or race fields publication fee to a racing authority for the same event.

Regulations are being prepared to commence when the Gaming Control Amendment Bill commences.

Clause 53 Establishes the requirement that a totalizator operator pay a fixed wagering levy of 4.7 million fee units or $6.016 million per annum. (a fee unit is $1.28 for 2008-09).

Payment of the wagering levy is each financial year.

The levy is pro rata if the operator commences the licence, or the licence ends, part way through a financial year.

If a licence with a totalizator endorsement is surrendered the Treasurer may provide a partial refund.

Clause 54 Repeals section 152 so it removes the requirement that revenue from a betting exchange operator is appropriated to the TOTE to fund the Tasmanian racing industry.

This severs the nexus between TOTE revenues and racing industry funding under the Gaming Control Act. A separate deed between the Government and the new Tasmanian Racing Board will be established for the Government to directly fund the industry.

Clause 55 Amends section 153A by replacing the reference to a "fixed odds endorsement" to a "race wagering endorsement" in respect of a gaming and wagering guarantee.

Exempts the requirement to pay a wagering guarantee by the TOTE while the TOTE is a government owned business.

A wagering guarantee is required in the case of race wagering and sports betting as there is a potential risk the operator can make losses on these products.

Clause 56 Repeals the regulation making powers relating to the guarantee provided by a betting exchange operator to make up any shortfall in funding to the racing industry because of the impact of the betting exchange operations on TOTE's funding.

This regulation is not required as funding will no longer be provided by TOTE, rather be provided directly by the Government.

Provides for regulations to deal with any transitional arrangements if required (such as in connection with bringing TOTE under the Gaming Control Act).

Clause 57 Inserts in Schedule 5 of the Act a transitional provision that deems a Tasmanian gaming licence with betting exchange endorsement to also hold an agents endorsement.

This allows Betfair to continue participation with any existing agent arrangements on commencement of this Act.

Clause 58 Repeals the Racing (Totalizator Betting) Act 1952. The Act that currently regulates TOTE's wagering activities; and Repeals the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004. That Act sets out TOTE's current funding obligations to the Tasmanian Racing Board.

APPENDIX 3

THE JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT, RESOURCES AND DEVELOPMENT MET IN COMMITTEE ROOM 2, PARLIAMENT HOUSE, HOBART, ON FRIDAY 6 MARCH 2009.

---

Mr ANTHONY MURRAY, GENERAL MANAGER, RACING SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF INFRASTRUCTURE, ENERGY AND RESOURCES, WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Tony , I think that you have given evidence to parliamentary committees before so you are aware of privilege so I do not need to go through that. Thank you very much for appearing today. You have our terms of reference which is to inquire into the proposed sale of TOTE Tasmania by the Government of Tasmania and the old catchall of any other matters incidental thereto. I would like to invite you to make a presentation to the committee and then I would ask committee members to ask any questions they feel relevant.

Mr MURRAY - Mr Chairman, I have very little to say in my opening other than to clarify my role. I am the General Manager of Racing Services Tasmania. I am also appointed to the statutory role of Director of Racing under the Racing Regulation Act. My primary role is that I am in charge of, responsible for, the integrity of racing in Tasmania.

CHAIR - That is all you would like to say at this stage?

Mr MURRAY - Yes.

CHAIR - Are there questions from members of the committee to Mr Murray?

Mr HARRISS - In those roles which we understand you hold, Tony, in terms of integrity, probity and the like, can you describe to the committee what your beliefs are as to the sale of TOTE versus retaining TOTE in public ownership and the impacts that might have from your perspective one way or the other?

Mr MURRAY - From my role under the act, that is the integrity of the racing industry, I have no direct jurisdiction over the operations of a wagering operator such as TOTE. So I have no real opinion in terms of the integrity in terms of the sale because it does not currently come under my jurisdiction. Regardless of if there is a sale or not it still would not come under my jurisdiction so it will not affect the manner in which I do my business or my area of responsibility.

Mr HARRISS - So what cross-pollination, if any, then between your roles, your organisation, as to probity/integrity do you have with TOTE particularly given that wagering is one of the areas within any racing industry, no matter what code, that can be compromised?

Mr MURRAY - Under the act I have no responsibility or jurisdiction under TOTE. The only way there would be some cross-pollination is, for example, stewards from time to time may seek some information from a wagering operator in relation to activities on a particular race. If the question is the cross-pollination between my role as director of racing and the governance of TOTE, there is no cross-pollination

Mr GUTWEIN - Just to clarify that, in regard to matters of integrity with TOTE as it currently stands, you have no role or responsibility whatsoever?

Mr MURRAY - No, I do not.

Mr GUTWEIN - Who does?

Mr MURRAY - At this stage I think it is better asked of Mr Coleman. My understanding is that it falls within the realm of a cross between self-regulation and some form of relationship with Treasury, although I think the minister has indicated that TOTE may well come under the Gaming Control Act - I think he is looking at that into the future. That is more appropriately a matter for the minister.

Mr BOOTH - Have you had discussions with the minister, the Treasurer or anyone in government regarding the proposed sale?

Mr MURRAY - In relation to the proposed sale, no.

Mr BOOTH - So no-one has talked to you about it at all?

Mr MURRAY - No, the only discussion I had was when the minister called me aside at the Devonport Cup this year - which, from memory, was 7 January - and advised me that the next day he was going to announce the sale of TOTE. That is the first and only conversation he has had with me in relation to the sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - How long have you been involved with TOTE, Tony, in your current position?

Mr MURRAY - I was appointed in August 2003, so five-and-a-half years.

Mr WILKINSON - How long have you been involved in the racing industry?

Mr MURRAY - I have been involved in the racing industry for 23 years. Up until now it has been a regulatory role in New South Wales across the Department of Gaming and Racing. I was a TAB agent for a little while and I worked in Harness Racing New South Wales as racing manager and deputy CEO. I have worked generally in racing regulation for a period of approximately 23 years.

Mr WILKINSON - So it would be fair to say that you have a good understanding of the racing industry?

Mr MURRAY - I would hope so.

Mr WILKINSON - Was that understanding of the racing industry at all tapped into by the Government in order to ask whether they should or shouldn't sell TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Not at all?

Mr MURRAY - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Were you aware of any conversations prior to, say, 4 December in relation to selling the TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - We went through a restructure process last year, from August through to November or December. During that restructure process the matter of the sale of TOTE was raised at the forums we conducted.

Mr WILKINSON - When were the forums?

Mr MURRAY - There were two main workshops: one was at Bellerive on 26 September and one was at Launceston on 1 October at the racetrack, so we had two workshops for the whole of the industry.

Mr WILKINSON - And part of the workshop time was spent on whether TOTE should or shouldn't be sold?

Mr MURRAY - No, the workshop was involving the restructure of the industry. There was a presentation by myself on integrity matters, a presentation by Mr Coleman on commercial matters. It was facilitated by Global Value Management and they had various sessions within the workshops. One of them was about the issues confronting the industry at the moment and some persons at each workshop raised the possible sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - Was the Treasurer there?

Mr MURRAY - No, he was not.

Mr WILKINSON - When whoever it was raised the possible sale of TOTE obviously that was spoken about, whether it should or shouldn't be sold.

Mr MURRAY - There was some general discussion. Mr Coleman was looking after the integrity matters and in his response - and again I am only going from memory - he said something along the lines of 'TOTE is not currently for sale'.

Mr WILKINSON - Are you aware of any business case that has been prepared in relation to the sale of TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Have you seen any business case?

Mr MURRAY - No, I have not.

If I may, Mr Chairman, I didn't finish Mr Booth's question. He asked me had I had any conversations and I was discussing those workshops. During those workshops and during the consultation the issue of TOTE being sold was raised and was also raised in the media. At that time I had a private conversation with Mr Coleman and asked him, 'What is going on here?' and he said words to the effect, 'It has always been my belief since taking over the role that TOTE would be better in private hands'. He also made a comment to the effect, 'TOTE could be sold regardless of this restructure'. Then we followed up from there and basically said this restructure is not about the sale of TOTE. I asked him that question privately and he said no, the restructure is about a whole range of other issues and challenges facing the industry. We returned to the focus of progressing with the consultation for the restructuring ultimately to make a recommendation to the minister. That is the only conversation I had in terms of the sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - Does the restructuring make it easier to sell TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - Mr Coleman's advice to me was no.

Mr BOOTH - Did you get the impression that Mr Coleman's view was that it would be sold regardless?

Mr MURRAY - No, from my recollection I cannot recall him saying that, no.

Mr BOOTH - When the Treasurer told you on 7 January that it was to be sold, can you detail that conversation?

Mr MURRAY - He just called me aside and said, 'Just to let you know I am going to announce tomorrow the intention to sell TOTE'.

Mr BOOTH - What was your reaction to that?

Mr MURRAY - I said to him words to the effect, 'The perception of the industry will be the restructure was about the sale of TOTE'. He responded to me with words to the effect, 'Well, it wasn't, Tony, it was to do with all these other issues we had to deal with'. I said to him, words to the effect, 'That is my understanding and I approached the restructure along the lines it was needed for the racing industry and had nothing to do with the sale of TOTE'.

Mr BOOTH - Did you ask him what day he woke up in the morning and decided to sell TOTE, like what that process was?

Mr MURRAY - No, I did not, it was a very brief conversation.

Mr BOOTH - You must have been somewhat shocked, without putting words in your mouth.

Mr MURRAY - I do not think that shocked is the word. I have worked for government for the last 23 years and governments of the day of whatever political persuasion are entitled to make policy decisions. I have seen governments of all persuasions make all sorts of decisions, so I really have no reaction to it other than to appreciate the fact that he had told me before it was publicly announced.

Mr BOOTH - Given the undertakings that they had made during the consultation in Hobart and Launceston, it is completely opposed to what people were advised at those meetings. Is that correct?

Mr MURRAY - At those meetings, as I said, Mr Coleman, answered the questions along the lines TOTE was not for sale. My understanding is that at that time it was not for sale. Again, it is probably a question to ask Mr Coleman.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, I am just trying to see if there was any other indication of how long they had been intending or what the process was, whether there was some other consultation.

Mr MURRAY - Not with myself and not to my knowledge.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mr Murray, with regard to the conversation, you indicated that you had a private conversation with Mr Coleman during the process that was occurring last year. Was either on either of those dates, the 26 February the forum in Hobart or the October one in Launceston?

Mr MURRAY - It was separate to those two. It was when the matter became quite relevant within the media.

Mr GUTWEIN - Can you think roughly when that was?

Mr MURRAY - Some time between those two dates. I cannot put dates on it but there was some front page back page news/allegations about it and it was at that stage that we had a private conversation.

Mr BOOTH - You saw those reports so did you phone him?

Mr MURRAY - I did not specifically make an appointment to see him it was just at the time were we preparing for the next presentation or meeting I raised it with him. My concern was it was taking the focus off what we were trying to do. This restructure was really important for the future of the Tasmanian industry. My concern was that the media attention on TOTE and the focus on TOTE were taking away from the real purpose of the restructure.

Mr GUTWEIN - Whether you are prepared to answer this or not, you said, I think, that you have around 23 years' experience in the racing industry?

Mr MURRAY - That is correct.

Mr GUTWEIN - Do you have an opinion as to whether or not the sale of TOTE, taking it away from government ownership and placing it in private hands, would be a good thing or a bad thing for the industry?

Mr MURRAY - From a professional viewpoint my role is that of integrity, regulation. I do not have the full facts or the full knowledge of what it would possibly bring to the industry. From a professional viewpoint, I do not think that I have enough information to make an informed comment. From a personal viewpoint, I will make two comments. As I said earlier, I believe the Government of the day is entitled to make decisions in relation to assets, but I also think the racing industry of the day, under these circumstances, is entitled to seek some guarantees from government in terms of future funding.

Mr BOOTH - What about from a probity point of view? You mentioned that you do not have and role in probity arrangements within TOTE and its currently government enterprise. From that point of view, I guess the implication is that you are satisfied or you do not, in fact, have to look. Do you see that there is a threat in the future, or even currently, in terms of the potential for race rigging or other probity issues, particularly if it fell into private hands, that an owner could get inside information about the size of the pools or other information that would not be generally available or to manipulate races by the commissions and so forth?

Mr MURRAY - Race rigging in itself would not fall under the domain of TOTE. A wagering operator's pools, for example, are public knowledge. Anyone can go into the Internet at any stage. If we are rigging, stewards are in charge of race meeting. That is my area of expertise. We look after the integrity of racing, and whether TOTE be in private or public hands would not impact on the way that we ensure that racing is conducted with the highest level of integrity.

Mr BOOTH - Would you not see that integrity or probity issues would be any different whether it was in private hands or in the current arrangements?

Mr MURRAY - Not for the conduct of racing, no.

Mr GUTWEIN - I am wondering, Mr Murray, if you have a view on the type or length of guarantee that might be required under a sale. Obviously the industry benefits to the tune of tens of millions of dollars. In fact, I think the chairman's report indicated $23 million to $25 million in the last year alone. If a sale were to proceed, those guarantees, what time frame would you think was reasonable?

Mr MURRAY - I think that is a matter properly for the racing industry itself. I would not offer a view. One could argue a whole variety of time periods, but it is not a matter for which I have the current knowledge or expertise to offer a fully informed opinion.

Mr WILKINSON - You did mention your personal view was that if it was to be sold there should be some guarantees. What guarantees should be given?

Mr MURRAY - I said my personal view, just for clarity, was that the racing industry should be able to negotiate some form of guarantee in terms of future funding levels. I would assume the racing industry needs some guarantees for surety into the future. Then I suppose you come back to the current situation. They already have some guarantees through the legislation of what TOTE has to pay the industry and so it comes down to what guarantees they would have under a sale as opposed to without a sale.

Mr WILKINSON - Are you throwing the ball by saying that there should be guarantees? I am trying to find out what guarantees. I know you are probably in a difficult position.

Mr MURRAY - It is not my area of responsibility or expertise. Things we are talking about are stake money, breeding schemes and programming race dates. None of that is under my current area of jurisdiction or responsibility. I do not think it is appropriate that I make a comment because I do not have all the information and I am not fully informed.

Mr WILKINSON - Who do we ask?

Mr MURRAY - I would suggest that Mr Coleman or the racing industry itself obviously is appearing before the committee, so I am sure they will have some ideas to provide the committee.

Mr BOOTH - Given your experience in the industry outside of the probity arrangements, your history in the industry and as a personal comment, not in your role as director, what would you say could be the consequences on the industry if there were not those guarantees, hypothecated, if you like, or part of the legislation in terms of sale inquiry requiring some prescribed levels of support? For example, if an owner decided to simply not provide any support, what would the consequences be in your view?

Mr MURRAY - Obviously the racing industry depends on funding but we need to understand that the change in the landscape of wagering throughout Australia and internationally means that racing has to become more self-sufficient. We need to be exploring other market to sell our products - for example, Asian markets. The racing industry traditionally has relied upon guarantees, upon handouts through TABs and arrangements through governments more so than ever before. The racing industry must learn to fend for itself and seek other sources of revenue. That is one part of the revenue and the guarantee but they also need to go out and source other areas of revenue. That is what this restructure was all about and that is why I think it is really important to go through the reason for the restructure. The racing industry has never faced so many challenges. We look at corporate bookmakers, betting exchanges, race fields legislation, the breakdown of the gentleman's agreement - traditional sources of revenue are being usurped by new sources of revenue through race fields legislation, selling your product overseas, trying to gain sponsorship and so on. There is a whole range of things facing the racing industry. The guarantee through a TAB or government is but one area. The racing industry must learn to be more self-sufficient. This restructure about taking away from the three code councils and putting into one professional Tasmanian racing board was about meeting the challenges facing the industry and being able to promote and maximise the revenue back to the industry, which wasn't possible under the old structure.

Mr WILKINSON - The restructure was done with consultation with all the bodies in the industry, wasn't it?

Mr MURRAY - Yes. As I said, Mr Coleman and I held two workshops, one in the north and one in the south. We met with the three code councils, we held individual meetings with clubs and associations as required, so there was an extensive consultation before we went through.

Mr WILKINSON - So there was extensive consultation with the industry itself before it went through?

Mr MURRAY - Yes, there was.

Mr WILKINSON - And you believe that that was important?

Mr MURRAY - Yes, it was essential.

Mr WILKINSON - Why do you believe it was important?

Mr MURRAY - I think in any sphere of endeavour, whether it be government or private, you need to take the views of your stakeholders into account before you make any significant changes to a structure.

Mr WILKINSON - Would you suggest that there is a significant change in that now TOTE, if it is to be sold, is going out of the hands of government into the private sphere?

Mr MURRAY - No, I don't think it makes any difference. My concern with the talk about the TOTE sale during the restructure was that it was going to take the industry's eye off the real issues. The restructure, certainly from my viewpoint, had absolutely nothing to do with the sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - I hear what you're saying. You may have misunderstood the question. I accept what you are saying, that there was extensive consultation had with the industry prior to the restructure. Let's give it a tick. The reason for that is because it was necessary to keep the stakeholders informed as to what was taking place. In relation to the proposed sale of TOTE, would you accept that the stakeholders weren't spoken to, weren't kept in the loop, as they were kept in the loop with the restructure?

Mr MURRAY - They are two separate issues. In terms of the restructure, which was under my joint control, we made sure that there was extensive consultation. I am not aware of any consultation the minister has or has not had. All I am aware of is his announcement of the proposal to sell TOTE. I am also aware that that is dependent upon being passed by both Houses of Parliament, hence this committee will be given the opportunity to hear the views of industry. I am not aware; I can't sit here and say I am aware of the consultation that has taken place.

Mr WILKINSON - But you would be aware whether some consultation had taken place? I have had an extensive involvement in sport in a number of different fields. When I was in one field I was aware of what was taking place in another field just with the general conversation that flows. When I was in charge of Football Tasmania, I was aware of what the players were thinking because of general conversations that take place after a game or in the world of football at the time, likewise cricket or swimming. Are you really saying that you are so insulated in your position that you are not aware whether conversations were taking place with stakeholders in relation to the sale of TOTE or not?

Mr MURRAY - I am not aware of any conversations with stakeholders in relation to the sale of TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - I am not actually conceding that there was agreement in full knowledge by the industry codes to the racing restructure but setting that aside, is it a fair thing to say that the agreement that you achieved ultimately for a restructure was based on the understanding of all of those participants in the consultation processes that in fact TOTE would not be sold? Had the Treasurer announced they were going to sell TOTE during that consultation, what I am suggesting is that the outcome might have been different in terms of an agreement.

Mr MURRAY - That is a hypothetical question, which is difficult to answer. All I can say is that when we went to the workshops there were a number of issues raised and within the report of the workshops the sale of TOTE was but one of a number of issues. I think even in the report it prioritised the issues in terms of the ranking from the opinions of the workshop. Again, from memory, TOTE certainly wasn't high on the list; it wasn't number one, from memory. My point is that there was a whole range of other issues which the industry acknowledged - and I went through them before. Hypothesising, it is difficult to know whether the industry would have been any different. I think what they were seeking at the workshops was some assurance of future funding if TOTE was sold rather than questioning whether TOTE should be sold.

Mr BOOTH - Who owned it, basically?

Mr MURRAY - The future funding. What they were saying as an issue at the workshops was - and again this is just from memory - not will TOTE be sold or not, but what guarantees will we be provided if TOTE was sold? So to hypothesise and answer on the basis that there are some guarantees for future funding if TOTE was to be sold, I don't think it would have changed the opinion of the industry in supporting the restructure.

Mr BOOTH - However, I suppose then a corollary of that is that any sale would need to provide exactly the same levels or greater support into the future indefinitely than they already get through the current arrangements. Submissions that people have put to me are generally based around the culture of racing being destroyed as a result of changed arrangements. The Asian racing situation, for example, is raising some serious concerns in regard to the culture of racing.

Mr MURRAY - In my 23 years in racing the most difficult thing to do in the racing industry is to change culture. The racing industry are the most wonderful people you can ever come across but they're very much traditionalists and racing is very much based on tradition and that is how it should be. It is very hard to change the culture of people. I would think, hypothesising, if TOTE was sold and the guaranteed levels of funding met with the approval of the industry and were at least as good as would have been the case if TOTE were not sold, I think the industry would move on fairly quickly and focus on what the real issues are and that is the challenges facing the industry.

Mr BOOTH - So you would see that important, that the funding arrangements be locked into a sale arrangement effectively, some form of support guarantee?

Mr MURRAY - I don't know in which form it would come. I think the industry is entitled to some guarantee of future funding.

Mr BOOTH - But whether it comes through government or a sale arrangement -

Mr MURRAY - I can't really offer an opinion.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Mr Murray, do you believe that had the Government of the day - and I appreciate you said they have every right to make policy decisions - waited until the new structure of the racing industry was bedded down, so to speak, this would have been a more palatable proposed sale?

Mr MURRAY - I will be very selfish and say I would have preferred a greater period of time. The restructure was about putting a structure in place to quickly face the challenges and get resolutions on a number of issues. It is a really important time for racing. This is a very personal and selfish view because I think the restructure was very important in its own right. I repeat: the Government of the day has its right to make an announcement and make a decision on any matter under its area of responsibility, so I am certainly not criticising the timing, I am just stating my personal view.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Do you believe that the new board format has had time to settle into its new role?

Mr MURRAY - They are on a very steep learning curve, there's no doubt about that. They are doing a very good job initially. They are out there consulting with the industry. The chairman of the new board, Don Abell, in my opinion is doing an excellent job. He is engaging the industry, he is understanding the industry. It is early days but I have nothing but optimism for the future of the role of the new board.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - So with that board engaging with the stakeholders and industry players obviously this particular process is taking away from what they might well be concentrating on?

Mr MURRAY - I would have thought that they are just moving ahead with the job at hand. That is as they should be. In terms of the transitional arrangements under the restructure, the funding, the budget is as it was previously up until 30 June. No doubt they are developing their strategic plan and their future budgets and all those types of things. My understanding is and my belief would be that it would be business as usual from their viewpoint.

CHAIR - Are there any further questions to Mr Murray?

Mr BEST - In camera I would like to ask some questions.

CHAIR - The committee will now move in camera. I would ask everybody apart from the committee and people involved if they would move to out the back again and we will proceed as soon as that is done.

Mr PAUL BULLOCK, FORMER CHAIR, GREYHOUND RACING TASMANIA, Mr MAXWELL WALKER, FORMER DEPUTY CHAIR, GREYHOUND RACING TASMANIA, AND Ms DENISE FYSH, CHAIR, HOBART GREYHOUND RACING CLUB, WERE CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WERE EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you very much. I understand you are all appearing on behalf of the greyhound industry and I do not know whether any of you have given evidence before a parliamentary committee before. However, I will talk about privilege and restrictions on reporting so that you are clear on that. Everything you say to this committee is protected by parliamentary privilege. This is to allow you to speak freely. However, once you have left this committee room I must advise you not to specifically discuss your written or verbal evidence with anyone until the committee has made its report to the Legislative Council. You are free to speak generally about any issue to anyone but please do not refer specifically to anyone about the evidence you give to the committee until a report has been published on this.

I now invite you, whoever is the spokesperson, to talk and remind you to keep in the back of your minds all the time that we have specific terms of reference and that is the proposed sale of the TOTE Tasmania by the Government of Tasmania and any other matter incidental thereto.

Mr BULLOCK - Mr Chairman, first of all I would like to thank you very much for hearing us today because I was not available next week and to your secretary for fitting us in today. Thank you very much.

CHAIR - It is a pleasure.

Mr BULLOCK - I know some of the members, particularly Peter Gutwein. I have known Peter a long time, since he was a kid playing football. It is nice to see one familiar face here.

I will give a bit of the background because I don't reckon many people really know me. I started in racing in the early 1950s with my father working horses on St Marys Pass, which was gravel - the road from St Marys to Conara then was gravel, so it was a long time ago. Racing has always been part of my life. Unfortunately I did not have enough money to get into horses so I got into the next best thing, which was greyhounds. It was a pleasure to get involved with greyhound racing and the people in the industry. I owned, trained and bred for a period of 40 years and then I got involved in the administration in 1989 with the Launceston Greyhound Racing Club and was chairman in 1990. I then worked for the Racing Authority, as it was in those days when Michael Martin came from New Zealand, as the racing manager for greyhound racing. I looked after the Hobart club when they had their licence taken off them. I also took over Devonport when they handed theirs in. Mr Caylee became the chairman of the authority and we were worried about Devonport continuing. My suggestion to the authority at that time was to convert to a day meeting and get Sky Channel, if possible, and to race every week of the year if possible.

Around 1999 or 2000 I was elected to the greyhound council and I have been a member for the last nine years. Three of those years I was deputy chairman to my colleague, Max, and the last three years and when the council was wound up on 31 December 2008 I was chairman. One of the things that the council has done with the clubs - Denise is here today and is the chairman of Hobart - we have made sure that the clubs through the council are viable. Each club has received somewhere between $76 000-$80 000 a year to make sure they have made a profit at the end of the year.

When I went to the work meetings that the Director of Racing, Mr Murray, and the CEO of TOTE, Mr Coleman, presided over, along with John Lennon from his organisation, we were given a guarantee that TOTE would definitely not be sold. When the announcement came some seven days after the councils had been wound up, I am certain that people such as Bruce Freeland, Dick Bertram, Doug Martin - who were the instigators of the Tasmanian Totalisator Board which came into effect in 1973 - probably turned over in their graves.

For those who aren't racing minded, if they go back through the history of racing in New South Wales and Victoria, TAB was introduced to wipe the SP bookmaker in the local pub out of business, if possible. In New South Wales the result was enormous because they have a large population, and so has Victoria. The bookmakers, in my opinion - and I worked for two or three of them in Launceston over a period - were leeches. They took everything and put nothing back. Here we had an opportunity to have something for Tasmania that was going to put something back into racing. I can still remember the late Bruce Freeland saying at the time, 'This will really be good because we are going to appoint the Premier as one shareholder and the Treasurer as the other'. That has been the ploy ever since 1973. I believe that the Director of Racing and the CEO of TOTE either didn't know that the minister had intentions of selling TOTE or were accomplices for the workshops of getting rid of the councils to enable them to sell TOTE. I would say our code, and having spoken to the other two codes at recent meetings in Launceston in two previous weeks, it has got to the stage now that we don't trust the minister. That is a pretty defaming statement, I know, but we don't trust the minister.

One of the problems we have had with all of it is that there has been no consultation with the three codes, no consultation with racing and we have not seen a business plan. Anyone running a business usually has a business plan. This bloke just says sell. We might get $30 million from somewhere and in today's economic climate we do not think that is on. So we are very disappointed, we have an industry where there are 3 000 people involved, we have a greyhound industry where we race three times a week and distribute probably $40 000 a week in stake money and if we have not got that $30 million, and it is no good saying we have a guarantee, because that money might not be there with the economic climate we have at the moment.

We are going to be up so and so in the boat. It will just be damn hopeless. We have got a milking cow in what is now TOTE Tasmania because of the change in the name sometime back but at the moment they are almost guaranteeing us an income for racing.

We do not wish to go to the Government of the day and say look we know you have got education and we know you have health and we know you have got roads and we know that you have got police et cetera, but we really want $30 million.

Because the Government are likely to say to us sorry this year you can only have $21 million. Or only $18 million. With TOTE Tasmania we have got at least a guarantee at this stage of having enough money to do what we are doing at the moment.

The greyhound industry at this moment, and this is only from my point of view and I may be biased because I am the former chairman of the council, we have three clubs with $200 000 each in their bank account, we have a council that gave the new racing board around about $200 000 to do the job plus another $55 000 for promotion.

I wish the new person replacing me at the Tasmanian Racing Board all the very best. He has a huge job in front of him to represent greyhound racing with very little knowledge of administration but very good on welfare. They have dropped him really in the soup because I do not think that the new board knows where they are going.

That is with all due respect to those seven people that have been appointed. I really believe that if we want to do our best we need to retain TOTE Tasmania. Otherwise I can see racing being shot in the foot. The spin-off from racing is huge.

We race three times a week which means people travel three times a week, they pull into service stations three times a week, there are a new set of tyres three times a week, there is a mechanic somewhere that needs to work on their car. It is a huge employer. We look after the farmers with disposal of stock et cetera.

If we have not got TOTE and we have not got the income to race for what we are racing for now people will drop out of the game. The other thing is that if there are less meetings, if trainers can only race once a week like the gallops do half the people in our industry will drop out simply because they need to be able to compete twice a week and by having three meetings a week there is a chance that you can race twice a week and get an income.

Otherwise we are dead in the water. If you people cannot see that maybe you should not do the job you are doing. I will pass over to my Deputy Chairman.

CHAIR - I might just ask you a question first. I hear what you are saying and I will be the devil's advocate first up. In other jurisdictions, that is in other States, TOTE has been privatised. In South Australia I understand it has been done rather poorly, in Victoria it is working quite well and it has opened up new opportunities. Now if the industry, such as yourselves, were enshrined in legislation some guarantees how would you view it then?

Mr BULLOCK - Mr Chairman, if you listen to the chairman of the thoroughbred breeders in Victoria, in 2012 they will be $40 million to $80 million worse off. And they have all the guarantees in the world.

Mr BOOTH - It is pokie guarantees, isn't it?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, it is pokies and Tattersalls who aren't allowed to have the licence anymore. If another body put their hand up and say, 'Yes, we want to take it over', the first thing people want is the money for their shareholders. It is not really good when you pick up the Examiner and you read that Tattersalls have made $143 million profit and they are looking at buying TOTE Tasmania. When it has not been through Parliament, it has not been discussed with the industry, there is no business plan and you say, 'Please put your hand up and support it' it is not on!

Mr BOOTH - Thank you, Paul. I want to drill down into what you said that you were guaranteed at the meetings. Presumably that was the Hobart one on 26 September and Launceston on 1 October. Are they the meetings?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, and there was a follow-up meeting at Campbell Town which I could not go to but Max did go to and the guarantee was given again.

Mr BOOTH - In what form was that guarantee given?

Mr BULLOCK - It was given in writing. In the last handout that was given out at Campbell Town it was given out in writing that TOTE will not be sold.

Mr BOOTH - Do you have a copy of that which you can give the committee?

Mr BULLOCK - No, but I am certain that the place and people who have put together a nice brochure for the MLCs have got it and will supply it at a later date, but it is available.

Mr BOOTH - Would the greyhound racing industry, in your view and the combined view perhaps here, have supported the industry restructure had you known that TOTE was going to be sold?

Mr BULLOCK - There is nothing wrong with change. Getting change right is the problem. Personally and I do not speak on a personal level, Kim, because we have not discussed it, I was quite pleased to not be involved anymore because I have just had a quadruple bypass and I was looking to lay down the tools. But we had a survey back in October that we put out to see how the industry felt. I do not have that with me today but the industry was 50/50 whether we should have the council or not. I do not think the majority of our code or the other two codes understood exactly what their code councils were doing and that is probably our fault rather than the industry's fault.

You are aware with the people you have dealt with in all codes, but we have a lot of people in each code that their education is not the greatest. Some of the kids who work as stable hands and kennel attendants et cetera, do not want to go to school. It is the only place they can find a niche in life. So therefore their education standard is not greatest and they say, what do we have these people for? It is like me saying, what do we have the Legislative Council for. I am pleased they are there but a lot of people are not.

Laughter.

Mr WILKINSON - Keep talking.

Mr GUTWEIN - The lower House shares your view.

Mr BULLOCK - They probably do, Peter. But, seriously, I have been involved in a couple of organisations, and Peter knows only too well that I started the Junior Football Association in Launceston back in 1973. I used to write a page, and this is digressing a bit, for the Sunday Evening Express and I had a cartoon drawn up by one of the guys. We had the kids in around playing with a big steel fence around with the parents outside and sometimes you feel the same about greyhound racing. I wish we could keep them out there and just race the dogs because you really struggle at times to understand the mentality of some people.

From my point of view, the council did its job. It was not always liked by everybody but we did our job to the best of our ability.

Mr GUTWEIN - You said that, under TOTE, you are guaranteed income each year. How does that work and what arrangements are currently in place?

Mr BULLOCK - We get 16.9 per cent of the profit and whatever else is dished out by Betfair. TOTE, of course, handle the Betfair money. Last year there was $4.75 million of Betfair money distributed to the three codes and then they must have done a little bit better than people thought because we received another $93 000, probably a couple of months into the season. We had a reduction previously because we thought the previous Premier, Mr Lennon, handled the money badly when he gave so much to the interdominion and just about robbed harness racing right throughout Australia. This made it very difficult, where at one carnival that was in South Australia they had to hold a whole lot of heats in Melbourne, otherwise they could not afford it.

The money that we have received every year has increased slightly. It has been by CPI. Last year I think we received $48 000 from TOTE out of the TOTE profit, additional to what we had previously. We received another $93 000 from the Betfair money which was additional. Then TOTE paid a $125 000 bonus to each code. I can give you the figures for that because, unfortunately, the greyhound council in 2006 through freedom of information applied to get the actual figures from TOTE because they didn't want to give them to us. I can give you a copy of that today.

We have done our very best to pay out as much as possible. In the last 12 months we had paid out 79.81 per cent of our allocation. We had used about 20 per cent for administration. Everything that could possibly be pay out to the industry and the participants has been paid out. We have never had a problem with TOTE as such as they say, 'This is your lot'. We have to work with what we have. We have never been in a position to argue that we want a bigger share. We have told them on several occasions we want 19.6 per cent, or 20 per cent if we can get it, but we have always finished up with around 16.9 per cent of the total pool. This year we will pay out about $2 360 000, including our administration.

The clubs themselves - and Denise is very heavily involved with the Hobart club and is doing a very good job - with the administration of the money et cetera are in a situation where they get 3.55 per cent of TAB on-course and off-course turnover of a Thursday night. The clubs get somewhere between $80 000 and $90 000 because the council has always paid the salary of the racing manager, which is around $56 000. He manages all three clubs and does all their bookwork, works with the accounts and makes absolutely certain that every dollar that is spent is accounted for.

Mr GUTWEIN - How many people are involved in dogs in the State?

Mr BULLOCK - I can't give an exact figure, Peter, but there are 600-odd involved registered, but of course we have a lot of hangers-on as well. There are a lot of people involved as silent partners in greyhounds, as they are in horses et cetera.

We have a lot of people who help out at home who aren't registered. My guess would be there are somewhere between 700 and 1 000 people involved.

Mr WILKINSON - When you say 'involved', what do you mean?

Mr BULLOCK - Helping with training, cleaning kennels, cleaning yards. A lot of people are voluntary and help catch dogs. A lot of people go to maybe Brighton or the straight track at Mowbray - they can't go there any more because TOTE controls it - but we have always had people put their hand up to help out somewhere. Racing is a social industry and people forget that racing is really about bringing people together. The Launceston Cup carnival might not have been as good as it has been in the past but it gets people together and it is a day out. Greyhound racing is a very social industry. We just had the greyhound dinner at Mowbray in February and there were 190 people there. Getting 190 people to anything of a night socially is very difficult, as we all know. You have been involved in football, it has dropped off a bit to what it used to be. I have been involved in football with North Launceston and Beauty Point. It is not quite what it could be today but racing is very social. All three clubs have their social side of living in hand and care about it.

Mr WALKER - I have been involved since 1971, trying to train and breed dogs. In the late 1970s I became chairman of the Greyhound Owners, Trainers and Breeders Association. Back in those days it had a bit of punch, we conducted things for the Hobart Thousand. There was always a bit of feeling between the owners and trainers and the HGRC because if they blackballed you you couldn't become a member. They had a bit of power then. I left the Hobart area and went to Dover so I wasn't so involved with administration but I became involved in the late 1990s by becoming the Deputy Chairman of the Racing Council for three years. I came back on as chairman for three years and, at that time, I represented Tasmania on the Greyhounds Australasia which meant meeting every three months, overseas, in New Zealand or each of the other States and from time to time. I stepped down from that job and let Paul have a crack at it, and I have been the deputy chairman since that time.

I, like Paul, became involved with greyhound racing because, while I was always a bit of a punter, it was too costly for me to be involved in horses, and I thought I had given up football, which I didn't, but I needed the exercise for another 10 or 12 years. I have always taken the position of an underdog and I think that fits our situation very well because we have been the underdog in the three codes for quite a while.

One thing that Paul probably did not stress as much as he could have is the fact that we do not trust the administration. One of the reasons we do not trust them is the fact that back in 1999 Paul Lennon came to us and said, 'Look, get rid of your so-and-sos running this show and we will put some extra dollars in your pocket'. What was done was we dropped from 19.7 per cent to 16.9 per cent out of the total allocation. It went on from there.

Mr GREEN - When was that?

Mr HARRISS - In 1999.

Mr WALKER - We have been battling from that every since. When the Betfair money came around, we went from 16.9 per cent to 9 per cent for a time. When the big trots episode was on, we were duded again. We were able to prove our case, I thought, and they said, 'Oh well, yes, we can bridge you up to 19.7 per cent but it has to be new money. We can't take it off the other codes'. We have been told lies along the way.

Tony Murray said today that they had two meetings - we had three meetings. It was supposed to be consultation. The first two might have been. We had agreed to meet on a Friday, what happens? They want to put us on on a Thursday night when they know jolly well that people couldn't attend because they have their dogs to race on a Thursday night so two of us went to Campbell Town. Therese Kingston, who was my co-speaker at the time, asked Mr Murray, 'Why are we meeting on a Thursday night? We'd been promised a Friday when everyone could come'. His reply was, 'Well, I'm sorry, Therese, but most of them couldn't come on Friday', so he put it on Thursday night. She had the audacity to get up and ask, 'Who at this meeting can't attend tomorrow?'. There was one fellow out of the whole meeting.

We have been duded all the way through and so it is easy for us to understand why we think that we are getting shunted again. We do not believe Michael Aird for one minute. We were told on 15 December there would be no sale - this is members of TOTE, of course - and we find three weeks later, 'Oh, she's up for sale, fellas'. We cannot believe him for a minute.

I am happy to answer any questions.

CHAIR - Thanks. We might move on to Denise, if you want to have a few words and then we will ask questions.

Ms FYSH - I have only been in the administration of the club for about six years, but I would like to go back to the question that Mr Booth asked of whether we would have had the same thoughts to splitting racing and wagering had we known in the beginning, that TOTE was for sale. I know from my perspective we would not have supported it until a great deal of discussion was had on the sale of TOTE.

I believe that the industry was deceived by the Government during those workshops inasmuch as it seems obvious now that TOTE was going to be sold at the time of those workshops because the only way you could achieve the sale of TOTE was to separate wagering and racing. I believe that we were deceived that it was better for the industry should that be divided when in fact it was done so TOTE could be sold. Otherwise the announcement would not have been seven days after the new board started.

So I agree, and I think that the industry as a whole agrees that we have been deceived by this Government, that we have no trust in this Government and any guarantees that the Government at this point is going to say they will give, we have no trust in.

I think that there are a lot of areas that need to be brought forward. It cannot be done because nothing has been discussed with the industry re the sale of TOTE. We have to look at our breeding, we have to look at our training facilities, we have to make sure that in the long term these things are going to be addressed; that enough money is there to make sure that the facilities can grow so that the industry across the three codes can grow. But until there is some discussion with the industry I do not think that the Government would ever get any support for the sale of TOTE Tasmania.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - I am aware that there is an agreement that when the Betfair fund exceeds $5 million that the greyhound arm of racing will actually get up to that 19.7 per cent. Can you tell me what sort of agreement, is it a written agreement?

Mr BULLOCK - There is not an agreement in writing. We discussed it with the acting CEO of the new racing board, Mr Lottering, at the time, and Van Ransley who does not work there anymore. We discussed it with them and they said we will consider the 19.6 per cent. A lot of things that are done in racing are not exactly written all the time.

I am probably at fault but I have always taken peoples word on a handshake. Obviously it does not work a lot of the time. And after one person who is in this room was on ABC Radio at 10.45 a.m. I do not believe him either. Because he treated today as a joke. A great laughing point for Mr Best on radio. The sale of TOTE at 10.45 this morning.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - So there is not an actual written agreement?

Mr WALKER - There was an understanding given, Tania, that that would take place and as I said earlier it was to be on any new money not the allocation that would have gone back. So if TOTE makes a heap of money we were promised 19.7 per cent of the surplus of what they would have considered normal and anything from Betfair as well.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - But not what you would consider a formal agreement as well.

Mr GUTWEIN - In regard to any consultation since 7 January with your industry by the Government has any occurred?

Mr BULLOCK - None whatsoever.

Mr GUTWEIN - Has anybody spoken to you at all about any consultation coming forth?

Mr BULLOCK - Not from the Government's point of view. The three codes met in Launceston three weeks ago today and Chester Bullock and Joel Wallace from the pacing, Pam Cassidy and myself from greyhound racing and Mrs Wishaw from Armidale Stud had a meeting on the Friday. We had a follow-up meeting with five of the MLCs who live in the northern part of the State last Friday re the sale. And if you want their names I am quite happy to provide those. There was Don Wing -

CHAIR - We are aware of those.

Mr BULLOCK - We have had a couple of meetings. I was very impressed with Mrs Wishaw's soapbox in the Examiner. For those people who have not read it, there is a copy available here if you require it. That is it in a nutshell. The whole industry, it is not just greyhound racing, the whole racing industry is absolutely disgusted with the contempt that the Minister for Racing has shown towards the industry.

Mr GUTWEIN - May I ask you a question? You have said that you do not trust the minister -

Mr BULLOCK - I do not trust the minister, Peter, because not only has he lied and said TOTE will not be sold, but the people who are out there -

CHAIR - Order. Have to be careful about casting aspersions there in that regard.

Mr BULLOCK - I believe that the minister has lied. That is me. Sorry, I say it as I see it and I believe that the people who were working for him, the Director of Racing and the CEO of TOTE who done the workshops et cetera, if they knew TOTE was going to be sold, they lied. If they did not know, they were led astray by the minister.

Mr BEST - For fear of leading with the chin.

Mr BULLOCK - No, I am not.

Mr BEST - No, me, not you. I am interested and there is no double edge here. With your code, how often do you meet, just together, do not worry about the political aspect of it, just as a group to discuss issues?

Mr BULLOCK - We meet every month as a council right up until the end of December. Since then, as far a statewide thing goes, no, we have not. Gary Sutton from Devonport and Pam Cassidy from Launceston were in Launceston with the MLCs. Denise, unfortunately, was not there and Denise's partner trains greyhounds and it is not easy to get everywhere you want to be at certain meetings. I reckon she has done it pretty hard to get here this morning.

Mr BEST - No, that is fine. I am interested, though, because we have heard quite a bit about the views of interest versus business and the social aspect you spoke quite in depth about. As a code you must have some policies about some of these issues that you have written down?

Ms FYSH - What issues?

Mr BEST - Issues about how you see, moving forward, how you see yourselves in terms of business and how you see the social aspect?

Mr BULLOCK - One of the things that happens, and Max and Denise are in the same position as I am, I go to two greyhound meeting a week most of the time. Over a period of nine years I think I know almost everybody in the industry by their first name and they all know me. If they have a concern they have usually come to me when I was deputy chairman of the council and expressed their opinion and I have taken it back to a meeting where it has been discussed with the council and the clubs. We have had club and council meeting in Campbell Town et cetera to get the feel of the industry. That is personal consultation. That is the best we can do and I think that is the way it should be done in this instance and it has not been done.

Mr BEST - Finally, what is the collective view that you take?

Mr BULLOCK - The collective view of greyhound racing is not to sell TOTE.

Mr BEST - Okay.

Mr BULLOCK - The other issue is, had we had some consultation and a business plan we may not think that way but we have had nothing.

Mr GREEN - It flows on pretty well from what was just said really because what we are talking about today is the potential sale of TOTE and knowing that sale of TOTE has to go through both Houses of Parliament. So, consultation with respect to business plans and all of the other things associated with that will have to satisfy members of Parliament prior to it being sold.

The issue that I want to put to you is whether or not, given that it is likely that a position to ensure that the industry is looked after financially into the future, would be legislated and if it was, would the code then be satisfied that the industry therefore would be looked after on into the future and could look to build on the existing infrastructure et cetera that you have?

Mr BULLOCK - My answer is that irrespective of what happens we are prepared to look at anything but, for God's sake, please present something. Talking to accountants is probably the right thing to do in a business to sell it if it is worth money. Knowing the fickle industry of racing and the present Government we have, of which you are a member, we do not know.

Mr GREEN - It is fair enough for you to suggest that, and you have every right to do so, but I would say that from the Government's point of view we are taking industry very seriously and have always tried to ensure that the industry moves forward. If the sale of TOTE ensures that the industry has the opportunity to move forward, would the code be satisfied with that and focus on the issues associated with racing, et cetera, and doing all the other things that you enjoy doing?

Mr BULLOCK - I could not exactly answer for the industry.

Ms FYSH - It would also depend on how that was structured and where we sat within it, and what was available within that for future development of the racing industry. I would like to ask, was that decision to sell TOTE a knee-jerk decision that happened overnight because I just find it incredible that a government could do that? Is it good business practice to make a knee-jerk reaction overnight to sell TOTE Tasmania?

Mr GREEN - You are not asking me that question because I am not in a position to answer the question. What I am trying to put back to you is that if all of the things that you are concerned about with respect to the longevity of your particular code were satisfied as part of this process overall, would your code move on and concentrate on all of the things that you are good at, concentrating on running the greyhound meetings and so on?

Ms FYSH - I do not think we are going to have an option there. The alternative is what - that you will not sell TOTE?

Mr GREEN - We may not and we may not get the price, who knows?

Mr WALKER - What is the price?

Mr GREEN - I don't know.

Ms FYSH - Exactly. We do not seem to know a great deal except that the Government wants to sell it.

Mr WILKINSON - Am I right in saying that the real concern I can see over the last half hour is the lack of communication and that things were said which turned out to be not correct, that is that the Government was not selling then suddenly it was? I suppose it is a bit like being put on a plane and not knowing where you are going to. If you knew where you are going to you might say, 'Yes, I like that place, that's where I want to be', or, alternatively, 'No, I don't. We're going to get into trouble if we finish up landing there'.

Ms FYSH - But if you knew where you were going you may never have boarded the plane to begin with.

Mr WILKINSON - Yes, that is what I am saying.

Mr BEST - Sorry to interrupt, my question was really about the plane that you want to get on.

Mr BULLOCK - It would be absolutely lovely, Brenton, to have a look and say, 'Yes, we do' or 'No, we don't'. Seriously, most organisations that I have been wrapped up in do that first and then ask you for an answer, not say, 'We're going to do it' and then we have to argue about it.

Mr BEST - I take that point and I have that message loud and clear. What I am interested in is how you, as an organisation, see yourself moving forward. I hear what you have said, you do not want the sale of TOTE, but I am keen to know what strategies you see that will enhance, say, the interests, business end and the social end for yourselves. That is what I am keen to know about.

Mr BULLOCK - This is a difficult one. I think Craig Coleman, since he has been the CEO of TOTE, has done an outstanding job by getting the Betfair deal on-line with turnover, et cetera. I do not have a problem there. They are not bad people and I am not against them personally, but the whole issue is - and this is the bottom line all the time for me but it may not be for the other two people who are here because we have not been coerced to give you the one answer - there has been no consultation, there is no business plan, no-one wants to talk about it. It does not matter which politician you ring at home, 'Look, there's going to be a hearing in Hobart'. What is the problem? Let us talk about it because we will never get it fixed if we do not talk about it. What Jim says about communication is correct.

Mr BOOTH - What I am interested in is you have clearly said that you are opposed to the sale, is that because you think the culture of your industry will collapse, basically be ruined, if it proceeds? Is that the risk that in fact you will lose your industry as a result of the sale?

Ms FYSH - It is definitely a risk but until we see something on paper we do not know how big that risk is or where on the ladder the greyhound industry is going to sit. How far under the other two codes are we going to sit? South Australia is a glaring example of how to get it wrong. They have fought for 10 years to get back on their feet.

Mr BOOTH - Are there other intangible benefits that flow as a result of government ownership of TOTE at the moment that are not included in the stakes and bonuses and so forth, so whatever you provided to the industry that would be part of that like access to the training facilities, say, or facilities generally that might be taken away by a private operator or a charge imposed?

Ms FYSH - We are still trying to get our head around the new structure. We are very early into the new structure and trying to get our head around who now has responsibility for this trial track or that race track or where to go for particular funding. We are still trying to get our heads around this. On top of that, there is this. It is difficult to bring the two together.

Mr BULLOCK - There are a lot of issues in our industry that need attention. I believe, and according to some administrators, there is a problem with the Brighton training track that part of it is going to be taken away for soccer. I do not think there is a lease to the place. I know that the Launceston Greyhound Racing Club still has not signed heads of agreement for Mowbray and they have been there since 2004, that is five years ago.

Ms FYSH - Hobart has not either.

Mr BULLOCK - These are all little administration issues that no-one seems to get to because they do not want to discuss it.

Ms FYSH - And no-one knows whose job it is.

Mr BOOTH - Is it a lot more than just the stakes?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, a lot more.

Ms FYSH - It goes a lot deeper.

Mr BULLOCK - The stakes are part of it and that is thing that concerns us with the sale of TOTE, but there is maintenance and track maintenance.

Mr GREEN - What about Sky Channel?

Mr BULLOCK - It is a huge problem, Bryan, because at the moment I think TOTE and Sky Channel have signed an agreement up to the end of June. There is some doubt about Hobart staying on Thursday nights because it has become first track of the pay packet when everything can come in for nothing. It is where Sky Channel and the two major players, Victoria and New South Wales, once again, can get a product in that is not costing them anything, race field legislation and fees for buying their product. Tas TOTE will have to buy from New South Wales and Victoria what they are going to bet on. It is a whole changing world. Mind you, some of this was created by Greyhound Racing Authority of New South Wales originally -

Mr GREEN - Does it have an impact on potential dividends?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, it does.

Mr GREEN - Changes on Sky can impact on your dividends overnight.

Mr BULLOCK - That's right.

Ms FYSH - Even down to how much time they allot you. If they do not give you a couple of minutes running into your race your turnover can be down $10 000 or $20 000 and you are talking a minute.

Mr BULLOCK - The other issue is that you are getting to is that if Hobart was taken off Thursday night and put on Tuesday morning there is going to be a huge downturn -

Mr GREEN - There is.

Mr BULLOCK - in TAB turnover. I understand that fully. I have discussed it with Sky Channel, I have discussed it with TOTE Tasmania.

Mr GREEN - Does Sky make those decisions or is it part of the -

Mr BULLOCK - I think Sky are dictating to the industry everywhere in Australia.

Mr GREEN - Yes.

Mr BULLOCK - The other issue with that is it is only New South Wales by Tabcorp. They always show the New South Wales races irrespective thereof and the rest are fill-ins. It is interesting to note that Victoria and New South Wales have the same number of programs on each occasion, the other States are just -

Mr BEST - I am interested in that you know a lot more about greyhound racing -

Mr BULLOCK - No, I do not.

Mr BEST - Where would be the top three or four places in the world for greyhound racing? Are we one of them?

Mr BULLOCK - Australia is one of them.

Mr BEST - How would you rate it if, as you said, Australia is one?

Mr BULLOCK - There is no doubt.

Mr BEST - What are the others?

Mr BULLOCK - Ireland, United Kingdom, America, Macau, Vietnam, Sweden and New Zealand. I went to New Zealand about 12 months ago and could not believe how far in front of us they are with stake money. The minimum stake in New Zealand is $2 900 and they are there by default with their screening of a Sunday afternoon. No-one wanted to race Sunday afternoons so they did and their TAB turnover went up something like 78 per cent. Just as now everybody wants to get on Thursday nights and Sundays in Australia with Sky Channel, the little people are getting forced out of the game.

The other thing is, since the mines have folded in Western Australia, TAB turnover has gone down something like 43 per cent in the last two months and people in Western Australia were buying greyhounds from the eastern States, to race over there, that were miners and those miners have either lost their job or they have come back to the eastern States and some of those dogs have gone by the wayside.

Mr BEST - So out of that, just a quick answer. Where would be the most turnover or the most betting out of those places that you have named?

Mr BULLOCK - I think, population wise, probably the United Kingdom.

CHAIR - Thank you very much for presenting. You have done that with passion and I think we have heard it loud and clear. I must just remind you again, though, that what you have said in here is protected by parliamentary privilege. However, it is a different matter outside that door. Thank you very much to the three of you and we will keep going with our hearings.

Mr BULLOCK - Once again, Mr Chairman, thank you for hearing us today because I would not have been available next week.

THE WITNESSES WITHDREW.

Mr COLIN HOWLETT WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Colin, you are aware of our terms of reference. I think you may have given evidence to a parliamentary committee before, and you heard what I read out in regard to parliamentary privilege. Are you okay with that?

Mr HOWLETT - I understand, Mr Chairman.

CHAIR - Okay. I will ask you to make a presentation.

Mr HOWLETT - Mr Chairman, unlike my former colleagues, I will read most of my notes. Unfortunately I do not have enough money to own a greyhound, a harness racer or a galloper. So that is my position.

Mr GREEN - I fly pigeons.

Mr HOWLETT - I am thinking about flying pigeons, Bryan. If you tolerate me reading this, it is in two parts.

CHAIR - That is fine.

Mr HOWLETT - I have written a letter to the Minister for Racing which I would certainly like to share with you.

Objection to the sale of TOTE Tasmania. The three racing codes in Tasmania provide significant employment to a broad range of individuals involved in small businesses, including tourism, in this State. Historically, the three codes of racing provide socioeconomic benefits to rural communities who are unable to provide the diverse job opportunities in more populated areas.

We wish to submit that private enterprise's first obligation is to its shareholders and not to the individual owners providing the product. Many examples exist where governments have forced transfers of ownership of publicly-owned enterprises and pledged its intervention would provide improved economic and customer service.

In many instances when governments decide to sell a public profitable enterprise it has a pecuniary interest to prop up a poorly managed budget. We wish to submit that in the case of the proposed sale of TOTE Tasmania the Government must be accountable to the industry shareholders and in any sale contract must make provision for realistic, long-term finance (indexed) for the infrastructure, breeding and prize money.

Mr GREEN - Excuse me Colin, when you say 'we' who are you talking about? Are you talking about the general public?

Mr HOWLETT - I am talking about many people in the greyhound industry and I am talking about -

Mr GREEN - But you say 'we must' as if you are representing a committee or somebody else. Are you on your own?

Mr HOWLETT - I am representing life members of the greyhound industry; I am representing many people who are unable to come along and attend the meeting today.

Mr GREEN - You are saying that we must be satisfied -

Mr HOWLETT - Do you want to discredit my attendance?

Mr GREEN - Not at all. I am asking the question whether you are representing yourself or representing another group because it sounded as though you were talking about a committee or somebody else who -

Mr HOWLETT - I am talking about the racing code and if you let me go through the entire process, you will probably learn more of where I am coming from.

Mr GREEN - Fair enough, Colin, go right ahead. I was only trying to help.

Mr HOWLETT - There is a little heading 'Sustainability for the greyhound industry'. Historically the greyhound industry has been treated as the poor relation by governments over many years. And I have heard that repeated and inferred many, many times this morning.

The TCA on the Hobart Domain accommodated greyhound racing and training activities for a long period of time until the racing authority/Government needed additional reasons to spend significant funds to upgrade the harness racing track at the Royal Showgrounds at Glenorchy.

The racing authority was keen to secure funds for the harness racing and training facility at the Royal Showgrounds, however, they needed additional justification to obtain government funds. Eventually all greyhound activities accommodated at the TCA ground were transferred to the Royal Showgrounds.

No say, similar to what is proposed at the moment. The transfer of greyhound racing to the Royal Showgrounds presented many challenges linked to infrastructure and many difficulties relating to the shared facilities.

People who are in the operational side of greyhound racing would be able to share those challenges with you with lures breaking down, boxes not working properly, track disintegrating to the point where race meetings had to be postponed and all those sort of challenges. And that is the intent and the spirit of what I am saying about challenges.

Subsequent to the greyhound racing and training being transferred to the Royal Showgrounds the southern Tasmanian component of the greyhound industry incrementally lost its independence and became more reliant on outside influence.

That statement is purely focused towards the Government. The greyhound code had more sustainability at the old TCA grounds because they had an independent lease arrangement with the principle of the TCA and in many respects people would argue that they had more future there had they not been manipulated and taken away from their principle home.

For numerous reasons some greyhound participants preferred to use privately-owned training facilities. However, over time the privately owned facilities in southern Tasmania disappeared. Thirty years ago there would have been 10 to 12 privately-owned training facilities for greyhounds, some of which were registered with the national body. My family had the first semi-circular track at Richmond registered during Mr Morgan's administration at the TCA ground. You had to go through a process there to go the tracks registered but that was one particular track. Many others were registered under the national greyhound regime.

Greyhound Owners, Trainers and Breeders Association was active in asking the Government to provide funding to commission and operate a much needed straight and circle greyhound training facility. Again, we were unsuccessful in obtaining funding. However, the GOTBA was mindful that the racing authority was starving the industry of infrastructure facilities and without alternative training facilities the greyhound industry would not be sustainable.

The following events have been documented and are in a separate briefing covering the GOTBA and the Howlett family providing funding for developing two training tracks on crown land at Brighton. The events over the past 23 years regarding the intent and spirit of the industry, which was intended to be a 99-year lease occupancy for the greyhound code, of approximately - and there is debate about whether it is 11 hectares or 12 hectares, but it is in that area of ground - 11 or 12 hectares of ground at Brighton which adjoins the horse training facility at Brighton. It is on the south-eastern end of the trialling facilities for harness racing and gallopers. Our understanding is that it is still under the one title. Historically the greyhound industry has not had the influence of other codes and in many respect has been handicapped from the provision of sustainable infrastructure. The racing authority, to the best of our knowledge, has not put money into training facilities other than on the proper principal racecourse venue.

Sometimes under difficult circumstances our participants have struggled to remain in the industry, which makes a significant contribution to the Tasmanian economy. Following large sums of money being spent on the horse training complex at Brighton, TOTE Tasmania is currently mowing grass on the straight greyhound track at Brighton. To the best of the greyhound code industry that is about the only dedicated money off the racing track proper that has been provided.

Employment and downstream benefits - racing authorities must recognise that the three codes of the racing industry provide significant employment throughout rural Tasmania.

Financial support for the other industries - historically governments have provided financial support for industry employment, however there is little evidence of the three industry codes receiving recognition in the same way. In fact, it is extremely difficult to access individual greyhound industry infrastructure programs which would support sustainability.

Essential tools required for a sustainable future for the greyhound industry - to provide sustainability the Government must enter into a legal contract providing a 20-year blueprint plan acknowledging that greyhound racing is an industry and future allocation of funds to be indexed to CPI for the provision of infrastructure, stake money, which must be fair and equitable and be performance-based.

The reason we say that is that is the greyhound, as I understand at this very moment, from a betting point of view, is producing a very significant amount of betting revenue to TOTE Tasmania. In fact, it is getting very close to the galloping code.

The greyhound code must be provided with a fair percentage of revenue produced from betting turnover which must be divided into infrastructure, development and stake money. The allocation of funds must be tied, indexed and distributed to an independent group delegated by the code to represent the entire participants.

The Joint Standing Committee on Environment, Resources and Development are requested to reject the sale of TOTE Tasmania, based on not being in the best interest of the industry and the Tasmanian economy.

I certainly would like to be questioned on some of these things but, in the end, I thank the committee for providing me with the time to produce this.

CHAIR - Thank you, Colin.

Mr HOWLETT - I have a letter here that went to the minister.

CHAIR - Do you want to table that?

Mr HOWLETT - Do you want me to table it rather than read it?

CHAIR - Yes, you can table that, if you wouldn't mind.

Mr HOWLETT - This deals entirely with the Brighton fiasco with land. Mr Chair, there are two or three additional copies here if any individual member would like one.

CHAIR - Thank you.

Mr GUTWEIN - Colin, I am sorry I missed the first couple of minutes of your presentation. You mentioned that the greyhound code needs a 20-year blueprint and that under that there would be provision made for infrastructure spending for stake money etcetera. You said that it needed to be performance-based; I am wondering what you meant by that and how that fits in.

Mr HOWLETT - The reason we say that is simply that governments will say that they cannot guarantee revenue from government to government. In our view, it would be quite simple if it was performance-based, providing the Government is not permitted to run down an industry and that is the way it appears at the moment. As I said, and I am repeating myself, the greyhound code has no influence, politically or otherwise, or it doesn't appear to have had any influence over the years that I have been involved.

I was a long-life member of the Greyhound Owners, Trainers and Breeders Association and some 23 years ago I had seven or eight years involved with the association. That is how my family and I became involved with Brighton because we knew it was absolutely essential. If it is performance-based, and the Government is not allowed to run down the code, which it appears it is doing at this very moment, providing that is treated fairly from a performance-based point of view, I think we are talking about revenue earned from betting. At the moment the greyhound industry is producing very close to the amount of money that the gallopers are producing, well in excess of the harness racing. I think it could be very close to a photo finish between the amounts of money that the galloping code and the greyhound code are producing in revenue. The argument would be that if they do not perform and they are treated fairly - and that will have to change because they have never been treated fairly - they would be quite happy to have it performance-based on betting turnover.

Mr GUTWEIN - That is fair enough.

Mr HARRISS - I want to go from the back of that. I want to know, Colin, do you have the statistical data to support that statement that you are getting close to the contribution that the gallopers make?

Mr HOWLETT - I do not have it here but I am sure I can access it for the committee.

CHAIR - If you could do that, thank you. You can provide that to the secretary when you can.

Mr BOOTH - Colin, thank you for your statement so far. What do you see as the threats if TOTE were privatised? Where do you see the greyhound industry being in the future?

Mr HOWLETT - Without being facetious, at the moment we getting our grass mowed on the straight track, which was provided by private money, and the Government absolutely did not, to my knowledge, put one cent into that. So the pluses are, at the moment, that TOTE Tasmania has been good enough to have the grass mowed on the straight trialing track at Brighton. That is a plus. We have made the evaluation that there is a better risk that TOTE Tasmania will treat the industry fairer; if we can prove to the politicians that we are not being treated fairly, we think there is a better proposition with the TOTE.

Needless to say, at the moment, at the Brighton Council the Government seems to be running a coordinated effort to incrementally squeeze the greyhounds out of the Brighton trialing facility. It is questionable whether, in fact, what the Brighton Council is doing is fair and reasonable from a planning perspective because, as I understand, that entire 11-12 hectares that we speak about is annexed as one title to the Brighton training complex. When the straight track went in there and the circle track was put in there, we were told that we did not have a planning problem because that section of ground, that 12 hectares, was already zoned for training purposes.

CHAIR - Colin, I think we need to move back to the core issue that we are here for today and it is about the sale of TOTE. I understand that is an issue that you have.

Mr HOWLETT - With the greatest respect, Chair, it is linked very closely to the sale of TOTE. If you rule differently I will have to accept that but I would think you are being a bit hard on me if you say it is not linked.

Mr BOOTH - Chair, for confirmation, it was following from a line of questioning about the effect of the sale. What Colin is detailing is a general support in the industry, off-track and on-track. I think it is relevant in terms of what I asked him.

Mr HOWLETT - The facility up there is extremely important for the future sustainability of the industry, for training, for people who want to use the facility to get the best performance out of their product for race nights. A lot of people do not like training their product on the track on which they race. I do not understand the technicalities but they will tell you and I can provide that information if you so desire. It is absolutely imperative that the racing code does not lose that 12 hectares of land that was originally intended.. We were duded. I have heard comments here earlier where I believe the industry was duded, because when we went in there the intent and spirit was that we had a 99-year lease on that 11 or 12 hectares of land, which was growing white wattles at the time.

CHAIR - Okay, I understand the nexus.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think the total aggregated industry as whole would be able to come up with a blueprint for the future in terms of your funding needs, support, and infrastructure to maintain your present culture?

Mr HOWLETT - I am absolutely certain they could come up with a business plan. The answer to that is, yes, we can. But on past performance, I would not like our chances.

Mr BOOTH - So there is a lack of trust in what the Government -

Mr HOWLETT - There is a local trust. As I say, it is unfortunate but the greyhound racing code has never had the interest, really. Geoff Pearsall was the only elected member that I can remember who took an interest in greyhound racing. It was about the time he was minister that this took place at Brighton - 23 or 24 years ago.

Mr BOOTH - In terms of a privatisation and sale of TOTE, the areas that you would lose out on would be generally the off-track support that you are currently getting, off the racing track support?

Mr HOWLETT - Private enterprise is generally interested in bottom lines and unless there is a very robust legal contract, there is no way. You only have to cast your mind back to other public enterprises that have been sold. It is always said it has been for the benefit of the customer but it generally does not turn out that way. There is the lack of trust. There is the lack of previous support. There is the lack of private money being spent to provide these facilities that are now being eroded.

CHAIR - Thank you. Are there any further questions to Colin? Do you have a closing statement, Colin?

Mr HOWLETT - I thank the committee for hearing me. I plead with members of the Legislative Council not to pass this bill to sell TOTE Tasmania unless there are long-term legal and binding contractual arrangements to protect us. In my view, the galloping code will be okay. They have the right doors to open and they will be okay. I am very concerned about, to a lesser degree, the harness racing and the greyhounds, and the greyhounds are the ones that always miss out.

Mr BEST - A long-term contract for funding for the codes; is that what you are saying?

Mr GUTWEIN - That is a blueprint you are talking about, is it?

Mr HOWLETT - I am talking about a proper strategic plan with objectives to keep the industries, with particular reference to the greyhounds, vibrant and robust and producing revenue for the State of Tasmania.

Mr BOOTH - You feel that the obligation of Government, before they consider a sale, is to make sure they consult with you, get that blueprint, look at it and factor in whatever arrangements are made?

Mr HOWLETT - Absolutely.

CHAIR - Thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr DON CHALLEN, DEPARTMENT OF TREASURY AND FINANCE, WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Welcome, Mr Challen. Don, you are well aware of our terms of reference and that is the proposed sale of TOTE by the Government of Tasmania and any other matters incidental thereto. I will hand over to you if you would like to make a statement and then you can take some questions from the committee.

Mr CHALLEN - I thought it might help if I made a brief statement outlining the structure and process that the Government has in mind in relation to the restructuring of the industry around TOTE and the sale. Members of this committee would be aware that some legislation has already been before the Parliament last year, and is now in place, that had the effect of separating the funding of the racing industry from the gaming operations of TOTE. That legislation established the Tasmanian Racing Board, which is now in place. It has left the TOTE as a business that is entirely focused on its gaming activities. Apart from that, the status quo hasn't changed and in particular the nexus that exists in the existing legislation between the income of the TOTE business and the funding of the racing industry has not changed.

The Government has in mind to bring two further pieces of legislation before the Parliament. One will be a set of amendments to the Gaming Control Act and the other will be a piece of legislation authorising the sale of the TOTE business. The amendments to the Gaming Control Act will break the funding nexus between the income of the TOTE and the racing industry. That will be replaced by a direct funding arrangement under which it is proposed there would be a funding deed, a legally-binding agreement between the Crown and the Tasmanian Racing Board. That will become the basis for the funding of the racing industry in the future. In addition, these amendments to the Gaming Control Act will provide for the licensing of the totalisator activity that is undertaken by the TOTE at present and bring the TOTE within a regulatory framework that is identical to the framework that other operators in the gaming industry are currently subject to. The mechanism we have in mind to do that would be the creation of a new totalisator endorsement under a Tasmanian gaming licence. If you are familiar with the Gaming Control Act, it creates a number of endorsements under Tasmanian gaming licences. There will be a new one for a totalisator licence and the TOTE will initially be deemed to hold one of those. Obviously there will be the usual structures of taxes and fees that go with the endorsements under the act but beyond that the entire suite of regulatory infrastructure that applies to all other gaming activities will then apply to the TOTE, or ultimately after the sale to a private operator of the TOTE. So we are moving from a regulatory framework in which the TOTE has been subject only to self-regulation to bring them under exactly the same regulatory model that applies to all other operators.

The legislation for the sale of the TOTE will be pretty familiar to you; it will just have the standard requirements that are necessary for us to get a business sold. And once we have the suite of legislation in place the plan is then to go through a very conventional sale process for the sale of the TOTE, pretty much along the lines of the one that we used for the sale of Hobart International Airport Proprietary Limited in the course of last year.

We have engaged some advisors to help us with this process. We have a financial advisor who initially we engaged to help us with some of the industry aspects of the restructuring. Their contract also provides for them to advise us in relation to the sale. We have engaged legal advisors and we have also engaged a probity adviser.

With that Mr Chairman, I am happy to hand over to the committee for any questions you would like to ask.

CHAIR - Don, I might ask the first question of you. Can you give any indication of when any of those particular pieces of legislation might come before the Parliament?

Mr CHALLEN - It is probably a matter best addressed to the Treasurer whom I understand will be with you later this afternoon.

CHAIR - Okay. When did Treasury start analysing this proposed sale? Can you recall that?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes. We first began work on options in relation to the restructuring and the sale on 7 May in 2008.

CHAIR - Okay. And a business case for the sale, has that been prepared?

Mr CHALLEN - A business case for the sale, no.

Mr WILKINSON - Don, if I might. You have said that Treasury began work on the restructuring and sale -

Mr CHALLEN - Options for.

Mr WILKINSON - Options for, yes, in May. Is that the same with all GBEs?

Mr CHALLEN - I do not understand the question.

Mr WILKINSON - What I am asking is do you always look at options in relation to all GBEs as to whether they should or should not be sold?

Mr CHALLEN - Always is probably putting it a little strong. Let us say that we have the government's business portfolio under regular review and there are various trigger points at times that occur like changes of government and changes of minister where we might have a fresh look at the government's business portfolio. But Treasury has been providing advice to Treasurers probably for more than a decade that we felt that the TOTE business was not one that any longer sat very well inside a government business portfolio. Our reviews of the government business portfolio would have had it in a category that had it available for sale if a government was of a mind to do that.

In this particular case we had a discussion with the Treasurer around 7 May which led to me internally commissioning some work that has ultimately grown in advice to government that has led to a decision that the Treasurer announced on 8 January 2009, as I recall. Which has ultimately led to these announcements.

Mr WILKINSON - At the start of December 2008, how far were you down the track of giving that final advice to the Treasurer to allow him to make a decision with obviously the rest of government to sell?

Mr CHALLEN - We were well advanced. We had provided a series of discussion papers to the Treasurer on what needed to be done to restructure the business and ultimately sell it; about how you would go about a sale if the government was of a mind to do that. We had provided advice to the Treasurer that if he so chose he could take to Cabinet to seek approval for the sale.

I emphasise that at that stage no decisions had been made.

Mr WILKINSON - Do you know when that went to Cabinet?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes, I do. The Treasurer approved the cabinet minute for transmission to Cabinet on 19 December. I am not authorised, Mr Chairman, to reveal the next piece of information but I have specific approval in this case. Cabinet approved the sale of the TOTE on 22 December, which is my birthday, Mr Chairman - very auspicious.

Mr WILKINSON - That is right, I will remember that. That has thrown me off what I was going to ask as a matter of fact. I will defer.

Mr GUTWEIN - So that we are clear, Mr Challen, prior to early December - in fact I know it was 4 December - in an upper House committee Mr Aird said that there was no intention to sell TOTE at that stage. In the lower House a couple of weeks earlier, on 20 November, Mr Cox spoke, on behalf of the Treasurer and Minister for Racing, and he said numerous times that TOTE is not for sale. Had the advice received by the Treasurer or by government prior to 20 November on the recommendation to sell TOTE, been received?

Mr CHALLEN - No.

Mr GUTWEIN - On what date was that received by government?

Mr CHALLEN - It would have been in a minute we provided to the Treasurer on 19 November.

Mr GUTWEIN - My question was, was the advice received before 20 November?

Mr CHALLEN - The day before, yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - So it was?

Mr CHALLEN - I do not know when it was received. It was signed by me and left the Treasury on 19 November. Often, these things take at least 24 hours to get to the Treasurer's office.

Mr WILKINSON - Don, the question I was going to ask concerned the restructuring and the selling. Did the TOTE have to be restructured or the racing legislation that we had before us towards the end of last year in relation to restructuring, did that have to take place for the sale?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes. The restructuring could take place without the sale, but you could not have sold that business in the form it was prior to that restructuring.

Mr WILKINSON - Was the restructuring partially done in order to allow it to be placed for sale?

Mr CHALLEN - The restructuring was done because it was a good thing to do. It was in the TOTE's interest and in the interests of the racing industry. One of the things the restructuring has done is to much improve the focus of the TOTE as a business and I think it has positioned us to put the funding of the racing industry on a much better and more secure, more certain footing going forward. All those things were a good idea, but you could not have sold the TOTE business without doing the restructuring. Decisions were made that government would proceed with the restructuring and bring the legislation that came to Parliament late last year forward a long time before any decisions were made in relation to the sale.

Mr WILKINSON - What I am wondering is, was the sale always part of the reasoning behind the restructure? I understand the argument that was used -

Mr CHALLEN - It depends in whose mind. In my mind, yes, because I was advising the Government to proceed with the sale all along. In the Government's mind you will have to ask the Treasurer because the Government considered the issues in sequence. It considered the advisability of proceeding with the restructuring and did not give the sale any particular attention. Then late last year, as you know, it turned to consideration of whether they would proceed with the sale. On 22 December Cabinet made a decision that they would and the Treasurer announced that publicly on 8 January.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Mr Challen, can I take you back to February 2003 - and I know that is quite a way back. There is a document called 'Government Business Divestment' which states in a table that TOTE would be an unlikely candidate for a sale. Can you tell me what happened between 2003 until when you arrived at the decision that TOTE was a good thing to sell? I need to understand how things have changed quite significantly.

Mr CHALLEN - I would have to review that document and the circumstances of it, but it no doubt reflects the thinking of the time. It probably reflects the thinking of the minister and the Government of the day that they were not interested in selling the TOTE. We prepare assessments like that of the government business portfolio from time to time and they reflect the realities of government policy of the day.

For instance, if you saw a document like that today, you would not see the three electricity businesses listed in a column for sale because the government policy of today is definitely not to sell those businesses. One thing that changes is a willingness on the part of government to consider selling certain businesses and the other is changes in market conditions. In 2003 not as many Australian governments had sold their government-owned totalisator businesses as now have. It is just that circumstances change through time.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - It also states that the divestment of any business should not occur until a thorough due diligence process has been conducted. Do you consider that that has happened?

Mr CHALLEN - We have just about completed that. We are in the process of doing it at the moment.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Is there no actual final due diligence material that we could look at at this point in time and say that is the right thing to do and so the sale should proceed?

Mr CHALLEN - With respect, I do not think you should look at that due diligence material ever. I think for that to get into your hands would seriously put at risk the price that we might get for that business. I would certainly counsel you not to ask for it.

Mr BOOTH - Chair, I was going to ask that the committee order the disclosure of all those documents, including the due diligence reports. In fact, I am somewhat concerned from what I have just heard that the decision to sell TOTE may have been made well before both Houses of the Parliament were advised. In order to get to the bottom of that, we are going to need to look at the contract regarding the restructure which is also advising the sale. Was that with Clayton Utz?

Mr CHALLEN - No, the advisers are Deloitte. Clayton Utz are our legal advisers. Mr Chairman, this committee summonsed me to produce a wide range of documents, which I have with me.

CHAIR - Did you say you have these documents with you?

Mr CHALLEN - I have them in my briefcase. I am proposing to pass them to the committee, after I have made a statement in relation to the material, at a convenient time to your committee and the contract that Mr Booth is referring to is in that folder.

CHAIR - Would you like to make that statement now or Kim, have you finished your questioning?

Mr BOOTH - Certainly, either way, Chair, I am happy for Mr Challen to make that statement. I have not finished this line of questioning.

CHAIR - Okay. We will do that in camera when you give that.

Mr CHALLEN - It might be convenient to do this at a later stage of the hearing.

Mr GREEN - Yes, that is exactly right. I was going to say that they are going to do that in camera.

Mr BOOTH - What date was the contract about the restructuring and advising of the sale that was made with Deloitte? You did mention it before but I didn't get that.

Mr CHALLEN - The contract with Deloitte was signed on 11 December. They started work for us before that. They were advised on 24 November 2008, that they had won the mandate and they began work for us on that date but we did not sign the contract until 11 December 2008.

Mr BOOTH - But weren't they contracted to do the restructure advice?

Mr CHALLEN - Not to us.

Mr BOOTH - I made a note that you said you had a contract for advice with someone and I think you said it was Deloitte at the time - the same people to do with giving advice about the restructuring of the industry.

Mr CHALLEN - But they were only commissioned to start that work on 24 November.

Mr BOOTH - After the restructuring had been passed through Parliament.

Mr CHALLEN - No, the restructuring had not been passed through Parliament at that stage.

Mr BOOTH - November last year?

Mr CHALLEN - I don't think so.

Mr BOOTH - The industry restructure regulations went through on 23 November.

Mr CHALLEN - In any event, that is when they commenced -

Mr BOOTH - I am somewhat confused here. You contracted Deloitte to advise on an industry restructure, from what you have said -

Mr CHALLEN - No, not on the industry restructure, on the restructure of the TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - Did they give you advice about the restructure of the industry itself?

Mr CHALLEN - Not prior to that, no.

Mr BOOTH - At the date it went through the House, sometime at the end of November, you engaged with Deloitte to give you advice about how to sell TOTE?

Mr CHALLEN - We engaged with them to give us some advice in relation to restructuring TOTE. A second part of the contract goes on to give advice in relation to the sale, but in fact they have hardly done anything under the second part of that yet. Most of the work that has been done to date has been on the structure of the business, what you have to do to make sure it is a viable business going forward. They have been doing a due diligence exercise for us as part of that contract.

Mr BOOTH - Will you be tabling that contract and the documents?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - I have two questions and one is in regard to due diligence. On 24 November you contracted Deloitte to look at the restructuring of TOTE, including the due diligence required for a sale?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - That is one month almost to the day before Cabinet approved the sale of TOTE. Would that be normal to be as pre-emptive as that?

Mr CHALLEN - We needed the work done.

Mr GUTWEIN - Even if there wasn't going to be a sale?

Mr CHALLEN - You will see when you see the contract that it is structured in such a way that there are two distinct bodies of work - they are quite separate - and I don't have to proceed with the second body of the work - and I don't want to - if the Government did not proceed to approve the sale. I structured the contract in such a way that the restructuring of the TOTE business advice I could get and then I could get the adviser to go on and give me the advice in relation to the sale.

There is something I would like to add, Mr Chairman, but I don't want to say it in public. I can add it later, if you like. I will explain to you why I structured the contract that way.

CHAIR - I accept that advice. We'll keep that until later.

Mr GUTWEIN - The other question is in regard to the decision-making process of government. I think you were asked a question earlier about whether or not a business case had been prepared for the sale of TOTE and you said that it hadn't.

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - On what basis did you provide advice then to government that it should proceed with the sale if the business case wasn't prepared? On what basis would Cabinet have made a decision to proceed with the sale of TOTE if there wasn't a business case prepared?

Mr CHALLEN - I don't understand this interest in a business case. It is not normal to do a business case when you are going to sell something. It is next to impossible to do that until you know what you can get for selling it. The reality is that, as part of the sale process itself, the final step before you recommend to the Government that it proceeds to sell to the selected bidder, is that you provide advice that the outcome of the sale will produce a preferable outcome to maintaining ownership of the business. I don't understand the interest in a business case.

Mr GUTWEIN - Could you explain the basis of the advice because perhaps that included the information that might be included in the business case?

Mr CHALLEN - The advice was around whether a totalisator business was something that was a good thing to have in the government business portfolio. Our view is, and has been for some time, that there is no particular reason for a government to own a totalisator business. Why would you? We had some connections between our totalisator business and the funding of the racing industry that provided a bit of an attachment within some quarters inside the public sector intending to own the TOTE, but that was a bit of an oddity. When you take that away and replace it with something that provides better and more certain funding to the racing industry, you are then left with a business that has no particular reason for being within the government business portfolios, in the same category as the Printing Authority. Why would you own a printing authority?

Mr GUTWEIN - In regard to that advice and using the Printing Authority as an example, any business has, hopefully, a profit at the end of the year. It would provide either dividend to government or tax equivalents. The TOTE, quite separate to the functions of the Printing Authority, provides a much greater benefit to Tasmania than what it simply declares in profits or the dividends to government or tax equivalents.

Mr CHALLEN - Does it? What benefit is that?

Mr GUTWEIN - The Chairman of Racing indicates that TOTE in the last 12 months has paid around $23 million to the Tasmanian racing industry and that would be a benefit to Tasmania, would it not?

Mr CHALLEN - If the racing industry gets the $23 million from somewhere else, there is no particular benefit from having the TOTE to the racing industry. The only benefit is that a racing industry needs a certain level of funding.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mr Challen, that goes to where my question was going, if I could finish. That advice to government and that provided advice as to how that sort of benefit to the Tasmanian racing industry might be protected under any sale.

Mr CHALLEN - Yes. What we have proposed and what I understand the Treasurer is proposing to do is to put in place a funding deed with the Tasmanian Racing Board in which the funding to the racing industry would come directly from the government budget. So the racing industry, instead of having an uncertain stream of income coming from the TOTE, subject to the vagaries of how the TOTE business performs, will have a certain stream of revenue like other things that are funded by the Government.

Mr GUTWEIN - Are the parameters of that deed in the document you are going to share with us or not?

Mr CHALLEN - No, they are not.

Mr GUTWEIN - Are you at liberty to share the parameters of Treasury's view in regard to that deed?

Mr CHALLEN - No, these are matters that are under policy discussion at the moment and that question is best put to the Treasurer.

Mr WILKINSON - I suppose one question could be, Don, was the advice received? Is it classed as ideological or philosophical advice or based on hard-nosed accounting and economic analysis?

Mr CHALLEN - It is definitely hard-nosed and it is definitely based on analysis. I do not think it is ideological or philosophical. But what businesses governments need to own are subject to a bit of fashion. Fifty years ago there were different views around about what were good things to be in government business portfolios and life is different now. Totalisator businesses were owned by probably all State and Territory governments in Australia up until a decade ago and now we are amongst the last to get rid of them. Likewise, 50 years ago I imagine every government had a construction business like our old department of construction and probably they all had government printers as well but now nobody does. You could say it is, in part, subject to a bit of fashion.

Mr WILKINSON - Why now? Is it because -

Mr CHALLEN - Sorry, if I may just finish that bit.

Mr WILKINSON - Yes.

Mr CHALLEN - Our view is that governments are not bright at being business owners and they are better off to confine their ownership of businesses to things that really need to be inside the government business portfolio.

Why now? We think this is a good time. The TOTE business has been performing well and there is no certainty that the business will continue to perform well. It is a very cut-throat, competitive business that it is operating in. So why wouldn't you exploit an opportunity to sell it when its value is probably at a relative high?

Mr BOOTH - Do you have a formal analysis of that or is that just a personal opinion?

Mr CHALLEN - It was a personal opinion based on, I confess, not huge expertise of the industry, but we have subsequently taken advice on that from expert industry advisers which confirms it.

Mr WILKINSON - Without sitting from outside in the upper House, Don, one could argue that the economy has been travelling well over the last x amount of years. Tasmania is still doing well, it would seem, as opposed to other States and certainly countries. But there are going to be difficulties with the budget as a result of GST and as a result of duties, payroll tax maybe, et cetera. Was the major reason for the sale in order to allow the Government to continue to fund things which they would not have otherwise have been able to fund if they do not sell the TOTE?

Mr CHALLEN - The decision was not directly made around particular budget pressures that existed at a point in time. But for a few years, the Government has been putting a particular priority on infrastructure spending, one I strongly support. The experience with the airport sale demonstrated the benefit that you can get from divesting yourself of a business that you do not really need to own in terms of having some money available to put into significant pieces of infrastructure - our irrigations schemes, our transport hub, road upgrades and the like. So selling a business that is ripe for sale is attractive when we can put the funds to good use, particularly on infrastructure.

If you hold the view, as I do, that the Government does not need to own this business, why would you keep it? Why wouldn't you put it into public infrastructure?

Mr BOOTH - It is not for the benefit of the industry that it is being sold, then? It is clearly to grab the cash and put it into something else?

Mr CHALLEN - I would not characterise it like that, Mr Booth. But no, it is not for the benefit of the industry, though I think that the industry will be better off as a result of these arrangements. It is an act of faith that the TOTE business is going to continue performing well. If I was a member of that industry I would be very happy to have my uncertain revenue stream tied to the fortunes of the TOTE replaced by a very certain and secure income stream coming directly from the Budget.

Mr BOOTH - I am intrigued in regard to what you said about the business case and your view that in fact it would not require a business case in this regard because you are simply selling the business on. I do not think I'm in conflict with what the Auditor-General's evidence was this morning that clearly you should have a business case prepared that takes into account all of the aspects, both social and economic, of the value of TOTE to the industry as a whole and that you would actually have to look at that. From a probity point of view that would be the appropriate thing to do. What have you got to say about that?

Mr WILKINSON - Certain evidence was in camera.

Mr CHALLEN - It doesn't matter; I do not know what he said so I cannot react to something I did not hear. Let me reiterate; I do not agree that it is necessary or appropriate to do a business case before you make a decision about whether you sell a business like this. You need to do what you would do in a business case at the final stage when you know what the market value of it is. How would we have done a business case for the airport sale, for instance. What price would you put on it to decide whether it was better sold or retained?

Mr GUTWEIN - That is ridiculous, Mr Challen. You must have had a bottom-line figure that a business case would support to say, 'Well, okay, if we do not get that price then we will not go to market'.

Mr CHALLEN - Indeed, but that is the retention value.

Mr GUTWEIN - So have you done a business case on that basis for the TOTE?

Mr CHALLEN - No, I have already answered that question. We have not done a business case for the sale of the TOTE. We will at the final stage before we recommend that the Government goes ahead and sells it. We will show them what the analysis looks like and compare the sale price that is available to the chosen bidder with the retention value of the business. If the sale price exceeds the retention value then we will recommend selling it and if it doesn't we won't.

Mr GUTWEIN - Then how can you justify the money that is obviously involved to this point in going through the process in engaging Deloitte's to look at his and do due diligence before taking it to the market to know whether or not? If indications early on through the process are that  $x$  can be achieved but you know that you need to get  $y$  to even make it worthwhile going forward, how do you put in place those sort of decision-making deal-breakers, if you like, that would stop you going right through to the end of a sales process where you actually get to a point where  $x$  price is achieved and you say, 'Well, gee, it has taken us six months but no, that is not going to do the job for us. I wish we had pulled out earlier'? That is a ridiculous proposition.

Mr CHALLEN - With respect, I do not think that any of my propositions are ridiculous.

Mr GUTWEIN - Well, I think that one was.

Mr CHALLEN - I do not think that it was and I take offence at being told my propositions are ridiculous. We have done some analysis on what the range of possible proceeds from a sale is and that analysis gives us a degree of confidence that the proceeds of the sale will exceed the retention value of the business. But that is not a business case; that is just a bit of analysis that gives you some confidence that a recommendation to government that this business is suitable for sale is a good recommendation.

As I have said twice now, when we get to the end of this process we will have to give a recommendation to government on whether they proceed knowing then that the final bid price either exceeds or does not exceed the retention value. It is possible we will get all that way down the track and find that the offered sale price does not exceed the retention value, in which case we will say to the Government, 'Do not proceed'. I think that is a fairly unlikely outcome in view of the analysis that we have done and the advice that we have received from our expert advisers.

Mr HARRISS - I think it is important to keep developing this point as people are going because I was going to go down the business case path.

Mr BOOTH - Do you not think, Mr Challen, that there should be a social licence to sell something like this. The sale of a GBE that provides a lot of ephemeral benefits beyond just the raw dollars that come back into the Government needs to be considered, which is what the business case, one would have thought, should have assessed - the actual contribution that TOTE makes, not just revenue flows to the Government but industry support. A lot of that, from what we have heard, is ephemeral, intangible. It creates community, it maintains the culture of racing and it keeps the people that provide the product alive and sustained and so forth. There is a huge amount of concern out there in the different industry codes that TOTE's sale could destroy the culture of racing and the culture of their industries and associations, because that is the picture that has occurred since the tri-co-location and in fact even earlier than that. The people that provide the products are going to be losing their social activities and culture and microeconomic activities that flow from that big family of people involved in racing. Therefore, why is it that you seem only to have a focus on the actual dollars that flow to the Government, the retention value of TOTE based on dollars alone?

Mr CHALLEN - The operations of the TOTE provide two sorts of benefits. They provide a flow of funding that at the moment goes to the racing industry and they provide employment and payments to contractors and so on, so they have a place in the overall economy. It does not matter who owns the business; if the business is here and is operating then all those other benefits, other than the flow of funding to the racing industry, will continue. Government does not have to own it. Look at the airport. The Government does not own the airport anymore but planes still land, people park their cars, the shops sell goods, people at the airport are still employed.

Mr BOOTH - With respect, sure the airport has changed. They are now a business and you are paying twice as much to park your car than you used to so there has actually been, I would argue, quite a detriment to the average person who goes out to the airport. They might be able to get a better cup of coffee, perhaps, or something like that through privatisation but what about something as complex as an industry which has been based around something like TOTE for a fair while? What I am putting to you is that there are a lot of things that are difficult to actually assess, unless you analyse it with some sort of social impact study at least. You can do the economic stuff in terms of the value of the airport itself in terms of income streams to the Government, but the economic and social activity around TOTE at the moment and around the industry needs to be analysed to make sure that you are getting the full social licence to sell the business off because it is a lot more than just the income stream. Unless you protect that and know what it is then it could have a detriment on the industry.

Mr CHALLEN - I just have to say I do not agree with you. Putting aside the benefit that the racing industry gets from funding - and we have an alternative way, a better way of doing that - apart from that, all of the benefits that you get socially or economically from the existence of the TOTE will continue with somebody else other than the Government owning it. I do not think there are ephemeral benefits. I think the culture of the industry and the way it relates to communities and so on comes from the racing industry and the funding that comes to the racing industry. It has nothing to do with the TOTE at all. The connection between the TOTE and the racing industry is just an accident of history.

Mr BEST - With the tracks, the ownership of the venues, who owns them?

Mr CHALLEN - Those bits that were previously owned by the TOTE, under the legislation that has already been passed by the Parliament, will go to the Tasmanian Racing Board. It has not actually happened yet. There is a transfer notice that is in the process of being sorted out so the mechanics of getting the old racing assets and liabilities that were with the TOTE into the hands of the Tasmanian Racing Board has not happened. As I understand, it is being worked on at the moment, but it will happen.

Mr BEST - At the moment, although I do not expect you to be able to answer this in detail, who owns the tracks? Are some owned by TOTE and some not?

Mr CHALLEN - Mr Best, I do not know in detail. I understand in concept that TOTE owned some of the infrastructure and some of the infrastructure was owned by racing clubs. Nothing will change, apart from the fact that those bits that were owned by the TOTE will become owned by the Tasmanian racing industry but beyond that, this is not my field.

Mr BEST - This might be commercial-in-confidence here, but is that part of the deed, looking after those facilities?

Mr CHALLEN - The deed is about funding. It is about how much money the industry is going to have for its recurrent funding and its capital works. The ownership of assets has already been dealt with in the legislation that Parliament passed last year and all that remains is just a little bit of mechanical stuff to move the assets from TOTE's books onto TRB's books. A rather simple thing in concept but a bit messy in practicality.

CHAIR - Members, I am aware that we have probably a considerable amount of work to do in camera and we are down to about 18 minutes or so to go for Mr Challen.

Mr HARRISS - Don, just going back to your comments about 7 May last year when you first started assessing options. You said something to the effect that you had a discussion with the Treasurer around that time about the possible sale. Who initiated that discussion?

Mr CHALLEN - That particular discussion I do not recall, Mr Harriss. There had been conversations going on around these issues since Mr Aird became Treasurer. He became Treasurer in March 2006, if I remember rightly, and I have been having conversations with him around the government business portfolio and around things like the airport and the Printing Authority and other businesses since then. So there would have been a conversation that took place a couple of days before and you will see in this pile of information I am going to leave with you some e-mail exchanges with Mr Aird's office in which I was given authority to commence some work, and I commenced work. You will see e-mails from me to my staff asking them to do various things to get stuff under way.

Mr BOOTH - With regard to the TOTE at the moment, there is no dividend coming back to the Government, I believe, and it has not come back for a few years, is that correct?

Mr CHALLEN - We have arrangements for a special dividend in place that has been suspended. I would have to check, Mr Booth, I do not recall off the top of my head.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, I thought legislation went through that absolved them of a couple of years of non-payment and, in fact, the legislation was that no-one had to pay a dividend. I may be wrong but I thought that is what we passed.

Mr CHALLEN - It does not ring a bell but I would have to take the question on notice.

Mr BOOTH - But in terms of cash, you do not think there has been a dividend coming back and after years suspended or otherwise, a special dividend?

Mr CHALLEN - My understanding is, and I would have to check, but I do not think there has been any direct benefit to the budget from the operations of the TOTE for some time.

Mr BOOTH - So if it were to be sold, if that was the decision that it was sold, where would the extra fat come for the person who bought the business if they are already incapable of paying a dividend? Isn't that going to rack up the race day charges? They have to get an income stream somehow, so how are they going to do it?

Mr CHALLEN - They are not capable of paying a dividend to government because they are paying all of their income to the racing industry. They are still a very viable, profitable business. It is just that everything that comes out of the TOTE business ends up in the racing industry.

Mr BOOTH - As far as the public are concerned, we own TOTE and the budget is all out of the public purse. So let us say the net return at the moment might be going from TOTE to the racing industry. Are you saying, sell it and then transfer that obligation back to the budget, consolidated revenue?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr BOOTH - So, somewhere, the person who is buying TOTE is going to want to make more than the current return to the industry otherwise they are not going to buy it, are they?

Mr CHALLEN - They, I expect, will look at the opportunities for growing the business with synergies with their existing businesses, all the usual things. People will see it as a desirable asset simply because it provides a good, steady return. There is an awful lot of superannuation money around at the moment just desperately looking for good yield and secure businesses. So that is one of the reasons we think that is an attractive business to sell at the moment.

Mr BOOTH - But if that yield was available in that business, it ought to be coming into it now and flowing back to the racing industry.

Mr CHALLEN - But it is flowing to the racing industry, that is the point.

Mr BOOTH - If it is going to be of no net benefit then, other than allowing a privatised operator to bring in additional revenue -

Mr CHALLEN - The net benefit is, we are going to get the sale proceeds.

Mr BOOTH - But I think the detriment will be to the race day participants, the people that park their cars. All sorts of things are going to happen as a result of a privatised TOTE.

Mr CHALLEN - No, because those things depend on the funding of the racing industry and they have nothing to do with the TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - With respect, that is not correct. I am talking about in terms of the globalised pool of money, whether it be a public asset owned by TOTE or whether it be consolidated revenue. If there is a cost shift from the support of the racing industry, away from TOTE and back to consolidated revenue, unless we get that back as a benefit somehow through some taxation on TOTE turnover or something, I cannot see this isn't going to result in increased charges, like at the airport.

Mr CHALLEN - I find your thought process a bit obscure.

Mr BOOTH - I am sorry that you can't understand those complex issues.

CHAIR - We seem to be going around and around in circles here. At this stage we only have 15 minutes left. We need to move in camera. Therefore I would ask that people clear the room.

THE HONOURABLE MICHAEL AIRD, TREASURER, WAS CALLED AND EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you for appearing before the committee, Michael. Obviously being a minister of the Crown, you do not have to be sworn in. At this stage I will invite you, Treasurer, to make a brief statement to the committee and then I will open it up for questions.

Mr AIRD - I think there are a number of issues in play at the one time and my view is that we have, on one hand, a racing industry and, on the other hand, a wagering industry and I have always had a view that I did not think it was a government function to run a wagering industry but it was a government function to support the racing industry. So from very early on in my time as Treasurer I had a view that I thought TOTE should be in a position where it could be divested at some stage. Obviously that takes in a lot of judgment and a lot of information in terms of understanding the markets and where we can go from there.

I think it is fair to say that over a period of time, initially, I did not think TOTE had enough value in it to be an asset which was suitable for divestment. I now believe the time is right and that is why we announced that we are prepared to divest TOTE.

Obviously there has been some concern about the racing industry and the funding model for that, and I think that is a legitimate concern for them and I am working with the Tasmanian Racing Board to put in place a funding model which should be in place for the duration of 20 years. There are two components for that funding model.

One would be in terms of capital expenditure and the other would be on the operational expenditure, and I have said that the racing industry will be no worse off than it is now in terms of its funding. We have not concluded our discussions about that but I believe we will be able to get to an agreed position. It is my intention to sign a deed with the Tasmanian Racing Board which will give allocations over a time frame. With the model that I am looking at the deed would endure for 20 years. There would be initial allocations for four or five years on a rolling basis and we would negotiate the sixth year within the second year, if you can understand the methodology. That would allow us plenty of time to understand how we would make those allocations and obviously that would have to be transferred by virtue of the Consolidated Fund.

With the wagering issue, the principle is whether TOTE is part of core government business. If you say it is, obviously there is a difference of opinion about that. The other question is whether this is the right time? I have satisfied myself over a period that now is the right time and -

Mr BOOTH - How did you satisfy yourself of that?

Mr AIRD - A number of different things. Basically after observing what is occurring with wagering industries generally around Australia and what is happening in Victoria, I think we can extract optimum value out of TOTE now, considering that it has had a 30 per cent growth in turnover. In any divestment you have to in a data room show the data that will encourage someone to offer the optimum price. If you compare TOTE's revenue performance with that of similar wagering operations you will see that they are out-performing them in terms of turnover and that -

Mr BOOTH - Have you advice as to that? Did you actually get formal advice or -

Mr AIRD - There is a range of areas of advice and one is my knowledge of those potential organisations that might be interested in this type of asset.

Mr BOOTH - Personal knowledge?

Mr AIRD - Yes, personal knowledge. In the end, this is a judgment call. We took some advice from Deloitte about the appetite of the market, the potential bidders and whether they had enough capital to actually buy it.

Mr BOOTH - So you actually sought advice from Deloitte as to whether you should sell or not?

Mr AIRD - I know there has been some discussion generally about it. Deloitte were engaged for two parts really. They were engaged in terms of the separation of the wagering from Racing Services and I also sought preliminary advice from them in terms of the market at the time, if you like, if I wanted to support the divestment. So Deloitte were engaged at that level and by the time that I had signed off on a cabinet submission on 19 December I had had advice in terms of that information from Deloitte.

Mr BOOTH - For the market appetite?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr WILKINSON - When was that?

Mr AIRD - That was part of the cabinet submission.

Mr WILKINSON - What was the date?

Mr AIRD - In terms of?

Mr WILKINSON - One, when you asked for that advice from Deloitte and, two, when you got it?

Mr AIRD - I need to go back and check the actual dates, but I do know that I wanted commentary from Deloitte in preparing the cabinet submission, so it would been probably around the 19th - I actually know that on 19th I had that information.

Mr WILKINSON - The 19th of?

Mr AIRD - December.

Mr BOOTH - Can you table any advice for us?

Mr AIRD - It is a cabinet submission.

Mr BOOTH - You can table that.

Mr AIRD - No, I cannot.

Mr BOOTH - We might have a different view on that.

CHAIR - Can you give the committee any indication on when the legislation might be tabled?

Mr AIRD - We are preparing basically three pieces of legislation. I had hoped today to give you a draft of the TOTE sale bill. It is still in draft form. I will give it to the committee when I am satisfied that it is a closer final draft than it is at the moment. There are bits that I am not satisfied actually give a true indication about what we intend to do and how we intend to divest that.

Mr GUTWEIN - I was wondering what part, if any, the Commonwealth's mid-year financial report might have played. It would have been released, I think from memory, in early November or thereabouts, and it showed that we would lose around $300 million over this year in the forward Estimates with GST funding.

Mr AIRD - No. Let me be very clear about this. The time frame for making a decision was not affected by our fiscal position. It is true that through a successful sale we will gather some capital and that would be put to good use but that would be a transparent process in any event, it will not be part of this budget. It will not be factored in.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mind you, the problems that we face are going to be more far reaching than this budget as you well know.

Mr AIRD - I think it is a legitimate question. I am not saying that it had a capacity to affect; it is not going to affect our operational balance in that sense. The allocation will be in terms of investing in asset and therefore it will not be affecting our current expenditure to that degree.

The methodology will be that it will probably come in into the operating balance and affect the income of that and it will go to the Consolidated Fund to the operating balance and then it would be allocated in a way that would be identified in the various accounts it would be put to and that would affect most probably the fiscal balance but not the operating balance per se.

In other words, it is a bit similar that in the budget sense some of the allocations to nation building and so on it can throw artificial surpluses that do not represent your underlying business and how we are actually operating and what the ongoing operating costs are. Those types of events, in terms of transfers, will come in and affect your operating surpluses. To be quite frank, I would not sell the airport now in the current atmosphere.

Mr BOOTH - The superannuants would probably sell it back to you.

Mr AIRD - I did not say that as a provocative statement, I am just using it as an example.

Mr BOOTH - They would be pretty happy to get their cash back because what you are saying is it is not worth what you got for it now.

Mr AIRD - No, well -

Mr BOOTH - That's the corollary of what you are saying.

Members interjecting.

CHAIR - Order.

Mr AIRD - In fairness, let me finish what I was intending to put forward to you. We sold that at the peak market, no doubt about that. That was a timing issue. I believe that now is the time to sell TOTE. I know there is a strong appetite. There may be some local appetite to be a bidder and I know there will be some national and there could be some international as well and that is what I want to ensure occurs because I want a good competitive process to ensure we extract the optimal value from it.

Mr GUTWEIN - We heard this morning from the greyhound industry.

Mr AIRD - I heard they were very complimentary.

Mr GUTWEIN - I think it would be worth watching television tonight. I don't think I need to explain - you'll catch up in about an hour-and-a-half about what they had to say.

Obviously, one of the key issues that we have is the racing industry and their concerns about being supported. You've mentioned that there'll be a mechanism and a deed. I don't think that was something that we discussed in camera; I think that is something we can talk about. We know from the annual report that somewhere between $20 million and $30 million was paid to the racing industry last year. In fact, I think the chairman says in his annual report that last year it was $23.5 million or something, in funding, that went to the racing industry. Will the deed reflect that type of amount?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - The other question I have in regards to what you said about the rolling five years; I'm presuming that you get to year two, you renegotiate another five years which takes you through to six years so you're actually going to have 14 or 15 renegotiations of the deeds throughout the 20-year period?

Mr AIRD - That's the thing; you can have any variation of that if you like. If you go into four-year time frames, basically, we would be in the forward estimates, we think, in four-year terms but it could be five years. There's a bit of a mythology about the funding relationship now because everyone says that TOTE's a cash cow for the racing industry, but there's no guarantee of that. What we're saying is that we're prepared for a 20-year deed to wear any risk and we guarantee for the first time ever a 20-year funding model. I can give you an indication; I think that there should be an allocation of around $40 million capex. The Tasmanian Racing Board would then deal with the allocations from that; they would work out the priority.

Mr GUTWEIN - So, $40 million over the 20 years?

Mr AIRD - No. This would be dependent upon the sale. There are two ways to do it. You could just have a capital injection of $40 million straightaway and they could have the benefit of that or you could have a phased approach over the term of the original four-year allocation. I haven't determined the proper model because I haven't completed my discussions with the TRB. Basically, the racing service's costs are, in totality, whatever the allocation of the different funds going in, round about $32 million. What I'd be prepared to do is to provide a guaranteed amount in the deed for x dollars and allow some avenue for the TRB to capture the sponsorship and the race field's revenue that is going to be generated in the future. That gives them a growth path for their own revenue but this underwrites the basic requirements that they have -

Mr GUTWEIN - And you've indexed that through?

Mr AIRD - Yes, we've indexed that through and we have thought about that a bit. We think, in terms of CPI, that we would try to get a fixed percentage to try to flatten out CPI variations. We are in interesting times -

Mr GUTWEIN - We are in interesting times.

Mr AIRD - And perhaps the best way to do that would be to settle on a percentage rather than just CPI so then they can plan with some certainty rather than just have the variations of CPI. We don't know when the Reserve Bank is going to come back and say CPI is important.

Mr GUTWEIN - And then it is back out of the bottle again.

Mr WILKINSON - We are jumping all over the shop, but we started off by asking about the time frames; is it fair to say that you received advice from Treasury that TOTE should have been sold or should be sold either 19 or 20 November of last year?

Mr AIRD - That would be about right. I think there was a brief that came through from Treasury around that time.

Mr WILKINSON - At that time, had there been any information that you'd seen from Deloitte or any other body suggesting that it should or shouldn't be sold?

Mr AIRD - Not that I can recall, no. In terms of making an assessment the annual report really highlights the financial performance of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - I can see over the last four years, from 2005 onwards, it has increased dramatically - well, not dramatically but certainly significantly and I can see it would be a good time to sell. But one could also argue the opposite, that it is a long-term one, and I suppose that is the argument.

Mr AIRD - Okay.

Mr WILKINSON - But in relation to 19 November or 20 November, there was advice that you were aware of at about that time that TOTE should be sold?

Mr AIRD - Yes. I have a time line that says 19 November, a minute to me with EEO, a cabinet minute for approval.

Mr WILKINSON - So was it at that stage that you would have spoken to others in relation to putting a proposal to Cabinet that it should be sold? Is that the way it goes?

Mr AIRD - When you say 'others'?

Mr WILKINSON - Other members of the Government maybe, or members of TOTE.

Mr AIRD - I did not canvass this very widely and you will notice here that even as late as 19 November when I got the original minute I did not approve it. I was satisfied that by that stage it should be sold but until then, until you sign off, it is not for sale. I was prepared then, as I am now, to back my judgment with the right information. I know that TOTE is a good business, I know there is an appetite for it and I also know that there are changes afoot within the industry that I think are going to be an interesting challenge, and I do not think government should be involved in that.

Mr GUTWEIN - In the wagering industry?

Mr AIRD - Yes, the wagering industry.

Mr WILKINSON - In relation to the restructuring of the industry which, as you know, occurred with final legislation around about November of last year, was part of the reasoning behind that that certainly it made it easier to sell, as you would be aware, and it makes it cleaner to be for sale, as you would be aware or should be aware?

Mr AIRD - As I started out by explaining, there are two parts here. It is true that they may have converged or crossed over at various stages but it was always my view as Minister for Racing that I wanted three distinct parts of TOTE - that is, the radio station, the wagering business and the racing business. In terms of being organised for divestment, that was a key decision in how we can separate those things. The other determinant was that it was always my intention to bring TOTE under the Gaming Commission and bring it under the Gaming Control Act, and we are going to do that in any event.

While the separation was never a motivation, I think you needed to have the separation in any event. To be quite frank with you, until you make a decision to divest you have not divested. I think the separation was important for good accountability and regulatory reasons. I think that indicates my belief that we needed to have the Gaming Control Act as a way of regulating the wagering business.

Mr WILKINSON - In relation to the knowledge now that you are wishing to sell, what is the difference between this year and last year? Some might well argue that with the GST down, as was stated by Peter, with stamp duties obviously going to be down, maybe payroll tax et cetera, there is going to be a hole in the budget and this is one way of filling that hole.

Mr AIRD - It does not actually, though.

Mr WILKINSON - It won't fill it completely. Does it fill it at all?

Mr AIRD - I will be quite frank with you. In relation to the operating costs, the ongoing recurrent, it does not fill the hole in terms of the pressure on the operating balance. It can assist in the allocations of capital works and infrastructure and so on - that is true - but it is not a direct fiscal mechanism, and that is why I was drawing the example. That, really, nearly is a coincidence. In my view, if I did not think there were a strong appetite and a strong competitive position relating to the sale, I would not be proceeding with it.

Mr WILKINSON - So you are saying the major difference now between January 2009 as opposed to January 2008 is the fact that you believe now is the right time as opposed to 2008, because there was still an increase in 2008, as you know? You could still argue the same questions that your view, and other people's views perhaps in government, was that the Government should not be involved with a TOTE. It would just appear to be thoroughly coincidental that here we are, hard times, let's sell.

Mr AIRD - That is very simplistic assessment.

Mr WILKINSON - Yes, it is. It is one that can be made though, is it not?

Mr AIRD - There are people around who will make these assessments, including politicians, and I understand they can make that judgment. If you look at the value in TOTE, you will see that the growth is there and the potential is there, and there are other aspects of the industry you have to put in international and national context.

Mr GUTWEIN - And the fact that we have a hole in the budget is just convenient timing.

CHAIR - Order.

Mr AIRD - But it is not going to go to the budget.

Mr GUTWEIN - But at the end of the day it is going to be able to be spent. It will become taxpayers' funds. Let us not muck about with it.

Mr AIRD - I agree with that.

Mr GUTWEIN - And I understand it will not hold up the operational problems that we have.

Mr AIRD - Of course. We believe that the results of the sale will be put to good use. In a political sense we will make judgments about that, the same way as you will or Mr Booth will say that it's a waste, or that we could do better with that, or whatever. I think that is a legitimate argument. I am quite happy to have that argument and we will have it.

Mr GUTWEIN - It is a reasonable debate.

CHAIR - Mr Wilkinson has the floor.

Mr WILKINSON - You can see the growth in TOTE over the last four years, and the last year especially. One could argue that in hard times betting increases - there is evidence to suggest that wagering increases - therefore the value could increase by January 2010, and if that is the case one could well argue why sell now. Why sell now when people wanting to purchase the TOTE may not have the same amount of money available now as they might have next year, or vice versa.

Mr AIRD - No, it could be worse.

Mr WILKINSON - You are saying it could be worse?

Mr AIRD - It could be worse. In assessing those types of opportunities and risks, my firm belief is that we will extract maximum value out of TOTE now.

Mr BOOTH - But you do not have any advice to that effect. It is a gut feeling.

Mr AIRD - No, we have advice, as I indicated, from Deloitte to say that the market is right for this.

Mr WILKINSON - That was going to be my last question. In relation to that, the only way you could make that decision, I want to suggest, is if you had independent professional advice to suggest yes, now is the time to sell, and are you saying that is what you got?

Mr AIRD - No, what I am saying is this: it is same judgment I made with the selling of the airport.

Mr BOOTH - So that was a gut feeling as well?

Mr AIRD - No. You know, you talk to people, you understand what's going on in the market. There are people involved in the industry, there are people involved in banks, there are people involved and -

Mr BOOTH - With respect, as the Treasurer, surely you'd actually seek broader counsel than the old mate at the pub, surely.

Mr AIRD - I did seek advice from Deloitte who gave preliminary advice to say the market was there.

Mr BOOTH - When was that?

Mr GUTWEIN - What date was that?

Mr AIRD - I've mentioned it before. That advice was incorporated in the cabinet submission that I signed on the 19th.

Mr BOOTH - But the advice was sought prior to that, obviously?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GREEN - With respect to some of the questions that were asked about the industry itself and the racing board, a lot of the discussion you've briefly answered a moment ago but the various codes, of course, are concerned about the proportion that they get from those funds. Is it then entirely up to the racing board and their ability to lobby through the racing board to achieve the best outcome for their particular code or is there some other mechanism that is being considered?

Mr AIRD - No-one was really satisfied with the old model. I believe that the new model allows for the best opportunity in the fact that all the codes have to meet with the board at various stages to put their view. Yes, it is up to the TRB to make their decision about how they allocate the resources. My job is to say, 'Here's $40 million cap ex. You make your judgments about how best to spend that'. I base that $40 million on a reasonable understanding about what are going to be the future developments in the racing -

Mr GREEN - That's capital expenditure but I'm talking about stakes money and -

Mr AIRD - Yes, and in turn the TRB will be making decisions about that and we will be ensuring that they won't be any worse off as they are -

Mr GREEN - But if the revenue were coming from TOTE, as it does now, the same position would exist; that is, that they would still make decisions about how that allocation goes.

Mr AIRD - Under the old model -

Mr GREEN - Yes.

Mr AIRD - TOTE would make those decisions.

Mr GREEN - So if it is never sold, if we don't get the right price for it and it's not sold?

Mr AIRD - Under the model now, we are saying that we can give greater security to the funding of the racing industry than ever before by signing a deed.

Mr GREEN - If a new entity buys it, it will be regulated?

Mr AIRD - We haven't quite determined the regime that will be in place in terms of taxation or licence fee and so on. We haven't determined that. To be quite frank, we need to get through this exercise we are talking about now but I am thinking about the model and obviously Parliament will have to consider that.

Mr GREEN - But the expectation is obviously that there are funds coming back to the Government as a result of their operation.

Mr AIRD - There will be some returns back to the Government, yes.

Mr GREEN - Yes. Some of the line of questions is that it is gone forever and that you don't get anything back at all.

Mr AIRD - No, what I am saying is that under the present arrangement with TOTE there's no guarantee of any of the funding. What I am actually providing is greater long-term security than they've ever had before. If you were relying on TOTE, you are relying on a wagering industry. I just make this point: the racing industry here contributes 6.5 per cent to the total TOTE turnover. That's why there needed to be a separation. This is a very serious wagering business and you can see where the growth factor is in its wagering business and really that's what we are trying to capture now, the value in that and put it to work for the Tasmanian people. That includes a very substantial commitment to the racing industry.

Mr BOOTH - There is something I do not understand here in your theory. You have this plum tree at the moment with TOTE which is at the moment looking after the industry, providing for the industry. It is like an internalised cash or income stream that is used by the industry to keep itself going. You are proposing to get rid of that plum tree, sell it to someone else. You are going to get the cash that you get out of that sale and you will put that back into some capital expenditure to improve some of the tracks and facilities that they need now but from that point on, once you have expended the value of TOTE which may or may not exceed that amount - we do not know what it is going to bring - you may have the benefit of a bit more cash in consolidated revenue that has come back from the sale, surplus from the cap ex, Effectively, but from that point on that is no longer going to make a yield specifically that you could hypothecate across to the racing industry itself. Isn't that then going to shift the yearly cost back to consolidated revenue, which will be seen as a grab out of public cash to compete against the hospitals and schools and all of those sorts of things, and be subject to a more politicised outcome rather than the industry being seen to be self-supporting through the current ownership of TOTE as a GBE model?

Mr AIRD - Quite frankly with regard to TOTE, only 6.5 per cent of the industry is contributing to the revenue here. It is growing in other areas of wagering. Quite obviously we have over 10 years assiduously assisted the industry, and not without some criticism.

Mr BOOTH - That is the point I am making.

Mr AIRD - We are prepared to make a long-term commitment to the industry to satisfy their interests and other legitimate interests. They are a legitimate business and they are a generous stakeholder in providing that assistance. No, they will not be subject to the bidding of the Consolidated Fund because we will have a legally binding deed that will determine the level of funding. That will be the obligation that we will have to fulfil in terms of the Consolidated Fund.

Mr BOOTH - Just moving on; I realise we are going to run out of time and I cannot follow that any further so thank you.

In answer to a question I asked in the House yesterday, I think, you got back to me and said that Claytons was contracted on 6 January to prepare sale documentation. When did you start negotiations with Claytons to give them the brief that they could accept a contract on anyway?

Mr AIRD - I do not have that detail but it would have been some time prior to that. I can try to find it.

Mr BOOTH - Can you provide that for us?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr BOOTH - The other point, just fairly quickly, in terms of the advice; we had that exchange previously in regard to whether or not you just got it from the old mate down at the pub. Are you saying that, basically, generally if you are going to sell a GBE, whoever the Treasurer is at the time and I suppose you cannot talk about other treasurers, you would be content to go on your personal understanding of the industry and gut feeling in talking to various people to confirm whether or not it is a good idea to sell it or not?

Mr AIRD - I was supported by Deloitte. They provided the advice.

Mr BOOTH - You said that was preliminary advice.

Mr AIRD - Deloitte are involved. We will continue an association with Deloitte.

Mr BOOTH - Will you provide that advice from Deloitte?

Mr AIRD - I am not going to be providing advice, and I do not mean any disrespect. This has been the subject of some discussion with people here. My responsibility, basically, is to ensure that I don't, and neither should anyone here, jeopardise any potential optimum sale; that is the obligation. I will give you the information that I can as long as we understand that I am not going to provide dollar figures or anything that could actually artificially influence the market. With regard to the first part of your question, I think my judgment in making the call has been pretty good in terms of the divestment of asset. Some people were sceptical about the value we would get from the airport. I was never ever sceptical and I am not sceptical here.

Mr BOOTH - You thought you would get $40 million according to the Age.

Mr AIRD - No, that is not right.

Mr BOOTH - The headline says '$40 million from airport expected' and you got $350 million so your judgment could be a fair way out.

Mr AIRD - That article is not right.

Mr GREEN - Obviously some members are going to want to ask some questions in camera.

CHAIR - Yes, they are. We are down to about 15 minutes or so left so I had Mr Gutwein's one last question.

Mr AIRD - Can I just say that I really want this to be pretty thorough. If you want to go beyond 15 minutes I am happy to cooperate with the committee. I want to make it clear. I can indicate to the committee I am happy to come back.

CHAIR - At the end of the day we will be fixing another time and place so we can finish it off.

Mr AIRD - Well, perhaps you want to give me some questions on notice, Mr Gutwein.

CHAIR - Today we have a priority to finish.

Mr GUTWEIN - Just so I am clear, I will just run you through some of the dates that we have. On 19 November there was advice provided by Treasury to you that we should proceed with the sale, is that right?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - On 22 December Cabinet looked at that Treasury advice plus advice that was included in the Treasury minutes from Deloitte, is that correct?

Mr AIRD - There was an initial minute to me that I did not approve. Then there was a revised cabinet minute sent to me reflecting the changes that I required and that I signed on 19 December and I took it to Cabinet on 22 December.

Mr GUTWEIN - That included the advice from Deloitte?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - Due diligence is under way now, is that right?

Mr AIRD - I will be quite frank - I will put everything on hold until we have continued this. I did not want to be seen to be presumptuous.

Mr BOOTH - We would never suggest that.

Mr GUTWEIN - I will remind you of that at some other stage.

Mr AIRD - When I am.

Mr GUTWEIN - Are Clayton Utz still preparing the sales documents?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - So that is not presumptuous.

Mr AIRD - I do not know what information -

Mr GUTWEIN - No, that is all right.

Mr AIRD - but in fact there is no -

Mr GUTWEIN - I am just playing with you there.

Mr AIRD - I would prefer it if you did not play with me, Mr Gutwein.

Mr GUTWEIN - The question I do have is do you have a business case that supports the sale?

Mr AIRD - No, there is no such animal, to be quite frank. A multiplier and all those types of things come into play and people will make some judgments. Until you get this information to a data room and you know that there is some contestability and some serious bidders that is of concern, it is going to be the market that determines the business case. It is not something you put in the front window of a shop and say, 'Here it is, go buy it'.

Mr GUTWEIN - I would have thought, though, that to support a sale like this you would have a figure in mind, that you would be able to say, 'If that is achieved, we know that we can achieve our aims. If that figure is achieved we can support the racing industry, we can do the other things we want to do'. I would have thought as a matter of course that you would have had some understanding as to what that was before you would proceed to go to the point where you are going to throw it to the market.

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - So you have that figure. I am not going to ask you, I just want to know whether you have it.

Mr AIRD - Yes, I have a figure in my head here.

Mr GUTWEIN - In your head?

Mr AIRD - I am not going to put anywhere, any time, a figure. People can make judgments about figures and it would be a judgment call because you are trying to anticipate. Some bidders will seek greater value than others because it will have facets of the operation of TOTE that they want to get hold of.

Mr GUTWEIN - With the greatest of respect, you have provided to the committee today some figures, that is, capital expenditure of $40 million. We know that there needs to be support to the racing industry on an annual basis and we know what's being currently provided. You don't need to be a genius to work out a present value of what lump sum you might require to be able to provide that support. So, in providing those details, you've actually probably provided sufficient information to anybody that actually wants to work through that and say, 'We can work out what the bottom-line figure is to the Tasmanian Government', with the greatest of respect.

Mr AIRD - That's okay; you don't have to say that - greatest respect. The fact is that I have to satisfy some interests here in terms of the racing industry; I have to provide some certainty and I am prepared to put those figures there to satisfy them. That means that when we put forward a deed, or whatever, of understanding, we wear the risk.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - I'd just like to get clear in my mind, Treasurer, why you couldn't have shared some of your thoughts about the sale of TOTE when you were doing the restructuring. What was so secretive that you needed not to share it with the industry and I guess also why you couldn't share it with the scrutiny committee back in early December?

Mr AIRD - Well, I hadn't determined that it was for sale.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - But if there had been some processes going on, could you not have said, 'We're doing some really light work on this'?

Mr AIRD - Well, that could have an effect upon a range of players, including the staff of TOTE. There are 300-odd employees in TOTE. When we made the announcement on the Thursday, having made the decision on the Monday, we put in a very serious communication strategy with the employees to make sure that they understood the nature of the process. Similarly, there are a whole range of things that you might consider or prepare for or get preliminary information on that you don't want to go on with. If Deloitte had come back and said, 'Hey, this is not going to work for you', I'd have to really consider that and ask why. I would have really quizzed them. But they didn't say that. Therefore, the issue of making a decision only occurred on 22 December and whatever thoughts or considerations that I may have might have ended up being nothing. It is only after you conclude the deliberations and thoughts about what is going on that you can make a decision.

Mr WILKINSON - People have stated, and stated in these hearings we've had today, that they were receiving assurances that TOTE wouldn't be sold pretty well up until the time that there was a sudden, as they call it, backflip. What's your comment about that?

Mr AIRD - If you look at all my statements about this, I've always said that I was casting my eye over assets and I'm sure you've gone back. I've always said that, as Treasurer, I am looking at assets and I'm looking at their core function to government and -

Mr GREEN - We've bought one - the power station.

Mr AIRD - Yes, well that's true; part of one. That aside, I have always been open about that and we've had discussions in the Legislative Council about it and I've said it in answers to questions; I've said it, in fact, in answer to the honourable member for Apsley.

Mr BOOTH - But didn't you specifically say that it's not going to be sold?

Mr AIRD - No.

Mr BOOTH - But you led people to believe before -

Mr AIRD - No.

Mr BOOTH - Well, certainly our House was led to believe that TOTE would not be sold.

Mr AIRD - No, I didn't.

Mr BOOTH - Well, what -

Mr AIRD - I know you've referred to things in the past, to the second reading speech that was made in terms of the separation. If you read that speech in the context of that bill, you will see that that is entirely consistent because we were saying that the separation of the wagering organisation, the racing services, was not about the sale, and it wasn't. People can make a judgment about does it help or not but I can tell you the motivation is not that. That separation would have occurred whether we proceeded with the sale or not.

Mr BOOTH - When you gave that assurance, when people asked you the because they wanted to know whether TOTE was sold, whether that was part of it, at they felt deluded into supporting the industry restructure because they had the assurance that TOTE would not be sold. Have you not effectively misled those people, at least by omission, by not saying, 'Okay, you want to know if it is going to be sold. Today I have not made the decision but tomorrow I probably will because I have made up my mind that clearly I will.

Mr AIRD - You cannot say you probably will make a decision. You either make a decision or you don't. If you look at my statements they have always reflected that as Treasurer I was casting my eye over the assets, and I have said that quite consistently.

CHAIR - Okay, thank you. We have now cut ourselves very short of time so we will now move in camera. I would ask that everybody else vacate the room. Thank you very much for your attendance this afternoon.

THE JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT, RESOURCES AND DEVELOPMENT MET IN COMMITTEE ROOM 1, PARLIAMENT HOUSE, HOBART, ON THURSDAY 19 MARCH 2009.

Mr KEVIN THOMAS RING WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you, Kevin. Please focus just on the main term of reference, which is the proposed sale of TOTE by the Tasmanian Government, and just give your opinion, particularly coming from your perspective as representing jockeys and having been a jockey.

Mr RING - Our association has spoken in depth about this. In fact we had a meeting last week about the subject of the sale of TOTE. Our members are not against the sale of TOTE. What our members are worried about is whether the jockeys and racing will be looked after in the same way as previously, and whether the Government will have a declaration in place that will be binding even with changes of government and changes over the years so that the same percentage of money, if not more hopefully, will be given back to racing. That is the jockeys' biggest fear with what is happening.

CHAIR - Yes, future sustainability.

Mr RING - We have all been reading about the sale of TOTE and the for and againsts in different articles and comments, but we have not heard a comment yet from the minister as to safeguards on racing, especially the financial aspects, and that is a concern. There are a lot of rumours as to who is buying et cetera, and until it is actually resolved we won't know who it is.

CHAIR - No, we have no idea.

Mr RING - It is just speculation at the moment. We hope it will result in the same situation as before, if not better, and wonder whether anything will be put in place to safeguard racing.

Mr HARRISS - Flowing from that then, Kevin, can I conclude that your association has not been engaged by the Government in any negotiation? You have said you have heard the Treasurer or the minister making comment, so is that a reasonable conclusion?

Mr RING - That is a reasonable conclusion.

Mr HARRISS - What is your feeling about that as an association?

Mr RING - As an association we like to think that we are fairly important in the whole scheme of racing in this State. We are a sub-branch of the Australian Jockeys Association as of last year. If our State association was not informed we would have liked our Australian Jockeys Association to have been informed. We think that this whole sale is very important to everyone and we feel we are a big part of that, and that the jockeys should be aware of what is happening. We have a small number of jockeys at the moment compared to previous years and if they are unsure as to how things are going I think we will lose more.

Mr HARRISS - Have they made an approach to the Government?

Mr RING - No, they have not made an approach.

Mr HARRISS - Yet the sale is on our doorstep. The Treasurer would, I presume, be desirous of having legislation in front of the Parliament fairly shortly. I suppose one could then argue that if your association, your jockeys, are not properly taken account of and the sale proceeds but you have no assurances before the sale, you would be a little concerned. Would you?

Mr RING - We have concerns. We have not made an approach, but thought as a courteous thing that the Government would have made an approach to us, even in writing.

CHAIR - Has there been nothing at all?

Mr RING - Nothing at all.

CHAIR - You have had no consultation.

Mr RING - No consultation. That is a concern to us. As I said, there has been no information as to the long-term stability of racing in this State financially.

Mr WILKINSON - Kevin, it seems to me from over the last couple of weeks asking a few questions around the place that people in your situation, not only the jockeys but other people in your situation, are saying you do not know whether it is a good thing or not as yet because you do not know what certainty there is going to be for the racing industry if TOTE is sold. Is that right?

Mr RING - That is right.

Mr WILKINSON - Am I right in saying that you are not really against it, it is only a lack of communication that leads you to not knowing whether to agree with it or not?

Mr RING - That is right. We are not against it because we can see that if handled right this could be good for racing in general in this State financially. We have always been of the view that, especially over the last 10 years, there has been a lack of race meetings in this State for our members. That is one of the reasons for the shortage of jockeys here. If there can be an input of more finances through the sale of TOTE then that would be good, but we do not know.

Mr WILKINSON - You obviously have plenty of experience in the industry. Have you any idea as to what has happened interstate where TOTEs have been sold, how their industries are going?

Mr RING - I think South Australia is a fairly good example. There are problems at the moment but they are only minor compared to what has happened over the last few years with the sale of racetracks et cetera. Their industry, from our association's point of view, has halted.

Mr WILKINSON - If - and I do not know yet because we are in the same position to some degree as you are - TOTE were to be sold, what would be a way of, in your opinion, ensuring that the industry would have the same if not better return than it has had over the last few years?

Mr RING - I am not an expert on it but I honestly think there should be a greater percentage of money returned to racing. I have always thought that. Racing is a very good industry for this State, financially for the Government. People from TOTE will tell you things are always being put in place to try to earn extra money for TOTE and the Government. I would like to see a little bit more put back in. We have great prize money for our big races but I would like to see the board put more money in over a 12-month period to create more money especially for our members, and also more race meetings.

Mr WILKINSON - It would seem to me that with any proposed sale the Government would need to ensure that whoever purchased TOTE would have to give some type of agreement in writing, in a contract, to say that they would be willing to put back into the industry a figure not less than whatever they decide is appropriate.

Mr RING - That is right. There has to be a guarantee as far as we are concerned and it has to be a binding guarantee that if there is a change of government and a change in the status quo then that money percentage-wise has to keep coming back in, if not more over the years. There has to be something in place.

Mr WILKINSON - Because you could say there is uncertainty if it is left with government to decide how much money you are to get. In hard economic times there is going to be an argument around the cabinet table, I suppose, or the treasury tables as to how much racing can get as opposed to health, education et cetera.

Mr RING - I would like to see something where the new racing board was able to have an input and have a binding contract. Not so much keeping government away from that aspect but have a binding contract with the Tasmanian Racing Board that will stay for years to come.

Mr GUTWEIN - Over what period of time, Kevin?

Mr RING - I would say a 20-year period. To me that would be fair. Then it can be readdressed in that period. Anything could happen in 20 years. It could be sold again. But there has to be something that is binding. I think a 20-year period would be very good.

Mr BOOTH - Kevin, are you concerned then in terms of long-term future stability and support of the industry that, by selling TOTE and leaving the stake money and support for the industry coming directly from government, politics will get in the road of industry during that 20 years? Guarantees are only worth the paper they are written on, as you know. Does that concern your industry? It certainly concerns me and people who have made submissions to me have stated that they do not want it to be taken out of TOTE because at the moment it is actually an industry that is self-supporting, whereas if it comes back then it is seen as a dividend from the public purse, that politics are getting in the way of the industry being sustainable.

Mr RING - My opinion is that politics have gotten in the way of racing for a fairly long time. I came to this State in 1989. Racing was going very well in the early 1990s. To me, over the last 10 years - or maybe a little bit longer - politics have gotten in the way of racing. Racing is a very large industry and it is a sport. Politics and sport do not really go hand in hand. It has been proven in other sports. I think politics may get in the way of this too much. I think it needs to be handled by the businesspeople who will be buying TOTE and the racing board.

Mr BOOTH - Just to clarify that, you do not have a concern either way, if TOTE was sold and then the Government put money into racing rather than TOTE putting money into racing as it does now, that then politics might get in the road of the future of that money coming directly from government to racing? At the moment it appears to be a bit more at arm's length.

Mr RING - I have a concern that it may get in the way. The Government gets their percentage out of racing and I think they should leave it at that. They should not interfere in the process of it, especially between TOTE and the racing board, as far as their percentage goes. The racing board - now different to how it used to be - controls all three codes. They should be allowed to handle them as they see it, with no interference. But they should be funded the same as it is at the moment, if not better over the period of years once TOTE is sold. These security things should be put into place to make sure it is. To me, over the 10 years racing has declined in this State. Some of our carnivals are quite big. The mainlanders love it, prize money-wise. But as for the general local racing population, it is declining as far as I am concerned. The chances of our jockeys earning a reasonable living - especially from our association's point of view - has declined with the declining numbers as well.

Mr BOOTH - You speak as though there is an inevitability of the TOTE being sold. Would you rather have the support coming from TOTE to the industry or from the public purse to the industry in the future?

Mr RING - I think the public purse would be a more concrete step rather than the sale of TOTE. That's not saying we are against it, we just think from the public purse. For what is put into the TOTE over the years percentage-wise I think it has been fairly good but from the top down it hasn't been handled in a way that look's after the industry's people.

Mr BOOTH - So if that distribution was handled properly, the TOTE model funding the industry and TOTE being owned by the Government as it is at the moment is better than TOTE being sold and the money coming from the public purse?

Mr RING - We don't know until something is put in place, until the minister tells us what is happening if it is sold, what guidelines will be put in place and what will be put in place to look after the people in the industry. At the moment we are only guessing.

Mr GUTWEIN - Your association is a sub-branch of the Australian Jockeys Association. What has been the situation in, say, South Australia or Victoria where it has been privatised? Has it been better for jockeys or worse? Could you explain why in either case?

Mr RING - Victoria has been terrific for jockeys. If I was 30 and still riding I wouldn't be here, I would be in Victoria where you have a chance to ride every day of the week. Even if you are a battling rider, you can ride on a Saturday at non-TAB meetings or on Mondays, Tuesdays - which is very average but you can pick up some rides. But, apart from that, you can make a good living riding barrier trials. Their fees are better, there are more of them. Even race riding, they are $160 a ride, whereas here we get $130 and they are riding them every day of the week if they can. In trials they are getting over $50 a ride and you could ride 10, 15, maybe 20 trials at Cranbourne, for instance, and earn a week's wages just riding trials, plus you are riding track work. There is a young rider over there at the moment, Dean Larson, who battled here but he has done well over there, not through getting a lot of race rides or winners but making a good living. He now owns two houses and I think he's got a little business going as well, just from that. From a jockey's perspective, Victorian racing has been terrific.

CHAIR - It is more a function of economies of scale, Victoria being a bigger State rather than the way the organisation is?

Mr RING - Yes, numbers and population betting-wise, but it has been handled very well. Racing is still in a very good position financially. Then you go to South Australia -

CHAIR - You mentioned South Australia and I just want to follow up on that. You mentioned that is a bit of a dog's breakfast at the moment, but you also talk about tracks being sold off. That was a separate issue from what happened since the TOTE had been privatised there, was it?

Mr RING - Yes, it's a separate issue to what has been going on at the moment. For instance, David Hayes, one of the leading trainers in Australia, has scaled down his team at Lindsay Park in South Australia. He has even sent horses over to Western Australia to be trained because their racing is going well. He has scaled things down to the point where he is not training horses at Lindsay Park anymore. He does have runners in South Australia - and David Hayes is a very good businessman - but from that point of view he's even set up a place at Euroa in Victoria because he knows that's the place to be. Western Australia and Victoria are the places he wants to be; they are the places he knows he's going to earn the money.

CHAIR - The model Western Australia currently operates under is the model we have here in Tasmania.

Mr RING - It is, it is very similar. That was discussed last year at the forums for the new board.

CHAIR - So would you go down the track of saying, 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it', or not?

Mr RING - That is right, to be honest. This new board is new. They are feeling their way. But I think it will be very good in the long-term, but with the sale of TOTE, that is a different ball game.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Kevin, you talked about the restructure from last year. What input did your organisation have in that restructure and also, would you mind telling the committee whether you asked the question whether the restructure had anything to do with the potential sale of TOTE and whether it would have made any difference to your support?

Mr RING - I asked the question a few times. Once was at one of those forums at Mowbray Racecourse and it was also asked by a member of the AWU because all our jockeys are members of the AWU. It was asked at the forum at Bellerive as well. I also asked at some meetings at the Thoroughbred Racing Council whether the TOTE was going to be sold and the answer was always no, and it was a very straight no. It is felt in the industry a bit that the new board was set up so they could separate TOTE and the board because previously TOTE had a lot of input into the racing part of it, especially tracks and maintenance and things like that. Whether it is correct, the feeling was that the new board was set up to separate TOTE so that it then could be put on the market and sold.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Would your association's support for the restructure have remained the same had you known that?

Mr RING - If we had known that there was to be a sale of TOTE we would have asked why it was being sold and we would have asked at the time whether there was a guarantee that the same set-up would be in place for the financial reasons for racing. We would not have been against it as long as it was known that everything would remain the same financially.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - In your opinion, is your industry disappointed at the fact that the Government and the minister have chosen not to take the industry and your association along for the ride in the sale?

Mr RING - Yes, we are. We would have liked to have known last year, and we would like to know now what guidelines will be in place as far as the racing the concerned.

Mr BOOTH - Kevin, how definite was this no when you asked the question a number of times? Was it an equivocal or an unequivocal no?

Mr RING - There was no thought put into it. It was straight off and done.

Mr BOOTH - Were you left with any impression that it was being considered or that there was a process in place?

Mr RING - We always thought it was going to happen. It was no surprise when we read at the start of this year that the TOTE was being sold. I think it was in the media within a week after the new board started. It was no surprise to us, let's put it that way.

Mr BOOTH - Basically you did not believe them when they told you no, then, or did you believe them when you asked them?

Mr RING - I do not think anyone believed it, to be honest. That is the opinion of a lot of people I have spoken to in racing. I don't think anyone believed them. You hear a lot of rumours, and especially in racing, but if it is said often enough you start to think it is true; and it was said plenty of times.

Mr GUTWEIN - Kevin, I want to bring you back to a point Mr Booth raised earlier in regard to the level of consultation. My understanding of what you said was that there had been no contact with the Jockeys' Association regarding the possible proposed sale of TOTE, nor have you been contacted since to provide input in regard to concerns or suggestions you might have about the proposed sale of TOTE. Is that correct?

Mr RING - The minister and the Government say they want to sell TOTE and that is fine, but we are disappointed that they did not let everyone know. They should do it officially in writing and give the reasons to the racing groups. As far as the running of racing is concerned, which has been put to me by the Racing Board, it is separate from the TOTE, especially now with the new board. It has been put to me by the board that we cannot tell the Government that we don't think they should sell TOTE because that is the business of the Government. But it is also the business of the people that make a lot of money for the Government through racing as well; as far as we are concerned, racing depends on TOTE.

The TAB was set up as an agency years ago to fund racing, but it also helps fund a lot of capital programs as well for hospitals and things like that but it was also set up to make sure that racing survived. Therefore we think that we should have some say or be informed, at least, about what is happening.

Mr WILKINSON - Kevin, you were saying that you do not believe that racing is as good now as it was when you first arrived in 1989. Secondly, you say that you do not know whether it is a good idea, it would seem, to sell TOTE because you do not know what the price would be and what racing would get out of it, and that there is no certainty for you. And, as I understand it, you say that there has to be more improvement in racing, more race meets, more this, that and one thing and another as you have described over the last half-hour. How are we going to do that, we might ask, if there is not a change in the ways things are dealt with?

Mr RING - One of the things that has been discussed by trainers, jockeys and owners is that we do not need the big prize money for those cups, not as big anyway. Money can be evenly disbursed over the year, with more minor race meetings, say mid-week, and we used to have a fair amount of mid-weeks years ago.

The jockeys, trainers and owners would be quite happy for those mid-weeks to have less prize money than, say, a Sunday meeting. At least it gives everyone a chance to earn some money and make a decent living out of it. The money needs to be spread across the board more evenly, and not just for those January and February race meetings.

Mr WILKINSON - So whether TOTE is sold or not, your major concern is as you have just described?

Mr RING - Yes. It has been explained to us by TOTE and the board also that they want quality, and that is fine. These people in business are talking about quality, but you have to have quantity to get quality and we are not doing that with the number of race meetings we have. There are fewer owners coming into the racing and there are fewer horses about because of a lack of chances to earn a living and a reasonable amount of money. So they are either getting out of racing or going interstate.

Mr WILKINSON - You are saying, aren't you, that the bigger the base of the pyramid the higher it goes?

Mr RING - Yes. I can understand that they want quality but the quality that we are getting over that two-month period when we have so much prize money is all coming from the mainland. People will certainly bet on them and that is what TOTE are trying to do and I can understand that; people will bet on them a lot more because they know the horses. Fifteen years ago we had some very good horses in this State that were able to go to Melbourne and win cups and reasonable races and we have not had those horses for a number of years because of the decline in racing in this State, as far as I'm concerned.

Mr BOOTH - Kevin, from your understanding of the Treasurer's proposal to sell TOTE, do you think that it is being done for the good of the industry or for the good of Treasury?

Mr RING - I cannot answer that until I get more information, but as it stands from just sitting back and hearing and reading and different things, I think that it is for the good of Treasury at the moment.

Mr BEST - Just quickly, Mr Chair, I was a bit late this morning as it was a 5 a.m. start at Liffey Falls, so I am sorry. First of all Kevin, congratulations on all the work that you have done with workers compensation for jockeys and other gains. I am sure that other committee members would be aware of the fine work that you have done there for jockeys. If we were to dot some of the key recommendations that you are making about quantity, where do you think that could take the industry over the next 10 years?

Mr RING - I think we could end up with more jockeys here and more owners, but it will take time. In the first five years, say, over a 10-year period it is not going to improve a lot because people are going to be a bit dubious about investing here, but I think it will improve. There is a decline in jockey numbers across the board across Australia but I think the decline in this State is very low; we have a higher percentage than anywhere. I think with some of the suggestions I have put forward today that eventually we will have more owners, more horses, more jockeys and even more trainers - probably more professional trainers.

CHAIR - Kevin, our time has expired, unfortunately. Thank you very much. The information you have given to the committee has been very informative. We have about 12 witnesses today so we have to keep rocking along.

Mr RING - You'd better drink lots of water.

Laughter.

CHAIR - Thank you very much. We appreciate your coming in.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr TERRY EDWARD CLARKE WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Terry, you have been before parliamentary committees before and so you are aware of privilege and all those sorts of things.

Mr CLARKE - Yes.

CHAIR - Obviously you are aware of our terms of reference, which is to inquire into the sale of TOTE and whether that is a good thing, bad thing or whatever. What I would invite you to do is to give your evidence to the committee, make some opening statements if you like, and then give the committee a chance to ask questions, bearing in mind that we are on a very tight time frame of 30 minutes per witness.

Mr CLARKE - I will make some opening observations, Mr Chairman, and then I would like to deal with a number of issues which have been stimulated by this decision by Cabinet to sell TOTE Tasmania.

Up until December 2008 there were two States in Australia where the racing industry, in my opinion, was set to really develop and had a good base. Those industries were in Western Australia and Tasmania and both were operated by combined wagering and racing bodies. In the other States, where privatisation has occurred in one shape or form, they are all in some trouble regarding their future funding - and I will come back to that later.

It appears to me - and I am making observations at the moment - that this decision is driven by two issues. One is that there is some value in the TOTE now that was not there years ago, so let's jump in and grab it before it disappears, and the threat of expulsion from SuperTAB might well be the driving motivation there.

The other one is an ideology that governments should not own gambling businesses, and I would like to challenge that later as well. The solution is, 'Well, let's fix the racing industry up. We'll put them on a budget and they won't need to complain anymore because they've got a guaranteed income - but hang on, there was no mandate to do that'. If I take Mr Aird's evidence at face value, I don't claim to be the world's best mathematician, but that tells me that the citizens of Tasmania need to fund something over $900 million in the next 20 years. They were not asked whether they wanted to do that, so there has been no public interest test as to whether or not this is a good decision. That is in stark contrast to when the Labor Party came to power in 1998 when they had a mandate to merge racing and wagering.

The second issue is that the Tasmanian racing industry now, whether they like it or not, is exposed to sovereign risk. If we do not think sovereign risk is real for the industry we only have to look at Melbourne and what happened to Tabcorp and Tattersalls, who were encouraged into privatisation on the basis they would get back some $600 million for their licence fee if they were not reallocated the licence in 2012. But the Government there has come in and said, 'No, we are not honouring that pledge; you can take us to the courts if you do not agree'.

The second thing is that without the TOTE, this organisation that has been created, the Tasmanian Racing Board, will effectively be going to the market with one hand tied behind its back. It will have very little power or ability to win its way compared to now with the TOTE, and I'm talking nationally and globally. The other thing that should be worrying people if they're interested in public finance is what incentives will there be for the Tasmanian Racing Board - I don't care whether it's a State-owned company or GBE - where are the market forces that are going to drive efficiency, or is it just going to roll back up to the Government and get caught up in the negotiating for each annual budget?

They are my observations. I think there are issues of public finance principles that are being violated here. I don't understand how a submission can go through Cabinet without the consultation section being filled in, without the economic and social impact, without the licence fees for the new operator having been determined, or the period or the licence. Worse still, if we listen to Mr Aird's evidence, we're just negotiating the deal with the racing industry now, so how did the Government take a decision to sell the TOTE? Where or when was the economic or public benefit test done?

I will now address a few issues that come out of this which I think might be of interest to the committee. TOTE Tasmania effectively provides half of the economic stimulus. In 2005-06, that was estimated to be $74 million, so if you sell off the TOTE to some company that takes it out of this State, you're looking at effectively impacting half of the impact on GDP in this State. As I said, if you take the face value figures given in evidence, that suggests something like $900 million is going to be paid out of the coffers to run racing for the next 20 years.

By the way, the new owner won't have any real necessity to put money back into Tasmania because with the product fee regime, if the Tasmanian racing is not of a quality that fits the new owner's perspective as far as offering product to the wagering punters - and they are the ones who in the end will determine what the new owner bets on - then he has no obligation unless it's part of the deal to put product fees back into Tasmania. If it's part of the deal, then it's going to impact the price.

As to the relationship between TOTE and racing, Mr Challen, I note, said that his decision was a personal one, 'based on, I confess, not huge expertise of the industry' - so again, he got some experts to help him. I would like to ask the committee, what do Japan, France, Ireland, South Africa, Sweden, Norway, Hong Kong, Macau and Singapore have in common? Why is the British Government trying to sell its TOTE to the racing industry? The one thing in common globally with all the major racing industries is that it is one organisation. Racing and wagering is the supply and demand side of the equation.

When the Western Australian Government review was under way into the future administration of that industry, I met the chairman and he told me that the Tasmanian model was the best they had identified after a widespread review. That is what they implemented, apart from the fact that they put probity into the organisation, whereas we argued it was the public good and should be funded for the wider public benefit.

Mr WILKINSON - Terry, what year was that review, please? Can we be provided with a copy of it?

Mr CLARKE - I think Craig might be able to help with that; I don't have that with me here.

Subsequent to the WA decision, New Zealand went the same way, combining racing and wagering into one organisation. In contrast, the most recent example of the privatisation of the TAB in Australia was the sale of SA TAB. Not only did the government there have a massive early return on its purchase price, but it also lost taxation on $80 million of wagering that we got here at TOTE Tasmania. That's because the punters want to stay in the big pool, and the same thing is going to happen here if you move out of the SuperTAB pool. More importantly, it's brought South Australian racing to its knees because the relationship with UNiTAB has not delivered the amount of revenue and income that they need. I understand recently the tax rates have been adjusted to acknowledge that.

Mr Aird quotes that activities in Victoria are a factor in his decision to sell TOTE. From my work with the industry in that State, the racing industry is very unhappy about being prevented from bidding for the parimutuel licence post-2012, and I can tell you from contact within the Government that the industry has tried hard to convince the minister to change his mind and let them bid for the licence. Racing and wagering are inextricably linked; they are the supply and demand sides of the one industry. By separating the wagering from racing and selling off the TOTE, the industry's bargaining power will be significantly impacted, such that the Tasmanian Racing Board, in my opinion, will have little capacity to achieve the targets for selling this racing nationally and globally that Mr Coleman has announced as part of the justification for the split in the administration. It is a suboptimal outcome and the decision to do this in Tasmania is not going with the trend nationally or globally, it is actually going against it.

Indeed, I recently had a phone call from the managing director of one of the two major thoroughbred transport companies in Australia, and I quote him. He said:

'What is going on down there? Have people got rocks in their heads selling off the TOTE?'

The third issue is the impact of funding racing from consolidated revenue. At the time of the incorporation of TOTE Tasmania, an investment bank was engaged to define the options for an appropriate financial relationship between the industry, government and TOTE. The consultants were critical of the option of direct funding of racing, noting it would make the allocation of funds largely a recurrent political issue, based around lobbying and negotiations which would tie up resources that could be better used elsewhere, as there is no direct interactive economic relationship between the Government and the racing industry. The consultants considered it difficult to conceive that a proper incentive structure could be established in such circumstances. Even more importantly - and I see you have had the head of Treasury giving you evidence - in their 2003 Regulatory Impact Statement to the National Competition Commission, the following is what the Treasury said five years ago:

'Retention and exclusivity for TOTE Tasmania's parimutuel wagering activities is the best model for providing stable, long-term and reliable sources of funding for the racing industry. This view is because the interests of TOTE Tasmania and the racing industry are aligned. This nexus creates market incentives for both the TOTE and the racing industry to maximise outcomes for both parties.

The TOTE has a direct interest in maximising funding for the racing industry to make it more appealing to the public as a betting product and likewise, the racing industry has an incentive to provide the appropriate racing product mix and quantity demanded by the public to maximise betting opportunities and therefore funding by the TOTE.'

Again, quoting:

'This market would not exist if the Government rather than TOTE funded the racing industry as it would no longer share the TOTE's success.'

I ask, what has changed the Treasury's stated position? Has someone been leaned on?

Mr Challen claims the connection between the TOTE and the racing industry is just an accident of history. The connection between racing and the TAB was never an accident of history. It was because of the racing industry that governments established a TAB in all States.

In Victoria the industry claimed ownership rights over the TAB and this was tested in the High Court at the time of its privatisation with the case being based on the fact of the funding of the assets of the TAB from profits withheld from the industry.

In a debate over the TOTE Tasmania Bill 2000 the then Minister for Racing, Paul Lennon, said in his second reading debate response, quote:

'We are enabling the industry to capitalise its assets for the first time in history, whilst at the same time continuing the government guarantee which underpins the industry now ... We are moving it to a State-owned company under this legislation, and on our way through, are recognising' -

The Government is saying this -

'what the High Court recognised during the sale of the Victorian TAB, that there is in fact some ownership right of the racing industry in the TAB. This legislation is better than what the Victorian racing industry gets in terms of its share of the profits of the privatised Tabcorp.

They get a profit. Here we are giving them earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation and that is quite unusual ... They get it off the top and that maximises the amount ... they get 25 per cent there ...'

It is worth noting the member of the Legislative Council responsible for taking this bill through the upper House was none other than Mr Aird. I believe therefore, and I want the committee to take this in, the industry should now argue that whatever the sale price is for TOTE Australia, 25 per cent of the proceeds should be provided to the TAB and this is in addition to the funds that the Treasurer has already identified he is prepared to give.

A minor issue in Mr Aird's evidence was that he said that he needed to separate out the three assets of the TOTE; the radio station, the TOTE and the racing business. The radio station loses about $700 000 a year. There are probably two logical buyers - Radio Sport 927 and UNiTAB, if they are a buyer. Whichever way it goes, if that was a separate issue it would be a fire sale.

That indicates a misunderstanding of the importance of the integrated nature of the industry; without that radio station some 40 per cent of the business would potentially be at risk. If it is going to be sold as a statewide radio network then you would simply undermine the value on that basis of the licence.

Another issue which Mr Aird raised, is there are changes within the industry that I think will be an interesting challenge and I do not think the Government should be involved in that. Any potential buyer would be well aware of what those issues are and would already have discounted the price. He knew that is was likely because a proportion of the business only exists because TOTE co-mingles its board with SuperTAB. That is what we lost. Also it is widespread industry knowledge that most of TOTE's growth since 2007 has been attracted by rebates to punters to improve their returns and a potential buyer would clearly discount this business if it is not prepared to offer the same rebates.

The major characteristics of a successful TAB are strong local racing, access to a betting pool of more than $1 billion, a competitive taxation regime and position against other forms of gambling and state-of-the-art IT equipment and software. All this would suggest to me that, unless it is a strategic buy and that seems unlikely without the buyer having access to one of the three Australia pools, the buyer may seek to pay the purchase price over a period on an earn-out basis, no doubt frustrating the Government's reinvestment plans; albeit, we do not know what assets they are going to put that money in and how it is going create more benefit than the existing arrangement.

The seventh issue is, another reason for selling a State-owned company is that it is not performing or could be perceived to perform better in the private sector. Since the establishment of the current arrangement, funding to racing has increased by more than 90 per cent and the organisation has never called on the Government to fund its operational activities. Because of its expertise and experience it has become the fastest-growing TAB in Australia.

In 1997, KPMG did a report for the Government and there were consultants who looked at the ACT about the same time. Both consulting groups could not see how the TAB could survive in the then turmoil in the market. It has, 12 years on and it is stronger than ever. I reject completely therefore, the ideologically-driven view that governments should not own TABs. Providing the racing wagering are operated together, and I am sure the Western Australian Government reached this view, the public benefits test will mean the overall social and economic benefits will outweigh the risks to the Government of the gambling business. If it is operated as an incorporated company, it is operated properly and ministers keep out of the day-to-day business, then they should have no reason to be concerned that is it going to come back and bite them.

CHAIR - Terry, I am aware that we are down to about 10 minutes, so if you can just encapsulate what you have to say.

Mr CLARKE - I can finish there, Mr Chairman. I do have another point to make later.

CHAIR - Yes, thank you. You gave us a multitude of information at 100 miles an hour, so we are probably still all absorbing that. That was good.

Mr CLARKE - I am happy to provide it to you as a paper, if you wish.

CHAIR - It is on Hansard. If you want to table that it would be handy.

Mr BEST - We have the picture; you are not happy.

Mr CLARKE - As a citizen I am a bit concerned when someone whacks $900 million on the budget and we were not asked, as people, whether or not we wanted that to happen. It is a very convenient way to say, 'Don't worry about the risk, I'll look after it. I am sorry, I do not agree. As we saw with Tabcorp and Tattersalls, sovereign risk is just that, it is sovereign risk and it exists in western governments as it exists in any other form of government.

Mr BOOTH - Terry, in your previous role with TOTE, was the sale of TOTE ever discussed before, at any level?

Mr CLARKE - No, it was not.

Mr BOOTH - When did you first become aware of it?

Mr CLARKE - I will put it to you this way, since I left TOTE as far back as in January 2008, I asked if I was to roll up with the right amount of money to do a MBO, how would I go? I was told it would be well received.

Mr BOOTH - Who did you ask?

Mr CLARKE - I prefer not to comment.

Mr BOOTH - Not the Treasurer?

Mr CLARKE - No, it was not the Treasurer and I guess I have then picked up things through the press and I knew that despite the Treasurer saying on WIN Television, on 10 November, it was not on their mind, I know that at the Oaks on 6 November there was discussion in the committee room with the VRC. Amongst people who had been invited there was just the Treasury in the sale of the TOTE. Clearly, it was on people's minds before 10 November.

Mr BOOTH - They had been invited to assist.

Mr CLARKE - To assist the Treasury in the sale of TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - Who were those people?

Mr CLARKE - Again, I am happy to give you that name in camera.

Mr BOOTH - Perhaps the Chair or someone can ask that in camera in regard to that just to clarify it.

Mr WILKINSON - Will we take that opportunity at the end of this session?

CHAIR - If it is quick we can do that.

Mr BOOTH - Just to clarify, what you are saying at the moment is that the industry is supported okay through TOTE and that model could take it in the future, whereas it becomes then a political risk and an argument every year for funding and support of the industry.

Mr CLARKE - It goes further than that because not only is the industry caught up in the machinations of the budgets, you actually weaken the organisation that runs racing because it no longer goes to the table with the ability to talk across the full range of wagering. If you are going to try to sell Tasmanian wagering into Asia, for example, it would certainly assist if you had the TAB there who is buying product on the other side. That is an issue which I know is part of the process to justify the separation and selling of Tasmanian product into Asia. The fact is that up until 2014, 2016 Sky Channel control all the vision rights of Racing Tasmania. So anything you sell you are going to get half-rights for it anyhow. So you are going to have to sell a hell of a lot of product, for example, if you wanted to economically justify putting lights on at Mowbray.

Mr GUTWEIN - You mentioned right at the end of the presentation - and if I can just commend you on that, I thought that was very well presented - that ministers should keep their hands off the day-to-day running of the business. Implicit in that is that in the past that has not been the case?

Mr CLARKE - That is absolutely the case. TOTE and the racing industry reaches out so far into the community that in my experience - 10 years at the head of it - you are in daily conflict because people do not get enough money or this dog had not been listed - a whole range of issues that all of you are well aware of. They go to the minister and they lobby the minister. The minister's support staff think they better get involved. A classic case with the current arrangement with people here is with the hotel down in the Channel. There was clearly no economic case for putting a TAB in there and yet we have spent weeks and weeks arguing because someone in the minister's office had that view. This is not consistent with operating a State-owned company. If you set up a company, you set up the board. It operates under Corporations Law and, as far as government is concerned, it should restrict its input to the strategic plan and the policies. If you are going to go around trying to solve every minor complaint from the racing industry and the betting public then you are effectively, instead of walking away and saying that this is a matter for the TOTE to solve, getting involved needlessly. In those circumstances I can understand why you probably would want to get rid of it, get it off the book.

CHAIR - The committee will now move in camera for a couple of minutes. Would you switch off any recording devices. We will not be long and then Mr Craig Coleman will be the next witness.

Mr CRAIG COLEMAN WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Mr Coleman, you are aware of the privilege issues that run as you have given evidence before. For the benefit of members of the gallery and the committee, Mr Coleman may wish to give some evidence in camera as well, but we will start off in open committee. Craig, I would ask you to make an opening statement, if you would, please.

Mr COLEMAN - First of all, I would like to thank the committee for the opportunity to appear before you today and to provide some comments.

Understandably there has been a great deal of interest in the sale of TOTE Tasmania within the Tasmanian racing industry. As I perceive it, the concern is about the continuity of funding, and certainly they were remarks that were echoed this morning by Kevin Ring in his presentation from the industry, and I think that is an entirely valid concern. The Tasmanian racing industry for the past 10 years has received a substantial increase in funding and, as Terry Clarke, the previous witness, indicated, that increase has been in the order of 90 per cent over that time. The profits that are generated by TOTE Tasmania and paid to the racing industry - this is my position - are a distribution of government funds. The Government owns the business, it was set up by the Government and it has chosen, as it did when it formed the company in 1999 and then formed the State-owned company in 2001, to distribute all its profits to the Tasmanian racing industry. So what we are actually getting in the Tasmanian racing industry is government funds.

The Tasmanian racing industry, in addition to the government funds, is provided with considerable other concessions in the form of dividend holidays. I know that has been of considerable debate in other committees and forums within the Parliament. It gets money from Betfair and direct capital injections from the Government, the most recent being the $22.6 million that was paid to the industry in 2002. Operational funding for racing from TOTE Tasmania alone this year is $23.8 million. The Tasmanian industry has seen the success of TOTE Tasmania in recent years and is understandably nervous about its future funding and the impact if TOTE Tasmania is sold. I consider this a strong vote of confidence in the management of TOTE Tasmania and for that I would like to acknowledge the fine work of the board and the management team of TOTE Tasmania. I suppose, in many respects, this probably makes it the right time now to sell the company.

Funding from TOTE Tasmania is but one form of investment in the Tasmanian racing industry. Many Tasmanians invest in the industry through ownership of horses, dogs and, more importantly, through investment in properties dedicated to breeding and training of horses and dogs. For some the investment is motivated by passion for the industry; however, it is important that an appropriate economic return must be considered for those individuals. In my view, the certainty of future funding by government, either through TOTE Tasmania or directly, is an important key element in encouraging that ongoing private sector investment in the racing industry. In this regard, I note the Minister for Racing has already committed the Government to a long-term funding deed, and he spoke of that when he appeared before the committee a couple of weeks ago. That funding deed, as I understand it, will be for 20 years and has agreed amounts of funding with the Tasmanian Racing Board, which accords exactly with the requirements of Mr Ring this morning.

As I understand it, the industry has been guaranteed a level of funding independent of the commercial operations of TOTE Tasmania, and that is a very important point I'll come back to in a moment. This resolves many of the concerns expressed about what private ownership of TOTE Tasmania may mean to the local industry, and I will touch on some of those concerns as they were referred to by Mr Clarke in his evidence, particularly on the sale of the South Australian TAB. The committee received evidence on the first day of the hearing that the sale of the South Australian TAB was a significant cause of the decline of the racing industry in that State. By way of contrast to TOTE Tasmania, when SA TAB was sold it was returning a loss to the operator. It was virtually stripped of all its profits by the Government of the time. Indeed, following the sale, turnover decreased further, and Mr Clarke referred to that in his evidence this morning. Funding for racing in South Australia is directly - and I emphasise 'directly' - related to the turnover of the TAB in that State, so as the turnover increases or decreases so too does the funding for racing in that State.

I can fully understand that the racing industry would be concerned if the Government was to implement a funding model similar to that model in South Australia, but this is not what the Government is proposing. I understand that the Government is proposing to enter into a long-term deed with the Tasmanian racing industry, which would provide a level of certainty of funding independent of and separate to the turnover of TOTE Tasmania. I encourage that approach because at least the industry will have some form of certainty about its funding model.

I would also like to address some of the comments that were made at the committee on the first day of hearings. The former chairman of the Tasmanian Greyhound Racing Council, Mr Bullock, raised two issues of concerns to him and his former council with respect to the guaranteed levels of funding for the greyhound code. The second matter was in respect to the potential sale of TOTE Tasmania during the industry consultation. Again, that matter was referred to by Mr Ring this morning, so I will address those two points.

It has been asserted that TOTE Tasmania advised the greyhound council that it would increase the level of funding for that code received from funding from Betfair in excess of $5 million; however, TOTE Tasmania did not formalise its commitment in writing. I have here in evidence copies of several letters which passed between the code council and Mr Bullock and TOTE Tasmania which refer specifically to that guarantee. Mr Bullock further asserted that in written documents handed out during industry forums, and in particular the industry forum at Campbell Town, there was a commitment that TOTE would never be sold. On this point I will read from the document - and there is a copy of this document incorporated in the papers that I've handed the committee this morning.

The comment was made that as TOTE Tasmania is not on the market, therefore there is no provision in the proposed legislation dealing with any hypothetical future sale. That falls well short of saying that TOTE will not be sold. Indeed, on a number of occasions during the consultation process, when asked about this question, I expanded my comments to say that the Tasmanian racing industry could never be guaranteed that the TOTE would not be sold. This Government, or indeed any future Labor or Liberal governments, may well decide to sell TOTE

Tasmania, so there's no guarantee in future. To rely on an organisation for the bulk of your funding appears to me to be madness. You need to broaden your income base so that the industry has a good and sustainable future well beyond the single-point sensitivity of TOTE Tasmania. I made that point quite clear at a number of those forums.

I also want to make comment as to why I was so motivated to see the implementation of the industry restructure which was approved by the Parliament last year. There are several papers here which refer to the documented process that we went through there, including board papers from the TOTE Tasmania board when the formation of the Tasmanian Racing Board was first raised and pursued in July and August 2003, almost some six years ago now. So this has been on the agenda for the company for several years and was first raised in public forums in 2004, but didn't proceed at that time for a number of reasons.

I again raised the prospects with the TOTE board in July 2008, and the process of the formation of the Tasmanian Racing Board as a governance model started in July 2008, well before any consideration of the sale of TOTE Tasmania was on the agenda. I, along with a number of other executives, developed that model within the company, and we were firmly of the view that we needed a model which took a one-industry approach to promoting the industry in Tasmania, and wasn't caught up in the fracturing of the three codes competing for their own individual positions, which was the case previously.

There are a number of people within the industry and I received lots of comments through the process. Indeed, I received a copy of a survey done for the greyhound code where 57 per cent of the constituents expressed a vote of no confidence in the old code structure. They were the motivations for me to take forward the industry restructure, it had nothing to do with the sale. Indeed, I would have said that TOTE Tasmania could have been sold regardless of whether the restructure occurred.

As the Minister for Racing indicated last week - and referred to by Mr Clarke this morning - we have restructured the company into three entities: a media entity, a racing entity and a wagering entity; not ostensibly to sell, but because of the efficiencies of running the business in that way. Any one of those entities could have been hived off from the business and could have proceeded forward without the other two. That is all I would like to say about that at this time, but I may have a further comment on that later, Mr Chairman. In conclusion, in my view, the restructuring of the Tasmanian racing industry has nothing to do with the sale of TOTE Tasmania.

CHAIR - Okay. Any questions?

Mr BOOTH - When did you first become aware that the Government was interested in selling TOTE?

Mr COLEMAN - I have made no secret over the last four or five years that I have had an interest in seeing the TOTE pass into private ownership. I have raised those observations with a number of people, including the Government, over that time. So when did I first have those discussions with the Government? Maybe three, four or five years ago.

Mr BOOTH - So with this current proposal to sell, when did you start discussing with the Government the prospect of its being sold? Not from your position in the past that you thought it was a good idea, but with the Government specifically to do with selling it?

Mr COLEMAN - The first discussions I would have had on the possibility for sale would have been in May or June 2008.

Mr BOOTH - What form did those discussions take?

Mr COLEMAN - 'Is it worth considering?' - it was no more than that. Of course I was very keen on the notion of it being worth considering.

Mr BOOTH - In your mind, when did you believe the Government would proceed or was seriously considering the sale?

Mr COLEMAN - I really had not formed a view on that. There needed to be some consideration about the appropriate process. There needed to be advice on that and ultimately it is not for me to sell the TOTE, it is for the Government to sell it. I am part of what gets sold but they make those decisions.

Mr BOOTH - Was it in your understanding that it would be sold back in October last year, for example, or prior to that, prior to November last year?

Mr COLEMAN - That it would be sold, no, it was not my understanding. My knowledge of it being sold would have come in late December.

Mr BOOTH - How were you advised of that?

Mr COLEMAN - I was advised that it had been to Cabinet and that Cabinet had considered the sale of TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - Did you know it was going to Cabinet?

Mr COLEMAN - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Was there an increase in activity? Proposed sales do not drag along at snail's pace. If there is to be a sale or a decision to sell there is a bit more activity just prior to that happening. What I am suggesting is that you would have noticed that increase in activity, in terms of discussions with you, looking at business plans et cetera.

Mr COLEMAN - No, there were none of those discussions.

Mr WILKINSON - None with you?

Mr COLEMAN - None with me.

Mr WILKINSON - And you were not aware of any?

Mr COLEMAN - I was not aware of any, no.

Mr BOOTH - Were you shocked when you heard that it was going to be sold?

Mr COLEMAN - Pleasantly surprised or pleased.

Mr WILKINSON - I am not in government so I do not know, Craig, but I have been involved in private enterprise for a number of years and the Legislative Council for a number of years. People know what is going on around them. Are you saying that this was so cloak and dagger that you did not have any idea as to what was going on around you?

Mr COLEMAN - No, it is not fair to say that. In response to the question, did I know that TOTE was going to be sold? No, I did not know that TOTE was going to be sold until December. Was I aware of any consideration of the potential value of the TOTE over that time? The answer is yes, I was. Was I directly involved in any activity? No.

Mr WILKINSON - You were not aware that that activity was increasing. Can I take that to be -

Mr COLEMAN - I do not know that that is a fair characterisation of what actually occurred.

Mr WILKINSON - That is what I am trying to find out, you see?

Mr COLEMAN - My understanding is consultants, Deloitte, were engaged to give advice on the structure of the company under the Gaming Control Act and they were subsequently engaged to give advice on whether it was appropriate to sell the company. If that is an increase in activity, I was aware of that.

Mr BOOTH - Did they approach TOTE at all in regard to that then? Deloitte were engaged to consider selling the TOTE off, so surely they must have approached TOTE and discussed the business operation, model and the finances of it - what you owned, what you didn't?

Mr COLEMAN - All of those discussions occurred subsequent to the announcement of the sale of TOTE.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mr Coleman, are you telling us that the Cabinet made a decision to sell TOTE without there being any direct involvement by yourself, the CEO of TOTE, in regards to the value that might be ascribed to that asset should it go to sale?

Mr COLEMAN - I think we need to be clear on the decision the Government has made. The decision is the Government has an intention or a desire to sell TOTE given the right circumstances. Those circumstances have yet to be identified and finalised, so saying that TOTE is on the market today is wrong, it is not. Indeed, one of the key processes that needs to be dealt with is the passage of legislation through both Houses of Parliament and a price will need to be achieved which satisfies the Treasurer and the Government in particular. To say it will be sold, there are a lot of things -

Mr GUTWEIN - I said the decision had been made to sell TOTE by Cabinet which I think was certainly how the decision by Cabinet was portrayed; that the Government had decided that they would sell the TOTE. It seems a little strange that as CEO you were not involved in providing any advice to either Deloitte or to Government about the potential value of TOTE prior to Cabinet making that decision.

Mr COLEMAN - If we are going to get into some of those questions I would rather answer them -

CHAIR - Any further questions? If not, we will have a short time in camera again.

Ms ROBYN LOUISE WHISHAW WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you very much for coming along. What I might do is just read a couple of lines on parliamentary privilege, Robyn, because you may not have given evidence to a parliamentary committee before.

Ms WHISHAW - No, I have not.

CHAIR - Basically what it says is that everything you say to this committee today is protected by parliamentary privilege. This is to allow you to speak freely. However, once you have left the committee room, I must advise you not to specifically discuss your written or verbal evidence with anybody until the committee has made its report to the Parliament. You are free to speak generally about the issue to anyone, but please do not refer specifically to anyone about the evidence you give the committee until the report has been published. Our main term of reference is the proposed sale of TOTE by the Government of Tasmania, so I will let you make some remarks.

Ms WHISHAW - Firstly I would like to introduce myself. For those of you who don't know me, most of you, my name is Robyn Whishaw. I am a manager and part-owner of Tasmania's oldest and largest stud, Armidale, at Carrick in northern Tasmania. I have been involved in breeding and racing horses for over 30 years. My children, the eldest of whom is now home working full-time in the business, are fourth-generation farmers and third-generation horse-breeders. Our business currently employs six full-time staff, with 12 part-time staff during our busier times of year. We also provide a large amount of work for an equine vet, two farriers, two transport companies, a chaff supplier, a fencing contractor, a hay-making contractor and an irrigation company, as well as numerous others.

I would like to make the following points regarding the proposed sale of TOTE, and also ask you the following questions. How do we know just what we are being asked to comment on when the Government has not consulted with our industry at all about this proposed sale and, furthermore, has not given any indication at all of how the sale will work and how the industry will be funded? Amazingly, they did not even consult the TOTE chairman, Craig Coleman, on the sale of TOTE. How can Premier Bartlett possibly claim to have an open, transparent and accountable government?

In December 2007 Mr Michael Aird released a study showing the importance of the racing industry to Tasmania's economy, and I have a copy here. It found that the industry generates more than $74.1 million output for the economy, directly employs over 2 500 people, and many more indirectly and part-time. A study done in 2000 by the Australian Racing Board - and I also have a copy of that - had that figure at nearly 5 000 in Tasmania being full-time employed. It also generates a total construction contribution of over $73 million. It is a most valuable industry for Tasmania and one that has shown significant growth trends in recent years.

TOTE turnover was up substantially last year, from $387 million to $498 million in just 12 months, a growth rate of 30 per cent. The racing industry is labour-intensive and provides employment for a subset of people with unique labour skills who may struggle to find work elsewhere. Over 50 per cent of those employed are from rural areas. The employment levels have continued to grow as the industry grows, and the industry largely has not been dependent on government subsidies.

It is very important to note that TOTE was formed to fund the racing industry, to maximise return to stakeholders, and to free the Government from having to fund racing. TOTE was developed to make sure the industry and all the stakeholders were able to progress and reinvest in the future of building a better industry, and this has been very successful. Consider that England, with its wonderful racing, steeped in tradition, bets over twice as much in dollars as Australia, yet it races for less than a third of the prize money. Why? Because Australia has had the best betting and funding system in the world, and that is TOTE. Remember that. Australian racing is the envy of many overseas countries, certainly the envy of the English.

Sadly, other States that have sold their TOTE to private enterprise are starting to suffer. You only have to talk to the administrators in New South Wales, Victoria and South Australia to hear of their grave concerns for the future funding of racing, yet both Western Australia and the ACT, who still have government-owned TOTES, are booming. Has our Government taken the time to look at Western Australia and how their TOTE works to see if their model would be appropriate for Tasmania? In fact, Mr Clarke said earlier that Western Australia based their model on Tasmania with a few changes. It is working brilliantly.

What options has our Government explored? If they have explored any options they certainly have not told us. It is difficult not to be cynical about the timing of the announcement of the sale. Just as the Government has totally changed the structure of the administration of racing, taking it away from TOTE and the race clubs and has formed a new Government-appointed board, it announces suddenly the time is right for TOTE to be sold, right when racing's voice has been disbanded and the new Government board has barely had time to meet. We can be certain the new board members are not going to question the Government's timing in the sale of TOTE now, are they?

I do not doubt that private enterprise would run TOTE more efficiently. But private enterprise will have an obligation to shareholders to maximise their returns. Where will the profit go? It is most likely that an interstate buyer, or an overseas buyer indeed, would be interested in buying our TOTE. They therefore will take the profits out of the State. This will in turn have an enormous negative impact on the State's economy. The way it is at the moment, the profit from TOTE goes back into the State, is spent in the State on building the industry, on employment, and tourism and all the other things that the industry generates. I am asking you if an outsider buys it, where will the profits go and how will this affect our economy? Has the Government done a study on this? It would be nice to see if it had. Remember why TOTE was set up in the first place: to fund the industry.

Aren't we - those that have invested long, hard hours and financial commitment to the racing industry over many years and for my family over three generations - the shareholders of TOTE? For as we work hard to grow our industry and employ more and generate more money, so TOTE too has profited and grown. This in turn has kept the growth spiral onwards and upwards. What I would like to know is how our Government is going to offer protection to our industry and to the livelihoods of all those people and families who have worked so hard to build a viable racing and breeding industry in Tasmania. Without that huge effort and financial commitment by so many the Government would have no TOTE to sell.

It is rather sad to think that we have been so successful in building such a vibrant industry and TOTE that our Government has now forgotten the fundamental reason it was developed in the first place and can only see the dollars it can get from the income of selling it. I think it is important to consider that we must also be aware that governments cannot promise things in perpetuity. Mr Aird may well talk about 20-year promises. I am sorry, but that is all it is: it is only talk. Besides, for me, 20 years is nothing. My youngest son, who aspires to come back to the stud and assist in running the business, will only be in his 30s in 20 years' time. Mr Aird most likely will be long gone but my children will be in their 30s. Twenty years is not long enough, I am sorry.

I challenge our Government to provide a funding model that is not static, that can grow as racing grows as TOTE has done; a model that is sensitive to the needs of the industry and can guarantee us a strong, growing and progressive industry into the future; an industry that can continue to be a major economic and social contributor to our wonderful State of Tasmania. They need to provide us with a model that is better than TOTE. I believe that the racing industry would prefer to stay in the commercial world rather than be dependent on a government for future funding. That is what will happen if TOTE is sold: the Government will have to fund it. I have done the maths and I was alarmed to hear Mr Clarke say that that is the equivalent of $900 million over 20 years.

Finally, I would like to strongly recommend that this committee make a recommendation that the sale of TOTE be put on hold until a proper transparent inquiry can be held to allow thorough investigation of the pros and the cons, and most importantly to allow for public input from those who rely on the industry for their livelihood and income. Thank you.

CHAIR - Thank you, Robyn. I understand the passion you have for the industry and how long you have been in it. You made some very good points. I put a question to you hypothetically, in response to a statement towards the end of your deliberation that you would rather see the racing industry take their chance with the commercial world rather than having a funding model, and you were rather sceptical about the 20-year time line. What happens if there are other commercial pressures which really impact upon TOTE, and they couldn't deliver what they've been delivering in the past? Would it not be better then hypothetically - I am being the devil's advocate here - to have a funding model which delivers some certainty, even though it's for only 20 years?

Ms WHISHAW - I can see your point, yes. I think TOTE has performed well, and it's properly managed - and I would say that the management has been good; you only have to look at the growth of TOTE. In fact, someone was saying there has been 90 per cent growth over 10 years, is that right? It has grown enormously. Obviously, we face a lot of challenges with gambling, and someone like Mr Clarke or Mr Coleman would be in a much better position than I to understand the complexities of those. But from talking to the people in the industry and being reliant on the industry myself, I would think we would rather compete in the marketplace than rely on a government which ostensibly is also competing in the marketplace to get its funds to supply the industry.

I would much prefer that, I would prefer to compete in the marketplace as we have. I think TOTE can continue to grow with good management, and we obviously need to look to Asia for markets, but we have the right personnel to do that. Also, it will force our industry to continue to upgrade and be competitive.

Mr BOOTH - Thanks for the evidence; it is pretty unequivocal that what you're saying is that you don't want it sold. You are representing Armidale Stud, but do you have a broader connection, do you think that what you're saying is broadly what your industry wants?

Ms WHISHAW - I talk to a lot of people in the industry, obviously, through my clients. This is something that a lot of people in the industry are very alarmed about. Certainly the way it's been done has been very alarming because there's been no consultation at all, and yet we have a government saying they are going to. Why wouldn't you go to the industry, why wouldn't you go to the Chairman of the TOTE and asked him about it? It seems farcical that he wasn't asked, but I am not a politician. Talking to the people that I talk to, and I wrote an article in the Examiner which was published on Launceston Cup day and I had a number of calls regarding that; people are very concerned.

CHAIR - That article certainly raised some interest. Soapbox, I think it was called, wasn't it?

Ms WHISHAW - Yes. I am sorry, people don't trust the Government in that we know a government's promise will only last as long as that government is in, and then it can be changed. The industry feels that it has experienced good growth over the years that TOTE's been formed; it has made good progress, so why change? States that have changed are in trouble. In the States and the countries sticking with this model, racing is very sound and growing. All right, when the economy is tough it will not grow as quickly, that is life. We will go through a tough time now, but I think when times are good, if people put in the hard work then we have had the growth and that's exactly what TOTE has done.

I think the general feeling that I get from grassroots - and I certainly can't speak for the whole industry - is that they're very alarmed, that the Government cannot come up with a model which can't be changed, can't be taken away from us, that can cope with growth - and I can't see how they can come up with a model that's flexible enough, but I'm not that smart so perhaps they can - as TOTE has. As we've grown, TOTE's grown, they feed off one another. Can they come up with a model like that?

CHAIR - Following what you were saying, for instance you were going on a line there, I understand the recent yearling sales were less than satisfactory.

Ms WHISHAW - Disastrous. We certainly expected they would be down.

CHAIR - Obviously an economic downturn comes into play there as well. What percentage do you think can be attributed to the uncertainty around the sale? Some trainers have said to me it was all to do with that.

Ms WHISHAW - We'd all have to guess at exactly what it was to do with. We certainly expected a downturn based on other sales figures around Australia. You would have expected a 25 per cent to 30 per cent downturn. I think there's certainly a lot of uncertainty in the industry and unrest about this sudden proposal. One minute TOTE is not for sale and the next minute it is for sale. One minute we have a say in our industry, the next minute there is a new government-appointed board who are not going to stand up and fight against this because they have been appointed by the Government.

We feel that no-one is representing us. Who have we to speak out? The industry feels very uncertain but there is no way that you could guess how that influenced the sales. I think that it was a negative impact but of what amount I do not know.

Mr BOOTH - Why do you think the Treasurer is selling it then?

Ms WHISHAW - I would like to look inside his head and be able to answer that. It would appear on the surface for someone naive and ignorant like myself that perhaps he is a little bit short of funds. If he looked at it long term and what it is going to take to fund the industry over the next 20 years, $900 million is a lot of money and that probably does not even allow for growth. I am sure that it would not be based on the 30 per cent growth we have had in the last year or the 90 per cent growth we have had in the last 10 years. I think that figure is probably just what we are at now, plus the CPI index.

Mr BOOTH - Would you have accepted effectively the assurances prior to the announcement that it was for sale, but in fact it was not for sale?

Ms WHISHAW - Yes. Why should we do otherwise? The question was repeatedly asked. I must admit, though, being a bit of a cynic, that as soon they started to separate TOTE from the administration of racing a lot of us in the industry were saying that the next thing they would be saying is that TOTE was for sale. I was talking about it with a vet back in October; we were joking about it, saying we would hear TOTE was for sale.

Mr BOOTH - Do you feel that the industry has been misled by the Government?

Ms WHISHAW - Definitely. And I do not think the industry trusts the Government at all, if, face to face, they cannot answer you honestly.

Mr GUTWEIN - So absolutely no contact with the industry throughout last year?

Ms WHISHAW - None whatsoever that I know of. I am only a State's leading breeder; why would they ask me?

Mr GUTWEIN - You have also been quite prominent in your public statements on this and in Letters to the Editor as well.

Ms WHISHAW - Well, if I don't, who else is going to?

Mr GUTWEIN - Have you have been contacted after making those public statements?

Ms WHISHAW - Yes, I have and perhaps I might need to say something in camera regarding that. I have been contacted by a lot of the industry too.

Mr GUTWEIN - Just before we go in camera, are you aware of any other contact being made with anyone else in the industry or any formal process being put in place because obviously it appears over the last month to six weeks a lot of concerns have been raised, a lot of people out there are raising issues. Are you aware of any formal process that has been put in place by government or any other body to actually begin to engage?

Ms WHISHAW - This is the only formal process that I know of where some public have been asked to comment. I imagine I was asked to comment because I made a noise. Many people have stopped me in the street and rung me up. Some have written to me and e-mailed me to say good on you for being brave enough to speak out; we need someone to speak out for the industry because we have no-one now because they have just disbanded our voice.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Robyn, obviously the new structure has taken away what you perceive as your voice, but do you still as an industry stakeholder meet on a regular basis?

Ms WHISHAW - No, not as a group. We have been trying to. Since this has happened I have been trying to form a group of stakeholders so that we can have a voice so that when issues like this happen someone, an elected person, can speak for the industry. It is very hard, the Government has just disbanded it, the new board only came into being on 1 January and then this is thrown on us, so it takes a little bit of time.

We are in the process of trying to get a body together because we feel that the new racing board, being all government appointees - I am not saying that they do not have the interest of racing at heart because I think that they will have - they cannot be seen as going against government policy otherwise they will be asked to move on down the road and someone else will fill the seat.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Thank you.

CHAIR - We will go in camera. We will be short.

Mr KEVIN NEILSON WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Kevin, are you au fait with parliamentary privilege and all that sort of thing?

Mr NEILSON - I have read the documents. I think I am fairly familiar with it.

CHAIR - Okay, I will not go through it again.

Kevin, thank you very much for appearing. You are the manager of the Tasmanian Racing Board - or TRB - therefore I will invite you to make a statement if you would like and then open up the proceedings for members to ask some questions. Thank you.

Mr NEILSON - I need to clarify my position. I am not the manager of the Tasmanian Racing Board.

CHAIR - Aren't you? That is what is said on the running sheet.

Mr NEILSON - No, I am the Manager of Harness with the Tasmanian Racing Board.

CHAIR - Okay, thank you.

Mr NEILSON - The original request for me to appear before this committee was in my capacity as CEO of Harness Racing Tasmania. As a result of the legislative change Harness Racing Tasmania ceased to exist from 1 January 2009 and the roles and responsibilities simply were taken over by the Tasmania Racing Board. My current position, as I said, is Manager of Harness with the TRB. When I was asked to appear before the committee I reviewed the minutes of Harness Racing Tasmania board meetings for any indication of the position of HRT concerning the possible sale of TOTE Tasmania.

As the racing restructure consultation leading to the abolition of the co-councils and the formation of TRB was announced in August 2008, I checked the minutes from then to 1 January 2009, and there was no reference to any HRT position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania. That is not a surprise because the sale was announced on 9 January, after Harness Racing Tasmania ceased to exist. During the racing restructure consultation I do recall some individuals making aside comments such as, 'This looks as if it may be set up for sale', but those comments were sort of there one moment and gone the next. At least one HRT council member made a similar comment and said it was just a one-liner. So I suppose, in conclusion, HRT has never had a position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania as the notification of that sale was made after the entity ceased to exist.

CHAIR - Thanks, Kevin. Questions from the committee to Kevin?

Mr GUTWEIN - Do you have a position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania?

Mr NEILSON - Do I personally, Peter?

Mr GUTWEIN - Yes.

Mr NEILSON - No, I do not. The reason for that is that in my current role as Manager of Harness I am concerned about the day-to-day running of harness racing in the Tasmanian racing industry. I know that the Tasmanian Racing Board is working with the minister at the moment to put in place a funding model for the future. I am leaving the Tasmanian Racing Board to do their job while I go ahead with my job, so I do not have a personal position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania. I do not understand the reasons it is being put up for sale. I have not researched them. I genuinely do not have a position on it.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - What about your industry, though? Do you think there is any position generally from people you know and speak with, other than the people who have said, 'This could well be a set-up for a sale' prior to the restructure?

Mr NEILSON - There is a two-part answer to that. I am aware that there is an entity that has got together and canvassed clubs and put a petition forward objecting to the sale of TOTE Tasmania. I have not seen that bit of paper. I do not know what the wording is.

The second part of that answer is that I am sure that what the industry wants is security of funding. The minister has given an undertaking that he would look at a 20-year plan in regard to the funding of the racing industry. The racing industry has had secure funding in the past. If you go back to about 2000 when TOTE Tasmania came in and the legislation required that x number of units were paid back to the racing industry to sustain that industry.

In fact, TOTE exceeded that by a long way in the subsequent years from 2000 to 2008. They initially were sole provider of funding for racing. As we went through the early 2000s, entities such as AAMI, Wrest Point Casino and other sponsors came on board and provided a minimal amount of funding for racing - a very important amount but minimal. Then, of course, with 2006 the licensing of Betfair came in and, as such, funding flowed to the racing industry from Betfair. That is about 25-28 per cent of our funding. So the climate is changing in regard to where funding for racing comes from but TOTE still provides an enormous amount of funding. Into the future, I think the industry just wants surety as to the funding into the future and I do not think they care where it comes from, as long as it is secure.

Mr GUTWEIN - Kevin, whilst you might not have a personal opinion about the sale of TOTE, obviously the outcome of the sale is very important for harness racing. If the outcome was not as good as it currently is, would the sale of TOTE be a good thing?

Mr NEILSON - It is a hypothetical question.

Mr GUTWEIN - I can understand your reasons for not wanting to have a personal position in this room, but in the position that you hold, obviously the outcome of any sale is going to have a direct and material impact on harness racing in Tasmania in some way. Either it is going to be better for the industry, it is going to be the same or it might be worse. From what you understand of what is going forward, is the sale going to be better or worse for the industry, and if it were to be worse but perhaps better for the other codes, would you be supporting it?

Mr NEILSON - First of all, I have confidence in the Government in regard to how they have handled racing in the last eight to 10 years. They have put us on a very high pedestal, comparatively speaking, as far as stake money is concerned, and especially the support that they have given harness breeding through their funding and also through TOTE Tasmania has been sensational. I obviously would not condone anything which reduced the funding to racing into the future. It is a hypothetical question, but if TOTE was sold and the funding went down, in hindsight, obviously I would not support it.

Mr GUTWEIN - Fair enough.

Mr NEILSON - But there is a lot of hypothetical in that.

Mr BOOTH - Just following on from Peter's question, are you concerned then that the funding at the moment effectively is being taken out of the political domain to a fair degree, because TOTE exists as a racing entity that funds its stakes and so forth, whereas if it was transferred back directly from consolidated revenue to support the stakes that a strong political argument would occur each Budget as to what the public would see as the public purse paying for the racing industry, and therefore be subject to the whims of whatever was in - the political pressure?

Mr NEILSON - I think no matter whether it is health, education or racing, it is always at the whim of the Government at the time in regard to the support for it.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, but that is the point I am making at the moment. If you are queuing up for a hospital bed, you are not necessarily going to look at what money TOTE puts back to support stakes, whereas if it is a direct Treasury contribution from consolidated revenue, budgetary and portionary, that goes to support that industry, then you are competing, aren't you, more directly? That is the point I am making.

Mr NEILSON - Yes, let us get this clear. The current funding is through until the end of this financial year. With the restructure, the funding that the code councils have has been transferred across to the Tasmanian Racing Board and the funding is secure until 30 June. As I mentioned before, I know at the moment that the TAB's main priority in the past two month has been to work with the minister to get a funding model up and going, and I believe that process is almost complete now. Again, I refer to the statement that Mr Aird made to this committee at the first sitting when he said he was looking for long-term surety, and I had noticed the figure of 20 years was mentioned. Does that answer the question?

Mr BOOTH - Well, you have answered it how you want to. The question I was really concerned about was whether, in fact, from an industry point of view you would have more security if you funded through the yield from the racing industry itself, which is effectively and directly hypothecated, if you like, back into the industry rather than Treasury having to grab for cash, selling off the TOTE and putting that into consolidated revenue, and then hooking up a deal that gives you 20 years of certainty in the sense that it becomes a political issue if you get funding. That is the point that I am making.

Mr NEILSON - In regard to the funding from TOTE Tasmania, or an entity like TOTE Tasmania, their performance has been outstanding in the last couple of years. We all know the figures, so I will not go through those again. Who knows what will happen with regard to the racing industry in Tasmania, or worldwide what will happen with betting and so on? It is really a hypothetical, again. As I said, I want a funding model that is guaranteed, whether from the racing industry itself or from consolidated revenue through the government budget each year. To me it does not particularly matter and I do not know which one is better at the moment but I have a lot of faith in what the Government has done in the last eight to 10 years.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think the industry should have a plebiscite with all three codes to decide whether TOTE should be sold?

Mr NEILSON - My answer to that would be, provided all the information is given to them about why the sale of TOTE is proceeding, yes. But I do not think a plebiscite is much good unless people have all the information in regard to why the sale has been put up and so on.

Mr BOOTH - Do you know why it is being sold?

Mr NEILSON - No, I do not.

Mr BOOTH - The Government should be transparent about why it wants to sell it?

Mr NEILSON - I do not know what the processes have been with other entities that have been sold, like the Hydro and so on. I do not know what the process is in regard to how much information is given out.

Mr GUTWEIN - We tried with the Hydro. I think Tony Rundle would be appalled.

Mr NEILSON - Sorry, had the wrong one there.

Mr GUTWEIN -How are your members reacting at the moment? One of the concerns that I am hearing from the industry more broadly than we have heard to date and Robyn Whishaw, concerns the lack of consultations concerning them. Do you believe that former members of Harness Racing Tasmania, as they exist now, are concerned about the sale? If so, what could be done?

Mr NEILSON - I understand that you are interviewing one of those former members this afternoon, Tony Jeffries. Tony would be able to give you a straight-from-the-horse's-mouth answer to that, I would suggest. The industry wants security of funding into the future. That is my summary of what the industry thinks about it.

Mr BOOTH - In regard to that, when the pokie licence was given out and a lot of betting money went into pokies there was a lot of concern at the time that that money should have been hypothecated straight back into the industry. It did not happen to the detriment of the industry. I did not support that contention myself. Do we not have a similar situation where the business that supports the industry at the moment by being set up over the years partially through government support but effectively through industry self-generation is now to be plundered by the Treasury, but unless there is absolute guarantee, there is 100 per cent hypothecation, then you might end up in the same situation as when the pokies were set up which stripped away a lot of the gambling money?

Mr NEILSON - When the pokies were set up there was a concern in regard to the lack of funding coming back to racing, but time has shown that the Betfair model and also the performance of TOTE Tasmania, I believe, well and truly made up for any perceived shortfall.

Mr BOOTH - There was $200-odd million lost on pokies. There are a couple of hundred million coming out of the gambling pools for poker machines. It is a fair bit when you consider the $23 million that goes back to TOTE from the State.

Mr NEILSON - I answer that question on the basis of the stake money available to participants in Tasmania. While we would all like it to be higher, it stacks up very well compared with other States in Australia and that is the base on which I say it has turned out pretty well.

CHAIR - Kevin, thank you very much for your time.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr PHILIP GEOFFREY SWINTON WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - I invite you to give some evidence or make an opening statement and then let the committee ask you some questions.

Mr SWINTON - First, my position is Secretary of the Devonport Racing Club and also President of Thoroughbred Breeders Tasmania. In those two capacities I have a strong interest in the sale of TOTE Tasmania.

CHAIR - You are a mixed grill.

Mr SWINTON - I suppose so. Both organisations are looking for a good future for thoroughbred racing in the State. I will make a statement from each of those entities. First, the Devonport Racing Club has enjoyed a very good association with TOTE Tasmania and has handed over staffing responsibilities and so forth to them over the last three or four years. We have seen a lot improvements to the track and, having seen Launceston come on line, we are looking for more improvements for that racecourse moving into the future and for racing on the north-west coast.

As far as thorough bred breeders are concerned, once again we have enjoyed a very good relationship with TOTE Tasmania. TOTE is a wonderful supporter of the thoroughbred yearling sales, which have gone from strength to strength over the last few years with the advent of Magic Millions coming on board. We owe a lot to TOTE for high average prices for a lot of breeding studs. Robyn spoke to you earlier, she runs one of the largest studs in the State, along with Graeme McCulloch, ourselves and Bowthorpe. We have all seen a lot of improvement in the breeding side of things and we are all investing quite heavily in the industry. Obviously when the sale of TOTE Tasmania was first mooted in early January, we were all seeking some long-term surety as to the future in which we were going. Both organisations, the Devonport Racing Club and Thoroughbred Breeders Tasmania were, I suppose, taking a position of opposition to the sale of TOTE simply because we did not have information as to a long-term funding model.

We are not saying it is necessarily a bad thing, but until we are given that sort of information it is difficult for us to make a positive comment towards it. The sale of TOTE to private hands could be a great thing for the racing industry in Tasmania. As we all know a private operator tends to run that type of business more efficiently. However, we would need to see a long-term funding model before we could support it.

Mr BOOTH - Philip, you mentioned that it could deliver potentially better outcomes if it was run by private enterprise, but are some of those efficiencies and things that the industry would then lose as a result of it no longer being a government business intangible? After all, a government business is seen to be a public facility which does, by its very nature, have to deliver certain other benefits that are non commercial directly.

Mr SWINTON - Yes, that is very true, Kim. I suppose one of the things with TOTE at the moment being a government business is that it is quite easy for us to justify the fact that TOTE is putting in $27 million or whatever it is to racing because you can say that has been generated by TOTE Tasmania.

Having spoken to the Treasurer who said, eventually the money is coming out of one big pool anyway, it does not matter which organisation is generating that money. But obviously it is a far easier model for everybody to relate to if they know that is where it is coming from, it is funding racing. We have had some great increases in stakes and so forth in the past. If that is no longer there we will be competing with every other entity in the State money out of the consolidated revenue. It is going to be far more difficult to justify, I would have thought, than the model we have at the moment. But, once again, if it is run very efficiently and generates more turnover then it could be a positive in the industry if there is a funding model in place that the industry benefits from.

Mr BOOTH - Where do you see those efficiency gains occurring? That is where I was saying in terms of the intangibles that are provided.

Mr SWINTON - TOTE Tasmania is probably entering a difficult phase at the moment where they have lots of legislation issues with other States that they need to deal with. I know that they have been very proactive overseas and that is a big growth area. Depending on who was to buy the business they would need to find some niche markets, but that is not my area of expertise.

Mr BEST - Thank you very much for your contribution today. We heard earlier from representative jockeys of their view about quality being important but also quantity. I am just interested in your view. Could that be solved with more funding so that there could be more events? Maybe I could simplify the question by simply asking what would be the key features that you would be looking for in a funding-model agreement?

TOTE Tasmania and Magic Millions going forward with a very successful sale has brought a lot of new people into the industry, which in turn has helped the local economy. It has brought a larger pool of horses coming through. From a thoroughbred perspective, there have been insufficient races for those horses to compete in. I know that there is a view in some quarters that we need to get quality instead of quantity and there are various ways to do that. We are doing some work at the moment on some modelling for that. Going from approximately 68 to 78 race meetings per year would probably satisfy the demand and supply issues we have at the moment. Whilst that would require some extra funding, we believe that there are other areas that we could get funding from - some of the larger races and so forth. No matter which funding model we look at, we have to constantly be increasing our stakes pool because, whilst I heard Mr Neilson say earlier we have done very well in comparison with Victoria and New South Wales in their country racing, we have to keep growing because otherwise we will stagnate and fall behind. The industry is very vibrant at the moment and we need to continue that.

Mr BEST - Is there a set percentage? Is it CPI? How do you work out how the increments need to keep adjusting?

Mr SWINTON - The benchmark that we have been working on is Country Racing Victoria. We were about 85 per cent of their stakes money and I believe that we are about 100 per cent of it at the moment. We are getting interest now from Victoria with people bringing horses over here or trainers relocating from Victoria, and that is all a good thing for our industry. We need that positive vibe to continue. An issue that we have had just recently is that unfortunately our sales this year were 41 per cent down in late February, just before the Launceston Cup. Obviously the economic climate has contributed to that but also I think the uncertainty in the local industry with the announcement of the sale of TOTE without any model as to where we are moving in the future has probably caused some of our local buyers and trainers to be a little apprehensive this year and to stand back to see where the industry is going.

Mr BEST - When you said 'pool of horses coming through' you were talking Tasmanian, is that right?

Mr SWINTON - Yes.

Mr BEST - When we are talking about the funding model, what are you proposing there? Are you suggesting that the funding model needs to be worked out and decided upon well in advance of any proposed sale of TOTE?

Mr SWINTON - It would certainly be very difficult to go backwards from what we have at the moment. Once again, as I said, if it goes into private hands it becomes more profitable. It could be a huge winner for the State, it really could, as long as we have some surety from the industry that some of that money will be going back into the industry to benefit in the long term.

CHAIR - Philip, you talked about, and I think we may have had some prior evidence that there need to be more race meetings in the State. There was always a bit of a contrary view that we have a very small pool of jockeys here and that some horses have gone to the knackery in the last few months. I think you were painting a bit more of a positive picture, saying that there are trainers coming in and wanting to train horses here.

Mr SWINTON - That is right, yes.

CHAIR - In a general overview of the racing industry, are more race meetings required within the State at this stage? Is that something that you would support?

Mr SWINTON - Yes, they are. I have spoken to Don Abell in regard to this. Whilst he did not know which way it would be he said to come forward with the proof. We are actually working on some modelling at the moment that shows that that is in fact the case.

CHAIR - The other thing you talked about was the performance of TOTE and how they had performed quite well in the last few years. Given the very competitive commercial environment that they operate in and there may be external forces which may impact in the future upon their viability and therefore that would deliver less return to the Tasmanian people and obviously to the racing industry, is that a concern, you being within the industry? I know that's a bit of a hypothetical. Is that something you would be concerned about, you would prefer to have a guaranteed funding model from consolidated revenue rather than from TOTE itself?

Mr SWINTON - It is a hypothetical question, but I suppose you can only go back on their performance over the last few years, which has been very strong. You would hope that in any competitive environment, which hasn't no doubt been the case over the last few years, they have performed very well. So as an industry, we would hope that would continue to happen.

CHAIR - So you are not aware of any things that might be looming on the horizon in terms of pressures that may diminish their performance?

Mr SWINTON - Certainly race fields legislation, which you are probably well aware of, which means we need to buy our product and sell our product well. I believe they have done very well, especially with their Internet side of the business with looking at opportunities outside of Australia, and so forth, so the industry I think would be very positive in all their aspects in respect to TOTE Tasmania.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Just following on from the Chair's line of questioning, there obviously was evidence earlier today from a person saying that too few get too much, and the stakes are not evenly spread. Obviously the Hobart and Launceston cups are examples of that, and then there's not enough for the smaller race meetings. Do you support that theory?

Mr SWINTON - It's an interesting idea. Certainly leading up to the thoroughbred sales this year, first, second and third in the majority of our larger races all went out of the State, so that was a negative for the State. However, if we have a horse good enough, we will take it to the mainland and try to win their prize money, don't worry about that. It's quite difficult for us to limit the opportunities of mainland competitors to come over here. It's a good thing when they come over here because hopefully it raises standards that we need to have in Tasmania, but I think there's probably a balance.

I think at the moment maybe we do have some of our races a little too high, and some of that money could be directed to minor races. I don't think it would make a lot of difference if we were to take a percentage off most of those larger races; it wouldn't affect the horses who came over, it wouldn't affect our fields, but it certainly would help the local industry here 52 weeks a year.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - That was the message that I was getting out in the public as well. You said your particular organisation is working with the minister to look at a funding model. Has that happened only since the announcement's been made for the proposal to sell TOTE?

Mr SWINTON - No, it was Mr Neilson who said that; we haven't been working with the minister on that at the moment. We've had meetings as a group with Don Abell, and we are developing a plan at the moment to send to the racing board that will show that the facts and figures as to why we need more race meetings.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - You haven't had any direct conversations or meetings with the minister in regard to -

Mr SWINTON - Not formally, no.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - What about informally?

Mr SWINTON - Yes, I have spoken to him informally about it.

Mr BOOTH - I am intrigued just in regard to your comments that if TOTE was sold into private enterprise then it would do a lot better, there is more potential. Given that it is a government business enterprise supposed to work on a corporate model, implicit in that, then, is that TOTE isn't performing to capacity or there's some undetermined or undisclosed capacity that they should be going into. What are those areas, or is that just a generalisation?

Mr SWINTON - It is only a generalisation, I think that probably comes just from dealing with businesspeople in general. I suppose if you're out there in the private sector then you could probably run a little bit leaner and meaner. As far as the industry is concerned, I suppose we are very pleased with the way that TOTE has performed, but for it to go to private enterprise then there may be other opportunities that come with that.

Mr BOOTH - Correct me if I'm wrong, but I'm assuming that would mean that if it went better, the Government would have to have some sort of taxation model in place to take some of the funding back out of that increased pool or better performance, that business, that would somehow then be redistributed back to the industry.

Mr SWINTON - Certainly it's difficult for us to comment on it at the moment because we haven't seen any funding model at all.

Mr BOOTH - So at this point of time, where you are sitting, is it a fair assumption that the decision to sell TOTE is in fact a Treasury-driven imperative as a grab for cash rather than for the good of the industry? Or do you think it is taken for the good of the industry?

Mr SWINTON - I thought the timing of it was interesting in that on 11 November there was an announcement that there was a new era in racing and the board was selected and announced on 28 December and then the sale was announced on 8 January. That seemed probably to a lot of people that it was something that had been considered beforehand. I suppose it is hard to know. I mean, we have not been told the reasons for TOTE's sale, so any answer to that would only be a guess.

We have spoken a lot about ongoing funding with stakes, but another really important issue to look at is infrastructure. Whilst Launceston has just had a major track upgrade and it is an unfortunate situation that we have Launceston, Devonport, Brighton and Hobart all probably needing new tracks all at the one time, another very important thing to look at as we move forward is where that infrastructure money is going to come from.

Mr BOOTH - Just one question in regard to the funding model in the future which you are looking at if the TOTE was sold. Doesn't it concern you that you would be queuing up for money, even if it was a long-term commitment? I mean, there is no such long-term commitment with football, for example, or pogo-stick riding or any other activity that occurs. Doesn't that then put the industry at risk of the whims of politics each budgetary session, and it becomes an election issue?

Mr SWINTON - It certainly does.

Mr BOOTH - I have been very critical of the Government in the past in terms of their prioritisation of funding streams to the racing industry when you have issues with health and education and road infrastructure, all sorts of things, and that is an argument that has been perennial, it keeps coming up, whereas at the moment with the TOTE funding the industry directly you do not have that white noise coming across each budget. Nobody looks at it and says racing is getting all this money because it is actually seen to be a self-generating thing which to me, from the industry perspective, is much more desirable. Is that a fair comment?

Mr SWINTON - It is a fair comment, yes. From my dealings with people in other States, I sit on the board of Thoroughbred Breeders Australia and there are a number of studs that have been looking at opportunities in Tasmania and I think they are probably sitting back now and waiting to see what happens before making any commitment, but certainly the industry is seen as being very vibrant down here at the moment and I would hate to see that go backwards.

CHAIR - Thank you very much, Philip, for your presentation. We will no doubt talk again.

Mr SWINTON - We will, thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr GRAEME JOHN RUSSELL WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Mr Russell, we invite you to introduce yourself and make a statement and then we will ask you some questions.

Mr RUSSELL - My name is Graeme Russell, I am Vice-Chairman of the Devonport Racing Club and an ex-committee member of the Thoroughbred Racing Council which, as you aware, no longer exists. So I am here to represent the racing club of Devonport and see where everything goes.

CHAIR - We have given our terms of reference, the proposed sale of TOTE. Do you have an opinion or has the club formed an opinion as to whether it is a good or bad thing?

Mr RUSSELL - I have not really formed an opinion and, I guess, listening to a lot of the others as well - because we have not had a lot of information on the conditions of sale of the TOTE and all the other things that are going on - it is really a 'not knowing' situation as yet. We have spoken at our committee meetings and it all comes out the same - 'Give us some information on why it is going to be sold and what the conditions will be when it is sold'.

CHAIR - Has it created some anxiety within the club?

Mr RUSSELL - I think it has because even a lot of our committee members have backed off on buying horses at the yearling sales. I settled for one. I do not have a race horse at the moment because I have just held back because I am not sure -

CHAIR - You might be saving money.

Laughter.

Mr RUSSELL - Or making money. Until the decision has been made to either sell or not to sell, and with the new racing council as well, nobody really knows what is happening in the industry.

CHAIR - So I suppose the sooner that Parliament make a decision in that respect so we know which way we are going, it could be an advantage to the industry.

Mr RUSSELL - That is exactly right.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Graeme, in your mind, had this proposed sale been held off, say, for 12 months while the new racing structure is bedded down, so to speak, do you believe that would have been more beneficial and your part of the industry may have had more time to digest what was going to happen?

Mr RUSSELL - I think it probably would have been a good idea to move the industry forward a little slower than it is. It seems that everything is trying to happen right at the one time and when you talk to a lot of the trainers and owners they all ask the same question, 'What the hell is happening at TOTE? What's going on with the industry?'. There are a lot of 'don't knows' at the moment.

Mr BOOTH - Drilling down on what you said in regard to buying horses at the sale, for example, you said you no longer have any horses yourself. Had the sale not been announced, would you have proceeded in the same environment as pre the announcement and bought horses?

Mr RUSSELL - I probably would have. If I went to the sale I probably would have bought two but I decided not to go because I am a bit of a sucker when I go to an auction - I seem to put my hand up.

Laughter.

Mr RUSSELL - So, yes, I possibly would have looked at buying, but just at the moment the industry is in a little bit of an unsure situation so I thought maybe I would just hold off for 12 months.

Mr BOOTH - So is it a reasonable thing to extrapolate from that then that the industry is concerned that the sale or privatisation of TOTE might be detrimental to the industry?

Mr RUSSELL - I do not know. This is going back to what I said a while ago, but I think it is just that the industry does not know. I think if the industry was told that the conditions of sale would be that the money would go straight back into the racing industry it would be different. If we have to sit and look at our money for racing coming out of consolidated revenue, maybe there is going to be a lot of public reaction out there that we are taking money away from hospitals and education and all the rest of it, whereas now, you still read in the media that we still have a few problems like that, but at least now we know that the money for racing is coming from racing.

Mr BOOTH - So do you see a need to sell to privatise TOTE under the current arrangements? Is there any reason that you see why it ought to be sold?

Mr RUSSELL - Not particularly, unless of course the conditions and whatever comes out of the sale make a big improvement to our racing industry. If we can get more race meetings and improve the balloting system - and the only way I believe we can improve that is by having more race meetings - I believe the sale would be a good idea, but the timing of it is probably not just quite right.

Mr BOOTH - From where you sit in the industry, and given the positions that you hold and have held, there has been a lot of white noise about the potential for a sale, which was denied; in fact it was unequivocally stated that it wasn't going to be sold. Were you shocked when you heard that it was going to be sold?

Mr RUSSELL - I was actually, because we were told at, I think it was our last or second-last Thoroughbred Racing Council meeting, that there was no intention of TOTE being sold.

Mr BOOTH - When was that?

Mr RUSSELL - That was probably a month before the Tasmanian Racing Board took over. Whether it was a quick decision after that or not, it's -

Mr BOOTH - Do you feel you were misled in regard to this?

Mr RUSSELL - Probably a little, yes, but by whom we don't quite know.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think that the industry should have a plebiscite on the sale, all codes, an industry-wide plebiscite in terms of whether the industry accepts it should be sold or not?

Mr RUSSELL - I don't think you could do that until, as I say, the information gets out and things are a little more transparent about how it's being sold, maybe who the contenders are for buying, and that sort of thing.

Mr GUTWEIN - How much capital might be required to bring some of the other racetracks up to scratch, so to speak? We've heard this morning that money has been spent in recent years, on Launceston for example, but Devonport particularly?

Mr RUSSELL - I reckon for Devonport we'd be looking at $12 million to $15 million to bring it up to scratch. I probably believe Launceston is a fantastic track now with the new StrathAyr. We're looking at some prospects at the moment so that when the board comes to us and tells us they're going to spend a heap of money at Devonport, we can say, 'This is what we'd like' or 'This is not what we'd like', instead of being able to say, 'Oh, we don't know'. We are looking at a StrathAyr against the other tracks like Geelong has, the synthetic tracks. We are getting some information together as a club for that.

Mr GUTWEIN - Over what sort of time frame do you think that upgrade would occur, or is it important that something is done with Devonport relatively quickly?

Mr RUSSELL - I think it's very important that in the next two or three years something's done at Devonport. We found a problem last year when Launceston was closed, and the racing industry really struggled to have enough because our track's not up to scratch enough to race through the winter. We had two or three meetings cancelled, so more horses get balloted out, owners get frustrated and trainers are crabby. Yes, it becomes very important, I think, that we have the three tracks up and running.

Mr BOOTH - Are you concerned that there might be a strategy for a two-track model in Tasmania?

Mr RUSSELL - I don't believe so. A lot of people talk about that, but I don't believe it's possible that you could run Tasmanian racing on two tracks. I think it's important that if we had to have two tracks we'd never survive.

Mr BEST - Pretty much from my reading of what you're saying is that your view in relation to the sale of TOTE really would be dependent upon what might be the situation in the funding model. If you could see that, then you could actually probably give the committee a firm view either way, couldn't you?

Mr RUSSELL - For sure, yes. As I said before, it could be a wonderful thing for racing, but it's probably like a motor car that no-one's ever seen.

Mr BEST - In that, there are some matters that have been raised about things that people would like to see in a funding model. Do you have anything other than what's been said today, or would you like to enforce some of the things that may have been said today?

Mr RUSSELL - Not really, no. I think from what I've heard from two or three speakers today, everyone's is of virtually the same opinion. We need some transparency and to find out what the reasons are and what the conditions of sale are, then we can sit down and make a fair assessment.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Graeme, it was said previously today that for your particular part of the racing industry to grow and have more opportunity for the horses to race, so from your perspective do you believe that Devonport needs to be upgraded for that to happen?

Mr RUSSELL - Definitely.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - In your mind, does there need to be a commitment for that $12 million to $15 million to be committed before that next part could well and truly take place.

Mr RUSSELL - Yes, definitely. I do not believe there has been money spent on Devonport in a major upgrade for probably 15 to 20 years. I am not sure. The track at the moment requires really heavy maintenance all the time just to keep it up and running so that we can race on it.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - That is at the level that you already race at. That is not being able to extend out those opportunities for racing people?

Mr RUSSELL - That is right.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - To get equal coverage across the State, Devonport would need that $12 million to $15 million, in your mind?

Mr RUSSELL - In my mind, I am sure it would, yes.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Are you supported by the rest of your organisation on this issue?

Mr RUSSELL - Yes. It was stated by TOTE before all this happened that they were verbally guaranteeing that Devonport would be the next upgrade. But now this is all happening it all up in the air again.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Ahead of Launceston lights?

Mr RUSSELL - No, Launceston lights would be going ahead and the next major restructure would be Devonport.

Mr BOOTH - In terms of the politics, you make it clear that, if it were to be funded out of consolidated revenue, how would you feel going out and competing against football, health, education and so forth for an annual support for stakes and so forth?

Mr RUSSELL - I guess it would make it much harder, wouldn't it? You are also competing against football, hospitals, health and all the rest of it, but you are also competing against the public because of the look of it, more than anything. Even though maybe the money is going into Consolidated Revenue and then coming out and going into racing.

Mr BEST - Your money would be going into it.

Mr RUSSELL - Yes, but it probably does not look quite as good if it is coming straight from racing back into racing.

CHAIR - Graeme, thank you very much for your evidence. We appreciate your coming down and wish you all the best. Have a safe trip back.

Mr RUSSELL - Thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr WALTER McSHANE WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - You are aware of the issues that surround privilege and that sort of thing?

Mr McSHANE - Yes.

CHAIR - You are au fait with that?

Mr McSHANE - Yes.

CHAIR - You do not need me to explain those to you?

Mr McSHANE - No.

CHAIR - Thank you very much for coming along. You know what our term of reference is. I will just read that to you again - we propose to inquire into the proposed sale of TOTE by the Government of Tasmania and any other matters incidental. I would invite you to make an opening statement if you like and then we will ask you some questions.

Mr McSHANE - Paul Lennon did a great job when he designated a lot of money to the racing industry because it is a very important industry, as racing is all over Australia. He engendered a lot of confidence in racing when he put as much money aside as he did - albeit much of that money was misspent - not his fault, he cannot do everything. A lot of that money was misdirected and had it been given to the racing industry it would have been spent ever so much better, but that is not the way it all happened.

I consider racing very much as a confident sport and business. From my point of view it is a business and a sport. What has happened since Mr Aird took over and misled us has destroyed one heck of a lot of confidence right throughout the industry from the breeders to the owners to the trainers and perhaps jockeys because we cannot get jockeys to stay in this State.

We are in a shocking situation where we are flying jockeys in every Sunday to ride horses, then on a Monday we go looking for people to train our horses for the other six days of the week. People are not here and they won't come and stay here because our industry is a little bit too small. We have asked for more racing to make it more viable for all of us but this has not happened, the money was not available.

We were pretty comfortable with TOTE and our spin-off from TOTE to keep the industry in a reasonably sound situation. We thought we knew where we were going. We were promised by Paul Lennon that we would be looked after and that all the legislation was in place to maintain the racing industry and when the word came out that the racing industry and TOTE were to be split we were pretty quick to work out why. I was in the room when we put the question to Mr Aird as to whether that was going to be the case, no less than three times in one session. He denied it thrice, and there was no cock there to crow after he said it.

Mr GUTWEIN - When was that?

Mr McSHANE - I cannot tell you the date. It was in his rooms in the Executive Building.

Mr GUTWEIN - Can you give an indication of which month?

Mr McSHANE - I have a shocking memory. I have had a lot of falls off horses and my short-term memory is non-existent. Someone else that you will possibly have in this room today could tell you; it was in the spring.

Mr BOOTH - Well before the racing restructure bill went before the House.

Mr McSHANE - Yes it was. The writing was on the wall and when we put it to him directly he denied it three times at least so we thought maybe it was not going to happen. We read in the press that he said it was not happening, it was not happening until he signed the sale, or the whatever it was - the bill for the future sale of it. And that is when it happened, he said.

But it happened nine months before that when took the racing administration out of the hands of TOTE, or he put it in train. Confidence went and, as we have seen in the yearling sales a couple of weeks ago, it was not the economic recession that caused the fall in prices, it was not that, because Tasmania is rather a small industry but we need x number of horses to run our racing industry.

It seemed that we had too many horses because we did not have enough races for the horses that we had bred here so when it came to the sales we were expecting a little bit of a downturn but not to the extent that it happened. Now we have a glut of horses, we have service fees and studs that are going to feel a huge impact and it has been caused by indecision and by lack of confidence. The confidence has gone because we do not know where our funding is coming from.

We are told by the man that denied it thrice, to believe him, he will make sure that we are funded. We cannot believe that, nobody in their right mind could believe that anymore. Whether we are going to be correctly funded or not we do not know.

We already have the problem in the industry that we do not have enough racing, and we have a shortage of personnel. I have 15 horses in work at the moment. On Monday morning I had no riders. A couple did not turn up and the rider that I had been using is back in Melbourne riding track work over there for somebody who won't give him rides during the week.

They want to live in Melbourne, they want to live in the big smoke; they will not come and live in Tasmania because we are a backwater to them but they do not mind coming on Sunday and taking our money and going back to Melbourne, but we do not have a big enough industry here for them to want to be here.

With the lack of confidence we have with the sale of TOTE, should it happen, we feel in a very precarious situation.

CHAIR - Even prior to this mooted sale of TOTE these issues existed under the existing regime, then? There were not enough race meetings and there was a lack of personnel in terms of jockeys and everything else even before this?

Mr McSHANE - These were pre-existing issues. We were hoping for an improvement. We have been fighting to get the two big cups put back where they should be.

CHAIR - To reduce the prize money and then spread that more equitably.

Mr McSHANE - Spread it throughout the industry, put on more race meetings. We have worked out that by bringing the two cups back to $300 000 and $250 000 instead of $400 000 and $300 000, we could put on another four race meetings. That would help quite a bit.

CHAIR - Would they still attract quality fields even if you reduced both of them?

Mr McSHANE - Oh, yes. We have a meeting next Tuesday and one on Wednesday. We have 213 horses nominated, and that's in two days. Then there's another race meeting the following Sunday which will attract probably another 110 or 120 nominations. Quite a few of those horses will be balloted out because some of them are concentrated too much in the maiden and the lower grades. There is quite a big number of horses here, but if we are not on Sky Channel they don't want us. Our local administration are not keen to spread money around midweek if we're not on Sky Channel. That's where we're left, with a huge glut of horses to be balloted out, a breeding industry that's hit the wall. A lot of horses went home to the studs after the sale, and they'll be more or less given away; people will be trying to give them away to trainers so that they cut their own costs back because it's costing them to take them home when they expected to sell them.

CHAIR - So there is not a shortage of horses, that's not an issue?

Mr McSHANE - No, it's the personnel. We're not training our own personnel here anymore. They're going to Melbourne.

CHAIR - Are you concerned in terms of future funding and capex for the courses, capital works? Is that another issue? We know Launceston has been done.

Mr McSHANE - There was a lot of money spent at Elwick, in one silly place: the grandstand that's used once a year. Yet our tracks that people all over Australia see on Sky Channel every week are in a shocking condition and they are quite stupid because one of them is so narrow that you can only have 10 horses running on it. A spit of rain and you have all sorts of problems and biases where horses tear up the outside fence, or into the inside fence or somewhere, and people over Australia look at it and say, 'What the ... are you doing out there, why are they out there, and why are they in there, why are they all crowding in there?' It's because the track is just not good enough. All the money was spent on the grandstand which is empty on race day, and nothing was spent where it should have been spent on the tracks, where the horses are and where the betting was done that gives the TOTE its funding.

CHAIR - Could you argue that perhaps a new privatised entity might have done that better than what's been done in the past?

Mr McSHANE - Yes - if only they'd listened, but I am afraid they would not listen. TOTE was given a job that they had no expertise in whatsoever. None. They spent the money exactly how they felt like spending it.

CHAIR - That's turning the argument around a bit, isn't it, if you had the devil's advocate and the funding was secure? I know Mr Booth raised the issues of competing against health, and all those sorts of issues, and that is a real problem as well.

Mr McSHANE - That was a problem at the time, no doubt, but the funding was there. The way it was spent was another issue.

Mr BOOTH - To clarify this, are you saying that you hold the current minister responsible to a large degree for the collapse of the yearling sales?

Mr McSHANE - To quite a big extent, yes. The confidence of the industry went straight down when he said that he was not selling TOTE and then he did a backflip and said, yes, he was. Then he told us to believe him. No-one could or would believe him after that and so where the funding was coming from has been a question in everyone's mind ever since. Confidence has gone rock bottom again.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think the industry would like a new minister in that regard to restore some sort of confidence?

Mr McSHANE - If TOTE was left as our benefactor, I am quite sure that confidence would be restored.

Mr BOOTH - If TOTE remained in public hands?

Mr McSHANE - If it remained in the hands of -

Mr BOOTH - As a GBE, yes, under the Government.

Mr McSHANE - Yes.

Mr BOOTH - To get this straight, with regard to the long-term future of the industry, your view is that you prefer TOTE not to be sold but to be managed, setting aside the management issues with TOTE, but you would prefer the TOTE to remain in Government ownership rather than being sold.

Mr McSHANE - Correct. The change in administration will possibly be quite okay. That will not be a big issue. It is just about in place and ready to work but the funding is the problem that everybody feels is dangerous. We are in a precarious position with no-one telling us where funding is coming from.

Mr BOOTH - If the TOTE was sold and the Treasurer says - and you have said that you cannot believe him, but setting that aside - a funding model was set up with some capital expenditure and so forth, would you still be concerned that you were competing with health, education and so forth every year in a budget rather than it coming straight across from TOTE? Is that fair to say?

Mr McSHANE - That is quite fair to say, yes. I do not know that Treasury is all that rapt in the racing industry, even though they should be. I do not know that they are all that keen because there are a heck of a lot of votes coming from other directions.

Mr BOOTH - Do you see the danger you spoke about in terms of funding as being that it would then become a political issue rather than it just being within the industry?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, and a lot of those politics would not be conducive to the person in racing because there is a lot more weight thrown to education and health. People perceive racing to be a sport of the rich but it is not. It is an industry for people across the board and it employs one heck of a lot of people.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, it is a huge engine-driver of the economy, there is no doubt about that.

Mr McSHANE - Yes, I am in all its areas; the feed business, the breeding business and the training business. I know how many people are dependent on it.

Mr BEST - If you had a good funding model and, say, there was some arrangement and whatever the outcome was that there was a move towards more events, an expanded amount of money being invested and some surety with some agreement as to what the funding model would be, what would your thoughts be about that? Would you not be interested in that, rather than have it stay as it is?

Mr McSHANE - At this point we have had no funding model put to us. We have no idea what is in Mr Aird's mind except that there will be an amount of money coming from Treasury. We have had Mr Challen look at us before and he is not all that keen on racing. Should it be Treasury's decision as to what sort of money would be given to racing, we would be very scared of that situation. But if a model, as you say, was put to us with some surety -

Mr BEST - Yes, I think that is probably a bit of a reserve aim in a sense that if you had an organisation that was keen and very dependent on having a successful racing industry in Tasmania, you would have to have a good funding agreement, otherwise people are just not going to put horses into races and things like that. We will see the things that you are talking about continue while this hiatus exists. So there would have to be some common interest at some stage.

Mr McSHANE - Yes, if we could see it -

Mr BEST - That is right; it needs to be seen.

Mr McSHANE - and we could restore some confidence then we would sit a little bit more comfortably, but at the moment there is no comfort at all. There are people who would have gone to those yearling sales and bought another yearling who did not go - and refused to go - because there is not enough racing and their horses were being balloted out. We have Mr Aird's - well, we will not call it a lie but there is no other word for it; you cannot say one thing and then completely reverse it. It is just not on.

Mr HARRISS - Walter, I think a common thread coming from most industry participants is that, as Brenton has just visited, if there was the notion of a guaranteed funding model, then the industry might be relaxed about things. I hear what you are saying about lack of trust and so on in the current Racing minister, but it occurs to me - and I have discussed it with Kim and Peter as the day has gone on - that if the racing minister was to produce a model which had a perpetual fund flowing to the industry, and I am thinking particularly of when the Trust Bank was sold and there was an amount of money hived off, untouched by

Treasury, which generates interest every year, and the interest from that capital fund goes to community funding untampered with by the Government of the day - you would not be subject to the whims of the Government of the day - it occurs to me that if they get a sufficiently high price for TOTE the Government could say that they are immediately going to put a capital fund into a special account which generates a perpetual revenue stream straight to the industry, with no politics involved in it, how would that appeal to you?

Mr McSHANE - That appeals to me no end.

Mr BEST - But you need to see that, don't you? And that is the problem you have at the moment.

Mr McSHANE - Yes, that is right.

Mr BEST - You are saying there is nothing to see, is there?

Mr McSHANE - It has to be more than written.

Mr BEST - You have to see that. I do appreciate that.

Mr HARRISS - It could be, as the Trust Bank sale process was, built into the legislation. Once it is in there no governments in the future can do anything about it unless they come back to the Parliament to tamper with it. So if the Racing minister is not keen to build in such a process to this legislation when he introduces it to the Parliament, and if the sale of TOTE is a reasonable proposition, but if the guaranteed revenues for him is what is necessary to the industry and the Parliament amends the Treasurer's legislation, too bad for him if he does not accept it.

Mr McSHANE - That is the sort of thing we need put before the racing industry right now - without question.

Mr HARRISS - That is the clear common thread that is coming from the majority of people who presented to us, that the funding stream needs to be guaranteed and you need to be able to trust what you are being told.

CHAIR - Clearly that is something that, as representatives of yourselves, the Parliament will have to make a decision on one way or the other, given certain information we may get from the Treasury.

Mr HARRISS - We might ask the Treasurer this afternoon why he has not produced a model such as that. Is it too simple? We will ask him this afternoon.

Mr McSHANE - To be in racing you must realise that everybody trusts everybody to a degree, until it comes to race day, when tactics and competition are very, very strong. When we walk away from the racecourse we still all trust one another. Owners trust the trainers and trainers try to trust the jockeys as much as they possibly can -

Laughter

Mr McSHANE - and we go home and lick our wounds or count our few bucks, whatever we can do, and get ready for the next week.

CHAIR - It is a bit like farming, isn't it?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, exactly the same.

Mr BOOTH - Put a jockey on your cow.

Mr McSHANE - I reckon farmers are the best owners any trainer can have because they are used to relying on rainfall and markets and everything else to survive, and that is what we do in racing. We have to rely on the whole game for our dollar, so confidence is what we need and if we can have confidence in our funding structure I am sure we can pick ourselves up and go ahead.

Mr BOOTH - Had it not occurred that the Treasurer suddenly woke up one morning and announced it was going to be sold, did you have confidence prior to that that the TOTE model was delivering reasonable returns, apart from the way it was being run internally, with the income stream coming back in terms of stake money and so on?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, we felt pretty confident. We felt that TOTE was ours. We know it isn't but we felt that TOTE was ours and we were supplying the product and were getting some of that return back to the industry. It was a good union.

Mr BOOTH - So there is no way that you could say that the decision to sell TOTE had anything to do with the industry deciding it should be sold?

Mr McSHANE - No, none whatsoever.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Mr McShane, thank you for your honest and frank assessment. I am interested to know what would be your view - and I appreciate what Mr Harriss has said about a secure funding model - but do you feel that a secure funding model would assist you and the industry in the infrastructure requirements that are obviously required, because the tracks are not up to complete standard. Launceston is fine but I hear that Devonport needs upgrading and there were some issues with Tattersalls Park as well out at Elwick, so do you feel that that secure funding model would be enough to secure your support for the sale of TOTE without some sort of firm commitment from the government of the day about future funding for infrastructure?

Mr McSHANE - Well, I would feel that would have to be written into the agreement because it is integral that there must be capital works taken on every year to keep all the courses and training tracks et cetera up to standard. That would need to be built in as well.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - So there would need to be some consultation and discussion with industry stakeholders about what they see would be required into the future. Would that be a fair assessment?

Mr McSHANE - That is fair, and I think the new racing board that has been set up would be quite capable of producing those sorts of figures to go along with stake money.

Mr BEST - It was put to us that Country Racing Victoria has a formula based on funding and that we were at 100 per cent same formula for funding here?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, we were.

Mr BEST - Do you agree with that model?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, I think that is our standard for Tasmania. I will just put one little thing to you. The southern club wanted the Hobart Cup to be $500 000 - that is what they want next - which is quite stupid. At $400 000 the Hobart Cup was a group 3 race, yet at $300 000 the Adelaide Cup is group 2. Can you work that out? I can't.

Mr BEST - No. Why do you think?

McSHANE - Why are we $400 000 for a start? We shouldn't be because we are just - there is a term but I won't use it.

Mr BEST - But you do not have a theory on that?

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Too few are getting too much.

Mr McSHANE - No, we are above ourselves; we are above our own population and our standard, so we are inviting Melbourne to come over here and take it and I realise we need Melbourne horses to come here and lift our cup profile, and they do, but it has become a little bit too much that they come and take all the prize money out of the State. How can we as an industry benefit from that? When all that money is gone, what are we going to spend on getting better horses; where do we get them from? There is no money here, it has all gone, the big money is gone, and we are left to buy cheap horse because we cannot afford dear ones. We are told to go out and get better horses so we can compete, but what are we going to buy them with? If we do not have a vibrant industry here, where does the money come from?

CHAIR - Thank you very much, Walter, that was very good. We appreciate your coming. You obvious have had a diverse range of interests within the industry over a long time so we appreciate the benefit of your knowledge. Thank you very much.

Mr McSHANE - Thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr TONY JEFFRIES WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you very much for coming down, Tony. Are you aware of privileges and restrictions on reporting, and all that sort of stuff?

Mr JEFFRIES - Yes. I shouldn't open my mouth outside the inquiry if there's anything of controversy.

CHAIR - Yes; basically you're covered by privilege here, but outside you're not. So the bottom line is don't refer specifically to anyone about the evidence you give to the committee until the report has been published.

Mr JEFFRIES - No, I'm pretty calm, pretty cool.

CHAIR - Thanks, Tony. What I would invite you to do is to make a statement if you would like, particularly related to our terms of reference on the sale of TOTE.

Mr JEFFRIES - I have a written submission which I will read, and if there are questions as we go, fine; if not, I can answer the questions after. I will just give a bit of background to myself. My name is Tony Jeffries, and I have been involved in the harness racing industry for over 40 years as a breeder and owner. I have held the following positions in the administration of harness racing at different times. I have been the secretary-treasurer of the North West Light Harness Association; I have been president of the Ulverstone Pacing Club; secretary, treasurer and president of the Burnie Harness Racing Club; and a member of the Tasmanian Harness Racing Council, which was recently disbanded after the TRB was brought to bear. I also currently am a member of the North West Light Harness Association, a member of the Devonport Harness Racing Club, a member of the Burnie Harness Racing Club, a member of the Tasmanian Breeders, Owners, Trainers and Reinspersons Association and also a member of the Launceston Pacing Club.

CHAIR - Is that it?

Laughter.

Mr JEFFRIES - And I have recently retired from Westpac Banking Corporation after 40 years' service, with the past 25 years involved in commercial and business banking as a manager.

I now want to talk about the sale of TOTE Tasmania. As I understand it, TOTE was originally set up some 40 or 50 years ago for the benefit of racing in Tasmania. Some gentlemen by the name of Bruce Freeland, Dick Bertram and Doug Martin were the early committee members who lobbied the industry to convince them that TOTE would be a long-term winner for the whole industry, which it has been. Last year, TOTE contributed some $30 million or thereabouts to cover stakes and infrastructure for all codes.

TOTE Tasmania is a company whose shares are held by the Treasurer and the Minister for Racing in trust for the Crown - and, hopefully, the racing industry. The constitution of the company is a schedule to the TOTE Tasmania Act and can only be amended by a special resolution passed by both Houses of Parliament. TOTE Tasmania is operating as a successful business and is charged with promoting the development of the racing and breeding industry, and promoting Tasmanian racing and wagering on it.

Why would you sell an asset that generates $30 million for the racing industry? I would suggest that last May, when Treasury became aware of the global financial crisis about to arrive, Mr Don Challen looked in the cupboard to see what would generate substantial cash to help balance the Budget, and there was TOTE Tasmania. Challen, who is a numbers man, has given no thought to the industry participants or their families, or the 2 700 people directly employed and the many others indirectly employed. He has gone to the minister and said, 'The TOTE has to go', and the minister and his advisers have misled the industry on the pending sale and also actually misled the Parliament of Tasmania, especially the upper House.

I go back to the question: why would you sell a major asset which generates $30 million per year, funding the racing industry without any call on consolidated revenue? At the moment TOTE covers the cost. Why would you sell it when we are experiencing the biggest global financial crisis in the past 50 years? Why would you sell anything that is worth a lot of money at this stage? Why would you sell when the expected price - and there have been many mentioned or bandied about - is virtually a fire sale price, from the figures that I have heard. At this time, would we not be better to hold onto TOTE Tasmania until the markets settle down and we have better times?

The minister has failed to produce a business plan for the sale of TOTE. How will the industry be funded going forward? Will the Minister for Racing have to go to Treasury along with Health, Housing and Education for funding? Where will racing fit in those priorities? Where will racing be next year when the recession sets in and the money is tight and hospital patients are in the streets? They are having a few problems in Launceston.

What long-term guarantees will the racing industry have? There is talk of a 20-year funding program being set up; I think the minister mentioned that. What happens when money is tight; what happens with a change of government? How can the industry and its participants plan for the future if something is not set in concrete? What will happen to participants' families, who are looking to set up their children for a future in the racing industry? Do they stay in Tasmania or do they go somewhere else?

Barry Rattray is a prime example. He has four young fellows, one of them representing the Australian harness racing industry driving in Onslow, I think - it is overseas - but what will those kids of participants now do in the future? Why would you sell a business that generates $30 million per year to cover the costs of racing to then have to take your cap in hand to Treasury for your funding in the future? Where are the guarantees? Who will cover the costs of upgrades and maintenance of all tracks, facilities, grandstands et cetera? We have a current situation today where the following facilities are in need of upgrade or maintenance basically now. One of them, Brenton, is Spreyton racecourse's thoroughbred track, where major works are required to bring it up to date.

Mr BEST - Yes, $12 million to $15 million.

Mr JEFFRIES - At the Devonport harness racing track the lights are 30 years old now, unreliable and need to be replaced. Light towers are under investigation as to safety, and the grandstand needs a major upgrade. I understand the Brighton training complex is in urgent need of upgrade and maintenance. I am also aware that part of the complex is constructed on land not even owned by TOTE Tasmania, so I am pretty sure there are a few problems there. As to the Hobart harness racing track, even though we spent $16 million there recently or even more, I understand that the top and bottom corners are in need of major works due to the camber being out of kilter.

These four items need many millions to bring them up to date or up to standard. Who will pay for this? I understand the Tasmanian Racing Board, in the legislation, can borrow money. That is very handy, but if they have to borrow money, who is going to pay it back or how are we going to pay it back?

I think you may have this. A recent article in the Examiner newspaper dated 17 March by one of Australia's most experienced racing administrators has urged that we look at what has happened upon the sale of TOTEs in other States.

CHAIR - Yes, we have that.

Mr JEFFRIES - We need to do some research to ensure Tasmania does not end up like South Australia after their foray into selling their TOTE. They are on the bones of their knees and selling assets to try to maintain their industry. If we finish up dependent on the Government of the day to cover our annual operating revenue we could be going back to the 1970s and racing for $1 000 per race, the breeding industry could be devastated and 2 700 employees looking elsewhere for jobs. Why would you sell a business that generated $30 million per year without touching consolidated revenue and put us in a position where we rely on Treasury at each budget to fund the racing industry? I would implore this committee to look very closely at this sale; short-term gain for long-term pain.

This industry employs 2 700 people directly and many others indirectly. I suggest that the TOTE be left alone and allowed to get on with its charter promoting the development of the racing and breeding industry, and promoting Tasmanian racing. I am sorry I have repeated myself several times throughout this, but remember this industry employs 2 700 people directly, and many indirectly, is funded by TOTE Tasmania and generates $30 million per annum. Why sell and then rely on funding from consolidated revenue which is under pressure, the most pressure it has seen in 50 years.

I also have - and I think Mr Gutwein might have a copy of this - the racing industry representation. This was to the Legislative Council on 27 February. The greyhound racing industry, thoroughbred racing industry, harness racing industry, and so on all signed this particular piece of paper suggesting that we totally oppose the sale of TOTE. If that's not officially in, I would like to present it. I think that you have a copy of this, an appropriate reference from Ms Whishaw.

CHAIR - Yes, we have that one as well.

Mr JEFFRIES - I suppose that is my concern. The minister does not have or has not mentioned a business plan, he hasn't mentioned a funding plan. I think from May last year they've said, 'TOTE is about the best thing we have to sell, we have no debt on it. Let's put it to the market and let's see how we go'. I have heard figures bandied about, and you guys would have heard most likely from $100 million to -

CHAIR - Yes, I think that's something we'll leave alone.

Mr JEFFRIES - I am seriously saying that we really should not sell the TOTE unless we have complete guarantees. I don't know what guarantees we can put in place. In the last 20 years we have had an election every four years, I think, there's going to be one soon. Various different things are happening, we need to build some hospitals, and all sorts of things. How can the minister guarantee the same funding we've been getting with annual increments, and so forth?

CHAIR - Thanks very much for that presentation, Tony. Obviously you asked us a lot of questions that we can't answer; we don't know because we're not the Government. If the Treasurer or the racing minister came up with a set of guarantees, if you like, that might persuade this committee or the Parliament, and we think it's in the best interests of the industry, how would you feel about that?

Mr JEFFRIES - I think that the industry and the guys I have been speaking to, and the people I am involved with, and so on, are fearful. If we are given a guarantee and gets rid of the TOTE, there are also other areas that rely on consolidated revenue for funding and where may racing sit in the pecking order? I know Don Challen doesn't think about racing, in fact I am led to believe that he is suggesting no more racing in Tasmania, we'll just bet on Melbourne and Sydney and elsewhere.

I just fear that even if they do give us guarantees and so on, how will they ensure that for the next four or five elections that will be $50 million which will increase by CPI each year, and so on, and all the way through, when a change of government can throw it out? I don't know. Obviously we need to obtain from Treasury, from the minister, an idea of what his plans are. What is he going to do?

Mr GUTWEIN - Tony, I do not want to put words in your mouth but is the first step that needs to be taken in all this that information needs to be provided? Is it as simple as that? The sense that I get is that you are in exactly the same situation as I am and other members on this committee are to a large degree. That is, currently there is no detail in the public arena in regards to what was being proposed and how the racing industry may benefit. It is obviously very difficult for the racing industry to say, 'Yes, that will be very good for us' or 'No, it would be very bad for us'.

Mr JEFFRIES - That would be a start. I think the minister and the Treasury have to come clean and put us in the picture. It could well be that TOTE Tasmania have discovered that Sky Channel is going to abandon them and that their foray into South-East Asia and other things that were sold to us at the original TRB set-up may have fallen in a hole. It may well be that we have to get as much money for the TOTE as quickly as possible. I do not know, but no-one is coming forward to tell us why.

Mr GUTWEIN - Following that through, has there been any approach to any of the clubs - you are involved in a multitude of them - or organisations by anyone from government or anyone in a position to provide some information on this situation?

Mr JEFFRIES - As far as I understand, no. Back when the TRB was being instigated and so forth the legislation went to the upper House first on Christmas Eve, I think. People like myself were grasping to get a hold of the legislation to have a look at it, we were trying to interrupt members of the Legislative Council when they were debating it. That was brought on very quickly. We said, 'This has all been set up for the sale of TOTE'. 'No, definitely not'. Since the announcement of the sale of TOTE, that has been it. If it were not for, I suppose, people contacting other people and so forth this committee may not have existed. There might not have been the opportunity here to put our case or to try to understand or find out why we are selling the TOTE. What is the benefit for the racing industry?

Mr BOOTH - Are you saying, Tony, that you were informed that TOTE was not going to be sold?

Mr JEFFRIES - That was put, I think, in the first few days after it came out, that the board was going to be rehashed. I know in Harness Racing we had problems where, I think at one stage the minister appointed a member for the council without even going to the people to get a vote and so forth. That may be part of our fault because we did not nominate anyone. There were a few things going on there. The whole idea in having the Tasmanian Racing Board was to clean that up. Lo and behold, when you think back it was to set the TOTE up for sale.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think that you were misled?

Mr JEFFRIES - I am very sure that we were misled. Why? It was asked in the Parliament and the minister denied that the TOTE was for sale. He told the Parliament - or his representative did; I think it may have been Mr Cox.

Mr BOOTH - Now that the councils no longer exist, how would you get a plebiscite if the members of the industry - as we have heard evidence from yourself - have not been involved in any consultation, there has been no information released, there is no business plan but you would have to look at it if it were provided? How would you, in your view, be able to make a satisfactory response to the industry if such information was provided? Or is that not possible?

Mr JEFFRIES - When the TRB was set up we had forums and so forth. I am very sure that, if something was put on the table and we could see where we were going and so forth, the industry would consult and talk with one another - all three codes - and go forth from there. The minister would need to put a very good case to the industry based on the fact that we are in a global financial crisis. I do not know but I assume that the Government is suffering fairly substantially from a lack of money, GST receipts et cetera are all going to be down the drain and next year TOTE might be sold and we would have to go to the Government and ask for money to maintain our industry. South Australia, New South Wales and Victoria are currently having major discussions about where their future funding will be coming from, and I have already mentioned that South Australia is in diabolical strife. If we sell the TOTE we are going to rely on consolidated revenue and then we are going to be saying we need hospitals, we have an ageing community and we need to look after education and so on and so forth. It is a big fear.

Mr BOOTH - With your experience in the commercial banking field that you spoke of, and the Treasurer has said that they are talking about a 20-year model, what sort of dollars would this involve? Thirty million dollars today in 20 years' time would be what? What do you anticipate you would be wanting?

Mr JEFFRIES - I'm not positively sure about $30 million, but I think that there was $27 million in stake money, there was a lot of infrastructure and they covered the cost of that. Say, $30 million plus. What is inflation now - 4 per cent? Over a 20-year period you would be talking $40 million times 20, which equals $800 million.

Mr BOOTH - But if you got $30 million support in 20 years' time that would be -

Mr JEFFRIES - TOTE are currently trading very well. We have been led to believe that they are branching off into South-East Asia, that they have all these markets that may be coming on line. TOTE could be generating for the racing industry $100 million to $200 million. We are talking billions of gambling dollars in South-East Asia where they are looking at the moment.

It would be marvellous. If someone can buy the TOTE for a fire-sale price and they continue to go down the track that they are it would be a great windfall for someone.

Mr BOOTH - Irrespective of what TOTE can generate and if someone is going to buy it, they are not going to buy it to lose money, they are going to buy it to generate money and income. We have heard in evidence that it is going to penetrate the Asian market and generate more returns et cetera, but in terms of the support today, is it fair to say the industry at the moment is fairly happy with TOTE providing the support for the industry for the stakes and so forth?

Mr JEFFRIES - At this stage stake money is good. Mind you, the other States are catching up on us pretty quickly so there is definitely a need for some minor adjustments to stake money, I think some increases. But at the moment it is going along fairly well.

Mr BOOTH - So if TOTE's business model improved over the years you would expect more money would flow to the industry and so it would be a symbiotic sort of relationship.

Mr JEFFRIES - Absolutely.

Mr BOOTH - Were there to be a sale of TOTE then the support package that would have to replace that, looking 20 years down the track, you would not be looking at $30 million in 20 years' time, you would be looking at more like $200 million?

Mr JEFFRIES - Definitely not. Ball park figures. You can throw as many figures around as you like but $100million would not be unrealistic.

Mr BOOTH - In other words, if it was a funding model that locked you into an annual thing of $30 million for the next 20 years, in 20 years' time you would just be bankrupt.

Mr JEFFRIES - There would definitely have to be the rises and falls and so on. You talk about CPI and those things; you all know about that and they would have to be put in there. I do not know how you can predict 20 years out but if you are only going to be in government for the next 12 months we can bandy around as many figures as you like.

Mr BOOTH - Setting aside the fortunes of governments and the fact then that you would have political pressure every year on the budget to get your funding, if there was a model put in place that in fact took it away from the political pressure, and I am not entirely sure how you would do that, but were you able to set up a structure that was exempt from political machinations every budget, that model would have to guarantee -

Mr JEFFRIES - It would be preferable and you have to use your commonsense a bit here also. Down the track what is going to be more important? We have an ageing population, we have pressures on our hospitals already, we have different aspects of education being brought along now which are going to cost money, all these things affect the budget situation. Racing it depends entirely on -

Mr BOOTH - To keep it level pegging now there would have to be a substantial increase in dollar terms.

Mr JEFFRIES - If they come up with a 20-year plan that can be put in concrete that cannot be affected by a change of government, that cannot be affected by the fact that we need a new hospital here and we need to do something with the LGH and so on and so forth, then definitely industry, I would consider, would be keen to look at it.

Mr BOOTH - It would have to meet at least today's level of support in 20 years' time..

Mr JEFFRIES - We are talking about infrastructure as well. I mean, in 20 years' time the infrastructure could be falling down. You need to continually upgrade your infrastructure and you continually need to maintain it as well.

The facilities at Hobart need to be upgraded to a certain degree, and I mentioned the harness racing track. I don't know about Spreyton and Devonport harness racing. There is some talk of a try situation there. Who knows? It could cost $50 million to build something like that so there are plenty of things that need to be addressed now as well as in the future.

Mr BOOTH - If the codes were able to have more interaction with TOTE in terms of the outcomes to the industry, is the TOTE model the preferred one over the years?

Mr JEFFRIES - TOTE has been good to racing. Every relationship has its ups and downs and so forth but at this stage I think we are on a winner.

Mr BOOTH - Are there other more ephemeral things than just stake money that are important to maintain TOTE, to maintain the culture of racing, for example?

Mr JEFFRIES - Exactly. Some people might say it only employs 2 700, we could do without it, but the community involved in racing in the country areas and those sorts of places is a sort of folklore. You have families who have been involved in the racing industry for years, be it all three codes and so forth, and some of those are looking to the future to establish a future in racing and so forth.

If we do not have a solid, concrete model going forward there are a lot of people that would be affected. The older people who are involved can manage but the youngsters coming through - trainers, owners, drivers, jockeys, and we have a shortage of jockeys - would want to ensure that they have a future.

Mr BOOTH - A TOTE model with some change. I am not saying it is perfect as it is but basically a TOTE model.

Mr JEFFRIES - TOTE has been supporting racing for the last number of years and they have been able to improve the product. They have different things coming on board now - first four and first six, there are different betting entities and betting types coming on board that will help keep them solvent. I go back to the fact that the possibilities with South-East Asia and those places are phenomenal.

One thing I have not mentioned in the whole of this is Betfair. Betfair have come into the racing game as well and they have put some funds in so the relationship there should be fostered as well.

CHAIR - I am just being the Devil's advocate here. I think you mentioned before that whilst TOTE have done a very good job they are in a very competitive environment.

Mr JEFFRIES - Absolutely.

CHAIR - There may be some issues out there that you and I do not know about and -

Mr JEFFRIES - Absolutely. Wouldn't it be lovely to know, Greg, that we have hit a great big bump, we have a problem or this has not worked out or this won't work out or our computer systems are out of date and we have to spend millions and millions of dollars. If that were the case, fine, but no-one has come forward with any of this information. They may well have done a good job. We had the equine influenza last year and they were able to get through that, recover, increase their turnover and increase their income so I think TOTE is not doing too bad.

CHAIR - Are there any further questions from the committee?

Mr BEST - I think Tony has put it pretty well. Obviously there are some matters we are going to have to follow up later this afternoon.

Mr JEFFRIES - There is so much concern out in the community and I know the racing industry involves gambling and can be construed by many of the do-gooders as an evil thing. It is not evil - it employs 2 700 people and the industry needs to know from the Government what they are at.

CHAIR - Thank you very much, Tony.

Mr JEFFRIES - Thank you very much for the time.

CHAIR - It's a pleasure; you have a long and broad interest in the industry.

Mr JEFFRIES - Exactly, and I think we need to know that if this is for a short-term gain because there's a big black hole and so on, why sell it at a bad time? Keep it for 12 months and see where we go.

Mr BOOTH - So in your view, the decision that has been announced isn't necessarily for the good of the industry.

Mr JEFFRIES - As we understand it, definitely not but, as I said, there may be a massive statement this afternoon from Treasury that may put us in the picture.

Mr BOOTH - Do you know anyone who's been consulted in the industry about the sale of TOTE?

Mr JEFFRIES - Not as far as I know, but, as I said, I don't know about thoroughbreds or greyhounds. I'm pretty sure from the greyhound man that there hasn't been much consultation there. I mean, TOTE was originally set up for the benefit of racing, but the bean counters have said, 'Gee whiz, look at this! We've got no debt on this business, it's going well, things are looking good. What can we get for this?'

Mr BOOTH - Do you think that depoliticises the whole deal as well, the fact that TOTE's there generating its own income? Is that valuable for the racing industry?

Mr JEFFRIES - As I said, don't throw the baby out with the bathwater because we will go from an industry or an asset that's generating income to service that particular industry. If we sell that, okay, we might get $1 billion or $2 billion, who knows, but that will be gone into consolidated revenue, and then we'll be going cap in hand to Treasury saying, 'We're the racing industry and we need our money this year. How are we going to go?'. They will say, 'Oh, look mate, we've got hospitals, we've got education, we've got all sort of things that need money. You fellows are sort of down here, so we can only do so much'. Why sell an asset at this very stage, when the global financial crisis is still coming? I'd say Mr Challen is an intelligent man, and he has picked it up back in May and said, 'We need to be prepared to cover the shortfall and so forth'. Why sell something at a fire sale price that can generate this sort of income going forward, when maybe in 12 or 18 months or two years it could be worth twice as much?

CHAIR - Okay, thanks very much, Tony. Have a safe trip.

Mr JEFFRIES - Thanks a lot. I'll have my ear to the ABC news at about five o'clock tonight.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

MR ROBERT BIFFIN AND MR NEIL HERBERT WERE CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WERE EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Welcome, Mr Biffin and Mr Herbert and thank you for coming along. You both understand the rules of parliamentary privilege and are au fait with all that. I do not know how you are going to do your presentation but if you would like to make an opening statement with particular reference to the sale of TOTE and then we will allow the committee members to ask questions. We have only a 30-minute time slot so it must be fairly short.

Mr HERBERT - We were advised TOTE Tasmania was not on the market and therefore there was no provision in the new Tasmanian Racing Board legislation dealing with any future sale, hypothetically or otherwise. We want to know whether there was any stakeholder input. On 8 January we received a letter from the Treasurer, the Honourable Michael Aird, advising of the Government's intention to sell TOTE. The letter stated, 'This will improve TOTE's competitiveness'. We cannot see how that can be when it has had a negative impact on all the other States.

Under the new proposal of the Tasmanian Racing Board, the Director of Racing, the Racing Appeals Board and the Integrity Assurance Board will all be funded from the State Budget. It also stated, and I quote, 'I can guarantee that the Tasmanian racing industry will not be worse off with these arrangements'. Shouldn't the guarantee state that we would be better off? The letter also states that the proceeds of the sale will be reinvested into other State assets. I point out that the privatisation of the TAB in South Australia has been a disaster and that State now has unfunded capital works and low prize money. It beggars belief how the minister can guarantee future funding arrangements from future governments. With changes to social and economic circumstances we would be competing with all other submissions to Treasury including health, hospitals, schools, housing et cetera.

May I remind the committee that the TRB legislation was passed with no business plan, no cost-benefit study, no funding formulas for prize money or maintenance, and at the moment I think the new Tasmanian Racing Board is in negotiation with the Government for funding. To me, you have sold the farm and now you are trying to negotiate some cattle back onto it.

There are questions that I believe should be answered. There has been no study on the impact of racing. Will the new owner want input into the time slots in allocating Sky Channel when product goes overseas? Will the current number of TOTE outlets remain? Will Tasmania benefit in racing funding tied to growth in turnover globally? New owners may not care, as 94 per cent of turnover is generated from products outside the State now; their interest may only be in obtaining a licence. Also, the Betfair agreement is due for renewal in 2011. Will they still be in Tasmania? As it is half-owned by the Packer Group, they may wish to move it to Sydney or overseas, and they are not liable to put in $5 million a year if that happens. Also the current Sky Channel arrangements end in 2012. At this stage, we pay them to take our products.

So in summary, if a sale is pursued then the industry needs concrete arrangement, specific clarification, transparency, integrity protection for stake money tied to growth and capital expenditure with long-term sustainability, not words, which is all these things are at the moment.

Mr BIFFIN - I know under the present model that levels of funding are not guaranteed, but I thought I read somewhere that this would provide surety of income. I am not quite sure what that means, but that is a concern. I guess with the minister's commitment or statement that the racing industry will not be worse off, we need to make sure that that actually is carried out and the racing industry is not worse off. I am not sure how we do that. What does the term 'worse off' mean? Does 'worse off' allow for reasonable growth? Who decides what 'worse off' is? These are things I do not understand. The statement was also made that the sale of TOTE would provide opportunities to increase funding to the Tasmanian racing industry. I would like to see what those opportunities are, how significant they are and the time lines for when they would be introduced. The funding model would have been mentioned by everybody who has come in and we would like to see a funding model which details how we will not be worse off, how we will grow and how we will maintain confidence in the industry.

There are a lot of participants in the industry who have put a huge amount of money into infrastructure, just to mention one Alwyn Shaw. How do we guarantee these people that they can have a five or 10-year plan and continue to spend the millions of dollars they are currently investing? That relates to a lot of the participants. There is a huge amount of money tied up. At the moment there is a lot of concern about future funding and whether it is worthwhile staying in the industry and they should continue to commit funds. This all seems to be taking place during the latest restructure transition period for the Tasmanian Racing Board, although I am not sure that they even know what they are doing at this stage.

It seems to me there is unreasonable rush to get this through. The timing to me is very surprising. I would have thought that the Tasmanian Racing Board would have been giving advice to the industry but I do not know whether they can or cannot. But they certainly are not in a position to do that at the moment and there is no-one advising the racing industry on the ramifications of this whole thing. There are a lot of questions being asked. There is a lot of negativity. A lot of people are frightened. They are worried about their future and they want to see more concrete information.

CHAIR - Thank you very much.

Mr GUTWEIN - You raised a number of issues. We heard from a witness earlier today that the current concern in the industry had contributed to the very poor result at the yearling sales. Would that be your view as well? I think it was suggested that nationally sales were down 15-25 per cent but in Tasmania we took a 41 per cent fall. I am wondering whether or not that negativity in the industry played any part in that and what your view might be on that.

Mr BIFFIN - I think that it may be one of many things that may have formed a part. I do not think that it was necessarily the biggest part. It would depend on who you were speaking to and which part of the industry they belong to. Certainly that would have been in the mix of things as it was a national trend. We are linked to the national economy and apparently a planeload of buyers never made it to Tasmania. There were quite a few different things and that could have been part of it.

Mr GUTWEIN - Following on from that in regard to time frame, there is legislation to go before Parliament and the Government has to provide information on a range of matters. How critical is it of the industry or the bodies that you represent that the Government provides information in a timely fashion and how long would the industry stand for the current status quo to remain that is no information before it before it starts to have a very detrimental effect on the industry? How soon do you need to know what is going on?

Mr HERBERT - Obviously as soon as possible. With the introduction of legislation we need the information as quickly as we can possibly get it. As you say, the negativity at the moment is because of unknown quantities which I stress from everything that we have seen you could say are words. There is nothing that is concrete evidence about whatever will happen, or may happen, with the exception of the minister saying that we will not be disadvantaged. Unfortunately I do not think it is good enough to evaluate anything in that light.

As far as we were concerned, the TOTE was established to provide funding to this industry. If you sell it without any of this information, we do not know and nobody knows where that could end up in three years' time. We could be sitting around this table and going to turn the key in the front door and then we all go home. You cannot expect the studs to look at investing when they do not know where they are going and the industry in general. It has probably been said that the industry employs around 3 000 people. You take that on board. There is a lot of negativity in the industry full stop. I do not know where you would want to invest. I just made reference to a new owner hypothetically with the board room in Sydney or Hong Kong or wherever. They are obligated as directors to make as much profit for their new organisation so they may decide in two years' time to close all the TOTE outlets as a business risk. There are a lot of people - I do not know how many outlets there are, probably 70 or 80 in Tasmania - and those people would be unemployed.

Mr BIFFIN - We are not saying that the sale of TOTE is a bad thing. We do not have the information to have an opinion, I think. Is one of the reasons the fact that the Government is looking for money to pay off other debts or to source other projects? What came first?

CHAIR - We cannot answer some of those questions because we are not the Government.

Mr HERBERT - They are the questions being asked of us.

CHAIR - Of course, yes. I realised that.

Mr BOOTH - From an industry point of view, can either of you give us a single reason it would be a good thing to sell TOTE? Given that you did not know it was going to happen, was it something that you were thinking in your own minds, 'Gee, they should sell TOTE. That would be good for the industry.'?

Mr BIFFIN - From my personal opinion, I think TOTE has been motoring along beautifully in the last couple of years. Turnover has been increasing. I must give credit to the new CEO, Craig Coleman. Everything was positive and it seemed that turnover was up, they were on top of things and competing very well against the other States and TOTE companies. From my personal point of view I was surprised. But I do not have the information. I do not know whether it is good or bad. We just desperately want information.

Mr BOOTH - Does it sound satisfactory for a racing minister to be so disengaged from the industry that it appears that there is no trust in what they are saying?

Mr HERBERT - Because of the boutique nature of Tasmania, as I said earlier, TOTE was established as a funding stream for that situation. It is an obvious situation that if that goes offshore or to anywhere, there are board rooms which have to be satisfied. It is as I mentioned with Betfair. The contract that they had here for five years to put in $5 million a year will be finished in 2011. They could pick that up and put it in England. They have their licence now so they could put it in any State of Australia. When they could not they used Tasmania to get the licence.

Mr BOOTH - I want to drill down a bit on that because it is something that has been troubling me but you are the first person who has raised it in the committee. The problem is that it may be that somebody may purchase TOTE simply to get the licence. What implications do you think that may have in terms of the future of all racing codes in Tasmania were somebody to purchase it for the licence? Where do you see that could lead potentially?

Mr HERBERT - I am flying a kite at the moment but by the same token if they have a licence to operate TABs or TOTE or whatever they wish to call it, the thing that I am nervous about, because of our boutique nature, is do they have then the effort of putting our product globally and saying to Sky Channel and to this industry here, 'For us to make money and everything else we want you to race on Monday from 6 o'clock until 10 o'clock in the morning.'? That is a hypothetical, I know. But where is our control? We have absolutely no control over it whatsoever.

Mr BOOTH - Could it lead potentially to a sort of teletrack-type situation or maybe them buying product off others around the world?

Mr HERBERT - I think, being realistic, that will probably halfway happen anyway, because to go global you have to race at certain times. We actually support our industry going global to generate income.

Mr BOOTH - I do not know the answer to this so I am in the dark with regards to what one could do with that licence, but is it possible hypothetically for a person, a company or an organisation to purchase TOTE, therefore purchase a licence and then simply decide to take the product from wherever they want?

Mr HERBERT - They could go to the Northern Territory and set up to bet on racing as such everywhere but they would make commercial decision on whether it was worth it.

Mr BOOTH - So what you are saying then in answer to that - and it is hypothetical - is that potentially they could have no Tasmanian product if they wanted to?

Mr HERBERT - At a board level they could make that decision quite easily.

Mr BOOTH - They would make those decisions in the interests of the company.

Mr HERBERT - Of their shareholders, that's right.

Mr BOOTH - So there would no longer be any imperative for a new owner to do anything in terms of making sure there were plenty of races happening in Tasmania then? That is your view?

Mr HERBERT - Yes, as I said earlier, I find it very difficult to know how a government of the day can guarantee what will happen to a government in 10 year's time.

Mr BOOTH - Absolutely. You cannot rule from the grave, so to speak, if you are not the government.

Mr HERBERT - That is right.

Mr BOOTH - My concern is that apart from the effect on the culture of racing it actually puts the funding of racing into a political domain so that each year you have to go with your begging bowl.

Mr BIFFIN - Exactly, and that is one of our big concerns.

Mr HERBERT - That is our big concern.

Mr BOOTH - Further to that, from what you have said and if the licence was sold and somebody decided that they could make more money out of camel racing than running races here, it could ultimately mean that the industry could collapse in terms of the racing industry because the people who provide the product would be here but they no longer have anywhere to put their product. Is that a reasonable assumption?

Mr BIFFIN - Well, that should not happen because isn't the minister guaranteeing that the industry won't be worse off?

Mr BOOTH - But do you believe him?

Mr BIFFIN - Well, we do not want to say we disbelieve him but we want to see the cold, hard facts. If the purchaser is successful in operating what he has purchased or if he is not, my understanding is that it will not affect the money that will go to the racing industry because we will be negotiating separately from that, so we will not know whether it is successful or not so really it shouldn't have any effect on the funding of the Tasmanian racing industry, but that is where I have trouble understanding that too.

Mr HERBERT - I have trouble in understanding exactly what you said. If we get into that situation the industry would be with everybody else in negotiating State budgets and all sorts of situations.

Mr BOOTH - And even if the money went into the industry, if the people who owned the licence decided not to put it through SuperTAB or some other system, where would your stakes come from?

Mr BIFFIN - The minister.

Mr BOOTH - He would just provide the -

Mr BIFFIN - Well, that is all we can understand at this stage.

Mr BOOTH - So were a sale to be considered by the industry it would be something you would need to see in the legislation that said that an owner of that licence would have to support product provided by the Tasmanian racing industry to the level it is now at least or presumably growing. Would that be a reasonable summation?

Mr HERBERT - We would want that, and growing. The fact is that if you stand still you go backwards in any situation, so we are looking at a growth where we may accept some of our races going tele-track, hypothetically, to generate income as we have to move to that thing.

The only reason I raised the licence situation was that there could be corporations that are looking at a licence, and I don't want to go back to Betfair but they came here so they could get a licence and they have got into Australia now, so they could move that offshore here tomorrow morning and we'd get nothing, so that is why I raised the licence. If an international company in Europe sought the licence and then after three or four years' time looked at the returns sitting around the boardroom, they could say, 'We don't need this'.

Mr BOOTH - To support the industry that you are talking about in terms of racing, even if it were tele-track, you would want that to be here, not camel racing in the Northern Territory.

Mr HERBERT - Oh yes, of course.

Mr GUTWEIN - On one hand a 20-year deed in regard to providing surety of funding for the racing industry moving forward has been talked about, so that is obviously something that you guys would definitely require information on, but then in regard to any new purchaser, as part of one of the conditions of sale would it be important that a certain amount of Tasmanian racing product was always going to be a part of what they were doing?

Mr HERBERT - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - You would be looking for that sort of guarantee.

Mr HERBERT - We would be looking for something in that light, and I don't know how you tie that in because the more conditions, for want of a better word, that you put into the contracts, hypothetically I would suggest that the more it would bring the price down.

Mr GUTWEIN - Well, it normally would.

Mr HERBERT - Yes, and if you try to tie into all these guarantees that they have to take Tasmanian product and they have to do this and that, one would assume that the price would come down. That might still suit them if they just want the licence.

Mr GUTWEIN - You gentleman obviously know a lot more about racing than I do - and hesitate to say it, but a number of other people on this committee as well. Are there any threats that you can see on the horizon to TOTE as it currently operates at the moment? You have both said that TOTE has been doing wonderfully well the last couple of years and that has certainly been echoed by other participants in the industry. Are there any threats that you can see to TOTE and its current operations as it currently stands, whether on an interstate or an international basis from your understanding of the industry?

Mr HERBERT - Without looking at the international thing, as Robert and I and the industry have said, we have been very happy with the progress and where TOTE has been heading. We had really been looking forward to going international, globally and so forth, until it raised its ugly head that we might be selling it. We were really looking forward to moving forward the industry and TOTE, to be quite truthful.

Mr BIFFIN - I would have thought the product would have been something that would have concerned them.

Mr GUTWEIN - Is that Sky Channel?

Mr BIFFIN - Yes, it is. The Sky Channel coverage would have been the main problem on their minds but they seem to be reasonably confident that they could come out the other side of that pretty positively.

Mr GUTWEIN - How much sway does Sky Channel have in regard to the timing of your race day events? How much of the dog do they wag, so to speak?

Mr HERBERT - Well, it is a large slice at the moment; that is why TVN, which was New South Wales and Victoria, started their own. The fact is that we all need to get our product locally, interstate and overseas, so we need Sky Channel. Obviously they have a very big input into it and they are looking for 24-hour, seven-day-a-week operations so they can put it around the world. So, yes.

Mr BIFFIN - At the moment we have a binding contract but that only has a few years to go and then they will be -

Mr HERBERT - To 2012.

Mr BIFFIN - looking at us very closely because it is a commercial decision on their behalf so they will be looking where best to position us to maximise their turnover.

Mr GUTWEIN - I am trying to get an understanding. Post-2012, how realistic or unrealistic is it that Sky Channel might put a proposition to Tasmanian racing? You said before that it might be a 6 a.m. Monday morning start because you need to meet the needs of some other international market. What sort of chance is there of that actually occurring?

Mr BIFFIN - There'd be a fair chance, I would think.

Mr HERBERT - I reckon there'd be a very good chance.

Mr BIFFIN - They would want us to go off Sunday racing to some sort of mid-week racing.

Mr GUTWEIN - And even sometimes during the night, to fall in line with the time frames?

Mr HERBERT - It could be, which is probably not a bad time frame if at night we are to go to places like Singapore and into Asia, and maybe even to North America on those time frames. But what we were saying there was that it would depend on who acquired it and whether they had the clout to go to Sky and say, 'We can make millions more if we race in the 6 to 10 a.m. time slot on a Monday morning'. I do not know where we stand to negotiate in that situation.

Mr BOOTH - Even if you were to consider a 20-year deal, setting aside that I am not entirely sure how you would even do that or if you would get a plebiscite of your industry, but hypothetically, if this deal came down the line, what then? Does it concern you that if a 20-year deal were made, what happens in year 21?

Mr BIFFIN - Twenty years is not a lot of time.

Mr HERBERT - Twenty years is not a lot of time. Betfair was great - five years - but that is up and there is nothing stopping them taking their bat and ball and going anywhere in the world now they have their licence.

Mr BIFFIN - Personally, I find 20 years a disappointing period.

Mr HERBERT - Because we are trying to build.

Mr BIFFIN - We are talking about a massive industry and you are giving them 20 years, so the panic will start to set in after seven or eight years and then you have 10 years of people losing confidence and getting out of the industry because they need surety.

CHAIR - Thank you, gentlemen, for your input. I wish you a safe journey back up the highway.

THE WITNESSES WITHDREW.

Mr GEOFFREY ALLAN HARPER WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - I invite you to make a statement to the committee on where you see things with regard to our term of reference - that is the sale of TOTE - and then members will ask you some questions.

Mr HARPER - I am Chairman of the Tasmanian Racing Club. I have also acted for and owned a company which made a bid to buy TOTE Tasmania some two years' ago. I am also a part of the consortium, which includes the Tasmanian Racing Club, which is putting forward that it would like to make an offer to buy TOTE Tasmania, if it is for sale. There is a number of issues which I am across but I believe I can give a fairly broadbased and informed opinion as to why I think that TOTE Tasmania, under the current circumstances, should not be sold.

CHAIR - As long as we do not get into figures concerning commercial confidentiality.

Mr HARPER - I will quote figures which have been gleaned out of TOTE annual reports and one out of a Merrill Lynch annual report which probably does not carry much weight since they have just had a $10 billion bailout and $15 billion loss in three months. If these are the people that have been quoted around the place there is probably not a lot of credibility floating around. The consultation with respect to dividing TOTE in the industry was an absolute sham. We arrived with Global Value Management at Bellerive. I talked to the minister's representative at the time who said, 'The legislation has already been drafted. This is just window-dressing'. I left about three-quarters of the way through. It was an absolute waste of time. If this is what it is about it -

Mr HARRISS - When was that, Geoff?

Mr HARPER - On 26 September, with Global Value Management. I sat next to the representative of the minister at the table and said, 'Do you have the legislation prepared?' He was very reticent about saying it. I persevered with the point and he said, 'The draft legislation has been prepared'.

Mr GUTWEIN - That was for the restructuring of the industry?

Mr HARPER - That is for the restructured industry and the separation of TOTE Tasmania from the racing industry. In real terms was there consultation? In my opinion, no. The confusing issues for all in the racing industry are, what are the terms and conditions of the sale? Does the TOTE merely manage the industry on behalf of the Government? I would like to put forward in the papers which I will leave today the statutory declaration from the Honourable Michael Hodgman which makes the point that Totalisator started it all in about 1890 and has historically been there over a number of years. The Government was approached to manage the totalisator industry on behalf of the Government. They were never given ownership of it, never indeed contributed any capital to start off the industry. There is an argument to ask, who owns TOTE Tasmania?

CHAIR - Are you saying you would like to table that statutory declaration?

Mr HARPER - Yes, I would. Thank you. The confusing issue for the industry is, what are the terms of sale? Second, what level of licence fee does the Government propose to charge, if any? The minister's statement to this committee in the first instance is known to the Tasmanian Racing Club. What is currently for sale? The current date to provide this is totally insufficient to allow any decision on what is for sale, the revenue to be charged and what is required. Their contact point was Mr David Willingly, a partner at Deloitte Corporate Finance and I requested information on the sale. I rang him, e-mailed and got an immediate response. The close of expressions of interest was for the 16 January. When I contacted him since then, apart from the fact that he does not return his e-mails or his phone calls now, I was told that there would be no information available until the end of March; the Government did not know whether it was selling.

Mr BOOTH - Can I just clarify that. Are you saying that you received information by 16 January and that was the close of expressions of interest?

Mr HARPER - In the Merrill Lynch papers here there is a description of Tattersalls and Tabcorp wishing to buy TOTE and it says expressions of interest close on 19 January 2009.

Mr BOOTH - Was the announcement to sell was made publicly on 6 January?

Mr HARPER - Yes, on 6 January. Through the racing club, having contacted Deloitte to ask what was for sale I was told they would not know what was for sale until the end of March, as the Government had not decided.

Mr BOOTH - That is extraordinary.

Mr HARPER - It is unbelievable.

Mr BOOTH - So you had two weeks and you had to read an ad in the paper and technically that would have been the only means to find out. It was only because you sought out Deloitte that you knew when they were closing, or was there an ad in the paper?

Mr HARPER - This popped up on a Merrill Lynch web site and that is when we were told the expressions of interest were closing. According to this, 'the Government of Tasmania has announced their intention to sell TT in a competitive bidding process by 30 June 2009 and expressions of interest are due on Friday 16 January.'

Mr BOOTH - What date was that? Is there a publication date?

Mr HARPER - It's dated 22 January 2009.

Mr GUTWEIN - Just for clarification, what document is that?

Mr HARPER - It is a Merrill Lynch proposal which relates to TOTE Tassie being for sale and it goes through the likely buyers for TOTE Tasmania and what their current interests would be judging by the current level of capital purchases within the industry, for example Tabcorp is involved in the redevelopment of the casino in Brisbane, so they might not have the capital to bid for it.

I want to make the point that clearly it said, there are two logical options to sell TOTE Tasmania. I would say that the Tasmanian Racing Club and the entities it is dealing with would be the third, but it really boils down to there being really only one entity in the market place that would be interested, Tattersalls. That is the conclusion that they come back with.

CHAIR - Would you be able to table that document, Geoff?

Mr HARPER - I am certainly happy to leave a copy and table that document, yes. I do not need to quote from that so I will leave that with you now.

In the divesting by TOTE of the racing assets and its assets within the balance sheet which would be the leases on the Tasmanian Racing Club and others, it has now put itself in the situation of being a trading company. It does not particularly own any assets apart from intellectual property, leasing and some property which it has no asset holding on. It may hold other small parcels but then you go to the balance sheet and there is nothing significant there. Anyone buying it is buying a trading company based on the licences which it currently has. I think it is important to understand that.

What has not been accounted for is if it is sold to an interstate company, what would they be looking for? If you sell TOTE on its 2006 turnover figures and you are only selling it based on turnover with no asset input, it is worth somewhere between $800 000 and $1.3 million. We have a certified valuation from a licensed valuer. As I said, we looked to buy the company at that stage. If you are buying TOTE licences only, without any capital infrastructure that goes with it, that is about the price.

Mr BOOTH - What date is that?

Mr HARPER - That is the 2006 valuation and it was valued on 22 December 2006 by Horton International accountants. Unfortunately because of the information within that I am not prepared to divulge it but I am happy to discuss any access to figures.

Mr BOOTH - What prompted you to get a valuation in 2006? Was it to put in a bid to buy it or was there some process happening there?

Mr HARPER - We had excellent relationships with Racing Victoria at the time and it was about the Belfair time as well. Racing Victoria had come back and said that if TOTE Tasmania was for sale they recognised that Tabcorp in Victoria's licence was coming up in 2011. What they did not have was a vehicle to run a TAB wagering business out of. The integration of Racing Victoria and Racing Tasmania and having the TOTE licence that they could utilise to begin with would be advantageous to the Victorian industry and the Tasmanian industry. With that they linked to us a certain number of guarantees, which have been made public previously, that it would be advantageous to go down that path as far as prize money, capital investment and continuity were concerned.

They have certainly continued on since then with apprentice training and others while giving those things FOC back to the Tasmanian racing industry as well. The potential of having only a retail company to asset strip the services on the ground and just leave Tasmania bare of any TAB is an absolute realism.

The lower the tax regime the more the economic value of TOTE Tasmania is, but then industry becomes reliant on State budget allocation. The value and determination of the economic net worth of TOTE is dependent upon the customer mix. These are not old figures but they are fairly close to the mark.

Twenty people provide approximately 40 per cent of TOTE turnover and 60 per cent of that is electronic in nature and will ultimately stay with current TAB pool destination.

When you look at the balance of dividends paid throughout Australia, the market is so sophisticated and so computerised that people are able to transfer money around on each race they want to bet on to get the best results on punting throughout Australia. You may find a horse in, say, Queensland paying $6 on the TOTE and it is paying $3 in Victoria. You will find by the end of the jump of the race it is still paying $3 in Victoria but it is paying $4, $3.50. These people know how much money to put on and what is required to get it down and still make a commensurate return on where it is.

You are talking about a very sophisticated market. If we are looking at potential purchasers of TOTE you have to be able to punt into a new pool. As an example, if Tattersalls were interested in buying it they still have to be able to punt in the Victorian pool but the Victorian pool is not going to let them punt into that and not let them have that outlet.

You have to be in a position to ensure that the current levels of turnover, the percentages of money coming out of Tasmania, are allocated evenly across the distribution pools. You will not get that by getting any other purchaser apart from Tabcorp.

The problem with Tabcorp is sitting back there knowing that if it does nothing in 2011 it is going to get all that money anyway. Forty per cent of the local turnover, which is bulk punters, has to go into that pool because it is the only way they get a dividend. You have 60 per cent of punters sitting out there who contribute very little to the bottom line and yet if the professional punter moves out and punts in Victoria, 60 per cent of the punters are going to be carrying 100 per cent of the overheads.

There is real concern there for the genuine buyers in the marketplace for TOTE. When you sit back and listen to the history of what has been said, there are clearly only two players in the Australian marketplace capable of fitting TOTE into their pool. One is Tabcorp and the other is UNiTAB.

Why would Tabcorp do anything? And they have tried it before and the information is provided, they tried to move Tasmania out of their pool, which automatically gives them 40 per cent of TOTE's major turnover having to be punted into their pool because they are the only ones that hold enough money to do anything with, So Tabcorp can sit back and do nothing - they will get 40 per cent of Tasmania's business in 2011 and they will get that on the bulk users' benefit. When you are servicing 20 to 30 people and providing 40 per cent of the turnover it has to be a great business acumen. If Tabcorp happen to want to buy here they would, in my opinion, buy, take the 40 per cent and cut the other 60 per cent loose. The other 60 per cent is either going to make phone calls to them to get into their business or they are going to drop off the punting market. That is the problem I see with the current marketplace situation at the moment.

The contracts with Tasmania come up, I believe, in about the year 2011, whether the contract for TOTE is to remain with Tabcorp comes up at that stage. That is, incidentally, about the time that the Sky contracts and the product supply agreements with the Tasmanian racing industry come into negotiation again. So there is some real sort of note there to be had whether or not these things are going to be fulfilled.

Tabcorp have already made it known - they said they did not want Tasmania in the pool and fortunately for Tasmania we have a contract which allows us to stay - I think it is to 2011, which has certainly been a real advantage. Otherwise we would finish up like other TABs of South Australia, Northern Territory and Western Australia, having to move off into a smaller market.

Tasmania is the victim by TOTE of its own success. Tasmania has done particularly well in getting professional punters here and working the system legally really well and I think they are to be commended for that. Where does the Tasmanian racing industry go in its value? If you sell TOTE off you have to lose intrinsically half its value or half its net worth. If the figures being quoted around, figures that are quoted in that report - maybe $115 million, maybe it is worth $120 million - if you have to pay a royalty back to the Tasmanian racing industry commensurate with its current needs it is probably about $1 million - $1.5 million.

But in relation to the payments required by the racing industry, you are looking to sell a $300 million to $400 million investment to get the returns that TOTE is currently getting out of that. When you look through the numbers of what TOTE's efficiency is - and these are numbers which were provided by our accountants on the basis of a valuation we have had done - TOTE Tasmania's collection of revenue is 10 times less efficient than the Victorian industry's.

I have raised the issue previously at the meeting in Campbell Town about the need for TOTE to go through the self-examination process with external people to make sure that we are getting the best value for dollar. That has never been looked at and never been followed through but you can't get away from the numbers that are in the paperwork. The numbers say that TOTE is inefficient and should be looked at and whether it is a new management structure - I think some of the people on the management team are outstanding but there are inherent systems in place which may not be in the best interests of racing.

The idea of offering a 20-year deed back to industry on funding, when you look at that in depth the first four years' funding is guaranteed, the next four years you are in the mix with health and all the other industries within the State. But again, if TOTE is paying industry in excess of $20 million a year in output, for a 10 per cent return on asset you are talking $200 million, so TOTE has to be valued at $350 million to $400 million and if they get $350 million to $400 million there is some sort of relativity to say - and I would be one saying it - sell.

But to look at amounts less than $250 million it is just laughable, it really is in the light of return on investment. Commercially it would not be a good proposition to sell TOTE unless you are in the $300 million to $450 million range. With only one potential bidder in the marketplace that is all you have to go on because if TOTE Tasmania goes the way it is currently going and is sold to, let us say, UNiTAB, then the turnover or the money that UNiTAB is getting to punt back into Victorian Tabcorp is not going to exist so they are not going to have the same sized pools around for local punters to invest in to get similar returns, so automatically those punters have to get out of the UNiTAB pool and get into the Victorian pool and that is where the strength and the weight of the money is. That is where we really sit with it.

In my opinion, there is not a lot to be offered by the sale. Also too, and I think this is really important, the minister made a statement to the committee that he believes he can negotiate a satisfactory outcome on capital and prize money with the new Tasmanian Racing Board. This is the board that he recommended to Cabinet; he signed the appointment papers for it. Isn't that the ultimate conflict of interest? He is asking a board that he has appointed himself to tick off a 20-year funding deal for the racing industry, which in real terms is only four years because after four years you go back to renegotiating what is the current budget structure within Tasmania.

I think if you do the numbers on TOTE it clearly demonstrates that the worst position we could be in is to sell to TOTE for less than $350 million-$400 million. If you sell it for that there is some relativity of saying it is a good purchase, but to do anything else, the income that is currently being derived from TOTE does not warrant selling it for less, and I believe when you only have one player in the marketplace capable of wanting to buy it, that is it. Paul said it would be nice to get an overseas person in to buy it, but to me there is no reality there. There is no Asian company, no British company, there is no-one out there - or North American companies as well - that would be interested in buying it. The marketplace, according to the documentation which I tendered, clearly says that that is an Australian-based marketplace with either Tattersalls or Tabcorp.

Mr BOOTH - Setting aside its value, in terms of the best interests of the racing industry in Tasmania for all codes, do you think it is in the best interests of the industry to sell TOTE and therefore fall victim to your own current funding arguments and accept whatever deal they try to stitch up for 20 years, or is it in the best interests in the industry to keep TOTE as a funding stream going sideways back into the industry?

Mr HARPER - I think there is only clearly one answer to that. It would be absolute lunacy to sell TOTE Tasmania when you have a negotiation coming up with a major corporation such as Tabcorp in the year 2011. Tabcorp have already indicated that they want Tasmania out of the pool. That would be absolutely catastrophic for the Tasmanian racing industry. The Tasmanian Government, through TOTE, is the only body that can negotiate with Tabcorp on a level playing field. I would not want any other entity in Australia, whether it be UNiTAB in New South Wales or whatever, trying to negotiate Tasmanian racing staying in a large pool such as Tabcorp, which is the only pool to be in. It has the best racing, the best quality of money flying in and out of there, and the best-managed dollar - a dollar spent is a dollar rewarded. It is by far the best way to go.

There is no reason to want to go anywhere but the Tasmanian Government and TOTE Tasmania, in my opinion, are the only ones who can guarantee that we will stay in. I would rather be sitting in front of the High Court with the Tasmania Government and TOTE Tasmania in front of a united racing industry arguing that we should be back in the pool and that it is a State rights issue of discrimination against a smaller State, than selling the place off, because if you sell it off you walk away from it.

Mr BEST - Mr Harper, you mentioned that you had some discussions about your interest in purchasing TOTE.

Mr HARPER - Yes, that is right.

Mr BEST - When would that have been? When did you first become interested, so to speak?

Mr HARPER - In 2006. We then approached Michael Aird and we also approached the Premier, Paul Lennon, at the time about our interest in it and were told categorically that TOTE was not for sale.

Mr BEST - Can I just ask or is it commercial-in-confidence - I do not want to put you in a bad position and we can go in camera if you like - what has been your interest in purchasing TOTE? It is okay if you do not want to answer.

Mr HARPER - No, no, I am more than happy to say. I have been involved in the racing industry for 40 years. I have done very well in my own business interests and I have had so much enjoyment out of racing that I believe there is a lot more that business and the business community can give back. The contacts I have made through racing have been excellent, both in my business and others. The interest in buying TOTE Tasmania was purely on behalf of the industry, because at the end of the day, you have a locked-in supply of money at 4 per cent and you have the ability to take out the Tabcorps and the UNiTABs of the world, who are 10 per cent returners to their shareholders; they have a large 'other expenses'. Tasmanian racing, managed under an efficient TOTE structure, should be able to return 10 per cent to 15 per cent more money to the racing industry and possibly 5 per cent to 10 per cent into government revenue than any industry owned by UNiTAB, Tabcorp or any private enterprise.

Mr BEST - Yes. We did hear from some witnesses about other key matters that they thought would be important in the overall context of some sort of a funding agreement, if one were to exist. We heard also that the formula being used in Country Racing Victoria has been a funding formula. I am just interested in your views about that. Do you see that as a good funding model to base something upon? Would you like to make other comments about what could be constituted as good funding models that we could consider?

Mr HARPER - I do not think Tasmania has the maturity and I do not know why they have not because the question has been asked several times. Tasmania has a unique business model and that business around Saturday and Sunday racing and other feature race days tying into a national and an international grid.

We have never done a business plan which is for the betterment of the racing industry. We know that certain races have better prize money and TAB turnover is better on some race meetings than others, it is better at different times. There is an array of things that should be put in place. It will never be done if TOTE Tasmania sits out there - this is not a criticism of TOTE - and the new racing board sits here. The new racing board is trying to program races that can be contrary to the best interests of the TAB. The TAB structure with the racing industry under it was the best, most efficient corporate entity that Tasmania has had in my 25 years managing racing. That is not to say it was perfect -

Mr BEST - No.

Mr HARPER - There is a lot of improvements on both sides, the racing industry and others.

Mr BEST - What do you think the best structure would be? You could say that one, or do you have a better one in mind?

Mr HARPER - The best structure I believe we could go to is one where TOTE took control of the racing industry again but there was greater representation and maturity on the racing board that represented racing Tasmania interests, not the sectionalised clubs or anything like that. The corporate law in Australia has now changed so much and I am sure we have all served on certain boards where people say, 'Directors on the other board I sit on have told me to vote for this'. That has been illegal in Australia for the last 10 or 15 years, and yet it still goes on in every lower board you sit on. TOTE Tasmania's board should be able to rise above that level and introduce a system of punting and turnover, feature races and governance within the Tasmanian racing industry which would be an absolute role model and advantage.

Why would it be? First, because it would be efficient. People at the club level give their time free of charge so there is a saving there. Second, TOTE Tasmania would not be paying 10 to 15 per cent, other taxes to shareholders and living or dying on the stock exchange. At the end of the day, TOTE was established to provide the racing industry with funding; it was not to provide the Government with the whim of being able to sell it when they felt like it. It was a revenue stream. What is the problem here? The revenue stream has become too good and people are looking at us and saying we are short of money for here, we are short of money for there. We are not attuned to paying out a direct share of taxes on where we are going, but we have a business where - these figures might not be accurate - about $20 million a year roughly gets paid out in the way of stake money and prize money, and $10 million or $15 million is being taken out in capital investment within the industry.

Based on the current TOTE turnover, and that turnover has improved exponentially from where it was, this is a great business giving a great return both to the State and to the racing industry. If someone comes up and says, 'We are able to get a return on that and sell it off so we are going to finish up with a yield of 15 to 20 per cent so therefore it makes sense out of - let's say - selling it for $100 million, we can pay the racing industry $20 million a year and another $15 million in capital investment'. What you are saying is the first year, as I read these papers, we are looking to pay $35 million out of the $100 million the Government collects and four years down the track the racing industry is going to be negotiating with the new racing board and the racing board with the Government saying, 'We need more funds'. They are saying they have decided to build the new hospital on a greenfields site and they need the funds for that. It is going to be a drip-fed industry.

At the end of the day, if you want Tasmania to prosper there have to be businesses that do well and employ people. I think if you look at the racing industry it is the best employer of the unemployable people within Tasmania and it is a real grassroots movement which interlinks society, from corporates right down to stable hands and others. I think a successful racing industry, as they have anywhere else, is a real underpinning of society and where it is going.

Mr BOOTH - Do you see the sale of TOTE being detrimental to the long-term interests of the racing industry?

Mr HARPER - If the sale of TOTE achieves the $400 million to $500 million being mooted, I would seriously say it is probably not a bad deal.

Mr BOOTH - But how would you see that supporting the industry in the future?

Mr HARPER - If TOTE were to be sold, and there is an argument about who actually owns TOTE anyway, for $500 million I would want to be sitting down with government saying, 'We do not have a deed for 20 years, we actually have a contract or a contractual deed for 20 years which details the funding and the progression of funding out of the $500 million grant which we have given back to government'. TOTE can generate around $35 million to $40 million on the $450 million turnover, which was the last turnover I saw, so they have to be generating somewhere about $35 million to $40 million.

I want to go back because you raise a good point there. I asked the honourable Michael Hodgman to ask the question in Parliament two years ago along the line of how much the State Government raised out the TAB in the 1990s by way of revenue to go to consolidated revenue. In the years, I think 1992-98, the State Government collected $92 million in funding out of TOTE and out of the racing industry that went directly to consolidated revenue.

The point I ask and raised before is, there needs to be an inquiry into the running of TOTE and the cost in how it is managed to ensure that what we are selling is actually what we believe is in the balance sheet. As I said earlier if the ratio was 10 times less efficient than Tabcorp, and there is certainly a scale of economy there, then we are possibly selling something whose economic value we really don't know.

Mr BOOTH - It could be worth a lot more than it appears at the moment.

Mr HARPER - Absolutely. To round it up, if $30 million is coming out of TOTE to go to the racing industry, a $300 million investment at 10 per cent is a great return in the market place at the moment. To buy an investment that returns $30 million, what is it really worth? To sell it for anything less than $450 million to $500 million is just throwing money away.

Mr BOOTH - Moving on from that, the question is, what in 20 years' time? If you have a deal, and we have talked about the vagaries of different political machinations as to funding streams even in the last 20 years, but even if you have a watertight contract, what then?

Mr HARPER - From what I understand of the ministers statement to the committee, it is not that. He has clearly stated that the funding will be locked in place for four or six years and at the end of the fourth year we are going to sit down and renegotiate or negotiate what the level of funding would be. From the industry's position in the first six years you know where you are. At the end of the fourth year you will be told in the seventh year what you will get. That puts you back into the level of where the State Government is and what its budgetary requirements are.

Mr GUTWEIN - We will need to get that clarified and we have Mr Aird coming in. I must admit my understanding was that rolling five-year contracts would be negotiated on an annual basis so that you would have surety moving forward on a five-year basis. I would need to look at that but that was my understanding of it to be fair to him. That would mean that in your second year you were actually negotiating out to your sixth year and then third year and so on.

Mr HARPER - The seventh - continually.

Mr GUTWEIN - But by doing it that way you roll across election periods.

Mr HARPER - To me it does not matter if it rolls over election periods or not, it is only as good as the contract that is actually put in place and quite frankly I think we have no confidence. If you look back at the abalone industry and see how the deeds changed from what the original deed was, it is alright to talk about short-term contracts, but when you are talking about things in the long term society changes, everything changes so much, you would not want to be locked into something like that.

CHAIR - Geoff, unfortunately we have gone over time. Thank you very much for your valuable input today.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

THE HONOURABLE MICHAEL AIRD, MINISTER FOR RACING, WAS RECALLED AND FURTHER EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - We will start this last segment. It has been a long day and we have the most important player of the lot, the honourable Treasurer. Welcome, Treasurer. We will have a short session in open committee, and then we'll move into closed, if that's okay with you. Is there anything you'd like to say just to start off with?

Mr AIRD - Mr Chairman, there appear to be three threshold questions that the committee is considering, but you may correct me. The questions appear to be: do you believe there is good reason to divest TOTE from public ownership; do you believe the processes that were undertaken to achieve that decision which I took, along with the Government, were appropriate in the circumstances; and does this allow for security of funding, a sustainable funding model of some sort into the future?

Obviously, I have answered the first question; that's why I am here. In answer to the second question, I am satisfied, given all the circumstances, all the stakeholders including the employees, principally, that I've handled the process appropriately and have engaged in proper process, but the committee may make a different judgment because I understand there has been some evidence put forward in committee which has been a bit critical, surprise, surprise.

CHAIR - You got off pretty lightly today.

Mr AIRD - No-one defamed me? I am not going to defame myself, but I just hope there's some restraint amongst members here.

Then you get to the other question of how you satisfy the racing industry's funding model. I put forward a model before. I have a slight variation to that model in that I would proceed with the deed whether or not we had a sale of TOTE. The advantage of a deed is that it does give security. There is no funding model in Australia now that actually provides security to the racing industry; there are models that have provided a level of assistance to the racing industry over a period of time but there is no guarantee per se. A deed overcomes some of the concerns about the vagaries of political interference and, depending on the terms and conditions of the deed, would get to, I think, a reasonable position of security for the racing industry and allow for proper management of the racing industry that I think is essential.

That is the proposition that I would bring to the table. A deed would be signed with the Tasmanian Racing Board which would secure funding for the racing industry. I have indicated before the committee and publicly that the industry should not be worse off or disadvantaged from the present funding arrangements, therefore there would be some level of indexation. The only part of the deed which would have a condition precedent would be the capital injection into the racing industry, but that would have to be subject to the sale.

Other than that, in terms of what exists now, we could ensure that the deed could be sustained whether or not there was a sale of TOTE. That is a variation really to the proposition I put before; I remember having a discussion with the committee in terms of linking the sale to a deed. I believe under any particular situation you'd be able to have a deed which would sustain the long-term interests of the racing industry.

CHAIR - Thank you. Are there any questions of the Treasurer on those points he has made?

Mr GUTWEIN - I was wondering how far down we can drill or whether we wait until we go in camera. Just in regard to a couple of things I think you said last time and certainly clarified something that was discussed this afternoon, still on the rolling five-year basis?

Mr AIRD - That was the initial proposition, and if there was a variation of that which led to a similar outcome but didn't lead to a huge distortion. I think we have to understand that the racing industry actually contributes to a turnover of about 6.5 per cent. That is understood in terms of the wagering industry. The racing industry has some claim to the benefits of the sale of TOTE probably beyond that 6.5 per cent, but nonetheless I think we can work out a model that is a long-term sustainable guarantee model of the deed. That is not subject to any political interference once it's signed. A deed can be varied by a consent of parties, of course, and I think that would be the most secure.

To be quite frank with the committee, I have looked for a way where I could provide the greatest level of security under the provisions, and the most secure model in terms of the legal position of a deed is, I think, the most secure way and legal way of supplying security and sustainability to the racing industry.

Mr BOOTH - Minister, you said that you've engaged in proper process in regard to this. Who did you consult with in the industry before you decided to announce the sale of TOTE?

Mr AIRD - As I explained before, my position is that while they are the beneficiaries of a wagering industry and their interests need to be satisfied with the process, if I had gone through that process I would have caused a lot of instability within TOTE and there are about 300 employees to be considered. I had to satisfy myself that we could get value out of the sale of TOTE and ask whether it was necessary for it to be in State hands, and whether we could provide some security back to the racing industry. I believe I can do those things and I am satisfied in terms of my decision making that I have engaged in a proper process.

Mr BOOTH - Who did you consult with then? We have not had a single person from the industry who has expressed any confidence in you whatsoever, and none of them had been consulted. You are talking about an industry, but I cannot quite reconcile proper process with not consulting with anyone. But setting that aside

Mr AIRD - Let us not set it aside. What we are selling is a wagering industry. We are selling a wagering business, not a racing business. The interest of the racing industry is to secure funding - bottom line. I understand that. I think that we will be able to do that and satisfy the industry. Those who have been critical of the process are concerned about their future. I understand that.

Mr BOOTH - Who did you consult with?

Mr AIRD - We went through this last time. I am not going to do that again.

Mr BOOTH - With respect, I am asking you a question. It is not up to you to say you are not going to deal with anything in here if somebody wants to ask a question.

Mr AIRD - I do not want to waste the committee's time.

CHAIR - We went through those questions last time. The Treasurer gave the answers with regard to stakeholders. A lot of them have criticised the process, others have said it depends on what the Treasurer comes up with.

Mr BOOTH - In regard then to the deed, you said that you will prepare a deed whether you sell TOTE or not. When did you decide that you will prepare a deed?

Mr AIRD - I had discussed with the committee before that I thought a deed would be an estimate of securing funding for the industry.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, but when did you decided that you would do that? You discussed it with the committee before that you would prepare a deed to guarantee the future of the industry on the sale of TOTE.

Mr AIRD - I do not have a date in my head so I cannot answer that.

Mr BOOTH - It is just that you said that you think you should have a deed whether we sell TOTE or not.

Mr AIRD - That is right. Before I was saying that it would be a condition precedent in terms of the sale. I reflected upon the conversation I had with the committee. I said to the committee then that I would go away and think of the attitudes put forward by the committee. I have done that and I think by creating the opportunity for a deed to be signed, whether TOTE is sold or not, handles the issue of security or whatever.

Mr BOOTH - Is that something on which you have come to a conclusion since you appeared before the committee the first time?

Mr AIRD - I have firmed in my view that that is the best way of securing a long-term, sustainable funding model for the industry. That was following on from the committee's deliberations.

Mr GUTWEIN - On another matter, although there are a number of issues I want to drill down on the deed so I do not want to get away from that, but we will do that in camera. Today we heard an interesting criticism of the way that you and the Government have handled it and that the recent yearling sales, which I understand around the country were down by between 18 and 25 per cent but in Tasmania took a 41 per cent hit. Criticism has been raised today that the uncertainty in regards to the TOTE sale had an impact and exacerbated the situation, making it worse in Tasmania than it was in the other States. Would you accept that as a valid criticism? Importantly it appears from every witness that we have heard today that everybody is concerned about the lack of information that is available to them. What process will you be undertaking to ensure that the industry is informed to remove any perception of uncertainty in regards to going forward?

Mr AIRD - There are a couple of questions. One, I could be held responsible for a lot of things but I do not think the downturn in yearling sales can be directly attributable to that. It is more to do with the broader economic climate that we are in rather than any decision made by the Government. That is my observation. No-one has ever raised that issue with me before other than -

Mr GUTWEIN - As I say, it was raised in a couple of -

Mr AIRD - If it was raised here, that is fine but I think it is stretching things to attribute this to me or the Government's decision. There has been a drop in sales around the country. Everyone knows about that in terms of the returns that people are getting from their stock. I think the variation is more to do with the market than any influence that we brought to bear by this decision on the market. In answer to the other part of the question, what I would tend to do is to produce two pieces of legislation, one to amend the Gaming Control Act and the other a TOTE sale act and, at the same time, I would table the deed.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Minister, you indicated that you thought that the process was appropriate leading up to the announcement of the sale and you highlighted the fact that you were concerned about unrest with the 300 TOTE employees. Can I put it to you that the 2 700 people within the racing industry are probably as concerned about their future? Do you acknowledge that they are just as important?

Mr AIRD - In terms of legitimate stakeholders to this they are a legitimate stakeholder in the racing industry. What we are divesting here is a wagering industry and my interest is to ensure that the general community can benefit from the assets that are held, not just the racing industry, this is a broader view. This is a view that I have about the community not just the racing industry. This sale has the potential to benefit every Tasmanian not just the racing industry. The racing industry is not the only stakeholder in terms of the value that we could extract from the sale of TOTE. I expect that we would be able to invest in other assets which will benefit the whole community.

No-one has been more supportive of the industry than I have and this Government. In fact, when we came into government the industry was on its knees and we have managed to build and sustain it. You think of the resistance we had with Betfair.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Praise has been given today to the former Premier.

Mr AIRD - That is fine. I do not mind where it goes but it has to be acknowledged that we have built up the industry. We do not intend to do anything that is going to negatively affect it.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Moving on, and I am probably fortunate that I am not making the decisions that you are making I had not thought about the process I would take but I think that I would probably have engaged some more consultative means. That is my view. We have heard an opinion today that any conditions attached to the sale of TOTE to secure funding for the industry, may diminish the value of TOTE. Do you agree that that could be the case?

Mr AIRD - It depends what the conditions are. I do not know. Most sales have conditions on them and some of those conditions can affect the sale depending on the nature of the conditions. There could be a range of conditions, and some of them may affect the value.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Have you thought about what some of those conditions may be?

Mr AIRD - Yes, I have thought about some of them but I have not concluded any of them yet.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - But they may diminish the price or they may not.

Mr AIRD - Some of them may be worthwhile in terms of the overall benefit to the Tasmanian community and the industry generally. We will be making a judgment about that in terms of what we say will be conditions precedent if we get Parliamentary approval to sell. Obviously we will go through other stages to work out what other conditions we want to impose.

Mr BEST - I have some key feedback from some things put to the committee in relation to any funding model you might be thinking about being to continue to attract new people into the industry, the pool of horses coming through. They wanted to go from 68 to 78 races a year. I do not know how achievable some of that is. There is also a view that I think they want to canvass and that is how the stakes might eventuate between the two larger cups of the year and how that could be shared across with more race meetings? I do not know how achievable that is, but that is some of the feedback. From what I have gauged in evidence here, people seem fairly comfortable with the formula that has been used from the Country Racing Victoria but there could be some special circumstances with those two cups et cetera.

One of the big issues has been what might be included in some arrangement regarding infrastructure. I am from Devonport and I have heard of some upgrading needs in the Devonport area of $12 million to $15 million.

Mr AIRD - That is true, I acknowledge that.

I have views about the capital expenditure that needs to be invested into various racetracks around Tasmania. I think Spreyton does need to be upgraded. Whether it needs to be an all-weather track or a synthetic track I do not know; that is why we have a racing board to deal with that.

I am not here to micro-manage, in fact this highlights the issue that we have put a Tasmanian racing board in place. The intention is that it will become a State-owned company, that it will determine the outcomes of the racing industry and that racing people will take control of racing. They will be determining the level of capital that they wish to put into various racetracks around Tasmania.

My responsibility is to ensure that there is a level of capex available to the board, that there will be an injection of an amount that needs to go to the board and I am prepared to do that at the conclusion of the sale. I cannot find the amount of capital to invest in that from the circumstance we are in at the moment so, in answer to your question, those decisions will be made.

In terms of race meetings, already we have announced with TOTE that there are lights going in at the TOTE racing centre and Launceston will create more meetings, probably around about 11 more, which will open up another part of the market for us. There are other aspects that I think can create avenues for us to fill niche markets in terms of racing but a simple answer to your question is that most of those decisions should be made by the Tasmanian Racing Board. The discussion here is about how we put the resources to the Tasmanian Racing Board so it can make those decisions.

Mr BEST - Just finally on that, from what I have picked up there have been people who have been pretty aggressive and heated about the situation -

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Did you find that?

Mr BEST - Just slightly.

When you start drilling down with this in discussion, mostly it is around the context of what the funding agreement might be, I suspect, and how that works out.

Mr AIRD - I think that is right.

Mr BEST - I realise there are two separate issues at stake.

Mr AIRD - I understand that and I am keen to address that issue.

Mr BOOTH - Just to be clear for the committee, Treasurer, you are not selling the racing business, you are selling the wagering business -

Mr AIRD - That is correct.

Mr BOOTH - and you are doing it for the benefit of the whole of the State, not just the racing industry?

Mr AIRD - That is correct.

Mr BOOTH - Implicit in that then is that the racing industry would be better off retaining TOTE?

Mr AIRD - No.

Mr BOOTH - How can it be that this is better for the Tasmanian population?

Mr AIRD - One does not negate the other.

Mr BOOTH - How is that?

Mr AIRD - It does not negate it. I am putting forward a model that guarantees them a future in terms of funding. In terms of long-term sustainability they will be out of the political hurly-burly, they will not have to do any lobbying, they will not have to anything other than get about their business running the racing industry the way they want to do it.

Mr BOOTH - So they will be better off?

Mr AIRD - In my view they will be a lot better off. They will be better off than any other funding model anywhere else in Australia.

Mr BOOTH - How will the Tasmanian community be better off than any other? You cannot have it both ways.

Mr AIRD - Of course you can, because the amount we will get from the sale will be able to benefit Tasmania so we can invest in other assets.

Mr BOOTH - The overall sale price will give you enough money to do both you say? So the wagering business in itself will be worth a lot of money?

Mr AIRD - I am not going to be drawn into price or -

Mr BOOTH - No, I am not asking for the price.

Mr AIRD - Obviously if I did not think I could do all that I would not be putting it on the market, would I?

Mr BOOTH - So why didn't you tender out the pokie licence? I mean, if it is a wagering -

Mr BEST - Mr Chairman, relevance.

Mr BOOTH - No, that is a reasonable question. If the pokie licence in fact was not for the benefit of the community, and that money was got by selling the licence, why is it that this wagering business has to be sold off but the pokie licence was given away?

Mr AIRD - It is two totally different -

Mr BOOTH - They are both wagering businesses, aren't they?

Mr AIRD - They are different types of businesses. There are a lot of reasons for renewing a deed - I don't know if you want me to keep on going with this but I am happy to - there are a lot of advantages in having a deed. In fact there is another committee investigating this matter so I don't know if it is entirely reasonable to go into this. The Public Accounts Committee is looking at this, isn't it?

Mr BOOTH - I do not know.

Mr AIRD - As far as I know they are.

Mr BOOTH - You do not want to answer this.

Mr AIRD - No, in any event there can be real advantages in ensuring that you have a strong industry. The fact that you do not have competitive pressure in terms of a deed can lead to advantages to the operator and to the community generally. We are addressing that issue and I will make a further announcement about that tomorrow.

Mr BOOTH - Could you not then extrapolate that to say that the racing industry would have been better off maintaining the TOTE for what it was set up for in the first place, which was to support the racing industry and therefore be able to not have to go to that auction every year for funding through consolidated revenue?

Mr AIRD - The TOTE's business is a wagering business. It has changed dramatically as a business. Only 6.5 per cent of its revenue is generated out of Tasmanian racings activity. TOTE has been built up as a large business by virtue of the activities of TOTE as a wagering business, not as a racing services business.

Mr BOOTH - Are you saying TOTE was not set up to look after the racing industry?

Mr AIRD - What I am saying is the nature of the business has changed dramatically and the benefits to the industry have changed dramatically. Under the model we are putting forward they will still have access to sponsorship money at racefields. There was no such thing as racefields before, no such thing; there is a new stream of resources going to the racing board that they would never have had before. We now have Betfair, and they get the benefit of that, so the whole nature of wagering has changed in Tasmania and indeed in Australia.

Mr BOOTH - How would you propose they would be funded beyond the 20 years then?

Mr AIRD - Twenty years seems to me a reasonable threshold. You can put aspects into the deed if you wanted to work out renegotiation renewal clauses. There are ways of doing that if you wanted to.

Mr BOOTH - Is that contemplated?

Mr AIRD - I think there has to be some provision, and I think 20 years is reasonable. Whether you have a renewal period at, say, year 15 or year 10 and then beyond that, the next 10 years, I do not know, but we will certainly be addressing that issue.

CHAIR - If there are no further questions, thank you very much for your attendance. We will move to camera, Treasurer.

ACQUISITIONS: Tatts Group has agreed to buy the Tasmanian TAB (Tote Tasmania) for $103 million as the company seeks to expand into the state

The acquisition would be funded from existing loan facilities and cash, Melbourne-based Tatts said

Tote Tasmania provides Tatts Group's wagering subsidiary, TattsBet, with access to the Tasmanian racing and sports wagering market

The business would become part of the TattsBet pooling and fixed price wagering systems in Queensland, Northern Territory and South Australia

The transaction is subject to various regulatory approvals, including ACCC approval

Premier Lara Giddings said the transaction was fair and reasonable given the significant commercial risks associated with the business

"This sale is a great outcome for the people of Tasmania and will mean the state will no longer be directly exposed to the significant risks associated with ownership of a betting agency in an increasingly competitive wagering market," Ms Giddings said

The state will also continue to receive the annual wagering levy from Tote of more than $6.5m per annum (indexed to the Hobart CPI)

The Tasmanian Racing Industry funding arrangements will be unaffected by the sale of Tote as there are no direct funding links between the Tote and the Tasmanian Racing Industry. However, as part of the transaction, the state has negotiated an agreement with Tatts to maintain certain service obligations, including the provision of ongoing access to the TattsBet pool, wagering on Tasmanian racing and a free-to-air racing radio service

Ms Giddings said Tatts had a strong track record as a leading wagering and lotteries operator. The transaction is expected to complete by the end of March.

WA racing leaders have predicted a "scary" future for their industry over the potential sale of the TAB by the State Government.

As the industry prepares to hold an emergency meeting over the issue at Belmont Park today, legendary WA horseman Fred Kersley reflected the growing mood of his racing peers by expressing concern for a move they fear will run their financial lifeblood dry.

Kersley, who ignited the State's racing industry in the early 2000s with his turf superstar Northerly, said the disastrous results of TAB privatisation in South Australia, Tasmania and Queensland were worrying.

"I have fears for the future of racing if that happens," he said.

"It takes the control away from racing and you'll be just waiting on handouts from the private company. It's a scary thing being talked about and it's a huge worry for the industry."

Racing and Wagering WA yesterday confirmed revenue growth of 6.8 per cent for the past nine months and a profit boost of nearly 6 per cent. Since RWWA's inception in 2003, its annual distribution to the industry has more than doubled to a record $126.1 million this year, with a further $4 million to go to the Department of Sport and Recreation and $14 million in grants committed for infrastructure projects.

The State Government will get $43 million in tax from a betting turnover of $2.15 billion and the Federal Government will get $28 million in GST revenue.

WA's three racing codes - thoroughbred, harness and greyhounds - will this year get an extra $6.5 million.

WA Racing Trainers Association president Michael Grant said the increased distribution and turnover was proof the current model under RWWA was working for an industry that directly employed nearly 34,000 people. "In anyone's language, it's a good business and it's guaranteed," Mr Grant said.

"If the Government is going to look at selling the TAB, we need to be a part of the process and get assurances that the level of distribution would be guaranteed.

"Unless they can guarantee it, all they are doing, based on previous sales in other States, is guaranteeing the demise of the WA racing industry."

Leading WA racehorse owner Bob Peters said he wanted more information, but had initial concerns. "My thoughts are that is not a good idea, that we're running quite well as we are and we should stay as we are," he said.

Though Premier Colin Barnett and Treasurer Mike Nahan have indicated a level of willingness to sell by placing the TAB on their list of assets to be further investigated, opinion is divided in Cabinet. During a parliamentary Budget estimates hearing yesterday, Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron said that while no decision had been made, he did not believe the sale would be in the best interests of the WA racing industry.

Dr Nahan has acknowledged that finding a sustainable funding solution for the industry was a necessary condition of any sale, but he and Mr Barnett have both made noises about whether it was "appropriate" for the Government to continue to own a betting business.

Mr Barnett said last night that the Government recognised the economic benefits of the TAB and its important relationship with the local racing industry. "We will be very mindful of these considerations when reviewing the available options," he said.

Talk of potential TAB sell-off concerns WA horse racing industry

Updated Thu 22 May 2014, 10:03am

The Western Australian horse racing industry has held an emergency meeting at Perth's Belmont park to address concerns the TAB will be sold off.

The industry said that similar moves in Tasmania, South Australia and Queensland have proved disastrous to their local racing industries.

In the recent state budget, the WA Government flagged the TAB as one of several state assets that could be privatised in an attempt to reduce the State's debt.

WA Racing Trainers Association President Michael Grant told ABC local radio that trainers are concerned over the potential loss of profits from the TAB, which supports thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing.

"One of our main concerns is obviously having seen the devastating effects associated with the sales of TABs in other states - so our concerns are well founded," he said.

"And the TAB under racing and wagering WA is a good strong performing business that returns the profits to the industry.. that filters down to prize money, and that's what drives the industry.

Mr Grant said the industry, which employs 30,000 people and is worth more than $600 million a year to the local economy, retains a lot of confidence from the TAB.

"If a private enterprise comes in and purchases the TAB, they've got a responsibility to return the profits to shareholders," he said.

"When you have a private enterprise that has to return profits, you can't see anything a decline in distribution which shrinks the industry.

"The racing industry turns over $70 million a year to the government in taxes; if it's not broke, why try to fix it?"

"I can't see a longer-term upside from the sale of the TAB."

WA Government not selling TAB: Waldron

Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron said at this stage the government was not intending to sell the TAB.

"I'm of course aware of the interests of the board of state finances, and the Government has made a decision to review and look at the state-owned assets, including the TAB," he said.

"At this stage, no decision has been made on the sale ... if down the track, the government did decide to sell the TAB I would certainly argue for a strong recognition and safeguards to be put in place and meet the needs of the racing industry going forward."

Mr Waldron said a potential sale of the TAB is something he has discussed in the past with Racing and Wagering WA, the government body overseeing the three codes of racing in WA.

I can't see a longer-term upside from the sale of the TAB.

"We have talked about the pros and cons of privatising the racing industry in Western Australia since I've been minister, and RWWA has always said that if they thought it was in the best interests of the industry, they would let us know that," he said.

"I think the success of the commercial operation that RWWA is running, at the moment the returns are good, and that is why I've said that I don't think now is the time to consider selling it, but it will be reviewed and the government will make a decision along with other state assets.

"I've said this in Parliament, that I would only support the sale of the TAB if it was in the best interests of the racing industry and the community to do so."

Trainer warns of TAB sale

Veteran South Australian racehorse trainer Leon Macdonald has sent warnings of dire consequences to the WA Government if it decides to sell the TAB.

As WA racing officials forged a united front yesterday at Belmont Park, calling on the Government to include them in negotiations on any proposed sale of the valuable utility, Mr Macdonald painted a bleak picture of the fallout from a similar sell-off in the State where he has plied his trade for the past 45 years.

"I'd be saying, 'Just don't do it,'" the Caulfield Cup and Victoria Derby-winning trainer said.

Mr Macdonald said the 2001 sale of the SA TAB for $43.5 million to what was then known as TAB Queensland, had been devastating for the SA industry. TAB sales in Queensland and Tasmania have also caused industry heartache.

"It was detrimental to SA racing, all the profits went to Queensland and it stagnated our prize money," he said.

WA Racehorse Trainers Association president Michael Grant told yesterday's meeting that the WA industry was geographically the world's biggest racing jurisdiction and contributed more than $590 million a year to the local economy.

Perth Racing chairman Ted van Heemst said he supported an investigation into selling the TAB but said there was a current information gap which had left the industry "dealing in the dark".

He accused the Government of ignoring a strong contributor to its annual coffers.

Shadow racing and gaming minister Mick Murray said selling the TAB would be akin to killing the goose that is laying the WA racing industry's golden eggs.

TAB — PRIVATISATION
Wednesday 13 August 2014

Motion

MR M.P. MURRAY (Collie–Preston) [6.07 pm]: I move —
 That the house condemns the Barnett government for breaking its word about the privatisation of the TAB.

*****

MR P. PAPALIA (Warnbro) [6.30 pm]: I rise to join the member for Collie–Preston in condemning the government for breaking its word on the privatisation of the Totalisator Agency Board. When I say that, the Premier looks questioningly at me across the chamber, but I have to say to the Premier that I and the member for Armadale, the shadow minister, are only repeating the concerns of the racing industry. We are not making this up. On Friday, I was at Larkhill Thoroughbred Training Centre to meet with a significant number of local trainers who operate at that track and to present to Chloe Azzopardi the inaugural award that I created to recognise the most diligent jockey who trains and works at that facility. She was selected by the industry, and I commend Chloe for her courage. I think that those quite small jockeys are incredibly brave for engaging in a challenging and dangerous pursuit that requires dedication, hard work and a great deal of risk. I am pleased that I will be providing that award annually. It was great to present to Chloe that inaugural award in front of some very respected and responsible trainers and participants in the industry there last Friday.

What I have to say, however, is that there is a deep feeling within the industry across Western Australia that the Premier has betrayed them. The member for South Perth's ears must have been burning on Friday because I also talked about him. I told the group assembled at Larkhill that there is probably no-one within the Western Australian Parliament who in the past was considered to be more of an advocate for the WA racing industry than the member for South Perth. I said that he is a respected individual and people knew that his heart lay with the industry. However, I said to them that the most significant indicator with respect to what the Barnett government is going to do through its grubby deals and its short-term thinking in the way of a sellout of the industry was the change in tune from the member for South Perth. When I said that, they all nodded. They knew what I was talking about because they know that there was a time when the member for South Perth stood in this place and defied any suggestion that the TAB should be sold—defended the TAB as a magnificent institution in WA that was responsible, as I am told, for distributing hundreds of millions of dollars in recent times throughout the industry. Last year alone —

Mr J.E. McGrath: It was $120 million.

Mr P. PAPALIA: It was more than that; it was $130 million in 2013–14, also returning to government, through the turnover tax, in the order of $40 million. Here we have a magnificent enterprise that returns $40 million to government and beyond to the industry, not to the deep pockets of some bloke living on the eastern suburbs of Sydney. It does not distribute to those guys with their views out over Sydney Harbour and down the harbour to the Sydney Harbour Bridge and the Opera House so that they can quaff their wine comfortable in the knowledge that the punters in Western Australia are keeping their wallets well padded. I am not talking about those blokes. Our money—the distribution of our money from our industry—goes directly to those thousands of people whose direct livelihood is derived from the industry in Western Australia.

Mr M.P. Murray: It's 30 000.

Mr P. PAPALIA: I am told that the figure is more widely 33 680 people who are directly involved in WA racing, with 6 737 working directly in the industry. Over 30 000-plus more widely, but 6 737 people working directly in the industry are looking with very suspicious eyes at the member for South Perth. They know the fix is in. They know that there have been secret meetings between cabinet members and secret meetings between the Premier and people who would seek to buy this industry and take all of the profits to the east coast, which would result in a massive redirection of the money that currently goes to the industry. What happens with that money now? Where does it go? The member for South Perth knows that money does not go predominantly to the metropolitan area. The vast majority, 55 racing clubs, are small operations out of the city, in the regions, that get money to maintain their tracks and facilities and to support their local communities and economies through TAB distributions. What has happened elsewhere in this country when the equivalent of the TAB in those states has been sold? Invariably the returns from the industry have diminished. What will happen with the distribution? It will become completely bankrupt, as happened in Tasmania through the grubby deal done between the Premier in that state and the Tatts representatives, and resulted in a complete collapse of the industry there. Member for South Perth, what happened in South Australia? I have been told by the professionals in the industry in South Australia that the big operators are packing up and leaving because they just cannot make a living. The trainers are leaving that state because the returns to the industry, the distributions to the industry, have collapsed. The member for South Perth knows that is true; that is the case.

Mr J.E. McGrath: That is not true.

Mr P. PAPALIA: It is the case, member for South Perth. He does not have to convince me. He will have to look into the eyes of the people who formerly respected him as one of the defenders of their industry and tell them honestly that he believes that this is the right thing to do. The member for South Perth knows that it is not. He knows what was happening. Up until very recently, he was having those barbecues; he was having another set of barbecues. He had those barbecues in the past that resulted in a couple of changes and he had more, but then the horse that the member for South Perth was backing had a complete breakdown in the middle of the track! That horse broke down and the member for South Perth—a very big jockey—has been left without a horse. The member for South Perth has been compelled to sell his soul, because the member for South Perth knows that the Premier, the economic vandal that is the member for Cottesloe, has driven state net debt from $3 billion to $24 billion this year and towards $30 billion, with no plan to tackle it. There is certainly no plan for any sales of assets in relation to the railway. We have heard that any assets that are going to be sold will just go into paying for that new debt. There is no plan for tackling debt. The Premier will have to grasp around desperately to sell what few assets are available.

It has been suggested to me that this industry might sell for a few hundred million dollars. It would be an absolute travesty if all we got in return for the sale of this industry—because that is what is going to happen; the member for South Perth is going to sell out the industry—is this tiny drop in the ocean of the huge state debt that his government through its incompetence has racked up. If that is all we will get, that will be a travesty. The member for South Perth knows that when an industry has been bought out like this in other parts of the world, not only do the distributions drop away, but also a profit-driven enterprise immediately wants more profit. The owners and shareholders want more profit. They do not want distributions to grow—and distributions in Western Australia have grown. In Western Australia, Racing and Wagering Western Australia has overseen a growth in turnover of eight per cent between 2010 and 2013, whereas on the east coast the comparative growth was one per cent. RWWA has grown that and then distributed it, so the growth in comparative distributions has also occurred. The member for South Perth knows that.

As we heard earlier, there is an argument about whether the TAB has distributed $120 million or $130 million back to the racing industry. Members will tell me that it is $130 million. It grew from $106 million in 2008–09. The minister would not dispute that. It was $106 million in 2008–09 and it is now in the order of $120 million. That is pretty significant growth. The minister knows that a private enterprise will not grow the distribution; it will grow the bit that goes back to the eastern suburbs of Sydney to pad the wallets of the blokes sitting by the harbour. That is their only objective. They do not care about the regional race clubs or the little regional towns where a lot of other people use the racetracks and the trotting tracks. The football clubs use them in the off-season. Shows are held in the facilities. Those are the sorts of things that do not count to a private operator based in Sydney on the east coast.

Mr J.E. McGrath: There are no country racetracks in New South Wales; they have all closed.

Mr P. PAPALIA: I am glad that the member said that; he is supporting my argument. The precipice is getting closer. I am saying that that will occur.

Mr J.E. McGrath: It is wrong.

Mr P. PAPALIA: Okay. The member for South Perth should stand and look those people who trusted him in the eye because they do not trust him now. He knows the sort of people I am talking about whom I met on Friday. There were about a dozen people there. They were all trainers who had been in the industry for a long time. They do not trust the member. They do not trust what this government is doing. They do not believe that the government has their best interests at heart. If that is wrong, the government should come out and say that it will not sell the TAB. If there is going to be a study of the value of the TAB and the potential return from it, it should be absolutely transparent, unlike every single study to which the government refers in the public transport arena. The minister cowardly sat opposite, incapable of giving us any transparency at all in relation to billions of dollars' worth of taxpayers' expenditure. I would like to see some transparency. I would like the Premier to tell us what he was speaking about with those private operators. He should not have secret meetings about one of the great assets of Western Australia's community.

Mr C.J. Barnett: Sorry; I was out of the chamber but as I walked in, you were talking about secret meetings. For my benefit, can you tell me what secret meetings you were talking about or were referring to?

Mr P. PAPALIA: There are concerns that the Premier has been meeting with Tatts representatives and having secret meetings about the sale of the TAB. Has the Premier had meetings?

Mr C.J. Barnett: I want to know what secret meetings we were talking about.

Mr P. PAPALIA: They are the secret meetings I am talking about. I am glad the Premier confirmed that. Other political parties have also been having meetings. My concern is that they are secret as well. The only people who are not in on the secrets are the people who are directly affected by this industry and are completely behind retaining the TAB in the state's hands. Those people do not know what is happening at the secret meetings. Those people are being told in some quarters that the Premier will be stopped and that any plans he has for the sale will be stopped in the upper house, as outlined by the member for Collie–Preston. Other quarters see indications of a sellout by a very small number of people in the racing industry who have decided, for whatever reason—perhaps due to some inducement through promises that the Premier has again made in secret—that they will come out on behalf of the Premier and support his call for the sale of the TAB because maybe the Premier made them a little promise. The vast majority of people in the industry do not agree with those people.

Mr C.J. Barnett: What is this alleged promise? Please educate me.

Mr P. PAPALIA: I do not know. All I am saying is that it was a secret meeting. I do not know what the Premier said in his secret meeting with Perth Racing. I do not know what commitment he gave to Perth Racing, which suddenly changed its position. I do not know why Perth Racing suddenly abandoned the entire racing industry that had been unified in its opposition to the sale of the TAB and started to make sounds that it might be supportive. I do not know why that was. The Premier should tell me. The vast majority of those 30 000plus people who care about this industry and who want to keep the TAB in state hands want to know what is really going on. They do not trust the Premier or the minister at the moment. They do not trust some of the other people that they used to trust. It is appalling. The only way to regain that trust is to be open, honest and transparent and engage with people in the industry and tell them what is planned. If that is what the Premier has planned, to sell it out at a fire sale and for the future of this industry to be put in complete jeopardy as a result of his short-term mismanagement, he should tell them that that is what he has planned, because they deserve to know. These are good people and they deserve to know that.

TAB — PRIVATISATIONMotion*

Resumed from 13 August on the following motion moved by Mr M.P. Murray —

That this house condemns the Barnett government for breaking its word in relation to the privatisation of the TAB.

MR P.B. WATSON (Albany) [5.17 pm]: I stand to talk about the selling of the TAB. First of all, I refer to the report of the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act titled “Inquiry into the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts”. I will let members know who comprised the committee. The chairman was John McGrath. Hon Alyssa Hayden and John Bowler, the then member for Kalgoorlie, also served on the committee. He finished up going to the National Party and got shafted. He was nominated by the Goldfields–Esperance Development Commission to be chairman, but he was shafted by the Premier and the Leader of the National Party when they put in another National Party member. I think John Bowler regrets going to that group. Hon Matt Benson-Lidholm, Hon Max Trenorden and Peter Watson were the other members of the committee. The committee made some findings, including this one, which the member for South Perth strongly supported —

Finding 60

While privatisation of the TAB has occurred in most other states, there is no long-term benefit for the industry in Western Australia. There is extensive industry support for the existing structure and wagering ownership arrangements under Racing and Wagering Western Australia to continue.

Mr J.E. McGrath: What year was that?

Mr P.B. WATSON: It was 2010. I am sure that things have not become that bad; there were also some other recommendations. The Premier said in Parliament today that the racing industry had to get things right, that we could not have two tracks and that its infrastructure is bad, but when this report came before the house, those were the things that we said the government had to do. The government has not acted on any of these findings that we know of, otherwise we would not have the issue we have today. It was interesting to hear the Premier say that we could not have two tracks, but there is a good reason for having two tracks, given the number of horses in the Perth metropolitan area. If we have only one track, where will we train our horses? Given the number of horses we have at Ascot and Belmont at the moment, it would not be possible for everyone to train their horses in the morning when there is racing in the afternoon or the evening at the same track, unless we are going to build a world-class, all-weather track at one of the stadiums.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Or a training complex.

Mr P.B. WATSON: Or a training complex.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Nothing’s impossible in this world; you know that.

Mr P.B. WATSON: Yes, I know, but when we have a tight government like the member for South Perth’s that will not give back the money it takes from the racing industry, we are always going to have this problem. If members talk to anyone in the racing industry, they will say what a tremendous job the Labor government racing minister Hon Nick Griffiths did. I cannot say the same for my friend the member for Wagin; I can only go on what I hear from the industry.

Mr J.E. McGrath interjected.

Mr P.B. WATSON: No, the member for South Perth has had his say. We know what he thinks, but he has been nobbled—we all know that! I do not want to have a crack at him because he is my friend and I know that he really wants to be on this side of the house!

I turn now to the money that comes from the TAB to support racing in regional Western Australia, which is the lifeblood of Western Australian racing. This is where all the racehorses come from; they breed them in the regional areas, although some people go to New Zealand to get their horses bred. In regional areas there are the trainers, the strappers, the track workers, the farriers, the feed merchants, the truck drivers —

Mr J.E. McGrath: The farmers.

Mr P.B. WATSON: Yes, the farmers are the only ones who can afford to race down our way!

All these people are part of the industry, and if we do not get the money for regional areas—I cannot see how selling the TAB will achieve that—people are going to suffer. As I say, regional Western Australia is the lifeblood of Western Australian racing and trotting, although one would not think so to see how little money is spent in our area.

I will provide members with some key facts and figures. The racing industry adds $594.6 million to the WA economy. Production and preparation of racing animals generates more than $220 million to the WA economy, and 48 per cent of that comes from regional WA. There is $264.1 million in net wagering revenue; 55 race clubs; 33 680 people directly involved in WA racing, including paid employees, employers and volunteers; 6 737 full-time employees; and $349.3 million generated in wages across all sectors. Over the period 2010 to 2013, WA wagering turnover grew by eight per cent, yet the Premier stands in Parliament to say that the industry is losing money. These are facts and figures that cannot be disputed, but as we know, the Premier has his own spin on things; it is called “Col’s way”, and if no-one else agrees, he will go ahead with it anyway.

Over the past six years, racing industry distributions have grown from $106 million in 2008–09 to $130 million for 2013–14—a 23 per cent rate of growth! That is funny; I am sure the Premier said there was no growth in the industry. Projections under the current model determined forecast growth of 23 per cent in 2018–19, in the vicinity of a $147 million distribution. Where are we going to get money like that if we sell our TAB? Racing and Wagering Western Australia delivers funding to racing equivalent to 7.1 per cent of racing turnover.

I will give members the statistics for the last six years. The 2008–09 turnover was $1.6 billion; it is now $2.15 billion, an increase of 34 per cent. Revenue for 2008–09 was $273 million; for 2013–14, it was $366 million, or 34 per cent. In 2008–09, tax was $56 million; in 2013–14, it was $70.6 million, or a 26 per cent increase. Total expenses for 2008–09 were $120 million; in 2013–14, they were $133 million, up 10 per cent. Distribution for 2008–09 was $106 million; in 2013–14, it was $130 million, up 23 per cent. More than 160 community organisations utilised race club facilities and resources, and more than 110 community organisations and charities in Western Australia are financially assisted by race clubs. I know that our trotting club in Albany has a rodeo once a year and trade fairs, and just this week in Albany, the Australian cross-country championships are being held for schoolboys, schoolgirls and seniors.

Mr D.A. Templeman: Are you pulling on the boots?

Mr P.B. WATSON: I am pulling on the boots, but only to do the official opening.

Mr D.A. Templeman: That’s a bit of a cop-out, isn’t it?

Mr P.B. WATSON: Just check with my body. My head wants to do it, but down here does not want to do it.

Mr D.A. Templeman: I’ve heard that from you before!

Mr P.B. WATSON: Mr Acting Speaker, I seek protection from my own colleague, please!

The ACTING SPEAKER (Mr I.M. Britza): Okay, thank you very much, members.

Several members interjected.

Mr P.B. WATSON: From someone of the size of the member for Mandurah!

The ACTING SPEAKER: Thank you!

Mr P.B. WATSON: As I say, the schoolboys and schoolgirls cross-country event will be held at the Albany race club on Monday, and more than 600 athletes will be coming to Albany to compete at the weekend. Of the 55 race clubs in Western Australia, all but three are in regional areas.

Let us now look at some of the interstate models. The Victorian TAB was privatised in 1992. Since that time, the funding provided to the Victorian racing industry has increased largely on the basis of being entitled to a share of poker machine revenue. However in 2012, a new licence agreement was entered into that eliminated the industry’s entitlement to poker machine revenue. The racing industry in Victoria is now exposed wholly to the performance of wagering, and a minimum performance obligation is in place until mid-2015, at which time the industry forecasts a drop in revenue of $20 million per annum.

The New South Wales TAB was privatised in 1997 in a 99-year contract known as the TAB distributions. The Northern Territory struck a five-year deal from 2011 to 2016, worth $66.7 million, and South Australia privatised its TAB in 2003. South Australia has removed wagering taxation as the industry funding arrangement to put in place a privatisation that is not sufficient to sustain its racing industry. Accordingly, the South Australian government has effectively passed the wagering tax onto the racing industry to support a declining rate of funding being provided by Tattersalls. I think the member for Collie–Preston mentioned the other day that people are pulling out of South Australian regional racing left, right and centre. The stake money for Saturday afternoon racing in South Australia is a joke. All the top trainers in South Australia take their horses to Melbourne.

Mr Peter Watson; Mrs Glenys Godfrey; Mr Mick Murray; Acting Speaker; Mrs Michelle Roberts; Dr Mike Nahan; Mr John McGrath; Mr Terry Waldron; Mr Bill Johnston

Mr J.E. McGrath: It is a struggling state compared with Western Australia.

Mr P.B. WATSON: If we are doing so well, we should be much better off than South Australia and get more money for our racing industry. Money is tight in this government. It puts huge amounts of money into Elizabeth Quay and a stadium, but not into the racing industry, which employs all these people I have talked about. The government does not put money into infrastructure in regional areas, and the Premier talks about getting rid of one of the tracks in Perth. The Premier talks about what the racing industry should be doing. I agree that the racing industry has a big part to play in this, but selling the Totalisator Agency Board of Western Australia is not the solution. The Premier talks about selling the TAB, which provides funding for all of these things that are not receiving enough funds at the moment. I want to know: if the TAB is sold, where will the industry get this money from?

The member for South Perth has stuck his head up from the back bench, but he has done an about turn. He said repeatedly that Western Australia could not sell the TAB. The member for South Perth and I talked about this issue when we were members of the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts. I have referred to the report of that committee. We travelled interstate with that committee and everywhere we visited people said that we should not sell the TAB. We were told by people in every state that had sold its TAB that it had killed the industry. The member for South Perth has changed his opinion; I do not know why. It is up to the member to live with that, but I do not know how he sleeps at night.

Mr D.A. Templeman: He has been won out and won back.

Mr P.B. WATSON: He has, and the sting has gone in.

Tote Tasmania was acquired by Tatts Group in March 2012. Legislative arrangements were put in place to cap wagering tax at $6 million per annum plus CPI. No industry funding obligations were put in place and the government funded the industry at a fixed rate of CPI less one per cent, with a proposed efficiency dividend. Tote Tasmania turnover is down by 73 per cent. Queensland privatised its TAB in 1999.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Whose fault is it that turnover is down? The product must not be good enough for people to wager on.

Mr P.B. WATSON: No; it is because the TABs had been privatised.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Does that stop people having a bet? Have they shut all the TABs in Tasmania?

Mr P.B. WATSON: I am saying that TAB revenue dropped in all states that sold their TABs. The member is saying that it is the fault of Tasmania, South Australia, New South Wales and Victoria and that the outcome in WA will be better than everywhere else.

Mr J.E. McGrath: We do most things better.

Mr P.B. WATSON: I know we do, but the facts show what will happen if the government goes down this path. Why does the government not listen? I know that the Premier does not listen. We have seen that with local government amalgamations and in all his decisions. It is Col's way or the highway.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member, it is only a technicality but when you refer to the Premier, you need to use his name or his electorate.

Mr P.B. WATSON: I could use some of the words that the people of Albany use, but I would probably get thrown out.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member, it is a technicality.

Mr P.B. WATSON: I appreciate that, Mr Acting Speaker.

I am a regional member and my main concern is with racing and trotting tracks, most of which are in regional areas. The Premier has said that there will be lots of consultation throughout the state, and I hope that happens. The Premier came in here today and said that the vibes he is getting from the industry are that people want this to happen. The Premier is indicating that he did not say that. That was the impression I got from what the Premier said, although debate was interrupted before he finished speaking. Regional WA is struggling. I have said this before and I will continue to say it: if the government sells the TAB, all the investment that is going into regional Australia to the trainer, jockey, apprentice, track workers, the person who looks after the track, the truck driver who transfers the horses from one place to another, the farrier, and the feed guy up on Albany Highway will be gone—all these people depend on racing, trotting and gaming. The industry is huge. The Premier said that not many people go to the races. The member for Collie–Preston has shown me an uncorrected Hansard, and all I can say is that he did say it! If I was allowed to quote this, I would say that the Premier did say it.

Mr C.J. Barnett: I did not say that. You implied a majority. I never said “majority”. I said that more people are starting to think about it.

Mr P.B. WATSON: I cannot understand why people in this place have changed their view. The member for South Perth had a strong opinion on this. We sat and talked about this issue on the RWWA inquiry and afterwards, but all of a sudden he has changed his view. I have great admiration for the member for South Perth, but I do not know whether he has been nobbled. He held such a strong view, but he has changed his mind. His view had great support in the racing industry and now he has changed his mind. I do not know whether someone said to the member that if he changed his mind, everyone would follow him. I do not think they will. The people I speak to in the industry are deadset against selling the TAB. It is up to the government to come up with a policy and ways that all those people in regional areas will be looked after—the people employed at the racetracks. If the government comes up with something that the majority of the industry supports, I will support it, but not the way things are at the moment. I speak to people in the industry at the airport and in Albany; we have trainers in Albany. The people in my electorate are deadset against the sale of the TAB. I want the Premier to prove that people in regional areas involved in trotting, racing and gaming will be better off. That is the Premier’s job. I think he will find it very hard to do that. Good luck, because if he looks at all the facts and figures I have referred to today, selling the TAB has not worked anywhere else in Australia. I think selling the TAB will be a tremendous mistake not for the government but for the people involved in the racing industry.

MRS G.J. GODFREY (Belmont) [5.37 pm]: I rise to make a contribution to this motion on the privatisation of the TAB. This is an important issue in Belmont. I have been contacted by many people concerned with a recent media report and speculation surrounding the future of the Totalisator Agency Board, more commonly known as the TAB. At a recent visit to the Ascot racetrack, accusations were stronger than usual that the sale of the TAB was imminent. Many of the uninformed and negative comments I have read in the media and other sources, and heard from some members in this place, amount to nothing more than a claim that there is no reason for a government to be involved in the gambling business. This is an oversimplified statement about an industry that employs thousands of people. The statement also does not reflect the employment, the sporting, the entertainment and tourism potential that this industry holds. Should the sale of the TAB be up for discussion, members of the industry would appreciate being involved in a thorough and balanced debate, rather than leaving everything to shallow statements. After all, it is their future and their livelihoods at stake.

Another argument that is of concern to me is a statement that WA should sell the TAB simply because it is what other states have done. This argument is often put forward without any discussion on what those sales have done to local racing industries and communities in other states.

Western Australia is very different from the eastern states, both geographically and with its structure of betting. Lotterywest and the TAB are controlled by government legislation and provide a large social dividend to the Western Australian community. One example of the difference is that WA does not have pokies. The sale of the TAB would bring a short-term gain for long-term pain.

I refer to something mentioned earlier—a quote from Jeff Kennett that was given to me yesterday when he was reported in The West Australian as saying that he was wrong to have privatised the TAB. The article states —

The outspoken Kennett forecast a financial catastrophe for the racing industry and eventually more sport under the current betting model.

In making “an admission I don’t often make”, Kennett said one of his reforms as Victoria’s premier was wrong: to privatise the TAB.

It is my understanding that over the past 14 years, at least three investigations have been made into the racing industry. In 2000, the first report from the independent committee chaired by Mr Ray Turner, AM, included a recommendation for a whole-of-industry governing body to be established by statute. The framework of governance recommended was to provide the racing industry in Western Australia with greater cohesion and the capability to develop strategic direction. This resulted in the formation of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003, known as the RWWA act. In 2010, following the inquiry conducted by the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts, the second report was released. This report contained 92 findings and 53 recommendations. How many of these findings and recommendations have been implemented? In 2011, there was a third report called “Economic and Social Impact: Report on the Western Australian Racing Industry”. This report was prepared for the entertainment and racing industry by IER, a leading independent consulting and economic research firm with extensive experience in the area of economic and financial assessment. I have summarised some facts from this third report, which I think the member for Albany quoted from. The direct expenditure of the WA racing industry is $550 million. This includes expenditure on producing racing animals under breeding and rearing, preparing the training of racing animals, on-course customer expenditure on admission, food, beverages, a race book, hospitality and membership, and off-course customer expenditure such as accommodation, transport and entertainment, which are all linked to race attendances. The number of Western Australians who work in the racing industry is approximately 33 686. The state government's tax revenue from wagering is $34 million and the GST paid on wagering revenue is $24 million. That is an ongoing income stream that this government has benefited from and one that future governments should also have access to. Currently, two further reports are being prepared. One of these is by Ray Gunston and the other is by Deloitte Access Economics.

In the metropolitan area, Belmont is the home of thoroughbred horse racing. The area known as Ascot has been heritage listed as "residential and stables" to protect this industry. The Ascot Racecourse is also heritage listed. In Belmont we are proud of the history of horse racing and a racehorse is depicted in the crest of the council emblem. Due to the importance to the area of horse racing for economic and employment reasons, since being elected I have invested a considerable amount of time in talking to those involved and listening to their concerns regarding the industry as a whole. The concerns are complex. Horse racing is not about just gambling; it is a sport, it is entertaining, and it is part of Australian history and culture.

When I have travelled overseas to Singapore and Hong Kong, I have always enjoyed attending thoroughbred races. They are promoted on the airlines and at airports, tourist centres and hotels and they offer a wonderful experience for a tourist. This includes being picked up from and returned to the hotel, a buffet meal and good seating. I am told it is similar in Kentucky in the United States, Ascot in England and Longchamp in France. If selling the TAB reduces investment in horse racing infrastructure, we will miss a great tourism opportunity to promote Western Australian racing to people in Asia. In Sydney I have attended the Sydney Easter carnival. This involved two race meetings and several other Sydney events. It is promoted on the airlines and makes a wonderful week's holiday in Sydney.

I am yet to be convinced about the current style of TAB advertising. Marketing of metropolitan events needs to be improved to increase attendance figures. The current system works well; however, a closer link between Tourism Western Australia and the racing industry would be beneficial. I would like to now quote from The West Australian of Friday, 15 August, as follows —

Sydney racing's autumn extravaganza, The Championships, will be more than a one-hit wonder with the New South Wales government confirming a $10 million commitment to 2015.

Premier Mike Baird made the pledge yesterday and said while this year's inaugural staging of The Championships was successful, next year's event promised to raise the bar.

He went on to say that this year over 50 000 people attended the two-day event, and with greater brand awareness and more time to prepare, next year it will be an even bigger and better event. The article continues —

Racing NSW says a reduction in the wagering tax will allow the racing industry to finance the autumn racing carnival and secure the sport's future in NSW.

In the eastern states, governments have made changes to the structures of their racing industry. I am told that disastrous effects have been associated with the sale of some of the TABs in other states. South Australian veteran racehorse trainer Leon MacDonald has warned of the dire consequences if the WA government decides to sell the TAB. MacDonald said that the sale of the South Australian TAB for $43 million in 2001 to the TAB Queensland had been devastating for the South Australian industry.

Western Australia has geographically the largest racing jurisdiction in the world, and regional race clubs are the lifeblood of many country towns and communities. The Broome Cup and the Kalgoorlie round are very popular and bring large crowds to these regional towns. The towns coordinate other events to benefit tourism and the local businesses. Accommodation is often fully booked months ahead. Visitors generally stay for the whole event program, and the local businesses benefit from the business that tourists generate. The country events are getting better by including entertainment for young adults and children. Over the past five years the distributions to the racing industry has grown by 23 per cent. This racing season we will see distributions exceed $130 million. A guaranteed investment into the racing infrastructure and a reduction in the wagering tax are needed.

In closing, any government that operates in a fiscally challenging environment must consider the sale of assets as a means to strengthening the economy. The TAB is not an ordinary asset in that it provides our budget with an ongoing income stream worth millions of dollars each year. More so, it is an asset that supports an important industry—important through its contribution to tourism and the tens of thousands of Western Australians it employs.

I now refer to the Hansard of Wednesday, 13 August, and quote the Premier, who stated the following —

We are looking at a range of potential privatisations, and the TAB is one of them. Let me make it clear, as I have said publicly: There will be a first group of privatisations, and the TAB will not be amongst them. I can say quite clearly today that if we make a future decision about the TAB, it will not be during this calendar year.

This is quite important. I was being lobbied. Several people came to see me, wanting time to prepare the reports I have spoken about. One of these people was Ray Gunston, and this morning I spoke to a person from Perth Racing.

Another matter, which has nothing to do with the government and the sale of the TAB, is the media report on the sale of the Ascot Racecourse. The Ascot Racecourse is made up of eight separate lots, most of which are freehold, but two of which contain a crown grant in trust. Perth Racing wants what is best for the industry, and to get that outcome it has employed Deloitte to get the best business model for the industry. As was reported, the sale of Ascot is the least desirable option; however, that did not come out in the paper.

Mr C.J. Barnett: The racing industry cannot sell Ascot. It is a state government asset, so it is not its to sell.

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: No, and it alarmed a lot of people when they saw it on the front page of the paper.

In closing, although I strongly oppose the sale of the TAB, I appreciate that it is something that the government may consider. I ask the government to consult with the industry and its many stakeholders, as it is the stakeholders who will ultimately bear the brunt of such a decision.

Mr M.P. Murray: Are you going to swap sides and vote on this side then?

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: No, I am not.

Mr M.P. Murray: Then you are talking absolute rubbish.

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: I am not; you're rubbish.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Order, members! Member for Collie–Preston and member for Gosnells —

Ms E. Evangel interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Order, member for Perth, I am on my feet. We are not on the horse track.

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: In summarising, with that —

Mr M.P. Murray: The question I asked was: on which side are you going to vote?

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: I never got to finish talking while I was on my feet. If only you'd button it!

Withdrawal of Remark

Mr M.P. MURRAY: Unparliamentary words were spoken by the member for Belmont, something that members would probably hear in a horse yard.

The ACTING SPEAKER (Mr I.M. Britza): Members on my right, I never heard the point of order. I realise that a word was spoken. I was trying to hear what she said and I never heard it because of the racket. If it was an unparliamentary word, then I ask that the member withdraw it.

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: No, it was not unparliamentary. If I was at the racetrack, I would have called him something worse than that.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Once again, member for Belmont, I cannot hear what you are saying because of what is going on in the chamber. Would you give me your answer again, please?

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: I will not withdraw it because it was not unparliamentary.

Mrs M.H. ROBERTS: I realise that the member for Belmont is a new member in here but the member for Collie–Preston made an interjection on her and said that she was talking rubbish. Of course, that is not unparliamentary and that kind of thing is said all the time. However, there is a difference between saying someone is talking rubbish, for example, and directly insulting a member by saying that they are rubbish. That is a subtlety that the member for Belmont clearly does not understand. Members cannot directly hurl a personal insult at a member in this place. They can, of course, criticise what a member is saying by describing it as rubbish, and that is what the member Belmont needs to consider.

Dr M.D. NAHAN: I seek some clarification. It is my understanding that the member for Collie–Preston was complaining about not the issue of rubbish, but the accusation that he should button up, and his belief is that the accusation to button up is unparliamentary.

The ACTING SPEAKER: I did not hear the word. However, worse things are said in this chamber and I just ask that we be careful about how we speak in this chamber towards one another and show the height of respect. Member for Belmont, I ask you to remember that.

Debate Resumed

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: I will always defer to your guidance, Mr Acting Speaker. I will not support this motion and I will tell the member for Collie–Preston why, if he keeps quiet for a moment.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Address the Chair, please, member for Belmont.

Mrs G.J. GODFREY: I do not support the motion because of the words —

That this house condemns the Barnett government ...

That is all members opposite do. All they see is a half-empty glass. I do not support the motion because of its wording.

MR J.E. McGRATH (South Perth — Parliamentary Secretary) [5.56 pm]: I am very surprised that this motion has even been brought back today because I am sure I heard the Premier make it very clear last week, when he rounded off last week's debate with a short but outstanding contribution, that no decision had been made on the privatisation of the TAB. However, he said that the option of privatisation will be looked at by this government. He also said nothing will happen in this calendar year. I know that all members heard that. The Premier also said today that if the Western Australian government goes down the path of looking at the privatisation of the TAB, which I gather is more than likely, there will be thorough consultation with the industry. What more than that could opposition members want?

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: When members on my left were on their feet, I was looking to be sure that the member was asking for the interjection. If the interjection comes from a member three or four times, and the member on his feet does not take the interjection, I will be forced to call the member who interjects. Member for South Perth, you will have to make it clear that you are taking the interjection.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Thank you, Mr Acting Speaker. I have got big shoulders. I do not think I have heard personal attacks made on a backbencher the likes of which were made on me last week, but I am happy to accept that. This is not a decision that must be made in a debate such as the one we are having today. This decision must be made by a government that believes it is the right decision to make and then it must consult with the industry. As part of that process, I am sure that all the problems that people such as me see confronting the industry at the moment, will be put before the government. I would be very surprised if the government did not ask the industry what its requirements were if the government wants the industry to go along with what the government is proposing to do. Where does the industry need assistance? The Premier said that we should not expect the government to sort out the issues that are now starting to emerge in the racing industry. For instance, at the Ascot and Belmont racecourses the average paid attendance by the public is 188 people, which does not include members, owners and trainers. A couple of weeks ago, Perth Racing announced that its model is unsustainable.

Mr P. Papalia interjected.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: The member had his say last week, and I will mention him a little later—I am saving a bit for him. Ascot and Belmont racecourses are the jewel in the crown for the Perth racing industry. If Perth Racing is having problems, something is wrong. If Perth Racing cannot make a profit on its operations at Ascot and Belmont Park in a given year, there is something wrong with the model, which filters right back through the racing industry. The Premier also nailed it when he made one very important point: he said that this might be an opportunity to modernise the racing industry that is struggling to keep abreast of rising costs, dwindling attendances and ever-increasing infrastructure needs. The member for Albany mentioned the review into the Racing and Wagering Western Australia that we dealt with. I must admit as chairman I asked whether we should look at the subject of privatisation. My committee said that it was not part of the terms of reference of our review, so we should not do it. We did not, in fact, look at privatisation at any length or in any depth, but we put in our report that the industry was very comfortable with the system as it was at that moment.

A member interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Albany, you are not in your seat.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Let us look at the debate. We have had personal attacks on me by the member for Collie–Preston, who said I have changed my position. Would I be the first person in the world to have changed their position on something? Of course, I always believed that the TAB should never be privatised; that was my view up until events of more recent times. I went to a meeting in Hong Kong that the member for Collie–Preston also went to and we saw how the global face of racing through wagering is changing by the day. We were told that for the first time in history of racing around the world—that is horseracing, harness racing and probably greyhounds—betting on sport will outstrip wagering on racing. That is a big worry because betting on sport does not provide a lot of income for the racing industry. We are seeing the world changing. Young people growing up now are saying they can have their 10 or 20 bucks on West Coast or Fremantle to win a game, but racing is a lot more difficult for them to comprehend—they have to look at the form of the horses and all that—and consequently, we are seeing this spiralling growth in betting on sport. We are also seeing massive growth in betting on fixed odds. All those people such as Jeff Kennett who say we should go back to the old days of just having a TAB have to remember that when the TAB was first formed, it had no competition. The starting-price bookies had all been put out of business and to have a bet a person had to go to a TAB agency. The windows were all frosted because under the act the TABs were told they had to regulate gambling, not promote it. Now we have the TAB promoting gambling because it has to as it is in a competitive world. If a person did not bet with the TAB, they had to go to the racetrack; they could bet on the tote at the races, which was linked to the TAB, or they could bet with bookmakers. We live in a completely different world today.

The member for Warnbro said that he spoke to a group of trainers at Lark Hill last week, and I would probably know a few of those trainers, and he basically told them that I had sold out the industry and they all nodded and agreed. I am not surprised, the member for Warnbro is a very convincing person, but I hope that in that group there were not any people who were involved when I worked very hard to have the jockeys' workers' compensation sorted out.

Mr P. Papalia interjected.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Hang on—let me finish.

I hope there were no jockeys there because of the work I had done to help them with workers' compensation. I hope there was no-one from the Bunbury Turf Club there, because one of the reasons I became more involved in this than ever was when the people from the Bunbury race club complained that Racing and Wagering Western Australia could not provide funding to build a new all-weather track at Bunbury, which is the biggest training centre outside the metropolitan area. It has a stalls area that is so small and restricted that people are in danger of getting kicked in the morning at track work. RWWA has been able to find some money to fix up the stalls, but the big, grand plan of a new all-weather track is not going to happen.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members, the member for South Perth has the floor.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: This is why I made a speech some weeks ago when I was accused of saying that we must privatise. All I said to the industry was that we have to look at all options. Even the member for Albany admitted that the government might have to come up with a proposition to the racing industry that will be more beneficial to it than the system we have now and can set it up for the next 50 years in this world of global competition. All I said to industry was that it should just listen; it might not agree with what the government wants to do and it can say so, but it should not shut the door. At the time the trainers put up a big wall and said, "That's it, we don't want to talk to the government."

Mr P. Papalia: Just so you know, I didn't say to them that you sold out, what I said was that you had changed your tune and that is the best indicator, because you would be considered one the closest friends of the racing industry in Western Australia in the Parliament —

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I am.

Mr P. Papalia: I said that to them. I said a good indicator that Colin Barnett is going to sell the TAB is that you had changed your tune. Before you said you didn't want it to be sold and now you're saying you do, and I said that is an indicator that he has made up his mind.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: What has happened is that I have seen the world is changing in wagering, and I see this as a challenge for the TAB the way it is structured at the moment. That is the only reason I say let us have the conversation. I have not been to the Premier and told him we should privatise the TAB. I was in Hong Kong with the member for Collie—Preston and I said to some of the people there from RWWA that I did not think there would be a privatisation and that I thought it was off the agenda. The next minute I got an email saying that the Treasurer, in his speech—I am very sorry I missed budget day, Treasurer!—said that we will look at a number of privatisations and asset sales, and one of them might be the TAB. That is when the floodgates opened.

Mr P. Papalia: Before the election, you guys said you wouldn't sell it. That's why they're upset.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I cannot recall that.

Anyway, let us get back to Jeff Kennett, the former Premier of Victoria. A lot of people, and I knew this would happen, have been very selective in picking up what he said today. He did say that if he had known that the growth of corporate bookmakers would be as massive as it is now, he would not have privatised the TAB back in, I think, 1994. I cannot understand how privatising the TAB has led to the growth of corporate bookmakers.

Mr M.P. Murray: He actually called them a cancer on racing.Mr J.E. McGRATH: Yes, I know.

Corporate bookmakers have appeared because in the Northern Territory they have been allowed to be licensed, and with the internet now, a bookmaker does not have to go to a racetrack and stand there with a bag around his neck taking bets—the world has gone a bit quicker than that. People can now bet on a mobile phone or an iPad. Wherever they are in the world, they can bet with their TAB or corporate bookmaker app or whatever. Jeff Kennett was interviewed the day after making the statement, and when I heard him I nearly fell out of the car. I was late getting to the party room meeting because I thought I had better listen to this! He was carrying on about how bad corporate bookmakers are and said, “You know; I must admit I don’t know a lot about the racing industry, but I do have some interests and I have some involvement. I’ve got a share in a couple of horses. In fact, I had a bet yesterday.” The interviewer asked him who he bet with, and he answered that he bet with a corporate bookie. The interviewer said that that was a bit of a double standard and Kennett said that was the only account he had. The interviewer said that here he was telling the world that the corporate bookies are that bad and we should all bet with the TAB, and Jeff Kennett said, “Yeah, you’re right. I probably should get rid of that account.” This man, the former Premier of Victoria, is who our racing industry is now saying is the guru who knows what we should do, but I think he is still living in the 1950s. He was also the former Premier who said last year after Hawthorn had lost a couple of games that they should sack the coach, and they went on to win the AFL grand final. What he did say that I agree with was that the racing industry as it is currently structured is unsustainable beyond the next seven years. He was talking about the Victorian racing industry. However, this is a worldwide trend. He said the model is flawed in a number of areas, and he is calling for a strong independent national body to take charge of the industry. I do not think that will ever happen, because traditionally the states have always controlled the racing industries and their wagering. What has happened to the industry is that its costs are rising much faster than revenue, and Kennett said this caused an unsustainable gap—an infrastructure gap. Anyone who was on that committee with me, member for Collie–Preston, would understand that one of the main problems the industry told us about was that Racing and Wagering Western Australia could not keep up with the demand for infrastructure. In fact, at a budget estimates hearing in 2013, I asked a couple of questions of the minister, and one was referred to Richard Burt, the CEO of RWWA. He said that the infrastructure needs of the industry were about $70 million and that — it would be highly undesirable, both socially and for communities. RWWA needs to work with the government to have, in a timely fashion, these infrastructure needs met.

... to address the $70 million of current infrastructure needs, we will require assistance. I do not think it is in the interests of Western Australia for the racing industry to be consolidated to the level that would be required;

In other words, we would be shutting down tracks to get enough money to build the infrastructure. Mr Burt continues —

The Premier has not said that he would not support some sort of infrastructure fund to help the racing industry, but he has said that the industry first needs to get its house in order. There are two racetracks—Belmont Park and Ascot. I would never have thought about selling Ascot, but when the club that runs the two tracks says that it cannot make any money out of it—it is like running a shop when there are no customers—what can it do? They have to close down. Perth Racing has commissioned a report from Deloitte. We need to wait to see what happens with that report, but I am pretty sure that the report will say that Perth Racing’s business model is unsustainable. I love Gloucester Park; I spent 20 years of my life working there covering harness racing. It is one of the great harness racing tracks in the world, but the industry is struggling so much that it must ask itself whether it can afford to stay there or sell up—the land is probably worth a couple of hundred million dollars—and move to another site, build a course and have some reserve funds to put into an investment as a future fund. These sorts of things are happening in other states. In New South Wales, the racing industry sold Harold Park.

To get back to Jeff Kennett, a newspaper article published today states —

Racing Victoria chief executive Bernard Saundry said Kennett had misrepresented the relationship between corporate bookmakers and the industry.

p5653b-5668a

Bernard Saundry is the prime industry statesman in Victoria. He is the chief executive of Racing Victoria, which is the equivalent of our Racing and Wagering Western Australia. The article continues —

Saundry said some of Kennett's comments "needed to be set straight" and said RV had established a "very valuable" joint venture with the TAB and 300 wagering operators.

He said the industry's racefields policy meant the wagering operators paid a "fair price" to bet on Victorian racing.

Whenever someone bets on a Victorian race, just as when anyone around the world bets on a Western Australian race, under race fields legislation the wagering operator has to pay a fee for doing that. The article continues —

Saundry dismissed Kennett's "toothless" claim against the ARB, saying the ARB would be bolstered by an upcoming merging with Racing Information Services Australia and the Stud Book.

Another thing that was raised was the Queensland TAB. People have said that that did not work. I remind members that a recent re-signing of the contract for Tatts Group to run wagering in Queensland—I think it is a 25-year contract—will put another $4.5 billion back into the industry. All the talk that privatisation will be the end of prize money and the end of funding for country clubs is wrong; it is not going to happen. When a government goes into an agreement with a partner—if that were to happen—it would be set out that there would have to be a return to the racing industry that would see the industry sustained. That is a commitment that the Premier has made, and if the government decides to go down that path, that is a discussion it would have with the racing industry. How much money does the industry need to sustain itself? How much does it need for infrastructure? Where are the greatest infrastructure needs? All the Premier is saying to the industry is that the government does not want to tell the industry which tracks to keep and which to sell. The government makes the laws and sets the rules, and would be prepared to support the industry, as governments of both persuasions have done in the past, but the industry needs to become proactive and look at some way of modernising an industry that is probably under more threat now than it has been in its history.

MR T.K. WALDRON (Wagin — Minister for Racing and Gaming) [6.15 pm]: I want to start by saying that the TAB has not been sold. I need to make that clear, because people are talking as if the TAB has been sold, and it has not. It was said last week that the industry was in a shambles. I do not think the industry is in a shambles. It faces challenges in different areas, but a lot of good things are happening in the industry. The member for Albany stated that the racing industry in regional Western Australia is struggling, but I do not think it is struggling in regional Western Australia. It has issues, but it is not struggling, and in the racing area Western Australia Country Cups funding has received a big boost. Let us get a couple of things right from the start.

The Treasurer, in his budget speech, addressed the government's decision to tackle the state's debt issues through the orderly sale of some of the state assets. We have heard all about that. Part of the process the government will be undertaking is a strategic review of state assets, and the TAB will be included. We all know that that is in the second tranche to be looked at. The Premier has said it lots of times but I will reiterate: no decision has been made at this stage for the sale of any assets, but the process is currently being undertaken and needs to run its course. Since the Treasurer's budget speech, the Treasurer, the Premier and I have met with Racing and Wagering Western Australia and discussed what the options are and looked at all the issues. RWWA is the owner of the TAB, and it is also the peak body. We have met with it to discuss the issue, and it continues to work with Treasury, which is a good thing. It is a major stakeholder and will play a key role in the consideration of any potential sale. We need to make sure that people understand that. As I said, RWWA has met and continues to meet with Treasury officials as part of this process, so it is involved as the peak body of the racing industry and the owner and operator of the TAB. The Premier has confirmed publicly that the sale of the TAB will be considered as part of the second tranche, which will not be this year. I wanted to make those points clear from the start.

I am on the record as stating that I would support the sale of the TAB only if it were in the best interests of the racing industry and the community to do so. I have been consistent in saying that. Back in February I made that comment and I said then that I did not think the time was right for the sale of the TAB, and that I would need to be convinced that any sale was in the best interests of the industry and the community. That is what it is about; it is really about the industry. That remains my position as Minister for Racing and Gaming. Of course I am aware that, in the interests of broader state finances, the government needs to look at all options, and it should look at all options. The TAB is one option the government is looking at. I am not against privatisation, but as Minister for Racing and Gaming I will continue to advocate an outcome that produces a sustainable future for the racing industry. This whole debate is not so much about the sale of the TAB; it is actually about the future of the racing industry, and that is what I am about as the minister. The process will look at all the things that everybody has talked about. Some good points have been raised on both sides in the debate and they will be looked at and taken into account. If we were to sell the TAB, we would have to tell the racing industry what guarantees et cetera were in place, and that is what I am interested in if we are to go down that path. Maybe we will not go down that path, because there is much work to be done between now and when any decision is made.

I also point out that the racing industry has been through some torrid times in recent years, with equine influenza, the global financial crisis and a commercial environment that, as has been made clear, has been changing rapidly and has presented many challenges to the industry. It is really important to state, however, that under the strong leadership of Jeff Ovens and his board, and chief executive officer Richard Burt, RWWA has done a terrific job. It will always be under criticism in some areas because, like the government, it must make decisions at times, and it does not always agree with everyone. I know what it was like when I first became minister. There were some great challenges, but RWWA has weathered the storm, and as has been made clear here, distributions have steadily increased over time. It has done a good job with the TAB. It has produced jobs, it has led to economic development and it has provided a taxation return to WA taxpayers. I commend the member for Albany for providing his statistics. I was going to go through those statistics about the distributions but he went through them all. He looked at the figures. What he is saying is basically correct. The GST comes off taxation, so the net taxation benefit is about $42.8 million. I will correct him on that but his other figures were right. I take those figures into account. The figures are there for all to see. The TAB has performed well. It has increased its distribution and its turnover. The government must consider that carefully.

Mr P. Papalia: You referred to the process payout. Is there a formal inquiry beyond the Deloitte inquiry that Perth Racing has commissioned? Is an actual government inquiry going to be commissioned?

Mr T.K. WALDRON: No, we are working through a process that involves RWWA and Treasury. I will talk about how I have consulted with the industry and industry groups, which I have met with. I will answer that as I go.

The government has to consider all those figures and statistics, which are correct, while considering privatisation. As racing minister, I want to ensure that we enable the racing industry to continue to grow and develop for a lot of reasons that have been mentioned by members on both sides of the house. There are important lessons to be learnt from privatisations in other jurisdictions. They have gone about those privatisations in different ways with varying outcomes. I will not go into the detail of it, but poker machines and all that comes into it. We have to be very careful when we compare apples with apples because sometimes there is no comparison. It is important that the pros and cons of these sales are considered strongly as part of the process that we are going through. We need to take that into account.

Country racing has been mentioned. I am particularly keen to ensure that our regional race clubs are well supported. That should be a key consideration of the process. Regional race clubs are very important in country WA. They are the community glue. They provide significant recreational and social value to the community. I get to see that regularly in my role as racing minister and as a local country member of Parliament. That really needs to be taken into account. The future of these regional race clubs is very important, not just to the racing industry but to communities out there. We need to take all these things into account before we make any decisions. I reiterate that it is not so much about the sale of the TAB; it is about the future of the industry.

As well as meeting with RWWA regularly, which I do, I have also met with various other industry groups to discuss the privatisation issue.

Mr M.P. Murray: What about Tatts? Did you get a meeting with Tatts?

Mr T.K. WALDRON: No, I have not met with Tatts. This includes the recent alliance that has been established by the industry itself, exclusive with RWWA—I meet with RWWA regularly—which includes racing luminaries such as Fred Kersley, Ron Sayers and David Simonette. They are highly respected people. I listen to those people, and I take their views seriously. My discussions with them have been very beneficial. Like me, they are keen to ensure that the racing industry continues to have the opportunity to grow and develop. That is the focus. That is what it is about.

I also met with TAB agencies. That was raised last week. I will continue to consult as racing minister, as I have always done. One thing I learnt coming from country WA is that we need to keep listening to the people we represent. I represent the racing industry and that is why I listen to what they have to say. This issue is extremely complex; it is not a simple decision to sell the asset and just get on with it. As I said before, it is good that we are looking at this. It has thrown up lots of different debates, and it is good that we have those debates. At the end of the day, I am yet to be convinced—I would need to be convinced—that it is the right way to go but I have an open mind on it because if we can get a better outcome for the racing industry and the community, that is what we should be doing. The process is a really good one. It has a way to play out. I have always discussed the future of the industry with RWWA. It has an open mind. It is looking down the track at possibilities in the future. I am working with RWWA on that. No decisions have been made but RWWA keeps talking to the industry and talking to me about it. I have an open mind on the future of the industry.

Mr M.P. Murray: What about the member for Belmont? Have you spoken to the member for Belmont?

Mr T.K. WALDRON: The member for Belmont has her opinion on it.

Mr M.P. Murray: I didn't ask that. I asked if you'd spoken to her.

Mr T.K. WALDRON: I have spoken to her. I think the member for Belmont is raising a grievance with me tomorrow. I will speak to her again tomorrow.

Mr M.P. Murray: She is starting to sweat a bit.

Mr T.K. WALDRON: Who?

Mr M.P. Murray: She is starting to sweat a bit.

Mr T.K. WALDRON: I think the member knows my position. My position has been completely consistent right through this and it will stay consistent.

Mr P. Papalia: What is the process? What does that mean? What is the time frame? What is the manner in which the consultation is going to be conducted?

Mr T.K. WALDRON: The consultation has been very much between me and RWWA and the industry. Obviously, I talk to the Premier and the government about what I am doing. The Premier knows that I am meeting with these people and listening, and I convey what is being said to the Premier. I will continue to do that. I know that RWWA is going through a lot of stuff with Treasury—looking at all the stuff that has been talked about. It will be taken forward from there. I do not know the exact process that will take place from there. The Premier has said that again there will be further consultation with the industry. Industry reports are being done. We need to look at those reports. The government has every right to look at the future of the TAB.

Mr P. Papalia: But it's a very substantial matter involving hundreds of millions of dollars, so it should be done in a transparent fashion so we can see that we are getting value for money.

Mr M.P. Murray: The Treasurer jumped the gun, not us; we're responding to the Treasurer's speech in the main.

Mr T.K. WALDRON: The debate the opposition is having suggests it has already been sold. It has been a good debate. The Premier said the sale will be considered. Members opposite can go through Hansard to see how many times we have said that. They know that. When something is considered, it is considered. We are in the early stages of that. It is not part of the first tranche, as members opposite have been told. When we get to that stage, further consultation will take place. I am being proactive about that now, as is the government, RWWA and Treasury, because the more work we do now, the better the picture we will get. As I said, the position is that the sale of the TAB will be considered. I need to be convinced that it is in our best interests. That is what I have said consistently. I will leave it at that.

MR W.J. JOHNSTON (Cannington) [6.27 pm]: I thought the Treasurer was going to get up and say something. Was the Minister for Racing and Gaming the lead speaker for the government in this debate?

The ACTING SPEAKER (Mr P. Abetz): I would not know. Can somebody clarify that?

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: I am told that the Premier was the lead speaker. We have already heard from the lead speaker. I was not quite sure.

I rise to participate in this debate. I will mention the forgotten code, which is greyhounds. Greyhounds WA is very important to the electorate of Cannington because it occupies leased territory out there at the showgrounds. The showgrounds belong to the Canning Agricultural, Horticultural and Recreational Society. It is a not-for-profit organisation. I disclose that I am a proud member of CAHRS. I also make the point that before I became the member for Cannington, I used to go to the dogs every so often with some of the community groups that I belonged to as a parent in the local area. Of course I attend now as a member of Parliament but it is not like that was the first time I went after I was elected. I have been going to the dogs off and on over the years while living in the local area.

When we count the transport infrastructure, inflation and all these things, the government will spend every cent of $2 billion building a stadium for a range of sports, particularly the Australian Football League. If we divide $2 billion by 60 000, then multiply that by the regular attendance at the Cannington track and if we were to support the greyhound industry by exactly the same amount in support for the AFL, it would get $25 million for improvements to the track out at Cannington. Of course we know what needs to happen out there: the track needs to be moved from its current location at the front of the leased space and put out at the back of the location. It is interesting to note that the government has allowed—in fact, cabinet has endorsed it—a new lease from Greyhounds WA for the facilities at Cannington. The lease has been entered into on the basis that the dog track will move from its current location to the area that is called the trotting track, which is the training track out the back, yet the government has not yet allocated the money to facilitate that move. I understand that another $10 million is needed from government to cover the gap between the amount available to Greyhounds WA and the amount needed to complete the move. I make the point that proportionate to the crowds it is nowhere near as much as the amount being given to the Australian Football League. That figure is on the basis of the AFL filling the new Perth Stadium every time and taking an average crowd for the dogs. If we base it on the maximum crowd for the dogs, the figure would be over $100 million, because the largest crowd for the dogs at Cannington is over 4 000 people. As I have said in this chamber previously, the largest dog crowd in Australia is the dog crowd for the two premier events for Cannington Greyhounds, which is the Perth Cup in February and the New Year's Eve event on 31 December each year.

The great thing about members of the greyhound crowd is that they are not pretentious. They do not go out there to sip champagne; they go out there to have a beer and a chat and maybe a bit of a flutter. When I went out there once with my son and daughter and their Little Athletics Australia club, I watched the kids racing the dogs for the last 50 metres of the straight. The dogs started at the end of the straight, ran past the corner and back around to the finishing post for a lap and a quarter, and the kids lined themselves up at the finishing post and tried to race the dogs to the corner. That was a family atmosphere; it was a picnic atmosphere. People can go out there and have a buffet feed at the restaurant, and if they go out there with a community group, like I did before I was a member of Parliament, they know that they will have a good family evening with no hassles. It is a great crowd. Sure, some serious punters go out there as well as personalities from 6PR catching up with Millsy when they are there for the Perth Cup. It is a great night out. That is why 4 000 people go there, which is a really big crowd. Compare 4 000 people with the largest Western Australian Football League crowd this year, which was 6 000. It is actually a very substantial number of people. I looked up the figure for the average crowd, which is about 2 000—and people think greyhound racing is a niche pastime! The overall average crowd at Cannington is 720. On a Wednesday weeknight when it is raining in the middle of winter there is still an average crowd of over 700. As I said, that is one-third of the average number of people who attend a WAFL match. Greyhound racing is actually a well-supported sport, much more so than people give it credit for when we consider the number of people participating in it. They get onto Sky Racing, of course, because that is where all the racing codes are. Sure, it is not like the WAFL on the ABC, but it is a much bigger part of sport in Western Australia than people give it credit for. The Premier talked the other day about the small number of people—he said it was about 51—who turn up for a dog race. There is probably an occasional dog race that attracts a small crowd. Of course, the Northam races attract virtually nobody, but Northam races are not designed for a crowd. There is no crowd facility at the Northam track. That is not what it is about. It is about providing another opportunity to get betting on TV for a TV audience. It is deliberately designed in that way. If we count the number of races at Northam and divide that by the crowd numbers, we get a very low figure. However, the average actual attendance at Cannington is over 700, even in the middle of winter when rain is bucketing down. I am averaging that crowd into the whole week. I am sure the member for Mandurah knows the average crowd number down there. Mandurah also gets a significant number of people. In the 2012–13 financial year, attendance at Cannington was 72 289 and 39 979 at Mandurah.

I am sorry that I missed the Perth Cup this year, but last year I was pleased to be there when Miata won the cup. It was a fabulous night. My son, of course, is underage and could not bet. However, I placed a bet and he was very excited when we won and insisted on sharing half the winnings because he reckoned that he was the only person in the crowd who picked Miata as the winner! Unfortunately, I do not think that was right.

Mr T.K. Waldron interjected.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: Yes, there were quite a few. Of course, the return was pretty low, so giving up half of my winnings to my son reduced my winnings even further! The Minister for Racing and Gaming has been to the races. I am sure he has a very busy program and has lots of demands. He does not get along to the Perth Cup every year, but I know that he has been there, as we have sat and chatted out there on a number of occasions, and there is certainly a representative of the minister there each time.

I want to make the point, too, that there are 164 casual jobs at the Mandurah and Cannington tracks but very few casual jobs at Northam. I know from my experience in the electorate of Cannington that a lot of people have a casual job at the dogs. They work just those two nights, Wednesday and Saturday, and that provides a little bit of extra income to make a difference to their family budget, so they are important jobs in my community. I go along to the track and chat to people working in the restaurants, a number of whom are constituents in my electorate. Every time I have been able to, I have been very keen to talk about the importance of the jobs that are created by the Cannington dogs. I make the point again that on a proportional basis, even taking into account the average crowd and not the maximum crowd, the government to be fair should be looking to put in a substantial amount of money. If the government were to make the same contribution that is being provided to the AFL stadium, it would put $25 million into the track. Of course, Greyhounds WA is not asking for that much; it is asking for less than that. It certainly justifies that investment.

I make the point, too, about all the trainers and owners involved: many are in the greyhound or dog breeder area at the southern end of Cannington and at the southern end of Gosnells. I know that the member for Gosnells has a retired greyhound as a pet. Another important part of what is done out there is making sure there is a future for those dogs.

Mr C.J. Tallentire: They make sure there is a future for those dogs instead of putting them down.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: I know people are surprised to hear how docile the dogs are. I was talking to others and the member for Gosnells about how it is hard to get the damn animals to exercise enough, and they start to put on weight.

Mr T.K. Waldron: It is an excellent program.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: Yes, it is an excellent program.

Ms L.L. Baker: So is Off the Track. Do you know what that is?

Mr T.K. Waldron: No.

Ms L.L. Baker: It is the program run by Racing and Wagering for thoroughbred race horses. There are 15 000 of them slaughtered every year, so it is a good program.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: Obviously, I am putting in a bid to support the greyhound track. The Canning Agricultural Horticultural & Recreational Society makes the point that it was its initiative to build the track in the first place. Even though the club acknowledges that it has had the benefit of the lease over that time, the government and people say that the land does not belong to the greyhound club; therefore, it is a bit odd, because the other codes all have their own track. However, CAHRS makes the point that it was the one that paid for the original infrastructure, and subsequently it has been developed further. The infrastructure of the building is no longer up to standard. It is almost literally falling down. Even if the dog track did not have to move from its location, we would still have to spend a significant amount of money to bring the crowd facilities for the track to a proper standard. Given that it needs to be relocated to the back of the facility, we may as well spend money on the new location rather than on upgrading the existing location. It is important to understand that moving the dog track is a very major and important part of facilitating development in my community, because it provides ongoing security for the Canning Agricultural Horticultural & Recreational Society. CAHRS is one of the very few metropolitan agricultural societies that have adapted to modern times. It has a very, very good active membership beyond old-fashioned discussion of agriculture and it owns its own land. Unlike some other metropolitan shows, which use council-owned facilities, CAHRS uses its own facilities that it owns freehold. That is an important difference. Moving the dog track facilitates the continued development of its facilities to guarantee their ongoing future as part of its own business plan.

The ag society will agree to cede a portion of the land to complete Liege Street through to the Gerard Street bridge, which will provide a way of getting across the railway line without people having to go across a level crossing. I have talked 100 times in this place about how important that is. It is not the central component, but it is a bonus from moving the dog track. There are a lot of good reasons for the government to invest in this. People look down on greyhound crowds but, as I said, proportionate to the West Australian Football League crowd, it is not that small; it is quite large. The dog track had 4 000 at its major event compared with 6 000, which was the largest crowd at a WAFL match this year; I just looked that up on my computer before I spoke. It is more than just a niche sport. Many people are involved in training and owning dogs and all those other aspects of the industry. I think it is very worthy of the continued support of government.

I will conclude with a couple of remarks about the report from the committee in the last Parliament. I cannot remember its proper name now.

Mr J.E. McGrath: The racing and wagering acts review.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: Yes, the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts. I want to point out two recommendations. Recommendation 27 states —

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming in conjunction with the Treasurer reviews the rates of tax for totalisator wagers and fixed odds wagers in sections 4 and 5 respectively of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 with a view to enabling Racing and Wagering Western Australia to compete more effectively.

[Member's time extended.]

Mr J.E. McGrath: You may as well take an extension in the whole debate.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: I will sit down at 10 to seven, so the member for South Perth will be happy. The response from the government was —

The Government will consider the Committee's finding that RWWA needs a wagering tax regime that is consistent with other Australian jurisdictions in order for it to compete more effectively.

This issue will be further assessed by Minister for Racing and Gaming in conjunction with the Treasurer.

It would be interesting to report back on how that consideration is going, because it was clearly an important issue in the committee's report. I also note recommendation 32, which states —

That virtual racing and Keno should not be expanded to TABs and licensed premises.

The response of the government was noted, and there is nothing in the section for comments. I know that the government gets approached constantly; it does not have to ask. I know this happens. All sorts of organisations and businesses in the community would love to have keno on licensed premises. I imagine that many would like to have virtual racing, and it would be more reassuring for all the codes, including the greyhounds, if the government responded positively to that.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Would you support keno and virtual racing?

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: No.

Mr J.E. McGrath: That is why the report is probably worded against it. We knew we would not get your support.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: That is the thing I am getting at, parliamentary secretary. The response from the government is that it has noted the recommendation, but it has not said that it agreed to it, and it has made no comment about that recommendation. It would be more reassuring to all the codes if the government said that it agreed with the recommendation of the committee, because, obviously, a proliferation of gaming options would be detrimental to the income of the TAB. We already have keno in Western Australia; it is played at the casino. One of the great things about WA—it also brings challenges—is that we do not have poker machines all over the place. We do not have dozens and dozens of betting options as other states do. That means that we have fewer social problems arising from gambling, but, equally, we have the problem of funding the industry out of the revenues of the TAB. I imagine that the parliamentary secretary considered that an important recommendation, and it would be great if the government positively responded to it rather than leaving it hanging. I have only about 180 seconds to go before the member for Collie–Preston speaks.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Has he settled down? Has he cooled off?

Mr M.P. Murray: He's hungry!

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: Who? Is the member for Collie–Preston referring to me or to himself?

When the Premier was asked a question about the TAB in the chamber one day, he gave a long answer. One of the things he said was that he did not know whether it was right for a government to own a gambling organisation. The government owns two gambling organisations—the TAB and Lotterywest. Plenty of voracious people want to buy the TAB and just as many would love to buy Lotterywest. Western Australians spend more on lottery products proportionately than people in any other state, so Lotterywest is probably the prize that those gambling companies would be after. The argument that the government should not own a gambling organisation is an argument in favour of privatising and selling Lotterywest, and I do not think people in this chamber would support that. Government members have to be careful about making their arguments about why we should sell the TAB, because every logic that says we could sell the TAB is the same logic that says we could sell Lotterywest. That is why the Labor Party is opposed to it. We do not want to sell the TAB as we do not think it is in the interests of the industry, and we do not want to sell Lotterywest because we do not think it is in the interests of the people of Western Australia. It would be good to have a bit of reassurance on all these issues, and particularly for me, on the funding for the upgrades of the Cannington dog track.

MR M.P. MURRAY (Collie–Preston) [6.50 pm] — in reply: Firstly, can I thank all the speakers on this motion tonight. The debate has been quite good, and it shows what the political process is all about. We have flushed out some of the different views of the government. The Treasurer has a different view from the Premier; the Premier has a different view from the Minister for Racing and Gaming; the minister has a different view from the member for South Perth; and the member for South Perth has a different view from the member for Belmont. But none of those people has listened to the industry. What an amazing debate we have had tonight! The views have been flushed out, and the government does not have a common position. The government says the industry is not in turmoil. If there is no leadership, of course it is in turmoil. The member for South Perth said one thing in one Hansard and another in another Hansard. The minister said it will be done only if it is in the best interests of the industry. The Treasurer said it will be sold to retire debt. The Premier said we might do it in the future. We know what that means. We know that he is going to do it, but he is going to have all these secret meetings with Tatts, and others, and try to get a price and work out how much he can scoop off the top, and the industry can have a bit around the bottom. What a mess it has been! Then what about the member for Belmont! She totally opposed the government's position, but she then got cranky because I said that she should come and vote with us on this side! I do not understand the logic of what the debate has been about tonight. There has been no logic whatsoever. That is what is wrong with the industry at the moment.

I am happy to hear that the minister has met—it must have been in recent times—with the TAB agencies. However, unfortunately for them, they have been left in limbo, because this government does not have a position on this matter. As I said the other night, eight or nine of those businesses are up for sale. Would anyone in the chamber buy one of those businesses from a government that does not know where it is going on this issue? Those poor people will be strung out, and strung out for I do not know how long—until the Premier decides, I suppose.

There stands the problem. The industry itself had to go out and bring in people to do its own research, when in real terms it is the government's decision and the government should have been out there leading the pack. But the government did not do that, and so the industry had to fork out from its own pocket for that research—although even that is confusing, because somewhere along the line I read that Racing and Wagering Western Australia has put some money into that research. How does that work? RWWA members stood on the footpath, in front of their offices, and said, "We do not support the privatisation of the TAB." That is another group—a very strong interest group—that is doing a good job, but no-one is listening to the individual groups, and there is no way that they are being brought together, through the minister or the Premier, to get on and say how they are going to do it. We heard that there is plenty going on. But there is no coordination. In the end, if we want to kick a goal, we have to get all the team to kick the ball the same way. Of course, we have the fullback on the wrong side—the member for Belmont! She would be kicking the ball back over her shoulder instead of kicking it out in front. In her speech tonight, she has been trying to support the industry, because she is very, very nervous about an election coming up in two years' time, because this decision will impact immensely on her area. I understand that nervousness, because I have been there, on 43 votes—a few less than the member has. I understand those pressures. Where are we going and what are we going to do?

Jeff Kennett has been run down by the member for South Perth for his very bland and straightforward comments. Jeff Kennett has said that privatisation of the TAB would be a mistake. Of course the industry is going to come out against that. It is obvious that it would be no different from what the minister would be doing with RWWA. The minister would be saying, "Haven't you got anything to say? Get out there and discredit what has been said." Jeff Kennett is a very well-respected politician from the east coast. We all know that. Also, being a Hawthorn supporter, he is very similar to the member for South Perth—he yells at them one day and claps for them the next.

But, in saying that, I am looking at what has been good in this debate tonight; and, that is, we have flushed out where we are going—or if we are going. It is a good bus to be on! We are not sure whether it is going to leave the station and whether it is going to go down the road, reverse, go sideways, or go down the side street and get jammed down there somewhere. We do not know. We heard the member for Cannington talk about the industry in his electorate. The minister was asked in estimates about where the money will be coming from for a grandstand in Cannington. That is a huge grandstand. We have brought it down in size so that it can have only 500 people in it. A grandstand—a garden shed would be more appropriate in that area!

The minister said in estimates that he is looking for the money. I am always looking for a few bob, too. Has the minister found any money—that is the point—for the greyhounds? I do not think so, because I have not heard it in here, and I did not hear the minister answer the question from the member for Cannington. That may be a small part of the industry in number, but it is a vital part in the overall betting picture and it returns one of the best returns from the TAB. It is right at the top, in front of galloping and also in front of harness racing. Why that is being pushed out on the side I will never, ever understand.

Mr M. McGowan: They don't like the dish lickers!

Mr M.P. MURRAY: Yes!

On top of that, there are 55 race clubs in this state. Have all those race clubs been consulted? The member for South Perth was with me in Hong Kong when a QC from South Australia told us that all their race clubs in the outer areas are closing or have closed. That is because there was no money coming back to support them, as the TAB does. A percentage of the turnover that goes through the betting machines goes back to those clubs. That is what keeps them viable. If that money is gone, we will probably end up with not 55 clubs in Western Australia, but around 15 or 20, and they will be the ones in the outer metropolitan areas, and a few major races like the Broome Cup and the Kalgoorlie Cup. Leinster, Roebourne and maybe even Port Hedland will be gone because if they do not have support from the TAB, they will not survive. We can go around and look to the major sponsors, but that is very difficult to do year in, year out.

It was also interesting—I have it in my notes—to hear about the football stadium, but I will brush over that because the member for Cannington did a very good job in making that comparison.

When we look at this industry, it is very important and vital to this state, both directly and indirectly. This is an industry that employs, both part time and full time, 30 000 people. Some of the people who are in these jobs—I do not mean to be demeaning to them—are not necessarily the most educated people, but they love it to death. What they pick up in wages on a Friday is not going to buy them a castle, that is for sure, but it is more a labour of love than anything else. We look at that—30 000 jobs—and yet we have a government that has not been able to put together tonight, or last week, a reasonable proposal that the opposition can look at.

We have seen the crocodile tears from the member for South Perth because he got picked on last week. I have left him alone this week because I did not want him to be crying in here, but what about the savage attack on me from the member for Belmont! It was so heart-breaking that I had to get protection from the Chair! It was really, really bad.

If we look at the overall picture, it comes back to something that is very simple. The government has gone out and made statements, but it has not had anything to back up those statements. The government has stated that it is going to privatise, and then we heard the handbrake coming on and the wheels skidding, and up popped the minister saying, “No, no, no; only if it is relevant and the industry wants it”, and then we had the Premier saying, “No, but maybe into the future”.

Debate adjourned, pursuant to standing orders.

Mr Cowper has issued a strongly worded press release emphasising the importance of the TAB to the Western Australian racing codes.

He has called on Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt to "commission an independent economic impact study to determine all of the consequences to the racing industry in WA if the TAB is sold".

Mr Cowper joins fellow backbencher Glenys Godfrey in criticising Barnett government plans to sell the home grown wagering operator.

In criticising the proposed sale, Mr Cowper predicts that if the TAB is sold there will be "devastating consequences for the racing, training, and breeding industries in the state, particularly in country areas ".

"These sections of the industry have enjoyed a unique stability since the TAB was introduced by the Liberal government of Sir David Brand in 1961," he said

The WA TAB was originally created to arrest the flow of funds away from the racing codes and into the hands of the 206 privately operated betting agencies that were "bleeding racing dry".

In pushing for an independent commission to examine the impact of any sale on racing, Mr Cowper warned the government that "country race clubs, trainers, and breeders and owners share my concern".

His assertion of deep concerns within the thoroughbred and racing industries is supported by news that two petitions are circulating in thoroughbred and harness circles demanding the Barnett government backs way from a sale.

Mr Cowper believes the federal government is pushing strongly for the TAB to be sold.

"The state government must determine whether it is prepared to sacrifice TAB-funded standards that are the envy of other Australian states by bowing to a federal directive to sell the TAB," he said.

Before the TAB can be sold the Barnett government must gain the approval of State Parliament.

The Labor opposition has emphasised it will oppose a sale, believing selling the TAB would direct vital funds away from the racing industries and put thousands of jobs at risk.

"To get a sale through parliament Mr Barnett will need the support of the National Party," Mr Cowper said.

"Lots of country breeders, trainers, and owners share my concern that Minister Colin Holt and his National colleagues have shifted their stance on the issue from opposition to a sale to supporting the sale".

Mr. Cowper has been in close contact with a group of Liberal members of the South Australian parliament who he said had warned that "a South Australian decision to sell of the State's TAB had virtually destroyed country racing, and seriously eroded the breeding and training industries".

Some proponents of the sale believe now is the time to do it.

One backbencher told Fairfax Media: "Now is the time to sell. The TAB is doing well, now is the time to cash in".

But that suggestion was scoffed at by a number of owners and trainers.

Trainers Bob McPherson and Vern Brockman were among a group of owners and trainers who met with Glenys Godfrey to present their views and offer support in her opposition to the sale.

"I have voted Liberal all of my life," Mr McPherson said.

"But to suggest you sell something that has benefited the racing codes and generated millions of dollars for the broader community through taxes paid to the state government, is just plain stupid. And through taxes paid to the state government, is just plain stupid. And to say that one of the reasons to sell the business is because it is doing well is rubbish."

"What is the matter with these people? The TAB is doing the job it was created to do, that is, bring stability to the industry and protect the jobs of thousands of Western Australians.

"This is crazy politics, why on earth would Colin Barnett start this bunfight and cause all of this uncertainty? The TAB is a WA success story, Colin Barnett should leave it alone."

 Trainers and breeders fear the racing industry will not survive if indexation of stakes is stopped.

Racing reeling after stakes setback

SIMEON THOMAS-WILSON, Mercury

July 11, 2015 12:00am

CUTBACKS to stakes money risk leaving the Tasmanian racing industry on the brink of collapse, leading figures say.

The industry has been rocked by news Racing Minister Jeremy Rockliff will ignore their pleas to continue the indexation of stakes money.

One of the state's top thoroughbred trainers David Brunton said racing could not afford for stakes money to no longer rise in line with CPI.

"If they do that they will kill racing," Mr Brunton said.

Fellow trainer and prominent thoroughbred breeder Graeme McCulloch said there had to be another way savings could be found.

"We can't survive on any less than what we've had at the moment ... the industry cannot afford to go backwards," Mr McCulloch said.

Mr Rockliff has reconvened a meeting of the Racing Industry Working Group, which prepared a report into the sustainability of the Tasmanian racing industry, later this month.

Industry sources said he had called the meeting to tell them stakes would not continue to rise with CPI.

The Government has refused to release the report, which is understood to recommend indexation continues.

Mr Rockliff would not directly address the industry's concerns yesterday.

"As I've made clear on numerous occasions, we will not provide additional funding for the industry given the Budget circumstances we inherited and our commitment to reinvesting in health, education and public safety," he said.

"The Government will make an announcement about our response to the well-known challenge the industry is facing later this month."

Mike Jones, treasurer of the Tasmanian Pacing Club and secretary of Light Harness Tasmania, said stakes needed to be increased so the industry could keep up with the yearly rise in costs.

"The industry needs stakes to survive, how can you keep up with your costs?" he said.

Stakes are the lifeblood of racing, an industry that returns $104 million to the Tasmanian economy each year and provides 1000 full-time equivalent jobs.

The former Labor government devised a funding model for racing after its sale of TOTE Tasmania in 2011. The industry had been largely self-funded by TOTE revenues previously.

The central plank of this model is a 20-year funding deed that is indexed annually at a rate of CPI less 1 per cent and is now close to $30 million, and includes a stakes allocation of more than $22 million.

But there has been strong evidence to suggest this funding and Tasracing's other revenues are not enough to sustain the industry.

Opposition racing spokesman Scott Bacon said if stakes weren't increased it would be a broken promise by the Government.

"A February 26 press release said 'boosting stakes across all three racing codes will be a priority for a majority Liberal Government, as this is the key to driving growth in the industry'," he said.

"Presumably the Liberals' announcement this month will be an increase in stakes money. Anything else would amount to another broken promise."

A 2013 Tasracing discussion paper identified saving strategies that included not increasing stakes by CPI, reducing feature race stakes and reducing base stakes.

The state's racing body is standing on the precipice of financial disaster, with Racing Minister Bill Byrne pointing to an "overly optimistic" and even "naive" culture which has left Racing Queensland on track for a $28 million loss.

Mr Byrne said he was not interested in playing "the blame game" and was instead looking at how the industry can move forward.

The issues were not uncovered until the MacSporran report, which was ordered in the wake of the live-baiting greyhound scandal.

Mr Byrne, who was sworn in as Racing Minister the same day the ABC aired its investigation into live-baiting in the greyhound industry, said he had "no inkling" of any issues until KPMG was sent in.

"And that is one of the reasons perhaps why I am not so inclined to be accusing the previous government of lack of attention here," he said.

Racing Queensland facing 'financial disaster'

"Right up to the point of when Ian [Hall] went into Racing Queensland, I was completely unaware of the financial issues facing Racing Queensland.

"So if there is any upside to the greyhound inquiry, it has revealed these matters to me, which I was completely unaware of."

Opposition spokeswoman on racing Jann Stuckey said the government should be ashamed of the way it had treated Racing Queensland and its former board members.

"Today we hear of a consultation process to get racing back on track, but this is too little too late," Ms Stuckey said.

"... In Parliament today the Minister broadcast a range of accusations about the management practices of RQ yet former members of the board were denied any opportunity to consult the Government on these matters.

"Stakeholders have echoed these sentiments, reading about industry developments in the media because Labor is focussed on tearing down and shaming an entire industry rather than fostering a co-operative environment."

The Crime and Corruption Commission has also been called in to investigate four people over matters involving Racing Queensland.

Mr Byrne would not expand on who was involved or what the investigation was in relation to.

"By process of deduction, people might draw the wrong conclusions," he said.

"Let's just say they are not being referred to CCC for matters associated with tiddly winks. We are talking about substantive serious issues and that is the way they are being treated.

"But it is entirely counter-productive to the interests of the individuals or the interests of anybody else to start naming them or speculating on what the substance [of the allegations are]."

Betting trends moving away from corporate agencies and not planning for wet weather were among the issues which has left Racing Queensland in the red for five successive years, with the majority of its revenue sourced from wagering.

Interim Racing Queensland chief executive Ian Hall said 61 per cent of the body's revenue was spent on prize money.

It would now begin consultation with the industry on how it addressed the issue.

"The plan is over the next three months, we'll have consultation with the industry, get ideas, see what we can do better as an industry," he said.

"To bring the industry together. That seems to be one of the messages I am getting from talking to people, is that the industry hasn't before all got together to work together, they have all had their own particular points of view.

"My intention is to bring the industry together to work through

Racing Queensland 'haemorrhaging funds' under privatised TAB

Wednesday 22 Jul
2015

Fast facts:

- False pre-privatisation funding assumptions have left Racing Queensland in crisis
- Queensland Government has had to intervene to save loss-making racing authority
- Colin Barnett and Treasurer Mike Nahan announced in the 2015-16 State Budget that they will pursue privatisation of WA's TAB

[\(/images/blog/Mick Murray.jpg?zc=2\)](/images/blog/Mick Murray.jpg?zc=2)

The Barnett Government must heed warnings from Queensland about the dire condition of its racing industry under a privatised TAB.

Racing Queensland announced last week it was burdened with "mounting and unsustainable losses" which the Queensland Government blamed on false assumptions about racing funding made pre-privatisation.

Queensland Racing and Gaming Minister Bill Byrne told his state's racing industry last week that pre-privatisation "revenue assumptions from the past were wrong" and "built on rivers of gold that didn't exist".

Racing Queensland, said by Mr Byrne to be "haemorrhaging funds", posted a $12 million loss for 2014-15 and will register a $28 million deficit for 2015-16. Queensland's TAB was privatised in 1999.

Shadow Minister for Racing and Gaming Mick Murray said the Queensland case should act as a stark warning to the Barnett Liberal-National Government that WA's TAB must remain in public hands.

Comments from Shadow Minister for Racing and Gaming Mick Murray:

"I can't imagine a more clear warning about where WA racing may be in 10 or 15 years if Colin Barnett decides to sell the TAB.

"The numbers don't lie and Queensland's Racing and Gaming Minister has now had to intervene to try and restore some sort of workable future for their industry.

"Colin Barnett will be out of public life in 10 or 15 years' time so similarly it would be left to a future minister to clean up any mess he makes of the TAB.

"Former Victorian Premier Jeff Kennett said last year that Victoria had about five years before their industry became completely unsustainable and now we have an even more blunt warning from Queensland.

"This development will make it very difficult for the WA racing industry and race followers to have any faith in any assurances the Barnett Government makes about industry funding under privatisation,

"The WA racing industry is universally opposed to privatising the TAB and it is only because of the Barnett Government's disastrous, self-inflicted financial situation that we are seeing the TAB put up for sale."

Opposition spokesman Mick Murray said on Wednesday the Barnett government needed to heed the disastrous experience of Racing Queensland, which announced last week it was burdened with "mounting and unsustainable losses".

Opposition: TAB privatisation led to Racing Queensland's 'disastrous' finances

Murray's association drew a long bow on a privatisation that happened 16 years ago.

"The wagering industry is facing strong headwinds nationally. It is clear to me that the reports from Queensland relate to the financial management of the racing business, not wagering, and that new management has highlighted these issues," he said.

The Queensland industry's financial problems were confirmed last week by Racing Queensland acting chief executive Ian Hall.

"Over the past five years, revenue has increased by only 20 per cent, while direct operating expenditure has increased by 32 per cent," he said.

Queensland Racing and Gaming Minister Bill Byrne told his state's racing industry last week that revenue assumptions from the past were wrong.

"The problem is stark. The finances of Racing Queensland had a foundation built on rivers of gold that didn't exist," he said.

His office was contacted on Wednesday to clarify whether it was claiming those assumptions dated back to the original privatisation.

Racing Queensland posted a $12 million loss for 2014-15 and projected a $28 million deficit for 2015-16.

Mr Holt said threats to the local racing industry's wagering income was the reason he was seeking to engage the WA industry during a consultation process.

"It is important the industry understands how the wagering side works and I encourage all WA industry participants to read the Ray Gunston report to the Western Australian Racing Representative Group," he said.

"This report was conducted on behalf of industry regarding the foreseeable threats and opportunities to the TAB, privatised or not."

The opposition spokesman maintained the Queensland experience should act as a clear warning to the Barnett government that WA's TAB must remain in public hands.

"I can't imagine a stronger warning about where WA racing may be in 10 or 15 years if Colin Barnett decides to sell the TAB," Mr Murray said.

He said the Queensland experience would make it very difficult for the WA racing industry and race followers to have any faith in any assurances the Barnett government made about industry funding under privatisation.

"It is only because of the Barnett government's disastrous, self-inflicted financial situation that we are seeing the TAB put up for sale," Mr Murray said.

Fears Tasmanian racing professionals will leave state after Government delivers blow to prize money

By Ellen Coulter

Updated Sun 26 Jul 2015, 2:43pm

There are concerns racing industry professionals will leave Tasmania after a decision by the State Government that will result in reduced prize money for the industry.

Under a 20-year funding deed, Tasracing is required to maintain industry prize money in real terms each year.

But the State Government is now removing that indexation requirement, saying the industry needed more flexibility to become sustainable.

Tasracing has proposed spreading the reduction across the three codes, with thoroughbreds losing $1.6 million, harness racing $791,000 and greyhounds $564,000.

The body plans to implement the changes from October but will endeavour to provide a CPI increase to prize money from 2016-17.

Racing Minister Jeremy Rockliff said the industry needed to grow and prosper.

"Unfortunately, the model set up under the previous government was simply not sustainable," he said.

"So we've had to make some difficult decisions to get this racing industry up on a sustainable footing.

"We want a self-sustaining racing industry without having to take money from health and education in order to prop up that industry."

Government has broken its promise, says Opposition

Opposition racing spokesman Scott Bacon said the Liberals promised to increase stakes money before the election.

"And now they've effectively done exactly the opposite," he said.

Mr Rockliff said the previous government relied on band-aid measures to address Tasracing's funding gap, which was $3-5 million.

"I won't wear any criticism at all from the Labor party, who were warned back in 2009 - so, six years ago - that the model that they set up was simply not sustainable," he said.

Light Harness Tasmania secretary Mike Jones said the decision was disappointing.

"This is another blow that's going to really make people sit down and think now, 'Am I getting a fair return for my effort?'" he said.

"I would suspect that people will start to walk away.

"We've only got maybe a dozen professional trainers and they're going to seriously sit down and think, 'How can I survive on this?'"

TAB — PRIVATISATIONMatter of Public Interest*

THE SPEAKER (Mr M.W. Sutherland) informed the Assembly that he was in receipt within the prescribed time of a letter from the Leader of the Opposition seeking to debate a matter of public interest.

[In compliance with standing orders, at least five members rose in their places.]

MR M. McGOWAN (Rockingham — Leader of the Opposition) [2.46 pm]: I move —

That the house opposes the sale of the Western Australian TAB.

This is an excellent opportunity for every member of this house to explain and vote in accordance with what they believe on this issue. I will go through the reasons shortly, but the opposition is very clear in its position on this important issue for jobs, the racing industry and regional communities in Western Australia. Our position is absolutely clear cut. I have been reading and I have heard about positions expressed by members of the National Party and the Liberal Party on this issue. This is the opportunity for every member of this house to put their money where their mouth is on this very important issue for communities across Western Australia.

Just so that people understand the position of the Western Australian TAB, it is publicly owned but independently run. The system has been in place since 1961. It was put in place by Sir David Brand at that time to get rid of starting price bookmaking and other nefarious activities that were going on. The model in Western Australia is unique across the country. It ensures the maximum return to the racing industry. The proceeds from racing go back to the industry or to the government in taxes, and there is a small component that goes to the community benefit. That is a unique model. Other states across Australia have sold their TABs. They have a model under which a significant component of the proceeds from the industry goes to shareholders. That is a legitimate model for racing. It operates in other states, but I would argue, and the opposition would argue, that it does not operate as effectively in the interests of racing as the model we have in Western Australia.

Mr J.E. McGrath interjected.

Mr M. McGOWAN: It is interesting that the member for South Perth is interjecting. He has the view that the TAB should be sold; that is his view. That was the view of other state governments when they sold their TABs, but as we know from meeting and talking with industry representatives in other states, they regret it, virtually to a person. They regret the change from the former model to a new one. Some people would say that Western Australia is out of touch. The Premier would probably say that we are out of touch with the modern direction of the other states and the like. The member for South Perth would probably say that as well. However, in Western Australia sometimes we do things differently, and, I would argue, sometimes we do things better. An interesting case regularly raised is the fact that we do not have poker machines in Western Australia. Some people would argue that that is bad, but I would argue that it is good.

It is a unique model in Australia but a model that works for us. As a former Minister for Racing and Gaming, I know that by having the TAB in public ownership but independently run that the government's involvement in interfering with the administration of racing is virtually zero. Once a year it ticks off on the strategic development plan and that is it. Racing and Wagering Western Australia runs the industry, the TAB is the organisation that distributes the proceeds and the industry gets the benefit. What is wrong with that? Industry likes it and I think it works well. There is a range of speakers on this matter, but I will just quote. Racing and Wagering Western Australia on 7 July this year put out its annual report, if you like. I want to quote a few bits from it —

... Racing and Wagering ... approved a record $136.4million of funding to industry for the racing season commencing 1 August 2015. This represents a 7.9% increase for the 2015/16 financial year, an additional $10million in fund allocations.

The continued increase in funding allocation has been made possible by the strong performance of the TAB.

In the coming year there will be a 7.9 per cent increase in the proceeds to the racing industry. What other industries in Western Australia are growing at that rate? Can anyone name any in the current environment? We have an interesting model in Western Australia that returns to the industry. In Western Australia, 33 600 people are directly involved in racing and it provides 6 700 full-time jobs. The industry estimates that $349 million in wages and around $590 million is added to the Western Australian economy. On top of that, the industry provides contributions to what is called the sports betting account of around $4.5 million a year. These proceeds from the racing industry are being used for community purposes—a bit like Lotterywest, but the money does not come from lotto and scratchies and the like. Where do those grants go? They go to Lifeline WA, Sea Rescue Fremantle and the Riding for the Disabled Association of Western Australia. In fact, over the last few years, more than $30 million has been distributed to organisations in Western Australia such as Royal Life Saving WA, the Australian Paralympic Committee and organisations dealing with people who are suicidal and the like across WA. The racing industry in Western Australia makes contributions to those community organisations. Do members think that the major corporates who own the TAB in the eastern states make those contributions? Does anyone think they do? Of course they do not. They operate in the interests of their shareholders. As I said, that is a legitimate model if we want to do that, but we have a unique model in Western Australia that maximises the returns to the racing industry and the owners involved. The one thing that we must understand about the racing industry is that it wants the stakes and the returns to the industry. That is the basic thing that the industry wants. Whenever anyone talks to people in the industry, the first thing they want to know is what the return will be. People who are going to invest in a racehorse or other aspects of the industry, they want to know that they will achieve the maximum return for their investment. If some of that return is being siphoned off to shareholders, there is less in it for the industry. Therefore, we are saying that the shareholder model is not the best model for the industry in Western Australia. I will quote to the house what the chairman of Racing Victoria, Mr Robert Roulston, said.

Mr J.E. McGrath: He was chairman but he is not anymore.

Mr M. McGOWAN: Good point—he was the chairman, member for South Perth. That is great. Mr Roulston had this to say about it, and I quote —

“As soon as you privatise, I understand you can take an amount of money up front for it, but you’re giving away part of the future returns to shareholders, so it’s not ideal,” ... “Those shareholders, and therefore the directors of the company, may have quite different objectives to those of the industry and its needs.

“So philosophically, I can’t see any reason why if you’ve got a very good vertically integrated model—which WA has—why you would move away from it unless there was a desperate need for a large injection of capital up front.”

Those last few words are the Premier’s argument: a large injection of capital up-front. I will deal with that in a minute. The head of racing in Victoria said that. We know what Jeff Kennett had to say about it —

Mr J.E. McGrath: And he has gone back on it.

Mr M. McGOWAN: Maybe he has, maybe he has not, but we know what he had to say about it. We also know what the former Minister for Racing and Gaming had to say about it; he objected to it strenuously. We also know that the Premier back in 2013 said that the government would not do it. Numerous other people across the racing industry—Fred Kersley, you name it—are saying that this is not the right way for racing to go in Western Australia. What are the reasons? First of all, shareholders will come first and the racing industry will come second. The second point is that regional racing will miss out. Country racing is very concerned about this because as soon as we go to that model, the race meets in country towns that perhaps do not return so much will fall by the wayside. The third point is that there will be job losses in the industry. If we have the Tatts Group or Tabcorp running the industry in Western Australia, what will be the first thing that it will do? It will look to cut costs. These big organisations are run out of Brisbane and Melbourne, so what will they do? If they have the call centres and staff and all those things to run the industry in Melbourne or Brisbane, what will they do? They will see what services run in Western Australia can be moved over there. A call centre can run just as easily from Melbourne as it can in Perth. The TAB itself employs in the vicinity of 400 people. A lot of those jobs are administrative jobs that can be done in the eastern states just as well with today’s technology. Jobs could very well be lost. Actually, let us be frank: they will be lost if the TAB is sold.

I will now turn to the issue around the up-front capital. The Premier always says that we would like better facilities. That is a good argument; better facilities would be great. Belmont Park and Ascot Racecourses are old and they could be better. However, if Belmont is sold, we will lose the winter track. The racing industry always says that it needs a summer and a winter track. The industry knows this, and I have been out there in the morning as well. Due to the condition of the track and the damage caused to the track by horse activities and the like, the industry needs two tracks. The industry says that it needs a winter track. However, if Belmont Park is sold, those proceeds could go towards upgrading Ascot Racecourse. The government does not need to sell the TAB in order to upgrade Ascot Racecourse, Lark Hill racecourse or the like. If the industry agrees to sell Belmont, which it owns, the proceeds of that would be enormous and could go towards upgrading Ascot without selling the TAB. I would argue that the Belmont–Ascot issue is separate to the sale of the TAB and that it is a decision for the industry. It is not a decision for the government to make. The industry owns it and it has, as I understand it, a long-term, 1 000-year, lease over Ascot, so it is the industry's decision. The real reason that the government wants to sell the TAB is that it has made such a hash of the state's finances and it is scrabbling around for anything to deal with it. If that means, as we have seen, getting somewhere between $200 million and $600 million—we are not sure what the government expects to get—that is what the government will do in order to pay off some of the $33 billion additional debt it has accrued. I would argue to the government, to ministers on the other side, that they should think of the jobs, the return to the industry and the fact that regional racing will suffer. They are all the issues and this government should deal with the issue of the TAB on its merits, not just because it has made a mess of the finances.

MR J.E. McGRATH (South Perth — Parliamentary Secretary) [3.00 pm]: I want to reply to some of the comments made by the Leader of the Opposition. There are three aspects to the situation with the TAB. The first—a point that the Premier has made many times—is whether the government should be in the business of running a betting or gambling operation.

Mr M.P. Murray: What about Lotterywest?

Mr J.E. McGRATH: With all due respect, there is a lot of difference between Lotterywest and a betting and wagering agency.

The second aspect is the changing face of the wagering landscape around the world, which has been mentioned many times in this place. Challenges are facing racing jurisdictions all over the world. New York State has 15 million people and there are three racetracks. Eight million people live on Manhattan Island, and it is talking about shutting down one of its racetracks. Do members know why? It is because attendances are dwindling and the cost of maintaining infrastructure is the biggest challenge for the racing industry worldwide. The third aspect is the future of the racing industry. The Premier has said—I agree with him—that it is time for the industry to modernise. I have been involved in the industry for a long, long time. I can go back to when the Western Australian Turf Club sold a big parcel of land at Bull Creek and used that money to build a brand-new grandstand at Belmont Park. That grandstand was state-of-the-art, it was world-class, but that was 40 years ago and infrastructure like that does not last forever. A review has just been done by Racing and Wagering Western Australia, which was carried out by GHD, because RWWA said that it needed to look at the assets that are owned by the racing industry. The Leader of the Opposition mentioned that the assets—Belmont Park and Ascot Racecourses—are principally owned by Perth Racing. Of course they might be separate from what happens with the TAB, but GHD identified that $154 million needs to be spent to upgrade existing facilities and build new ones for the racing industry.

Mr P.B. Watson interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for Albany, I call you to order for the first time. I know that you shout at the member for South Perth on the bowling green, but please.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I chaired a committee inquiry into RWWA and back then we were told by RWWA that infrastructure was the biggest challenge facing the industry.

Mr P.C. Tinley interjected.

The SPEAKER: The member for Willagee is on three.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Back then, RWWA said that funding was needed for infrastructure and a ballpark figure for that was about $70 million. That was in 2008. Now in 2015, we need $154 million if the government is going to support the racing industry to modernise itself. A new track is being built for the greyhounds at Cannington. The industry does not even have the money to build a grandstand. It will get a blow-up grandstand from somewhere in Dubai because it cannot build a proper grandstand.

Mr M.P. Murray interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for Collie–Preston, I call you to order for the second time. I think you are trying to seek the call; you are next!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: What I am saying is that the opposition—pardon the pun—is putting the cart before the horse. Why would it oppose the privatisation of the TAB when it does not even know what the benefits might be? The government does not even know at this stage because proper due diligence is being done, as the Minister for Racing and Gaming has pointed out at industry forums around the state. Do members know what? At the end of the day, it will not be up to people in this Parliament to decide what happens to the racing industry. The racing industry will decide. This government intends to take the racing industry along with it. We are very confident that we will get the support of the racing industry because, as part of this deal, the only way that the funding can be unlocked and provided to the racing industry to improve infrastructure is if the TAB is privatised. I will give members a couple of examples.

The GHD report stated some of the things that are badly needed if this industry is to continue. Remember that GHD recommended that Belmont Park should probably be sold. Last year, Perth Racing had Deloitte do a report on Perth Racing's viability. The report was never really made public, just the executive summary, and Deloitte stated that we cannot continue to exist running two racetracks because running Ascot and Belmont Park is an unsustainable model. I am a racing person—I love Belmont Park and Ascot—but we have to face reality and look to the future. It was great 40 or 50 years ago when people had to go to the races to bet. Now, people can bet on their mobile phones; they do not have to go to the course. Racecourse crowds are diminishing. The world is changing. Racing is becoming a global event. Even in Victoria, the industry cannot get big crowds to racetracks until it has its big carnivals. There are big carnival days, but at other times of the year, just the regulars go to the races. GHD reported some of the spending that the industry needs—$43 million to redevelop Lark Hill. I would have thought that the member for Warnbro would welcome with open arms a redevelopment at Lark Hill. If the Leader of the Opposition said to the people of Rockingham that they were getting a racetrack, that that will be where the winter racetrack is—there will be winter racing and that could be at Lark Hill—a lot of his constituents would probably love to be able to go to a very handy racetrack. Another thing that GHD recognised was the need for on-course stabling. People have told us at meetings with the minister and the Premier that where young people or retired jockeys go, who want to become horse trainers, is another challenge for the racing industry. The only way they can do it now is buy a property. The industry needs to set up on-course stabling, as happens all around the world and in every other state of Australia. It could be put in at Lark Hill for $43 million.

Mr R.H. Cook: What's that got to do with selling the TAB?

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I am saying that RWWA does not have the funding to do all this work. RWWA basically has to keep the prize money at a level that will encourage new owners and existing owners to stay in the game. Cutting prize money back to build infrastructure will affect the viability of the sport. The government is saying, "Here is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity." Who knows what the sale of the TAB will produce in revenue? We do not know; the figures have not been done. That is why I think you guys are jumping ahead of yourselves until the blueprint comes out and the government can say to the industry, "This is what we are prepared to offer you." In the meantime, the government is saying to the industry, "You come and tell us what your needs are if you want to modernise, go into the future." Another thing identified in the GHD report is that Gloucester Park can stay for another 10 years, but the Gloucester Park facilities are ageing. It needs $80 million spent there. The Byford Trotting Training Complex needs $9 million. This is a huge amount of money. An upgrade is needed to the Pinjarra harness racing track, including lights. The member for Murray-Wellington would appreciate that. I have always asked why there would not be lights at the trotting track at Pinjarra where thousands of holidaymakers go every year in summer; in the old days, it had lights and people would go there in their thousands to have picnics on the lawn and watch the trots. It was a huge community event. Under this plan that the government is prepared to look at, Pinjarra could get lights. Pinjarra is a great track—probably a better track to race on than Gloucester Park.

The Leader of the Opposition made some points about the TAB, under its current model, returning a maximum return to racing. The government has already said to the racing industry that it will be no worse off. The government will guarantee ongoing funding for racing. If the system is not any good now, Leader of the Opposition—this is not a criticism of Racing and Wagering Western Australia because I think it is a well-run organisation—why can RWWA not come up with the funding for this very vital infrastructure for the industry? Training facilities are very important, because without horses there is no racing.

Amendment to Motion

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I move —

To delete all words after "house" and insert —

notes that the state government has listed the WA TAB on the asset sales list and, as part of the asset sales process, the state government will consider all impacts on racing in Western Australia to ensure the racing industry's ongoing sustainability and that the racing industry across the state benefits from any sale.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Mr Speaker, I go on.

Several members interjected.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: The Leader of the Opposition and I have history on this. When I was in opposition, the current Leader of the Opposition was the Minister for Racing and Gaming. I came up with a suggestion—because I support the racing industry, although a lot of people say that I do not—and I said, “Minister, if we want to get horses to our Perth carnival, why does the state government not underwrite a plane to bring the horses over?” I did not say pay all their fares; I said underwrite it. The minister got up and said “What?” In a very shrill voice he said, “Why would we pay for eastern states horses to come over to Perth and take Western Australian prize money back?” Do members know what happens now? RWWA underwrites a plane every year for horses to come across to the Ascot carnival.

We have to live in a modern world. The world is changing, Leader of the Opposition. The Melbourne Cup used to be a race for a tin-pot welder, then the Victoria Racing Club decided to globalise and a lot of the local trainers did not like it. Bart Cummings did not like it. He complained and said there should be 10 or 12 spots just for Australian horses. Do members know what has happened? It is the greatest race in the world. Before Bart Cummings passed away, he won it two or three times as an international race. We have to look to the future.

Whatever happens, the government will be talking to the racing industry all the way through. Government does not want to tell racing what it should do. We want the racing industry to come to government and tell us that this is where it would like to be in 30 or 40 years’ time. The Premier is going down to Lark Hill Thoroughbred Training Complex soon to look at the facility, because the Liberal-National government wants to support the racing industry. I think the opposition should not have moved a motion like this at this early stage in proceedings while work is going on with the racing industry. The opposition talks about people being opposed to the privatisation of the TAB. I will tell members who is not opposed, publicly anyway: the chief executive of RWWA. He has said at every meeting with industry groups that RWWA is not opposed to privatisation. The government wants to guarantee that the industry is better off.

Several members interjected.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: It is true. The deputy chairman of RWWA, Bob Pearson, has said the same thing: that it wants a better deal for the industry. This government is prepared to give the industry a better deal.

MR M.P. MURRAY (Collie–Preston) [3.14 pm]: I rise to speak against the amendment to the motion. Certainly many, many errors have been made because the focus has been on the thoroughbred racing industry alone. There are two other codes that also have an interest: the chasing and pacing industries that no-one from the government has spoken about or, probably, to. It seems to be all about the thoroughbred racing industry and the selling of tracks that do not impact on those two industries. There was a slight mention of Gloucester Park being around for another 10 years, so I am glad there was one small mention.

Let us have a look at what has happened to the chasing industry under this government: it has been absolutely decimated. The government made some promises, but when it got to the final hurdle it never helped the industry out. RWWA put money up, not the government; $13 million that should have come from the government came out of RWWA’s bankbook. The government asks why there are no facilities: it is because the government has not backed it up.

I will go a little further into that and the narrow focus of the government’s speakers on Perth, and Perth alone. Let us look around the countryside at the number of people directly involved in the industries. In the Kimberley: thoroughbreds, 364 people; harness racing, three people; and greyhounds, two people. In the Pilbara: thoroughbreds, 322 people; harness racing, three people; and greyhounds, 61 people. In the midwest there are 1 041 people directly associated with the thoroughbred industry; harness racing, 45 people; and greyhounds, 24 people. If we come down further to the Gascoyne, there are 216 people involved in the thoroughbred industry, and 32 people in the greyhound industry. Think about these figures. In the wheatbelt there are 2 403 people involved in the thoroughbred industry; 925 people involved in the harness industry; and in the greyhound industry there are 226 people. Moving to the Peel area—I am sure the member for Murray–Wellington has some interest in this—there are 929 people involved in the thoroughbred industry; 2 144 people involved in the harness industry; and 867 people involved in the greyhound industry. In the south west there are 1 862 people involved in the thoroughbred industry; 1 603 people involved in the harness industry; and 212 people involved in the greyhound industry. In the great southern, down in the member for Albany’s area, there are 926 people involved in the thoroughbred industry; 346 people involved in the harness industry; and 17 people involved in the greyhound industry. Government members never mentioned any of those people in the other areas who at times rely on those picnic meetings to keep the town going. The meetings are the social highlight of the year. They bring the people into town. If the owners and trainers fill up their tanks after towing the float down, it will cost them $100 to $150 at the local service station. That income will go. It is a community issue; it is not only about the racing industry.

But let us have a look around the place and ask what the National Party has to say about this? Nothing! Its members went to its conference saying “We don’t support the sale of the TAB”; they came back saying

Extract from Hansard

“maybe”. They are still the same—sitting on the fence. The minister did a trip virtually around Australia. He went up to the Pilbara and over to Bunbury. I was on my deathbed, but I went to the meeting in Bunbury to listen to the minister. The member for Murray–Wellington put the minister on the spot and said, “Okay, minister, you are the worst-briefed minister I have ever seen at any meeting, but let’s put it to the vote in this room here now.” When the hands went up, it was 60–nil against the sale of the TAB. I think it was the same in Albany.

Mr P.B. Watson: It was the same in Albany.

Mr M.P. MURRAY: Then the member for Murray–Wellington said to him, almost literally, “Get on your horse and go!” He was a bit ruder than that, to be quite honest—I would not have said those things. But he told him, “There’s your opinion. Listen to it, and go back into your box.” So that tells members what people think in country areas.

Thirty-three country tracks have shut down in South Australia. That means that 33 small country towns do not have a social function once a year. I think it is great; a few years back I went out to Yalgoo and saw the people all dressed up in their finery. Some of those people only get dressed up once a year. Caravans from all over the place had come there just for that race meeting. Again, the local pie shop was sold out. That is when the people make their money for a quarter of the year.

Let us look further into the funding that comes back to the state government. There is $40 million of turnover tax—never, ever chop the head off the goose that lays the golden egg. There is $33 million raised from the goods and services tax turnover. That $70 million will be gone from state coffers. The Leader of the Opposition mentioned the sports funding of, I think, $4 million that will not go into groups like the Riding for the Disabled Association. Those sorts of groups will not get their funding and will have to line up and beg.

Then we move across to Queensland. What happened to the Queensland racing industry, just recently? It has gone back to the government after privatisation, asking for $30 million. Do members know what the industry and the Tatts Group told me? They have said, “Oh no, they run it badly. They run the racing area badly.” Why? It is because the Queensland racing industry did not have any money coming in. We need to be very, very careful about this because we could destroy what I see as a well-run and profitable industry. Racing and Wagering Western Australia is doing a magnificent job. As much as I have criticisms about some smaller areas about what it does and how it does it, overall no other state has the same increases in prize money as Western Australia has—none. There might be individual races that have a bonus put on them to make sure all the major racing people go there, such as the Melbourne Cup. We here in Western Australia have a chance to grow, because we have a good model, and to not go down the drain under the proposed privatisation. We should have another review. The member for South Perth was the chair of a committee that looked all around the place. The state government had its chance. It came back with so many recommendations but very few of them have been implemented. At the last count, five out of something like 40 recommendations were adopted. The number is so small because the government did not support the industry.

Let us look today at whether the member for Belmont is going to vote for or against the privatisation of the TAB. Let us see what the member for Murray–Wellington does; he has made a lot of noise and brought a lot of petitions into this house. Is he just all wind? He is a big fella, but he could be full of wind. Let us look at what happens there and see whether these people have got the gumption to stand up for the future of their communities.

MR D.T. REDMAN (Warren–Blackwood — Leader of the National Party) [3.21 pm]: I just want to make a couple of comments in a couple of capacities. One as the minister representing the Minister for Racing and Gaming in this house, and also as the Leader of the National Party, because the National Party has made some statements publicly on this position. The point that the member for South Perth highlighted was that no decision has yet been made about the sale of the TAB.

Several members interjected.

Mr D.T. REDMAN: There has been no decision. Members opposite are running a story on the premise of a decision that has not even been made.

Several members interjected.

The SPEAKER: Members!

Mr D.A. Templeman interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for Mandurah, I call you to order for the first time.

Ms M.M. Quirk interjected.

Speaker; Mr Mark McGowan; Mr John McGrath; Mr Mick Murray; Mr Terry Redman; Mr Joe Francis; Dr Graham Jacobs; Mr Murray Cowper; Mr Paul Papalia; Mrs Michelle Roberts; Dr Kim Hames; Mr Bill Johnston; Mr Brendon Grylls; Ms Janine Freeman

The SPEAKER: Member for Girrawheen, do you want to get called?

Mr D.T. REDMAN: I just want to go through a few facts. First of all, in the 2014–15 budget speech by the Treasurer there was an announcement that the government would look at a number of asset sales. That is on the table. The Premier even announced that as a part of the second tranche of those sales we would consider the sale of the TAB. Both the former and current Minister for Racing and Gaming made the point publicly that they would make the decision based on the best interests of the racing industry. Those are the facts and the issues that are on the table.

Just to be clear about the Nationals' position, I want to read out the motion that was passed at the National Party's conference in Margaret River. The Nationals' motion was that the Nationals do not support the potential sale of the state-owned TAB without a demonstrated and preserved regional benefit. Quite rightly, the National Party members of Parliament will reflect the interests of the lay party.

As far as the procedure goes, there is an analysis of the TAB happening now, which the member for South Perth talked about. That will consider the level of due diligence about the issues and the risks and the challenges, and the advice that government needs to have a plan in order to make a decision around that. One of the key issues that will be discussed, no doubt, will be any criteria that are attached to a sale. We can go from a position of selling it as is, which is just a clean sale, and the industry or whoever buys it will make its decisions accordingly, or we can have some conditions or criteria that sit around the sale. Depending on where members sit on that issue and what conditions are set around the sale, that will affect not only the sale price, but also the potential benefits that might flow back to the industry and, from our perspective, regional Western Australia. There are a lot of things to be discussed and issues determined in terms of how a sale may or may not proceed. Ultimately, it comes back to a cabinet decision. It comes back into cabinet and the ministers sitting around the table will make the call. If the decision is made to have a sale, albeit a conditional sale, legislation will come into this place and will need to be passed. There are more than enough decision-making points for any member of this house to make a call on whether they think the decision that is made or is not made is the right one.

From the industry's perspective, the minister wants to ensure that we have a sustainable industry going forward. From our perspective, a very important issue is the country racing circuit, as the member for Collie–Preston pointed out. Races such as the Landor races are held once a year. They are iconic. There are a lot of things to consider.

The other point that we have many discussions about is the changing wagering landscape. This is a really important point. I am not sure I know the answer to this and that is why I am chasing the due diligence about how we should consider this issue. On Monday night I was watching on television the change in the federal leadership. I was watching it just before all the members of the Liberal Party went into the Liberal party room. We saw Malcolm Turnbull walk down with a team of people behind him and just after that we saw Tony Abbott walk behind him. My son was on his phone and he was giving me the odds of who was going to walk out of that party room as Leader of the Liberal party and the future Prime Minister of Australia.

Mr B.S. Wyatt: Did he win?

Mr D.T. REDMAN: He actually just missed the bet, because it was shut down as the last person walked into the room.

I am making the point that the wagering landscape is very, very different from what it used to be. These are challenges of a state government–owned wagering sector. It is eight per cent of the wagering sector. Therefore, it is somewhat vulnerable to the wagering market as that landscape changes. We need to consider all those issues as we take this debate forward.

This is of concern to the National Party. Obviously the impact that it will have on the regions will be significant to us and we will take all those issues into account. We hold a view that we think the amendment that has been moved could be more explicit, so I would like to move an amendment to the amendment.

Amendment on the Amendment

Mr D.T. REDMAN: I move —

That the amendment be amended by deleting all the words after “government” where it first appears and to insert —

only supports the sale of the TAB if there is a guaranteed ongoing benefit for the racing industry.

The SPEAKER: Are you finished? You are moving an amendment; are you still speaking or is that the end?

Mr D.T. REDMAN: I will just make a couple of closing comments, Mr Speaker.

In summary, no decision has been made.

Several members interjected.

The SPEAKER: Members!

Mr D.T. REDMAN: I support the principle of asset sales to deal with the state budget challenge, and the Nationals will rightly look at all the due diligence that is presented as they go before cabinet to make a decision.

Mr P.B. Watson interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for Albany, I call you to order for the second time.

Mr D.T. REDMAN: We will always look out for and look after the interests of regional Western Australians. It is amazing how members opposite stand on their hill and talk about their legitimacy in regional Western Australia. They have no credibility out there.

Mr M.P. Murray: Twenty million dollars!

Mr D.T. REDMAN: I know where $20 million was!

Several members interjected.

The SPEAKER: Members!

Mr J.M. FRANCIS (Jandakot — Minister for Emergency Services) [3.28 pm]: I want to make a couple of points, and I will try to simplify what is obviously becoming a fairly complicated issue for some people. Firstly, I want to make it crystal clear that it is the role of any responsible government to consider the assets that are owned by the state on behalf of the taxpayers of Western Australia, and whether or not it is the role of government to own those particular assets. I will make this point firstly. If it is right for the commonwealth government and commonwealth Labor governments to realise that it is not the role of the commonwealth —

Several members interjected.

The SPEAKER: We are getting the wall of noise.

Mr J.M. FRANCIS: If it is right for the commonwealth government and previous commonwealth Labor governments to realise that it is not the role of government to run the Commonwealth Bank against Westpac, to run Telstra against Vodafone and Optus, or to run Qantas against other airlines, surely it is right for us to consider whether it is the role of state government to run a betting agency against Sportingbet, Betfair, Centrebet, Intrade, Paddy Power, Tom Waterhouse and a range of different online betting agencies. I am not trying to be provocative here; I just want to —

Mr W.J. Johnston interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for Cannington, I call you to order for the first time. Member for West Swan!

Mr J.M. FRANCIS: I am not trying to be confrontational—just hear me out.

I want to point out a couple of complexities involved in the massive shift from bricks and mortar retail gambling buildings—the old TABs—to the online industry. The Leader of the National Party was right the other day when he was talking about his son. Every single person in the world is now moving to online betting agencies and away from bricks and mortar. I know that the TAB is in this space, but let me give members an example of some of the complexities that face online gambling agencies right now. People can talk about Sportingbet and Centrebet and compare them with Intrade and Betfair, which are not run by bookmakers but are betting exchanges that have punters betting against each other. If people want to make money out of gambling, they back high and lay low. There are people out there in front of computers with programs and who have written all the little hacks so that they can play bookmakers, betting agencies and betting exchanges off against each other to try to make a quid. Good luck to them if that is what they want to do; it is probably ethically no different from playing the stock exchange.

Right now people can bet online before the bounce-down or the race starts, but they cannot bet online in Australia while the game is in play. People can pick up the phone and change their bet, they can bet or they can lay, but they cannot do it online from within Australia. People can probably illegally download an app on their phone or put an IP gateway changer into their computer so that if they are in New Zealand, they can bet online in Australia with an Australian betting agency while the game is in play. People cannot do that here, but they can probably illegally trick Australian betting agencies into thinking that they are in Australia and they can therefore bet online.

There is another issue, for example, that free enterprise will always beat red tape. Waterhouse might be in front of the courts at the moment, so I will choose my words carefully. I think the Waterhouse betting agency has worked out a way that people can get their phones to record a message that can go through all these things. Anyway, the point is —

Mr R.H. Cook interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for Kwinana, I call you to order for the first time.

Mr J.M. FRANCIS: The point is that this industry is changing so quickly. Does anyone seriously think that a state government-owned betting agency is going to be anywhere near competitive in this space in the next 10 years—seriously? Not to mention that the bricks and mortar buildings that they now own are soon going to be worth a lot less than they were 30 years ago. If members do not believe me and they have the internet in front of them, go to Google and put in TAB WA and see what the first betting agency is that comes in. It is Sportsbet; it is not the TAB WA. TAB WA cannot even get its search engine optimisation right today; they cannot even get that. How on earth do members think the Western Australian TAB, run by a government agency, is ever going to compete with the rise of online betting agencies? It is only right that any responsible government seriously considers whether this is the role of a state government-owned agency on behalf of the taxpayer. Are we better off not being involved in betting either financially, with future valuations of both the assets and the market, or ethically?

DR G.G. JACOBS (Eyre) [3.33 pm]: Unlike the member for South Perth, I am not an inherent racegoer, but as my duties as a member of Parliament require, I attend race meetings in the regions—in Esperance, Kalgoorlie and the goldfields. Last year, I went to a race meeting and the president of the race club was standing at the gate. My wife and I were walking in, and he said to us, “Graham, I will let you in if you promise me that you won’t sell the TAB.” To which, I replied, “I will do my due diligence in this area, but I assure you that whatever we do will be for the benefit of the industry.” He let me in, but every time I go to the races—I am going to the Boulder Cup on Sunday—I get the same message.

Although the member for South Perth said that negotiations are in the early stages, this issue has been around for me and other regional members for some time. We get this issue every time we go to the races. As a member—regional members would understand this—I have to give a very good argument, but we have not had that debate. We have not had that due diligence. As the member for Eyre, can I go to the president of the race club and say that I believe that this move will benefit the racing industry, and the community, by the way, because of these reasons, and here they are: one, two, three? No, I cannot do that. We have not got there. Although this is early in the process, member for South Perth, I think it is late enough that I as a member and other members for regional Western Australia can go to the racing industry with substantive facts and argument showing why, if we did sell the TAB, they would get tangible benefits, because it is about maintaining and upgrading their tracks and infrastructure and stakeholder money. It is for the benefit of the community. The member for Collie–Preston made a very good point about communities and the benefit for communities.

I support the amendment before us which states —

To delete all words after “government” with the view to inserting the following words —

... only supports the sale of the TAB if there is a guaranteed ongoing benefit for the racing industry.

Amendment on the Amendment

Dr G.G. JACOBS: I move —

To amend the amendment by adding after “the racing industry” — and local communities throughout WA

MR M.J. COWPER (Murray–Wellington) [3.37 pm]: I would like to remind members in this place that we are here for a specific reason: we were voted here by our constituents. I am here to speak on behalf of my electorate, which has, as pointed out by the member for Collie–Preston, something like 5 000 people involved in the racing industry, whether it be in the Murray, Harvey or Waroona Shires, and not one of those people has said to me that they wish to sell the TAB. In fact, to the contrary. I have had similar experiences to the member for Eyre when I go to the track where I am the patron. I recently travelled far and wide from the top to the bottom of the state with the member for Belmont, and everywhere we went not a single person said that they support the sale of the TAB.

The biggest issue we have is that we have a notion that we are going to sell the TAB, which has straightaway put uncertainty into the industry. Down my way, we have breeders, buyers and horse agistment places, and this notion has put a shiver of uncertainty through the industry. I have not much more to say, but I will say this. There is an opportunity for Western Australia on our time zone to go into Singapore, Hong Kong and Shanghai. We can compete on the mobile phone. Yes, it is a changing landscape and we need to move with the times, but there is a huge opportunity for racing in Western Australia to become the absolute mecca of racing in not only Western Australia, but also across the whole Asia-Pacific region if we get it right.

People in the Murray-Wellington electorate have said in the strongest possible terms that the government should not sell the TAB. Members should look at what happened to the former Premier of Victoria Jeff Kennett, who said that he rues the day that he ever sold the TAB.

Amendment on the Amendment

MR P. PAPALIA (Warnbro) [3.39 pm]: I move an amendment on the amendments moved by the Leader of the National Party and the member for Eyre —

To delete all words after “government” with the view to inserting — only supports

And delete the words after “TAB” and insert at the beginning — does not support

So that the words to be inserted will read — does not support the sale of the TAB

This debate began as a debate on the sale of the TAB. Sadly, it descended into a debate about who sold out on the TAB. For decades, the member for South Perth was an advocate for retaining the TAB, and was the author of a report as a committee member that argued to retain the TAB. But he is now selling out in favour of the Premier’s spurious arguments—his desperate need to have a list of assets to sell. The Premier’s only motivation is not the interest of the industry, not the interest of people in racing, not the interest of thousands of people to whom the member for Murray-Wellington referred—none of that; his only interest is to try to provide himself with a fig leaf to cover the poor mismanagement of the state’s finances over the last seven years. He wants to say something to the credit rating agency, “Please don’t remove my AA+; please don’t take that. I’ve already lost the AAA; I cannot afford any more loss of credibility.” That is the only motivation for the sale of the TAB. In September 2013, the Premier said that he would not sell it. He has broken that promise. In September 2013, he promised the people of Western Australia that he would not sell the TAB. The National Party has the numbers, so if it decided to join the backbench members of the Liberal Party who have integrity on this matter and vote with the Labor Party, it would be able to deny the government even a remote possibility of selling the TAB. If National Party members were true to their word, they would stand with the people of the regions—those 55 clubs other than Perth Racing that benefit from the TAB. Perth Racing is one club that the Premier talks to. There are 55 other clubs around the state, across thoroughbreds, across pacing and across greyhounds. None of them want the TAB sold.

As we heard from the member for Murray-Wellington, if National Party members go out and witness those people’s views, they will very rapidly come to the conclusion that the sale is a bad idea. People know that they are the beneficiaries of a well-run organisation. It is the premium organisation of its kind across the nation. It generated $136 million in disbursements this year. During the last four years, it grew disbursements to the industry—$40 million in tax to the taxpayer, besides the $30 million over the last 10 years distributed to worthy organisations around the state, as the Leader of the Opposition indicated, such as the Riding for the Disabled Association. I happen to have a lot of interest in Riding for the Disabled. I am the patron for Riding for the Disabled in the Peel region. I can guarantee that members in this house are patrons of their local Riding for the Disabled organisations right around the state or, at the very least, are good supporters of it. It is undeniably a fine organisation, as are the other organisations that over the last 10 years have benefited from over $30 million in grants from TAB proceeds. On 5 September, Riding for the Disabled held the state games, a major event as a result of a grant from the community TAB grants system. More than 1 000 riders of all ages with physical and intellectual disabilities attend centres around WA. We all know about it and we know its value. The Riding for the Disabled operations manager, Kelly Mansfield, said, “A lot of what happens for Riding for the Disabled would not be possible without the partnership it has with the community TAB.” That is just as true of organisations such as Lifeline, Fremantle Sea Rescue, Anglicare, the Cerebral Palsy Association of Western Australia, the Salvation Army and Radio Lollipop. More importantly, they are vital contributions that will evaporate the moment shareholders on the east coast are the beneficiaries and not the people of Western Australia.

Those thousands of people in the racing, pacing and chasing industries in Western Australia whose employment is derived from these industries know that the government cannot guarantee the disbursements from that industry once the TAB has been sold. Once it has been sold, we will lose control. At the very best, the government will give them a mirage of confidence that they will get disbursements for a couple of years. Once the industry changes, the company will manipulate the proceeds. Ultimately, industry shareholders on the east coast will benefit and our product will suffer.

I was amazed that the member for Jandakot spoke. What an extraordinary contribution for him to lecture the likes of the member for Murray–Wellington and the member for Collie–Preston on racing—extraordinary. He was suggesting that somehow the TAB was on the back foot. The WA TAB is part of the new industry. It is leading the race. It is leading the surge towards taking on the new digital age. It is winning and that is why it is an attractive asset and why companies on the east coast want to buy it—first, because it is a prime competitor and, second, because it is a really good asset. Those companies will strip that asset from which revenue streams the taxpayers of Western Australia, industry in Western Australia and thousands of people benefit. One of those is the Lark Hill Apprentice Jockey of the Year, which I sponsor every year. This year I presented the award to Ashley Carmichael, a young woman at Lark Hill. Last year it was Chloe Azzopardi. Young people like that see the racing industry as their future, as a potential employment opportunity and the trainers who support them —

Mr J.E. McGrath: They will be looked after.

Mr P. PAPALIA: Does the member for South Perth know what? They do not want the TAB sold. As I was presenting young Ashley with a voucher worth $300 to buy saddles and other equipment, I talked to Bob McPherson, David and Jenny Harrison and Greg Holme at Lark Hill. I guess he will have to confront the Premier himself when he gets the opportunity. None of them want the TAB to be sold. By the way, member for South Perth, if the government were to sell Belmont Racecourse, it would not have to sell the TAB to do up Lark Hill and provide all the other facilities required at Lark Hill for it to be the second track. It is already a magnificent track; it just needs a few more facilities. It should absolutely have community stables. Sell Belmont Racecourse and do it that way. Tell Perth Racing to do that; do not tell it to support this spurious, ridiculous argument to sell a fine asset in the TAB. The member for South Perth knows that he has sold out on this one. All the Nationals have sold out on it. They will suffer in their communities because the 55 clubs around the state outside Perth Racing will not tolerate it. I commend the members for Belmont and Murray–Wellington for having the courage to stand up. A lot of other members on the Liberal Party back bench also want to do it. They are a bit skittish at the moment, but I reckon they might get some backbone when their constituents confront them. A lot of constituents out there are deadset against the sale of the TAB and they do not trust the man over there. They do not trust the “emperor” dictating to them, suggesting they will get a —

Mr P.T. Miles interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for Wanneroo, I call you to order for the first time.

Mr P. PAPALIA: The Barnett government has lost all credibility across a range of areas and activities, but he has no credibility with this one.

The SPEAKER: Now we have to deal with a list of amendments. The first one, moved by the member for South Perth, is that the words after “house” in the original motion be deleted.

Division

Amendment (words to be deleted) put and a division called for.

Bells rung and the house divided.

Point of Order

Mrs M.H. ROBERTS: I understand that the bells had stopped ringing and people are not entitled to change sides.

The SPEAKER: You cannot change sides after the tellers are appointed. So that is it. The bells are still ringing.

Mr B.J. Grylls: Just make it clear what we are voting for.

The SPEAKER: We are going to. Member for Midland, the tellers have not been appointed. People can move sides until the tellers are appointed.

Mrs M.H. ROBERTS: Can I inquire, Mr Speaker, whether it is in order for the Liberal Party Whip to use undue pressure to get people to change sides.

The SPEAKER: The question is that the words to be deleted be deleted.

Amendment (deletion of words) thus passed.

Motion, as Amended

The SPEAKER: We will move on to the next amendment about which I want everyone to be clear in their minds. It is the amendment moved by the member for South Perth. Then there was a further amendment moved by the Leader of the National Party, which deletes all words after the word “government”. Do members want me to read it out so it is clear? We are dealing with the member for South Perth’s insertion of words, but there is an amendment to those words by the Leader of the National Party. This is what the member for South Perth moved to insert —

notes that the state government has listed the WA TAB on the asset sales list and as part of the asset sales process, the state government will consider all impacts on racing in Western Australia to ensure the racing industry’s ongoing sustainability and that the racing industry across the state benefits from any sale.

The Leader of the National Party has moved an amendment deleting all words after “notes that the state government”, so we have to agree whether you want to get rid of this amendment moved by the member for South Perth by deleting all the words after “notes that the state government”.

The question is that all words after the words after “state —

Point of Order

Dr K.D. HAMES: I am still confused, because I think we have to insert the member for South Perth’s words first to get to the word “government” and after we have “government”, we delete the rest of the amendment and support the Leader of the National Party’s amendment. If that is wrong, I need an explanation.

The SPEAKER: That is wrong, because if we do that and it is carried, the amendment is carried. We are trying to get words that are acceptable as an amendment. Is everybody clear?

Mr D.T. REDMAN: I just want to get clarity that if we support the amendment being put to the house now, are we able to get to the amendment that the National Party moved?

The SPEAKER: Yes, this is the amendment.

Mr F.M. Logan: Follow the bouncing ball!

Mr D.T. REDMAN: Further to that, I thought there was then another amendment that came from the member for Warnbro.

The SPEAKER: There is, but that is dealt with after your amendment is dealt with, depending on whether it is successful. The question is that the words after “that the state government” in the amendment moved by the member for South Perth be deleted.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: Mr Speaker —

Mr V.A. Catania: Follow the ball!

Speaker; Mr Mark McGowan; Mr John McGrath; Mr Mick Murray; Mr Terry Redman; Mr Joe Francis; Dr Graham Jacobs; Mr Murray Cowper; Mr Paul Papalia; Mrs Michelle Roberts; Dr Kim Hames; Mr Bill Johnston; Mr Brendon Grylls; Ms Janine Freeman

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: That is exactly what I am trying to do. The member for South Perth has proposed certain words. The Leader of the National Party has moved that those words be amended, the member for Eyre has moved that those words be amended and the member for Warnbro has moved that those words be amended. How can they be dealt with in the order being proposed? Surely, we would deal with the member for Warnbro's amendment first, because he moved an amendment to the amendment moved by the Leader of the National Party. Once that resolution is dealt with, we would deal with the member for Eyre's amendment, because he is also dealing with the Leader of the National Party's amendment, and then we would deal with Leader of the National Party's amendment, which amends the words moved by the member for South Perth, and only then would we be in a position to deal with the member for South Perth's amendment.

Several members interjected.

The SPEAKER: Members!

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: Otherwise, we would be agreeing to words that we might not agree to. We might choose to vote for words that we might not otherwise agree to. We might choose to vote in favour of an amendment to a set of words.

Ms R. Saffioti interjected.

The SPEAKER: Member for West Swan, I am trying to listen to a point of order.

Mr W.J. JOHNSTON: We might want to support an amendment moved, say, by the member for Eyre, and then, if we are defeated, not support the Leader of the National Party's amendment. We have to go backwards; otherwise, we do not get an opportunity to vote for the words we support. These are amendments to the amendments, not amendments to the original position put by the member for South Perth.

The SPEAKER: Before any words are inserted, we must create the blank in which to insert the words. If members want to vote against the amendment of the member for South Perth, you create the blank, and then we fill those words with the amendment from the Leader of the National Party. That is how it works.

Mr B.J. GRYLLES: I seek clarification here. If the house defeats the amendment moved by the member for South Perth, do we then have the opportunity to go on to the subsequent amendments?

The SPEAKER: Yes, the one from the Leader of the National Party.

Mr B.J. GRYLLES: If the house defeats the amendment of the member for South Perth, can we move on to subsequent amendments?

The SPEAKER: You move to the next amendment. You move to the subsequent amendment moved by the Leader of the National Party.

Ms J.M. FREEMAN: It interests me that what the member for Cannington was saying holds true, because if we cannot vote firstly for what the member for Warnbro did in terms of that amendment, we cannot then vote for what the member for Eyre did. I understand that what you are saying, Mr Speaker, is that we need to create the vacuum; we need to remove the words. I understand we need to remove the words, but if that then goes through and the words are removed, we would then have to come in essence back to what the member for Warnbro moved. It may solve the point if the member for South Perth withdrew his amendment.

Motion, as Amended, Resumed

The SPEAKER: We have now moved into private members' time. We can move a suspension of standing orders to complete this process; otherwise, this business is suspended under standing order 61.

Summary

To the Reader,

This Report has been prepared for the Western Australian Racing Representative Group (WARRG) to assist in the deliberations of the WA Racing Industry in relation to the potential privatisation of the Western Australian TAB (WATAB) by the Western Australian Government. The objective of this Report was to explain what privatisation means, to explain how wagering works and how a TAB operates, to describe what a privatisation of WATAB might mean, and to discuss the possible implications for the WA Racing Industry of a potential privatisation of WATAB. It makes no recommendation, and was not asked to, on whether or not the privatisation of the WATAB should occur.

This Report has provided all of these explanations and discussions to the extent possible recognising that this was required to be done outside of Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA) as WATAB sits within RWWA. These matters are covered in detail in Chapters 3-6 of this Report.

The Executive Summary in Chapter 2, together with Chapter 7, provide an overview of those Chapters and suggest some positions and approaches that the WA Racing Industry may wish to adopt in relation to a potential privatisation of WATAB. Major recommendations, proposals, and key propositions have been shaded in the Executive Summary for your clearer reference.

Privatisation of a TAB is a complex matter with many moving parts, I trust this Report helps you understand it better.

The Western Australian Racing Representative Group (WARRG) has been formed to represent the interests of racing industry participants in Western Australia in relation to the potential privatisation of the Western Australian TAB wagering business (WATAB). WARRG commissioned Ray Gunston to assist the Group in relation to this matter with the following Terms of Reference and Scope of Work:

1.1 Aim of Engagement

The aim of this consultancy arrangement is to provide advice on what privatisation of a TAB involves, the issues that it raises for Racing Industry Participants, the financial and other implications for the Participants, and to assist the Participants in their engagement with all relevant stakeholders in this regard.

Ray Gunston will work with and provide direction to the Racing Industry Participants in this exercise, and represent them in engagement with, presentations to, and meetings with all stakeholders, including the Premier and Treasurer of the State who are proposing the privatisation.

A major objective is to ensure Racing Industry Participants are able to make informed and considered responses to any request from the Government for them to put the Industry's position(s) in relation to the privatisation of the TAB.

1.2 Scope of Work

The scope of the work to meet this aim of engagement is as follows:

- Explain the concept of a privatisation of a TAB to Racing Industry Participants, including reference to models applied elsewhere.
- Establish a current base-line position of the Western Australian racing industry for communication to industry participants and the Government, covering areas including:
  - the value chain/constituent parts of the industry
  - the financial flows and position
  - current structures
  - the current industry risk allocation of wagering flows
  - the demographics, social perspective and workforce of the industry
  - the infrastructure and asset base situation and investment requirements
- Outline and assess the potential implications to the Racing Industry Participants of a privatisation of the TAB in terms of :
  - industry finances
  - industry structure
  - industry sustainability
  - scenario analysis of potential impacts
- Discuss the different privatisation structures and their differing implications for the Industry and the Government.

- Discuss the impacts of privatisation on country and provincial racing clubs, participants, and communities.
- Set out the pros and cons of the privatisation of the TAB compared to non-privatisation.
- Discussion of the outlook for the WATAB and the Australian wagering industry generally, and its implications for privatisation.
- Consideration of Racing Industry Participants potential stances on their preferred position in the event of privatisation of the TAB in the context of :
  - financial commitments/position for the industry
    - no worse off perspective – definition?
    - alternative positioning
  - certainty of the level of ongoing racing industry funding
  - risk position of racing industry in relation to wagering flows
  - operational and capital funding perspectives in this regard
  - structure of the racing industry/racing authorities/TAB relationships and financial/product arrangements
- Suggestions on potential strategies the Racing Industry Participants may wish to consider in relation to the potential privatisation of the TAB and the structure of such a transaction, including consideration of matters such as:
  - asset consolidation/rationalisation by the Industry
  - the racing administration structures into the future
  - Racing Industry information generation and presentation to educate all stakeholders on the actual industry economic and financial position.

1.3 Approach

It is currently proposed that the work for this assignment will be primarily conducted in Perth and Melbourne and will include the following activities:

- research and analysis by Ray Gunston as required to undertake the scope of work.
- interviews with relevant West Australian Industry participants, these to include sufficient numbers within each of the following groups to get a materially representative analysis of key issues for each group:
  - Breeders
  - Trainers
  - Jockeys/drivers
  - Owners
- interviews with Racing Industry Participant Committee members and/or other relevant racing code representatives, and meetings with the Committee to ensure full coverage of issues and information and to agree appropriate direction. This includes obtaining whatever information Committee members and other officers of the Codes may have to assist with the assignment.
- meeting (if possible) with the Asset Sales Taskforce and with relevant Ministerial Advisors.
- interviews and/or meetings with relevant Board members and executives of Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA) and major race clubs.

2.1 Introduction

The privatisation or sale of a TAB in Australia is a complex exercise with many moving parts and with a range of stakeholders, primarily the Racing Industry, involved in the process and dependent upon the outcomes. This Report raises a wide range of issues and concerns for the WA Racing Industry in any potential privatisation of the Western Australian TAB (WATAB), including in particular the racing industry funding model to ensure the WA Racing Industry is at the least no worse off. The WA Racing Industry cannot support any privatisation of WATAB which does not appropriately address all of these issues and concerns.

If a privatisation of the WATAB is to occur, it is critical that the Western Australian Government has engaged with, and then agreed with, the Western Australian Racing Industry in relation to key parameters of the potential privatisation prior to commencing the formal privatisation process with experienced wagering operator buyers, including experienced buyers of Government-owned gambling assets. This criticality lies in ensuring that the interests of both the WA Government and WA Racing Industry are protected in such a complex tri-partite situation.

2.2 Privatisation of WATAB

WATAB sits within the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWVA) and hence currently is not a separate, saleable entity. Privatisation is the process of moving a government-owned business or operation into private sector ownership. This can occur in a number of ways but primarily through sale to a private or publicly listed company. If the WA Government is to sell or privatise WATAB it will need to clearly establish and separate out the exact nature of the wagering operations of RWVA it is actually selling.

It is the wagering operations of WATAB that provide the funds that enable RWVA to make a range of payments in the form of distributions, subsidies, grants, the costs of racing operations and integrity, and other payments to fund the WA Racing Industry. So in forming any view of whether privatisation of WATAB is or is not in the interests of the WA Racing Industry, the Industry needs to consider whether having this wagering operation in the hands of an external private operator will put the WA Racing Industry in a better or worse position than it currently is with WATAB being internal to RWVA, in relation to :

- the amount of funding the WA Racing Industry receives annually from the wagering operations of WATAB
- whether the way in which the amount of this funding would be determined annually will not adversely affect the risk profile of those flows for the WA Racing Industry immediately and into the future
- the security of ensuring such funding is legally guaranteed to the WA Racing Industry
- funding availability in addition to this for WA Racing Industry infrastructure maintenance and development.

These can only be conclusively answered in discussions of the details of a potential WATAB privatisation with the WA Government given that “the devil is in the detail”.

So the WA Government, if it is to privatise the WATAB, will need to put in place a wide range of arrangements including the following in whatever forms that they (after engagement with the WA Racing Industry) may determine (some of which currently exist within RWWA):

- A wagering licence and/or wagering operator's licence for a term to be determined that authorises the wagering operator to conduct exclusive retail tote and fixed odds wagering and perhaps other products under certain conditions and requirements, and contains the racing industry funding obligations (no such formal licence currently exists as RWWA's wagering authorities sit within its own Act).
- The WA Racing Industry Funding Model under which WATAB funds the WA Racing Industry so that the Industry is at the least no worse off.
- The legislative framework under which this new model will operate
- The legal structure under which the wagering operator is to operate – whether it is required to enter into a form of joint venture with the WA Racing Industry or stand alone with or without industry funding arrangements
- A Racing Program Agreement under which the wagering operator and the racing industry determine the annual racing program for the State.
- A Wagering Tax
- Racefield Fee flows and arrangements for the wagering operator
- Arrangements for various financial elements including GST, unclaimed dividends, fractions and other subsidies
- Pooling arrangements, if required
- Arrangements with TAB retail outlets
- Arrangements with Racing Clubs for on-course wagering

2.3 The WA Racing Industry's Proposed Privatisation Position

The requirement for the local racing industry to be paid/funded for the production of its racing product has been encapsulated in all privatisations of TABs around Australia, with specific linkage to, and value and industry funding levels provided for, the exclusive nature of the retail wagering licences provided to the TAB. Such a requirement currently is contained in Clause 50 of the RWWA Act. This payment for use of racing product has also been established in Racefield Fee legislation around Australia. Whilst there is the prospect of arguing over actual ownership of WATAB and the WA Government's right to sell it, and also to raise the question of racing program product rights ownership, it is recommended that the WA Racing Industry not seek these actions if the WA Government, in any potential privatisation process, agrees to and accepts a at the least no worse off racing industry funding model to be met by the new WATAB operator, and to appropriately addressing all the other matters raised in this Report. These must be encapsulated in legislation, licence and contract which link the resulting obligation to fund the WA Racing Industry by the WATAB wagering operator to, and as a condition to the granting of, the exclusive retail TAB wagering licence.

As stated above, this commitment to secured no worse off funding and no worse off risk of the WA Racing Industry must be achieved through engagement with the WA Government prior to any privatisation process of WATAB formally commencing.

The engagement with the WA Government by the WA Racing Industry on this basis would need to deal with a number of concerns about potential privatisation of WATAB. These concerns include :

- the implications of privatisation on WATAB's premium punters and hence WA Racing Industry funding
- similar concerns if a new TAB operator was able to move WATAB account customers to other jurisdictions
- will the new wagering operator have the operational flexibility under its licence to drive revenue through product and process improvement free of bureaucratic delays / restrictions
- appropriate wagering tax settings
- the structures post a privatisation need to ensure the WATAB wagering operator is required to act in the best interest of the local WA Racing Industry.

These and a number of other issues raised in this Report are all matters to be worked through with the WA Government by the WA Racing Industry to ensure the Industry is no worse off in funding and risk profile terms in the event of WATAB being privatised.

Without such engagement and appropriate comfort on these issues the WA Racing Industry interests cannot be protected under a privatised model. In this case the WA Racing Industry could not support a privatisation of WATAB.

It is important to address one matter at this point. It is entirely possible to sell/privatise WATAB with essentially all the current financial settings ( ie, no worse off) whilst the potential buyer can meet their obligations to their stakeholders. Whilst this will depend upon reasonable price and structural expectations on behalf of the WA Government and the buyer, the buyer should be able to meet shareholder return and taxation payment requirements from the synergy benefits able to be extracted from the purchase. Whilst again "the devil is in the detail", the WA Racing Industry and WA Government should believe there is an ability to constructively engage to achieve acceptable outcomes from a privatisation if that is the direction the WA Government wishes to pursue.

2.4 WATAB/RWWA Performance and Outlook

Given the importance of the funds generated by WATAB to the funding of the WA Racing Industry, the wagering performance of WATAB, in terms of both wagering turnover and net wagering profitability, is an extremely important element in any assessment of the overall performance and operations of WATAB and RWWA. However, RWWA also has responsibility for the critical role of Principal Racing Authority (PRA) for all three racing Codes in Western Australia ensuring the integrity and quality of the racing product is maintained to sustain the WA Racing Industry and to ensure it drives the wagering activities based on this product.

Over the six year period to 2013 WATAB/RWWA has been the most successful of the larger TABs in the country in relation to turnover growth. It is estimated that this growth figure for WATAB of 39.1% would reduce to somewhere just above 18% if premium customers were excluded from the figures – this is still above the growth rates of TAB's in these other States.

In assessing wagering performance it is important to understand the historical perspective of WATAB and its current situation in the Australian TAB and general wagering landscape. With the challenges of insufficient scale, extended government ownership over longer time periods than other larger and medium sized TAB's, and limited product offers and/or quality of these offerings, leading to less scope to invest in technology advancement, the WATAB previously lagged other TABs.

However, in more recent times WATAB has in essence been catching up in terms of product and technology offers to these other TABs as reflected in its out performance of other Australian TABs in terms of wagering turnover growth. These developments and investments are continuing and suggest that WATAB has the capacity to maintain this out performance for up to five years until the catch up is essentially complete.

This catch up has been made possible through solid management within RWWA of the various factors that have contributed to this performance. Whilst the growth of premium punters turnover has contributed significantly, a number of other improvements in the fixed odds product more recently, ongoing improved retail presentation and product offer, investment in the wagering system and in the digital platform, and improved pooling services and management arrangements have all contributed. Further fixed odds upside, racewalls, and increased self-service terminal rollout will accompany these developments for medium term benefit.

It needs to be recognised that this is occurring within an increasingly competitive wagering environment within Australia, both in terms of increased TAB competition as well as substantial corporate bookmaker growth. WATAB under any ownership structure will be challenged in the future to achieve anything more than the general low turnover/revenue growth outlooks for TABs as retail wagering (particularly pari-mutuel) continues to fall, replaced to varying degrees by generally strong fixed odds growth but at the risk of lower margins.

Accordingly, while the WA Racing Industry has been rightly generally pleased with the funding growth that has flowed from WATAB/RWWA's performance, the "if it ain't broke, don't fix it" argument against privatisation of WATAB needs to be reconsidered in this light. The benefits of, and need for, scale within a larger wagering operation in this wagering industry has clearly been evident in the consolidation of TAB's throughout Australia into the two major Groups – Tabcorp and Tatts.

It must also be noted that these scale issues had led to WATAB/RWWA correctly seeking to pool their pari-mutuel betting with Tabcorp's SuperTAB pool, and outsourced fixed odds pool management to William Hill. However, these pool dependencies are a potential risk longer term, even with existing contracts in place, making considerations such as Racing Industry ownership of WATAB a highly questionable strategy in this instance.

Accordingly, subject to many issues raised in this Report being acceptably resolved, the WA Racing Industry should acknowledge that the privatisation of WATAB is, on balance, likely to occur at some time over the next few years. Even given this situation, the WA Racing Industry should only countenance such a privatisation of WATAB if the racing industry funding model leaves the WA Racing Industry in a at the least no worse off funding position that reflects these past, present and future WATAB wagering performance perspectives. In addition, such countenance should be predicated on governance and licence frameworks that ensure the WA Racing Industry is protected in terms of its risk profile and has a no less favourable standing in the context of a potential privatisation and future wagering licence process outcomes.

It would appear that the focus on this off-course wagering objective growth by WATAB/RWWA has led to a broadly held view, and general agreement, that the racing product integrity, quality and promotion obligations of RWWA's responsibilities have probably received less attention. Reasonable funding growth has generally moderated major criticism in this regard from the WA Racing Industry. Recent actions by and discussions with RWWA indicated acknowledgement and acceptance of the need for greater focus in this regard. Similarly, the focus of WATAB/RWWA on off-course wagering has also resulted in less support to on-course wagering which operates pursuant to the Racing Club on-course licences, contributing along with declining attendances and corporate bookmaker competition to a significant decline in on-course totalisator turnover. This is also receiving more attention from WATAB/RWWA, and is an area of potential growth with or without privatisation.

2.5 The Western Australian Racing Industry

- Funding and Value Chains

This Report, with the help of using some data from the IER Report on the WA Racing Industry two years ago, reflects the size, economics, participation and importance of the WA Racing Industry to Western Australia. This Report then delves into the components parts of the funding of the WA Racing Industry, and the value chains of each racing Code in the Industry, to understand the financial models of the WA Racing Industry and its participants.

The funding of the operations of the WA Racing Industry in producing racing animals and racing product is largely provided in an operational sense by punters and owners. Punters who bet with WATAB/RWWA and/or with other wagering operators on WA racing provide the funding base from which WATAB/RWWA meets its obligation to fund the WA Racing Industry. Owners provide the funding to buy racing animals and meet the costs of training and racing these animals to provide the racing product. Whilst each of these sources fund the production and maintenance of the racing animals broadly equally, WATAB/RWWA also meets many of the costs of the administrative and regulatory oversight and integrity of the racing industry and the racing event. Other WA Racing Industry participants obviously invest time, effort and money to achieve appropriate return from these funding sources to sustain their involvement in the Industry.

With this funding context, the overall perspectives to then take from the value chain analysis of the WA Racing Industry are:

- The distributions, subsidies and other payments made to the participants in the WA Racing Industry by RWWA from its WATAB wagering operations have just been sufficient to support the Industry, but on many indicators there has been some significant Industry contraction in recent times.
- Given that the WA Racing Industry has calibrated to the current funding levels, despite increased costs growing faster than returns in most cases, there is no room in the value chains for any less funding from wagering.
- With the punters and owners being the major funders of the WA Racing Industry, and for owners the investment being largely aspirational and seeking intangible returns, any reduction in the wagering contribution to the WA Racing Industry which reduces stakes prizemoney would quickly also reduce owners' investment (based on an acceptable loss context) leading to a higher leverage downwards to racing industry funding than just the distribution reduction.
- The code value chains illustrate that whilst a small number of participants in the Western Australian Racing Industry generate a reasonable return from racing, most are not. It is an Industry in which a small number of people in each segment tend to take a disproportionate share of returns leaving a number to battle financially within the model. In many cases, particularly with owners and some breeders, it is not racing that has created wealth, it is external wealth, and in fact racing tends to reduce this wealth. Racing may often be called a sport of kings, but in most cases it attracts "external" kings, it does not create them in a wealth sense from Western Australian racing.
- Accordingly, there are many in the WA Racing Industry who know nothing else and generate little return but the passion of the Industry. Many employees would have some difficulty finding alternative employment, and operate around minimum wage rates (if that).
- In many cases Racing Clubs survive through voluntary and honorary roles at Board/Committee and operation levels, with Clubs as a whole only breaking even financially on the back of various subsidies paid by RWWA from its wagering returns. Combined WA Racing Club financial figures reflect that there is no capacity to reduce funding to the WA Racing Industry without significantly damaging the financial position and hence potential sustainability of many of Western Australia's Racing Clubs.
- Given the tight operational financial position of the WA Racing Industry, and the need for property holdings availability to breed and train animals for racing, property assets for those who can obtain them become not only operational assets but represent the only form of retirement/superannuation they hold, the value of which is often tied to the sustainability of the industry.

- With its current settings, the WA Racing Industry is effectively just self-funding on an operational cashflow basis, but infrastructure funding to maintain and improve, and keep safe, existing facilities is an ongoing challenge.

Accordingly, the Western Australian Racing Industry currently is somewhat calibrated in a fragile fashion to the current funding structures in terms of distribution, subsidies, the costs of racing operations, and other payments from WATAB/RWWA, whilst the WA Government nets over $40 million per annum from the Wagering Tax.

Any action that reduced funding to this current balanced but fragile situation would therefore clearly very quickly and directly disrupt this position and lead to significant pull backs across the WA Racing Industry as there are no real buffers to absorb any significant reductions in funding. So any racing industry funding model that did not sustain the current funding levels, nor provide some certainty on future funding, would not only immediately impact the WA Racing Industry but would also quickly reduce investment given the hit to confidence it would represent. Some signs of this are already evident from the current uncertainty in the WA Racing Industry from asset infrastructure and TAB privatisation discussions.

2.6 Privatisation Issues and Positions for the WA Racing Industry

There are a number of issues that the WA Racing Industry needs to take a position on and engage on with the WA Government at the appropriate time in relation to a potential privatisation of WATAB, but many of them can only be determined when the process of potential privatisation is clearer – “the devil is in the detail”. Clearly the principles of “No Worse Off” can be broadly espoused now, and some specific privatisation positions can be established

2.6.1 No Worse Off

2.6.1.1 No Worse Off Funding

The fragile calibrated financial model of the WA Racing Industry as explained in this Report necessitates a “no worse off” funding position as being the current level of distributions, subsidies, incentive/bonus schemes, the racing administration and integrity costs of RWWA, and other payments made by RWWA to Racing Clubs and Industry participants. Going forward, given the comments on the WATAB/RWWA expected medium term wagering performance, no worse off would be reflected in mandated minimum total payment levels to the WA Racing Industry from the WATAB wagering operator over the next five years reflecting the estimated expected WA wagering industry performance in wagering turnover growth from WATAB in a no privatisation scenario. It would be anticipated that this performance could at least be based on an expectation of continuing recent growth rates which have been around 3.5% growth per annum. This will need to be formally assessed through detailed forecasting by RWWA. Of course, this would provide a minimum mandated level of future payments, with better wagering growth performance by a privatised WATAB providing higher payments to the WA Racing Industry. After that time the WA Racing Industry would be exposed to wagering industry performance generally, but should look to a process to review the ongoing WA Racing Industry funding model at that point so that it is based off conditions and performance at that time.

2.6.1.2 No Worse Off Risk

In the context of risk, a funding model such as that proposed above would be a major risk mitigant that would put the WA Racing Industry closer to a no worse off risk profile. The other considerations here are :

- potentially the joint venture model structure for the WATAB and the WA Racing Industry to partially replicate the current RWWA model
- leaving the new “Racing Western Australia” racing / PRA entity with the existing cash reserves of RWWA held to smooth fluctuations in future WA Racing Industry funding that might result from variances in wagering performance.
- provisions within legislation, the licence and/or contractual agreements that require the wagering operator of WATAB to act in the best interests of the WA Racing Industry, and if it does not then the potential for changed terms.

These would need to be discussed with the WA Government in any potential privatisation process.

2.6.2 Other Privatisation Issues

Some commentary on specific areas that are relevant for the WA Racing Industry to consider if WATAB was to be privatised are:

- (i) The Wagering Licence – that it is an exclusive retail totalisator licence for pari-mutuel and fixed odds betting, with an obligation to meet WA Racing Industry funding. If it is to be a long term licence the WA Racing Industry should look for the licence to include shorter term review points to test the appropriateness of the racing industry funding model and operation of the licence – either through shorter exclusivity terms or similar trigger points. The WA Racing Industry would prefer to see a flexible and timely approval process for products and channels within the licence to obtain a wide product range that drives revenue for the wagering operator.
- (ii) The Legislative Framework – the major focuses here for the WA Racing Industry are:
  - That the legislation and licence requires the wagering operator to enter into a contractual funding model with the WA Racing Industry
  - That the legislation incorporates a no worse off (or no less favourable) requirement on any licences into the future (including this one) for the WA Racing Industry if privatisation occurs
  - That the legislative framework is not too restrictive on the operations of the new wagering operator to ensure that returns are not inhibited
- (iii) Structure – it is too early at this stage to suggest a preferred WA Racing Industry position other than to state that a model under which the Government and not the wagering operator funds the industry must be avoided. Racing Industry ownership of the WATAB is not recommended.

- (iv) Racing Industry Funding Model – other than the requirement for the WA Racing Industry to be “no worse off” in relation to funding, the matter of the appropriate model cannot be determined at this stage. Total reliance of a profit share model is however not recommended. Many other aspects of the potential privatisation need to be understood before a view on the desired racing industry funding model can be formed.
- (v) Racing Program Agreement – other aspects such as structure will heavily influence how the Racing Program Agreement process is to work, but it requires an integrated Tri-Code grouping for the WA Racing Industry (which Racing Western Australia – RWWA without wagering – could bring given its existing in-house capabilities).
- (vi) Wagering Tax – this is a WA Government issue other than it reduces the amount of funding available to the WA Racing Industry, but it is important for the new wagering operator and the WA Racing Industry to get certainty around this matter longer term to lock away the appropriate racing industry funding model into the future.
- (vii) Racefield Fees – a “no worse off” position in relation to racefield fees at present is unclear but would probably involve the wagering operator offsetting payments against the WA Racing Industry funding and Racefield Fee income flowing to the WA Racing Industry. It is recommended that this offset mechanism for the new wagering operator under a potential privatisation be limited to no more than the amount of incoming Racefield Fees received by the WA Racing Industry each year.
- (viii) Other Financial Arrangements – matters such as GST reimbursements, Fractions and Premium Player Rebates will sit with the WA Government and a new wagering operator to agree if a privatisation was to occur, but outcomes would need to be considered in finalising the Racing Industry Funding model. It would be recommended that unclaimed dividends on racing be paid to the WA Racing Industry after the 7 months as set in legislation at present.
- (ix) On-course Wagering Arrangements – this is an area that has lacked focus by RWWA up until recently, and an area of some potential upside to all under any future models. Accordingly, this is an area, particularly for Racing Clubs, but also the entire industry, that would need to be dealt with appropriately in a potential privatisation, including consideration of the suggested improvements listed in Section 6.2.1.1.1 of this Report.

2.7 Other Considerations for the WA Racing Industry

2.7.1 WA Racing Industry Governance in a Privatised Model

A refocused RWWA without wagering (Racing Western Australia) could effectively continue to operate the PRA functions as currently. The Tri-Code representative body structure appears to have worked reasonable well. This should also help the WA Racing Industry meet its many challenges by giving it the opportunity to act as a Sport rather than Codes.

2.7.2. WA Racing Industry Asset Infrastructure

Efficiency / Rationalisation

With little or no capacity to fund infrastructure maintenance and development requirements across the WA Racing Industry from its operational cashflow break-even situation, it is critical that the entire WA Racing Industry be prepared to address the issues of improved efficiency and rationalisation of infrastructure to sustain the WA Racing Industry in an integrated fashion.

The WA Racing Industry must pursue funding alternatives for infrastructure in any potential privatisation process (or even if it does not occur), but to have any success in this it needs to commit to pursuing such efficiency / rationalisation processes.

2.7.3 WA Racing Industry Engagement with the WA Government

Over Potential Privatisation of WATAB

The objective for the WA Racing Industry if the privatisation of the WATAB does proceed is to be able to engage with the WA Government early in its process deliberations to work with and agree with the Government the acceptable positions on the many issues of a privatisation that have been outlined in this Report. It is recommended that the WA Racing Industry seek such engagement and interaction with the WA Government prior to any formal discussions or processes commencing with potential bidders and/or a formal sale commences.

To ensure that the WA Racing Industry's, and the WA Government's, best interests are met in the privatisation process, it is critical that the Government is very clear on the objectives to be achieved in the privatisation/sale for the WA Government and the WA Racing Industry, and on funding models, structures, key licencing parameters and legislative and contractual frameworks to present to potential bidders. Where relevant, these will have been agreed with the WA Racing Industry and formally documented as the basis for seeking proposal bids from potential bidders in such a potential privatisation.

In this context, the Western Australian Racing Representative Group will need to obtain a mandate from the WA Racing Industry to undertake such discussions with the WA Government, and seek a commitment from the WA Government for such engagement at the front end of a potential privatisation process. Such engagement must come with a requirement for obtaining agreement between the WA Government and WA Racing Industry on the relevant industry issues identified in this Report for a potential WATAB privatisation.

This early engagement and agreement on positions for a WATAB privatisation between the WA Government and the WA Racing Industry is considered to be the best risk mitigation strategy for the “sellers” when dealing with experienced wagering operators, and some who have also been involved in previous privatisation processes.

It is particularly important for the WA Racing Industry to have a clear and documented commitment with the WA Government on the privatisation framework. Such a process occurred within the 2012 wagering licence bid process in Victoria, based on the no less favourable (ie, no worse off) requirements within the legislative licencing provisions surrounding the new licence.

This chapter explains the background and operations of the Western Australian TAB, (WATAB), and then briefly explains what privatisation is, outlines relevant Australian examples of privatisation and how they occurred, and sets up the basis for determining the potential implications for WA Racing Industry participants of a privatisation of WATAB.

3.1 The West Australian TAB (WATAB)

3.1.1 History

The Western Australian Totalisator Agency Board (WATAB) commenced operations in 1961 as a public authority under the Totalisator Agency Board Betting Act 1960 to replace the approximately 206 licenced off-course betting shops, legal in Western Australia since 1958. The initial TAB was established through assistance in funding from the thoroughbred and harness racing codes. Betting was expanded to include greyhound racing with the introduction of such racing to Western Australia in 1974.

The WATAB continued to expand its bet types, including the introduction of fixed odds sports betting in 2000, and hence to grow its wagering turnover. In 2001 the Government received a report called Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry – A Report to the Minister for Racing and Gaming, October 2001 – a study commissioned by the Minister to be conducted by the Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, at the end chaired by Mr. R. H. C. Turner, to examine the entire racing industry (the Turner Report). An outcome of the Turner Report was the introduction of Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA) in August 2003, and the transfer of WATAB's wagering responsibilities to RWWA in January 2004 (at which time the Totalisation Agency Board ceased to exist of a legal entity).

RWVA currently operates the wagering activities under the TAB and TABtouch brands as the primary and online brands respectively, through its Marketing and Retail Divisions with support provided by the corporate support divisions of RWVA. Racing Operations and Racing Integrity are also responsibilities of RWVA and are performed through the Racing and Racing Integrity divisions of RWVA. The structure of RWVA is outlined in the following section.

3.1.2. RWVA

RWVA is a body corporate (and not a public authority) and operates under the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (the RWVA Act). RWVA is not a Crown agency, is not subject to Ministerial direction, and is not a public sector body. For appropriate accountability reasons it is subject to the Financial Management Act 2006, reports to Parliament, and is required to submit certain plans and information to the Minister for approval. The RWVA Act established RWVA as the controlling authority for thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing in Western Australia, together with the responsibility for off-course TAB wagering (on-course wagering licences are held directly by the Racing Clubs). This happened in two stages.

EXPLAINING THE WATAB, RWWA AND PRIVATISATION

Effective 1 August 2003, RWWA assumed the principal racing club/controlling authority responsibilities of the Western Australian Turf Club, the Western Australian Trotting Association, and the Western Australian Greyhound Racing Authority. On 30 January 2004, as indicated above, the Totalisator Agency Board Betting Act 1960 was repealed and RWWA assumed responsibility for the conduct of off-course TAB wagering.

The structure through which RWWA undertakes these responsibilities is as shown in Chart 3.1.2 on the next page, with a number of divisions overseeing its various activities:

3.1.3 Ownership of the TAB

In discussions around many of the privatisations of TAB's throughout Australia over the last three decades the question has been often asked as to the actual ownership of the TAB, the potential to argue beneficial ownership by the Racing Industry, and the ability of a Government to "sell" the TAB in a privatisation. As will be discussed later in the sections on privatisation in this Report there are many models as to the form of privatisation and what this can mean in terms of the structure of the privatisation or sale.

Whilst legal opinion could be sought to obtain more precision to this question in the case of WATAB, it would appear that any challenge to the ability of the Government to sell WATAB would be significantly problematic and the likelihood of success highly uncertain. Key matters/assets in the value and operation of a TAB, as are more fully explained in Section 6.2, are the infrastructure, networks and contractual arrangements underpinning the actual wagering operations of the TAB, the licence/authority/permission or similar granted ability from the Government to legally operate a betting agency (particularly an exclusive retail-based TAB operation), and access to the product on which the wagering is conducted - that including the race program, the races, the animals, the numbers, and the vision of the racing event.

Accordingly in any consideration of ownership and/or ability to sell or privatise, it is the ability to transfer these three value drivers to another party for consideration that would appear to largely determine the answer. In this context it would appear that the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 confers all these to RWWA in that the Act confers on RWWA the ability to conduct off-course wagering (in effect the "licensee"), in accordance with this "licence" RWWA is permitted to own terminals and enter commercial agreements to undertake this off-course wagering, and as indicated above is the controlling authority and assumed the principal racing club/controlling authority responsibilities for the three codes, thereby owning and therefore ensuring access to the product on which wagering is conducted.

It would therefore appear that particularly with the last of these factors also sitting with RWWA and not specifically or by default with the WA Racing Industry, there is limited ability for the Industry to argue any rights to ownership of WATAB and/or RWWA. However, as it would appear that perhaps this issue has never been fully tested legally, and given the manner in which the WATAB was established and funded, there is some uncertainty as to the outcome of a challenge to WATAB ownership, however unlikely.

This issue would best not be pursued, given its propensity to be both a long drawn out court case and potentially very expensive for all parties, if the Western Australian Government appropriately engages with the Western Australian Racing Industry early in any potential privatisation of WATAB to agree the parameters that protects the funding and sustainability of the Industry if such a privatisation eventuates.

In a related and probably more positive context, it is however in the same section of the RWWA Act which confers the functions and powers of RWWA in relation to gambling (Part 5 – Specialised functions in relation to gambling), and particularly Clause 50, that the Western Australian racing industry needs to focus its attention. That is Clause 50(c) which requires RWWA as part of its gambling function:

“to develop and implement a scheme for the distribution of net profits and to negotiate funding agreements with individual racing clubs”.

It is under this clause that the current distributions, subsidies and other payments to WA Racing Industry participants and to Racing Clubs are made annually by RWWA.

The key linkage created here, and recognised within this Clause 50, is that of the exclusive nature of the retail off-course wagering licence being linked to the requirement and obligation to fund the WA Racing Industry. That is, the quid pro quo of getting such exclusivity, which is an extremely valuable asset to the wagering operator, given that retail turnover represents over 60% of WATAB/RWWA's total turnover, is to take on this WA Racing Industry funding obligation. In any potential privatisation of WATAB, such exclusivity (which currently sits with WATAB) will therefore need to be linked to WA Racing Industry funding obligations through the legislative and licencing processes, encapsulating a no worse off position for the Industry in this regard.

This exclusivity is what gives value in the privatisation of a TAB in terms of the proceeds of sale and accordingly has been a critical element of all TAB privatisations. The no worse off (or more specifically the no less favourable) provisions for the Industry Funding Model is a feature of the enabling Victorian legislation.

The ability to grant and enforce retail exclusivity clearly sits with the Government within the wagering licence framework and is therefore a fundamental provision of the licencing process within a potential privatisation. As discussed, with such exclusivity and therefore the ability to generate the profitability that such exclusive access gives to the wagering operator, the wagering operator is required to accept the obligation to fund the local racing industry under what is essentially a tripartite arrangement between the Government, the racing industry and the wagering operator.

If a privatisation is to occur, the RWWA Act will need to be amended in a number of areas to deal with the different ownership model and the matters outlined above, and more particularly this Part 5 of the RWWA Act. Therefore, what happens to Section 50(c) in any potential privatisation process is of particular focus for the racing industry. This is discussed in more detail in various parts of this Report, and particularly in Section 5.2.2.1.

3.1.4 The Operations of the WATAB

So to be entirely clear, the WATAB does not actually exist as a separate entity and is part of RWWA. As outlined above it operates through various business divisions of RWWA. Under the RWWA Act, the actual functions in relation to gambling of RWWA are essentially:

- (i) ensuring on-course wagering by bookmakers and racing club totalisators is conducted in accordance with the Betting Control Act 1954.
- (ii) to operate an off-course totalisator wagering service on races and certain sporting and other events
- (iii) to operate on-course totalisator wagering services for racing clubs when requested by the clubs

- (iv) to operate a fixed odds wagering service in relation to races and certain sporting and other events.

These are the TAB-type activities currently performed by RWWA, with the obligation for them to then satisfy section 50(c) as outlined above in relation to distributions to the WA Racing Industry.

The first of these functions outlined above in (i) is a compliance and regulatory oversight function that does not represent an actual gambling activity by RWWA itself and hence does not form a function that would represent a TAB activity, and would not form part of the functions that may be privatised. It is a wagering integrity responsibility that would be expected to stay under WA Government ownership.

3.1.4.1 Pari-mutuel Betting

The activity covered under (ii) and (iii) above as an off-course totalisator wagering service and for on-course tote service provision represents what is called pari-mutuel betting. Pari-mutuel betting is a betting system in which all bets of a particular type on a specific event are placed together in a single pool. A prescribed percentage of that pool is to be paid back to winning bets (the prize pool) with the rest retained by the TAB as a commission to pay taxes, meet its costs, and to pay other requirements such as WA Racing Industry distributions in the case of RWWA. Accordingly, as the pool grows from the bets being placed the amount available to be paid for winning bets grows. The TAB is able then to display the potential dividends (winning bet payouts) that could be paid at that time for the bets placed at that time for each alternative result if the race or event occurred at that moment. This is determined by dividing the prize pool by the amount of bets on each outcome assuming that is the winning outcome. As time progresses until the race or event occurs and further bets are placed these different outcomes and the possible dividends keep moving with the amounts of bets into the pool and with the relative amounts bet on the different outcomes. This continues until bets can no longer be received when the race or event commences, at which time the actual dividends (prize payout) will be determined upon receipt of the results of the race or event. Therefore under this form of betting the punter does not know the prize dividend they will actually receive until after the race or event has finished irrespective of when they placed the bet.

Pari-mutuel betting of this type is only provided by TAB's in Australia, and therefore is either known as TAB or Totalisator or Tote betting in this country. As will be explained in Section 4.3.2 of the Report, a number of corporate bookmakers in Australia do offer products called Best Tote (TAB) Odds – they are essentially re-selling TAB dividends, not running a totalisator pool.

Accordingly in pari-mutuel betting the totalisator receives the set percentage of all bets placed and its return is not affected by the result due the dividend payouts being determined by the final amount of winning bets being divided into the prize pool.

These pari-mutuel approximate dividends leading up to a race, and the final result dividends actually payable after the race, are those that are displayed on screens throughout retail TAB outlets, race tracks and through internet and mobile devices in respect of Tote or TAB odds for WATAB, Victorian (known as SuperTAB or S-TAB), NSW or Tatts, which are the four totalisator pools operating in Australia.

So in the case of WATAB this pari-mutuel betting is conducted for all off-course betting through the various channels of retail, self-service terminals, internet, mobile devices and phone betting by RWWA directly. On-course pari-mutuel or tote betting in Western Australia is currently also coming into the WATAB pool but on behalf of the Racing Clubs who hold the totalisator wagering licence in relation to such betting on their course on race days.

3.1.4.2 Fixed Odds Betting

In contrast to pari-mutuel betting, fixed odds betting is a form of wagering where the punter receives and retains the odds that have been quoted to them at the time when they place the bet. Irrespective of any subsequent change in the odds that may be provided to other punters for the same type of bet the odds provided to the original punter will be what they received at the time of placing their bet. Accordingly, unlike pari-mutuel betting, punters who therefore bet on the same outcome will receive varying odds on which they will receive different prize dividends if their outcome is a successful outcome. In this case the wagering operator (bookmaker) will actively price and adjust the odds in an attempt that they make a profit irrespective of the actual outcome of the race or event (although this may not always be possible). So in this case the fixed odds will vary leading up to the race or event as the wagering operator seeks to “manage” the book, but if a punter has previously placed a bet with the bookmaker the punter’s dividend remains unchanged if the bet is successful.

Accordingly, in this type of betting the wagering operator is not assured of a commission or a profit, with profitable outcomes for the wagering operator dependent upon their skills at managing this risk within the book for the range of probabilities of different outcomes. The wagering operator is therefore putting its own money at risk in this situation, and fixed odd betting for a wagering operator is therefore more risky than totalisator betting for the operator, as the profit margin is not guaranteed and can vary significantly across each outcome. This risk is somewhat mitigated by the wagering operator offering such betting on many types of races and events to diversify their risk across a wide range of different propositions (similar to diversifying stock market equity investment risk through holding a wide portfolio of different company shares).

3.1.4.3 WATAB Betting

In accordance with its enabling legislation, RWWA conducts both of these forms of betting under the TAB and TABtouch brands. The pari-mutuel betting or totalisator betting pricing appears under the WATAB pool pricing on screens and devices. The key management considerations in operating a totalisator pool are:

- the wagering or betting system – ensuring it accurately and efficiently records and processes all bets received and automatically ensures accurate pricing of prize dividends up to and following the race or event.
- the size of the total betting pool and therefore of the prize pool – major considerations flowing from the size of the pools are:

- betting pools need to be large enough to allow the totalisator operator to receive sufficient commission to meet the high fixed costs of providing totalisator betting and to meet taxes and, in WATAB/RWAA's case, the distributions and other funding to the WA Racing Industry.
- the size of the resulting prize pool needs to be large enough to ensure that the prize dividends for punters are:
  - (i) of sufficient magnitude to encourage all punters to continually bet into the pool.
  - (ii) not subject to overly wide fluctuation or potential manipulation by a small number of large punters to the detriment of all other punters.

This perspective obviously needs to be considered across the entire operation, but also needs to be monitored on a per race or event basis to avoid too many such possible instances (although it is largely unavoidable given some races or events will obviously be less interesting to punters).

- to provide these pool sizes it is important to enable punters to be able to bet into the relevant race or event pools easily and for time periods as early as possible prior to the race or event, and through whatever medium they wish, be it retail off course, self-serve terminal, on-course, call centre, internet or various forms of mobile devices.

Whilst an assessment of how successful WATAB has been in achieving these outcomes will be discussed later, its approach to addressing these tote pool size issues has been to enter into a long term pooling agreement with Tabcorp under which the pari-mutuel bets put on with WATAB essentially all get added into the SuperTAB pools operated by Tabcorp in Victoria and successful punters receive the prize dividends that are determined and paid from those racing pools, which in 2013 was around $5.5 billion in total. This enables WATAB to provide its punters with the magnitude and integrity of the dividends that flows from the punters being able to bet into sufficiently large totalisator pools in the vast majority of instances. (Products not pooled include Favourite Numbers, tipping, Footo, some country WA races, and some international races).

For fixed odds betting as explained above, whilst size of pool is an important management consideration for the wagering operator, it is critical that the bookmakers who are setting the prices that are being offered are carefully managing the probability risk of each race or event pool so that any outcome will not cause the wagering operator to in fact lose money and therefore be faced with the need to fund the pool deficit.

As each punter has locked in their odds and potential prize dividend if successful under fixed odds betting, the punters concern is not to the volatility or magnitude of their potential prize dividend as with the Tote, but just ensuring the wagering operator has sufficient funds to pay the prize dividend. Subject to getting the price setting managed right, the spread and overall size of betting in a particular fixed odds pool will generally assist the wagering operator to achieve appropriate outcomes for them and the punters.

The key management factor is however, the ability of the bookmakers of the wagering operator who are managing each book/pool for each race or event to effectively price and risk manage that book/pool to provide fixed odds that attract betting across the field of participants whilst ensuring a profitable outcome for the wagering operator.

In relation to WATAB/RWWA's fixed odds betting offer, RWWA has elected to not attempt to build this bookmaking competency internally but to outsource this to existing fixed odds wagering operators who already have the infrastructure and people to undertake this fixed odds pool management. This has been outsourced over the last few years to various providers. Initially such services were provided by Tabcorp, and then Sportingbet, Centrebet, and now is undertaken by William Hill pursuant to a Management Agreement between RWWA and William Hill.

3.1.4.4 WATAB Betting Channels

There are various channels through which punters can place a bet (either pari-mutuel (Tote) or fixed odds) with WATAB/RWWA. These Channels are listed and explained below:

- Licenced Outlet – Pubs – TAB's located within hotels which can be either full service operator terminals with personnel behind the pub counter providing tickets from the terminals and collecting and paying bets and dividends, or self-serve terminals, or both
- Shop front retail TAB outlets – these full service shops offer the similar betting experience as for betting in a licenced premises (minus the liquor licence) with betting terminals at the counter with personal service behind the counter, and self-service terminals. These shops operate under various models with RWWA ranging from agency arrangements, through assignable licencing, to some being directly operated by RWWA.
- Self-service terminals – these are punter operated betting terminals connected to WATAB/RWWA's wagering system located at TAB outlets and on-course that enable the punter to place his/her own bets and feed cash into the bill acceptor contained in the terminal. Accordingly, the punter does not need to go to the counter to use a terminal operator to place a bet.
- On-course – full service operator provision similar to the retail outlet experience with a number of courses having self-service terminals. In this case the punter's bet is going into the WATAB pool and system, but the bets are effectively being placed under the relevant Racing Club's own on-course totalisator licence as opposed to all of the off-course bets being under RWWA's betting authority.
- Call Centre – subject to opening a betting account with WATAB/RWWA punters are able to call an operator at the WATAB call centre and put a bet on over the telephone by verbally telling the operator the bet the punter wishes to place. In addition, RWWA has Interactive Voice Recognition (IVR) where no operator exists but the bet is taken by an electronic system from the call.
- Internet – again subject to opening an account with WATAB/RWWA punters are able to place a bet via an individually password controlled access to the punter's account through the TABtouch website. This can be done through any internet enabled device.
- Interactive TV – with an account punters are able to place Tote bets through the TABtouch website via interactive TV.

- Mobile Wagering – subject again to having opened an account with WATAB/RWWA punters are able to place bets via their mobile telephone and/or mobile tablet device through TABtouch apps.

3.1.4.5 The Operational Financial Flows of WATAB/RWWA

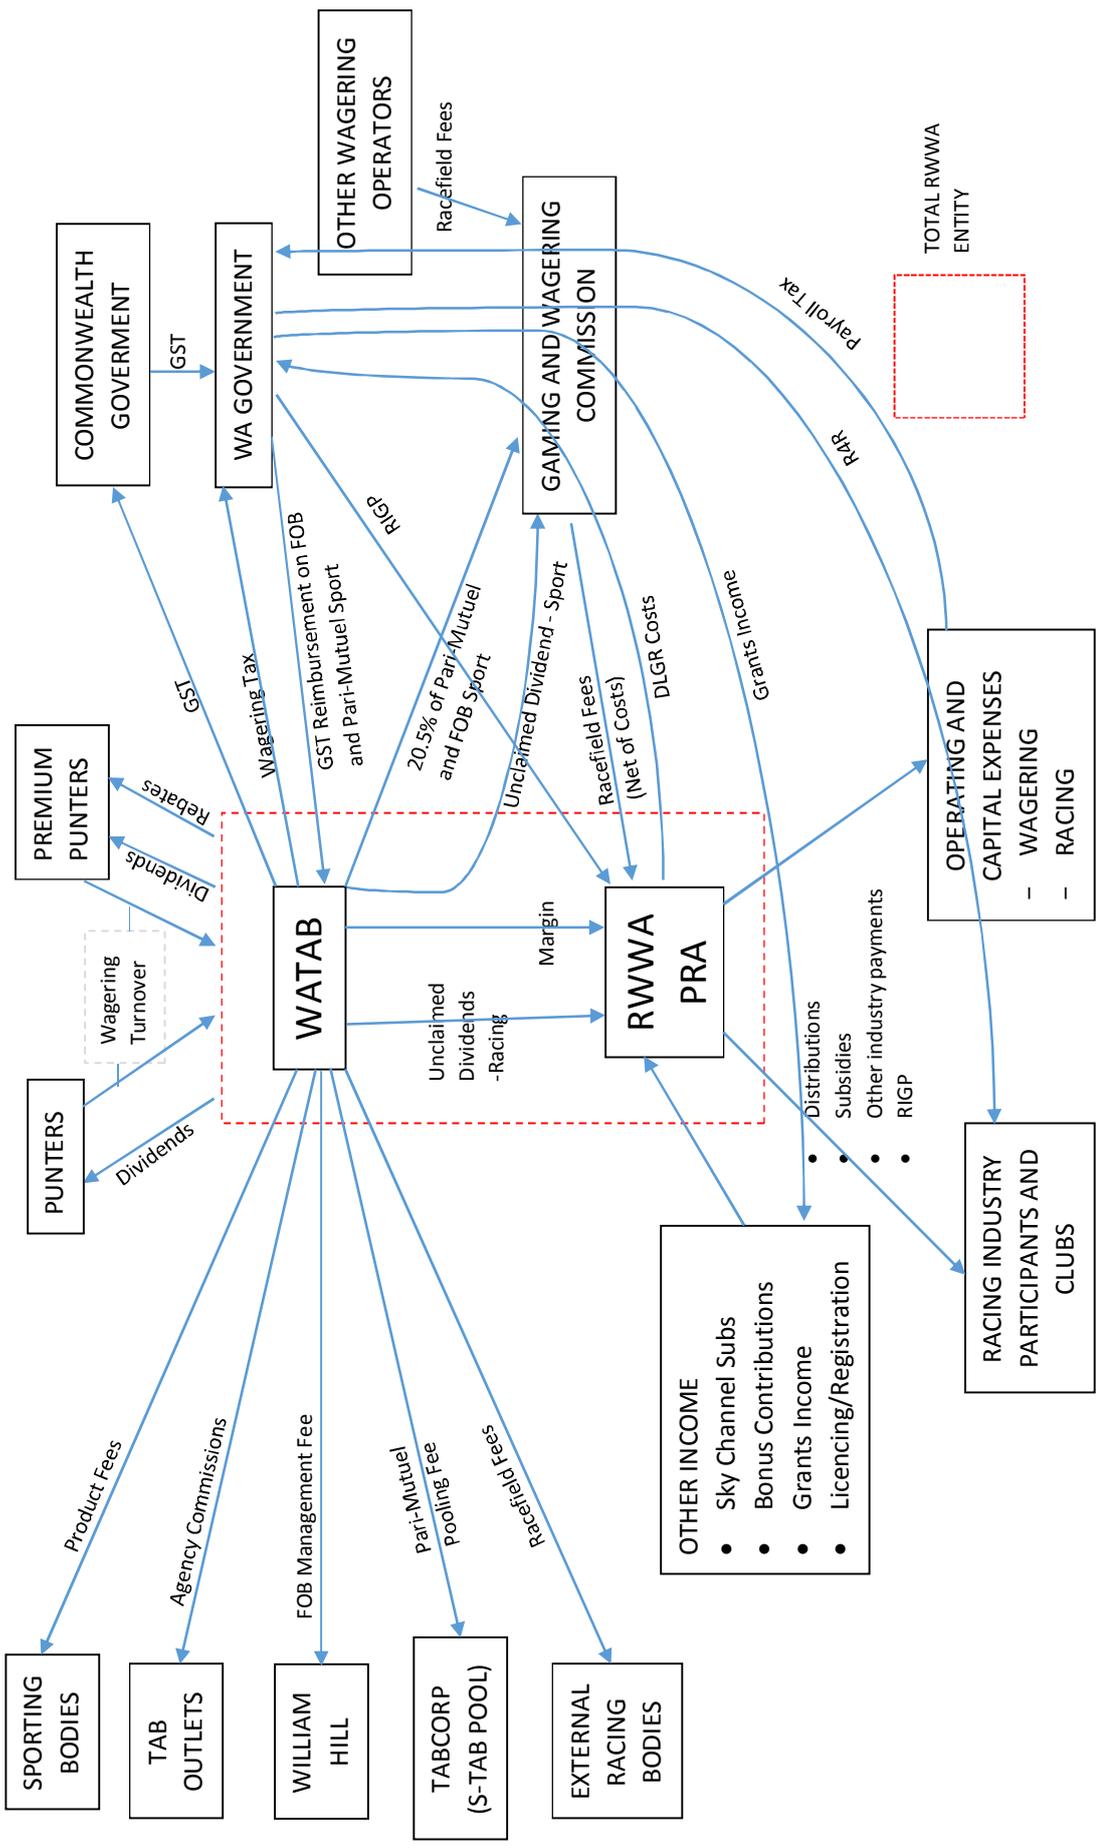

As the WATAB business is embedded within the operations of RWWA there is an intermingling of operational cash flows that would be considered to be related to TAB activities and operational cash flows that would be considered to be related to racing industry integrity, operations and promotions activity in its role at the Principal Racing Authority (PRA).

Chart 3.1.4.5 on the next page contains a diagram that sets out the cash flows of RWWA in respect of both of these activities. These flows are explained in some detail below:

1. Wagering Turnover from punters - the total amount of wagers bet with the WATAB on all types of pari-mutuel and fixed odds betting. For the 2013/14 financial year it is expected that this turnover will exceed $2.2 billion (of which less than 1% is on-course). Pari-mutuel (Totalisator) betting represent approximately 81% of this total turnover (almost exclusively racing), and fixed odds around 19% (of which just over 62% is racing wagering with the rest on sport).
2. Wagering dividends – payments made to punters from the pools formed by their wagers in relation to winning bets. In the pari-mutuel pools, with minor variations for channel types and bet locations the proportion of dividends paid out of turnover bet is around 79.82%. Whilst as explained above the gross margin on fixed odds betting for the wagering operator is not fixed as for pari-mutuel betting, it is believed the WATAB achieves a gross margin of around 14% of turnover on its fixed odds betting.
3. Pooling/Management Fees – as explained above, WATAB doesn't operate its own pools except for a few products outlined in Section 3.1.4.3. In the case of pari-mutuel wagers with WATAB most of these are combined into Tabcorp's SuperTAB pools and pooling fees are paid on a percentage rate of WATAB's pooled wagering turnover. In the case of fixed odds betting the bets are managed by William Hill within its systems as separate WATAB pools, for which a management fee is paid to William Hill based on a percentage of the gross margin generated. These fees together are understood to have totalled over $18 million in 2012/13.
4. Goods and Services Tax (GST) – WATAB/RWWA pays GST to the Commonwealth Government. The GST is paid on WATAB's wagering margin. This amounted to $26.85 million in 2012/13.
5. Commonwealth Government GST Distribution – through the Commonwealth / State financial arrangements GST collected by the Commonwealth Government is distributed to the State Governments.

EXPLAINING THE WATAB, RWWA AND PRIVATISATION

CHART 3.1.4.5 - RWWA FINANCIAL FLOWS

6. GST Reimbursement – the Western Australian Government provides WATAB/RWWA with a reimbursement of GST paid on the fixed odds betting margin and the pari-mutuel sports margin. It is understood this represented around $2.3 million in 2012/13. Wagering tax rates on racing were reduced in 2007 to the extent of the GST applicable and the rebate on this betting was therefore eliminated.
7. Wagering Taxes – the Western Australian Government levies wagering taxes on the WATAB/RWWA as defined under the RWWA Act. The current tax rates are outlined below:
  - a tax on pari-mutuel sports wagering turnover levied at 5 percent of turnover
  - a tax on fixed odds sports wagering at 0.5 percent of turnover
  - a tax on fixed odds racing wagering turnover levied at 2 percent of turnover
  - a tax on off-course racing wagering turnover levied at 11.91 percent of gross margin (a taxation concession rebate applies for premium punters)

In 2012/13 the total wagering tax paid was $40.42 million of which $37.71 million was taxes paid on margin (ie, pari-mutuel racing)

8. Product (Racefields) Fees Expense – WATAB/RWWA pays product fees to interstate and international racing industries so that it can publish interstate and international racefields and take wagers on these interstate and international races. The various product (racefields) fee structures in each Australian jurisdiction are outlined in Section 4.4.1. In 2012/13 it is understood that these international and interstate product fees totalled around $33.3 million (including on-course fees).
9. Product (Racefields) Fees Received – on the same basis, the Western Australian Government has legislated under the Racing Bets Levy Act 2009 and associated Regulations to prescribe a levy to be paid by betting operators betting on WA races and determine and prescribe the amount of the levy. The Western Australian Government receives the levy via the Gaming and Wagering Commission and under the Gaming and Wagering Act has determined at present that these be paid through to RWWA (net of administration costs of the Commission) for distribution to Racing Clubs. The amount believed to have been received by RWWA in this respect in 2012/13 was around $31.1 million.
10. Sports Wagering Account - under the RWWA Act the WATAB/RWWA is required to pay 25% of its margin (after wagering tax) on pari-mutuel and fixed odds sports betting to the Sports Wagering Account held by the Gaming and Wagering Commission (reported by RWWA as Distributions to Sport).
11. Unclaimed Dividends – winning dividends that punters have not collected after 7 months from the date of the race or event are released from the prize pools of RWWA and, in the case of sports bets are paid to the Sports Wagering Account in the Gaming and Wagering Commission (reported by RWWA as Distributions to Sport), and for racing go into RWWA's general funds for distribution. Unclaimed dividends usually represent about 0.4% of total dividends, and in 2012/13 provided RWWA with $8.25 million in racing unclaimed dividends as income.
12. Fractions – dividends may be rounded down to the nearest 5 cents and any proceeds of this flows to RWWA general funds in accordance with Section 60(3) of the RWWA Act. It is understood that this represents around 0.8% of pari-mutuel racing turnover. This is partly offset by adjustments for minimum dividends and the like which would suggest these matters represent around $10-11 million of net funding for RWWA annually.

13. Premium Customer Rebates – turnover volume rebates are provided to large (Premium) punters given the amount of betting business they provide. These are partly funded by wagering tax reductions on this particular turnover.
14. Distributions to Racing Clubs and Sports Organisations – distributions, grants and implicit subsidies are made to the racing industry and to the sports industry by RWWA, essentially all funded out of the operations of the WATAB. RWWA provides distributions in accordance with its current distribution model (which will be discussed further throughout this Report). Total distributions for the 2012/13 and 2013/14 years were $117.67 million and $124.19 million respectively allocated as follows:

|               | 2012/13           | 2013/14                                |
|---------------|-------------------|--|
| Thoroughbreds | $ 69.02 m        | $ 73.61 m                             |
| Harness       | $ 29.77 m        | $ 30.36 m                             |
| Greyhounds    | $ 14.88 m        | $ 15.77 m                             |
| Sports        | $ 4.00 m  | $ 4.45 m (see 10 and 11 above) |
|               | $117.67 m | $124.19 m                      |

RWVA provided Grants and Subsidies in addition to these distributions of $2.19 million and $11.04 million in 2012/13 and 2013/14 respectively. RWVA also provides a number of sponsorships to Clubs ranging from $20,000 to $100,000.

15. Agency Commission – retail TAB outlets operate under various business and financial arrangements with WATAB/RWVA in terms of being a distribution channel for wagering. Commissions are paid to these operations which in 2012/13 generated around $33.4 million in payments made to these outlets.
16. Other Income – in 2012/13 this was around $9.5 million and is understood to comprise a variety of income sources including charges from Sky Channel subscribers (Pubtabs, etc), racing licencing and registration fees, grant monies from the WA Government such as for the R4R and RIGP grants programs, and various recoupments.
17. Product Fees - fees are paid to other sporting bodies including the AFL and Tennis Australia for wagering on their sporting product. These fees amounted to $0.9million in 2012/13.
18. Costs of operation – RWVA incurs operating and overhead costs for conducting its wagering business, in its role of providing governance to the wagering and racing industries, and in the various other functions that flow from its role of the Principal Racing Authority in Western Australia, including payroll tax paid to the WA Government of around $2 million per annum. As these roles use a variety of support services as well as have dedicated staffs and divisions, it is difficult to precisely split up the total operating cost of an estimated $128 million in 2012/13 between these roles. It has been roughly estimated that the costs of the wagering business (with some allocated cost) is in the vicinity of $100 million.

It should be noted that of these RWVA operating costs there is over $800,000 per annum paid to the Gaming and Wagering Commission and the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor to defray their costs.

3.1.4.6 The Capital Financial Flows of WATAB/RWWA

Outside the specific capital expenditure on the wagering system and any retail network related expenditure, the WATAB operation has little call on capital expenditure requirements.

Capital funding has in the past been sought for industry infrastructure funding requirements from the Western Australian Government through business cases put to the relevant Government Departments by RWWA. At present (until 2015) the Western Australian Government is providing funding through RWWA under the Racecourse Infrastructure Grants Program for Race Club investments in infrastructure, and also providing matching funding for some of the regional investments through the Royalties for Regions program.

RWWA provides no other specific capital funding, focusing on its annual distributions from its operations to the Racing Clubs and Industry Participants. Some limited investment in training facilities and the like are made occasionally.

3.1.4.7 The Current Financial Situation of WATAB/RWWA

As outlined above, without having the ability to fully review and analyse the detailed accounts of RWWA, it is not possible to completely separate out the WATAB's results from the overall RWWA results. However, in overall terms, when looking at the annual operating flows of RWWA, essentially RWWA generated most of its income from the TAB operation, supplemented by the Product Fees received via the WA Government and the GST Reimbursement by the WA Government on Fixed Odds Betting and Pari-mutuel sport. After paying Wagering Taxes to the WA Government, costs of TAB sales including pooling/fixed odds management fees, product fees and rebates, and operating costs for the TAB and Racing Services, the balance is available for Distributions and other funding of the WA Racing Industry. RWWA distributes most of this annually, with some profit retained to provide cash balances as a reserve buffer should the TAB operations in a particular year not generate sufficient profit to allow racing industry funding to be the same as or increase on the previous year. (Cash is also retained for future wagering and racing capital expenditure requirements).

The 2012/13 financial performance of RWWA has been restated in a different format below from the Statement of Comprehensive Income in its Annual Report to attempt to better show its inflows and outflows.

| Item                                      | $M          | $M     | $M |

| Grants and Subsidies            |               | 2.199          |                |
| Distributions                   |               |                |                |
| • Racing                        | 113.662       |                |                |
| • Sport                         | 4.003  | 117.665 | 360.703 |
| Net Profit after Distributions  |               |                | 9.302   |

Ultimately the level of net profit will be determined by the distributions paid in the year. The 2009/10 year saw the combination of the Global Financial Crisis, the onset of the equine influenza impact on racing in the Eastern States, and Tabcorp pooling charge increases all work to result in a reduction in distributions by RWWA because of diminished profitability. This immediately led to reduced levels of racing stakes prizemoney, particularly in thoroughbred racing, reflecting the fragile nature generally of the funding models of animal racing. The WA Racing Industry is finely balanced and leveraged to the wagering based income distributions and other funding flowing from the wagering placed on its product. This will be discussed in detail in Chapter 5 of this Report.

RWWA has accordingly adopted a very constructive and prudent risk management approach to this situation of building up cash reserves to provide a cash buffer capability to smooth out any potential volatility in its profitability from wagering performance or general industry changes. RWWA's 2013 Annual Report reflected a cash and cash equivalent balance of $67.7 million, with a net working capital position of $32.2 million, which suggests a cash reserve buffer of around possibly $40 million for these purposes.

The $5 million of special distributions to Racing Clubs provided at the end of the 2013/14 financial year indicates an enhanced profit performance by RWWA for the year, and it is understood that further money was able to be put aside for these cash reserves balances.

Overall RWWA reflects a very solid financial position with good annual performance, cash reserves, it owns its property and computer system assets, and is debt free. The questions to be examined later in this Report revolve around the sustainability of RWWA's wagering profitability, what position the racing industry of Western Australia is in flowing from these distributions at present, and coming out of these is the issue of the sustainability of the Western Australian racing industry.

3.2 Privatisation

3.2.1 What is Privatisation?

Privatisation is the process of transferring ownership of a business, enterprise, public service or public property from the public sector (a government) to the private sector, either to a business that operates for a profit or to a not-for-profit organisation. It may also mean government outsourcing of services or functions to private firms.

The Western Australian Government has not yet reached the stage of defining exactly what it is seeking to privatise when it refers to the potential sale of the WATAB. However, it would seem reasonable to assume that it is referring to looking to transfer RWVA's wagering responsibilities to a non-government owned entity. A number of RWVA's functions that involve integrity, compliance and administrative oversight of racing and of wagering activities generally would logically not be activities that would be traditionally or logically privatised. Accordingly, throughout this report it will be assumed that it is just the wagering activities of RWVA undertaken under the TAB and TABtouch brands that are being considered for privatisation, which will be called WATAB. In effect this means that these activities would be separated out from RWVA for the purposes of sale.

The remaining activities and functions of RWVA will obviously still need to be performed (potentially by Racing Western Australia (RWA)-RWVA without the first W for wagering), which will be discussed in more detail later in the Report.

3.2.2 Forms of Privatisation

The actual transfer of ownership of a business or an activity from a government owned entity to a private operator (privatisation) can in fact occur in many different forms, with very many aspects within each of these forms that can significantly impact the attractiveness, value, and impacts on stakeholders of such a privatisation. In general terms privatisations can occur by:

1. Share Issue Privatisation – under this method the Government forms a company into which it transfers the wagering operations and then floats the company on the stock exchange by selling shares in the Company to private investors. The Victorian (1994), New South Wales (1997) and Queensland (1999) TAB's were privatised in this way.
2. Asset Sale Privatisation – selling an entire organisation (or part of it) to a strategic private investor, usually by an auction process or through direct negotiation with a natural buyer. Privatisations of this type have occurred with the TAB's of Northern Territory, South Australia, Tasmania and most recently the Australian Capital Territory, as well as most lottery operations around Australia.

Such a sale can be achieved through selling the shares of a company that the Government has put the wagering operations in, or it can simply be selling the actual wagering operations assets without the whole company being sold. Whilst these two alternatives effectively end up with a similar operational outcome, they can be very different in legal terms for the buyer.

The potential privatisation of WATAB will be discussed in detail in Chapter 6 of this Report. However, the key element in a TAB privatisation is the licence to operate the TAB's wagering business. If a TAB wagering business is sold without a licence, but a new licence is issued once the business operations have been purchased, it is possible that the ACCC's jurisdiction in the matter is quite different than if the business is sold with an existing licence.

3.2.3 Privatisation of WATAB

Given what has been discussed above, the Report now will consider what may be involved in a privatisation of WATAB, and how it might occur.

Firstly, given a number of factors, particularly that WATAB does not have its own betting pools and hence relies on others for pooling and/or betting management, and the increasingly competitive and somewhat cluttered wagering operator space in Australia, it is unlikely that the Government would consider trying to sell the WATAB through selling shares on the stock exchange. All three TAB's privatised in this manner had their own betting pools of significant size, in a time of no corporate bookmakers and supporting interstate betting arrangements that provided the basis for such an approach. This is not the case today nor for WATAB's operations.

These factors do also significantly impact upon an asset sale to a strategic investor, but are matters that can be managed by a buyer who has existing, broader and complementary interests that enable the buyer to deal with the risks differently than an existing stand-alone WATAB floated on the stock exchange would present.

If an asset sale privatisation was to be undertaken of the WATAB how might it therefore proceed. The first step would be to separate the WATAB operations from the rest of RWWA, identifying the specific assets, people and operations that apply to the running of the WATAB. The assets and operations that would be transferred, sold or newly instituted in any potential privatisation would likely include:

- The wagering IT system, including the central wagering software and equipment and terminals, including self-service terminals
- The website and mobile application software that underpins the electronic / on-line betting of WATAB
- The pooling agreement with Tabcorp
- The fixed odds management agreement with William Hill
- The licencing and agency agreements with all the retail TAB outlets
- All the account customer details
- Any specific intellectual property in wagering products, systems and branding/marketing
- Employment contracts with all relevant staff
- Potentially the head office property (although what remains of RWWA may retain this property)
- Premium customer relationship arrangements
- The authority that currently exists under the RWWA Act to be the exclusive provider of retail wagering betting in Western Australia
- Arrangements with Western Australia racing clubs and authorities to provide on-course wagering services
- The various government funding and reimbursement arrangements in place under the various pieces of legislation and regulation within which WATAB operate.

The additional fundamental questions that will significantly impact the attractiveness and therefore the value of the WATAB business will be whether the wagering tax regime and the Distributions and all other funding to the WA Racing Industry currently faced by RWWA as part of its wagering functions remain in place at the current levels or at all. In addition, whether all the items outlined above as assets are to be part of the sale, and what value a prospective buyer may place on each of them, will also affect the attractiveness and value of the business being privatised/sold. These are all discussed in Chapter 6.

3.2.4 Structures of Australian TAB Privatisations

Whilst this Report will deal specifically with racing industry funding models in Chapter 6, this section sets out the actual structures involving the 3 key parties to TAB privatisations – the Government, the privatised TAB and the Racing Industry – that have evolved from each States' TAB privatisations.

New South Wales:

- On privatisation in 1998, TAB Limited, now Tabcorp, received a 99 year wagering licence with 15 years of retail exclusivity, and the NSW Racing Industry and TAB Limited entered into a 99 year contract, known as the Racing Distribution Agreement (RDA).
- The RDA governs the number of race meetings, fees due to the racing industry, and governance arrangements.
- TAB Limited pays distributions to the Racing Industry as follows:
  - 21.64% of net revenue
  - 25% of net profit
  - An annual lump sum of $12 million (CPI indexed)
- Given the net profit component within this agreement, the arrangement operates as a form of partnership.
- Licence for retail wagering exclusivity extended to 2033 in 2013 for payment of $75 million.

South Australia:

- TAB Queensland, now Tatts Group Ltd, acquired the SATAB in 2001 with an exclusive licence to 2100, with all bets through SATAB going into the Tatts wagering pool.
- SATAB is therefore a branch office serving its retail distribution channel.
- The SA Racing Industry receives funding from SATAB of 42% of gross wagering revenue and the SATAB paid 6% of gross wagering revenue in wagering tax to the South Australian Government.
- The wagering tax on racing was removed in 2012 to provide improved racing industry funding, having been phased down from 2009.

Victoria:

- Upon listing the Victorian TAB under the name of Tabcorp, Tabcorp obtained a wagering licence and an electronic gaming machine licence running to 2012 and was required as a condition of the licence to enter into a 75%/25% joint venture arrangement with the Racing Industry.
- A new licence commenced in August 2012 for 12 years with the following financial agreement :

| VICTORIAN WAGERING AND BETTING LICENCEAND TABCORP WAGERING'S ARRANGEMENTS WITH THEVICTORIAN RACING INDUSTRY (FROM AUGUST 2012) |   |
|---|---|
| Joint Venture (JV) profit share   | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• 50% Tabcorp</li> <li>• 50% Victorian racing industry</li> </ul>  |

| Minimum performance obligation  | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Minimum aggregate amounts to be received by the Victorian racing industry, with Tabcorp Wagering to pay any shortfall <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ $337 million in FY2013;</li> <li>○ $342 million in FY2014;</li> <li>○ A total of $1 billion (including the amounts set out above) in respect of the period from licence commencement to the end of FY2015</li> </ul> </li> <li>• These minimum aggregate amounts are subject to certain exceptions, (including in relation to retail exclusivity)</li> </ul> |

Queensland:

- When the Queensland TAB privatised via a float on the Australian Stock Exchange under the name TAB Queensland (now Tatts Group), Racing Queensland Limited (RQL) entered into a Product and Program Agreement with Tatts under which RQL provides Tatts with access to both Queensland and national racing programs in return for a fee of 39% of race wagering revenue.
- Tatts has a race wagering licence until 2098 with retail exclusivity up to 2014.
- Tatts and the Queensland Government recently renegotiated the licence terms as follows:
  - Race and sport wagering licences both run to 2098, with retail exclusivity to 2044.
  - Wagering tax on pari-mutuel reduced from 20% to 14% of margin, and fixed odds from 20% to 10% of gross margin
Variable product fee of 39% of gross wagering revenue with ability to offset national and international racefield fees against the variable product fee (but with certain shortfall provisions if offset exceeds RQL's racefield receipts), plus $15 million fixed product fee (CPI indexed), and 2.5% of retail fixed odds sports revenue capped at $5 million per annum (indexed).
  - Licence fee of $150 million paid in instalments to the Government over 10 years
  - Other marketing, joint venture and exclusive on-course advertising commitments.

Tasmania:

- Tatts Group Ltd acquired the Tasmania TAB (Tote Tasmania) in 2012 for $103 million
- The arrangements put in place for Tote Tasmania post the sale is that Tatts pay an annual licence fee of around $7.0 million (CPI escalating) with no wagering tax and no product fees payable to the Tasmania Racing Industry
- Tasracing, a state owned company representing all three codes in the Tasmanian racing industry, is funded by the Tasmanian Government through appropriations worth $27 million a year over a 20 year period, and indexed annually over the life of the 20 year funding deed.
- Tatts Group has a retail totalisator licence that runs for 50 years, with a further 49 year option. The licence is exclusive for 15 years.

Northern Territory:

- TAB Queensland, now Tatts Group purchased the NTTAB in 2000 and with the sale was granted a Totalisator licence for a period of 15 years.
- Under the licence NTTAB pays 40% of gross margin on most events.
- The Department of Sport, Recreation and Racing manages the NT Government's industry funding agreements that are negotiated with the thoroughbred and greyhound racing clubs.

Australian Capital Territory

- Tabcorp purchased ACTTAB in July this year for $105.5 million
- The licences it has acquired is a guaranteed exclusive totalisator licence for 50 years, a sportsbetting licence for 15 years with further rolling extensions to 50 years, and ongoing approvals to offer Keno and Trackside products for 50 years.
- A licence fee on the totalisator licence of $1 million per annum (CPI indexed) is payable, but no wagering tax or product fees to ACT Racing entities are payable (similar to Tasmania). The wagering tax on the sportsbetting licence is expected to be less than 1% of turnover.

- The Government has entered into a funding arrangement with the ACT Racing Industry believed to represent around $8 million per annum to 2017, after which arrangements are uncertain but appear to possibly rely on a combination of on-course totalisator proceeds and some Government funding.

So as can be seen from the above there are various models by which TAB's have been privatised in Australia, which arguably have evolved from the variety of reasons for, and objectives of, Governments selling their TABs to privately-owned operators.

It needs to be recognised that the original privatisations of a number of these TAB's occurred under a completely different Australian wagering environment, specifically without corporate bookmakers and with the "Gentlemen's Agreement" operating (ie an informal agreement between TAB operators that they would each fund their own racing industry and allow other TAB's to offer wagering on their product on the understanding that no TAB would seek to sell bets into another jurisdiction). Accordingly, the models described above reflect a mix of the original structures and elements of updated arrangements given the passage of time.

In this context it is therefore extremely difficult to make any substantive judgements in relation to the success or otherwise of these privatisations, particularly as they relate to the respective racing industries, given the many intersecting factors that can effect a racing industry. It is important to understand that gambling in Australia is actually an activity governed under State/Territory powers – it is not under Federal Government jurisdiction.

So the Federal Government (other than through its telecommunication powers relating to transmission of data) cannot legislate in relation to gambling, it is a State/Territory power. Accordingly, the TAB's were State or Territory based and "owned", and racing industries evolved on a State/Territory basis. It has been through the corporate activity (through acquisition and/or pooling) of Tabcorp and Tatts that TABs have therefore been able to be combined and get some scale that State or Territory based TAB's were unable to achieve alone. Accordingly, in an overall sense, the privatisation of TAB's has provided a better scale and hence economics (in most cases) of TAB wagering operations for the various racing industries.

This has not however necessarily been the case for some specific State or Territory racing industries. Lack of local scale, and in the case of Tasmania some concerns on the TAB's operations, led to sale processes that saw the Government take over industry funding to achieve sales value, not a position recommended for the WA Racing Industry. The privatisation of South Australia TAB and perceived subsequent concerns with it could probably be associated with racing industry issues and some incomplete risk management structuring of the privatisation more so than the act of privatisation itself. With Queensland there is often a reference to flat distributions following privatisation, which would appear to flow from the wagering challenges faced in the performance of the TAB and a period of some flux in the local racing industry. NSW and Victoria reflect scale and scope in their wagering operations and their racing industries that could be said to flow from privatisation of the TAB (but it is difficult to be specific).

The following section explores some of the reasons why Governments may elect to privatise their government-owned TAB.

3.2.5 Why Privatise a TAB ?

There are a number of reasons why a State Government may choose to seek to privatise its TAB, and these include:

1. To reduce government debt levels that are causing high interest expense to the annual budget, and/or to address concerns around the credit rating of the State.
2. The Government determines that it should no longer be associated with the ownership of gambling operations.
3. The Government is of the view that as a result of wagering industry structural change, of industry competition, and/or of the general outlook for wagering turnover, that value is to be maximised by a sale at this time.
4. The Government is of the view that passing the operations to a privately-owned operator is a better model (financially and perhaps politically) than government ownership.

Of the reasons above 1, 3 and 4 largely run to financial matters and to questions of value in relation to the consideration of whether through the act of privatising the TAB the State receives better value than if it retains the TAB in government ownership. The second reason is often raised as a convenient social policy argument to justify a sale that is effectively an economically justified one (particularly for the first reason outlined above), particularly in the situation where other gambling assets are government-owned, such as a lottery business. This position must not, however, be confused with an argument that such privatisation of ownership is inconsistent with allowing other forms of gambling, eg Casino operations. Correctly regulating and taxing gambling operations and requiring licence fees/payments is different from ownership and should not be seen as inconsistent with a Government looking to sell a gambling asset it currently owns.

In any discussion as to the matter of value for a privatisation as outlined above, the fundamental decision for the State Government is whether the value the State receives from the sale of the TAB to private owners outweighs the value the State receives from ongoing government ownership of the TAB.

This value equation will have both financial and social considerations, and will include impacts upon the following:

Direct Financial Benefits

- The wagering tax inflows to the Government from the TAB
- The product (racefield) fees received by the State from interstate and international wagering operations wagering on Western Australian product
- The Distributions, the costs of racing operations and integrity services, and other payments paid to racing clubs and participants in the industry by the TAB from Western Australian and interstate/international punters turnover

- Profitability after WA Racing Industry funding by WATAB/RWWA
- The investment by owners and other participants into the local racing industry
- Flow on economic effects to and from the many suppliers to the industry, and to all local businesses from raceday events

Social Benefits

- Community benefits (even to the extent of meeting Community Service Obligations) of racing, particularly regional racing, to local cities and towns
- Employment
- Assistance to charities from racing activities

These are clearly all the factors that the State Government needs to weigh up in both its decision of whether to privatise or not, and if it chooses to, what should be the structure and operational framework. In its simplest form, the amount that a potential buyer will pay for a TAB is largely dependent upon:

- a. What the buyer believes is the amount of net margin revenue it will generate through that TAB.
- b. What it will cost to generate that margin in operating cost terms
- c. What wagering taxes it needs to pay
- d. Whether and/or what amount of product fees (or distributions) and other funding it needs to pay to the racing industry.

Accordingly, the Government will significantly impact the value (and hence upfront sale price it achieves) by decisions in each of these areas, with examples of issues pertinent to each corresponding particular area outlined above being:

- a. Whether the buyer can expand the gambling product range, and whether existing unclaimed dividend and fraction provisions apply to the benefit of the buyer. Also critical is the length of the wagering licence/authority provided, and the exclusivity timings attached to it.
- b. Whether the buyer is required to maintain existing employment and agency distribution arrangements, and/or for how long?
- c. Does the wagering tax base and /or rate change under a privatised model?
- d. Does the racing industry funding obligation stay with the wagering authority/ licence and hence the buyer is required to pay a product fee, and, if so, what level of commitment is part of the sale?

These will be explored in detail in Chapter 6 where we discuss the implications of privatisation of the WATAB to the Western Australian Racing Industry.

4.1 Introduction

This section of this Report will provide some background on the wagering industry in Australia, the position of pari-mutuel (Totalisator) betting within the wagering industry, the landscape of TAB's and other wagering operators, and the position of WATAB/RWWA within the Australian wagering industry. As outlined in the previous section on privatisation, in any discussion on selling a government-owned TAB it is necessary that consideration be given to the position, performance and outlook for the entity itself in this case, WATAB/RWWA, as well as the wagering industry more generally.

4.2 Wagering Industry Participants

The major participants in the Australian race wagering industry are:

- The punters – the people who place bets on racing, sports and other events with the wagering operators
- The wagering operators – the organisations that provide the pari-mutuel and fixed odds wagering product, including WATAB/RWWA
- The racing industry – the racing clubs and associations, racing industry administrators, the breeders, the owners, the trainers, the jockeys/drivers, and all their industry employees, who provide the racing product and the events at which the product is displayed on which the wagering occurs and for which the industry receives product fees, racefield fees, various other forms of funding, and in some cases a proportion of the wagering operators earnings.
- Media broadcasters – the media companies who provide the vision of the races through various arrangements to the punters via broadcasting rights obtained from the racing industry on which the racing industry receives rights fees.

The focus in this section will be on the wagering operators and WATAB/RWWA's position within this group.

4.3 Wagering Operators in Australia

Wagering operators that provide betting services within Australia can be classified into the following groups:

- On-course bookmakers
- Corporate bookmakers
- TAB's
- Other wagering operators

These are explained below.

4.3.1 On-Course Bookmakers

On-Course bookmakers are licenced to provide fixed odds betting in each state and territory at the racing venues within that state or territory (although regulations have changed in recent times to provide more flexibility to these bookmakers in terms of telephone and on-line wagers).

4.3.2 Corporate Bookmakers

Corporate bookmakers are licenced off-course bookmakers who typically operate via telephone and internet/mobile applications. As the name suggest they are incorporated public/private companies that have typically been licenced and, in a technical sense operate from, the Northern Territory (NT) providing racing and sports betting, and in some cases betting options on other events.

The Northern Territory approved Australia's first sports bookmaker, Centrebet, in December 1992, and Centrebet became Australia's first on-line sports bookmaker in 1996. Today there are a number of corporate bookmakers licenced in the Northern Territory. The attraction of being licenced in the Northern Territory are the much lower wagering duties and taxes, low licencing fees, and much more flexible operating requirements than other States, with 24/7 capability.

The main corporate bookmakers operating in Australia are:

- Bet 365 - licenced in NT and owned by Bet 365 in the United Kingdom
- Betchoice/Unibet – formally Betchoice, Unibet (Swedish public company) acquired the business and its NT licence
- Betezy/BetEasy-BetEasy is the new brand after Betzy, licenced in the NT, was acquired by Sportsbet co-founder Matthew Tripp.
- Betfair – betting exchange licence in Tasmania and now wholly owned by Crown Resorts
- BetFred – licenced in the NT but not significantly active
- Ladbrokes – Owned by Ladbrokes PLC, Ladbrokes Australia acquired Gaming Investments which operated Bookmakers.com.au and it, together with Ladbrokes.com.au, have Norfolk Island licences. Recently acquired NT licenced Betstar
- Luxbet – licenced in the NT and owned by Tabcorp.
- NT Tab – licenced as a corporate bookmaker and TAB in the NT and owned by Tatts Group
- Paddy Power – Irish based UK listed company ownership that acquired Sportsbet and IASBet, both licenced in NT
- William Hill – owned by UK listed William Hill PLC and owns Sportingbet Australia, Centrebet and Tom Waterhouse licences in NT

Given the potential economic model for corporate bookmakers offered by the low cost structure, and arguably more flexible and lighter regulatory environment provided by the Northern Territory Government, locally owned corporate bookmakers began to commence operations under these Northern Territory licences. In fact, other than the Betfair licence in Tasmania, those listed above all operate on Northern Territory licences.

In many cases these locally owned corporate bookmakers would have operations (at least a server and relevant operatives) in NT as well as operations in their home State, with all betting going through the NT licence. The objective appeared in many cases to be to grow market share based on wagering turnover and to create a large customer database as quickly as possible, without profitability necessarily being a priority. This would provide the opportunity to establish a business of sufficient scale and customer penetration that could be attractive for potential larger corporate wagering operators either domestically or from offshore.

This opportunity arose also from the existing TAB's not having developed quickly or sufficiently enough their fixed odds offering nor their internet based system technology presentation, given their continued growth and profitable largely retail and telephone based pari-mutuel wagering business. The Corporate Bookmaking businesses attacked this opportunity by taking advantage of their low cost licences to provide more attractive odds and to adopt large marketing budgets as the means to seek significant customer acquisition for their account based customer lists.

Their low cost licences also enabled these corporate bookmakers to offer a product called Best Tote Odds under which the bookmakers effectively acted as resellers of TAB odds (sometimes with an added amount to the dividend given their cost advantage), with offset back into the tote pool if they wished, and hence benefit from their cost structure at little to no risk. These corporate bookmakers used the TAB's price IP at no cost, establishing a product of interest to punters. This has been a major source of growth for a number of these corporate bookmakers.

As account customer numbers and turnover growth, rather than profitability, seemed to be the major business objective, many of these operators ran their businesses at low margins to offer attractive odds, at times arguably not economically rationally from a wagering sustainability viewpoint. Nevertheless they were growing turnover and customer lists, and together with product and system innovation, were growing the Australian wagering market, and taking market share from the TAB's.

The successful High Court proceedings brought by Betfair Pty. Ltd, against the Western Australian Government in 2008 (Betfair Pty. Ltd. V Western Australian Government) removed concerns about potential advertising and market access limitations for Corporate bookmakers. Whilst the economic model for these bookmakers was however detrimentally impacted by the imposition of Racefield Fees through State Governments' legislation through 2008 and 2009 (with some subsequent court cases), these developments brought some clarity to the operating and financial models of these businesses.

With this, together with the related changes to the Australian wagering landscape, international wagering operators (particularly out of Europe) who were looking for expansion opportunities, identified Australia as an area for investment. Accordingly, as outlined above in the current list of Corporate Bookmakers, these international companies have largely acquired the local businesses, pushing up margins given the need for profitable growth on their shareholders' invested funds, and bringing their international capabilities, particularly in sportsbetting and technology, to these businesses. Section 4.4 provides some numeric perspectives on their impact on the Australian wagering market.

4.3.3 TAB's (Totalisator Agency Boards)

TAB's (Totalisator Agency Boards) or Totes as they are often called, were established in each State and Territory of Australia between 1961 and 1985, primarily to provide a legal race wagering vehicle and to facilitate the racing industry receiving funding from race wagering which was using its product. This was to remove all betting with what were in most jurisdictions illegal SP bookmakers who were not paying the industry for the use of its product. The TAB's were set up by Government legislation under Government ownership and given authority/licence to operate pari-mutuel betting exclusively for off-course retail, and for on-course in certain jurisdictions and included the obligation for the TAB's to fund the local racing industry given the provision of this exclusivity. This pari-mutuel exclusivity has been extended to telephone and internet/on-line services, and TAB's also now have fixed odds authorities/licences that are non-exclusive.

As outlined in Section 3.2.4 on privatisation, all Australian TAB's except the WATAB have since been privatised in one form or another, and there has been significant consolidation within the TAB's over the last 20 years. So as of today there are effectively three TAB groups operating throughout Australia (although each State and Territory still has its own TAB, given the State based gaming legislation, but owned and operated within one of the Groups). These three are:

- Tabcorp Holding Limited (Tabcorp)
- Tatts Group Limited (Tatts)
- WATAB/RWWA

4.3.3.1 Tabcorp

Tabcorp Holdings Limited is listed on the Australian Stock Exchange with its head office in Melbourne. Tabcorp operates businesses in Wagering, Media (Sky Channel), Keno and Gaming Services (TGS). Tabcorp's wagering business is comprised of the TAB licences in Victoria and NSW, and this year it acquired the ACTTAB, and also owns and operates the Luxbet corporate bookmaking business licenced in the Northern Territory. Tabcorp also operates at selected TAB's a simulated racing event game that is called Trackside.

At present Tabcorp is not permitted to combine its NSW and Victorian pools and accordingly operates them separately as the NSW pool and the SuperTAB pool out of Victoria. ACTTAB pools into SuperTAB, as does WATAB/RWWA.

4.3.3.2 Tatts Group

Tatts Group Limited is listed on the Australian Stock Exchange with its head office in Brisbane. Tatts Group operates businesses in Wagering, Lotteries and Gaming systems. Tatts Group's wagering business is comprised of the TAB operations in Queensland, South Australia, Northern Territory and Tasmania, and the corporate bookmaking licence held by NTTAB in the Northern Territory. Tatts Group operates one pool combining all of its operations for each of its pari-mutuel and fixed odds betting products and events respectively (ie there is no pooling).

4.3.3.3 WATAB/RWWA

WATAB's details as the sole remaining government owned TAB has been discussed in Chapter 3 of this Report.

4.3.4 Other Wagering Operators

Other wagering operators that offer punters the ability to bet on Australian product are betting exchanges and overseas bookmakers.

- Betting Exchanges: acting like many proposition warehousing business, such as a stock exchange, punters are able to offer prices for betting propositions and other punters can effectively deal directly with that punter through the betting exchange. The exchange operator takes a “clip of the ticket” when a transaction is done. Betfair is the only currently operating betting exchange licenced in Australia, and operates fully on-line. It has a licence in Tasmania and is wholly owned now by Crown Resorts.
- Overseas bookmakers: bookmakers based overseas and not licenced in Australia can offer wagering to Australian residents. Whilst the legalities of this activity are not entirely clear, such operators do not pay racefield fees to the Australian racing industry, depriving the Australian industry of some revenue, with the potential to offer better prices to punters because of this.

4.4 Sizing the Australian and Western Australian Wagering Markets

4.4.1 The Australian Wagering Market

Based on figures from the Australian Racing Board Fact Book 2013 the total turnover of the Australian Wagering Market for that year was around $24.5 billion (excluding Betfair and Trackside turnover). These figures include total turnover on thoroughbreds, harness and greyhounds racing and sportsbetting. The break-up of this $24.5 billion (which includes all TAB and bookmaker betting) is as follows :

| Code         | $billion            | % of total           |
|--------------|----------------------|----------------------|
| Thoroughbred | 14.462               | 59.01                |
| Greyhound    | 3.738                | 15.25                |
| Harness      | 2.316                | 9.45                 |
| Sport        | 3.991         | 16.29         |
| Total | 24.507 | 100.00 |

Of this total wagering turnover, in the 2012/13 year, almost 2/3 of the turnover (66%) was via TAB's and around 1/3 (34%) with bookmakers. This split has changed from around 71.6% for TAB's and 28.4% for bookmakers in 2009/10.

Features of the Australian wagering industry that underlie this trend in the market (as also derived from figures obtained from the Australian Racing Board Fact Book) are as follows :

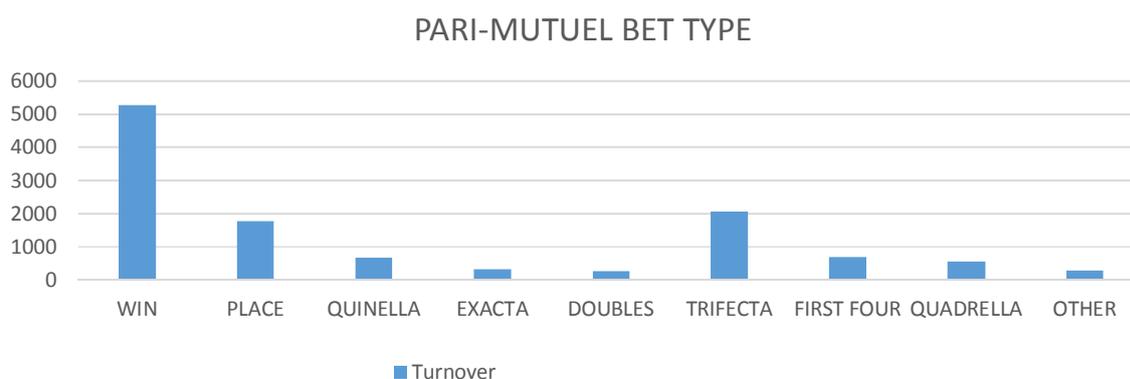

- Effectively all the growth in the wagering market over that period has been achieved by the corporate bookmakers, with total TAB wagering at around the same level in 2012/13 as in 2009/10.
- Sportsbetting as a percentage of total wagering turnover has increased from around 13% in 2009/10 to almost 16.3% in 2012/13 exhibiting growth of 35.5% over that time (a 10.5% compound annual growth rate), and continues to grow at a rapid pace (having grown at a compound annual growth rate of 12.8% in the last 10 years).

- This reduction in share of total wagering turnover for racing has been reflected by relatively flat thoroughbred and harness levels over that period, with greyhound betting increasing by over 27% during the same period.
- Retail TAB turnover has reduced by almost 16.5% between 2009/10 and 2012/13, whilst on-course TAB turnover has reduced by nearly 19% over the same period.
- For TAB's this retail pari-mutuel turnover decrease has been effectively replaced or transferred to fixed odds betting, which has more than doubled in TAB's over that time (with fixed odds on racing contributing over 90% of this growth).
- Fixed odds betting over the period from 2009/10 to 2012/13 has grown in total by almost 40%, and over the last 10 years has had a compound annual growth rate of 12.9% per annum, whereas pari-mutuel wagering has had a compound annual growth rate over the same period of -0.1%.
- In relation to total TAB betting, total pari-mutuel betting's proportionate share has declined from 87% in 2009/10 to 73.7% in 2012/13. This represented a fall from 61.6% to 48.7% of total wagering turnover over the period (this is based on all TAB sportsbetting being fixed odds – which whilst not correct is not materially inaccurate given the relatively low pari-mutuel sportsbetting that occurs). Pari-mutuel betting showed substantial declines in 2012 and 2013.
- On-line betting with both TAB's and particularly bookmakers has grown significantly, with bookmakers on-line betting alone increasing by over 76% from 2009/10 to 2012/13.

These observations clearly reflect the recent trends in the Australian wagering market. The growth of the phone and on-line based corporate bookmakers has been a major feature, powering the increased growth in fixed odds betting as a proportion of total Australian wagering turnover. As outlined earlier in Section 4.3 on Wagering Operators, these corporate bookmakers have benefitted from the low tax and fee structures of the Northern Territory to competitively price and heavily market their offer to the punters of Australia.

The corporate bookmakers have contributed substantially to the overall wagering turnover growth in Australia, bringing broad product offers, new on-line offers and technology design and functionality, and significant marketing and advertising to the industry.

As stated above, this growth of the corporate bookmaker has been a big driver of the increased popularity of fixed odds that has also driven growth of fixed odds in the TAB's. As clearly this is a product that is applied particularly to the most popular betting propositions of win and place betting (see the chart below for all Codes pari-mutuel betting types from page 67 of the Australian Racing Fact Book 2012/13), this had led to the shift away from pari-mutuel betting within TAB's as observed earlier, as it is a direct substitute product.

From a racing industry point of view the implications of these developments in the Australian wagering industry landscape are extremely significant given the importance of wagering to the funding of the racing industry. The growth of corporate bookmakers is arguably at the expense of TAB growth (although it can be legitimately questioned whether the TABs with their exclusive retail arrangement would have necessarily otherwise have fuelled the growth that has occurred). Whilst the TAB's, as explained earlier, have and/or had established product fee arrangements to fund the racing industry at substantial levels, no such arrangements applied to corporate bookmakers licenced in the NT. Accordingly, these corporate bookmakers were utilising racing product from all States and Territories with no obligation or requirement to pay the racing industry anywhere for this product.

State and Territory Governments in Australia addressed this (in part) through introducing Racefields Fees legislation to apply in their respective jurisdiction giving the relevant Government the power to require wagering operators who use any racing product information from their State or Territory for wagering purposes to pay a product fee to the Government and/or the Principal Racing Authority (PRA) in their State or Territory. In addition, the wagering operator can only legally use this information with the approval of the relevant PRA. Accordingly, all wagering operators are now required to seek approval and then pay these product (or racefield) fees monthly to each respective State based on specific rates and bases established within each jurisdiction.

As outlined earlier, in Western Australia this occurs pursuant to the provisions of the Racing Bets Levy Act 2009 and its associated Regulations, with the levy monies paid to the Gaming and Wagering Commission under Section 14A of the Betting Control Act, and then paid to RWWA (after deduction of expenses) by the Commission for distribution to Racing Clubs under Section 110B of the RWWA Act.

These Racefield or Product Fee Arrangements are set out in Table 4.4.1A.

Premium race meetings are defined in the regulations on the basis of the value of stake money, as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Thoroughbred racing - any meeting that contains at least one race with stake money of $100,000;</li> <li>• Harness racing - any meeting that contains at least one race with stake money of $50,000;</li> <li>• Greyhound racing - any meeting that contains at least one race with stake money of $30,000.</li> </ul> |

These Racefield Fees are at levels significantly below that which is paid by a TAB under its product fee structures with the local racing industry, particularly for pari-mutuel betting.

This brings us to the next issue of the growth of fixed odds, particularly through bookmakers. As fixed odds betting for the wagering operator is a much riskier business than pari-mutuel, and by definition therefore the margins may on average be lower and more volatile, the capacity to pay product fees is less than for a pari-mutuel TAB pool operator. The current levels that have been set as set out in Table 4.4.1A have been established by Governments on the basis of inputs from many parts of the wagering and racing industries and can be seen to be clearly substantially below the rates of which TAB's fund the racing industry. This is not in any way to suggest parity with TAB's given the retail exclusivity that TAB's enjoy, but the disparity between the two is considered too great and reflect a real risk to future funding for the racing industry.

The debate over these rates for racefield fees will continue, with an international benchmark of 3% currently a more comparable "royalty" rate with others around the world. However, for the racing industry, the continued growth of fixed odds betting in corporate bookmakers at the expense of TAB's (especially pari-mutuel betting) puts pressure on the future funding models of the racing industry. This situation is clearly exacerbated by the growth in sports betting for which the racing industry has no right to product fees if such betting is perceived to come at the expense of racing wagering by punters.

These issues, and many others underlying the trends in Australian wagering markets discussed earlier in this section, and which will impact the future outlook for wagering in Australia, are outlined in the following table developed by Mr. Sacha Krien, the Australian-based gaming sector analyst at CLSA Asia – Pacific Markets in Sydney – Table 4.4.1B. Sacha has not only listed these issues but also provided his views on where potential benefit or risk lies for the major TAB's and for Corporate Bookmakers. It provides an interesting insight into the future outlook facing WATAB/RWWA as a stand-alone TAB.

4.4.2 WATAB/RWWA and the Western Australian Wagering Market

With the backdrop of the previous section's discussion of the Australian wagering market generally, this section specifically looks at WATAB/RWWA's wagering performance and trends within the Western Australian market specifically. In a headline sense, total TAB wagering growth from 2008/09 to 2012/13 in WA was 28%, compared to a national figure of 5%. Total wagering growth in WA was 22.6% over that period (clearly driven by the TAB wagering growth) compared to the national figure of 11.7% (predominantly grown by corporate bookmaker fixed odds growth).

When these TAB growth figures are broken up between pari-mutuel and fixed odds (but for a period of 2009/10 to 2012/13 given the availability of figures from the Australian Racing Facts Book), Total Australian TAB wagering pari-mutuel betting has declined by 14.3% and fixed odds has grown by around 105%. The comparable figures for Western Australia are 25.2% growth for pari-mutuel and 40% for fixed odds. In considering these figures it is also important to understand that in relation to TAB figures, in 2012/13 nationally the pari-mutuel / fixed odds share was around 73.8% / 26.2%, whilst the split for WATAB was 95.7% / 4.3%, a dramatically different position. (It is understood that in 2013/14 WATAB's fixed odds has grown substantially and changed this mix significantly).

As information is not available from corporate bookmakers as to the locations of their customers it is not possible to ascertain the extent of Western Australian punter wagering that is being directed out of the State to corporate bookmakers.

The relatively lower growth in WATAB's fixed odds betting than the national TAB figure may suggest either that:

- Fixed odds betting appetite is being directed predominantly to corporate bookmakers, or
- Fixed odds betting penetration is low generally in Western Australia for both the WATAB and corporate bookmakers.

Whilst more anecdotal than having any strong factual base, it would be suggested that the answer probably falls more with the latter (but with a contribution from the former perspective) given the lack of advertising and receptiveness to sponsorship by WA Racing Clubs in respect of corporate bookmakers.

From discussions with RWWA management, market research would appear to reinforce this view, in that Western Australian punters do appear to be quite parochial to the local provider by a significant amount. Until recently this has manifest itself in good pari-mutuel growth given the poor pricing, marketing, and delivery of the fixed odd product by WATAB/RWWA in the past. It is understood from RWWA Management that WATAB/RWWA's fixed odd turnover has grown substantially in the last year, which would appear to have arisen from more recent improvements in a number of aspects of fixed odds product delivery. These improvements include:

CHAPTER 4 THE WAGERING INDUSTRY IN AUSTRALIA

- Better and expanded pricing through improved operation of the fixed odds book
- Side-by-side provision of pari-mutuel and fixed odds pricing on retail displays and on digital channels, and improved racewall positioning
- Expanded product coverage, both domestically for harness and greyhound racing and nationally for all Australian racing
- The Soccer World Cup is a major fixed odds customer acquisition and volume enhancement event.

WATAB/RWWA is obviously significantly lagging other TAB's and Corporate Bookmakers in this regard, but is starting to show strong growth off a low base which should continue for a handful of years as it catches up with national trends. It is instructive to note, however, that the previously referenced market research does show increased, albeit not large, increases in awareness and usage of corporate bookmakers by WA punters, which is a threat to the extent and length of improved local TAB fixed odds wagering growth.

The higher growth in WATAB's pari-mutuel betting has resulted in the trends identified nationally of declining thoroughbred and harness racing pari-mutuel betting not being replicated in Western Australia to the same extent, and with stronger growth in pari-mutuel greyhound racing than the national growth. This would largely appear however to have resulted from a significant growth in premium punters (from within and outside Western Australia) attracted by rebates being offered by WATAB to these punters as an entry point into Tabcorp's SuperTAB pool.

This was a development that occurred within the Tasmanian TAB in the years before its privatisation, but at significantly greater levels than is believed is currently occurring in WATAB. It is believed that Tabcorp could be wanting to limit this, particularly given the Tasmanian experience.

Whilst premium punters have the ability to bring significant volume and liquidity to the pool, they tend to be more successful and hence win at greater rates than the bulk of local punters. Given the set prize dividend payout ratio for pari-mutuel betting this means that these premium punters can therefore reduce the effective prize returns ratio (and hence prize dividends) for the rest of the pool participants. These impacts obviously are not as profound in larger pools with greater liquidity, such as the SuperTAB pool into which WATAB/RWWA pools. Effective management of the pool is therefore represented by managing the trade-off between the volume and liquidity introduced by premium punters against the potential distortion for other pool participants by controlling the size of the premium punter contribution into the pool.

It is believed that this increase in premium punters has predominantly, but not solely, contributed to WATAB/RWWA's pari-mutuel turnover growth. It should be noted here that this solid wagering turnover and returns performance of WATAB/RWWA can also be attributed to a number of other factors, in addition to the growth of premium punters, including:

- The introduction of a new betting system, Phoenix, and associated new terminals – a system acknowledged as a good retail and premium punters wagering system
- Improved pooling services and management contracts with Tabcorp and William Hill respectively, both in terms of product spread and of financial arrangements.
- Improved fixed odds take up, on both racing and sportsbetting, due to product expansion and enhanced retail/digital information displays
- Improved liquidity and pricing across its product suite flowing from these enhancements.

In relation to Western Australia generally, it should also be observed that local bookmaking turnover effectively halved between 2008/09 and 2012/13 and continues to decline quickly, with essentially no local bookmaking activity on harness, greyhound and sport, and declining thoroughbred local bookmaker betting as evidenced by Perth Racing stating that they are budgeting for no income in the 2014/15 year from bookmakers on-course. This has been accompanied by declining on-course totalisator turnover which has fallen overall in Western Australia by nearly 20% between 2009/10 to 2012/13, with Perth Racing stating in its case the reduction had been almost 50% in the last 5 years. The primary causes of this on-course tote decline appear to be falling attendances, limited to no fixed odd offer, the absence of call betting, and the impact of competition from corporate bookmakers.

RWWA management have advised that 2013/14 has seen continued growth in wagering turnover in WATAB, but with a significant drop in retail pari-mutuel wagering that was more than offset by an equally large increase in fixed odd racing betting and continued growth in premium customers.

In Section 4.4.1 on the national wagering market there is a table reflecting the break-up of total wagering turnover across the three racing codes and sport for 2012/13, which is repeated in the first column below. The second column reflects this split nationally if Northern Territory is excluded (given the corporate bookmaker impact there). The third column is the Western Australian break-up (including TAB and bookmakers).

|              | National | National(Ex NT) | WA |
|--------------|-----------------|-----------------------------|-----------|
| Thoroughbred | 59.01%          | 62.18%                      | 49.70%    |
| Greyhound    | 15.25%          | 17.12%                      | 28.51%    |
| Harness      | 9.45%           | 10.64%                      | 15.70%    |
| Sports       | 16.29%          | 10.06%                      | 6.09%     |

This reflects a relatively much lower proportion for sports betting in Western Australia, (reflecting the lower fixed odds penetration and lower inroads of corporate bookmakers) and the relatively larger proportions to harness and greyhounds relative to thoroughbreds when compared to national averages.

The TAB wagering turnover growth for each State and each Code within each State for the period 2006/07 to 2012/13 are reflected in the table below:

|                       | WA     | QLD   | SA     | NSW   | VIC    |
|-----------------------|--------|-------|--------|-------|--------|
| Thoroughbred          | 19.0%  | 7.3%  | -5.9%  | 4.14% | 8.0%   |
| Sport                 | 144.4% | 73.6% | 106.8% | 78.9% | 197.5% |
| Harness and Greyhound | 58.9%  | 5.2%  | -8.6%  | 16.4% | 14.7%  |
| Total                 | 39.1%  | 9.5%  | -3.6%  | 13.9% | 17.6%  |

Clearly over this period WATAB/RWWA has been the most successful of the larger TABs in the country in relation to turnover growth. It is estimated that this growth figure for WATAB of 39.1% would reduce to somewhere just above 18% if premium customers were excluded from the figures – this is still above the growth rates of TAB's in these other States.

In acknowledging the good performance of WATAB/RWWA over this period, it is important to also position this in the context of previous performance of WATAB when it was a separate entity prior to RWWA's formation. Prior to the TAB being absorbed into RWWA it operated as a standalone business for which its relatively smaller size (when compared to Victoria, Queensland and New South Wales) and its limited product range (wagering product only) put it at a significant disadvantage compared to other TAB's. This reflected in a relatively higher proportionate cost base, and with less capacity to more proactively respond to advances in technology. These matters were all raised in the Turner Report. This needs to be considered in the context of the TAB in Western Australia not having electronic gaming machines in pubs and clubs to compete with as do other jurisdictions.

Accordingly, the performance of the WATAB/RWWA over the recent years has reflected to a large extent the catch up of what had been achieved in other TAB's in previous years. This is not a criticism of recent management, it is simply a statement of observation and perspective to enable readers to understand where WATAB/RWWA currently sits, and why at some stage in the future it will have caught up with the rest of the mature TAB's wagering operations in terms of product, technology, platforms and competition. Reflections of this specific point are illustrated by the following observations of previous growth trends and the more recent initiatives in relation to features previously reflected in other jurisdiction's operations:

- The comments on the delayed introduction of an effective and efficient fixed odds offer as explained earlier in this Section 4.4.2
- For the period from 1986/87 to 1993/94 WATAB grew its turnover by 71.4% against the Queensland TAB growth rate over the period of 104.5% per the Australian Gambling Statistics, 29th edition, as released by the Government Statistician of Queensland Treasury and Trade in February 2014
- Over the same period NSW TAB turnover grew by $1.4 billion, Victorian TAB turnover by almost $1.0 billion, and WATAB turnover by just $240 million

- The decision to enter into, and in more recent times more fully expand the pooling arrangements with Tabcorp to deal with the implications of its pools being small, so as to increase the liquidity and stability of prices for punters across essentially all products
- The recent addition of premium customers into the pool
- More recently improved retail information and betting systems, and investment in the digital platform
- The future rollout of greater numbers of self-service terminals (SST's)
- Just beginning the introduction of improved product offers and technologies for on-course totalisator operations.

This understanding of the positioning of WATAB/RWWA in the Australian wagering landscape is critical to any consideration of what is the best ownership structure for WATAB into the future.

This section seeks to establish a base line structural financial position for the Western Australian Racing Industry against which to then discuss the implications for the Industry of the potential privatisation of WATAB/RWWA.

In this context the WA Racing Industry is defined to include Thoroughbred, Harness, and Greyhound racing and encompasses all those employed in and/or those that participate in the production of racing animals and the production of the racing product. This Report will also discuss some of the suppliers to, and integral service providers to, the WA Racing Industry.

5.1 What is the Western Australian Racing Industry?

In accordance with the definition of the racing industry above, the Western Australian Racing Industry is therefore comprised of the following groups and their representation:

- RWWA – the Principal Racing Authority for each of the Codes, being the principal club for thoroughbred racing, the controlling body for harness racing, and the racing authority and registration authority for Greyhound racing. In accordance with the RWWA Act, to meet its requirement to consult with prescribed racing bodies, RWWA meets with each of the Codes through Consultative Groups established for each respective Code. Each Group has an established membership base consisting of RWWA officers and nominated representatives of various Code stakeholders.
- Thoroughbred Code – Perth Racing's Board has responsibility for the Belmont and Ascot racetracks. Western Australia's 9 Provincial Thoroughbred Clubs each have their own (voluntary) Boards and are members of the WA Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association (WAPTRA).

The Country Racing Association of WA (CRAWA) is comprised of the 25 Country/Community thoroughbred racing clubs around the State, all of which have their own (voluntary) Boards.

Owners are represented by the WA Racing Owners Association (WAROA) and include a wide array of individuals. It is highly unlikely that any of these people are solely economically dependent on racehorse ownership for their livelihood, and many are breeders and trainers as well.

Breeders have a representative group called Thoroughbred Breeders Western Australia (TBWA). Trainers have an association called the WA Racing Trainers Association (WARTA) that represents their interests. Jockeys interests are represented by the WA Jockeys Association (WAJA).

- Harness Racing Code – The Gloucester Park Harness Racing Club Board has responsibility for the operation of metropolitan harness racing at the Gloucester Park track. There are 7 provincial harness racing tracks that are operated by (voluntary) Boards. The WA Country Racing Association (WACRA) represents these provincial clubs as well as the 7 Country/Community Harness Racing Clubs that also have their own (voluntary) Boards.

Owners of Harness Racing horses are represented by the Harness Racing Owners Association WA (HROAWA), as well as by BOTRA.

Breeders of Standardbreds are represented by the WA Standardbred Breeders Association (WASBA), and also by BOTRA. Trainers and Reinspersons in Harness Racing are represented by BOTRA, the Western Australian Racing Breeders, Owners, Trainers and Reinspersons Association.

- Greyhounds Code – The Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association (WAGRA) is the designated greyhound racing club of Western Australia. It is established under the provisions of the Western Australia Greyhound Racing Association Act 1981 and is a body corporate. WAGRA is not a Crown agency, but the Committee of WAGRA is appointed by the Governor at the nomination of the Minister, and is subject to Ministerial direction. It oversees the operation of greyhound racing at Cannington, Mandurah and Northam in its role as a designated club under the direction of its Board/Committee.

Owners, Breeders and Trainers of greyhounds are represented by the WA Greyhound Breeders, Owners and Trainers Association (WAGBOTA).

- Service Providers – There is a wide range of service providers to the Western Australian racing industry that rely on the industry to varying degrees, and the major areas of these include:
  - Sky Channel – vision of races
  - Magic Millions – arrange the annual yearlings sales in Western Australia
  - Veterinary services
  - Feed Supply
  - Transportation

These are all set out on in Figure 5.1 on the next page.

5.1.1 Sizing the Western Australian Racing Industry

Given this industry structure and governance/representation framework, this section provides a perspective on the size in terms of participants and economic impact of the Western Australian Racing Industry. In doing this it draws heavily upon the research report of IER Pty. Ltd., on the Size and Scope of the Western Australian Racing Industry undertaken for RWWA in 2012, entitled “Western Australian Racing Industry – Economic and Social Impact Report, September 2012” (the IER Report).

The IER Report was based on a study undertaken using 2010/11 financial year information, providing an extensive coverage of the economic and social contribution of the Western Australian Racing Industry to the Western Australian State and its economy. From examining a number of the key statistics of the WA Racing Industry as reported by RWWA annually in its publication “Industry Status Report”, and specifically the 2013 report, a comparison of these key statistics (financial, race program and other racing statistics) reflects that a number of the 2012/13 financial year outcomes for key base measures for the WA Racing Industry are not materially different from those of 2010/11 on which the IER Report was based. Accordingly, in referencing outcomes of the IER Report, it is valid to assume that they remain largely reflective of the industry size today in general terms. This particularly applies to industry starters numbers, numbers of races, and the like – financial figures will have grown by specific rates of price inflation, wagering turnover growth, and general economic growth. The overview of the key data from this report is provided in Figure 5.1.1 on the following two pages which are pages 4 and 5 from the IER Report.

In this context the key statistics reflect that over the last couple of years the WA racing industry has essentially just maintained its position. From 2010/11 to 2012/13 the number of racing clubs has reduced by 3 to 53, the number of race meetings have increased by less than 1% to 880, the number of races has increased by 2% to 8,237, and the number of starters in races was essentially the same.

In this time the number of thoroughbreds and greyhounds that raced were the same, with only harness racing showing an increase. Disconcertingly, in relation to breeding, thoroughbreds born reduced by 17.5%, Standardbreds reduced by almost 30% and greyhounds reduced by nearly 4.5%. Of equal concern is that the statistics in relation to the number of registered persons in the WA Racing Industry also showed a declining trend (other than in thoroughbred jockey apprentices as a result of a specific strategic priority by RWWA in this regard). The number of registered thoroughbred trainers and jockeys are down, harness trainers and driver/trainers are down nearly 12% and 14% respectively, whilst the number of registered greyhound trainers are down by over 10% in the last couple of years.

This will be discussed later in this Report, but these trends reflect the fundamental position of the WA Racing Industry – distribution levels have been increasing to attempt to produce the racing product but the costs and risk/return profiles of the production of racing animals are not being met from these distributions leading to departures of participants and/or decreased yields/output as businesses and/or the number of individuals are cut back in size in an attempt to sustain involvement.

Racing Industry Direct Value Added by Standard Industry Classifications ($ mil)

“In dollar terms, the racing industry generates its largest portion of expenditure in the Arts & Recreation sector, followed by Agriculture, Forestry & Fishing and Public Administration & Safety (Government)”

The IER Report establishes the broad economic impacts of the WA Racing Industry to Western Australia in the context of :

- Total employment and participation of over 33,000 people, reflecting “one in every 54 Western Australian adult residents participate or are employed in the Western Australian Racing Industry”.
- “The Western Australian Racing Industry generates more than $550.9 million in direct expenditure. Nearly half of this expenditure occurs in regional areas”.
- “Racing contributes more than $594.6 million in value added to the Western Australian economy”. This represents around 0.14% of the State’s total Gross Value Added.
- Full time equivalent (FTE) employment created/sustained by the WA Racing Industry is 6,730 FTE (including both direct and indirect impacts). The differential between participation and employment reflects the large number of part time and casual employees, the high amount of voluntary work undertaken, and the significant number of owners (almost 17,000).
- Estimated annual expenditure generated by racegoers of in excess of $56.4 million (excluding wagering), of which $31.2 million is direct and $25.3 million indirect (based on 81 cents being spent in the community for every $1 of expenditure made by an attendee at the races).
- The impact in the regional part of Western Australian from racing is around 50% of the total in terms of expenditure, and estimated at around 35% of the total level of activity contributed by racing.

5.1.2 Participants in the WA Racing Industry

As outlined above, the IER Report states that more than 33,000 people are directly involved in the racing industry in one way or another. These participants include paid employees, employers and volunteers (there are more than 750 volunteers estimated to be involved). These are set out in the table below taken from page 16 of the IER Report:

| Participant Type                                    | Thoroughbred  | Harness      | Greyhound    | TOTAL          |

* Can't be allocated to individual codes

Whilst many of these people rely on racing for their livelihood, the bulk do not as will be discussed later, and in fact many actually fund the industry through money, their time and their efforts to sustain the WA Racing Industry's operation. As IER states "Trainers, breeders, jockeys and drivers represent a segment of society whose investment in skills and infrastructure make them heavily reliant on a successful racing industry". It is equally evident from conducting this review that there are a large number of people employed by breeders and trainers particularly who as a result of their involvement in the WA racing industry have not prepared themselves for alternative employment and are equally dependent upon a sustainable racing industry.

Breeders

The breeding sector provides and replenishes the racing stock for the WA Racing Industry. The IER report stated that there are nearly 4,300 breeders in Western Australian, with over half of these in regional areas. Breeders range from large stud farms employing many staff and turn out large numbers of foals, to a large number of amateur and hobby breeders. The larger breeders are those primarily responsible within this group for the employment of around 3,700 staff in their operation. Breeders derive the majority of their income from the public and private sale of their stock.

In Thoroughbreds it is understood that there are probably 12 major commercial breeders of which half are standalone thoroughbred breeding operations and the rest are combined with other commercial interests. WA Thoroughbred breeding is impacted by the lack of depth in stallions, but the Westspeed bonus program is helping to partly offset the often too strong competition from Hunter Valley and Victorian large stud operations. There has been an overall declining trend in the breeding of thoroughbreds in Western Australia and nationally as reflected in the following chart from page 21 of the IER Report:

The other major feature of Western Australian breeding, which is common across Australia, is the need in many cases for breeders to take an ownership stake in a horse to get a sale done, such that it is estimated that around 68% of horses have a breeder holding a stake.

For harness racing, breeding is essentially a 4 year process, and the Westbred bonus system is critical to breeders by providing cash inflow relatively earlier in their total investment cycle. It is considered that around 90% of standardbred breeders are hobbyists, and it is understood that there are no big studs being standalone harness racing breeders. Only around 50% of horses bred actually race, reflecting the risk/return position here. Around 70% of breeders would own Standardbreds for the reasons identified above for thoroughbred breeders.

In greyhound breeding it appears that there are no standalone commercial breeders due to lack of returns to greyhound breeders. This Racing Code shows a great deal of breeding/training ownership integration to achieve an economic model, and again as with other Codes the WestChase bonus scheme has been important in supporting a level of local breeding, given however that the majority of greyhounds are now bred interstate and brought to Western Australia to race.

Trainers

There are around 1,700 horse and greyhound trainers providing services to owners in the WA racing industry. Training services generally incorporate the training (pre and race), trialling and raceday management of a racehorse or greyhound. Trainers employ and/or utilise the services of a variety of skilled and unskilled labour, particularly stable hands, farriers, track riders and vets to prepare racehorses and greyhounds. As the IER Report states for the more than 700 stablehands/track riders employed by trainers, for many the employment opportunity offered would otherwise be difficult to satisfy in the broader employment market. Nearly 58% of these jobs are sustained within regional areas of Western Australian.

Trainers' income is mostly generated through trainers fees charged to owners and a percentage of stakes prizemoney won.

There are various models and business sizes of thoroughbred trainers in Western Australia, and these differ also between metropolitan and regional given different stabling and training situations. Trainers are also significant part owners of thoroughbreds for various reasons – either through choice or need if their yearling purchases are not able to be fully on sold to external owners. With the absence of metropolitan stabling facilities many trainers own their properties through requirement, with this property in many cases representing their retirement/superannuation (although the ability to sell the property as a going concern is unlikely given the lack of cashflow economics across the racing industry). Staff employed by trainers operate under a federal wage award, although it would appear not all trainers necessarily comply with these requirements (probably due to the difficult economic model for trainers).

Harness racing training exhibits many similar attributes such as relatively low training fees causing a significant reliance on share of stakes prizemoney to survive, major stables having on track success that reduces returns to others to at or below sustainable levels, significant investment in property because it is required for stabling and training of horses (held as superannuation but depends on industry sustainability), and significant horse ownership by trainers.

Most greyhound trainers don't get paid a training fee – they agree to go into an equal ownership share of the greyhound. Again there are a variety of different models with some large trainers, but the bulk are small hobby trainers.

Current Major Considerations for Breeders and Trainers

In discussions with various representatives of these groups, there are a myriad of issues facing the sustainability of the WA racing industry, but at present two major considerations are:

- (i) Lack of Confidence flowing from lack of clarity in the future of the Industry – this is primarily being impacted by two matters, the uncertainty over the implications of the potential privatisation of the WATAB/RWWA, and the confusion and uncertainty associated with major infrastructure of the WA Racing Industry, particularly Belmont, Ascot, Gloucester Park and Cannington.
- (ii) The difficulty of isolation of the WA racing industry compared to the Eastern State Racing Industries who have the ability and mobility capacity to travel readily to other jurisdictions to get some diversity of circumstances if any of a wide range of factors are negatively impacting on the participant's local racing product performance. It could be argued that such isolation could be seen as a benefit as the WA racing industry more readily calibrates to the set number of racing animals and jockeys, although the import of greyhounds from the Eastern States for example might refute this.

Of course, the second of these is a simple reality but it becomes more significant when overlaid by the first point. Investment in the WA Racing Industry is and will continue to be constrained whilst there is significant uncertainty on these matters. Clearly both the WA Racing Industry and the WA Government have significant roles to play in providing some clear direction here within a relatively short timeframe before participants no longer see the benefit of continued investment in the WA Racing Industry.

Ownership

The following is from page 29 of the IER Report:

“Owners provide much of the capital outlay and day to day funding for the production of racehorses and greyhounds. In 2010/11 there were more than 16,700 individuals with an ownership interest in the Western Australian Racing Industry.

Considerable research over many years has shown that many owners do not consider their involvement to be a financial investment from which they require a return on investment. This is not to say however that owners are prepared to continue to fund their investment if there is diminished opportunities to realise a return”.

This is reflected by separate analysis outlined in this Report to provide an estimation of the percentage return against funds invested (ie, total gross dollar returns expressed as a percentage of the total dollars spent) by owners in each Code in Western Australia which suggested the following ratios:

% of Costs

|                  |         |
|------------------|---------|
| WA Thoroughbreds | 24%     |
| WA Harness       | 34%     |
| WA Greyhounds    | 36-50%* |

*Based on 50/50 owner/trainer split

The IER Report cited that the large majority of owners in Western Australia (84.4%) are involved through an ownership syndicate. Whilst perhaps introducing more owners into the industry initially at its introduction, the recent change to now name up to 20 owners rather than only 10 in the racebook has resulted in owners now investing smaller amounts to achieve one of their desired objectives from ownership. This would not seem to have translated into more owners, just broadly the same amount of owners but with smaller overall investment.

Racing Clubs

Racing Clubs provide the venue and racing administration for the conduct of race meetings to allow owners to race their horses and greyhounds. As indicated earlier, there has been minor changes in the number of clubs, race meetings and races over the last couple of years, but as will be reflected later, there is very little if any margin in the operations of these Racing Clubs with them all dependent upon the RWWA distributions, subsidies and other funding for their viability. They are required to distribute 100% of their stakes distribution from RWWA as prizemoney.

Perth Racing, Gloucester Park Harness Racing Club and WAGRA have a number of full-time staff, provincial thoroughbred and harness racing clubs have limited staff, whilst country clubs have no full-time staff with Committee members (all volunteers) finding the task of their inputs increasingly challenging with increased OSH, integrity and security requirements. These issues, to differing extents, are affecting all Racing Clubs. Whilst stewards are provided by RWWA to all race clubs, many provincial and most country clubs are required to bring in staff for race days (in some cases from Perth) who need to be paid because of the regulated requirements and standards to be met, including security.

Many of these Racing Clubs provide a community service for their members, with the main racing days also providing a local business event for the town and a major opportunity for local charities. The number of members of racing clubs is around 10,000 of which around 2/3rds are with regional clubs and 1/3 with metropolitan clubs.

5.2 Funding of the Western Australian Racing Industry

This section discusses the funding of the Western Australian Racing Industry in the context of the sources of the funds that finance its operation, and how this funding flows through the value chains of each of the Codes to the stakeholders within, and suppliers to, the Code to produce the product of racing.

5.2.1 Overview of Funding

The funding into the WA Racing Industry, which will be analysed in greater detail in the Code value chain analysis in Section 5.3, can be effectively summarised as:

- (1) The payments received from the wagering industry for using the product of the Racing Industry – that is, paying for the racing product on which they wager and receive money from punters. The Racing Industry owns the intellectual and property rights to this racing product, and needs to be appropriately paid for providing that product to the TAB's and other wagering operators who use it to generate income for themselves.
- (2) Owners Contribution – as outlined previously, with owners of racing animals on average effectively contributing approximately 76% of thoroughbred cost, 66% of harness racing cost, and 50-64% of greyhound costs, for the potential of some return and for personal enjoyment and entertainment of horse and greyhound ownership, they are a major source of funding for the Racing Industry.
- (3) Voluntary Contribution – the many volunteers on Racing Club Committees and those who provide raceday services for no remuneration are a significant contributor to the production of the racing product.
- (4) Financiers to Racing Industry Participants – given the position of the WA Racing Industry this will effectively involve those institutions who are prepared to fund investments in property by the larger breeders, trainers and owners, who as we will see later are in many cases just generating sufficient to operate annually with the property as their superannuation/retirement funding. The other form of financing to the WA Racing Industry is Magic Millions which provides attractively priced funding terms for horses sold at their sales for many industry participants.
- (5) Governments – through various programs, all levels of government provide some funding for WA Racing Industry infrastructure to supplement the relatively low levels of funding that the industry is able to fund from operations.
- (6) Other Sources – there are various other sources of some funding of the WA Racing Industry which include sponsors (primarily of Racing Club events), expenditure by patrons attending race meetings, and other income sources of Racing Clubs outside of WA Racing Industry participants.

In identifying these major sources of funding it is not to ignore the significant investments by many within the WA Racing Industry. However, this analysis is looking at those groups that provide externally sourced funding to the participants within the industry who invest time and infrastructure into producing the racing product. Breeders and trainers for example are invested but look to fund these ultimately from owners, stakes prizemoney, bonuses, and other WA Racing Industry funding.

5.2.2 Distributions from RWWA to the Racing Industry

The major source of funding to the Western Australian Racing Industry is the distributions paid by RWWA, which are funded by the wagering industry, and largely by the operations of the WATAB. Not only is this the major source of funding, but as it largely determines the stakes prizemoney that fundamentally determine the levels of all other activity in the racing industry process, it is the critical driver of the entire industry.

5.2.2.1 The Basis for Distributions / Payments by the WATAB to the Racing Industry

As touched on earlier in the Report, in the processes of creating RWWA as the principal racing authority for each of the Codes and the creation of, and subsequent transfer of, the WATAB into RWWA, the racing industry has agreed to these actions and the taking on and use of its racing product rights in return for the commitment of the payment of distributions to racing clubs as outlined in Section 3.1.3 of this Report. That is, in return for having the exclusive retail wagering rights in Western Australia, the TAB first and then RWWA took on the obligation to fund the WA Racing Industry pursuant to the licence / authority for this exclusive wagering capability.

To be very specific in this regard, the WA Racing Industry as defined as the Racing Clubs and all of its Participants, are the owners of the product and intellectual property rights associated with the production of racing through the three Codes. Accordingly, as an Industry the Racing Industry invests significant time, effort and money in the production of what is the Racing Product.

Prior to the establishment of TAB's in this country, these product rights were being used by SP bookmakers who used racing as the basis for their in most cases illegal bookmaking activities with no payment or compensation to the Racing Industry for the use of racing product. In establishing TAB's Governments acknowledged these intellectual and product property rights by requiring TAB's to make product fee payments to the Racing Industry (and separately and differently tax payments to the Government) for the use of these rights to operate their totalisator pools through exclusive licences to operate retail wagering within the relevant State. This was the case with the establishment of the Western Australian TAB.

With the establishment of RWWA in 2003 under the RWWA Act, RWWA became the Principal Racing Authority for each of the Codes. The intellectual and property rights of the WA Racing Industry were effectively licenced to RWWA at that time by the Racing Clubs and Participants, the consideration for the licencing of rights was the continuity of distributions/payments to the WA racing industry, through RWWA, for the use of these rights by the WATAB, and recognition by the WA Government of the obligations of the WATAB to fund the WA Racing Industry for the exclusive retail wagering authority it received. When the WATAB became part of RWWA this commitment and requirement was legislatively reflected in Section 50 of the RWWA Act which states:

“50 (i) ..... the functions of RWWA in relation to gambling include the following –

(c) to develop and implement a scheme for the distribution of net profits and to negotiate funding arrangements with individual racing club.”

The current distributions framework and other funding by WATAB/RWWA in place between the Racing Clubs and RWWA therefore reflects the currently accepted position of the WA Racing Industry and WATAB/RWWA in relation to this requirement, and hence establish both the process and current quantum under the process for payment by the WATAB to the WA Racing Industry in respect of WATAB's use of the Racing Industry's intellectual and racing product property rights.

This is reinforced in the RWWA Act through the provisions of Section 105 to 107 relating to distributions of funds to racing clubs by RWWA. Section 105 clearly reflects the embodiment in legislation of the quantum and distribution processes in place in the WATAB immediately prior to its transfer to RWWA for a three year period. Section 106 then, appropriately, identifies that quantum and allocations of such distributions between Codes will change over time and empowers, within frameworks, RWWA to establish the most appropriate criteria for these distributions. This is reflected in the current distribution quantum and allocations by RWWA.

Accordingly, given the current structure of RWWA with the TAB operation incorporated into its operations, the processes of decision-making, criteria establishment and distribution and overall total WA Racing Industry funding determination sit within and are embedded in the operations of RWWA and its Board. And given the above, these become the current baseline for any consideration of the privatisation of the WATAB and the payments required of the privatised WATAB to appropriately compensate the WA Racing Industry for the provision of its intellectual and racing product property rights.

Any change in process and/or redirection in this distribution regime could be argued as an action of technically breaching an inherent contractual arrangement between the TAB and WA Racing Industry through Government Legislation (which, in an indirect fashion could be argued, the Victorian Government has seen the consequences of recently in a judgment made in respect of its actions in relation to Tatts Group's Gaming Licence in Victoria).

Privatisation has previously seen elsewhere, and it will in Western Australia if the WATAB is privatised, the result being the externalising of this position and will require an explicit contractual arrangement between the WATAB and the WA Racing Industry to lock in the requirement for such payments, supported by appropriate legislative and licencing requirements.

5.2.2.2 Determining Distributions and the Allocation

As has been outlined previously, Section 106 of the RWWA Act establishes the basis on which distributions to the Racing Industry by WATAB/RWWA are to occur. Clearly the framework here is that the value of the intellectual and product property rights made available to the WATAB are reflected in its ability to generate net margin from the use of this product, particularly under its exclusive retail wagering authority, which under Section 106 is then, after meeting all costs, distributed to the WA Racing Industry. Accordingly, the level of distribution and total racing industry funding is determined in this way and by its very nature therefore ensures the continued and sustained provision of this level and quality of racing product from the WA Racing Industry. As reflected in Section 5.3 of this Report, it is this level of distribution and total racing industry funding that finely balances the inputs and outputs of the WA Racing Industry to drive this outcome.

In relation to the allocation and composition of these distributions and other funding between codes, between clubs, and with participants, there are a variety of considerations that are obviously taken into account in their determination by RWWA in Western Australia's case, and by the PRA's in all the States and Territories. Whilst clearly not being privy to the detailed elements of this with RWWA, from an overview of States and Territories including Western Australia the factors in these considerations are broadly similar although in different forms and extents between States and Territories, and as applied to RWWA appear to be:

- Event Fees (Club Funding) – to fund the general expenses incurred by the club in the preparation and conduct of the race day event associated with the race program.
- Owners Incentive Distributions
- Abandoned meeting subsidy payments to Clubs and Participants
- Payments for Riders and Drivers Fees and Australian Jockey Association funding
- Stakes money – prizemoney both Base and Feature Races
- Training Services
- On-course Bookmaker Fees
- Breeders and Owners Subsidy payments – payments made to Breeders and Owners under Westspeed, Westbred and Westchase programs for each Code respectively.

All of these payments are technically made to the Racing Clubs but for payments to industry participants these are actually made directly by RWWA to the participants on behalf of the Clubs.

In the determination of payments under each of these and other payment types and the allocations to Codes, participants, and Racing Clubs in each year some of the factors considered would appear to include:

- The calendar of racing allocated between the different codes and courses
- The incremental changes proposed to this calendar but with a desire not to result in a Racing Club running into deficit due to the inability to meet underlying fixed cost elements of their operation
- Maintaining general benchmarking levels in terms of relativities of stakes prizemoney levels across States, so changes in other States raise the need to look at local focuses with the stakes allocations in Western Australia.
- In general terms looking to attempt to optimise the wagering and entertainment outcomes from the delivery of the racing product
- Balancing up across the program the returns to owners given the slightly differing profiles of these across the Codes.

- Ensuring that breeders, owners and trainers particularly are provided with and the State generally achieves the black type/listed racing requirements to support the pedigree of the Western Australian Racing Industry within the Australian racing landscape.
- To support the participation level of all those in the WA Racing Industry, including drivers/jockey fees and the like and appropriate breeders bonuses
- To cater for relativities of cost between city and country, and the travel requirements of many participants and officials to provincial/country race tracks
- Acknowledging strategic and competitive advantage opportunities such as Interdominions in harness racing.
- Funding of training facilities to ensure availability and affordability with subsidised user pays structures.

These are just a list of a few of the many factors that RWWA would be expected to consider not just in the context of the level and allocations of distributions and other funding to the WA Racing Industry annually, but in relation to the welfare and operation of the WA Racing Industry generally. At present such decisions occur within RWWA itself funded by the inflows it receives from the operations of WATAB. In any potential privatisation the financial arrangements between a privatised WATAB and the WA Racing Industry must ensure that funding to the Industry is maintained to meet these required outcomes to underpin industry sustainability and ensure the continued racing product provision to wagering operators (including the privatised WATAB).

5.2.2.3 Levels of Distributions Paid

The outflow of these legal obligations and distribution allocation decisions by RWWA are reflected in the distributions that have been made by RWWA since 2004/5. These are set out in Table 5.2.2.3 over the page derived from RWWA's Annual Reports and its annual Racing Industry Status Reports.

TABLE 5.2.2.3 RWWA DISTRIBUTIONS TO RACING CODES ($M)

It should be noted in Table 5.2.2.3 that while the total distributions figures by Code and the overall totals are as reported in the RWVA Annual Reports, the table has used actual stakes paid (as opposed to stake distributions made to Racing Clubs) to better reflect actual returns to participants.

Accordingly, the figures for other participant distributions and Racing Club distributions will differ from reported figures as they incorporate adjustments for when actual stakes paid vary from stakes prizemoney distributed to the Clubs. So whilst the actual component figures of the total distributions made in the table do not technically exactly align to the year to year figures as reported, they do reflect a good picture of participant returns. The underlying premise here is that the Racing Clubs had sufficient funds available to meet the top-up requirement so RWVA limited its stakes distribution to force the Racing Clubs to use these funds for stakes prizemoney to Participants.

In this context this approach starkly illustrates the impact on returns to participants when total distributions were reduced in 2009/10 for the reasons outlined earlier in this Report. The reduction of around $5.5 million in total distributions (5.12% decrease on the 2008/9 distributions) resulted in a $6.65 million reduction in returns to participants, or close to a 7% decrease on the 2008/9 return levels (with the major part of this in the thoroughbred code).

In the 8 years covered by Table 5.2.2.3 it can be seen that distributions to the Racing Industry have grown by 73.18% (just over 7% p.a.), with Thoroughbred distributions growing 82.77%, Harness 56.64% and Greyhounds 67.79% (around 7.25% p.a., 5.8% p.a., 6.6% p.a. respectively). For the period from 2009/10 to 2012/13 these figures are 10.95% in total, and for the Codes 13.22%, 4.6% and 14.23% respectively. It is interesting to note that for the period from 2006/7 to 2012/13 these figures are 26.84%, 30%, 17.08% and 31.68%, whilst wagering turnover for WATAB for that period has grown by 29.1%. A couple of factors contributing to this lower rate of growth in distributions compared to WATAB's turnover growth is the reduction in the margin return on turnover (with the growth of some lower margin fixed odds product and of premium player turnover), proportionately greater growth in sports betting and hence sports related distributions, and a decrease in the proportion that distributions represent of the margin as other revenues and costs have in net terms resulted in a lesser percentage of the margin generated by wagering being available for distribution and total racing industry funding purposes.

It is understood that with the recent one-off payment by RWVA of $5 million in additional grant distributions just before the end of July to assist Racing Clubs to address their Occupational Safety and Health compliance obligations, total distributions for the 2013/14 financial year were $130.8 million (including grants)

In relation to the allocation of racing industry distributions between the 3 codes, there has been minor movements year-to-year based on various matters including different priorities, events within specific Codes, and changes in available funding, but in overall terms the allocation has moved as reflected below:

PERCENTAGE OF ALLOCATION OF DISTRIBUTIONS TO RACING CODES

|              | 2006/7             | 2012/13            |
|--------------|--------------------|--------------------|
| THOROUGHBRED | 59.0%              | 60.7%              |
| HARNESS      | 28.4%              | 26.2%              |
| GREYHOUND    | 12.6%       | 13.1%       |
| TOTAL | 100% | 100% |

The movements between these two dates, subject to relatively small annual fluctuations as discussed above, reflects an effective gradual trend in these movements throughout the 6 year period.

5.2.3 Racing Club Funding

Racing Clubs are the entities that provide the venue and arrange the event that facilitates the presentation of the racing industry product. In this event presentation there is a wide range of racing club offers provided ranging from racing clubs that conduct just one meeting per year, though provincial clubs that have around mid 20's numbers of meetings annually, up to Perth Racing with 90 meetings between Belmont and Ascot, Gloucester Park Harness Racing with 93 meetings, Cannington Greyhounds 103 meetings and Mandurah Greyhounds conducting 162 meetings per annum. Accordingly, the financial models for these clubs do vary widely but there is one fundamental message relatively consistent to most if not all of them, and that is that they at best break even financially in an operational cashflow sense with little to no funds available for infrastructure expenditure. This section discusses the financial position of WA racing clubs.

Given this spread of racing club size and operation, the financial position and reporting of these clubs is equally varied, with no consistency in the way their financial reports are produced. RWVA does not in any way formally consolidate the financial position of Racing Clubs, probably both reflecting this inconsistency and/or in a sense also enabling this inconsistency to occur. For this Report, the annual reports of all but 9 small racing clubs were able to be obtained for the 2012/13 financial year which represented nearly 99% of the total stakes distributions from RWVA provided in that year.

Subject to the inconsistent accounting treatments (particularly in many cases only having the availability of net bar and catering profits or net on-course totalisator returns), some of the observations of the financial operations of WA racing clubs for the 2012/13 year are as follows:

- Total income (subject to some netting) was in excess of $160 million
- Total expenses (again subject to some costs having been netted against revenue) was in the order of almost $165 million
- For the Racing Clubs included in the analysis this provided a combined operating deficit of approximately $3 million (which approximates the loss of Perth Racing if its one-off other income (predominately from land sales) is excluded)
- Excluding its one-off income items Perth Racing reported a $2.710 million loss, Gloucester Park Harness Racing reported a $0.386 million loss, and the WA Greyhound Racing Association reported at $0.384 million loss.

- Around 66.5% of the total income of racing clubs appears to come from RWWA distributions and other funding (of which around 63% is stakes distributions). This increases to almost 68% when Perth Racing, Gloucester Park and Greyhounds are excluded from the combination analysis.
- Excluding Perth Racing, Gloucester Park and Greyhounds the total profit outcome is a surplus of around $0.8 million which in general terms reflects minor surpluses in provincial thoroughbreds, very small surpluses to break even in country thoroughbreds, and mainly losses in harness racing clubs.
- Other income outside of RWWA distributions and other funding is comprised largely of bar and catering sales and on-course totalisator, with some sponsorship, function income, admissions and member subscriptions, training in certain instances, and other miscellaneous inflows make up the rest. As discussed in Section 4.4.2, on-course totalisator income has been decreasing in recent times.

These combined Racing Club financial figures reflect that there is no capacity to reduce funding to the WA Racing Industry without significantly damaging the financial position and hence potential sustainability of many of WA's racing clubs.

This current position has evolved largely from the distribution philosophies of RWWA and the reductions in on-course totalisator income. It also reflects the limited capacity for investment in facilities leading to stagnating or declining attendances as the overall event product provided by Racing Clubs struggles to compete with alternative leisure and entertainment offers, whilst also feeling the effects of the less buoyant Western Australian economic environment.

From discussions with RWWA Management it appears the distribution framework for Racing Clubs was previously more loosely based around percentages of on-course and off-course wagering turnover they contributed and the extent of external non-wagering turnover the course generated. From later last decade onwards, however, it appears that Racing Club distributions were largely flatlined as a strategic RWWA decision to increase distributions to participants, primarily through stakes funding enhancements, but also to other requirements such as the Australian Jockey's Association. There appears to have been at least a twofold focus with this, that is :

- To provide a more targeted strategy in terms of stakes, given the 2 television stations now covering racing, to maximise product by increased focuses on areas such as black type race availability, and the comparability of the race program to other States.
- To remove the simple but sub-optimal model for Racing Clubs of simply putting on more meetings to get more funding (irrespective of whether or not overall product and profitability benefitted) that flowed from this wagering revenue performance model.

So the brunt of the downward adjustment to distributions required in 2010 flowing from the disruptions of 2008/09 was felt by the Racing Clubs as participant funding remained the focus, combined with what could be described as a fairly blunt policy decision to straight line event fees to deal with a poorly set performance indicator on wagering turnover for Racing Club funding. This wagering turnover based approach did not focus nor necessarily reward Racing Clubs or their performance to broader industry product issues such as quality of animals, appropriate racing field sizes, and exposure and promotion and attendance-orientated race programming.

From discussions with both Country and Provincial racing club representatives, this worsened financial position for Clubs was reflected in a number of further issues facing their ongoing viability as follows:

1. Recently imposed OHS requirements has had significant cost and cash drain impacts on Racing Clubs, together with the increased and new responsibilities placed on voluntary Committees of the Clubs (increasing personal exposure leading to volunteers walking away).
2. Integrity and compliance requirements for racing and event management are more complex, expensive and in some cases constraining. People often need to be transported in and paid, eg; security, because required skills are not readily available (again especially in the country where there are no full time staff).
3. The significant cost of travel, especially to country meetings, given the issues raised above and the sheer size of the State.
4. The inability to fund infrastructure requirements and maintenance out of existing operational funding sources.
5. Horse numbers are a challenge for country thoroughbred and harness racing clubs because of hard tracks, the economics of racing is difficult, and the tyranny of distance (Kalgoorlie actually has its own stock of horses).

With all of these issues the viability of WA Racing Clubs does now appear to have been recognised by RWWA, with some initial responses helpful in attempting to get Racing Clubs through. At present, there does not appear to be any fundamental change in Racing Club funding philosophies, but RWWA have taken initiatives such as:

- RWWA staff providing financial advice and support in terms of assisting the Racing Clubs in their financial management activities.
- The provision of special distribution payments totalling $5 million by way of grants to Clubs in late July 2014 on a pro-rata basis “for use in addressing vitally important Occupational Safety and Health (OSH) issues at your club”, as outlined in letters to Racing Clubs from the RWWA Chairman, Jeff Ovens.
- Initiatives being considered focused at improving the on-course totalisator wagering offer (which will help those with reasonable wagering facilities).

Greyhounds, with its 3 tracks all operated by WA Greyhound Racing Association, also faces many of these issues. In addition with event fees not changing, its response has been to put on more meetings to remain viable. Clearly the major issue at present is Cannington, which is now being partly funded by RWWA, but more funding is needed to properly complete the project.

Under its current leadership, WAGRA understands that it needs to right size its administration but needs around $1.3 million to fund the redundancy cost to enable this right sizing to occur. Such an investment is recommended by RWWA with the people cost savings being used by WAGRA to fund both the full completion of the new Cannington facility and marketing expenditure, with distribution levels maintained. Other infrastructure is understood to be in reasonable condition, although ageing, and hence Greyhounds require the same positioning on this issue as the other Codes.

It also appears that in many cases Racing Clubs' finances are also being held up by additional support from RWWA through a variety of subsidy payments to cover various areas including:

- making the Product Fee payments of Clubs in respect of their on-course wagering.
- Paying the Sky Channel vision costs for the Clubs
- In some cases, and to varying degrees, costs of on-course wagering are absorbed and/or paid by RWWA
- The costs associated with the infrastructure and operation of broadcasting the Clubs' racing through Sky Channel.

This list is unlikely to be exhaustive of the subsidies and other funding support provided by RWWA in addition to the distributions made to Racing Clubs (and participants).

Clearly therefore all of this starkly reflects the fact that WA Racing Clubs, as with the rest of the WA Racing Industry, is operationally break even under the current settings of the industry. With no real growth in distributions to Clubs coming from RWWA out of the WATAB wagering business profits in recent times, and declining on-course totalisator proceeds, the Racing Clubs have no fat in their operations and require at least the same level of current distributions and subsidies from RWWA to continue to remain viable.

In reviewing the balance sheets of those Racing Clubs that were able to be obtained, there does not appear to be any material buffer in their balance sheets to provide any mitigant to this operational risk position. For example, of the 22 provincial and country thoroughbred racing clubs balance sheets examined, the average net working capital position across these was an approximately positive $108,000 - $109,000 which is insignificant when you consider that the average annual RWWA distribution to Racing Clubs in these categories is around $487,000 per Club, ie. a liquidity buffer of just over 20% of just one year's distribution. Of course this is an average and this position is obviously much worse in a number of Racing Clubs. For provincial and country harness racing clubs these respective figures are around $35,000 and $584,000, and hence only a 13% buffer on average.

As discussed elsewhere in this Report, this situation with Racing Club financing of an operational break-even position and no substantial reserves leaves no capacity for any funding of infrastructure investment from within the current racing industry funding model. This is particularly concerning when, from the Racing Club balance sheet reviews undertaken it is clear that many Club facilities are fully or close to fully depreciated, and from visual examination of facilities many of them are clearly in need of expenditure, but no substantial depreciation charges against income are occurring to provide funding for such expenditure.

Given these figures, the remainder of this section will therefore reference that WA Thoroughbred owners effectively fund 76% of the cost of racing a horse, harness owners fund 66%, and Greyhound owners fund 64%.

The returns to owners that therefore make up the balance of the costs of owning and racing the animal are funded by the major components of the distributions and other funding from WATAB/RWWA as set out in Table 5.2.2.3 and discussed earlier in this Report as :

- Base Stakes (specific owner percentage)
- Feature Stakes (specific owner percentage)
- Westspeed/Westbred/Westchase Bonuses
- Club Training Funds (designed to offset Racing Club and owner usage costs and maintain upkeep of facilities specific to training).

To therefore determine an estimation of the amount of funding provided by owners of horses and greyhounds for the WA Racing Industry on an annual basis, the total average annual operating cost per horse/dog derived in this analysis has been multiplied by the number of individual starters in the 2012/13 year. To this needs to be added the annual estimated investments made in new animals, again using 2012/13 estimated levels based on information from RWWA's Industry Status Reports.

On this basis the following estimated approximate annual net payments by owners in each Code are as follows (net of returns) :

|                             | THOROUGHbred   | HARNESS        | GREYHOUND     | TOTAL           |
|-----------------------------|----------------|----------------|---------------|-----------------|
| Annual Operating Costs      | $76.5m        | $34.3m        | Nil *         | $110.8m        |
| Annual new animal purchases | $12.0m        | $6.2m         | $5.5m        | $ 23.7m        |
| TOTAL                | $88.5m | $40.5m | $5.5m | $134.5m |

*Returns to Greyhound owners on an operating cost basis only are estimated on average to be close to 100% of operating cost.

Accordingly, it can be seen that owners in net terms (net of returns) probably provide greater or roughly equivalent funding to the WA Racing Industry for producing and maintaining racing animals than the distributions injected by RWWA paid to Racing Clubs and participants from the operations of the WATAB in relation to annual product costs. Of course, it needs to be recognised that RWWA provides a range of other funding to the WA Racing Industry in addition to distributions as discussed throughout this Report, as well as the costs of racing operations and integrity.

This net funding by owners is what has been called by some as the “acceptable loss” of owners, ie. the accepted cost to owners of the pursuit of the largely intangible benefits of the dream of major success with a horse or greyhound, the social interactions, the excitement of attending the racing experience, the joy of a winning experience, and the sense of common purpose and involvement in the sport. By its very nature this level of investment therefore has a large discretionary component to it, and is significantly determined by the perceived opportunity or probability of achieving at least a reasonable level of return, as largely determined by stakes prizemoney.

Whilst as previously discussed the models of owners vary significantly, it is very clear that stakes prizemoney levels will significantly impact owners’ involvement as follows:

- For larger and more financially orientated owners stakes prizemoney will more heavily and directly influence investment given the direct financial return implications
- For more hobbyist orientated owners the impacts of stakes prizemoney levels will be less direct and overt but will nevertheless determine overall preparedness to invest over time, particularly if there are reductions in stakes prizemoney.

It should be noted that the WA Racing Industry funding perspectives determined in this Report, whilst reflecting some differences, are generally reasonably consistent in context to the IER Report. The IER Report identified gross expenditure levels on wagering, preparing and racing animals, and customer expenditure. Taking the preparing and racing animals expenditure of $223.6 million in 2010/11 in the IER Report, this compares closely to the total figure of $224.5 million as the total expenditure figure by owners per this Report when the Annual Operating Costs (which is net of returns) of $110.8 million from the table above is added to the total racing distribution by RWWA of $113.7 million for 2012/13. Although a couple of years apart the general consistency of the figures indicate that these reflect reasonable indicative estimates of the funding of the WA Racing Industry.

5.2.5 Infrastructure Funding

The discussion to date on the funding of the Racing Industry in Western Australian has been in relation to operating expenditure. This section discusses the more problematic area of WA Racing Industry Infrastructure Funding. It is problematic because essentially the WA Racing Industry is generating only enough funding at present to break even on operations (with distributions and stakes prizemoney and other RWWA funding at levels just supporting this), with effectively little to no capability to meet infrastructure development or maintenance expenditure requirements.

Clearly the future development and sustainability of the industry is largely dependent on establishing, replacing and/or improving infrastructure at racing clubs to ensure facilities meet occupational safety and health (OSH) standards, licencing requirements, and the requirements of patrons.

At present, one source of funding for such expenditure is the Racecourse Infrastructure Grants Program (RIGP) established in July 2010 by the Western Australian Government, with an allocation of $13 million over 5 years (2010-2015). The aim of the RIGP is to support the establishment or improvement of infrastructure that is critical to the conduct of racing and/or training activities in both metropolitan and regional Western Australia. RIGP funding is offered on a partnership basis and as a general rule is only offered up to a maximum of 50% of the total project cost. The Western Australian Government provided further funding from the Royalties for Regions (R4R) program of $6.6 million in November 2012. As at 20 June 2014, RWWA advised that $9.7 million of RIGP and $2.9 million of R4R funding of the total $19.6 million of both combined had been spent, with RWWA adding further funding of $2.0 million to various projects.

Racing Clubs are then expected to secure the balance of funds required to undertake and complete projects from other sources, such as the Regional Development Commission, local government authorities, the Federal Government, RWWA, the Clubs' own resources, and/or from sponsorship. However, as explained earlier, Racing Clubs are facing significant financial pressures and finding it increasingly difficult to obtain other funding sources. Section 5.2.3 shows that Racing Clubs are barely breaking even operationally, any depreciation charged is largely inadequate or otherwise spent, and increased OSH and integrity requirements are expanding the required infrastructure expenditure beyond simply replacement and maintenance spend.

With the existing Government infrastructure funding programs set to conclude next year the question as to the continued funding of such infrastructure is unanswered at present. The concerns in this regard are compounded by a recent inventory of infrastructure spend requirements across the WA Racing Industry which is understood to have indicated a spend required of some $125 million. Whilst obviously an element of wish-list philosophy underpinned this listing, it nevertheless reflects the magnitude of this issue.

The 2008/9 review of the RWWA Act by the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts under the chairmanship of Mr. John McGrath MLA, entitled "Inquiry into the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts, Report No 2, 2010" (the McGrath Report) suggested a reduction in the wagering tax with funds retained by RWWA from the WATAB channelled into an infrastructure fund to generate annual spend and ongoing contribution to a corpus for the future.

Any privatisation of WATAB and resulting WA Racing Industry funding arrangements should encompass provision in relation to ongoing infrastructure funding requirements.

This could be achieved in a variety of ways such as:

- Factoring into any on-going distribution funding to the WA Racing Industry from WATAB, whether privatised or not, an additional and higher amount for infrastructure funding.
- If the WATAB is privatised a proportion of the sale proceeds could be allocated to an infrastructure fund.
- The existing cash reserves of RWWA could be allocated to an infrastructure fund.
- As suggested in the McGrath Report a reduction in the wagering tax with the amount of the reduction paid into an infrastructure fund.

An infrastructure fund, particularly if substantially seeded initially, could be used in a manner where investment returns, with a small annual release of capital, could then be supplemented by funding from the WA Government where public policy objectives were also part of the business case.

5.3 Code Value Chains

In properly understanding the implications of a potential privatisation of WATAB on the WA racing industry it is necessary to understand the value chains within each of the Racing Codes. It is only then that the Government can get a more accurate perspective of the effects of its decisions in this regard, and the WA Racing Industry will have a broader understanding of the potential impacts to its constituent parts. This Section of this Report attempts to outline key elements of the value chains of each of the Codes individually, recognising that in the time available for this study that this is a preliminary overview only of the important elements within these value chains, and the potential impacts of the potential privatisations of WATAB.

5.3.1 Thoroughbreds

As with the thoroughbred racing industries in all Australian jurisdictions (but arguably even to a greater extent in the relatively more isolated Western Australian racing industry), the cross-overs or joint involvements by participants in more than one part of the value chain is a feature in any discussion of the linkages and economic dependencies. The main groups directly involved in the thoroughbred racing industry are the breeders, the owners, the trainers, the jockeys, the stable staff, and the RWWA and Racing Club administrators. This latter group have been discussed elsewhere in this Report and won't be covered in this section.

The interconnectivity between the breeding, training and ownership activities are seen in the following statistics obtained in discussion with RWWA:

- 52% of the currently licenced trainers own a horse that started in the last 12 months (and this percentage would probably be substantially higher if horses owned by family members are included)
- 68% of thoroughbred breeders owned a horse that raced in the last 18 months.

Accordingly, there are limited examples of purity within elements of the value chain, and hence the following comments on the segments are made with this in mind.

5.3.1.1 Breeders

At its core the business model of breeders is to arrange a mare to foal, tend the weanling, and prepare the yearling for sale. Breeders will have their own stallions but will also look to service their mares with other stallions for the payment of a service fee. To facilitate this model many breeders will own their own property and some stallions and obviously a significant amount of broodmares.

Probably the best overall reflection of the difficult economic model faced by breeders in Western Australian is shown in the following table supplied by the Thoroughbred Breeders Western Australia (TBWA) outlining the average cost of bringing a yearling to sale in WA compared to the average sale price achieved at the main yearling sale in Perth.

|         | AVERAGEYEARLING COST | AVERAGESALE PRICE | COST VS SALE PRICEAVERAGES |
|---------|--------------------------|-----------------------|--------------------------------|
| 2007/08 | $26,460                 | $50,514              | $24,054                       |
| 2008/09 | $28,460                 | $38,247              | $ 9,797                       |
| 2009/10 | $30,300                 | $41,659              | $11,359                       |
| 2010/11 | $33,100                 | $44,639              | $11,539                       |
| 2011/12 | $35,500                 | $38,170              | $ 2,670                       |
| 2012/13 | $38,050                 | $39,367              | $ 1,317                       |
| 2013/14 | $39,400                 | $39,916              | $ 516                         |

The average sale prices are taken from the main sessions of the Magic Millions primary sale in Perth, and largely reflect the figures as contained in RWWA's annual Industry Status Report. The average yearling cost is based on the costings calculated on a mare producing a foal and it being raised and taken through to a yearling sale in February/March of its yearling year. The basis of these costings are set out later in Table 5.3.1.1A (shown for the 2013 year with comparable figures for the 2008 year).

The table above clearly illustrates the contraction in returns to breeders in the Western Australian thoroughbred market flowing from a compound annual growth rate in cost over the last 6 years of 7% per annum, at a time of decline or certainly no growth in average sale prices being received.

This impact is then reflected in Breeding Distribution Statistics from the Australian Racing Fact Book 2012/13, which shows that the Western Australian breeding figures are falling quicker than the overall Australian figure. This is illustrated in WA's proportion of national stallions falling from 12.4% in 2009/10 to 11.1% in 2012/13, for broodmares the figures are 12.3% down to 11.7% for the same period, and significantly the proportion of the nation's foals fell from 11.7% to 9.6% from 2007/08 to 2012/13.

The stagnate yearlings sale environment is even further emphasised when the statistics for total yearling sales in Perth over the last 10 years (as provided by Magic Millions) are considered, as set out later in Table 5.3.1.1B. When total yearlings sold for the year are taken into account, the average prices achieved per year from the data in Table 5.3.1.1B are as listed below:

|------|--------------------------------------|
| 2005 | 23,834                               |
| 2006 | 28,514                               |
| 2007 | 30,844                               |
| 2008 | 32,399                               |
| 2009 | 24,600                               |
| 2010 | 28,947                               |
| 2011 | 30,254                               |
| 2012 | 29,722                               |
| 2013 | 30,069                               |
| 2014 | 33,755                               |

When these results are considered against the average cost of preparing a yearling for sale as listed in Table 5.3.1.1A for the corresponding years, the economic model on average for breeders is shown to be very tight. This is on top of the situation where there is a loss of around 30% of yearlings on catalogue for sales due to withdrawals from injury and passed in yearlings that don't sell at sales. This is also after about at least 5% of foals who do not make their first birthday.

Of concern more generally for the WA thoroughbred industry (and particularly breeders) is that when the aggregate on gross sales proceeds and average yearling prices for a number of Eastern State sales are considered (particularly the larger sales), there is generally more evidence of growth in these statistics. Some of the smaller yearling sales around Australia have exhibited equally challenging outcomes as the Perth sales, but with larger sales reflecting better results this is of concern to the WA Racing Industry. Under any potential privatisation of WATAB the incentives to breeders and buyers of thoroughbred yearlings, predominantly in the form of stakes prizemoney and incentive bonuses, need to be maintained and to continue to grow into the future.

NOTES:

The costings calculated are on a mare producing a foal and it being raised and taken through to a yearling sale in Feb / March of its yearling year. The costing are also worked out on average that a mare foals in around October, and a foal is weaned at 6 months approx. 1 April of the following year.

*The van serve costings is based on the mare going in foal on the first attempt

**The extra agistment charge for the mare when the foal is born is only the 'gap' difference between a wet mare and a dry mare

**We assume that the mare is back in foal and that agistment costing is allocated to the next foal.
We have allocated agistment costs as a constant as although members with their own properties will have a base feed cost, they also have their labour, land holding expenses and property maintenance costs to consider.

A thoroughbred breeder's broad financial model looks something like the following:

Income

Service Fees
Agistment
Sale of yearlings
"Acquisition of Ownership Stakes"

Expenses

Stock purchase (stallions and mares)
Service Fees
Mare/Weanling/Yearling Expenses (per Table 5.3.1.1A)
Property Expenses
Veterinary Expenses
Feed
Staff Wages
Other Expenses

In general terms for these income items, service fees in Western Australian are under pressure because of lack of depth and quality of the stallions, sales of yearlings have stagnated (but less yearlings generally), and acquisition of ownership stakes is really only transferring what should be breeding income into ownership of racehorses. As indicated earlier, breeders are very significant horse owners, often forced into this position to get a sale done because of the inability to sell otherwise. It should be said that this level of horse ownership by breeders is not a Western Australian phenomena, as reflected in the key findings of a report entitled "Breeders' Contribution to Racehorse Ownership" released by the Thoroughbred Breeders Australia in February 2010, which found the following on a national basis:

- 84% of breeders own racehorses
- Breeders have an ownership share in 63% of all racehorses in training
- When the ownership percentages of shares in racehorses owned by breeders is added together it equates to an equivalent of full ownership of 45% of all racehorses in training.

In Section 5.2.4 of this Report the returns to ownership were outlined, and hence such acquisition (or retention) of horse ownership is not on average a returning investment, reflecting limited overall returns from the WA Racing Industry for breeders when this is put alongside the challenging returns position from breeding.

In relation to expenses, Tables 5.3.1.1A in this section outlines the overall increases here. Later in this Chapter of this Report some of the specific expense areas will be discussed in more detail.

From discussions with thoroughbred breeders it is clear the Westspeed Incentive Scheme, including the recently introduced Westspeed Stallions initiative, is a major factor encouraging breeders to stay in breeding despite the difficult financial model outlined above. This is particularly so in the context of providing breeders with the opportunity to access an ongoing revenue stream from the yearlings they have previously sold, via their racing success. In a number of cases it was expressed that without such a scheme it was likely that the breeder would shut down. This program is providing the basis to at least enable breeders to compete at some level with the Hunter Valley and Victorian industry participants for stallions which would not otherwise be possible.

This Westspeed Incentive Scheme and the other RWWA distributions and funding that drive owners and others to continue in the WA Racing Industry must be maintained under a potential privatisation model.

5.3.1.2 Trainers

As with breeders the trainers' business model is in many cases intertwined with horse ownership. Trainers operate on what appears to be many different models, with the extent of horse ownership being the major differential to their financial models. This directly affects the proportionality of a trainer's income that is represented by Trainers Fee and their trainer's share of prize money as opposed to the extent of horse ownership stakes prizemoney. However, from discussions with trainers and from reviewing various profit and loss statements of trainers in differing positions in relation to the extent of horse ownership, it is clear that training fees levied to external owners at best only just meet the costs of training their thoroughbreds.

In general terms the financial model for trainers looks something like the following:

Income

- Training Fees
- Expenses reimbursed by owners
- Trainers Percentage
- Agistment
- Stakes Prizemoney

Expenses

- Pre-Training expenses
- Feed
- Veterinary expenses
- Property expenses
- Office overheads
- Staff Wages
- Other Expenses

Training fees for metropolitan/provincial trainers are currently around $70-$80 per day, with trainers at the lower end making essentially no profit. These training fees have increased from $60-65 per day in 2008, an increase of around 20-25% over those 6 years, or around 3.5% to 3.75% per annum. It is generally considered that there are too many trainers within the WA industry which therefore puts pressure on fee levels resulting in them being set at levels that provide little return to trainers. This is reflected in the ratio of thoroughbred training licences to horses that raced – a 6:1 ratio in WA in 2012/13 compared to 7-9:1 in the Eastern States. With owners expectations on fees conditioned by this position, trainers will often either use themselves or family members for strapping and other work on public holidays because it is otherwise too expensive if staff on penalty rates are used and owners will dispute bills, won't pay, and/or may move the horse to another trainer.

In the case of most country trainers, it is understood that they generally charge training fees of around $60-$65 per day, with extras at around the same as city rates. Given many costs would be around the same levels as for city/provincial trainers, the financial model would be very difficult.

The Trainers percentage of 10% of stakes prizemoney is obviously a variable source of income dependent on success and can't be relied upon but clearly helps to improve the books of trainers.

Depending upon the size of the operation and the extent of the horse ownership, these two sources (plus expense reimbursement by owners) can provide between around 75-100% of a trainer's income with large trainers able to enhance income at this lower end by agistment, and to a lesser extent stakes prizemoney from ownership.

The high levels of ownership of racehorses by trainers generally (although not in all cases) arises from a number of reasons, with the predominant ones appearing to include:

- Trainers buying horses at sales without committed owners and being left with unsold shares – which has been made more likely by the change in rule to allow 20 names of owners in the racebook (previously only 10) which enable owners to achieve their objectives of ownership with a lower investment
- Actively taking ownership percentages to entice owners to buy certain horses, or conversely requested by loyal owners
- Other objectives flowing from their broad involvement in the industry, such as supporting family member's involvement and/or employment in the industry.

Again, as with breeders, trainers face the similar horse ownership financial model as previously outlined, although clearly absorbing their share of the trainers fee through personal exertion. Whilst stakes prizemoney as owners helps to improve their income flow, the absorbed on average losses of horse ownership again just adds to the difficult financial model facing trainers.

On the cost side, some of these expenses will be discussed in more detail below, but with training fee increases only reflecting less than 4% per annum growth and RWWA distributions to participants exhibiting less growth than this, the training financial model is under pressure, with many struggling to meet their ongoing commitments, as in many cases cost increases are much greater than this.

Whilst trainer's financial models do vary significantly some general observations of the cost base and hence a context of operational outcomes are as follows:

- Wages would appear to constitute somewhere around 30-33% of a trainer's cost base when stable staff (roughly about one staff member to every five horses), track riders and the like are taken into account. As will be discussed later, the award rates for these staff has increased at around 23-25% over the last six years, and hence trainers fees increases have only just met these increases.
- Property costs range around 5-10% depending upon repairs and maintenance requirements.
- Veterinary expenses represent around 4-6% of total costs

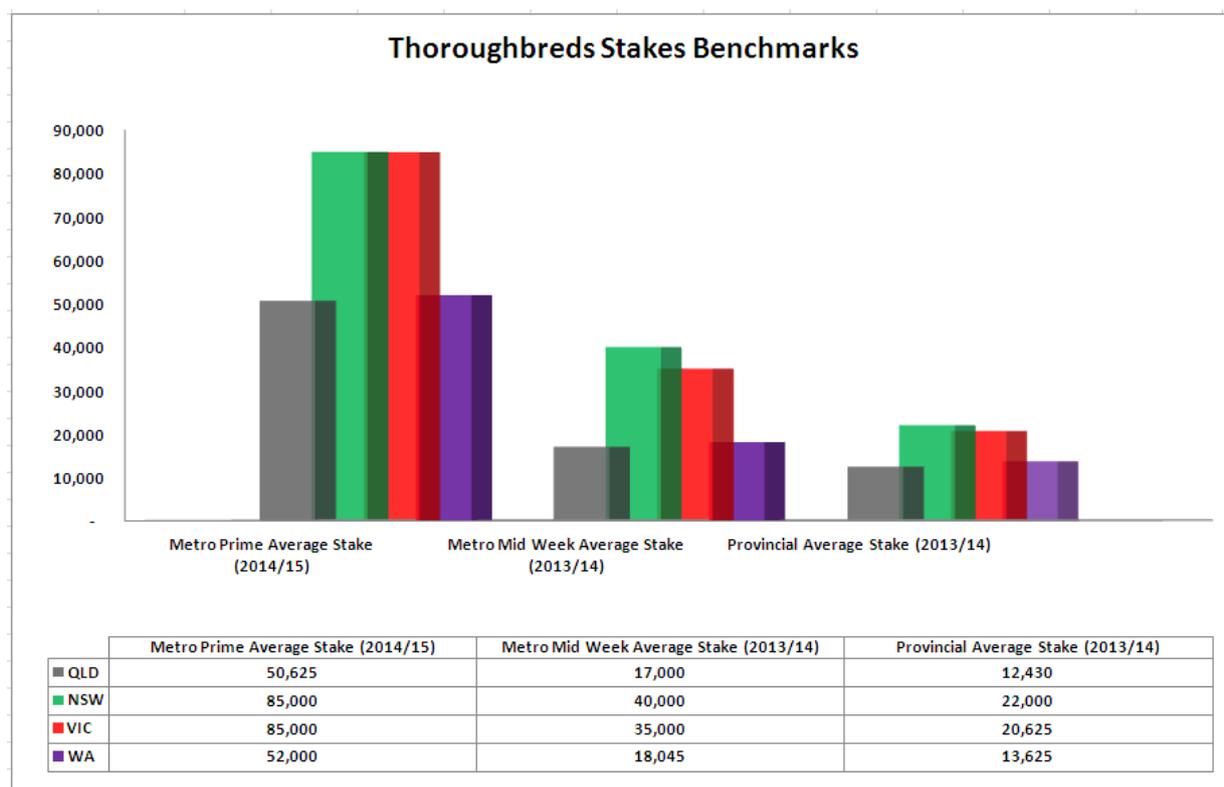

- Pre-training costs (such a breaking in, etc) can vary from 5% to more than 15% of cost depending upon the training business model in place and whether agistment / pre training facilities are owned or paid for externally
- Net profit or surplus before tax expressed as a percentage of revenue can obviously fluctuate fairly significantly but would appear to on average come in at between 1.5% to 4% of total revenue for those trainers that can generate a surplus, which does not represent a significant return in an operational sense, especially for the many who do not generate such surpluses given these are average numbers, and generally the figures do not include a wage for the trainer.

As the trainer's financial and business model relies on owners paying trainers fees and other costs of training and on the returns of horse ownership (whether a hobby or a business), the trainer is intimately tied into the economic model of horse ownership. This model was fully discussed in Section 5.2.4. As this ownership model is primarily dependent upon wagering funded distributions and other funding from RWWA for direct funding and for providing the incentive for owners to continue to invest for stakes prizemoney, the trainer's financial model is therefore similarly dependant and subject to any impacts that privatisation of the WATAB would have on that model. It can be seen that the training financial model works on small to no margins in an operational sense, with again property assets supporting operational provision and reflecting in most cases the only retirement wealth support/superannuation base for many trainers.

5.3.1.3 Owners

Owners are clearly a very widely spread group of participants in the WA Racing Industry with an equally varied set of financial and business models through which such ownership occurs. Section 5.2.4 discussed in full the owners' financial model in the WA racing industry and its positioning in the context of any potential privatisation. The diversity of owners ranges from those that fully own large numbers of horses (often including stallions, broodmares and yearlings) to those who hold a 10% syndicate share in one horse. In discussions with some of the larger owners it is quite common that a number of them have progressed to breeding as an extension of their racing industry involvement and to diversify across the value chain. In many cases it is also clear that other income sources outside of racing are what is funding generally a significant deficit on their racing involvement. Increased focus by the Australian Taxation Office on these involvements is an ongoing issue of potential risk to this source of funding to the WA Racing Industry.

In Section 5.2.4 the importance of the stakes prizemoney levels to owners' continued investment in the WA Racing Industry was also discussed. The Chart on the next page provides a comparison of average metropolitan and provincial thoroughbred stakes prizemoney across Queensland, New South Wales, Victoria and Western Australia. The chart reflects the large disparity from the major Eastern State markets, and some relativity to Queensland racing, although recently announced feature race prizemoney increases in Queensland will probably see this position change. Western Australia's average stakes prizemoney comparisons to major racing jurisdictions as reflected in this chart clearly evidence the need to maintain and provide ongoing improvement in levels of WA Racing Industry funding to remain competitive and ensure owners of WA thoroughbreds continue to invest in horses and fund the operations of the Industry.

5.3.1.4 Jockeys

RWWA's Industry Status Report of 2013 indicated that there were 88 jockeys and 38 apprentice jockeys registered in the 2012/13 year. These jockeys are paid by RWWA through the Racing Clubs. RWWA sets the jockey fee in negotiation with the WA Jockeys Association which for fully accredited jockeys is presently $172.50 per ride and for apprentice jockeys is also $172.50. Jockeys also get paid 5% of any stakes prizemoney paid to horses they ride, with this money for apprentices going into a Trust Fund for future access.

The Western Australian Jockey Association (WAJA) advises that of the around 90 jockeys registered with RWWA, about 1/3 of them are full-time jockeys with the rest being seasonal or part-time jockeys. Whilst some jockeys do a small amount of trackwork, nearly all of their income comes from race riding fees (with minor amounts from Engagement Fees on scratchings) and their 5% of stakes (although the stakes money income is dominated by a small number of major jockeys). On this basis the overall picture as described by the WAJA is that probably around 20 jockeys in the metropolitan area are generating reasonable returns from racing (reflecting earning in excess of $80,000 per annum), while the rest are in more difficult financial positions, particularly country jockeys who incur significant travel costs and equipment costs as their gear wears out quicker.

To expand on this further, from discussions with RWWA, it appears that in terms of looking at income bands applying to rankings of jockeys in groups of 10 from the highest group of 10 to the lowest group of 10, that only the top 30 jockeys (or the top 3 groups of 10 jockeys), earned an average income above what would be considered the minimum wage level in 2012/13.

Many outside of these are either seasonal or part time riders. There are 30 jockeys who are predominantly country riders, some who move about to ride all year round and some who just ride in the region's racing season. Only around 6 of these country jockeys earned above what would be considered to be the minimum wage level in 2012/13.

Apprentice jockeys have the same financial model as jockeys (except for some initial travel assistance from RWWA). It would appear that around half of them would have earned around the minimum wage level in 2012/13. It is understood that around 20 of the 38 rode for the entire season.

The financial model for jockeys is their income as outlined above, and expenses which encompasses travel costs (drive, fly, accommodation if necessary) which are very rarely reimbursed by Racing Clubs, race and track riding gear costs, and discretionary sports medicine type expenses such as physiotherapy, personal training, weight loss systems, as well as personal accident / income protection insurance, etc., RWWA have increased funding in terms of meeting the costs of a sports doctor and psychologist being available to jockeys, paying medical expenses and workers compensation insurance, race meeting accident and public liability insurance premiums, and paying superannuation (in lieu of an increase in the riders fee). It should also be noted that jockeys, whilst covered by RWWA's Workers Compensation Insurance, are not employees and consequently do not receive annual or personal leave.

In a general high level financial assessment of jockey's income position in Western Australian based on 2013 figures, the following calculation was undertaken

|                        |                  |             | Per Jockey/Apprentice (126) |
|------------------------|------------------|-------------|---------------------------------|
| Starters in            |                  |             |                                 |
| Races (23,364) X $172 | =                | $4,018,608 | $31,894                        |
| 5% Jockeys             | Total Stakes     |             |                                 |
| Percentage             | X ($50,361,907) | =           | $2,518,095                     |
|                        |                  |             | $19,985                        |
|                        |                  |             | $6,536,703              |
|                        |                  |             | $51,879                 |
|                        |                  | =====       | =====                           |

Based on this calculation (which is obviously only a very high level estimate), and clearly has no allowance for any workers compensation payments received, on average jockeys are being paid around $32,000 annually in riders fees. It is interesting to compare this to the minimum wage rate for a trackrider under the Horse and Greyhound Training Award which currently would establish a minimum annual payment for an adult trackrider of around $35,600. Whilst clearly there is the capacity for jockeys to enhance this through the percentage on stakes prizemoney, this would generally fall to a smaller number of jockeys, and hence for a large number of jockeys pay rates are around what could be considered to be minimum wage rate levels.

5.3.1.5 Staff

Breeders, trainers and some owners employ a number of people to work in their stables and other operations. The IER Report indicated there were 2,614 Breeders Staff and 422 trackriders/stablehands employed in the Western Australian thoroughbred industry. There are also many casual workers employed across the industry from time-to-time, including backpackers and the like.

In the context of understanding the financial perspective here, Appendix 2 to this Report is the current Horse and Greyhound Training Award minimum wage rates across various classifications, which range from adult rates through to rates applying to employees down to 15 years of age. To illustrate the cost pressures flowing from this group, adult rates for Stablehand – Grade 1 and Stable Foreman were obtained for 2008 and 2014 for single time and Sunday Casual rates as follows:

|                      | SINGLE TIME |       | SUNDAY CASUAL |       |
|----------------------|-------------|-------|---------------|-------|
|                      | 2008        | 2014  | 2008          | 2014  |
| STABLEHAND – GRADE 1 | 14.08       | 17.35 | 35.20         | 43.38 |
| STABLE FOREMAN       | 15.94       | 19.64 | 39.86         | 49.10 |

The increases in these rates across that time have been 23.2% for both Single Time Stablehand and for Sunday Casual, and for the Foreman the increases were 25% and 23.2% respectively. This increase equates to around 2.75% per annum compounded over the six years and given the significance of this cost to these operations has worked to put pressure of the financial models of participants in the WA thoroughbred racing industry.

Breeding staff would appear to be covered under Agricultural or Pastoral Farm Awards to which the Minimum Conditions of Employment Act 1993 would seem to apply. As the pay rates in accordance with this Act currently applying are similar for single time adult employment as the rates above, it is assumed that this situation also applies to breeders.

5.3.2 Harness

As discussed in relation to the thoroughbred racing industry in Western Australia, the value chain of Western Australian Harness racing is also extremely interwoven with high levels of ownership of horses held by breeders and trainers. Data provided by RWWA indicates that around 68.5% of Breeders Groups of standardbreds raced a horse in West Australia in the past 18 months, or if focused to individuals rather than groups their percentage was around 56%. In relation to trainers the following statistics reflect the extent of ownership.

- Approximately 76% of harness racing trainers raced a horse they owned in the last 18 months.
- Approximately 44% of horses that raced in the last 18 months were owned in some sort of ownership configuration by their trainer.

So again the value chain discussion reflects a large degree of this cross-over throughout the harness racing value chain.

5.3.2.1 Breeders

According to the IER Report there were around 1,860 harness racing breeders in WA (assuming an average of 2 breeders per broodmare) in the 2010/11 year. It is estimated that over 90% of these were hobbyists, with only a handful of full-time breeders. Breeding of a harness racing horse is essentially a four year proposition which needs both confidence to invest and the ability to meet the financial commitment over that period.

From discussions with the Breeders Owners Trainers Reinsperson Association (BOTRA) it was advised that only about 50% of foals end up racing.

The low returns and tight economics for harness horse breeding is reflected in a number of fairly damning economic and business statistics for harness racing breeders :

- From RWWA'S Industry Status Report 2013 the amount of Standardbreds born in WA in 2012/13 was 459, down from 659 the previous year
- This drop-off in breeding is reinforced by advice from RWWA that in the last 18 months just 263 Breeding Groups, consisting of 434 individuals, bred a Standardbred foal in Western Australia
- Whilst the average yearling price achieved in 2012/13 was $13,517, which grew from $10,829 the year before based on figures in RWWA Industry Status Report 2012/13, this is still below the $15,000-$20,000 estimated cost of getting the horse to the sales.
- This average yearling price in 2012/13 clearly reflects the scarcity value of the drop off in local breeding, given average prices of just $9,071, $10,120 and $10,829 in the preceding three years (per the same Industry Status Report).

The cost base for harness breeders reflects costs similar to those of thoroughbred breeders, with the major costs being :

- Property costs – some breeders (mainly the larger ones) own property for breeding purposes and some agist.
- Veterinary expenses
- Farriers
- Transport
- Feed merchants
- Harness equipment

As with thoroughbred breeding, these costs (as will be further discussed later), have in nearly if not all cases escalated at rates in excess of the increases in distributions (stakes), and particularly greater than the returns through sales proceeds to local breeders. This can be seen in the declining total sales proceeds over the last five years as follows (from RWWA's Industry Status Report 2013) :

|         | StandardbredSales Proceeds($M) |
|---------|---|
| 2008/09 | 8.717                                   |
| 2009/10 | 5.878                                   |
| 2010/11 | 6.497                                   |
| 2011/12 | 7.136                                   |
| 2012/13 | 6.204                                   |

RWWA's Westbred incentive bonus scheme has played a critical role in steadying the declining investment proposition faced by harness racing breeders (and owners as well) by providing early cashflows for Westbred foals, and also credits under the EPONA Mares Bonus Scheme.

Nevertheless, the difficult financial model here, and the hobbyists/cottage industry nature of local breeding in harness racing in Western Australia has seen a significant number of Eastern States and New Zealand horses being brought into the State to uphold the quality and size of the harness racing product.

The ability and propensity to bring these horses in lies largely in the stakes offered in WA harness racing being at very competitive levels relative to interstate stakes levels eg; when compared to Victoria they are about 120%-124% of comparable Victorian stakes levels, other than for midweek metropolitan races which are at essentially the same levels ie, 100% of Victorian stakes levels. This position is obviously supported by the stakes distributions made by RWWA, and it is interesting to note that harness racing's share of distributions to the WA Racing Industry is 26.2% of the total, whilst its contribution to wagering turnover on just WA racing is only 19%, and around 16% of total betting on racing through WATAB. With no ability for Harness Racing Clubs to top up the RWWA stakes distributions because of their parlous financial position, harness racing in Western Australia is totally dependent upon the continuation of distribution and other RWWA funding levels at current levels, with breeders obviously facing difficult breeding financials and with their significant horse ownership levels on average further deteriorating this position.

5.3.2.2 Trainers

As outlined earlier, harness racing trainers are very substantial owners of horses through syndication. Trainer's business and financial models vary widely with some also being breeders, and often they are drivers as well. It is therefore not possible to make a generic assessment of the trainers' part of the value chain given that trainers will generate income with widely varying compositions from :

- Breeding – sale of horses
- Agistment
- Training fees
- Driver fees
- Stakes prizemoney

It is understood that there are around 7 leading trainers that generate strong and well above average returns which effectively more than proportionately reduces the amounts available to be spread over the rest in the industry, which is a substantial matter for these others given the 238 trainers and 370 driver/trainers registered with RWWA.

WA harness racing training fees are around $50-$55 per day, which when considered against the similar cost base structures and pressures discussed for breeders and for thoroughbred trainers, suggests that the trainer's percentage of stakes prizemoney at 7.5% of any such stakes is an extremely high dependency for trainer's financial positioning given the low level of training fees.

Accordingly, training in its own context is not a high return generator, if at all. This is reflected by the situation where the leading trainer in the State with over 200 winners (the first time this has ever been achieved) was only able to generate a very minor profit when considered against the stakes prizemoney these achievements represented.

The extent of trainer's horse ownership holdings varies significantly meaning the extent to which this draws on their financial position and further leverages their dependency on overall stakes and distributions levels equally varies. However, again, the overall horse ownership contribution as discussed in Section 5.2.4, with the high horse ownership position of trainers, places significant pressure on trainers' general financial model.

The position of drivers will be discussed below, but with driver/trainers representing around 80% of the industry's drivers this is the dominant model for harness racing driving in the WA harness racing industry. This clearly absorbs the income (and costs) profiles of the driver into the overall training financial model, with a driver's income being the driver race fees and the 5% of stakes prizemoney.

Therefore, with such a high ownership penetration, and low training fees, it appears that the majority of trainers do little more than break even on operations after extracting a living, based again on the relatively high stake levels provided in WA harness racing, with limited room to absorb any less funding without relatively immediate reductions in size, with this obviously being most immediate for those not in the top 7 or so of trainers.

5.3.2.3 Drivers

The drivers' income model is comprised of the RWWA funded race fee of $60 plus 5% of stakes prizemoney for a first three finish. Taking a similar analysis as performed for jockeys, the total number of registered drivers in 2012/13 was around 440, there were 23,169 starters, and total stakes prizemoney was $22.235 million. So estimated returns to drivers in total was :

|                 |          | Returns to Drivers |
|-----------------|----------|--------------------|
| 23,169          | X $60 = | $1,270,140        |
| 5% X $22.235 m | =        | $1,117,750 |
|                 |          | $2,387,890 |

If this is divided by 440 (the number of registered drivers) the average income per driver is around just $5,430, reflecting an average of just 48 race drives per driver. This is clearly highly misleading given that discussions with a leading driver only (ie, not also a trainer) indicated that he goes to every meeting he can and would drive in 900-1000 races annually. Again, a handful of drivers (and driver/trainers) will generate reasonable returns (and take a good part of the amount available for drivers' percentage), whilst a large number clearly undertake the involvement as a hobby. Continued funding by RWWA, particularly paying drivers, is critical in supporting the current industry in what is clearly a low wage/low return situation for drivers who need to meet all their own travel and motor vehicle expenses, racing attire and safety gear costs, and personal medical and accident insurance costs, together with the administration costs in organising their drives.

5.3.2.4 Owners

Section 5.2.4 outlined the financial model facing harness racing/standardbred owners on average – a model reflecting the concept of acceptable loss. Stakes levels being on average between around 16-24% above Victorian levels and at or above levels around Australia generally reflect the need for the stakes levels in Western Australia to meet the costs of this Code, and hence keep owners in harness racing in the State. Ownership numbers in WA harness racing on any measure have shown significant decline over the last five years. Depending upon the exact ownership definition the decline will vary, but in general terms it seems to be around 13-15% over the period.

Given the return ratio discussed in Section 5.2.4, the current WATAB/RWWA funding levels (including Westbred incentives) are necessary to keep this decline in ownership from accelerating.

5.3.2.5 Staff

The IER Report identified in 2010/11 that there were around 972 and 286 people employed by breeders and as trackriders/stablehands respectively in harness racing in Western Australia. As the same matters raised with thoroughbred industry staff apply to harness racing staff this will not be further discussed here.

5.3.3 Greyhounds

The value chain for greyhound racing is even more co-mingled than for the other Codes, with high levels of integration across breeding, training and ownership of greyhounds. In broad terms it would also appear that there are 3 to 4 trainers taking a large proportion of the stakes prizemoney available, particularly in metropolitan racing. The Greyhound racing industry in WA has in more recent times been challenged by the uncertainty associated with the position at Cannington and its funding. Whilst not fully resolved the provision of $13 million from RWWA has provided an ability to move forward, albeit with some temporary arrangements until fully required funding can be achieved.

5.3.3.1 Breeding

The IER Report identified 99 greyhound breeders in Western Australia in 2010/11, but it is unclear how many of these were also trainers and/or owners. There has been declining numbers of greyhounds born in WA over the last 5 years, declining by over 25% over that period. The decline and the lack of returns for local breeders is reflected in the position that in 2012/13 WA bred greyhounds made up only around 33.5% of all the unique runners in WA races (just 613 of the 1,828 unique runners), although part of the reason for this would probably relate to the uncertainty over Cannington as referred to earlier impacting local breeding, which could partly turn around given some degree of a way forward now.

The economics of greyhound breeding in Western Australia appears to be generally underpinned by the Westchase Incentive Scheme. Bonuses under this Scheme are paid to the owners and breeders of all WA bred greyhounds based on winning certain race classes and/or types, and is non-contributory for industry participants. This scheme, together with stakes prizemoney at the levels they are currently (70-75% of Victorian levels for city, and 120% for country and provincial) is underpinning not only the locally bred but also the importation of a large number of Eastern State bred greyhounds.

5.3.3.2 Trainers

RWWA's Industry Status Report 2013 identified 249 registered greyhound trainers, whilst the IER Report identified some 295 trainers in 2010/11 which was around the level in the RWWA Status Report for that year. The common financial model in greyhounds throughout Australia, and particularly so in Western Australia, is for trainers to take a 50% share of a greyhound with the owners, charge no training fees, and equally share the ownership rights and obligations (with variations between trainers on items such as veterinary costs or trial expenses). This very strong attachment to greyhound ownership and the "partnership" model with owners places trainers close to the greyhound ownership economics in an operational perspective, and in many cases essentially a total ownership sense if the "capital" cost is incorporated into the partnership.

In discussions with industry representatives it was established in their view that there were around 20 professional, full-time trainers. This indicates a significant number of part-time and hobby trainers and trainer/owners who will largely be involved in these roles for purposes of personal enjoyment and occasional track success largely within a cottage industry environment, based on current distribution and other RWWA funding levels. However, this industry picture needs to be seen in the context of a dramatic fall of over 15% in 2012/13 of the number of greyhound trainers, coupled with the substantial drop in greyhounds born.

The cost base of greyhound trainers again reflects a number of similar items to the horse trainers' position, with fuel and transport, feed, veterinary, power/water, and registration fees the major cost items (see Section 5.3.4). With no significant changes in stakes prizemoney over the last five years until 2012/13 (that year to bolster provincial racing), these costs had been increasing with no commensurate change in the inflows to the participants, putting pressure on both the trainers and owners financial position under the 50/50 structure.

To the extent that breeder/trainers and/or trainers have their own properties on which to raise and/or train greyhounds, these properties generally represent their retirement (superannuation) plan. Given however that these properties will be sold with the kennels and track the value of this property nevertheless lies more so in having a sustainable greyhound racing industry in Western Australia.

5.3.3.3 Owners

With trainers and owners subject to this cost escalation (see Section 5.3.4 below) without movement in stakes to those levels, the current balance within the greyhound industry financial model (which contains a large proportion of cottage industry participation), offers minimal flexibility for changes in stakes levels, bonusing and overall wagering operator funding under a potential privatisation model.

In Section 5.2.4 the Report discussed the position of owners, which reflected a clearly better net investment position for greyhound owners than in the other Codes. Despite the greyhound code distributions representing 13.1% of total distributions, whilst generating approximately 21.7% of WA wagering turnover on WA racing and around 31% of total racing wagering turnover of WATAB, the stakes prizemoney paid continues to attract local and imported dogs (either pups or ready to run) of around 915 per annum, with an ever increasing proportion of imported greyhounds. This wagering performance reflects the current situation in which in Western Australia there are six meetings per week broadcast by Sky Channel predominantly focused to drive wagering revenue.

5.3.4 Other Major Costs Items / Other Industry Stakeholders

There are a significant range of suppliers to the WA racing industry that impact these value chains and who are also therefore stakeholders in the industry and its funding model. There are a number of these stakeholders that have less direct dependency in their business model specifically on the WA Racing Industry, such as the power / gas / water utilities, transporting and freight, motor vehicle and fuel providers, and the events industry generally. For these suppliers the cost / charges escalation rates faced by the WA Racing Industry are understood from these suppliers' general price increases experienced by businesses generally – electricity around 10% this year and expected future higher increases, water price increases of 47% over 3 years to 2011 and 6% last year, motor vehicle service costs up 56% and petrol prices up 42% in the last 5 years, are examples of this. More specifically to the WA Racing Industry are costs such a veterinary expenses and feed expenses, discussed below :

- (a) Veterinary – typical metropolitan based veterinary average invoice bills over 5 years to 2013 have increased by around 35% or over 6% per annum for thoroughbred and harness racing horse treatments. These average invoice levels fall significantly in the winter months as a result of the inability / unpreparedness of trainers particularly to incur such costs and then try to charge owners when stakes prizemoney are at their lowest and less racing is occurring. Accordingly, in winter lesser quality horses may not get treatments they perhaps should/would have received at other times, lower numbers of horses are put into work to reduce the spend, and without the types of stakes prizemoney available as in summer the winter spend drops.

Veterinary businesses can make losses at this time, and at times will decrease prices if necessary to help out during this period.

This reflects the sensitivity of the WA Racing Industry to the stakes prizemoney levels funded from wagering and to the tightness of the financial model. As some of these observations flow from a very large veterinary operation with 12 full-time staff and a number of casuals, such financial sensitivities and the reliance on veterinary suppliers by the WA racing industry is very clear to see, making such expenditure unavoidable despite the significant increases in cost.

- (b) Feed Industry – the table below, provided by one of WA's largest equine feed supply businesses, shows the extent of the product/service price increases and their running cost escalations over the last 5 years.

FEED INDUSTRY COSTS

| PRODUCT / SERVICE     | 2014 | 2009  | % INCREASE |
|-----------------------|------|-------|------------|
| CHAFF                 | 34   | 32    | 6%         |
| CHAFF ROUGH CUT       | 23   | 19    | 21%        |

| P EGASUS STUDMASTER   | 23.5 | 21    | 12%        |
| GIRTH EXERCISE        | 54   | 39    | 38%        |
| SURSINGLE EXERCISE    | 43   | 32    | 34%        |
| BREASTPLATE EXERCISE  | 40   | 36    | 11%        |
|                       |      |       |            |
| RUNNING COSTS  |      |       |            |
| OFFICE STAFF P/HR     | 26   | 20    | 30%        |
| DELIVERY DRIVERS P/HR | 23   | 18    | 28%        |
| COUNTER STAFF P/HR    | 26   | 21    | 24%        |
| VEHICLE SERVICE       | 700  | 450   | 56%        |
| FUEL LITRE            | 1.6  | 1.13  | 42%        |

As a significant cost component for all WA Racing Industry participants, these indications of the extent of cost pressure for the participants, which in a general context clearly exceed the increases in stakes and distributions paid to the Industry over this period funded by WATAB/RWWA, provides a further illustration of the squeeze to the Industry's financial model and value chains in recent years.

- (c) Magic Millions – another important barometer of the WA Racing Industry, in this case for the thoroughbred industry, is the yearling sales performance conducted by Magic Millions. Magic Millions make a significant investment in the cost of running the sale and extend finance to all buyers on varying terms and lengths depending upon the buyers' history. Magic Millions revenue is generated from their selling commission of 8.35% of selling price.

The overall sale gross value achieved over the last five years had fallen from $13.721 million in 2010 to $11.328 million in 2013 with a slight rebound in 2014 to $12.419 million (due to a higher clearance rate but relatively flat average yearling sale price). There are less buyers apparent, with trainers generally identified as buying less than previously (some up to 50% less), again reflecting the earlier comments on their financial model difficulties.

The fragility of this element of the WA Racing Industry is evident from discussions with Magic Millions that suggest the sale event is potentially at risk with uncertainties around Belmont and the potential implications to the funding model of the WA Racing Industry of a privatisation of the WATAB. Some clarity and stability could call forward investment by Magic Millions in a new selling complex in Perth.

- (d) Industry Staff – throughout this section the staffing stakeholders have been discussed, with breeders having staff in all 3 codes with trackriders and stablehands in the case of thoroughbred and harness racing codes.

Using the relevant Awards as representative of this Group it has been identified that the wages of this Group in general terms will have increased by some 23-25% over the last six years, with allowances, shorter working week and superannuation adding to these figures to some extent. As in some cases staffing costs can represent up to 30% of the cost base of breeders and trainers (but also some owners incur such costs), this also reflects the underlying cost pressures on significant parts of the value chains of these Codes, but more so for the thoroughbred and harness racing codes.

It is also very important to again point out in this regard that the Western Australian Racing Industry is one that provides a capacity to employ people that in many cases would have difficulty in finding employment elsewhere. With the protection of an Award, and with the ability to employ full-time people at 15 years of age, the importance of this to the Western Australian economy and to the employment of people throughout the State, should not be understated.

In a State where the mining industry, as a major employer, has seen the number of people employed fall by some 13% in the last year, a decline in WA Racing Industry employment together with reduced opportunities elsewhere (if such people could possibly look elsewhere) caused potentially by a reduced funding model under a possible privatised TAB would hurt the State significantly, in both metropolitan and regional areas.

Not only does the discussion in this section on suppliers to, and staff within, the WA Racing Industry further illustrate the challenging financial model for the industry participants, but it also clearly reflects the dependency of these suppliers on a sustainable WA Racing Industry. These suppliers, along with the WA Racing Industry participants, have continually absorbed the financial squeeze of costs growth exceeding racing industry income flow growth, and hence these suppliers have expressed the same concerns as to the certainty of the industry funding model under a potentially privatised WATAB.

5.3.5 Distribution Growth Rates Vs Cost Base Increases

At its simplest level, if the increases in RWWA distributions between 2008/9 and 2012/13 are compared to some of the cost increases in important inputs to the WA Racing Industry over that same period the following picture emerges:

|  | % INCREASES2008/9 – 2012/13 | CAGR2008/9 – 2012/13 |
|--|---------------------------------|--------------------------|
| TOTAL RACING INDUSTRY                              |                                 |                          |
| DISTRIBUTIONS                                      | 5.27%                           | 1.3%                     |
| THOROUGHBRED DISTRIBUTIONS                         | 7.23%                           | 1.8%                     |
| HARNESS DISTRIBUTIONS                              | -1.13%                          | -                        |
| GREYHOUND DISTRIBUTIONS                            | 1.52%                           | 2.5%                     |
| STAFF (HORSE AND GREYHOUNDTRAINING AWARD 2010) | 23.2%                           | 3.5%                     |
| VETERINARY   | 35.0%                           | 6.0%                     |
| FEED AND PRODUCE                                   | SAY 20.0%ON AVERAGE         | 5% APPROX.               |
| UTILITIES  | 26 – 46%                        | 6-10%                    |
| MOTOR VEHICLE                                      | SAY 50%                         | 10.8%                    |

This summation of the various elements talked about in the value chains of the WA Racing Industry Codes earlier in this Chapter of this Report reflect that the WA Racing Industry generally has continued to adapt and absorb cost increases well above the wagering based distributions increases that have been provided by WATAB/RWWA.

This has been explained in some detail above, reflecting that industry participants have, in the main, operated on reducing contributions from racing activities, with a preparedness of all participants, but particularly owners, to continue in the WA Racing Industry for a variety of reasons including personal interest, for employment, for family sustainability in the industry, for continuity of the sport, and in some parts of the value chains, to hopefully build a retirement nest egg in many cases.

This Chapter does also clearly illustrate, however, that this continued investment and involvement is being continually and significantly challenged by the squeeze of cost pressures well in excess of growth in returns and funding to the WA Racing Industry. Such cost pressures and the need to adjust to these is not peculiar to this industry, but this Chapter reflects that the WA Racing Industry is not one that generates significant wealth to its participants, with a great deal of these tight financial models within the WA Racing Industry actually funded from sources external to the racing model. Any potential privatisation of WATAB must ensure a “no worse off” position for the overall funding of the WA Racing Industry given this situation.

5.3.6 Investments in Property

Clearly the racing industry requires a significant amount of property on which to conduct its production and training of its product, outside the race tracks required to put on the racing product events. Accordingly, many breeders and trainers, and some owners, have acquired properties on which to conduct their racing activities.

In most cases, particularly with trainers, such properties effectively represent their superannuation investment given the racing operating model leaves little room for any substantial other form of retirement saving. The value of such properties with the accompanying investment in the appropriate infrastructure will be maximised and maintained only with ongoing performance of the various WA racing industry Codes. It is therefore important to understand that what may appear to be an asset-rich position is firstly not supported by a commensurate operational cashflow position, and secondly that best value is underpinned by ongoing industry sustainability. Whilst property will hold value in alternative use, particularly those in metropolitan areas, best value in many cases would appear to reside in continued use.

This issue is particularly relevant in any considerations of asset utilisation across Racing Clubs, and in the potential privatisation of the WATAB, with the latter perspective being one of requiring that the industry funding model is such as to ensure the WA Racing Industry is “no-worse off” to maintain its sustainability.

This Report to date has provided an outline of WATAB and RWWA, the wagering market in which it operates, discussed what privatisation involves and how other TAB's in Australia have been privatised, and outlined the current WA racing industry structure and funding under the current arrangements.

This chapter of this Report will discuss the various issues and options that could arise from the privatisation of WATAB. Just as there has been no single model for previous TAB privatisations in Australia, there is a myriad of different forms that the privatisation of WATAB could take in terms of structures and detailed financial flows.

6.1 Background

The major focus of this privatisation discussion will be to the WATAB, the wagering division of RWWA, in the context of the privatisation. However it is not entirely clear whether this consideration in some shape or form is to apply to the totality of RWWA. That is not to suggest that the PRA/Racing responsibilities of RWWA would be sold with the WATAB if a privatisation was to occur. It is purely to raise the prospect that a model similar to the Racing Victoria Limited (RVL) structure could be considered – RVL is an unlisted public company with no government ownership or enabling statute, save for its positioning within the joint venture requirements that sit within the Victorian wagering licence issued by the Victorian Government currently to Tabcorp.

RWWA is, as outlined earlier, a corporation established under statute but is not an agent of the Crown and can be sued, contracted with and otherwise dealt with as an entity without government protection, although it has a number of obligations to the Minister under the RWWA Act. Racing Victoria Limited is an independent unlisted public company limited by guarantee with 4 equal shareholders – the Victorian Racing Club, the Melbourne Racing Club, the Moonee Valley Racing Club, and the Victorian Country Racing Council, with many other thoroughbred industry stakeholders, ie, it does not represent all racing codes, just thoroughbred racing.

If the wagering functions were to be separated out of RWWA and sold as the WATAB, the WA Government will therefore need to determine what structure to put in place post the WATAB privatisation for the remaining functions of RWWA.

Without dwelling too much on this issue, it is instructive to quickly review the formation of RWWA in this respect. The major impetus for forming what became RWWA under the RWWA Act was the Turner Report determination that the governance arrangements of racing and wagering activities in Western Australia were not effective, and the recommendation of the Turner Report was that the principal club and controlling authority responsibilities of the three Codes and the TAB be formed into one co-ordinated body – later to become RWWA. The Turner Report at page 6 said “The role of the TAB was probably dysfunctional in terms of the interest of the industry at the time”. This integration was unique in Australia, other than for a short time in Tasmania.

WHAT COULD PRIVATISATION OF WATAB LOOK LIKE?

In general the McGrath Report found support for this structure and formed a view that the consolidation had been a good outcome. It needs to be understood that the interests of wagering and the interests of the racing industry are not necessarily always aligned and in fact in a number of instances can be in conflict. This is particularly so for example in the context that a racing program that ensures support and exposure for regional racing to underpin the racing industry's objectives is unlikely to necessarily match a program that optimises wagering revenues.

These potential conflicts have been essentially embedded within the decision making processes of the RWWA Board and Management as both sides of this debate are inhouse to RWWA. Privatisation of the WATAB would externalise this and requires structural and operational practices to be put in place in the legislation and licence to underpin the privatisation of the WATAB.

It has previously been acknowledged that RWWA has generally performed reasonably well in recent times, particularly in relation to wagering. In drilling down with stakeholders on this general satisfaction with RWWA's performance, much relates to the distribution and funding levels that have been provided, particularly those to racing industry participants. Racing Clubs had not generally been as positive on this front in terms of their distributions, although the $5 million in additional OSH related distributions paid late in July this year were warmly received. It is however interesting to note that such distribution and general funding levels have clearly been supported by good wagering growth rates by WATAB/RWWA as noted earlier.

The observation in this regard, reinforced by a number of participants' commentary, is that RWWA has probably prioritised its attention in recent times to the wagering part of the business to a significantly greater extent than its PRA obligations. This is not to say these racing responsibilities have been totally neglected but RWWA would have appeared to strategically focus on pushing the wagering business to generate such funding, reinforced by the "scare" of the reduced distributions in 2009/10. It is suggested that this has manifest itself in many ways, including:

- Significant investment directed to wagering systems (both retail and digital) and the retail wagering offer
- An under investment in a number of parts of the racing operations responsibilities, which it is now believed are being addressed flowing from RWWA's recently determined 7 areas of strategic focus in this regard. From discussions with RWWA management it is understood that this will result in increased operating and capital expenditure in a number of specific racing areas into the future, rectifying some of this previous underspending in these areas (which nevertheless has provided more funds for distributions and other funding in recent times).
- Statements and actions that suggested a view held by RWWA that their role was primarily to provide off-course betting and retail outlets, and that neither on-course betting nor necessarily promotion of the sport were its focuses, and that its role was not to provide funding for any upgrade of facilities for customers. One manifestation of this has been the substantial decline of on-course wagering at racetracks throughout the state, which overall has declined by nearly 25% in the last 5 years to 2012/13, and by a stated approximate 50% at Perth Racing's two metropolitan tracks in that time period. Whilst as discussed earlier there are a number of reasons for this decline in on-course wagering, including declining attendances, corporate bookmaker competition, and the general regulatory environment for wagering and on-course entertainment provision, RWWA's focus on off-course wagering can be seen to have contributed to this as reflected in the following examples:

HEAD WHAT COULD PRIVATISATION OF WATAB LOOK LIKE?

- RWWA promoted and heavily advertised fixed odds betting side by side with tote odds in retail outlets but this was not made available to Racing Clubs.
- An apparent lack of preparedness by RWWA to facilitate call betting or more user friendly on-course bet slips for on-course betting
- Wagering information displays on-course have significantly lagged that offered to punters in retail outlets nor been adapted to the specific on-course environment.
- On course mobile offers have been inefficient and the introduction of tracking solutions to ensure appropriate revenue flow to Racing Clubs has been a drawn out affair.

All of these reflect the difficult position that RWWA has been placed in through having the dual roles associated with PRA responsibilities and its TAB wagering responsibilities. As stated above, these will often conflict in direction as each will have differing optimisation stances on many issues affecting the racing program and its conduct. So whilst RWWA has generally performed adequately in dealing with this difficulty, the sustainability of this situation can be questioned, particularly as the WATAB continues to need to actively confront the competition in the wagering industry in Australia. This is an issue whether or not privatisation of the WATAB proceeds.

It has been an observation of a number of industry participants that RWWA's approach to these conflicting objectives appears to have more recently shifted to a more balanced perspective on many matters as it embraces the needs to promote the racing sport and the Racing Clubs, and on-course wagering. RWWA has acknowledged this as flowing from its recent strategic planning exercises. Some participants in the WA Racing Industry note the timing being at around the same time that more active discussion began on the issue of the potential privatisation of the WATAB. This again reflects the difficulty for Board and Management of these two functions being under one roof.

If the WATAB (RWWA's wagering operations) is privatised then the PRA and other racing responsibilities could stay with RWWA, perhaps renamed Racing Western Australia (RWA), under its current (but obviously amended) legislation or other structures as outlined throughout this Report. All other States and Territories have corporatised statutory bodies fulfilling these responsibilities (except for Racing Victoria Limited), with only Queensland and Tasmania having an authority sitting over and representing the 3 racing codes as RWWA does currently. This integration would appear to have in overall terms served the WA racing industry well. However, these governance issues are not a specific focus of this Report.

6.2 Considerations for Privatising WATAB

As the WATAB does not separately exist and is essentially a division of RWWA, there is currently no specific entity to sell. Accordingly, in talking about privatising the WATAB, the Government would appear to be referring to having a private sector entity operating the wagering responsibilities that currently sit in RWWA.

So the WA Government, if it is to privatise the WATAB, will need to put in place the following in whatever forms that they may determine (some of which currently exist within RWWA):

- A wagering licence and/or wagering operator's licence for a term to be determined that authorises the wagering operator to conduct exclusive retail tote and fixed odds wagering and perhaps other products under certain conditions and requirements, and contains the Racing Industry funding obligations, (no such formal licence currently exists as RWWA's wagering authorities sit within its own Act).
- The WA Racing Industry Funding Model under which WATAB funds the WA Racing Industry so that the Industry is at the least no worse off.
- The legislative framework under which this new model will operate
- The legal structure under which the wagering operator is to operate – whether it is required to enter into a form of joint venture with the WA Racing Industry or stand alone with or without industry funding arrangements
- A Racing Program Agreement under which the wagering operator and the WA Racing Industry determine the annual racing program for the State.
- A Wagering Tax
- Racefield Fee flows and arrangements for the wagering operator
- Arrangements for various financial elements including GST reimbursement, unclaimed dividends, fractions and other subsidies
- Pooling arrangements, if required
- Arrangements with TAB retail outlets
- Arrangements with Racing Clubs for on-course wagering

In addition to establishing these arrangements for the wagering operator, the WA Government will also need to consider the following:

- As discussed earlier, the governance structure for PRA responsibilities including racing integrity and operations, and for wagering integrity, under the new arrangements flowing from the matters outlined above.
- Staffing arrangements for RWWA's wagering staff
- Arrangements in relation to the wagering related assets of RWWA such as the wagering systems, the telecommunications infrastructure, retail information technology, data centres, office accommodation, etc.

These matters will now be discussed in some detail noting the implications for the WA Racing Industry, the wagering operator, and the WA Government where appropriate.

6.2.1. WATAB Privatised Model Features

The following elements of a privatised wagering model would all need to be established for the potential privatisation of WATAB but will differ in form depending upon the structure decisions taken by the WA Government in the process.

6.2.1.1 The Wagering Licence

Pursuant to the relevant enabling legislation (to be discussed below), in a privatised TAB model the WA Government will issue a wagering licence to the new operator authorising them to conduct the wagering activities as defined lawfully in the State and elsewhere. As previously discussed such a licence does not currently exist, and hence in a potential privatisation of WATAB a new licence will be issued to a new operator. Whilst legal advice would need to be sought to confirm the following it is believed that in this case the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission may not have an involvement as the issuing of new gambling licences could appear to fall outside of its jurisdiction (but this would need to be checked). The major considerations in such a licence (but clearly not an exhaustive list) are:

(a) The Term of the Wagering Licence

The term or length of the wagering licence is a critical factor in establishing the certainty for the wagering operator of their tenure and the length of time guaranteed to them to recoup their investment. The approach between States does vary in this respect, with the Victorian Government in recent times having a preference for relatively shorter term gambling licences, seemingly to enable them to regularly bring the licences to a competitive market bid process and to raise money through up-front licence payments on a regular basis. Others such as the Queensland Government has issued the wagering licence out to 2098, Tasmania's licence acquired by Tatts Group in 2012 was for 50 years with a 49 year option, and the recent purchase of ACTTAB by Tabcorp came with a 50 year licence.

With the continually changing landscape of wagering in Australia, the potential impacts of this on the positioning and performance of TAB's, and the interaction of exclusivity and racing industry funding arrangements within the licence, if a longer term is adopted it is important that review points exist throughout the licence. This is particularly so in relation to racing industry funding to be discussed below.

(b) Exclusivity

WATAB/RWWA currently has the exclusive rights to provide retail tote and fixed odds wagering in WA, as it is the only wagering operator authorised to do so. Digital and mobile wagering clearly cannot be exclusively licenced by its very nature.

Section 3.1.3 of this Report explains the fundamental position of such exclusivity with a TAB wagering licence, both in respect to the value of the exclusive licence providing the security of sole retail access to Western Australian punters, as well as the inter-related obligations to fund the WA Racing Industry having received such a valuable licence. Within Western Australia this value is enhanced compared to other Australian jurisdictions given the absence of keno and electronic gaming machines offers being available outside of the Crown Casino at Burswood. This exclusivity provision will manifest itself as a positive undertaking by the WA Government that it will not issue another retail wagering licence. This is the case (in slightly different ways) in all States and Territories around Australia.

Shorter licence terms tend to be accompanied by such exclusivity for the same time period. Some of the longer term licences have shorter periods providing such exclusivity to give the relevant Government the opportunity for a review point at which to consider whether another licence provider might be appropriately introduced at a point in the future, and/or to restructure elements of the existing licence in any extension of the exclusivity.

An example of this was that Tatts Group's exclusivity ran to June 2014 in Queensland even though its licence runs to 2098. In the middle of this year after a Government review of the arrangements, Tatts' exclusivity was extended for 30 years to 2044, with a number of adjustments to its licence, including substantive adjustments to financial arrangements. Exclusivity in NSW was extended for 20 years in June 2013 for the up-front payment of $75 million as another example of this – the licence was issued in 1998 for 99 years. In the more recent privatisation of the Tasmanian TAB the licence was for 50 years with a 49 year option, but exclusivity was provided for just 15 years.

If the WA Government adopts a long term licence a shorter term exclusivity provision establishes a useful review point of the licence.

(c) Products and Channels

The WA Government has an opportunity to look at the extent of the products coverage that a new wagering licence could encompass. Clearly the licence will cover pari-mutuel (totalisator) betting on racing and sport and fixed odds wagering on racing and sport, replicating the current WATAB/RWWA product set.

In some other jurisdictions the retail product offer in TAB's has been expanded to include a simulated racing event product or virtual racing, commonly known as Trackside in Australia, offering effectively fixed odds using simulated racing animals. Statewide linked keno product has been allowed in certain jurisdictions. It is understood that RWWA has been unsuccessful to date in its attempts to obtain WA Government approval for such products.

The WA Government could receive increased up-front payments and on-going gambling tax proceeds from such product extensions. If these were included in the wagering licence then the racing (and sport) industries should also have access to appropriate shares of the returns to these products, as they would sit in the retail TAB outlets alongside the wagering product. Such products are currently operating in Crown's Burswood Casino and hence how such arrangements could be considered are not clear. Virtual racing is a product that the WA Racing Industry should seek the WA Government to consider within the wagering licence to enhance the overall Racing Industry funding model.

6.2.1.2 The Legislative Framework

The current legislative framework under which the WATAB operates at present was outlined in Section 3.1. The WA Government will need to review this framework if a privatisation is to occur to take the wagering responsibilities out of the RWWA Act and to establish the basis for creating and granting a licence and implementing the considerations outlined in this Chapter of this Report. Whilst much of these amendments will be mechanical in the sense of dealing with the technical amendments needed to deal with the move from public to private operation of the TAB functions, other considerations that will be important to the wagering operator and to the WA Racing Industry in the context of the performance of (and therefore funding from) the wagering operator are:

- The need to provide a regulatory regime that reflects similar attributes to those currently faced by the new wagering operator if the operator operates in other jurisdictions to ensure effectiveness of the integration of the WATAB betting turnover into the buyer's existing pool.
- Even if the buyer does not have an existing pool, it will nevertheless be necessary to provide more flexibility and more timeliness and formality of process in decision processes around regulatory approvals than currently exists in the present regulatory regime, particularly in terms of Government approval timeframes.
- In this context the wagering operator will obviously need to comply with wagering regulation and appropriate financial reporting for wagering tax and pari-mutuel minimum return to player requirements, but should otherwise be free to conduct their business within necessary integrity requirements and approved broad product parameters without reference to WA Government. Agreed decision-making processes and timings on new betting products should be established to ensure timely decisions in the fast moving wagering industry.

The current regime under which RWWA operates is simply not efficient nor flexible enough to meet these requirements and requires significant streamlining. This has in part been either an excuse or a reason for RWWA's lagged developments into the modern wagering space in terms of retail information systems, digital and mobile, a competitive fixed odds offer, and in terms of a broader product offer which today has improved significantly but later than the rest of the wagering market. Improvements here will benefit the returns of the wagering operator, adding value to the WATAB and also to the returns to the WA Racing Industry.

6.2.1.3 Structure / Models

If the WA Government does proceed with the privatisation of the TAB, the WA Government will need to determine the structure or model within which it wishes the new wagering operator to work. Whilst in limited instances of privatisations of gambling assets the bidders have been able to bid a structure into the competitive sale process this is not the normal approach. It is critical for the WA racing industry that if privatisation is to occur that the Industry has had the opportunity to engage with the WA Government prior to the process of sale commencing to have determined with the Government the structure and model under which wagering is to operate going forward.

As outlined in Section 3.2.4 there are essentially three models operating elsewhere in Australia that can generally be identified as:

- The joint venture model – typified by significant joint decision-making and a profit-share arrangement after appropriate funding directions are satisfied (Victoria / New South Wales)
- The contractual model – the wagering operator and the racing industry have contracts in place on funding and racing program determination processes but otherwise separately pursue their respective responsibilities (Queensland / South Australia).
- The separation model – no formal relationship between the wagering operator and the racing industry, with the industry funded directly by the relevant State / Territory Government (ACT / Northern Territory)

There is one further model that in essence reflects the RWWA model but in private hands, and that is where the Racing Industry owns and operates the wagering operator. This obviously requires the Racing Industry to have the governance and corporate structures to privately run racing and wagering. This would require a structure such as that of Racing Victoria Limited, which itself could arguably consider obtaining a wagering licence given its ownership and corporate structure. Some of the internal governance issues and strategic and operational priority decision-making difficulties with this model were discussed earlier in Section 6.1.

The pros and cons of each of these structural options, with an eye to the implications for the WA Racing Industry in any potential privatisation of WATAB, are set out in Table 6.2.1.3.

The separation model is one that should be avoided for Western Australia given the size and importance of the WA Racing Industry to the State and its ability to largely self-fund its operations with appropriate WATAB funding. The WA Racing Industry must avoid a model where it totally relies on the WA Government for its funding. One of the stated reasons for the establishment of RWWA and integration of the TAB into RWWA was to separate the racing clubs from the WA Government in terms of direct advocacy. This would be totally reversed by the separation model which would force the WA Racing Industry to actively engage with the WA Government. Even if commitments were made to the WA Racing Industry by the WA Government, the inability to bind future Governments and changing political priorities would clearly put strong doubt on the sustainability of any such commitments.

Racing Industry ownership and operation of the wagering operator in Western Australia is an interesting but highly questionable option. In a governance sense this would be effectively reversing the Principal Racing Authority vesting in RWWA by establishing an entity owned by the Codes (through taking RWWA out of a statutory body environment) that took back these responsibilities. The WA racing industry, as discussed in Section 6.1, generally supported the PRA process due to its improved governance framework to that previously operating under Code specific PRA's, and hence it is difficult to see the benefit in reversion, particularly in a private sector operation.

Whilst the size, the cross-checking balances of the various stakeholders in the Victorian market, and the significant funding and operational independence of the industry with its own wagering pool and the sustaining Spring Carnival, of the Victorian Racing Industry could arguable support such a Victoria TAB ownership model by the Racing Industry, the Western Australian Racing Industry is extremely unlikely to be able to create and sustain such a model. The issues between Codes prior to the creation of RWWA would suggest difficulty with this model. In addition, an industry-owned wagering operator would need to retain all the existing infrastructure of WATAB and its pooling dependencies, so any privatisation sale to the WA Racing Industry would probably realise less in up front payment to the WA Government than if sold to an existing TAB operator if it was to be a viable proposition for the WA Racing Industry.

Given just these two propositions, this model is not a recommended course of action to be pursued by the WA Racing Industry.

At this stage of the WA Government's process as it is currently understood, where there appears to have been limited detailed consideration of such issues, a specific recommendation on a preferred structure from the joint venture and contractual models is premature. This will be more informed and determined by decisions on the financial and industry funding models, by the licencing and legislative structures to be instituted, and from the WA Racing Industry's engagement with the WA Government as to the objectives of any possible privatisation.

There is much to be said for the contracted model that requires and calls forward many decisions to be made up front in the sale process to enable the racing industry and wagering operator to enter contracts at the time of sale and then fulfil their respective responsibilities going forward. However, if these settings are not established with appropriate levels and coverage they can result in undesirable outcomes for all parties.

Having said that, any joint venture structure will require much of the same work to be done upfront, with this structure placing the racing industry even closer to the wagering operator and with a different risk profile because funding is usually dependent not just on revenue but both revenue and profits. It also establishes more decision-making infrastructure than the contractual model. This therefore is closer to the current RWWA/WATAB model and hence may be a more appropriate transition. This is particularly so given these structures usually have “best interests” requirements that require the wagering operator to make decisions that do not disadvantage the local racing industry, an important requirement if proper alignment is to occur. Such alignment is critical to making a joint venture work appropriately. Such a provision is more easily monitored in a joint venture type structure than simply an arms-length contractual arrangement.

6.2.1.4 Racing Industry Funding Model

This Report has explained in some detail the current levels and nature of distributions and subsidies and other funding made by RWWA to the WA Racing Industry and the performance in this regard over recent years, as best it could determine (but total actual funding levels would need to be accurately determined in any potential WATAB privatisation).

Chapter 5 explained, again in significant detail, how these levels of distributions and overall funding by WATAB/RWWA are now calibrated to ensure stakes prizemoney levels are sufficient to continue to attract investment by owners to provide ongoing operational sustainability of the WA Racing Industry.

Accordingly, if a privatisation of the WATAB is to occur, the funding provided by the new wagering operator by way of product fee payments (reflecting distributions and subsidies) need to equal current levels of such RWWA distributions, subsidies and other payments and then continue to grow into the future to sustain the Racing Industry in Western Australia.

As the level and allocation of distributions by RWWA have been determined in-house with final decisions on these taken by the RWWA Board, the actual distribution policy and basis is not clear. However, in discussions with the Management of RWWA, the distributions are reviewed and established annually based around Board approved key principles that are understood to reflect some of the matters as outlined in Section 5.2.2.2.

It would appear however, that there is no specific targeting of a percentage of revenue or profit of WATAB/RWWA from such an approach, but rather a determination of levels that will ensure ongoing viability of the WA Racing Industry. In recent years as discussed earlier, the strong turnover and revenue growth together with reduced pooling fee costs, have enabled RWWA to also put aside cash reserves to assist in smoothing and supporting (if necessary) distributions into the future.

Looking at the period from 2008/9 to 2012/13 from RWWA Annual Report data (which includes sports wagering turnover and sport distributions), this is reflected by the following numbers:

- Wagering turnover grew by 28% or around 6.3% per annum
- Wagering margin grew by 25.5% or around 5.8% per annum
- Distributions grew by only 6.8% or 1.7% per annum
- Distributions as a percentage of margin in each year were:

|         |        |
|---------|--------|
| 2008/9  | 40.33% |
| 2009/10 | 39.31% |
| 2010/11 | 37.27% |
| 2011/12 | 35.65% |
| 2012/13 | 34.34% |

Section 5.2.2.3 of this Report showed however that going back 8 years dramatically changed these figures, especially distribution growth rates. As discussed, with the impacts of equine influenza and changed pooling fees, the 2008/9 year reflected a loss of around $13 million (excluding grants) after distributions had been increased despite the profit deterioration, and then the decrease in distributions in 2009/10 as the flow on result. The figures as outlined above then show the slowdown in the growth of distributions despite wagering turnover and margin growth as cash has been reserved to provide future protection for similar such events or impacts. Accordingly, any consideration of funding arrangements for the WA Racing Industry under a potential privatisation needs to consider these trends and RWWA management decisions closely.

In a more conceptual sense, in establishing the WA Racing Industry funding model in a potential WATAB privatisation, consideration also needs to be given to whether simply a margin percentage share or a combination of margin and profit share is a more appropriate model. In a comparison sense around risk profile and return to the current RWWA model, it would be contended that the current WATAB/RWWA model and distribution policy reflects a margin and profit share model, or even perhaps a profit share model when other payments and subsidies are included.

Whilst distribution levels have been based on meeting key operational and strategic objectives including stakes prizemoney levels and appropriate national relativities of these, it would appear that the ultimate level of distributions has been finally determined on profitability and reserving considerations. This perspective of profit rather than margin focus to funding the WA Racing Industry is further reinforced by the situation that pooling fees and costs associated with the premium market (particularly international players) are not in the margin calculation but in the cost of sales deducted from that margin.

Whilst most if not all of these features may not exist under a privatised model, the WA Racing Industry cannot form a view on these matters at this time until all aspects of the proposed privatisation are put together, although total reliance on profit share is not recommended as an option.

WHAT COULD PRIVATISATION OF WATAB LOOK LIKE?

It must be understood that any racing industry funding arrangement that is based on a share of turnover, margin or revenue puts the WA Racing Industry in a position of relying on the performance of the wagering operator. This is in effect no different from the current situation with WATAB/RWWA as has been discussed throughout this Report, however the management and governance structures will be separate and different in a privatised WATAB environment. Subject to differences in perspective, it does align the financial interests of the racing industry and wagering operator, with this alignment even greater under a share of profit model.

Share of revenue or margin will provide diversification of revenue across all racing and wagering jurisdictions and Codes, and potentially across sport (depending upon the arrangements put in place), as well as perhaps new products such as virtual racing as a growth option in the retail wagering outlets. Again, the critical issues here if privatisation was to occur is to ensure any structure establishes an appropriate share allocation up front to support the required WA Racing Industry funding model, that there is a potential to review this if funding falls away, and that the wagering operator ensures maintenance and growth of the turnover streams of the WATAB (or that there are adjustment factors and other mechanisms built into the structure to protect the WA Racing Industry).

A share of the wagering operators profit will usually reflect more of a joint venture type structure with involvement of both parties in elements of strategic and operational decision-making relating to relevant racing and wagering issues (which can be a divisive and inefficient process over time). The racing industry's financial position therefore becomes exposed to the cost performance of the wagering operator, including issues around how costs may be allocated by the wagering operator across various jurisdictions if it operates wagering activities in other locations. In addition, a matter of significant difficulty and debate is always the definition of profit, with questions over revenue attribution, cost allocation, and the application of various accounting policies.

In addition to this question of margin/revenue share or profit and margin share, there are a number of other prospective aspects that need to be considered :

- In any prospective product fee structure there should be an element of fixed payment to reduce the risk profile associated with the wagering operator's performance.
- A minimum racing industry funding obligation on the wagering operator for a period of up to 5 years to ensure any privatisation does not diminish the current expected funding in the absence of privatisation for that period (ie, continuity of the current model).
- If privatisation occurs, "Racing Western Australia" being obliged to maintain its cash reserves for the purposes of longer term distribution stability and/or infrastructure funding.
- Inclusion of specific requirements around stakes prizemoney levels and infrastructure funding requirements in any structure as part of the minimum performance/funding obligations required under a privatised model.
- The need to ensure that the administration and integrity requirements of the Racing Operations activities are fully funded.

WHAT COULD PRIVATISATION OF WATAB LOOK LIKE?

In considering this WA Racing Industry Funding Model in a potential privatisation of WATAB it is necessary that the levels set within the Funding Model cover all forms of funding provided to the WA Racing Industry by WATAB/RWWA. This Report has discussed many of these funding flows to the WA Racing Industry which include the following (although this list may not be exhaustive):

- Stakes prizemoney funding
- Event fee payments to Racing Clubs
- Training funding to Racing Clubs and RWWA training facilities
- Jockeys and Drivers payments
- Breeders and Owners Bonus/Incentive Schemes
- Product fees, broadcast costs and other payments on behalf of Racing Clubs
- Cost of RWWA's Racing Operations Groups

Attempting to establish how such a funding position for the WA Racing Industry compares to the relative levels provided to racing industries in other Australian jurisdictions is difficult given the different reporting styles and classifications of such funding used across these jurisdictions. At a general level some analysis was attempted to express Racing Industry funding as a percentage of the TAB racing wagering turnover within each jurisdiction. Given the difficulties of determining the total funding figure for the reasons stated above, the following broad but largely unsubstantiated observations are made from this analysis :

- The Western Australian Racing Industry would seem to be around broadly similar levels as Victoria at the upper end of funding proportion at approximately 7.5% of TAB racing wagering turnover
- New South Wales and Queensland would appear to be around approximately 5.0% of TAB racing wagering turnover, although Queensland probably jumped to over 5.5% with increased funding in 2012/13
- It would appear that South Australia would be much closer to Victoria and Western Australia than to New South Wales or Queensland, following the abolition of wagering tax payments in South Australia.

The discussions in Section 5.3 of this Report in relation to the value chains of each Code in the WA Racing Industry reflect the high cost nature of producing the racing product within Western Australia. With the vast size of the State adding to the costs of presenting the product, combined with the essentially isolated self-funding nature of Western Australian racing relative to the Eastern States industries, such funding levels are both understandable and justified. The more recent increases in funding for South Australia (through the wagering tax abolition), and for Queensland in the recent amendments to the financial arrangements for the wagering licence, reflect recognition of the need for the types of Racing Industry funding levels existing in Victoria and Western Australia.

6.2.1.5 Racing Program Agreement

At present RWWA makes decisions, after input from Racing Clubs and Code Consultative Groups, as to the Annual Racing Program for the entire Western Australian racing industry. After such consultation/input the RWWA Management team and ultimately the RWWA Board decide the program internally as part of their Budget process. This arises out of the Racing and Wagering Management making the competing calls along with the agreement of Senior Management, and then the Board, (with its Code representatives), contributing and ultimately deciding the acceptable compromises between racing and wagering objectives in the racing program determined. In a privatised TAB model this needs to become a negotiation between two separate entities – the wagering operator and the racing industry – one looking to maximise wagering turnover for profit purposes and the other looking to fund and sustain a whole State's racing industry with appropriate integrity, regional, social, employment and industry sustainability objectives being met.

In a privatised model therefore it is necessary to have a formal agreement / contract / resolution methodology that is a condition of the licence, between the wagering operator and the racing industry, that sets out how the racing program and various related matters are to be negotiated and resolved. In a contractual model this will take the form of a contract between the two parties, whilst if some form of joint venture is established it will form part of the matters outlined in a formal joint venture agreement between the parties.

Given the importance of this to the WA Racing Industry it is vitally important that in the event of the WATAB being privatised that the governance and representative structures for the WA Racing Industry are established appropriately to ensure all stakeholders are properly represented in such negotiations. A Racing Western Australia structure reflecting RWWA without wagering would seem best placed to provide the entity that is the party to this Agreement, subject to any improvements in this structure that participants deem necessary. With the removal of wagering under a privatised model it would be appropriate to review key objectives of the new entity, and the relevant skill set requirements of the Board and senior management called forward by these objectives, as well as the legal structure of the entity, to ensure appropriate focus to the racing product mandate of the new entity.

6.2.1.6 Wagering Tax

Wagering taxation is paid by WATAB/RWWA to the WA State Government on both pari-mutuel and fixed odds wagering. The tax rate on pari-mutuel betting is 11.91% on gross margin for racing, and 5.0% of turnover on pari-mutuel sport, whilst for fixed odds betting the wagering tax is based on turnover – 2.00% for racing and 0.50% for sport.

Such taxation represents an outflow that reduces the net earnings of the wagering operation and hence the amounts that could flow to the WA Racing Industry. It is nevertheless a payment to the WA Government in recognition of it granting a licence to the wagering operator, in addition to any upfront payment made to secure the licence. Where such wagering taxes are in place they are generally expressed as a percentage of revenue/margin in relation to pari-mutuel betting, and as a percentage of either revenue/margin or turnover in the case of fixed odds betting. In Tasmania and the ACT, where their TAB's have been recently privatised and the Government has taken over funding the racing industry, a fixed amount (escalated by CPI) is paid as a wagering levy by the wagering operator to the Government, but no wagering tax is in place.

Wagering taxes currently in place around Australia are set out in Table 6.2.1.6 over the page.

In recent times the trend by State Governments in Australia has been to reduce the levels of wagering taxation on the TAB wagering operators in recognition of the relatively higher product fees paid to local racing industries by the TAB compared to the racefield fees paid by all wagering operators, and to enhance funding to the Racing Industry by not taking the extent of wagering taxes out of the TAB. This is specifically the case with the corporate bookmakers competing with these TAB's who are based in low/no tax and/or fee jurisdictions such as the Northern Territory.

A very recent example of this tax reduction approach by State Governments was in the new framework for race and sports wagering for the TAB operated by Tatts Group in Queensland announced in June this year. The Queensland Government made a number of changes to these arrangements, including agreeing to a reduction in its pari-mutuel tax rate from 20% to 14% of commission (margin) and from 20% to 10% for fixed odds wagering.

Other examples of reductions in wagering taxes and/or other funding concessions by Australian State Governments post privatisation of their TAB are:

- In South Australia the Government removed the wagering tax in 2012 to improve racing industry funding, having phased it down from 2009;
- In Victoria the new licence and funding arrangements that commenced in 2012 included a reduction in wagering taxes;
- It is understood that in NSW consideration is being given to a reduction in the wagering tax rates to match the Victorian rates on pari-mutuel and fixed odds betting; and
- In a number of jurisdictions State Governments have expanded the wagering product definition to include products such as simulated racing events (eg, Trackside) to provide increased racing industry funding.

Given the participant financial situations within the WA Racing Industry as explained throughout this Report, there is clearly no room to increase the current wagering tax level and settings without significantly impacting the current industry situation. This is the case, in fact, whether privatisation was to occur or not, but clearly is also an important factor for the WA Government in overall value terms in any potential privatisation process. Having said that, and whilst a wagering tax rate reduction would increase the up-front payment offer from a potential bidder, the different costs of capital between the WA Government and a corporate bidder, could result in the bidder ascribing relatively less value to this reduction than the value of the ongoing stream at the WA Government's cost of capital.

However, a reduction in the wagering tax would improve the earnings available for funding of the WA Racing Industry.

6.2.1.7 Racefield Fees

The current arrangements with racefield fees in Western Australia are such that RWWA pay the racefield fees for interstate and international product for WATAB and on behalf of the Racing Clubs and, as explained in Section 3.1.4.5, receive racefield fees paid by wagering operators for the use of WA racing product via the Gaming and Wagering Commission. The Gaming and Wagering Commission receive these racefield fees and pass them on to RWWA (net of administration costs) to hide the source of fees from WATAB given the potential benefits of WATAB being aware of other wagering operators use of WA product.

It is understood that these figures are broadly equivalent, with a small positive balance forming part of the funding for the distributions to the WA Racing Industry.

In a privatised model such a structure would need to be examined given the separation of the wagering activity from racing product oversight which currently both reside in RWWA. Whilst in all jurisdictions, either directly or via Government the racefield fee receipts flow to the racing industry, the position with racefield fee payments out of the jurisdiction vary. In NSW they are paid by the wagering operator, in Victoria by the joint venture (and therefore shared 50/50 by the wagering operator and the racing industry), whilst in Queensland it is effectively the racing industry that meets the cost through an offset against the product fee paid to the racing industry under the RDA (subject to an adjustment to be shared 60% Tatts / 40% Racing Queensland if outflows exceed inflows).

In the case of Western Australia as outlined above, RWWA receives these racefield fees paid on WA racing and RWWA (probably more so WATAB) pays the racefield fees to other jurisdictions (although this also includes the Racing Clubs fees). Without the separation of the wagering activities in RWWA from the racing industry activities the issue of the financial balance responsibility and benefit associated with these racefield fee flows has not needed to be addressed.

Such attribution will, as in other jurisdictions as outlined above, need to be determined as part of the overall arrangements of a potential privatisation of WATAB, and will form an element of the financial machinations in such a privatisation. Clearly a NSW-type model would benefit the WA racing industry (industry receives incoming product fees whilst the wagering operator pays product fees to other jurisdictions), and it could be argued literally to be the current case. However, for the WA Racing Industry to be left in the same situation a model such as that in Queensland, but with the wagering operator however responsible for 100%, not 60%, of the shortfall, ie, where outflows exceeds inflows, would be an appropriate structure in a potential privatised model (again subject to all other things being equal).

6.2.1.8 Other Financial Arrangements

There are a variety of other fund flows and arrangements that are in place currently that need to be clarified under a privatisation model if it was to occur. From the WA Racing Industry's perspective it is necessary that these existing arrangements be retained within a privatisation model, but with some clarification to ensure the WA Racing Industry funding is protected in certain instances.

(a) GST Reimbursement

As was explained earlier when GST was introduced into Australia in 2000 there was no ability to change the "pricing" of wagering for this impost, so State Governments reimbursed wagering operators for the GST liability they were unable to pass on, from their global GST arrangements with the Federal Government, either through wagering tax adjustments or direct reimbursement (the WA Government originally adopted the latter method). Subsequently the WA Government adjusted down the racing wagering tax rates to replace the need for reimbursement, but such reimbursement remains for fixed odds and pari-mutuel sport. It may be appropriate in a new licence regime if privatisation is to occur to adjust tax rates for these items to avoid the need for a reimbursement process. This issue clearly sits with the potential new wagering operator and the WA Government in a privatisation process.

(b) Unclaimed Dividends

As explained in Section 3.1.4.5 unclaimed dividends on racing wagering (after 7 months) became the funds of RWWA, whilst on sports they flow to the Sports Wagering Account held by the Gaming and Wagering Commission. This important source of funding for the distributions and other payments made to the WA Racing Industry by RWWA needs to be retained by the WA Racing Industry, and hence in any privatised model the unclaimed dividends should be paid through directly to the Racing Industry (Racing Western Australia) by the wagering operator after the 7 month period. The treatment of unclaimed dividends on sports wagering should remain as it currently operates.

(c) Fractions

Given the mechanics of these and how they arise it would seem appropriate that these stay with the wagering operator in any potential WATAB privatisation as they are an inherent part of the wagering operation. Given that these represent around 0.4% of margin annually it is however necessary that in any product fee rate determination based on margin as part of the privatisation structure, appropriate recognition be given to this matter.

(d) Premium Market Rebates

Whilst this customer segment may not be one that buyers will value nor seek to continue with a WA operation, if it is then existing rebates through different wagering tax rates will need to be considered in any privatisation process. If these are to continue then this will need to form part of the licence entered into by the new wagering operator. If these fall away and/or the premium customer base does not continue post privatisation, racing industry funding models based on percentages of margin, revenue or turnover will need to reflect this if funding levels to the WA Racing Industry are to be maintained.

6.2.1.9 Pooling Arrangements (if required)

As explained in Section 3.1.4.3, WATAB/RWWA has entered into a pooling agreement with Tabcorp's Victorian based SuperTAB pool, under which nearly all WATAB tote bets are pooled in with the SuperTAB pool. As also explained earlier, WATAB/RWWA has a management agreement with William Hill under which WATAB's fixed odds pool is managed by William Hill for a fee.

In a privatisation process, the value and situation with each of these will vary depending upon the situation of the potential bidder. If Tabcorp or Tatts Group are bidders, they both obviously already have their own pools and wagering (tote and fixed odds) capabilities that means that WATAB/RWWA's existing pooling arrangements will no longer be required. If a bidder is an existing corporate bookmaker with existing fixed odds wagering capability, the Tabcorp pooling agreement could probably be required to continue but not the William Hill arrangement.

Although less likely to occur, a bidder with no existing wagering capabilities would clearly most probably wish to retain such arrangements. It is understood from discussions with RWWA management, which would be expected, that these agreements have payout arrangements associated with early termination. As it is understood that these are relatively long term agreements, such termination payments could be expected to be considerable and will be incurred by RWWA in a privatisation process if a new wagering operator does not require such arrangements.

In the case of Tabcorp it is unclear exactly what Tabcorp would choose to do with the existing Pooling Agreement given the Joint Venture with the Victorian Racing Industry in relation to the SuperTAB Pool. In the case of Tatts Group no such pooling arrangement with Tabcorp would be required. Given early termination provisions exist, it is expected that this would lead to some form of substantial payout being required to Tabcorp to terminate the contract which is understood to have some 9-10 years to run. Similarly, in any privatisation that led to the acquirer not requiring the fixed odds management services of William Hill, this contract would also need to be terminated and again a substantial payout would be expected to be required for such termination.

6.2.1.10 WATAB Retail Outlet Arrangements

WATAB/RWWA will have in place with the various hotels and retail outlets that have TAB operations a variety of contracts/agreements that provide varying degrees of goodwill value to these businesses. A new wagering operator would obviously look to maintain a retail network, but will seek to have some flexibility to operate it in a manner it wishes in terms of locations and "look and feel" that may or may not be reflected in the current WATAB/RWWA network.

Retail outlets will, conversely, look for some certainty in their future arrangements under a new operator if privatisation is to occur. Such certainty will generally relate to financial arrangements and remuneration and to the length (timeframe) and terms of their agreements. In a number of similar privatisations such agreements under existing terms have been locked in for a fixed period (eg 3 or 5 years). The Government will need to determine this matter prior to any privatisation, as a bidder will more highly value some flexibility.

6.2.1.11 On-Course Wagering Arrangements

With Racing Clubs holding the on-course wagering licences in Western Australia, as is the case in other jurisdictions, it will be necessary in any potential privatisation to ensure appropriate arrangements and structures are put in place within the wagering licence to cater appropriately for the Racing Clubs and the wagering operator. As discussed in Section 5.2.3, a combination of outdated regulation, system deficiencies, competition, and prioritisation by RWWA to off-course wagering at the expense of on-course wagering, has seen on-course wagering decline substantially, together with falling attendances and underinvestment in Racing Club infrastructure.

As this area can be one of potential value enhancement for both the wagering operator and the Racing Clubs into the future, whether it is a privatised model or not, the current improved developments between RWWA and the Racing Clubs must be continued. In a potential privatisation it is absolutely necessary for these improvements to be a considered within a new licence. Accordingly, future on-course wagering under either a privatised or continuing model needs to include active consideration of:

- The ability for Racing Clubs to conduct fixed odds betting under their wagering licences, in addition to the pari-mutuel wagering as currently provided.
- Remove restrictions on the numbers of operator and self-service terminals on track
- Allow and require the wagering operator to provide the same racing information systems on-course as provided off-course.
- Require the wagering operator to enter into on-course wagering agreements with Clubs if requested on reasonable terms to both parties (as currently is the case)
- The wagering operator providing the ability for roaming TAB operators, and to be able to take verbal bets on-course using operators
- Centralised administration of the Australian Price Network for fixed odds pricing
- A requirement for the wagering operator to provide the technology to capture on-course mobile betting with the wagering operator, maintaining the on-course wagering tax exemptions.

6.2.1.12 Racing Industry Governance Structure

This issue has been discussed elsewhere in this Report. If privatisation does occur, as outlined earlier, an entity such a Racing Western Australia representing all Codes and all racing industry participants will need to be formed (or in the case of RWWA reformed) to provide the primary entity to represent the WA Racing Industry in joint venture/contractual or other arrangements with the wagering operator, and to oversee integrity and programming in the Western Australian racing industry.

6.2.1.13 RWWA Staffing Arrangements

If an existing TAB operator obtains the WATAB licence then it is highly likely that the bulk of the wagering operation will be run from their wagering head office operation interstate. If a non-TAB wagering operator was to be the successful party they would need to retain much of the WATAB operations.

So if an existing TAB operator is successful most of the people employed in the Marketing and Retail divisions would not be required, and many of the Information Services staff would probably not be required. A buyer may seek to retain some call centre staff if time zone differences are considered to be best managed by a local call centre. Some of the Retail Division would be retained to service the retail WATAB network. Most if not all of the shared service functions of Finance and Business Services and Human Resources that relate to wagering would not be required. Of course, depending upon WA Government decisions on the remaining structures for RWWA, such as a Racing Western Australia, much of the rest of RWWA's organisation chart, with substantially trimmed technology and shared services functions, could continue in this new framework.

In any potential privatisation a decision will need to be taken as to which parties are responsible for the people whose roles are to be lost, and how any particular transfers of roles from RWWA to a new wagering operator are to be effected.

As a significant part of any value to an existing TAB operator of the WATAB licence will be in the ability to extract cost synergies from its operation by effectively undertaking a number of existing roles from its own existing interstate staff, any obligations for non-required RWWA staff will reduce the value of the licence. The WA Government will therefore need to determine if it requires the new wagering operator to take over the employment contracts of all the wagering-related staff of RWWA and then leave it to the operator to make employment decisions and deal with the redundancy arrangements, or allows the operator to seek to retain only those employees it requires transferred to its employment upon privatisation occurring.

In the latter case, RWWA and/or the WA Government will need to deal with redundancy/re-deployment arrangements as appropriate. The WA Government may require certain arrangements for transferring staff in terms of existing entitlements. In either case the WA Government will need to determine whether it gives any period of job security to employees through a requirement in the privatisation process, and at whose expense, but the new wagering operator will probably want to ensure some short term availability for integration purposes.

6.2.1.14 RWWA Wagering Asset Infrastructure

A new wagering operator in a potential privatisation of WATAB which is an existing TAB operator will need to consider whether there are any benefits in retaining and using any of the wagering infrastructure of WATAB/RWWA, or rolling out its own infrastructure.

The key assets in this regard are the betting engine system, the retail TAB outlet fit-outs and racewall information system, the telecommunications infrastructure in place to support the off-course and on-course betting, and the digital/mobile betting infrastructure of TABtouch. Whilst these are clearly decisions to be made at the appropriate time, it is anticipated that any such purchaser will look to generate savings and efficiencies from single technology platforms across its network and not duplicate such technology. Which elements it uses or discards in this process will be a corporate decision at the time, depending upon their existing scale and views on parts of RWWA's technology, particularly following recent investment by RWWA to enhance their wagering systems.

Any other non-TAB wagering operator who looks at the WATAB in a privatisation would most probably look to retain the existing infrastructure in the short/medium term

Whilst neither this nor the RWWA staffing arrangements directly impact the WA Racing Industry, they will determine the value that a potential privatisation may create in terms of up-front payment for the WA Government. This value equation may be critical in any final decision to privatise, and these matters therefore represent a key element of where a potential new wagering operator can look to quickly extract synergies from the integration of the WATAB operation into its existing business. This is where issues around the question of where the shareholders of a buyer will get benefit whilst maintaining existing other stakeholder flows will be partly answered. If a new operator can optimise these synergies and pay a reasonable price up front, then their shareholders can still benefit whilst the WA Racing Industry continues to receive its funding. But if the WA Government's up-front value expectations are too great and hence the sharing of these synergy benefits between Government and new wagering operator in this sale are too weighted to Government, pressure may fall on the WA Racing Industry funding to make up the shortfall if a privatisation was still to occur.

6.3 Funding and Sustainability of Racing in Western Australia

This section of this Report discusses the current and prospective future funding position and framework for racing in Western Australia, looking at these in the context of whether or not WATAB is privatised.

6.3.1 Background

This Report in a number of previous sections has outlined the significant role that the WA Racing Industry plays in the State of Western Australia. The Report has also outlined that the Western Australian racing product generates around a quarter of WATAB's wagering turnover and earnings, and would appear to generate around 8% of total wagering turnover Australia wide.

Accordingly, not only is the value and profitability of the WATAB/RWWA wagering business highly dependent upon the operation, sustainability and development of the Western Australian Racing Industry, but to varying degrees so are the operations of other State and Territory TAB's, and other wagering operators (bookmakers). So whilst the "gentlemen's agreement" of the past between TAB's no longer applies, the "balance" of the Australian industry continues to be maintained by the TAB's providing (in most cases) the sufficient funding to their local racing industry to ensure that their jurisdiction provides suitable racing product for themselves and other TAB's (and other wagering operators) to profitably undertake their wagering activities.

Clearly this is the case whether privatisation occurs or not, but obviously under a potential privatisation these would need to be more clearly and formally documented and contracted given the wagering operations would in that case be separated from the primary racing authority entity, and in private ownership. So it would need to be clearly documented that the race programming, promotion, racing integrity, stakeholder representation and infrastructure investment for the WA Racing Industry must be funded in addition to the distributions currently paid to racing clubs and to participants. From the table above this can be seen to cover the operational expenditures of RWWA's Racing Services, the relevant proportion of RWWA's shared services (including technology that support these Racing Services), various grants, subsidies and other payments provided to the WA Racing Industry by RWWA, and obviously then the distributions made by RWWA. In addition, a mechanism for funding racing industry infrastructure requirements would be required as discussed earlier in Section 5.2.4.

6.3.2 Funding of the Industry from Wagering – Past and Future

In sections 5.2.2 and 6.2.1.4 of this Report the distribution funding provided to the WA Racing Industry in the recent past has been discussed, together with potential models in a privatised model. This section will also look at what has been the growth of the other expenditure elements of RWWA that relate to its non-wagering function as outlined in the previous section.

On the basis of the past, and some assessment of WATAB/RWWA's positioning in the future Australian wagering market if it were not to be privatised, some future outlooks are considered to assess what could be a reasonable outlook for WA Racing Industry funding from wagering over the next five years.

6.3.2.1 RWWA Cost Base

As outlined in the previous section, under any privatisation model the funding from the new wagering operator to the WA racing industry would also need to include the expenditure of the "new" PRA entity to fulfil its various responsibilities undertaken on behalf of the WA Racing Industry as a whole, as well as all the funding to Racing Clubs and participants. Without being privy to all of the detailed financial numbers of RWWA, the following outline of expenditures of the organisation are taken from its Annual Reports.

| YEAR    | RACINGEXPENSES ($M) | WAGERINGEXPENSES($M) | UNALLOCATEDEXPENSES($M) | TOTALEXPENSES ($M) |
|---------|--------------------------|-------------------------------|----------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 2007/08 | 15.392                   | 68.388                        | 26.188                           | 109.918                 |
| 2008/09 | 15.688                   | 74.236                        | 26.736                           | 116.660                 |
| 2009/10 | 13.247                   | 76.081                        | 26.956                           | 116.284                 |
| 2010/11 | 14.066                   | 77.369                        | 28.026                           | 119.461                 |
| 2011/12 | 14.848                   | 80.536                        | 30.236                           | 125.620                 |
| 2012/13 | 15.557                   | 82.549                        | 29.966                           | 128.072                 |

Whilst the 2012/13 figures do not line up with those in the previous section in terms of allocation of costs, the focus here is on the trends in these costs as classified in the accounts. The Racing Services expenditures show a steady increase of 17.44% since 2009/10 (or just under 4% per annum compounding) following the reduction in staff reflecting a similar response to the factors that led to reduced racing industry distributions in that year as explained previously in this Report. From 2007/08 wagering expenses, which would be met but differently managed by a new wagering operator after a potential privatisation as outlined earlier, had increased by 14.21% to 2012/13. For the same period, unallocated expenses increased by 14.43%, of which it is hypothesised that most of this increase would reflect wagering related expenditures in this category.

Accordingly, based on this high level analysis and subject to more due diligence being performed on these cost base expenditure numbers in any privatisation process, a funding model would need to be established that ensures, over and above distributions to Clubs and racing industry participants, that with these expenditures growing at a rate of around 4-5% per annum that they were able to be funded under the model into the future.

6.3.2.2 WA Racing Industry Distributions, Subsidies and other Funding

Given the previous various discussions throughout this Report about the history of the distributions to the WA Racing Industry over the last few years and particularly the 5 years to 2012/13, the following statements are made to attempt to suggest a potential outlook for wagering revenue growth and hence potential WA Racing Industry funding growth :

- With declining pari-mutuel betting the overall wagering growth for TAB's have been limited to around 1.2% per annum over the last four years with no reason to believe growth rates over the next 5 years will significantly differ from this. An overview of some financial market/gaming market analysts' outlooks for the Australian TAB wagering revenue growth over the next few years do however suggest some improvement in growth rates. Whilst such outlooks do vary substantially, and also differ between Tabcorp and Tatts, an outlook of around 2% growth on average is broadly expected.
- The low growth performance of other TAB operations has reflected declining retail pari-mutuel turnover offset by strong fixed odds turnover growth.
- WATAB/RWWA's ability to generate growth in its wagering turnover and revenues over this recent period, as explained earlier, arose from its delayed developments in on-line and retail information and betting systems that have essentially enabled it to catch up to other TAB's, as well as its growth in premium punters and improved margins from more favourable pooling arrangements.
- In acknowledging this growth, in the last 3-4 years, the growth in distributions has been constrained by the cash reserving practices of RWWA which has withheld some of the wagering revenue growth from the WA racing industry.
- Flowing from the above, and with more recent investment in its on-line (particularly mobile) and SST capabilities, the future wagering turnover growth and existence of cash reserves to average out oscillations in such growth would suggest an ability to fund funding growth at wagering turnover growth levels similar to those recently experienced for up to another five years potentially.

WHAT COULD PRIVATISATION OF WATAB LOOK LIKE?

- In addition to the previous point, it would appear that WATAB/RWWA has begun to, and will for a period, experience similar fixed odds growth with retail pari-mutuel decline, albeit the latter less pronounced because of upside still inherent in WATAB/RWWA's underlying retail business.

Taking these points above, it is reasonable to suggest the WATAB/RWWA under its existing structure could realistically be expected to grow WA Racing Industry distributions at around the 3.5% per annum compounded rate of recent years potentially over the next five years to a level of in the vicinity of $150 million in financial year 2018/19. All other WA Racing Industry funding by RWWA would also be able to grow at a similar rate. This is predicated, as outlined above, on the availability of cash reserves to underpin fluctuations and impacts on this growth rate in that period, some but limited further growth in premium punters, and general benefits flowing from investments by RWWA in developments not being inhibited by any regulatory change. (An actual forecast growth outlook will need to be provided by RWWA).

Clearly this suggested outlook for WATAB/RWWA wagering turnover growth going forward would need to be rigorously tested and assessed in a potential privatisation process. The growth rate estimate is simply based on a view of the ability to continue on a similar growth path as experienced in recent years. A much more detailed forecasting process by RWWA with much more information would be required to establish a more informed outlook.

When discussing the base line and future funding position of the WA Racing Industry under a potentially privatised WATAB, the baseline needs to include all current funding provided by WATAB/RWWA. Throughout various parts of this Report there has been references to Distributions to the Racing Industry (Racing Clubs and Participants), subsidies/payment made to or on behalf of Racing Clubs by RWWA, funding of training facilities, other grants and subsidies, and the operating costs of RWWA conducting its Racing Operations and integrity roles and other PRA responsibilities. These total funding amounts are not readily able to be fully determined for this Report, but are understood to possibly represent approximately another $25-26 million annually on top of the Distributions and Grants paid to Racing Industry Clubs and Participants.

Again, this total Racing Industry funding would form the basis for the current and the projected minimum funding obligations (reflecting the expected WATAB/RWWA growth profile over the next 5 years) to apply in the WA Racing Industry funding model under a potential privatisation of WATAB.

As also discussed throughout this Report, RWWA has over the last few years been building up its cash reserves to provide a buffer capacity to any detrimental impacts on wagering inflows so as to manage or smooth WA Racing Industry funding through any such impacts. The following table sets out the Distributions and Grants to the Industry,

Clearly in hindsight RWWA probably grew distributions prior to 2009 a little too quickly without reserving, so that then when the adjustment was needed it hit particularly Racing Clubs distributions directly and hard. The year 2009/10 includes the delayed recording of $11.0 million of racefield fees actually relating to 2008/09. When these figures are therefore adjusted the impacts to WATAB/RWWA in 2009/10 carried into 2010/11 are clear to see. Since that time profitability can be seen to have grown much more than Distributions and Grants to the Racing Industry, and Cash Reserves have been able to be built up, with Racefield Fees appearing to have increased significantly in 2011/12 (perhaps suggesting increased corporate bookmaker payments).

It is understood that in 2013/14 Distributions and Grants increased to $130.8 million whilst profit levels are believed to have been maintained. Such prudent risk management by RWWA should be seen positively and constructively in a medium/long term sense despite the more subdued growth in WA Racing Industry funding. However, in a privatisation process such cash reserves should not be lost to the WA Racing Industry given both the reason and the history of funding behind the existence of these cash reserves. Higher distributions and/or infrastructure funding could otherwise have been funded from the improved performance of WATAB.

6.3.3 No Worse Off

The earlier discussion in Chapter 5 of this Report on the current total funding of the WA Racing Industry outlined the fragile nature of the existing position based on distributions from WATAB/RWWA's wagering activities and the investment by owners based on reasonable levels of stakes prizemoney. Accordingly, any potential WATAB privatisation would require that the WA Racing Industry (including the PRA) is "no worse off" in terms of its financial and risk profile as a result of the privatisation. In general terms this means that the funding outcome of a potential privatisation to the WA Racing Industry reflects what WATAB/RWWA has been able to achieve and is forecast to achieve into the future and that the risk profile does not materially change to put such funding at greater uncertainty in terms of levels and security. This context of no worse off is to be pursued in relation to total WA Racing Industry funding, and should not be interpreted as applying to any underlying component parts of that total funding level.

In defining "no worse off" in a more direct way and with clarity, it is both of these perspectives that need greater explanation.

6.3.3.1 “No Worse Off” Funding

The perspective for “no worse off” funding must be two-fold – to establish a base at the time of privatisation that reflects the current funding level – and to establish a future perspective that at least ensures no less funding than that which WATAB/RWWA would have provided in the absence of privatisation. The earlier analysis in Chapter 5 of this Report has outlined why anything less than the current funding level as the base is simply a formula for a significantly smaller WA Racing Industry that neither a new wagering operator, nor the WA Government, should/would wish to entertain as an outcome of privatisation.

As discussed above, whilst clearly the author is not privy to the forward estimates and detailed planning of RWWA, it has been hypothesised that similar growth profiles over the next 5 years to those in the last 5/6 years would seem to be possible. The validity of the figures will need to be established in any potential privatisation, but the principle of this definition of “no worse off” funding is one the WA Racing Industry must seek to establish as a requirement of the racing industry funding arrangement to be put in place in such a potential privatisation.

The delivery of such a commitment by a new wagering operator post privatisation has aspects associated with the racing industry funding arrangement, the privatisation legal structure, and the governance framework. However, to establish certainty on such levels of funding for a certain period, the only model is to legislate/regulate within the relevant document (be it one or more of legislation, regulation, licence or legal agreement) mandated minimum payments to be paid by the new wagering operator to the WA Racing Industry. Whilst such an “underwriting” requirement will create a risk profile to a potential new wagering operator, this will be mitigated by the impact on the value that bidders will be prepared to offer in the privatisation and a good understanding of the WA wagering market and of WATAB’s position in it.

All of this is obviously predicted on an acceptance of WATAB/RWWA’s current and potential future performance outlook, which will be hotly debated but this principle is the important fact to establish.

The period of the “underwrite” of performance is also of prime significance here. In the latest Victorian wagering licence the period was established as three years. This will be a point of contention with any prospective bidder.

Once such an “underwrite period” completes, or immediately in the case where such an arrangement is not put in place, under most models of privatisation the funding of the racing industry will most probably rely on the financial performance of the new wagering operator from a revenue/margin, profit or combination of both perspective. This takes us into the next section on risk.

6.3.3.2 “No Worse Off” Risk

The WA Racing Industry is currently effectively exposed to the risk of the wagering performance of WATAB/RWWA. This risk is mitigated somewhat by the influence it is able to bring through its RWWA Board composition, and was in essence the basis upon which the WA Racing Industry accepted this risk, together though with acknowledging also that the remuneration level for its product property rights are partly a reflection of wagering performance, but within the context of a valuable exclusive retail wagering authority. Again, having a role in Board composition and through Consultative Committees provides a basis also for influence in this regard. This risk in recent times and into the future for a certain period has also been tempered by the build-up of cash reserves within RWWA to provide a protection mechanism to future WA Racing Industry funding from any aberrations in WATAB/RWWA's future wagering performance.

WHAT COULD PRIVATISATION OF WATAB LOOK LIKE?

Such mitigates will not exist in most privatisation models, with only the joint venture type models providing some reflection of decision-making mitigation in relation to wagering performance (depending upon the exact model adopted).

In addition, as identified earlier, in a potential privatisation there are issues around the continuity of the extent of premium punters, and the prospect for the channelling of account customers to lower cost jurisdictions of the new wagering operator, that add additional risk in a privatisation. Of course, offsetting these factors will be the matters of potential improvements in the fixed odds offer and hence revenue, and more rapid future rollouts of technologies and products (if timely regulatory permission is provided). Specific other risk management approaches such as licence and legislative requirements for the wagering operator to operate in the best interests of the WA Racing Industry, monitoring and/or reporting, or more specific contractual provisions, can also be considered. The risk profile will change and the structures for privatisation and the WA Racing Industry funding models need to be established to ensure these risks are mitigated to the best possible extent so as to provide the WA Racing Industry with a "no worse off" risk outcome.

In this context it is therefore recommended that if such arrangements do get put in place under a privatisation process that the WA Racing Industry also seek that at the completion of the mandated minimum funding obligation time period that a review process be included in the structure to examine the racing industry funding model at that time to ensure it appropriately reflects the then current wagering performance and conditions.

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

This Report has discussed in some depth the financial situation and operations of RWWA, the national and Western Australian wagering markets and WATAB/RWWA's performance and position within the market, the financial value chains of participants within the Racing Codes that make up the WA Racing Industry, the funding of the Industry, what privatisation means and how it could occur for WATAB, and with all of this what the potential implications of the privatisation may be for the WA Racing Industry. This chapter will talk through what all of this means for the WA Racing Industry, and suggests positions that could be adopted and potential actions to be taken by the WA Racing Industry in relation to the possible privatisation of WATAB.

7.1 The Question of Privatisation of the WATAB

As has been established in this Report, Western Australia is now the only Australian jurisdiction in which the TAB wagering operation is government owned, with the TABs in all other States and Territories owned and operated by either Tabcorp or Tatts Group. Given the very significant competition from corporate bookmakers and other TAB's (with the end of the Gentlemen's Agreement) in relation to racing wagering, and the general competition of sports wagering which is growing at a much faster rate than race wagering, from an Australian wagering industry outlook viewpoint it is difficult to support long term government ownership of an Australian wagering operation. Whilst some will point to successfully operated government-owned wagering operations overseas (such as the Pari-Mutuel Urban in France), these are national entities, not state based, and hence of size and position to better face the competition of on-line bookmakers.

It is in this competitive context that Tabcorp and Tatts have looked to acquire other TAB operations to get such scale. This scale enables them to meet the costs of funding the local racing industries and continuing to invest in technologies, product offers and retail-based infrastructure to sustain their businesses under strong competition. WATAB/RWWA's wagering turnover is not large enough by itself to ensure the liquidity and price stability in its wagering pools for a competitive pari-mutuel wagering offer, and hence has a long running pooling agreement with Tabcorp (into the SuperTAB pool) to provide these attributes. WATAB/RWWA's fixed odds turnover has not been sufficient to justify building its own in-house fixed odds management capability, and it has appropriately sought to outsource such management to existing operators with the necessary infrastructure.

In Chapters 4 and 6 this Report discussed the low growth outlook for TAB turnover and revenue around Australia. With relatively high fixed cost structures of TAB operations given the retail network and infrastructure and the associated technology costs, scale is the only answer to the required continued investment to sustain the business.

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

WATAB/RWWA has performed well relative to other TAB's in turnover growth terms in recent years, which does reflect a combination of solid management with a significant element of catch up to other TAB's in terms of product, retail and technology offers at levels that TAB's in other jurisdictions had previously rolled out to their customer base. Some more recent initiatives by WATAB/RWWA such as racewall technology, the improved fixed odds offer generally, and increasing levels of self-serve terminals, should continue to provide solid growth over the medium term at growth rates that should be above the expected overall national TAB turnover growth levels. However, once these catch up elements are exhausted there is no reason to suggest that WATAB/RWWA has any capacity to further outperform. In fact, to the contrary, once these catch ups have occurred, it is difficult to see how WATAB/RWWA continues to compete given its lack of scale, and the risk of its dependencies on external providers for pooling services and management.

Accordingly, the position of "if it ain't broke don't fix it", whilst understandable, needs to be seen in the context of the future wagering outlooks, the pooling dependencies, the continued competition faced, and the difficulty and necessity for continued investment that this situation requires. This is particularly problematic in an entity still faced with the implications of government ownership.

Concerns expressed about whether participants, and particularly owners, would continue to invest in the WA Racing Industry if WATAB was not government owned are answered by this situation applying in all other parts of Australia. However, in saying that, the key plank underpinning this is that under a privatised model the racing industry funding model for the WA Racing Industry must be such as to instil this confidence to continue to invest through the establishment of a racing industry funding model that ensures the funding from the WATAB wagering operator to the WA racing industry is sufficient on an ongoing basis to sustain the industry.

Having said this there are a number of other issues or concerns in relation to the potential privatisation of WATAB that weigh against proceeding with the privatisation. These issues include:

- The implications of a privatisation for the substantial premium punter component of WATAB wagering turnover, which is understood to possibly represent up to 20% of turnover. If this was to be lost because of privatisation the funding capability for the WA Racing Industry would be substantially depleted.
- The same outcomes could occur if a new wagering operator sought to move WATAB's account customers to another licence that is lower cost and hence makes these WA customers then more valuable to the operator. It is understood that these account customers could represent up towards 25% of WATAB's turnover, and hence represent a significant potential risk
- In some Australian jurisdictions the privatisation processes themselves have not been seen to work well, with arguably suboptimal outcomes for the Government and the Racing Industry. It must however be recognised that in some cases this has most probably been because of existing inherent issues with the management of the underlying Racing Industry or the TAB, rather than necessarily attributing all or any blame to the actual privatisation process itself.

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

- Whether the WA Government is prepared to engage and spend the time with the WA Racing Industry to convince the Industry that it will be no worse off.
- Would the WA Government be better placed prioritising assets for sale that weigh on the public purse and hence that are not in the position of WATAB/RWWA and the WA Racing Industry of essentially self-funding itself (except perhaps infrastructure) and contributes in excess of $40 million per annum to the WA Government in wagering taxes.
- Is it currently worth privatising WATAB given the value equation for a new private operator that needs to service the requirements of new stakeholders such as the Australian Taxation Office (income tax) and shareholders (dividends) in addition to maintaining the obligations to the WA Racing Industry, the WA Government, and other existing stakeholders.
- Clearly a new privately owned wagering operator of WATAB will have a primary focus on returns to its shareholders that may not result in decision-making by that operator in the best interests of the WA Racing Industry.

There are a number of these matters that can be dealt with by the WA Government in a potential privatisation process, if they so choose, to ensure the position of the WA Racing Industry is protected if a privatisation of WATAB is to occur. If these matters are not appropriately addressed, then WA Racing Industry would seriously need to consider opposing a privatisation of WATAB.

Accordingly, and subject to a number of issues raised above being addressed prior to any privatisation, the WA Racing Industry should acknowledge that the privatisation of WATAB is, on balance, likely to occur at some time over the next few years. Even given this situation the WA Racing Industry should only countenance such a privatisation of WATAB if the racing industry funding model leaves the industry in a at the least “no worse off” financial position, and the governance and licence frameworks ensure the WA Racing Industry is protected in terms of its risk profile and has a no less favourable standing in the context both of potential privatisation and future wagering licencing process outcomes.

Whilst there is the prospect of arguing over the actual ownership of the WATAB, and also to raise the question of racing program product rights ownership, it is recommended that the WA Racing Industry not seek these actions if the WA Government, in any potential privatisation process, agrees to an acceptance of at the least a no worse off funding model that is encapsulated in legislation and contract and links the resulting obligation to fund the WA Racing Industry to the granting of the licence, with retail exclusivity the key driver of value and racing industry funding obligations.

7.2 The Current Situation of the WA Racing Industry

In Chapter 5 of this Report a picture of the operation and financial position of the WA Racing Industry and its participants was provided in a great deal of detail. The overall perspectives to take from this value chain analysis of the WA Racing Industry are:

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

- The distributions, subsidies and other payments made to the participants in the WA Racing Industry by RWWA from its WATAB wagering operations have just been sufficient to support the Industry, but on many indicators there has been some significant Industry contraction in recent times.
- Given that the WA Racing Industry has calibrated to the current funding levels, despite increased costs growing faster than returns in most cases, there is no room in the value chains for any less funding from wagering.
- With the punters and owners being the major funders of the WA Racing Industry, and for owners the investment being largely aspirational and seeking intangible returns, any reduction in the wagering contribution to the WA Racing Industry which reduces stakes prizemoney would quickly also reduce owners' investment (based on an acceptable loss context), leading to a higher leverage downwards to racing industry funding than just the distribution reduction.
- The code value chains illustrate that whilst a small number of participants in the Western Australian Racing Industry generate a reasonable return from racing, most are not. It is an Industry in which a small number of people in each segment tend to take a disproportionate share of returns leaving a number to battle financially within the model. In many cases, particularly with owners and some breeders, it is not racing that has created wealth, it is external wealth, and in fact racing tends to reduce this wealth. Racing may often be called a sport of kings, but in most cases it attracts "external" kings, it does not create them in a wealth sense from Western Australian racing.
- Accordingly, there are many in the WA Racing Industry who know nothing else and generate little return but the passion of the Industry. Many employees would have some difficulty finding alternative employment, and operate around minimum wage rates (if that).
- In many cases Racing Clubs survive through voluntary and honorary roles at Board/Committee and operation levels, with Clubs as a whole only breaking even financially on the back of various subsidies paid by RWWA from its wagering returns. The combined Racing Club financial figures reflect that there is no capacity to reduce funding to the WA Racing Industry without significantly damaging the financial position and hence potential sustainability of many of Western Australia's Racing Clubs.
- Given the tight operational financial position of the WA Racing Industry, and the need for property holdings availability to breed and train animals for racing, property assets for those who can obtain them become not only operational assets but represent the only form of retirement/superannuation they hold, the value of which is often tied to the sustainability of the industry.
- With its current settings, the WA Racing Industry is effectively just self-funding on an operational cashflow basis, but infrastructure funding to maintain and improve, and keep safe, existing facilities is an ongoing challenge.

Accordingly, the Western Australian Racing Industry currently is somewhat calibrated in a fragile fashion to the current funding structures in terms of distribution, subsidies and other payments from WATAB/RWWA, whilst the WA Government nets over $40 million per annum from the Wagering Tax.

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

Any action that reduced funding to this current balanced but fragile situation would therefore clearly very quickly and directly disrupt this position and lead to significant pull backs across the WA Racing Industry as there are no real buffers to absorb any significant reductions in funding. So any racing industry funding model that did not sustain the current funding levels, nor provide some certainty on future funding, would not only immediately impact the WA Racing Industry but would also quickly reduce investment given the hit to confidence it would represent. Some signs of this are already evident from the current uncertainty in the WA Racing Industry from asset infrastructure and TAB privatisation discussions.

7.3 WATAB/RWWA

The wagering performance of WATAB/RWWA has been identified in this Report as solid in recent times in managing the process of catching up with other TAB operators, and in some sense partially protected by a degree of punter loyalty to the local product (as opposed to corporate bookmakers) and from Racing Clubs agreeing not to seek sponsorship of corporate bookmakers to promote their product. This performance would however have seemed to come from a greater focus by RWWA on its wagering responsibilities than its racing responsibilities. Whilst there is some evidence that RWWA has now sought to achieve a better balance in its focuses in this regard, it has probably not in recent times invested enough resources and focus in the quality, integrity and promotion of the racing product.

This situation would appear to have led to an environment where industry participants in general have been reasonably pleased with the distributions, subsidies, and other payments, and bonus/incentive schemes put in place, by RWWA to fund the Racing Clubs and racing industry participants, but have expressed some frustration with elements of the management of the racing product. Whilst it is clearly a difficult, if not impossible, task to satisfy all stakeholders across all Codes in the racing industry, discounting this out still seemed to leave a generality around concerns on RWWA's performance in this regard.

The focus to wagering has until recently been predominately in relation to off-course wagering in the context of retail and digital predominately, with limited attention to on-course wagering. The resulting drop in on-course wagering (which also can be attributed to declining attendances and competition from corporate bookmakers), when combined with no recent growth in Racing Club distributions by RWWA (until very recently) with increasing cost pressures faced by Racing Clubs, has resulted in Racing Club concerns regarding RWWA's performance. The subsidies around racefield fee payments on Club's behalf, as well as broadcasting expenses and similar payments, funded by RWWA need to be considered here though, as too does the need for Clubs to get patrons back to the races.

The generally favourable perspective on RWWA's financial performance is however an area of major risk and possible concern for the WA Racing Industry under a potential privatisation of WATAB. It needs to be clearly explained and made clear to the WA Government that this is not simply a statement about stakes prizemoney funding. As can be very clearly seen from Chapter 5, the returns generated by the wagering operations of WATAB/RWWA and provided in funding to the WA Racing Industry included:

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

- Stakes prizemoney funding
- Event fee payments to Racing Clubs
- Training funding to Racing Clubs and RWWA training facilities
- Jockeys and Drivers payments
- Breeders and Owners Bonus / Incentive Schemes
- Product fees, broadcast costs and other payments on behalf of Racing Clubs
- Cost of RWWA's Racing Operations groups

In the event of a privatisation of WATAB it is all of these (and any other payments made by RWWA to the WA Racing Industry not identified above) that would need to be catered for in the funding arrangements to be put in place between the wagering operator and the WA Racing Industry.

In addition, RWWA has been building cash reserves which it is understood has occurred to provide an ability to smooth distribution levels to protect against events such as those that resulted in a distribution decrease in 2009/10. There are three matters of interest in relation to these cash reserves for the WA Racing Industry in any potential privatisation of WATAB:

- These cash reserves should be retained by the WA Racing Industry
- Such reserving / smoothing will not be an element of a privatised wagering operators approach
- The potential for an entity such as Racing Western Australia to have such a reserving capability into the future

These matters need to be pursued with the WA Government in any discussions on the potential privatisation of the WATAB.

7.4 WA Racing Industry Positioning in a Privatisation

Throughout this Report, and particularly in Chapter 6, it has been shown that privatising / selling a TAB business is a complex matter, with many moving parts, many stakeholders, and many issues requiring close consideration and decision, to determine whether in fact privatisation should proceed, if so in what form and structure, and for what value. Many of these interrelated considerations will not just go to matters of value to be realised in a sale process but also to risk positions of the parties prior to and then subsequent to the privatisation.

In this context it is critical for the WA Racing Industry to determine with the WA Government what the Government's objectives of the privatisation of WATAB are so as to ensure the Industry's interests are protected. Without pre-empting what the WA Government's position may be, if it does seek to privatise the WATAB, its objectives one or more of the following in any potential privatisation:

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

- (i) To remove Government from the ownership of its wagering business because it does not believe government ownership in the competitive industry is appropriate
- (ii) To ensure that the WA Racing Industry's interests are fully protected and that the Industry is no worse off from the transaction
- (iii) To maximise the sales proceeds with or without point (ii) as a consideration
- (iv) To privatise the WATAB because the Government believes it has reached its maximum value in terms of its potential sale value due to future revenue growth outlooks and competitive pressures
- (v) To establish licence terms and conditions and legislative frameworks that enable review points for the arrangements or lock them in long term, and provide more or less flexibility and WA Government involvement in the conduct (but not the operation) of the wagering licence than currently exists.

The WA Racing Industry will clearly look to have point (ii) above as a primary objective in any potential WATAB privatisation process if it is to occur, and so long as this is ensured and no worse off is clearly and unambiguously defined and agreed in funding and risk profile terms, the Industry should be prepared to accept the WA Government seeking its value.

In this context of value, whilst clearly a WA Government issue, it is imperative that if a sale is to occur that the medium term wagering performance outlook of WATAB/RWWA as suggested in this Report is reflected in the value. This can occur in two ways that the Racing Industry would seek to have in the process:

- Acceptance of the above market wagering performance expectation for the medium term
- No worse off definitions to incorporate this outlook into a mandated minimum guaranteed underwritten funding commitment to the WA Racing Industry for an initial period.

Whilst potential bidders will reduce their valuations for the latter point, acceptance of the former through strong justification by RWWA Management (if this is in fact the case) to potential bidders should mitigate a good degree of this risk in the valuation process.

7.4.1 No Worse Off

Section 6.3.3 of this Report discusses the perspective of “No Worse Off” for the WA Racing Industry if a privatisation of WATAB was to occur. It identifies the two perspectives to “no worse off” as encompassing both funding and risk profile.

The fragile calibrated financial model of the WA Racing Industry necessitates a “no worse off” funding position as being the current level of distributions, subsidies, incentive/ bonus schemes, costs of racing operations and integrity, and other payments made by RWWA to Racing Clubs and WA Racing Industry participants. Going forward, it defines “no worse off” funding to be reflected in mandated minimum payments levels over the next five years that reflect the estimated expected WA wagering industry performance in wagering turnover growth from WATAB in a no privatisation scenario. It would be anticipated that this performance could at the least be based on an expectation of continuing recent growth rates which have been around 3.5% per annum. Of course, this would provide a minimum mandated level of future payments, with better wagering growth performance by a privatised WATAB producing higher payments to the WA Racing Industry. This will need to be formally assessed through detailed forecasting by RWWA. After that time the WA Racing Industry would be exposed to the wagering industry performance more generally (as would occur under no privatisation), but should look to a process to review the ongoing WA Racing Industry funding model at that point so that it is based off the conditions and performance at that time.

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

In terms of risk profile, Section 6.3.3.2 talks to the point that the WA Racing Industry's funding risk is primarily and largely subject to WATAB's wagering performance now, but is mitigated to an extent by the RWWA Board composition requirements around Code representation, and through the Consultative Committees for each Code with RWWA (although these are more directed at racing issues than funding). Also the cash reserving now occurring within RWWA won't be a practice specifically for the WA Racing Industry by the new operator of WATAB under a privatised model.

As outlined above, the ability for these cash reserves to be maintained by the WA Racing Industry needs to be clarified (including whether the legal structure of an entity such as Racing Western Australia could undertake this).

In governance terms, a joint venture structure would position the WA Racing Industry in a situation close to but not the same as currently with WATAB/RWWA in terms of some oversight and decision-making influence of wagering operations. The funding models also suggested in this Section would add to such risk mitigation. This will need further consideration once more detail is known on the possible structures and funding models for a potential privatisation.

7.4.2 Other Privatisation Issues

This Report, particularly in Section 6.2, has outlined a number of the issues that need to be worked through in a potential privatisation of WATAB, and in most cases indicated that the WA Racing Industry cannot and should not establish a firm position on many of these prior to having the opportunity to discuss them with the WA Government before any possible privatisation process is formally initiated.

Some commentary however on specific areas that are relevant for the WA Racing Industry to consider if WATAB was to be privatised are:

- (i) The Wagering Licence – that it is an exclusive retail totalisator licence for pari-mutuel and fixed odds betting, with an obligation to meet WA Racing Industry funding. If it is to be a long term licence the WA Racing Industry should look for the licence to include shorter term review points to test the appropriateness of the racing industry funding model and operation of the licence – either through shorter exclusivity terms or similar trigger points. The WA Racing Industry would prefer to see a flexible and timely approval process for products and channels within the licence to obtain a wide product range that drives revenue for the wagering operator.

- (ii) The Legislative Framework – the major focuses here for the WA Racing Industry are:
- That the legislation and licence requires the wagering operator to enter into a contractual funding model with the WA Racing Industry.
  - That the legislation incorporates a no worse off (or no less favourable) requirement on any licences into the future (including this one) for the WA Racing Industry if privatisation occurs.
  - That the legislative framework is not too restrictive on the operations of the new wagering operator to ensure that returns are not inhibited
- (iii) Structure – it is too early at this stage to suggest a preferred WA Racing Industry position other than to state that a model under which the Government and not the wagering operator funds the industry must be avoided. Racing Industry ownership of the WATAB is not recommended.
- (iv) Racing Industry Funding Model – other than the requirement for the WA Racing Industry to be “no worse off” in relation to funding, the matter of the appropriate model cannot be determined at this stage. Total reliance of a profit share model is however not recommended. Many other aspects of the potential privatisation need to be understood before a view on the desired racing industry funding model can be formed.
- (v) Racing Program Agreement – other aspects such as structure and the Racing Industry Funding Model will heavily influence both how the Racing Program Agreement process is to work and the quality of the Program, but it requires an integrated Tri-Code grouping for the WA Racing Industry (which Racing Western Australia – RWWA without wagering – could bring given its existing in-house capabilities).
- (vi) Wagering Tax – this is a WA Government issue other than it reduces the amount of funding available to the WA Racing Industry, but it is important for the new wagering operator and the WA Racing Industry to get certainty around this matter longer term to lock away the appropriate racing industry funding model into the future.
- (vii) Racefield Fees – a “no worse off” position in relation to racefield fees at present is unclear but would probably involve the wagering operator offsetting payments against the WA Racing Industry funding and Racefield Fee income flowing to the WA Racing Industry. It is recommended that this offset mechanism for the new wagering operator under a potential privatisation be limited to no more than the amount of incoming Racefield Fees received by the WA Racing Industry each year.

- (viii) Other Financial Arrangements – matters such as GST reimbursements, Fractions and Premium Player Rebates will sit with the WA Government and a new wagering operator to agree if a privatisation was to occur, but outcomes would need to be considered in finalising the WA Racing Industry Funding model. It would be recommended that unclaimed dividends on racing be paid to the WA Racing Industry after the 7 months as set in legislation at present.
- (ix) On-course Wagering Arrangements – this is an area that has lacked focus by RWWA up until recently, and an area of some potential upside to all under any future models. Accordingly, this is an area, particularly for Racing Clubs, but also the entire industry, that would need to be dealt with appropriately in a potential privatisation, including consideration of the suggested improvements listed in Section 6.2.1.1.1 of this Report.

7.5 WA Racing Industry Governance Structure in a Privatised Model

If the wagering operations of WATAB/RWWA are privatised, the question of what happens with the governance of the WA Racing Industry is raised. A refocused RWWA, which after privatisation could now be Racing Western Australia and without wagering, could effectively continue to largely operate from a PRA perspective as it currently does. The difference would be rather than operating the WATAB and allocating the proceeds from wagering as appropriate, it receives the funds under the Racing Industry Funding Model from the privatised WATAB which it continues to allocate as it currently does and otherwise undertakes all of its non-wagering activities.

Given the history of the WA Racing Industry and its Codes, it is considered that the establishment of RWWA as a Tri-Code representative body of the Industry has worked reasonably well. Whilst Codes will have different perspectives on various matters as they seek to represent their particular constituents, the benefit of decision-making for the WA Racing Industry informed by knowledge across the three Codes seems to outweigh the perceived disadvantages. It would be expected that this would in fact improve with the greater racing industry focus the new entity would now have as its only responsibility.

This is a suggested way forward. There appears no real benefit in changing the current structures in place underneath this, although it is unclear why the Western Australian Greyhound Association necessarily needs to remain an entity established by statute and subject to the direction of the Minister. A structure similar to that of RWWA at present would seem appropriate for WAGRA – and accordingly it is also considered that the current structure of RWWA be retained (amended to exclude wagering responsibilities).

In this context and considering the challenges that the WA Racing Industry will continue to face into the future in the form of :

- competing entertainment and leisure time offers for potential punters and racegoers,
- significant investment in facilities by these competing offers,

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

- the difficulty for the WA Racing Industry (other than greyhounds to an extent) to find an offer that continually entertains within a relatively short time period (eg AFL, Big Bash cricket), and
- the WA Racing Industry dependence upon a low growth wagering based funding model of TAB's and relatively low racefield fees such an integrated Tri-Code approach seems necessary. In fact, it seems critical that the WA Racing Industry actually look at itself as a single sport rather than 3 Codes and determine how its portfolio of entertainment and wagering offers (and all available assets) can best be managed to attempt to better face these significant challenges with what is a fragile economic model for racing. If such an approach is adopted it would be appropriate to re-consider the skills required on the Board to ensure the necessary re-focusing is reflected in the Board composition.

7.6 WA Racing Industry Asset Infrastructure Efficiency / Rationalisation

This last issue is no better illustrated than in the case of the infrastructure assets currently utilised by the WA Racing Industry – not just the race tracks but also the properties owned/used by participants within the Industry.

The current very tight operational cash flow position of the WA Racing Industry clearly shows extremely limited capacity to fund infrastructure maintenance and repair, let alone development and improvement to attract people to the races. The WA Racing Industry should seek in some manner a funding mechanism for ongoing infrastructure needs in any potential privatisation of WATAB. A number of possible approaches to this requirement are discussed in Section 6.2.1.14 of this Report.

However, in seeking such a requirement, the WA Racing Industry must also take the initiative and as a total industry, rather than by Code or region, seriously look at how to better use the assets available to it. Efficiency and effectiveness of current use and possible rationalisation and/or relocation must be actively considered. It would seem imperative that such a commitment by the WA Racing Industry occurs so as to be able to constructively argue for some form of infrastructure funding support in a potential privatisation process. This would seem to be the case irrespective of whether a privatisation occurs or not given the conclusion next year of the current RIGF and R4R capital funding programs for racing industry infrastructure.

Initiatives such as the recently announced Metropolitan Racing Asset Taskforce are positive steps in this regard, as is the work Deloitte are undertaking for Perth Racing. However, to achieve the maximum benefit of all of this work, it needs to be integrated/co-ordinated. The WA Racing Industry as a whole needs to be supportive of such initiatives, but such initiatives must also ensure all relevant stakeholders are engaged.

Whilst this issue is outside the scope of this Report, it is a critical piece of the future sustainability of the WA Racing Industry.

7.7 Other Income Streams

Whilst it would appear currently outside WA Government policy and therefore difficult to contemplate being able to successfully argue, the WA Racing Industry could look to continue to push for a couple of other product/income streams within a potential privatisation process:

- Trackside – a simulated racing events product operated by Tabcorp but for which Crown Resorts (the operator of the Crown Casino at Burswood) has the Western Australian rights. This product could be approved as a wagering product and hence only be available within TAB's and on-course.
- Racinos – certain racecourses could be provided with the ability to have gaming machines extended from the Crown Casino licence, as a way of improving infrastructure use and funding, recognising that racecourses are already places of gambling and suitably regulation compliant.

Such product expansion could provide funding to the Government, the Racing Industry, the wagering operator, and potentially in the case of Racinos the community as well.

7.8 WA Racing Industry Engagement with the WA Government over Privatisation of WATAB

The objective for the WA Racing Industry if the privatisation of the WATAB does proceed is to be able to engage with the WA Government early in its process deliberations to work with and agree with the Government the acceptable positions on the many issues of a privatisation that have been outlined in this Report. It is recommended that the WA Racing Industry seek such engagement and interaction with the WA Government prior to any formal discussions or processes commencing with potential bidders and/or a formal sale commences.

To ensure that the WA Racing Industry's, and the WA Government's, best interests are met in the privatisation process, it is critical that the WA Government is very clear on the objectives to be achieved in the privatisation/sale for the WA Government and the WA Racing Industry, and on funding models, structures, key licencing parameters and legislative and contractual frameworks to present to potential bidders. Where relevant, these will have been agreed with the WA Racing Industry and formally documented as the basis for seeking proposal bids from potential bidders in such a potential privatisation.

The vital need for this engagement, and for formally agreed positions on the many privatisation matters raised, between the WA Government and the WA Racing Industry, lies in the potential risks of not getting the privatisation of WATAB right.

These can be reflected in some previous TAB privatisation experiences where the impacts of losing account customers has impacted racing industry funding, where inappropriate consideration to premium punter responses led to significantly overstated value expectations, and to the situations where funding arrangements and wagering tax settings have needed to be amended to ensure better racing industry funding. Early engagement and agreement on frameworks, objectives and expectations between the WA Government and the WA Racing Industry will significantly mitigate the risks of unexpected and poorly structured outcomes for all parties, including the new wagering operator of WATAB if a privatisation does proceed.

WHAT DOES ALL OF THIS MEAN FOR THE WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY?

In this context, the Western Australian Racing Representative Group will need to obtain a mandate from the WA Racing Industry to undertake such discussions with the WA Government, and seek a commitment from the WA Government for such engagement at the front end of a potential privatisation process. Such engagement must come with a requirement for obtaining agreement between the WA Government and the WA Racing Industry on the relevant industry issues identified in this Report for a potential WATAB privatisation.

This early engagement and agreement on positions for a WATAB privatisation between the WA Government and the WA Racing Industry is considered to be the best risk mitigation strategy for the “sellers” when dealing with experienced wagering operators, and some who have also been involved in previous privatisation processes.

It is particularly important for the WA Racing Industry to have a clear and documented commitment with the WA Government on the privatisation framework. Such a process occurred within the 2012 wagering licence bid process in Victoria, based on the no less favourable (ie, no worse off) requirements within the legislative licencing provisions surrounding the new licence.

A.T.A. Recommended Race Day Attendance Fees

This table of fees are a guide only to recover costs (billed to owners) associated with attendance at race meetings by stablehands, in accordance with the Horse & Greyhound Training Award 2010 (HGTA). The ATA's recommended race day attendance fees are based on 3 ordinary hours of work.

|  |       |
|--|-------|
| Race meetings Monday to Saturday             | $115 |
| Race meetings Public Holiday, Sunday & Night | $160 |

Racecourse Attendance Allowance for Employees

Every employee who is required to attend a race meeting must be paid a Racecourse Attendance Allowance under the Horse & Greyhound Training Award 2010. Please see overleaf for the current rates that apply.

For example, should an employee attend a race meeting 120km from their place of employment then the employee is entitled to a Racecourse Attendance Allowance as follows:

First 75 km $23.70 plus $5.58 for each 50 km (or part thereof) after 75km. Therefore based on 120km of travel, the Racecourse Attendance Allowance would total $29.28 in this example.

Please note - The Award provides that when required to attend a race meeting an employee must be paid an allowance of $10.77 for each meal unless the employer supplies the meal.

Transaction benefits

Tabcorp and Tatts to combine to create a world-class, diversified gambling entertainment group

1 Creates a leading, diversified portfolio of gambling entertainment businesses

- long-dated suite of licences
- well positioned to invest, innovate and compete in a rapidly evolving marketplace
- larger and more diversified earnings base, with a broad national footprint
- well positioned to pursue growth opportunities globally

2 Provides a wide range of benefits for stakeholders and enhances the long-term sustainability of the Australian racing industry

- at least $50 million per annum in additional funding expected to flow to the racing industry in Australia
- provides a pathway to national pooling for pari-mutuel wagering, subject to regulatory and racing industry approvals

3 Significant value creation expected for both sets of shareholders

- expected to deliver at least $130 million per annum EBITDA synergies and business improvements, net of benefits to the racing industry
- expected to be EPS accretive (before significant items) and value accretive for both Tabcorp and Tatts shareholders
- Combined Group expected to target a dividend payout ratio of 90% of NPAT before significant items and amortisation of the Victorian Wagering and Betting Licence
- Combined Group expected to undertake a share buyback of $500 million, post implementation of the Transaction and subject to Board approval and market conditions

4 Greater scale and strong balance sheet position

- combined pro forma enterprise value of approximately $11.3 billion<sup>1</sup>, revenue of over $5 billion and EBITDA of over $1 billion<sup>2</sup>
- balance sheet strength better facilitates growth and potential capital management opportunities – Combined Group intends to have an investment grade credit rating

5 Complementary businesses, delivering a winning offer for customers

- combines the best of both businesses to support investment and innovation, including best-in-class digital products
- supports an enhanced range of products and experiences across each of our channels and products

Notes:

- 1 Based on the closing share prices of Tabcorp and Tatts as at 17 October 2016, being the last trading day prior to the announcement of the Transaction and pro forma net debt of the Combined Group as at 30 June 2016
- 2 Based on reported FY 2016 revenue and EBITDA for Tabcorp and Tatts. Excludes the impact of synergies and business improvements

Enhancing the sustainability of the Australian racing industry

The combination creates a strong wagering operator, committed to enhancing the long-term sustainability of Australia's racing industry

- Tabcorp and Tatts are together the largest source of funding for the Australian racing industry, having delivered approximately $1 billion to the racing industry in FY 2016
- The Combined Group's commitment to investment, national footprint and enhanced operational strength will create a stronger business, and provide a strong financial base to support the racing industry and the livelihood of its many participants and related industries
- The combination is expected to deliver substantial financial benefits to underpin the sustainability of the Australian racing industry
  - provides a more efficient funding model
  - the Transaction is expected to result in at least $50 million per annum of additional funding to the racing industry, which will flow to participants and related industries across Australia
  - supports increased prize money and provides more capital for investment in racing infrastructure
  - creates broader economic benefits, including in regional areas
- The Combined Group will work to drive industry growth, investing in innovation across products and channels to improve the retail experience and deliver best-in-class digital platforms
  - national footprint offering a broader suite of market-leading products
  - better placed to invest in innovation across an expanded platform
  - provide a pathway to national pari-mutuel pooling, subject to racing industry and regulatory approvals, and an enhanced ability to adopt strategies to address the national decline in pari-mutuel betting
  - Tabcorp's track record of investment and racing industry returns delivers greater certainty of funding to the industry nationally

Enhancing the strength of Australian business partners

---

The combination is expected to deliver material benefits to Tatts' and Tabcorp's business partners including lottery retail agents, licensed venues and TAB agencies

Lottery retail agents (newsagents and convenience stores)

- Continue to proactively work with retail agents to grow and attract new customers
- Continued commitment to invest in product innovation, customer experience and targeted digital integration

Licensed venues (pubs and clubs)

- Continued integration of digital experience into retail venues to allow pubs and clubs to participate in the growth of digital wagering
- Increased investment in the combined retail network and the venue-based customer experience to deliver an improved offer for licensed venue customers
- Extend the key drivers of the Keno transformation of brand, pooling and digital to South Australia

TAB agencies

- Continued integration of digital experience into retail to allow TAB agencies to participate in the growth of digital wagering
- Continued commitment to invest in customer experience and product initiatives

Enhancing the customer offering

---

The Combined Group will deliver a winning offer for customers, including an increased range of products and high quality customer experiences across each channel

- The combination is expected to significantly enhance customer experiences across each of the Combined Group's products and channels:
  - better positioned to continue to invest in retail networks and provide compelling customer experiences
  - combined business allows us to provide a broader and more innovative suite of products, as well as an enhanced ability to introduce new customer-led products and omni-channel experiences
  - combined digital expertise to deliver best-in-class digital products and user experiences across the Combined Group's digital channels
  - results in larger fixed odds books and provides a pathway to delivering deeper and more liquid betting pools, increasing the attractiveness of pari-mutuel products to customers
- The Combined Group will continue to deliver world-class customer service, building on each organisation's significant customer service expertise
- The combination of two of Australia's most respected and trusted operators will ensure a strong continued focus on and commitment to responsible gambling

Conclusion

---

The Transaction creates a world-class, diversified gambling entertainment group with a wide range of benefits to all key stakeholders

Shareholders

The Australian racing industry

Business partners

Customers

- (v) a reference to the Listing Rules and the Operating Rules includes any variation, consolidation or replacement of these rules and is to be taken to be subject to any waiver or exemption granted to the compliance of those rules by a party.

1.3 Interpretation of inclusive expressions

Specifying anything in this deed after the words 'include' or 'for example' or similar expressions does not limit what else is included.

1.4 Business Day

Where the day on or by which any thing is to be done is not a Business Day, that thing must be done on or by the next Business Day.

1.5 Deed components

This deed includes any schedule.

1.6 Awareness

Where a representation or warranty is given so far as a party 'is aware' or with a similar qualification as to awareness or knowledge, the awareness or knowledge of a party is limited to and deemed only to comprise those facts, matters or circumstances of which that party's Chairperson, Chief Executive Officer or Managing Director, Chief Financial Officer, General Counsel or any other direct report to a party's Chief Executive Officer or Managing Director is aware or ought reasonably to be aware, as at the date of this deed.

2 Agreement to proceed with the Transaction

---

- (a) Tatts agrees to propose the Scheme on and subject to the terms and conditions of this deed.
- (b) Tabcorp agrees to assist Tatts to propose the Scheme on and subject to the terms and conditions of this deed.
- (c) Tatts and Tabcorp agree to implement the Scheme on and subject to the terms and conditions of this deed.

3 Conditions Precedent and pre-implementation steps

3.1 Conditions Precedent

Subject to this clause 3, the Scheme will not become Effective, and the respective obligations of the parties under clause 4 are not binding, until each of the following Conditions Precedent is satisfied or waived to the extent and in the manner set out in this clause 3.

- (a) Regulatory Approvals: before 5.00pm on the Business Day before the Second Court Date:
- (1) Competition approvals: either:
    - (A) Tabcorp has received, either unconditionally or on terms and conditions that are acceptable to both parties acting reasonably, by notice in writing from the ACCC stating, or stating to the effect, that, based on the information before it and other matters noted, the ACCC does not propose to intervene or seek to prevent the acquisition of Tatts Shares by Tabcorp and that notice has not been withdrawn, revoked or amended;
    - (B) authorisation of the acquisition of Tatts Shares by Tabcorp is granted by the Australian Competition Tribunal under Part VII of the CCA and no application has been made for judicial review of the decision of the Tribunal within the prescribed period; or
    - (C) the Federal Court of Australia declares or makes orders to the effect that the acquisition of Tatts Shares by Tabcorp will not contravene section 50 of the CCA; and
  - (2) Other regulatory approvals: the parties obtain the approval of, or consent from, each of the relevant counterparties to those registrations, contracts, licences, permits or authorisations listed in the document agreed by the parties on or about the date of this deed, either unconditionally or on terms and conditions that are acceptable to both parties acting reasonably (and terms and conditions that do not impose unduly onerous obligations or conditions on a party, or any director or officer of a party, and which would not materially adversely affect the business of the Merged Entity will be regarded as reasonable), in order to:
    - (A) permit the appointment of the directors to the Tatts Board under clause 7.2; and
    - (B) otherwise take all steps necessary to implement the Scheme.
- (b) Shareholder approval: Tatts Shareholders agree to the Scheme at the Scheme Meeting by the requisite majorities under subparagraph 411(4)(a)(ii) of the Corporations Act.
- (c) Court approval: the Court approves the Scheme in accordance with paragraph 411(4)(b) of the Corporations Act.
- (d) New Tabcorp Shares: the New Tabcorp Shares to be issued pursuant to the Scheme are approved for official quotation by ASX by 8.00 am on the Second Court Date (provided that any such approval may be subject to customary conditions).

3.2 Reasonable endeavours

- (a) Each party must, to the extent it is within their power to do so, use its reasonable endeavours to procure that:
- (1) the Conditions Precedent in clause 3.1 are satisfied as soon as practicable after the date of this deed; and
  - (2) there is no occurrence within its control or the control of any of its subsidiaries that would prevent any of the Conditions Precedent being or remaining satisfied.
- (b) Without limiting this clause 3.2 but subject to the Confidentiality Agreement, each party must:
- (1) promptly apply for all relevant Regulatory Approvals (as applicable) and provide to the other party a copy of all those applications;
  - (2) take all steps it is responsible for as part of the Regulatory Approval process, including responding to requests for information from the relevant Government Agencies at the earliest practicable time;
  - (3) keep the other party informed of progress in relation to each Regulatory Approval (including in relation to any material matters raised by, or conditions or other arrangements proposed by, or to, any Government Agency in relation to a Regulatory Approval) and provide the other party with all information reasonably requested in connection with the applications for, or progress of, the Regulatory Approvals;
  - (4) consult with the other party in advance in relation to the progress of obtaining, and all material communications with Government Agencies regarding any of, the Regulatory Approvals; and
  - (5) provide the other party with all assistance and information that it reasonably requests in connection with an application for a Regulatory Approval to be lodged by that other party,
- provided that:
- (6) either party may withhold or redact information or documents from the other party if and to the extent that they are either confidential to a third party, or commercially sensitive and confidential to that party or subject to legal professional privilege in favour of that party;
  - (7) neither party is required to disclose materially commercially sensitive information to the other party; and
  - (8) the party applying for a Regulatory Approval is not prevented from taking any step (including communicating with a Government Agency) in respect of a Regulatory Approval if the other party has unduly delayed responding under clause 3.2(b)(4) and has been notified of same.
- (c) Without in any way limiting the obligations of the parties as contained in clauses 3.2(a) and 3.2(b), in relation to procuring that the Condition Precedent in clause 3.1(a)(1) is satisfied as soon as practicable after the date of this deed, the parties agree as follows:
- (1) that competition approval is to be pursued by the parties as a joint exercise, and in that regard, both parties will dedicate all resources necessary to secure the approval (acting reasonably), and at all times work co-operatively and together, and in good faith; and

- (2) as soon as practicable after the date of this deed, the parties will develop and agree a written work plan (Competition Approval Work Plan), which document will set out the means by which the parties agree to jointly secure competition approval. Consistent with the obligation on the parties to work co-operatively, together and in good faith, if either party considers that the Competition Approval Work Plan should be amended or updated so as to reflect developments in the process of securing competition approval, the parties agree to discuss those amendments in good faith and where agreed the Competition Approval Work Plan will be amended accordingly. The Competition Approval Work Plan (as amended from time to time) will form a binding part of this deed.

3.3 Waiver of Conditions Precedent

- (a) The Conditions Precedent in clause 3.1 cannot be waived, unless both parties agree in writing.
- (b) Waiver of a breach or non-satisfaction in respect of one Condition Precedent does not constitute:
- (1) a waiver of breach or non-satisfaction of any other Condition Precedent resulting from the same event; or
  - (2) a waiver of breach or non-satisfaction of that Condition Precedent resulting from any other event.

3.4 Termination on failure of Condition Precedent

- (a) If:
- (1) there is an event or occurrence that would, or does, prevent any of the Conditions Precedent being satisfied;
  - (2) there is an event or occurrence that would, or does, prevent any of the Conditions Precedent being satisfied by the time and date specified in this deed for the satisfaction of that Condition Precedent; or
  - (3) it becomes more likely than not that the Scheme will not become Effective by the End Date,
- the parties must consult in good faith to:
- (4) consider and, if agreed, determine whether the Transaction may proceed by way of alternative means or methods;
  - (5) consider and, if agreed, change the date of the application made to the Court for an order under paragraph 411(4)(b) of the Corporations Act approving the Scheme or adjourning that application (as applicable) to another date agreed to in writing by Tabcorp and Tatts (being a date no later than 5 Business Days before the End Date); or
  - (6) consider and, if agreed, vary the relevant date provided that neither party shall be under any obligation to extend the End Date.
- (b) Subject to clauses 3.4(d), 3.4(e) and 3.4(f), if the parties are unable to reach agreement under clause 3.4(a) by the earlier of:
- (1) 5 Business Days after becoming aware of the relevant event or occurrence that would, or does, prevent a Condition Precedent being satisfied;

- (2) 5 Business Days after the time and date specified in this deed for the satisfaction of a Condition Precedent; or
- (3) the End Date,

as appropriate, then, unless that Condition Precedent has been waived in accordance with clause 3.3, either party may terminate this deed without any liability to the other party because of that termination. However, a party may not terminate this deed pursuant to this clause 3.4(b) if the relevant occurrence or event, the failure of the Condition Precedent to be satisfied, or the failure of the Scheme to become Effective, arises out of a breach of clauses 3.2 or 3.5 by that party, although in such circumstances the other party may still terminate this deed. For the avoidance of doubt, nothing in this clause 3.4(b) affects the obligation of either party to pay the Reimbursement Fee or the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee, if it is required to do so under clause 14.

- (c) Subject to any rights or obligations arising under or pursuant to clauses that are expressed to survive termination (including by virtue of clause 15.3), on termination of this deed, no party shall have any rights against or obligations to any other party under this deed except for those rights and obligations which accrued prior to termination.
- (d) If the Condition Precedent in clause 3.1(b) is not satisfied only because of a failure to obtain the majority required by sub-subparagraph 411(4)(a)(ii)(A) of the Corporations Act, then either party may by written notice to the other within 3 Business Days after the date of the conclusion of the Scheme Meeting require the approval of the Court to be sought, pursuant to the Court's discretion in that sub-subparagraph, provided the party has, in good faith, reasonably formed the view that the prospect of the Court exercising its discretion in that way is reasonable. If approval is given, the Condition Precedent in clause 3.1(b) is deemed to be satisfied for all purposes.
- (e) If the Court refuses to make an order approving the Scheme which satisfies the Condition Precedent in clause 3.1(c), at Tabcorp's request Tatts must appeal the Court's decision to the fullest extent possible (except to the extent that the parties agree otherwise, or an independent Queen's Counsel or Senior Counsel indicates that, in his or her view, an appeal would have negligible prospects of success before the End Date). Tatts may bring an appeal even if not requested by Tabcorp.
- (f) If:
  - (1) an application is made to the Australian Competition Tribunal for the authorisation of the acquisition of Tatts Shares by Tabcorp under Part VII of the CCA;
  - (2) the Australian Competition Tribunal rejects the application before the End Date; and
  - (3) the Queen's Counsel or Senior Counsel jointly briefed by the parties has advised that, in his or her view, there is no reasonable prospect of success of an application for review or appeal in sufficient time for the Scheme to become Effective before the End Date, then either party may terminate this deed by written notice to the other without any liability to the other party because of that termination, other than the payment by Tabcorp of the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee if it is required to do so under clause 14.

3.5 Certain notices relating to Conditions Precedent

- (a) Tatts and Tabcorp (as the case may be) must promptly advise each other, orally and in writing, of satisfaction of a Condition Precedent.
- (b) If a Condition Precedent is not satisfied by the time and date specified for satisfaction of that Condition Precedent, then, unless there is no reasonable prospect that the Condition Precedent will be satisfied before the End Date, Tatts must make an application to defer the Second Court Date until such time (being not later than the Business Day before the End Date) as reasonably required to enable the relevant Condition Precedent to be satisfied.
- (c) If, before the time and date specified for satisfaction of a Condition Precedent, an event or occurrence that will prevent that Condition Precedent being satisfied occurs, the party with knowledge of that event must give the other party written notice of that event or occurrence as soon as possible.
- (d) Tatts and Tabcorp (as the case may be) must promptly advise each other, orally and in writing, of any fact, matter, change, event or circumstance causing, or which, so far as can reasonably be foreseen, would cause:
  - (1) a representation or warranty provided in this deed by the relevant party to be false or misleading in any material respect;
  - (2) a breach or non-satisfaction of any of the Conditions Precedent; or
  - (3) a material breach of this deed by the relevant party.

4 Transaction steps

---

4.1 Scheme

Tatts must propose the Scheme to Tatts Shareholders.

4.2 Scheme Consideration

- (a) Each Scheme Shareholder is entitled to receive the Scheme Consideration in respect of each Scheme Share held by that Scheme Shareholder in accordance with the terms of this deed and the Scheme.
- (b) Subject to clause 4.2(c) and the terms of the Scheme, Tabcorp undertakes and warrants to Tatts (in its own right and separately as trustee and nominee for each of the Scheme Shareholders) that, in consideration of the transfer to Tabcorp of each Tatts Share held by a Scheme Shareholder under the terms of the Scheme, on the Implementation Date Tabcorp will:
  - (1) accept that transfer; and
  - (2) provide to each Scheme Shareholder the Scheme Consideration for each Scheme Share in accordance with the terms of this deed and the Scheme.
- (c) Where the calculation of the number of New Tabcorp Shares to be issued to a particular Scheme Shareholder would result in the Scheme Shareholder becoming entitled to a fraction of a New Tabcorp Share, then the fractional entitlement will be rounded to the nearest whole number of New Tabcorp Shares, with any such fractional entitlement of less than 0.5 being rounded down to the nearest whole number of New Tabcorp Shares, and any such fractional entitlement of 0.5 or more being rounded up to the nearest whole number of New Tabcorp Shares.

- (d) Where the issue of a New Tabcorp Share to which a Scheme Shareholder would otherwise be entitled under the Scheme would result in a breach of law or a breach of a provision of the Tabcorp Constitution, Tabcorp will on the Implementation Date:
- (1) issue the maximum possible number of New Tabcorp Shares to the Scheme Shareholder without giving rise to a breach;
  - (2) issue the remaining New Tabcorp Shares to which the Scheme Shareholder would otherwise be entitled to a nominee appointed by Tabcorp;
  - (3) procure that, as soon as reasonably practicable and in any event not more than 5 Business Days after the Implementation Date, the nominee:
    - (A) sells on the financial market conducted by ASX all of the New Tabcorp Shares issued to the nominee under clause 4.2(d)(2) in such manner, at such price and on such other terms as the nominee determines in good faith (and at the risk of the relevant Scheme Shareholder); and
    - (B) remits to Tabcorp the proceeds of sale (after deduction of any applicable brokerage and other selling costs, taxes and charges); and
  - (4) promptly after the last sale of New Tabcorp Shares in accordance with clause 4.2(d)(3)(A), pays to each relevant Scheme Shareholder the net proceeds received by Tabcorp pursuant to clause 4.2(d)(3)(B) to which that Scheme Shareholder is entitled.

4.3 New Tabcorp Shares

Tabcorp covenants in favour of Tatts (in its own right and separately as trustee and nominee for each of the Scheme Shareholders) that:

- (a) the New Tabcorp Shares issued as Scheme Consideration will, on their issue, rank equally in all respects with all other Tabcorp Shares on issue at the Implementation Date;
- (b) the New Tabcorp Shares issued as Scheme Consideration will be entitled to participate in and receive any dividends or distribution of capital paid and any other entitlements accruing in respect of Tabcorp Shares after the Implementation Date;
- (c) it will use all reasonable endeavours to ensure that the New Tabcorp Shares issued as Scheme Consideration will be listed for quotation on the official list of the ASX with effect from the Business Day after the Effective Date (or such later date as ASX may require), initially on a deferred settlement basis and, with effect from the Business Day following the Implementation Date, on an ordinary (T+2) settlement basis; and
- (d) on issue, each New Tabcorp Share will be fully paid and, to the extent within the control of Tabcorp, free from any Security Interest or encumbrance.

4.4 Ineligible Foreign Shareholders

- (a) Tabcorp will ensure that the New Tabcorp Shares to which an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder would otherwise have been entitled will be issued to a nominee appointed by Tabcorp.
- (b) Tabcorp will procure that, as soon as reasonably practicable and in any event not more than 15 Business Days after the Implementation Date, such nominee:
  - (1) sells on the financial market conducted by ASX all of the New Tabcorp Shares issued to the nominee pursuant to clause 4.4(a) in such manner, at such price and on such other terms as the nominee reasonably determines; and
  - (2) remits to Tabcorp the proceeds of sale (after deducting any reasonable brokerage or other selling costs, taxes and charges).
- (c) Promptly after the last sale of New Tabcorp Shares in accordance with clause 4.4(b), Tabcorp will pay to each Ineligible Foreign Shareholder the proportion of the net proceeds of sale received by Tabcorp pursuant to clause 4.4(b)(2) to which that Ineligible Foreign Shareholder is entitled.
- (d) Tabcorp must appoint the nominee on terms reasonably acceptable to Tatts at least 10 Business Days prior to the Scheme Meeting.

4.5 Provision of Tatts Share information

- (a) In order to facilitate the provision of the Scheme Consideration, Tatts must provide, or procure the provision of, to Tabcorp or a nominee of Tabcorp, a complete copy of the Tatts Share Register as at the Scheme Record Date (which must include the name, Registered Address and registered holding of each Scheme Shareholder as at the Scheme Record Date), within one Business Day after the Scheme Record Date.
- (b) The details and information to be provided under clause 4.5(a) must be provided in such form as Tabcorp, its nominee or the Tabcorp Registry may reasonably require.

4.6 No amendment to the Scheme without consent

Tatts must not consent to any modification of, or amendment to, or the making or imposition by the Court of any condition in respect of, the Scheme without the prior written consent of Tabcorp (such consent not to be unreasonably withheld).

4.7 Excluded Tatts Shareholders

If any Tabcorp Group Member acquires any Tatts Shares after the date of this deed where permitted by the Confidentiality Agreement, then Tabcorp will notify Tatts in writing of such acquisition and the relevant Tabcorp Group Member, and thereafter that entity will not be a 'Scheme Shareholder' for the purposes of this deed and will be excluded from the operation of the Scheme.

5 Implementation

---

5.1 Timetable

- (a) Subject to clause 5.1(b), the parties must use their best endeavours to:
- (1) comply with their respective obligations under this clause 5; and
  - (2) take all necessary steps and exercise all rights necessary to implement the Transaction,
- in accordance with the Timetable.
- (b) Failure by a party to meet any timeframe or deadline set out in the Timetable will not constitute a breach of clause 5.1(a) to the extent that such failure is due to circumstances and matters outside the party's control.
- (c) Each party must keep the other informed about their progress against the Timetable and notify each other if it believes that any of the dates in the Timetable are not achievable.
- (d) To the extent that any of the dates or timeframes set out in the Timetable become not achievable due to matters outside of a party's control, the parties will consult in good faith to agree any necessary extension to ensure such matters are completed within the shortest possible timeframe.

5.2 Tatts' obligations

Subject to any change of recommendation by the Tatts Board as permitted by clause 5.4, Tatts must take all necessary steps to implement the Scheme as soon as is reasonably practicable in accordance with the Timetable, including each of the following:

- (a) preparation of Scheme Booklet: prepare and despatch the Scheme Booklet in accordance with all applicable laws (including the Corporations Act and the Corporations Regulations), RG 60 and the Listing Rules;
- (b) directors' recommendation: include in the Scheme Booklet a statement by the Tatts Board:
- (1) unanimously recommending that Tatts Shareholders vote in favour of the Scheme in the absence of a Superior Proposal; and
  - (2) that each Tatts Board Member will (in the absence of a Superior Proposal) vote, or procure the voting of, any Tatts Shares held by or on their behalf at the time of the Scheme Meeting in favour of the Scheme at the Scheme Meeting,
- unless there has been a change of recommendation permitted by clause 5.4;
- (c) paragraph 411(17)(b) statement: apply to ASIC for the production of:
- (1) an indication of intent letter stating that it does not intend to appear before the Court on the First Court Date; and
  - (2) a statement under paragraph 411(17)(b) of the Corporations Act stating that ASIC has no objection to the Scheme;
- (d) Court direction: apply to the Court for orders pursuant to subsection 411(1) of the Corporations Act directing Tatts to convene the Scheme Meeting;
- (e) Scheme Meeting: convene the Scheme Meeting to seek Tatts Shareholders' agreement to the Scheme in accordance with the orders made by the Court pursuant to subsection 411(1) of the Corporations Act and must not request the approval of the Court to change the date of the Scheme Meeting without obtaining the prior approval of Tabcorp (such approval not to be unreasonably withheld or delayed, except where there is a Competing Proposal in respect of Tatts);

- (f) Court documents: consult with Tabcorp in relation to the content of the documents required for the purpose of each of the Court hearings held for the purpose of subsection 411(1) and paragraph 411(4)(b) of the Corporations Act in relation to the Scheme (including originating process, affidavits, submissions and draft minutes of Court orders) and consider in good faith, for the purpose of amending drafts of those documents, comments from Tabcorp and its Related Persons on those documents;
- (g) Court approval: (subject to all Conditions Precedent in clause 3.1, other than the Condition Precedent in clause 3.1(c), being satisfied or waived in accordance with this deed) apply to the Court for orders approving the Scheme as agreed to by the Tatts Shareholders at the Scheme Meeting;
- (h) Certificate: at the hearing on the Second Court Date provide to the Court a certificate confirming whether or not the Conditions Precedent in clause 3.1 (other than the Condition Precedent in clause 3.1(c)) have been satisfied or waived in accordance with this deed. A draft of such certificate shall be provided by Tatts to Tabcorp by 4.00 pm on the date that is 3 Business Days prior to the Second Court Date;
- (i) lodge copy of Court order: lodge with ASIC an office copy of the Court order in accordance with subsection 411(10) of the Corporations Act approving the Scheme by no later than the Business Day after the date on which the Court order was made (or such later date as agreed in writing by Tabcorp);
- (j) Scheme Consideration: if the Scheme becomes Effective, finalise and close the Tatts Share Register as at the Scheme Record Date, and determine entitlements to the Scheme Consideration, in accordance with the Scheme and the Deed Poll;
- (k) transfer and registration: if the Scheme becomes Effective and subject to Tabcorp having issued the Scheme Consideration in accordance with the Scheme and Deed Poll:
- (1) execute, on behalf of Scheme Shareholders, instruments of transfer of Tatts Shares held by Scheme Shareholders to Tabcorp; and
  - (2) register all transfers of Tatts Shares held by Scheme Shareholders to Tabcorp on the Implementation Date;
- (l) Merged Entity information: prepare and promptly provide to Tabcorp any information regarding the Tatts Group that Tabcorp reasonably requires in order to prepare the information regarding the Merged Entity following implementation of the Scheme for inclusion in the Scheme Booklet;
- (m) consultation with Tabcorp in relation to Scheme Booklet: consult with Tabcorp as to the content and presentation of the Scheme Booklet including:
- (1) providing to Tabcorp drafts of the Scheme Booklet and the Independent Expert's Report for the purpose of enabling Tabcorp to review and comment on those draft documents;
  - (2) taking all comments made by Tabcorp into account in good faith when producing a revised draft of the Scheme Booklet;
  - (3) providing to Tabcorp a revised draft of the Scheme Booklet within a reasonable time before the Regulator's Draft is finalised and to enable

- Tabcorp to review the Regulator's Draft before the date of its submission;
- (4) obtaining written consent from Tabcorp for the form and content in which the Tabcorp Information appears in the Scheme Booklet; and
  - (5) confirming in writing to Tabcorp the accuracy of the Tatts Information in the Scheme Booklet;
- (n) information: provide all necessary information, and procure that the Tatts Registry provides all necessary information, in each case in a form reasonably requested by Tabcorp, about the Scheme, the Scheme Shareholders and Tatts Shareholders to Tabcorp and its Related Persons, which Tabcorp reasonably requires in order to:
- (1) understand the legal and beneficial ownership of Tatts Shares (including the results of directions by Tatts to Tatts Shareholders under Part 6C.2 of the Corporations Act);
  - (2) facilitate the provision by, or on behalf of, Tabcorp of the Scheme Consideration; or
  - (3) review the tally of proxy appointments and directions received by Tatts prior to the Scheme Meeting.
- Tatts must comply with any reasonable request of Tabcorp for Tatts to give directions to Tatts Shareholders pursuant to Part 6C.2 of the Corporations Act from time to time (at Tabcorp's expense) for one of the purposes referred to in (1) or (2) above;
- (o) ASIC and ASX review: keep Tabcorp informed of any matters raised by ASIC or ASX in relation to the Scheme Booklet or the Transaction, and use reasonable endeavours to take into consideration in resolving such matters any issues raised by Tabcorp;
  - (p) representation: procure that it is represented by counsel at the Court hearings convened for the purposes of subsection 411(1) and paragraph 411(4)(b) of the Corporations Act;
  - (q) Independent Expert:
    - (1) promptly appoint the Independent Expert, and any investigating accountant to be appointed in connection with the preparation of the Scheme Booklet or the Independent Expert's Report, and provide all assistance and information reasonably requested by them in connection with the preparation of the Independent Expert's Report for inclusion in the Scheme Booklet (including any updates to such report) and any other materials to be prepared by them for inclusion in the Scheme Booklet (including any updates thereto); and
    - (2) if, after the date of public release of the initial Independent Expert's Report, Tatts proposes to provide any new or additional information to the Independent Expert, provide a copy of that information to Tabcorp and consult with Tabcorp in relation to that information, including by having regard to (in good faith) all comments from Tabcorp in relation to that information;
  - (r) assistance: up to the Implementation Date and subject to the Confidentiality Agreement and the obligations of confidentiality owed to third parties and undertakings to Government Agencies, provide Tabcorp and its Related Persons with reasonable access during normal business hours to information and personnel of Tatts Group that Tabcorp reasonably requests for the purpose of collation and provision of the Tabcorp Information and implementation of the Transaction;

- (s) compliance with laws: do everything reasonably within its power to ensure that the Transaction is effected in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations;
- (t) listing: subject to clause 5.2(w), not do anything to cause Tatts Shares to cease being quoted on ASX or to become permanently suspended from quotation prior to implementation of the Transaction unless Tabcorp has agreed in writing;
- (u) update Scheme Booklet: until the date of the Scheme Meeting and after consulting with Tabcorp, promptly update the Scheme Booklet with any information that arises after the Scheme Booklet has been despatched that is necessary to ensure that the Scheme Booklet does not contain any material statement that is false or misleading in a material respect including because of any material omission from that statement;
- (v) promote Transaction: subject to the Confidentiality Agreement, participate in efforts reasonably requested by Tabcorp to promote the merits of the Transaction and the Scheme Consideration, including meeting with key Tatts Shareholders or Tabcorp Shareholders at the reasonable request of Tabcorp and providing Tabcorp with such information and assistance that Tabcorp reasonably requests to enable it to promote the merits of the Transaction; and
- (w) suspension of trading: apply to ASX to suspend trading in Tatts Shares with effect from the close of trading on the Effective Date.

5.3 Tabcorp's obligations

Tabcorp must take all necessary steps to implement the Scheme as soon as is reasonably practicable in accordance with the Timetable, including doing each of the following:

- (a) Tabcorp Information: prepare and promptly provide to Tatts the Tabcorp Information for inclusion in the Scheme Booklet, including all information regarding the Tabcorp Group, the Merged Entity following implementation of the Scheme, and the Scheme Consideration required by all applicable laws (including the Corporations Act and the Corporations Regulations), RG 60 and the Listing Rules, and consent to the inclusion of that information (other than any information provided by Tatts to Tabcorp or obtained from Tatts' public filings on ASX regarding the Tatts Group contained in, or used in the preparation of, the information regarding the Merged Entity following implementation of the Scheme) in the Scheme Booklet;
- (b) review of Scheme Booklet: review the drafts of the Scheme Booklet prepared by Tatts and provide comments on those drafts in good faith;
- (c) Independent Expert's Report:
  - (1) provide any assistance or information reasonably requested by Tatts or by the Independent Expert in connection with the preparation of the Independent Expert's Report to be sent together with the Scheme Booklet; and
  - (2) if, after the date of public release of the initial Independent Expert's Report, Tabcorp proposes or is requested to provide any new or additional information to the Independent Expert, provide a copy of that information to Tatts; and

- (3) promptly review, consult with and provide comments (if any) on any new or additional information which Tatts proposes to provide to the Independent Expert under clause 5.2(q)(2);
- (d) representation: procure that it is represented by counsel at the Court hearings convened for the purposes of subsection 411(1) and paragraph 411(4)(b) of the Corporations Act;
- (e) Deed Poll: by no later than the Business Day prior to the First Court Date, execute and deliver to Tatts the Deed Poll;
- (f) accuracy of Tabcorp Information: confirm in writing to Tatts the accuracy of the Tabcorp Information in the Scheme Booklet (other than any information regarding the Tatts Group contained in, or used in the preparation of, the information regarding the Merged Entity following implementation of the Scheme), including that it does not contain any material statement that is false or misleading in a material respect, whether because of any material omission from that statement or otherwise;
- (g) share transfer: if the Scheme becomes Effective:
- (1) accept a transfer of the Scheme Shares as contemplated by clause 4.2(b)(1); and
  - (2) execute instruments of transfer in respect of the Scheme Shares;
- (h) Scheme Consideration: if the Scheme becomes Effective, provide the Scheme Consideration in the manner and amount contemplated by clause 4 and the terms of the Scheme and the Deed Poll;
- (i) update Tabcorp Information: until the date of the Scheme Meeting, provide to Tatts any information that arises after the Scheme Booklet has been despatched that is necessary to ensure that the Tabcorp Information contained in the Scheme Booklet does not contain any material statement that is false or misleading in a material respect including because of any material omission from that statement;
- (j) assistance: up to (and including) the Implementation Date and subject to the Confidentiality Agreement and the obligations of confidentiality owed to third parties and undertakings to Government Agencies, provide Tatts and its Related Persons with reasonable access during normal business hours to information and personnel of Tabcorp Group that Tatts reasonably requests for the purpose of preparation of the Scheme Booklet and implementation of the Transaction;
- (k) Tax: provide Tatts with such assistance and information as may reasonably be requested by Tatts for the purposes of obtaining from the Australian Taxation Office rulings in a form reasonably acceptable to both parties confirming the availability of scrip-for-scrip rollover relief in respect of the New Tabcorp Shares and that the Tatts Special Dividend can be fully franked;
- (l) promote Transaction: subject to the Confidentiality Agreement, participate in efforts reasonably requested by Tatts to promote the merits of the Transaction and the Scheme Consideration, including meeting with key Tatts Shareholders at the reasonable request of Tatts and providing Tatts with such information and assistance that Tatts reasonably requests to enable it to promote the merits of the Transaction; and
- (m) compliance with laws: do everything reasonably within its power to ensure that the Transaction is effected in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations.

5.4 Tatts Board recommendation

- (a) Tatts must procure that, subject to clause 5.4(b), each member of the Tatts Board unanimously recommends that Tatts Shareholders vote in favour of the Scheme at the Scheme Meeting in the absence of a Superior Proposal and subject to the Independent Expert concluding in the Independent Expert's Report that the Scheme is in the best interests of Scheme Shareholders, and that the Scheme Booklet include a statement by the Tatts Board to that effect.
- (b) Tatts must procure that the Tatts Board collectively, and the members of the Tatts Board individually, do not change, withdraw or modify its, his or her recommendation to vote in favour of the Scheme unless:
- (1) the Independent Expert's Report concludes that the Scheme is not in the best interests of Scheme Shareholders (other than where the conclusion is due wholly or partly to the existence of a Competing Proposal); or
  - (2) Tatts has entered into a legally binding agreement to undertake or give effect to, other than as a result of a breach of clause 13, a Superior Proposal,
- and Tatts has complied with its obligations under clause 13.
- (c) For the purposes of this clause 5.4, customary qualifications and explanations contained in the Scheme Booklet in relation to a recommendation to vote in favour of the Scheme, including to the effect that:
- (1) the recommendation is made in the absence of a Superior Proposal; and
  - (2) the recommendation is made subject to the Independent Expert concluding and continuing to conclude in the Independent Expert's Report that the Transaction is in the best interests of Tatts' Shareholders,
- will not be regarded as a failure to make or a withdrawal of a recommendation in favour of the Scheme.
- (d) For the purposes of this clause 5.4, a statement to the effect that a specific alternative transaction may be pursued in the interests of Tatts Shareholders if the Scheme does not proceed will be regarded as a failure to make a recommendation to vote in favour of the Scheme and, if made subsequently, will be regarded as a modification of a recommendation to vote in favour, unless Tabcorp agrees to the making of such statement.

5.5 Responsibility statements

- (a) The Scheme Booklet will contain a responsibility statement to the effect that:
- (1) Tabcorp is responsible for the Tabcorp Information (other than any information provided by Tatts to Tabcorp or obtained from Tatts' public filings on ASX regarding the Tatts Group contained in, or used in the preparation of, the information regarding the Merged Entity following implementation of the Scheme) contained in the Scheme Booklet; and
  - (2) Tatts is responsible for the Tatts Information contained in the Scheme Booklet and is also responsible for the information contained in the Scheme Booklet provided by Tatts to Tabcorp or obtained from Tatts' public filings on ASX regarding the Tatts Group contained in, or used in the preparation of, the information regarding the Merged Entity following implementation of the Scheme.

- (b) If after 5 Business Days of consultation, Tatts and Tabcorp are unable to agree on the form or content of the Scheme Booklet:
  - (1) where the determination relates to Tabcorp Information, Tabcorp will make the final determination, acting reasonably, as to the form and content of the Tabcorp Information; and
  - (2) in any other case, the final determination as to the form and content of the Scheme Booklet will be made by Tatts, acting reasonably, provided that, if Tabcorp disagrees with such final form and content, Tatts must include a statement to that effect in the Scheme Booklet.

5.6 Conduct of Court proceedings

In respect of Court proceedings under Part 5.1 of the Corporations Act:

- (a) Tatts and Tabcorp are entitled to separate representation at such Court proceedings.
- (b) This deed does not give Tatts or Tabcorp any right or power to give undertakings to the Court for or on behalf of the other party without that party's written consent.
- (c) Tatts and Tabcorp must give all undertakings to the Court in such Court proceedings which are reasonably required to obtain Court approval and confirmation of the Transaction as contemplated by this deed.

5.7 Executive Incentive Arrangements

- (a) In accordance with the Tatts Group Rights Plan, each Performance Right on issue at the Record Date will be cancelled and replaced on the Implementation Date with a grant by Tabcorp to each Performance Right holder of:
  - (1) rights to acquire 0.80 New Tabcorp Shares per Performance Right held, on terms equivalent to the terms of issue of the Performance Right, including:
    - (A) conversion into a New Tabcorp Share on the same date that the Performance Right would have converted into a Restricted Share under the Tatts Group Rights Plan;
    - (B) each New Tabcorp Share is to be subject to a holding lock for two years from the date of issue; and
    - (C) if the holder ceases to be employed by the Merged Entity during the two year trading restriction period, the holder will be entitled to retain the relevant New Tabcorp Shares, subject to the trading restrictions continuing to apply and subject to the rules of the Tatts Group Rights Plan, plus:
  - (2) a payment of $0.425 cash per Performance Right held (adjusted for the Tatts Special Dividend), which cash payment will be held in an escrow account which escrow will be released on the same date upon which the holding lock referred to in clause 5.7(a)(1)(B) is released. If the holder ceases to be employed by the Merged Entity during the two year restriction period, the holder will be entitled to receive the cash payment, subject to the cash being retained in an escrow account for the period of the trading restriction.

- (b) Each Restricted Share on issue at the Record Date will be acquired by Tabcorp under the Scheme in exchange for the issue by Tabcorp on the Implementation Date of 0.80 New Tabcorp Shares and payment of $0.425 cash per Restricted Share held (adjusted for the Tatts Special Dividend), which:
- (1) in the case of New Tabcorp Shares, will be subject to a holding lock and trading restriction which will terminate on the same date as the holding lock and trading restriction as applied before the exchange; and
  - (2) in the case of the cash component, will be held in an escrow account which escrow will be released on the same date as the holding lock referred to in clause 5.7(b)(1) terminates. If a New Tabcorp Share issued under this clause 5.7(b) is forfeited in accordance with the terms upon which it is issued, then the relevant shareholder will not be entitled to receive the cash component.
- (c) The board of the Merged Entity will have the same powers as the Tatts Board under the Tatts Group Rights Plan to determine how rights and shares of departing employees will be dealt with after the Implementation Date, though the intention is that, in the absence of exceptional circumstances, employees who depart as 'good leavers' (such as a result of redundancy, termination without cause, death or total and permanent disablement) will be allowed to retain the benefit of their rights and shares, despite leaving the Merged Entity before the expiry of time related restriction periods.
- (d) The parties:
- (1) must use all reasonable endeavours to ensure that the replacement Performance Rights and Restricted Shares proposed to be issued in accordance with clauses 5.7(a) and 5.7(b) respectively, will be structured so as to be reasonably regarded as 'matching' the existing Performance Rights and Restricted Shares to satisfy the requirements of section 83A-130 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 (Cth);
  - (2) must use all reasonable endeavours to give effect to the proposed treatment of the Performance Rights and Restricted Shares as set out in this clause 5.7. Tatts must provide Tabcorp with drafts of all documentation to be used to inform holders of Performance Rights and Restricted Shares about the proposed treatment of their rights and shares (and take account of comments made by Tabcorp on such documentation); and
  - (3) acknowledge and agree that this clause 5.7 is subject to the matters set out in the Tatts Disclosure Letter.

6 Conduct of business and Permitted Dividends

6.1 Conduct of business

- (a) Subject to clauses 6.1(b) and 6.1(c), from the date of this deed up to and including the Implementation Date, and without limiting any other obligations of either party under this deed, each party must:
- (1) conduct its businesses and operations, and must cause each of its subsidiaries to conduct its respective business and operations, in the ordinary and usual course generally consistent with the manner in

- which each such business and operations have been conducted in the 12 month period prior to the date of this deed;
- (2) subject to the Confidentiality Agreement, keep the other party informed of any material developments concerning the conduct of business;
  - (3) not enter into any line of business or other activities in which it or its subsidiaries is not engaged as of the date of this deed;
  - (4) subject to the Protocols, provide regular reports on the financial affairs of the party, including the provision of the party's monthly management accounts, in a timely manner to the other party;
  - (5) use its reasonable endeavours to procure that between (and including) the date of this deed and 8.00am on the Second Court Date:
    - (A) there is no Prescribed Occurrence in relation to the party; and
    - (B) there is no occurrence within its control or the control of any of its subsidiaries that would constitute or be likely to constitute a Material Adverse Change in relation to the party; and
  - (6) make all reasonable efforts, and procure that each of its subsidiaries makes all reasonable efforts, to:
    - (A) preserve and maintain the value of the businesses and assets of the group;
    - (B) keep available the services of the directors, officers and employees of each member of the group; and
    - (C) maintain and preserve their relationships with Government Agencies, customers, suppliers and others having business dealings with any group member.
- (b) Without limiting clause 6.1(a), each party must not, and must ensure that its subsidiaries do not:
- (1) declare, pay or distribute any dividend, bonus or other share of its profits or assets or return or agree to return any capital to its members, other than a Permitted Dividend or as between Tatts Group Members in order for the Tatts Board to be able to declare and pay a Permitted Dividend;
  - (2) make any change to its constitution;
  - (3) acquire, lease or dispose of (or agree to acquire, lease or dispose of) any securities, business, assets, interest in any joint venture, entity or undertaking, the value of which exceeds $55,000,000 (individually or in aggregate);
  - (4) enter into any contract or commitment for operational expenditure requiring payments by the group in excess of $50,000,000 (individually or in aggregate for the life of the relevant contract or commitment);
  - (5) incur capital expenditure from the date of this deed of an amount which exceeds by 10% the FY17 budgeted capital expenditure figure for the party (as disclosed in the Disclosure Materials) on an annualised basis;

- (6) other than as contemplated by clause 5.7, accelerate the rights of any of their employees to compensation or benefits of any kind (including under any option, performance right, incentive or share plan);
- (7) enter into or materially alter, vary or amend any employment, consultant, severance or similar agreement or arrangement with any person, including any of its officers, directors, other executives or employees whose total employment cost exceeds (or would exceed in the case of an agreement or arrangement not on foot on the date of this deed) $750,000 (Key Person), or accelerating or otherwise materially increasing compensation, benefits or entitlements for any Key Person, in each case other than pursuant to entitlements in effect on the date of this deed;
- (8) enter into any enterprise bargaining agreement other than in the ordinary course of business or pursuant to contractual arrangements in effect on the date of this deed;
- (9) change any accounting policy applied to a party to report its financial position other than any change in policy required by a change in accounting standards;
- (10) do anything that would result in a change in the Tabcorp Consolidated Tax Group or the Tatts Consolidated Tax Group, as the case may be;
- (11) authorise, commit or agree to do any of the matters set out above; or
- (12) in the case of Tatts only, vary any of the retention arrangements (in terms or in scope) described in the Tatts Disclosure Letter without the prior approval of Tabcorp.
- (c) Nothing in clauses 6.1(a) or 6.1(b) restricts the ability of a party to take any action or inaction:
- (1) which is required by any applicable law (including the CCA) or Government Agency (including any undertakings required by a Government Agency);
- (2) which is required by the Confidentiality Agreement (including the Protocols);
- (3) which is required or expressly permitted by this deed or the Scheme, including for the avoidance of doubt actions to give effect to a Superior Proposal;
- (4) which has been agreed to in writing by the other party (not to be unreasonably withheld or delayed);
- (5) which is Fairly Disclosed in the Tabcorp Disclosure Materials or the Tatts Disclosure Materials as being an action that the party intends to carry out between (and including) the date of this deed and the Implementation Date;
- (6) in relation to acquiring, agreeing to acquire or offering to acquire the assets (or any entity which owns the assets) of the Western Australian TAB conducted by Racing and Wagering Western Australia; or
- (7) in relation to becoming, agreeing to become or applying or offering to become the licensee under a public lottery licence within the meaning of the Gambling Regulation Act 2003 (Vic).
- (d) From the date of this deed until the Second Court Date, each party will promptly notify the other orally and in writing of anything of which it becomes aware that:

- (1) makes any material information publicly filed by the party (either on its own account or in respect of any other group member) to be, or reasonably likely to be, incomplete, incorrect, untrue or misleading in any material respect;
- (2) makes any of its Representations and Warranties false, inaccurate, misleading or deceptive in any material respect;
- (3) makes any information provided in the Tabcorp Disclosure Materials or the Tatts Disclosure Materials (as the case may be) incomplete, incorrect, untrue or misleading in any material respect; or
- (4) would constitute or be likely to constitute a Prescribed Occurrence or a Material Adverse Change in relation to the party.

6.2 Permitted Ordinary Course Dividends

- (a) After 31 December 2016 and before 1 July 2017, Tabcorp may pay a fully franked dividend in an amount not exceeding 12.5 cents per Tabcorp Share and Tatts may pay a fully franked dividend in an amount not exceeding 9.5 cents per Tatts Share, in each case prior to the Implementation Date.
- (b) After 1 July 2017 and before 31 December 2017, Tabcorp may pay an additional fully franked dividend in an amount not exceeding 12.5 cents per Tabcorp Share and Tatts may pay an additional fully franked dividend in an amount not exceeding 8 cents per Tatts Share, in each case prior to the Implementation Date.
- (c) If the Scheme has not become Effective by the End Date, each party may pay a dividend to its shareholders in the ordinary course and consistent with past practice (including as to franking).
- (d) On the date of this deed, each party will suspend the operation of its dividend reinvestment plan.

6.3 Tatts Special Dividend

- (a) Subject to:
  - (1) the Scheme becoming Effective; and
  - (2) Tatts complying with the requirements of section 254T of the Corporations Act,

Tatts may declare and pay a cash dividend of up to $0.25 per Tatts Share (Tatts Special Dividend) to all Tatts Shareholders on the Tatts Share Register on the record date for the Special Dividend (Tatts Special Dividend Record Date).
- (b) The Tatts Special Dividend may be fully franked, provided that the Tatts franking account does not fall into deficit upon payment of the Tatts Special Dividend (or would fall into deficit if any claimed tax refund was received).
- (c) The Tatts Special Dividend Record Date must occur before the Scheme Record Date and otherwise on a date agreed between the parties.
- (d) The cash component of the Scheme Consideration will be reduced by the cash amount of the Tatts Special Dividend.

7 Profile of Merged Entity

7.1 Tabcorp board composition

The Board of the Merged Entity will comprise those individuals who are directors of Tabcorp as at the Implementation Date and, in addition, Tabcorp will invite and, if such invitation is accepted, appoint the Chairman of Tatts as at the date of this deed to join the Board as a non-executive director of the Merged Entity on the Implementation Date.

7.2 Tatts board composition

Tatts must, as soon as practicable on the Implementation Date after the Scheme Consideration has been despatched to Scheme Shareholders:

- (a) take all actions necessary to cause the Tatts Board to be reconstituted so that it consists entirely of directors nominated by Tabcorp; and
- (b) procure that, to the extent required, all other directors on the Tatts Board resign and release Tatts from any claims they may have against Tatts (except for accrued but unpaid entitlements).

7.3 Chairman and Chief Executive Officer

The Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the Merged Entity will be the individuals holding those positions at Tabcorp as at the date of this deed or such other individuals that the Tabcorp Board may nominate to fulfil those positions.

7.4 Senior management

Other senior management of the Merged Entity will be determined by the board of the Merged Entity as soon as practicable after the Implementation Date.

8 Integration Planning

---

8.1 Pre-Implementation Date Integration planning

- (a) The parties' respective managing directors will agree a date to commence working together and planning for the merger and integration of Tabcorp and Tatts from the Implementation Date.
- (b) After the date referred to in paragraph (a) above, the parties' respective managing directors may establish an integration committee consisting of members of the management teams of each of Tabcorp and Tatts and such other persons as the managing directors of each party agree from time to time.
- (c) The role of the committee (if established) is to act as a forum for the consideration and planning of the integration of the merged Tabcorp and Tatts businesses and will have such other objectives as the parties' respective managing directors may agree.
- (d) Subject to the other provisions of this deed, nothing in this clause 8.1 requires any party to act at the direction of the other or imposes any obligation on any party to conduct their respective businesses in accordance with any direction or representation made by the other and the parties acknowledge that their obligations under this clause 8 shall be subject to the Confidentiality Agreement, the CCA and all applicable laws or requirements of any Government Agency. The parties agree that nothing in this deed constitutes the relationship of a partnership or joint venture between the parties.

8.2 Integration Due Diligence

- (a) Prior to the date of this deed, each party conducted high level due diligence enquiries regarding the business and financial position of the other. This was on the basis that, after execution of this deed, further due diligence enquiries would be facilitated.
- (b) Accordingly, subject to clause 8.2(c) between (and including) the date of this deed and the Effective Date, each party must make available to the other and its advisers:
- (1) all information reasonably requested by the other party (subject to clause 8.2(c)(3));
  - (2) such senior executives of the other party as reasonably requested by the other at mutually convenient times; and
  - (3) afford reasonable co-operation,
- for the purpose of:
- (4) implementation of the Scheme;
  - (5) each party obtaining an understanding of the operations of the other party's business, financial position, prospects and affairs in order to facilitate the integration of the parties' businesses following implementation of the Scheme; or
  - (6) any other purpose agreed between the parties.
- (c) In carrying out these investigations:
- (1) each party must focus on material issues, having regard to management commitments and the impact of such requests on each party's business;
  - (2) nothing in this clause will require a party to provide information concerning its directors' and management's consideration of the Scheme or a Competing Proposal;
  - (3) information need not be provided if that would result in unreasonable disruptions to the party's business, is commercially sensitive, is subject to an existing confidentiality obligation to a Third Party, would require a party to make further disclosures to any other entity or to a Government Agency or require a party to make any disclosure that would compromise legal privilege; and
  - (4) the parties acknowledge that their investigations and obligations under this clause 8.2 shall be subject to the Confidentiality Agreement, the CCA and all applicable laws or requirements of any Government Agency.

8.3 Change of control provisions

- (a) As soon as practicable after the date of this deed, each party must identify any change of control or unilateral termination rights in Material Contracts to which that party or a Related Body Corporate is party which may be triggered by or exercised in response to the implementation of the Transaction.

- (b) In respect of those Material Contracts to which a Tatts Group Member is a party:
- (1) The parties will agree a proposed course of action (which, among other things, will have due regard to applicable legal restrictions) and then Tatts will initiate contact, including joint discussions if required, with the relevant landlords and counterparties and request that they provide any consents or confirmations required or appropriate. Tabcorp must not contact any landlords or counterparties without Tatts present or without Tatts' prior written consent.
  - (2) Tatts must take all reasonable action necessary to obtain such consents or confirmations in accordance with the Timetable, including by promptly providing any information reasonably required by counterparties.
  - (3) Tabcorp must cooperate with, and provide all reasonable assistance to, Tatts to obtain such consents or confirmations in accordance with the Timetable, including by promptly providing any information reasonably required by counterparties.

9 Representations and warranties

9.1 Tabcorp's representations and warranties

Tabcorp represents and warrants to Tatts (in its own right and separately as trustee or nominee for each of the other Tatts Indemnified Parties) each of the Tabcorp Representations and Warranties.

9.2 Tabcorp's indemnity

Tabcorp agrees with Tatts (in its own right and separately as trustee or nominee for each of the other Tatts Indemnified Parties) to indemnify Tatts and each of the Tatts Indemnified Parties against any claim, action, damage, loss, liability, cost, expense or payment of whatever nature and however arising that Tatts or any of the other Tatts Indemnified Parties suffers, incurs or is liable for arising out of any breach of any of the Tabcorp Representations and Warranties.

9.3 Qualifications on Tabcorp's representations, warranties and indemnities

The Tabcorp Representations and Warranties in clause 9.1 and the indemnity in clause 9.2, are each subject to matters that have been Fairly Disclosed in:

- (a) the Tabcorp Disclosure Materials; and
- (b) Tabcorp's announcements to ASX, or a document lodged with ASIC, in the 12 month period prior to the date of this deed.

9.4 Tatts' representations and warranties

Tatts represents and warrants to Tabcorp (in its own right and separately as trustee or nominee for each of the other Tabcorp Indemnified Parties) each of the Tatts Representations and Warranties.

9.5 Tatts' indemnity

Tatts agrees with Tabcorp (in its own right and separately as trustee or nominee for each Tabcorp Indemnified Party) to indemnify Tabcorp and each of the Tabcorp Indemnified Parties from any claim, action, damage, loss, liability, cost, expense or payment of whatever nature and however arising that Tabcorp or any of the other Tabcorp Indemnified Parties suffers, incurs or is liable for arising out of any breach of any of the Tatts Representations and Warranties.

9.6 Qualifications on Tatts' representations, warranties and indemnities

The Tatts Representations and Warranties in clause 9.4 and the indemnity in clause 9.5, are each subject to matters that have been Fairly Disclosed in:

- (a) the Tatts Disclosure Materials; and
- (b) Tatts' announcements to ASX, or a document lodged with ASIC, in the 12 month period prior to the date of this deed.

9.7 Survival of representations and warranties

Each representation and warranty in clauses 9.1 and 9.4:

- (a) is severable;
- (b) survives the termination of this deed; and
- (c) is given with the intention that liability under it is not confined to breaches that are discovered before the date of termination of this deed.

9.8 Survival of indemnities

Each indemnity in this deed (including those in clauses 9.2 and 9.5):

- (a) is severable;
- (b) is a continuing obligation;
- (c) constitutes a separate and independent obligation of the party giving the indemnity from any other obligations of that party under this deed; and
- (d) survives the termination of this deed.

9.9 Timing of representations and warranties

Each representation and warranty made or given under clauses 9.1 or 9.4 is given:

- (a) at the date of this deed;
- (b) at the date the Scheme Booklet is dispatched to Tatts Shareholders; and
- (c) at 8.00am on the Second Court Date, unless that representation or warranty is expressed to be given at a particular time, in which case it is given at that time.

9.10 No representation or reliance

- (a) Each party acknowledges that no party (nor any person acting on its behalf) has made any representation or other inducement to it to enter into this deed, except for representations or inducements expressly set out in this deed and (to the maximum extent permitted by law) all other representations, warranties and conditions implied by statute or otherwise in relation to any matter relating to this deed, the circumstances surrounding the parties' entry into it and the transactions contemplated by it are expressly excluded.
- (b) Each party acknowledges and confirms that it does not enter into this deed in reliance on any representation or other inducement by or on behalf of any other party, except for any representation or inducement expressly set out in this deed.

10 Releases

10.1 Tatts and Tatts directors and officers

- (a) Tabcorp releases its rights, and agrees with Tatts that it will not make a claim, and after the Implementation Date will procure that a Tatts Group Member does not make a claim, against any Tatts Indemnified Party (other than Tatts and its Related Bodies Corporate) as at the date of this deed and from time to time in connection with:
  - (1) any breach of any representations and warranties of Tatts or any other member of the Tatts Group in this deed; or
  - (2) any disclosures containing any statement which is false or misleading whether in content or by omission, whether current or future, known or unknown, arising at common law, in equity, under statute or otherwise, except where the Tatts Indemnified Party has not acted in good faith or has engaged in wilful misconduct or fraud. For the avoidance of doubt, nothing in this clause 10.1(a) limits Tabcorp's rights to terminate this deed under clause 15.2(a).

- (b) This clause is subject to any Corporations Act restriction and will be read down accordingly.
- (c) Tatts receives and holds the benefit of this clause to the extent it relates to each Tatts Indemnified Party as trustee for each of them.

10.2 Tabcorp and Tabcorp directors and officers

- (a) Tatts releases its rights, and agrees with Tabcorp that it will not make a claim, against any Tabcorp Indemnified Party (other than Tabcorp and its Related Bodies Corporate) as at the date of this deed and from time to time in connection with:
  - (1) any breach of any representations and warranties of Tabcorp or any other member of the Tabcorp Group in this deed; or
  - (2) any disclosure containing any statement which is false or misleading whether in content or by omission,

whether current or future, known or unknown, arising at common law, in equity, under statute or otherwise, except where the Tabcorp Indemnified Party has not acted in good faith or has engaged in wilful misconduct or fraud. For the avoidance of doubt, nothing in this clause 10.2(a) limits Tatts' rights to terminate this deed under clause 15.2(b).

- (b) This clause is subject to any Corporations Act restriction and will be read down accordingly.
- (c) Tabcorp receives and holds the benefit of this clause to the extent it relates to each Tabcorp Indemnified Party as trustee for each of them.

10.3 Deeds of indemnity and insurance

- (a) Subject to the Scheme becoming Effective and the Transaction completing, Tabcorp undertakes in favour of Tatts and each other person who is a Tatts Indemnified Party that it will:
  - (1) for a period of 7 years from the Implementation Date, ensure that the constitutions of Tatts and each other Tatts Group Member continues to contain such rules as are contained in those constitutions at the date of this deed that provide for each company to indemnify each of its directors and officers against any liability incurred by that person in his or her capacity as a director or officer of the company to any person other than a Tatts Group Member; and
  - (2) procure that Tatts and each Tatts Group Member complies with any deeds of indemnity, access and insurance made by them in favour of their respective directors and officers from time to time and without limiting the foregoing, ensure that directors' and officers' run-off insurance cover for such directors and officers is maintained for a period of 7 years from the retirement date of each director and officer (and Tatts may, at its election, pay any amounts necessary to ensure such maintenance upfront prior to the implementation of the Scheme).
- (b) The undertakings contained in clause 10.3(a) are subject to any Corporations Act restriction and will be read down accordingly.
- (c) Tatts receives and holds the benefit of clause 10.3(a), to the extent it relates to the other Tatts Indemnified Parties, as trustee for them.

11 Public announcement

---

11.1 Announcement of the Transaction

- (a) Immediately after the execution of this deed, Tatts and Tabcorp must issue public announcements in a form previously agreed to in writing between them.
- (b) The Tatts announcement must include a unanimous recommendation by the Tatts Board to Tatts Shareholders that, in the absence of a Superior Proposal and subject to the Independent Expert concluding in the Independent Expert's Report that the Scheme is in the best interests of Scheme Shareholders, Tatts Shareholders vote in favour of the Scheme and that subject to the same qualifications all the members of the Tatts Board intend to vote (or procure the voting of) all Tatts Shares held by or on their behalf at the time of the Scheme Meeting in favour of the Scheme at the Scheme Meeting.

11.2 Subsequent announcements and disclosure

Where a party proposes to make any public announcement in connection with the Transaction or the Scheme, it must to the extent practicable and lawful to do so, consult with the other party prior to making the relevant disclosure and take account of any reasonable comments received from the other party in relation to the form and content of the announcement or disclosure.

12 Confidentiality

---

Tatts and Tabcorp acknowledge and agree that they continue to be bound by the Confidentiality Agreement after the date of this deed. The rights and obligations of the parties under the Confidentiality Agreement survive termination of this deed. To the extent of any inconsistency between the Confidentiality Agreement and this deed, the terms of the Confidentiality Agreement (including the Protocols) shall prevail.

13 Exclusivity

13.1 No shop and no talk

During the Exclusivity Period, Tatts must not, and must ensure that each of its Related Persons does not, directly or indirectly:

- (a) (no shop) solicit, invite, encourage or initiate (including by the provision of non-public information to any Third Party) any inquiry, expression of interest, offer, proposal or discussion by any person in relation to, or which would reasonably be expected to encourage or lead to the making of, an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal or communicate to any person an intention to do anything referred to in this clause 13.1(a); or
- (b) (no talk and no due diligence) subject to clause 13.2:
  - (1) participate in or continue any negotiations or discussions with respect to any inquiry, expression of interest, offer, proposal or discussion by any person to make, or which would reasonably be expected to encourage or lead to the making of, an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal or participate in or continue any negotiations or discussions with respect to any actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal;
  - (2) negotiate, accept or enter into, or offer or agree to negotiate, accept or enter into, any agreement, arrangement or understanding regarding an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal;
  - (3) disclose or otherwise provide any non-public information about the business or affairs of the Tatts Group to a Third Party (other than a Government Agency) with a view to obtaining, or which would reasonably be expected to encourage or lead to receipt of, an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal (including, without limitation, providing such information for the purposes of the conduct of due diligence investigations in respect of the Tatts Group); or
  - (4) communicate to any person an intention to do anything referred to in the preceding paragraphs of this clause 13.1(b), but nothing in this clause 13.1 prevents Tatts from making normal presentations to brokers, portfolio investors and analysts in the ordinary course of business or promoting the merits of the Transaction.

13.2 Fiduciary exception

Clause 13.1(b) does not prohibit any action or inaction by Tatts or any of its Related Persons in relation to any actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal, which the Tatts Board acting in good faith determines, having regard to written advice from its external legal and financial advisers, is a Superior Proposal (or which may reasonably be expected to result in the Competing Proposal becoming a Superior Proposal), provided that the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal was not directly or indirectly brought about by, or facilitated by, a breach of clause 13.1(a).

13.3 Notification of approaches

- (a) During the Exclusivity Period, Tatts must as soon as possible notify Tabcorp in writing if it, or any of its Related Persons, becomes aware of any:
- (1) negotiations or discussions, approach or attempt to initiate any negotiations or discussions, or intention to make such an approach or attempt to initiate any negotiations or discussions in respect of any inquiry, expression of interest, offer, proposal or discussion in relation to an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal;
  - (2) proposal made to Tatts or any of its Related Persons, in connection with, or in respect of any exploration or completion of, an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal; or
  - (3) provision by Tatts or any of its Related Persons of any non-public information concerning the business or operations of Tatts or the Tatts Group to any Third Party (other than a Government Agency) in connection with an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal, whether direct or indirect, solicited or unsolicited, and in writing or otherwise.
- (b) A notification given under clause 13.3(a) must include the identity of the relevant person making or proposing the relevant actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal, together with all terms and conditions of the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal.

13.4 Matching right

- (a) Without limiting clause 13.1, during the Exclusivity Period, Tatts:
- (1) must not enter into any legally binding agreement, arrangement or understanding (whether or not in writing) pursuant to which a Third Party, Tatts or both proposes or propose to undertake or give effect to an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal; and
  - (2) must procure that none of its directors change their recommendation in favour of the Transaction or publicly recommend an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal or recommend against the Transaction (provided that a statement that no action should be taken by Tatts Shareholders pending the assessment of a Competing Proposal by the Tatts Board and its advisers shall not contravene this clause), unless:

- (3) the Tatts Board acting in good faith and in order to satisfy what the members of the Tatts Board consider to be their statutory or fiduciary duties (having received written advice from its external financial and legal advisers) determines that the Competing Proposal would be or would be likely to be an actual, proposed or potential Superior Proposal;
- (4) Tatts has provided Tabcorp with all terms and conditions of the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal, including price and the identity of the Third Party making the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal;
- (5) Tatts has given Tabcorp at least 5 Business Days after the date of the provision of the information referred to in clause 13.4(a)(4) to provide a matching or superior proposal to the terms of the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal; and
- (6) Tatts has not announced a matching or superior proposal to the terms of the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal by the expiry of the 5 Business Day period in clause 13.4(a)(5) above.
- (b) If Tabcorp proposes to Tatts, or announces, amendments to the Scheme that constitute a matching or superior proposal to the terms of the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal (Tabcorp Counterproposal) by the expiry of the 5 Business Day period in clause 13.4(a)(5) above, Tatts must procure that the Tatts Board considers the Tabcorp Counterproposal and if the Tatts Board, acting reasonably and in good faith, determines that the Tabcorp Counterproposal would provide an equivalent or superior outcome for Tatts Shareholders as a whole compared with the Competing Proposal, taking into account all of the terms and conditions of the Tabcorp Counterproposal, then Tatts and Tabcorp must use their best endeavours to agree the amendments to this deed that are reasonably necessary to reflect the Tabcorp Counterproposal and to implement the Tabcorp Counterproposal, in each case as soon as reasonably practicable, and Tatts must procure that each of the directors of Tatts continues to recommend the Transaction (as modified by the Tabcorp Counterproposal) to Tatts Shareholders.

13.5 Receipt of Competing Proposal by Tabcorp

For the avoidance of doubt, Tabcorp is not entitled to terminate this deed if it receives a Competing Proposal from a Third Party, including a proposal which if entered into or completed would result in such Third Party directly or indirectly acquiring Control of Tabcorp or otherwise acquiring or merging with Tabcorp, or for any other reason not expressly set out in clause 15 below.

13.6 No shop

During the Exclusivity Period, Tabcorp must not, and must ensure that each of its Related Persons does not, directly or indirectly solicit, invite, encourage or initiate (including by the provision of non-public information to any Third Party) any inquiry, expression of interest, offer, proposal or discussion by any person in relation to, or which would reasonably be expected to encourage or lead to the making of, an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal or communicate to any person an intention to do anything referred to in this clause 13.6.

13.7 Notification of approaches

- (a) During the Exclusivity Period, Tabcorp must as soon as possible notify Tatts in writing if it, or any of its Related Persons, becomes aware of any:
- (1) negotiations or discussions, approach or attempt to initiate any negotiations or discussions, or intention to make such an approach or attempt to initiate any negotiations or discussions in respect of any inquiry, expression of interest, offer, proposal or discussion in relation to an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal;
  - (2) proposal made to Tabcorp or any of its Related Persons, in connection with, or in respect of any exploration or completion of, an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal; or
  - (3) provision by Tabcorp or any of its Related Persons of any non-public information concerning the business or operations of Tabcorp or the Tabcorp Group to any Third Party (other than a Government Agency) in connection with an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal,
- whether direct or indirect, solicited or unsolicited, and in writing or otherwise.
- (b) A notification given under clause 13.7(a) must include the identity of the relevant person making or proposing the relevant actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal, together with all terms and conditions of the actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal.

13.8 Provision of information by Tatts

- (a) Subject to clause 13.8(b), during the Exclusivity Period, Tatts must as soon as possible provide Tabcorp with:
- (1) in the case of written materials, a copy of; and
  - (2) in any other case, a written statement of,
- any material non-public information about the business or affairs of Tatts or the Tatts Group disclosed or otherwise provided to any Third Party in connection with an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal that has not previously been provided to Tabcorp.
- (b) Tatts will not, and will procure that none of its Related Persons provide any information to a Third Party in relation to an actual, proposed or potential Competing Proposal, unless:
- (1) permitted by clause 13.2; and
  - (2) that Third Party has entered into a confidentiality agreement with Tatts on customary terms and which is no more favourable to the Third Party than the Confidentiality Agreement (excluding the Protocols).

13.9 Compliance with law

- (a) If it is finally determined by a court, or the Takeovers Panel, that the agreement by the parties under this clause 13 or any part of it:
- (1) constituted, or constitutes, or would constitute, a breach of the fiduciary or statutory duties of the board of either party;
  - (2) constituted, or constitutes, or would constitute, 'unacceptable circumstances' within the meaning of the Corporations Act; or

- (3) was, or is, or would be, unlawful for any other reason, then, to that extent (and only to that extent) the parties will not be obliged to comply with that provision of clause 13.
- (b) The parties must not make or cause to be made, any application to a court or the Takeovers Panel for or in relation to a determination referred to in this clause 13.9.

14 Reimbursement Fee and Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee

14.1 Background to Reimbursement Fee and Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee

- (a) Each party acknowledges that, if they enter into this deed and the Scheme is subsequently not implemented, each party will incur significant costs, including those set out in clause 14.5.
- (b) In these circumstances, the parties have agreed that provision be made for the payments outlined in clauses 14.2, 14.3 and 14.10, without which the parties would not have entered into this deed or otherwise agreed to implement the Scheme.
- (c) Tatts and the Tatts Board believe (in respect of the Tatts Reimbursement Fee) and Tabcorp and the Tabcorp Board believe (in respect of the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee and the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee), each having taken advice from its legal advisors and Financial Advisors, that the implementation of the Scheme will provide benefits to it and its shareholders, and that it is reasonable and appropriate that Tatts (in respect of the Tatts Reimbursement Fee) and Tabcorp (in respect of the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee and the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee) to agree to the payments referred to in clauses 14.2, 14.3, and 14.10 in order to secure the other party's participation in the Transaction and its agreement to implement the Scheme on the terms of this deed.

14.2 Tatts Reimbursement Fee triggers

Subject to clauses 14.6, 14.7 and 14.9, Tatts must pay the Tatts Reimbursement Fee to Tabcorp, without set-off or withholding, if:

- (a) during the Exclusivity Period, any one or more members of the Tatts Board withdraws, adversely revises or adversely qualifies his or her support of the Scheme or his or her recommendation that Tatts Shareholders vote in favour of the Scheme, or, having made such a recommendation, withdraws, adversely revises or adversely qualifies that recommendation for any reason, unless:
  - (1) the Independent Expert concludes in the Independent Expert's Report that the Scheme is not in the best interests of Scheme Shareholders (other than where the conclusion is due wholly or partly to the existence of a Competing Proposal); or
  - (2) Tatts is entitled to terminate this deed pursuant to clauses 15.1(a), 15.1(c)(1) or 15.2(b), and has given the appropriate termination notice to Tabcorp and the Transaction does not complete;

- (b) during the Exclusivity Period, any one or more members of the Tatts Board recommends that Tatts Shareholders accept or vote in favour of, or otherwise supports or endorses (including support by way of accepting or voting, or by way of stating an intention to accept or vote, in respect of any Tatts Shares held by or on their behalf), a Competing Proposal of any kind that is announced (whether or not such proposal is stated to be subject to any pre-conditions) during the Exclusivity Period;
- (c) a Competing Proposal of the kind described in this paragraph is announced during the Exclusivity Period (whether or not such proposal is stated to be subject to any pre-conditions) and, within 12 months of the date of such announcement, the Third Party or any Associate of that Third Party completes a Competing Proposal of the kind referred to in paragraphs 1 (but only where the acquisition is through an issue of new Tatts Shares), 2, 3 and 4 of the definition of Competing Proposal.
- (d) Tabcorp has terminated this deed pursuant to clauses 15.1(a)(1), 15.1(b)(1) or 15.2(a) and the Transaction does not complete.

14.3 Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee triggers

Subject to clauses 14.6, 14.7 and 14.9, Tabcorp must pay the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee to Tatts, without set-off or withholding if:

- (a) Tatts is entitled to terminate this deed pursuant to clauses 15.1(a)(1), 15.1(c)(1) or 15.2(b) and has given the appropriate termination notice to Tabcorp;
- (b) Tabcorp materially breaches this deed and the Transaction does not complete; or
- (c) Tabcorp repudiates, terminates or purports to terminate this deed other than as expressly permitted by this deed.

14.4 Timing of payment of Reimbursement Fee

- (a) A demand by a party for payment of the Reimbursement Fee under clause 14.2 or clause 14.3 must:
  - (1) be in writing;
  - (2) be made after the occurrence of the event in that clause giving rise to the right to payment;
  - (3) state the circumstances which give rise to the demand; and
  - (4) nominate an account into which the other party is to pay the Reimbursement Fee.
- (b) Subject to clause 14.9, Tatts must pay the Tatts Reimbursement Fee into the account nominated by Tabcorp, and Tabcorp must pay the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee into the account nominated by Tatts, without set-off or withholding, within 5 Business Days after receiving a demand for payment where (as the case requires) Tabcorp is entitled under clause 14.2 to the Tatts Reimbursement Fee or Tatts is entitled under clause 14.3 to the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee.

14.5 Basis of Reimbursement Fee and Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee

The amount payable by Tatts (in respect of the Tatts Reimbursement Fee) pursuant to clause 14.2, and the amount payable by Tabcorp (in respect of the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee and the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee) pursuant to clauses 14.3 and 14.10 respectively, is purely and strictly compensatory in nature and has been calculated to reimburse Tabcorp (in respect of the Tatts Reimbursement Fee) and Tatts (in respect of the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee and the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee) for costs including the following:

- (a) fees for legal, financial and other professional advice in planning and implementing the Transaction (excluding success fees);
- (b) reasonable opportunity costs incurred in engaging in the Transaction or in not engaging in other alternative acquisitions or strategic initiatives;
- (c) costs of management and directors' time in planning and implementing the Transaction; and
- (d) out of pocket expenses incurred by Tabcorp or Tatts (as applicable) and Tabcorp's or Tatts' employees, advisers and agents in planning and implementing the Transaction, and the parties agree that:

- (e) the costs actually incurred by Tabcorp and Tatts will be of such a nature that they cannot all be accurately ascertained;
- (f) the amount payable by Tatts (in respect of the Tatts Reimbursement Fee) and the amount payable by Tabcorp (in respect of the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee and the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee) is a genuine and reasonable pre-estimate of those costs; and
- (g) both parties have received advice from their respective legal advisers on the operation of this clause 14.

14.6 Compliance with law

- (a) This clause 14 does not impose an obligation on Tatts to pay the Tatts Reimbursement Fee, Tabcorp to pay the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee or Tabcorp to pay the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee to the extent (and only to the extent) that the obligation to pay the Tatts Reimbursement Fee, Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee or Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee (as applicable):
  - (1) is declared by the Takeovers Panel to constitute 'unacceptable circumstances'; or
  - (2) is determined to be unenforceable or unlawful by a court, provided that, in either case, all lawful avenues of appeal and review, judicial and otherwise, have been exhausted.
- (b) The parties must not make or cause to be made, any application to the Takeovers Panel or a court for or in relation to a declaration or determination referred to in clause 14.6(a).

14.7 Reimbursement Fee payable only once

- (a) Where the Tatts Reimbursement Fee becomes payable to Tabcorp under clause 14.2 and is actually paid to Tabcorp, Tabcorp cannot make any claim against Tatts for payment of any subsequent Tatts Reimbursement Fee.
- (b) Where the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee becomes payable to Tatts under clause 14.3 and is actually paid to Tatts, Tatts cannot make any claim against Tabcorp for payment of any subsequent Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee.

14.8 Other Claims

This clause 14 does not limit the rights of any person in respect of any other Claims that may arise under this deed which relate to the event that gave rise to the right to make a demand under clause 14.4. However, any amount received by a person pursuing such other Claims must be offset and reduced by any amounts received by the relevant party pursuant to this clause 14.

14.9 No Reimbursement Fee or Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee if Scheme Effective

Despite anything to the contrary in this deed, the Tatts Reimbursement Fee, the Tabcorp Reimbursement Fee nor the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee will be payable prior to the termination of this deed or if the Scheme becomes Effective, notwithstanding the occurrence of any event in clauses 14.2, 14.3 or 14.10.

14.10 Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee

- (a) Subject to clauses 14.6, 14.9 and 14.10(b), Tabcorp must pay the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee to Tatts, without set-off or withholding, into the account nominated by Tatts within 5 Business Days after receiving a demand for payment if:
  - (1) this deed is terminated under clause 3.4(f); or
  - (2) the Condition Precedent in clause 3.1(a)(1) (Competition Approval Condition) is not satisfied (or waived) by the End Date, provided that:
  - (3) Tatts has complied with its obligations under this deed;
  - (4) Tatts has used its best endeavours to procure that the Competition Approval Condition is satisfied.
- (b) If for any reason Tatts is entitled to payment of the Reimbursement Fee from Tabcorp as well as the Competition Approval Reimbursement Fee under this deed, then Tatts will only be entitled to retain the higher of the two fees.

15 Termination

---

15.1 Termination for material breach

- (a) Either party may terminate this deed by written notice to the other party:

- (1) other than in respect of a breach of either a Tabcorp Representation and Warranty or a Tatts Representation and Warranty (which are dealt with in clause 15.2), at any time before 8.00am on the Second Court Date if the other party has materially breached this deed, the party entitled to terminate has given written notice to the party in breach of this deed setting out the relevant circumstances and stating an intention to terminate this deed, and the other party has failed to remedy the breach within 5 Business Days (or any shorter period ending at 5.00pm on the Business Day before the Second Court Date) after the date on which the notice is given;
- (2) at any time before 8.00am on the Second Court Date if the Court (or another court of competent jurisdiction in Australia) or another Government Agency (other than the Australian Competition Tribunal) in Australia has taken any action permanently restraining or otherwise prohibiting or preventing the Transaction, or has refused to do anything necessary to permit the Transaction from being implemented by the End Date, and the action or refusal has become final and cannot be appealed or reviewed or the party, acting reasonably, believes that there is no realistic prospect of an appeal or review succeeding by the End Date;
- (3) in the circumstances set out in, and in accordance with, clause 3.4; or
- (4) if the Effective Date for the Scheme has not occurred, or will not occur, on or before the End Date.
- (b) Tabcorp may terminate this deed by written notice to Tatts until 8.00am on the Second Court Date if:
- (1) a Material Adverse Change or a Prescribed Occurrence occurs, is announced or is otherwise discovered by Tabcorp (whether or not it becomes public) in relation to Tatts, Tabcorp has given written notice to Tatts setting out the relevant circumstances and stating an intention to terminate this deed, and Tatts has failed to remedy the Material Adverse Change or Prescribed Occurrence to Tabcorp's reasonable satisfaction within 5 Business Days (or any shorter period ending at 5.00pm on the Business Day before the Second Court Date) after the date on which the notice is given; or
- (2) a majority of the members of the Tatts Board fails to recommend the Scheme or a majority of the members of the Tatts Board withdraw, adversely revise or adversely modify their recommendation that Tatts Shareholders vote in favour of the Scheme, or a majority of the members of the Tatts Board make a public statement indicating that they no longer recommend the Transaction or recommending, supporting or endorsing another transaction (including any Competing Proposal but excluding a statement that no action should be taken by Tatts Shareholders pending the assessment of a Competing Proposal by the Tatts Board).
- (c) Tatts may terminate this deed by written notice to Tabcorp at any time before 8.00am on the Second Court Date if:
- (1) a Material Adverse Change or a Prescribed Occurrence occurs, is announced or is otherwise discovered by Tatts (whether or not it becomes public) in relation to Tabcorp, Tatts has given written notice to Tabcorp setting out the relevant circumstances and stating an intention to terminate this deed, and Tabcorp has failed to remedy the Material Adverse Change or Prescribed Occurrence to Tatts' reasonable satisfaction within 5 Business Days (or any shorter period ending at 5.00pm on the Business Day before the Second Court Date) after the date on which the notice is given; or

- (2) as permitted by clause 5.4, a majority of the members of the Tatts Board fail to recommend or withdraw, adversely revise or adversely qualify (except for customary qualifications) their recommendation that Tatts Shareholders vote in favour of the Scheme, or the Tatts Board recommends any Competing Proposal.

15.2 Termination for breach of representations and warranties

- (a) Tabcorp may, at any time prior to 8.00am on the Second Court Date, terminate this deed for breach of a Tatts Representation and Warranty only if:
- (1) Tabcorp has given written notice to Tatts setting out the relevant circumstances and stating an intention to terminate or to allow the Scheme to lapse; and
- (2) the relevant breach continues to exist 5 Business Days (or any shorter period ending at 5.00pm on the Business Day before the Second Court Date) after the date on which the notice is given under clause 15.2(a)(1).
- (b) Tatts may, at any time before 8.00am on the Second Court Date, terminate this deed for breach of a Tabcorp Representation and Warranty only if:
- (1) Tatts has given written notice to Tabcorp setting out the relevant circumstances and stating an intention to terminate or to allow the Scheme to lapse; and
- (2) the relevant breach continues to exist 5 Business Days (or any shorter period ending at 5.00pm on the Business Day before the Second Court Date) after the date on which the notice is given under clause 15.2(b)(1).

15.3 Effect of termination

If this deed is terminated by either party under clauses 3.4, 15.1 or 15.2:

- (a) each party will be released from its obligations under this deed, except that this clause 15.3, and clauses 1, 9.7, 9.8, 9.9, 12, 14, 16, 17, 18 and 19, will survive termination and remain in force;
- (b) each party will retain the rights it has or may have against the other party in respect of any past breach of this deed; and
- (c) in all other respects, all future obligations of the parties under this deed will immediately terminate and be of no further force and effect including any further obligations in respect of the Scheme.

15.4 Termination

Where a party has a right to terminate this deed, that right for all purposes will be validly exercised if the party delivers a notice in writing to the other party stating that it terminates this deed and the provision under which it is terminating the Deed.

15.5 No other termination

Neither party may terminate or rescind this deed except as permitted under clauses 3.4, 15.1 or 15.2.

16 Duty, costs and expenses

---

16.1 Stamp duty

Tabcorp:

- (a) must pay all stamp duties and any fines and penalties with respect to stamp duty in respect of this deed or the Scheme or the steps to be taken under this deed or the Scheme; and
- (b) indemnifies Tatts against any liability arising from its failure to comply with clause 16.1(a).

16.2 Costs and expenses

Except as otherwise provided in this deed, each party must pay its own costs and expenses in connection with the negotiation, preparation, execution, delivery and performance of this deed and the proposed, attempted or actual implementation of this deed and the Transaction.

17 GST

- (a) Any consideration or amount payable under this deed, including any non-monetary consideration (as reduced in accordance with clause 17(e) if required) (Consideration) is exclusive of GST.
- (b) If GST is or becomes payable on a Supply made under or in connection with this deed, an additional amount (Additional Amount) is payable by the party providing consideration for the Supply (Recipient) equal to the amount of GST payable on that Supply as calculated by the party making the Supply (Supplier) in accordance with the GST Law.
- (c) The Additional Amount payable under clause 17(b) is payable at the same time and in the same manner as the Consideration for the Supply, and the Supplier must provide the Recipient with a Tax Invoice. However, the Additional Amount is only payable on receipt of a valid Tax Invoice.
- (d) If for any reason (including the occurrence of an Adjustment Event) the amount of GST payable on a Supply (taking into account any Decreasing or Increasing Adjustments in relation to the Supply) varies from the Additional Amount payable by the Recipient under clause 17(b):
  - (1) the Supplier must provide a refund or credit to the Recipient, or the Recipient must pay a further amount to the Supplier, as appropriate;
  - (2) the refund, credit or further amount (as the case may be) will be calculated by the Supplier in accordance with the GST Law; and
  - (3) the Supplier must notify the Recipient of the refund, credit or further amount within 14 days after becoming aware of the variation to the amount of GST payable. Any refund or credit must accompany such notification or the Recipient must pay any further amount within 7 days after receiving such notification, as appropriate. If there is an Adjustment Event in relation to the Supply, the requirement for the Supplier to notify the Recipient will be satisfied by the Supplier issuing to the Recipient an Adjustment Note within 14 days after becoming aware of the occurrence of the Adjustment Event.

- (e) Despite any other provision in this deed if an amount payable under or in connection with this deed (whether by way of reimbursement, indemnity or otherwise) is calculated by reference to an amount incurred by a party, whether by way of cost, expense, outlay, disbursement or otherwise (Amount Incurred), the amount payable must be reduced by the amount of any Input Tax Credit to which that party is entitled in respect of that Amount Incurred.
- (f) Any reference in this clause to an Input Tax Credit to which a party is entitled includes an Input Tax Credit arising from a Creditable Acquisition by that party but to which the Representative Member of a GST Group of which the party is a member is entitled.
- (g) Any term starting with a capital letter that is not defined in this deed has the same meaning as the term has in the A New Tax System (Goods & Services Tax) Act 1999 (Cth).

18.2 How Notice must be given and when Notice is received

- (a) A Notice must be given by one of the methods set out in the table below.
- (b) A Notice is regarded as given and received at the time set out in the table below.

However, if this means the Notice would be regarded as given and received outside the period between 9.00am and 5.00pm (addressee's time) on a Business Day (business hours period), then the Notice will instead be regarded as given and received at the start of the following business hours period.

| Method of giving Notice                 | When Notice is regarded as given and received  |
|---|--|
| By hand to the nominated address        | When delivered to the nominated address.   |
| By email to the nominated email address | When the party sending the email receives notification that the email was successfully transmitted and read by the receiving party, or if no such notification is received, 24 hours after the email was sent, unless the party sending the email receives notification that the email was not successfully transmitted. |

19.1 Governing law and jurisdiction

- (a) This deed is governed by the law in force in Victoria.
- (b) Each party irrevocably submits to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of courts exercising jurisdiction in Victoria and courts of appeal from them in respect of any proceedings arising out of or in connection with this deed. Each party irrevocably waives any objection to the venue of any legal process in these courts on the basis that the process has been brought in an inconvenient forum.

19.2 Service of process

Without preventing any other mode of service, any document in an action (including any writ of summons or other originating process or any third or other party notice) may be served on any party by being delivered to or left for that party at its address for service of Notices under clause 18.

19.3 No merger

The rights and obligations of the parties do not merge on completion of the Transaction. They survive the execution and delivery of any assignment or other document entered into for the purpose of implementing the Transaction.

19.4 Invalidity and enforceability

- (a) If any provision of this deed is invalid under the law of any jurisdiction the provision is enforceable in that jurisdiction to the extent that it is not invalid, whether it is in severable terms or not.
- (b) Clause 19.4(a) does not apply where enforcement of the provision of this deed in accordance with clause 19.4(a) would materially affect the nature or effect of the parties' obligations under this deed.

19.5 Waiver

No party to this deed may rely on the words or conduct of any other party as a waiver of any right unless the waiver is in writing and signed by the party granting the waiver.

The meanings of the terms used in this clause 19.5 are set out below.

| Term           | Meaning   |
|----------------|---|
| conduct | includes delay in the exercise of a right.  |
| right   | any right arising under or in connection with this deed and includes the right to rely on this clause.        |
| waiver  | includes an election between rights and remedies, and conduct which might otherwise give rise to an estoppel. |

19.6 Variation

A variation of any term of this deed must be in writing and signed by the parties.

19.7 Assignment of rights

- (a) A party may not assign, novate, declare a trust over or otherwise transfer or deal with any of its rights or obligations under this deed without the prior written consent of the other party or as expressly provided in this deed.

- (b) A breach of clause 19.7(a) by a party shall be deemed to be a material breach for the purposes of clause 15.1(a)(1).
- (c) Clause 19.7(b) does not affect the construction of any other part of this deed.

19.8 Acknowledgement

Each party acknowledges that the remedy of damages may be inadequate to protect the interests of the parties for a breach of clause 13 and that either party is entitled to seek and obtain without limitation injunctive relief if the other party breaches or threatens to breach clause 13.

19.9 Further action to be taken at each party's own expense

Each party must, at its own expense, do all things and execute all documents necessary to give full effect to this deed and the transactions contemplated by it.

19.10 Entire agreement

This deed, together with the Confidentiality Agreement and all other documents referred to herein or initialled by or on behalf of the parties on or about the date hereof, states all the express terms agreed by the parties in respect of its subject matter. These supersede all prior discussions, negotiations, understandings and agreements in respect of its subject matter (other than the Confidentiality Agreement).

19.11 Counterparts

This deed may be executed in any number of counterparts.

19.12 Relationship of the parties

- (a) Nothing in this deed gives a party authority to bind any other party in any way.
- (b) Nothing in this deed imposes any fiduciary duties on a party in relation to any other party.

19.13 Remedies cumulative

Except as provided in this deed and permitted by law, the rights, powers and remedies provided in this deed are cumulative with, and not exclusive of, the rights, powers and remedies provided by law independently of this deed.

19.14 Exercise of rights

- (a) Unless expressly required by the terms of this deed, a party is not required to act reasonably in giving or withholding any consent or approval or exercising any other right, power, authority, discretion or remedy, under or in connection with this deed.
- (b) A party may (without any requirement to act reasonably) impose conditions on the grant by it of any consent or approval, or any waiver of any right, power, authority, discretion or remedy, under or in connection with this deed. Any conditions must be complied with by the party relying on the consent, approval or waiver.

2. Conditions Precedent

2.1 Conditions to the Scheme

The Scheme is conditional upon, and will have no force or effect until, the satisfaction of each of the following conditions, and the provisions of clauses 3 and 4 will not come into effect unless and until each of these conditions have been satisfied:

- (a) by 8.00am on the Second Court Date, each of the conditions set out in clause 3.1 of the Implementation Deed (other than the condition relating to the approval of the Court set out in clause 3.1(c) of the Implementation Deed) have been satisfied or waived in accordance with the terms of the Implementation Deed;
- (b) as at 8.00 am on the Second Court Date neither the Implementation Deed nor the Deed Poll has been terminated;
- (c) the Court approves this Scheme under section 411(4)(b) of the Corporations Act with or without modification acceptable to Tabcorp and Tatts (each acting reasonably);

- (d) such other conditions made or required by the Court under section 411(6) of the Corporations Act in relation to the Scheme as are acceptable to Tabcorp and Tatts (each acting reasonably) have been satisfied or been waived; and
- (e) the coming into effect, pursuant to section 411(10) of the Corporations Act, of the orders of the Court made under section 411(4)(b) of the Corporations Act (and, if applicable, section 411(6) of the Corporations Act) in relation to the Scheme on or before the End Date.

2.2 Certificates in relation to Conditions Precedent

On the Second Court Date:

- (a) Tatts must provide to the Court a certificate (or such other evidence as the Court may request) confirming (in respect of matters within its knowledge) whether or not as at 8.00 am on the Second Court Date the conditions set out in clause 3.1 (other than clause 3.1(c)) of the Implementation Deed have been satisfied or waived in accordance with the Implementation Deed; and
- (b) Tabcorp must provide to the Court a certificate (or such other evidence as the Court may request) confirming (in respect of matters within its knowledge) whether or not as at 8.00 am on the Second Court Date the conditions set out in clause 3.1 (other than clause 3.1(c)) of the Implementation Deed have been satisfied or waived in accordance with the Implementation Deed.

2.3 Termination of Implementation Deed

Without limiting any rights under the Implementation Deed or the Deed Poll, in the event that the Implementation Deed is terminated in accordance with its terms at or before 8.00 am on the Second Court Date, Tatts is released from any further obligation to take steps to implement the Scheme.

---

3. Scheme

3.1 Effective Date of the Scheme

Subject to clause 3.2, the Scheme will take effect on and from the Effective Date.

3.2 Lapse of Scheme

The Scheme will lapse and be of no further force or effect if:

- (a) the Effective Date has not occurred on or before the End Date; or
- (b) the Implementation Deed or the Deed Poll is terminated in accordance with its terms prior to 8.00am on the Second Court Date.

---

4. Implementation of Scheme

4.1 Lodgement

If the Conditions are satisfied, Tatts must lodge with ASIC in accordance with section 411(10) of the Corporations Act an office copy of the Court order approving the Scheme as soon as possible after, and in any event by no later than 5.00 pm on the Business Day following, the date on which the Court approves the Scheme.

4.2 Transfer of Scheme Shares

On the Implementation Date:

- (a) subject to the provision of the Scheme Consideration in the manner contemplated by clauses 4.3 and 4.4 and to Tabcorp having provided Tatts with such evidence thereof as it may reasonably require, all of the Scheme Shares will, together with all rights and entitlements attaching to the Scheme Shares as at the Implementation Date, be transferred to Tabcorp without the need for any further act by any Scheme Shareholder (other than acts performed by Tatts or its directors as attorney or agent for Scheme Shareholders under this Scheme) by Tatts effecting a valid transfer or transfers of the Scheme Shares to Tabcorp under section 1074D of the Corporations Act or, if that procedure is not available for any reason, by:
  - (i) Tatts delivering to Tabcorp a completed share transfer form or forms (which may be a master transfer form) to transfer all of the Scheme Shares to Tabcorp duly executed by Tatts as the attorney and agent of each Scheme Shareholder under clause 7.1 of this Scheme;
  - (ii) Tabcorp executing and delivering the share transfer form or forms to Tatts; and
  - (iii) Tatts immediately after receipt of the share transfer form or forms under clause 4.2(a)(ii), entering, or procuring the entry of, the name and address of Tabcorp in the Tatts Share Register as the holder of all of the Scheme Shares; and
- (b) Tabcorp will issue and allot to each Scheme Shareholder the Scheme Consideration for each Scheme Share held by the Scheme Shareholder, in accordance with and subject to the terms of the Scheme.

4.3 Provision of Scheme Consideration

Tabcorp's obligations under clause 4.2(b) will be satisfied as follows:

- (a) subject to clauses 4.4, 4.6 and 4.8, in respect of the Cash Consideration Tabcorp must:
  - (i) by no later than the Business Day before the Implementation Date, deposit in cleared funds an amount equal to the aggregate amount of the Cash Consideration payable to each Scheme Shareholder, in an Australian dollar denominated trust account operated by Tatts as trustee for the Scheme Shareholders, (provided that any interest on the amounts deposited (less bank fees and other charges) will be credited to Tabcorp's account);
  - (ii) on the Implementation Date, subject to funds having been deposited in accordance with clause 4.3(a)(i), Tatts must pay or procure the payment of the Cash Consideration from the trust account referred to in clause 4.3(a)(i) to each Scheme Shareholder based on the number of Tatts Shares held by such Scheme Shareholder as set out in the Tatts Share Register on the Record Date:
    - A. where a Scheme Shareholder has, before the Record Date, made a valid election in accordance with the requirements of the Tatts Share Registry to receive dividend payments from Tatts by electronic funds transfer to a bank account nominated by the Scheme Shareholder, paying, or procuring the payment of, the relevant amount in Australian currency by electronic means in accordance with that election; or

- B. otherwise, whether or not the Scheme Shareholder has made an election referred to in clause 4.3(a)(ii)A, dispatching, or procuring the dispatch of, a cheque for the relevant amount in Australian currency to the Scheme Shareholder by prepaid post to their Registered Address (as at the Scheme Record Date), such cheque being drawn in the name of the Scheme Shareholder (or in the case of joint holders, in accordance with the procedures set out in clause 4.4); and
- (iii) to the extent that, following satisfaction of Tatts' obligations under this clauses 4.3(a)(ii)A and 4.3(a)(ii)B, there is a surplus in the amount held by Tatts as trustee for the Scheme Shareholders in the trust account referred to in clause 4.3(a)(i), that surplus must be paid by Tatts to Tabcorp; and
- (b) subject to clauses 4.4, 4.6, 4.8 and 4.9, in respect of the Scrip Consideration, on the Implementation Date Tabcorp must:
- (i) issue to each Scheme Shareholder (other than an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder) such number of New Tabcorp Shares as that Scheme Shareholder is entitled to as Scheme Consideration;
- (ii) issue to a nominee appointed by Tabcorp in accordance with clause 4.9 such number of New Tabcorp Shares as are attributable to the Ineligible Foreign Shareholders;
- (iii) procure the entry in the Tabcorp Share Register:
- A. of the name and address of each Scheme Shareholder in respect of the New Tabcorp Shares issued to them; and
- B. of the name and address of the nominee appointed by Tabcorp in respect of those New Tabcorp Shares that would otherwise be issued to each Scheme Shareholder who is an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder; and
- (iv) within 5 Business Days after the Implementation Date, send or procure the despatch to each Scheme Shareholder whose New Tabcorp Shares are held on the issuer sponsored subregister of Tabcorp, or the nominee appointed by Tabcorp (as the case may be) by prepaid post to their address (as recorded in the Tatts Share Register as at the Record Date, except in the case of the nominee appointed by Tabcorp) of uncertificated holding statements for the New Tabcorp Shares issued to the Scheme Shareholder or the nominee appointed by Tabcorp (as the case may be) in accordance with this Scheme.
- (c) This clause 4.3 does not apply to a Scheme Shareholder who does not have a Registered Address or where Tatts and Tabcorp believe that such Scheme Shareholder (other than Foreign Overseas Shareholders) is not known at their Registered Address.

4.4 Joint holders

In the case of Scheme Shares held in joint names:

- (d) any cheque required to be paid to Scheme Shareholders will be made payable to the joint holders; and
- (e) the holding statements for New Tabcorp Shares to be issued to Scheme Shareholders will be issued in the names of the joint holders, and will be forwarded to the holder whose name appears first in the Tatts Share Register as at 5:00pm on the Record Date.

4.5 Unclaimed monies

- (a) Tatts may cancel a cheque issued under this clause 4 if the cheque:
  - (i) is returned to Tatts; or
  - (ii) has not been presented for payment within six months after the date on which the cheque was presented.
- (b) During the period of twelve months commencing on the Implementation Date, on request in writing from a Scheme Shareholder to Tatts (or the Tatts Share Registry), Tatts must reissue a cheque that was previously cancelled under this clause 4.5.
- (c) The Unclaimed Money Act 2008 (Vic) will apply in relation to any Scheme Consideration which becomes 'unclaimed money' (as defined in section 3 of the Unclaimed Money Act 2008 (Vic)).

4.6 Fractional entitlements and share splitting or division

- (a) If the number of Scheme Shares held by a Scheme Shareholder at the Record Date is such that the aggregate entitlement of the Scheme Shareholder to Scheme Consideration:
  - (i) comprising New Tabcorp Shares is such that a fractional entitlement to a New Tabcorp Share arises; or
  - (ii) comprising cash is such that a fractional entitlement to a cent arises, then the entitlement of that Scheme Shareholder must be rounded up or down, with any such fractional entitlement of less than 0.5 being rounded down to the nearest whole number of New Tabcorp Shares (or cents, as applicable), and any such fractional entitlement of 0.5 or more will be rounded up to the nearest whole number of New Tabcorp Shares (or cents, as applicable).

- (b) If Tabcorp and Tatts are each of the opinion (acting reasonably) that two or more Scheme Shareholders (each of whom holds a number of Scheme Shares which results in rounding in accordance with clause 4.6(a)) have, before the Record Date, been party to shareholding splitting or division in an attempt to obtain unfair advantage by reference to such rounding, Tabcorp may direct Tatts to give notice to those Scheme Shareholders:
  - (i) setting out their names and registered addresses as shown in the Tatts Share Register;
  - (ii) stating that opinion; and
  - (iii) attributing to one of them specifically identified in the notice the Scheme Shares held by all of them, and, after such notice has been given, the Scheme Shareholder specifically identified in the notice as the deemed holder of all the specified Scheme Shares will, for the purposes of the other provisions of the Scheme, be taken to hold all of those Scheme Shares and each of the other Scheme Shareholders whose names and registered addresses are set out in the notice will, for the purposes of the other provisions of the Scheme, be taken to hold no Scheme Shares. By complying with the other provisions of the Scheme in respect of the Scheme Shareholder specifically identified in the notice as the deemed holder of all the specified Scheme

Shares, Tabcorp will be taken to have satisfied and discharged its obligations to the other Scheme Shareholders named in the notice under the terms of the Scheme.

4.7 Binding instruction or notifications

Except for a Scheme Shareholder's tax file number, any binding instruction or notification between a Scheme Shareholder and Tatts relating to Scheme Shares as at the Record Date (including, without limitation, any instructions relating to payment of dividends or to communications from Tatts) will, from the Record Date, be deemed (except to the extent determined otherwise by Tabcorp) to be a similarly binding instruction or notification to, and accepted by Tabcorp, in respect of the New Tabcorp Shares issued to the Scheme Shareholder until that instruction or notification is revoked or amended in writing addressed to Tabcorp at the Tabcorp Share Registry, provided that any such instructions or notifications accepted by Tabcorp will apply to and in respect of the issue of New Tabcorp Shares as part of the Scheme Consideration only to the extent that they are not inconsistent with the other provisions of this Scheme.

4.8 Orders of a Court of Government Agency

If written notice is given to Tatts (or the Tatts Share Registry) of an order or direction made by a Court of competent jurisdiction or by another Government Agency that:

- (a) requires consideration to be provided to a third party (either through payment of a sum or the issuance of a security) in respect of Scheme Shares held by a particular Scheme Shareholder, which would otherwise be payable or required to be issued to that Scheme Shareholder by Tatts in accordance with this clause 4, then Tatts shall be entitled to procure that provision of that consideration is made in accordance with that order or direction; or
- (b) prevents Tatts from providing consideration to any particular Scheme Shareholder in accordance with this clause 4, or issuance of such consideration is otherwise prohibited by applicable law, Tatts shall be entitled to (as applicable):
  - (i) retain an amount, in Australian dollars, equal to the number of Scheme Shares held by that Scheme Shareholder multiplied by the Cash Consideration; and
  - (ii) direct Tabcorp not to issue, or to issue to a trustee or nominee, such number of New Tabcorp Shares as that Scheme Shareholder would otherwise be entitled to under clause 4.3, until such time as provision of the Scheme Consideration in accordance with this clause 4.8 is permitted by that (or another) order or direction or otherwise by law.

4.9 Ineligible Foreign Shareholders

- (a) Tabcorp will be under no obligation to issue any New Tabcorp Shares under this Scheme to any Ineligible Foreign Shareholder and instead, subject to clauses 4.6 and 4.8, Tabcorp will ensure that New Tabcorp Shares to which an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder would otherwise have been entitled (if they were a Scheme Shareholder) will be issued to a nominee appointed by Tabcorp.
- (b) Tabcorp will procure that, as soon as reasonably practicable and in any event not more than 15 Business Days after the Implementation Date, the nominee:
  - (i) sells or procures the sale on the financial market conducted by ASX of all of the New Tabcorp Shares issued to the nominee pursuant to clause 4.9(a) in such manner, at such price and on such other terms as the nominee reasonably determines; and

- (ii) remits to Tabcorp the proceeds of sale (after deducting any applicable brokerage, stamp duty and other selling costs, taxes and charges).
- (b) Promptly after the last sale of New Tabcorp Shares in accordance with clause 4.9(b), Tabcorp will pay to each Ineligible Foreign Shareholder the proportion of the net proceeds of sale received by Tabcorp pursuant to clause 4.9(b)(ii) to which that Ineligible Foreign Shareholder is entitled.
- (c) Neither Tabcorp nor Tatts gives any assurance as to the price that will be achieved for the sale of New Tabcorp Shares described in clause 4.9(b)(ii). The sale of the New Tabcorp Shares under this clause 4.9 will be at the risk of the Ineligible Foreign Shareholder.
- (d) Tabcorp must appoint the nominee at least 10 Business Days prior to the Scheme Meeting.
- (e) Tabcorp must make payments to Ineligible Foreign Shareholders under clause 4.9(b) by either (in the absolute discretion of Tatts):
- (i) where an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder has, before the Record Date, made a valid election in accordance with the requirements of the Tatts Share Registry to receive dividend payments by Tatts by electronic funds transfer to a bank account nominated by the Ineligible Foreign Shareholder, paying, or procuring the payment of, the relevant amount in Australian currency by electronic means in accordance with that election; or
  - (ii) otherwise, whether or not the Ineligible Foreign Shareholder has made an election referred to in clause 4.9(e)(i), dispatching, or procuring the dispatch of, a cheque for the relevant amount in Australian currency to the Ineligible Foreign Shareholder by prepaid post to their Registered Address (as at the Record Date), such cheque being drawn in the name of the Ineligible Foreign Shareholder (or in the case of joint holders, in accordance with the procedures in clause 4.4).
- (f) If Tatts receives professional advice that any withholding or other tax is required by law to be withheld from a payment to an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder, Tatts is entitled to withhold the relevant amount before making the payment to the Ineligible Foreign Shareholder (and payment of the reduced amount shall be taken to be full payment of the relevant amount for the purposes of this Scheme, including clause 4.9(b)(ii). Tatts must pay any amount so withheld to the relevant taxation authorities within the time permitted by law, and, if requested in writing by the relevant Ineligible Foreign Shareholder, provide a receipt or other appropriate evidence of such payment (or procure the provision of such receipt or other evidence) to the relevant Ineligible Foreign Shareholder.
- (g) Each Ineligible Foreign Shareholder appoints Tatts as its agent to receive on its behalf any financial services guide (or similar or equivalent document) or other notices (including any updates of those documents) that the nominee is required to provide to Ineligible Foreign Shareholders under the Corporations Act or any other applicable law.
- (h) Payment of the amount calculated under 4.9(b)(ii) to an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder in accordance with this clause 4.9 satisfies in full the Ineligible Foreign Shareholder's right to the Scrip Consideration.
- (i) Where the issue of New Tabcorp Shares to which a Scheme Shareholder would otherwise be entitled under this Scheme would result in a breach of law or of a provision of the constitution of Tabcorp:

- (i) Tabcorp will issue the maximum possible number of New Tabcorp Shares to the Scheme Shareholder without giving rise to such a breach; and
- (ii) to the maximum extent permitted by law, any further New Tabcorp Shares to which that Scheme Shareholder is entitled, but the issue of which to the Scheme Shareholder would give rise to such a breach, will instead be issued to the nominee and dealt with under the preceding provisions in this clause 4.9, as if a reference to an Ineligible Foreign Shareholder also included that Scheme Shareholder and references to that person's New Tabcorp Shares in that clause were limited to the New Tabcorp Shares issued to the nominee under this clause.

4.10 Status of New Tabcorp Shares

Tabcorp covenants in favour of Tatts (in its own right and on behalf of each Scheme Shareholder) that:

- (a) the New Tabcorp Shares issued as Scrip Consideration will, on their issue, rank equally in all respects with all other Tabcorp Shares on issue at the Effective Date;
- (b) it will use all reasonable endeavours to ensure that the New Tabcorp Shares issued as Scrip Consideration will be listed for quotation on the official list of the ASX with effect from the Business Day after the Effective Date (or such later date as ASX may require), initially on a deferred settlement basis and, with effect from the Business Day following the Implementation Date, on an ordinary (T+2) settlement basis; and
- (c) on issue, each New Tabcorp Share will be duly and validly issued in accordance with all applicable laws and Tabcorp's constitution, fully paid and, to the extent within the control of Tabcorp, free from any Encumbrance.

---

5. Dealings in Tatts Shares

5.1 Dealings in Tatts Shares by Scheme Shareholders

For the purposes of establishing the identity of Scheme Shareholders, dealings in Tatts Shares will only be recognised by Tatts if:

- (a) in the case of dealings of the type to be effected on CHESSE, the transferee is registered in the Tatts Share Register as the holder of the relevant Tatts Shares on or before the Record Date; and
- (b) in all other cases, registrable transfers or transmission applications in respect of those dealings are received at the place where the Tatts Share Register is kept by 4:00 pm on the day which is the Record Date (in which case Tatts must register such transfers before 7:00 pm on that day), and Tatts will not accept for registration, or recognise for the purpose of establishing who are Scheme Shareholders, any transmission application or transfer in respect of Tatts Shares received after such times on the Record Date.

5.2 Tatts Share Register

For the purposes of determining entitlements to the Scheme Consideration, Tatts will until the Scheme Consideration has been paid and Tabcorp has been entered in the Tatts Share Register as the holder of all of the Scheme Shares, maintain the Tatts Share Register in accordance with the provisions of this clause 5, and the Tatts Share Register in this form and the terms of this Scheme will solely determine entitlements to the Scheme Consideration.

5.3 Information to be made available to Tabcorp

Tatts must procure that, as soon as practicable following the Record Date and in any event by 5:00pm on the first Business Day after the Record Date, details of the names, registered addresses and holdings of Tatts Shares of every Scheme Shareholder shown in the Tatts Share Register at the Record Date are made available to Tabcorp in such form as Tabcorp may reasonably require.

5.4 Effect of share certificates and holding statements

As from the Record Date (and other than for Tabcorp, following the Implementation Date), all share certificates and holding statements for the Scheme Shares will cease to have effect as documents of title in respect of those Scheme Shares and, as from that date, each entry on the Tatts Share Register at that date (other than entries in respect of Tabcorp) will cease to have any effect other than as evidence of entitlement to the Scheme Consideration.

5.5 No disposals after Record Date

If the Scheme becomes Effective, a Scheme Shareholder, and any person claiming through that Scheme Shareholder, must not dispose of or purport or agree to dispose of any Scheme Shares or any interest in them after the Record Date, and any attempt to do so will have no effect and Tatts shall be entitled to disregard any such disposal.

---

6. Suspension and termination of quotation

- (a) Tatts must apply to ASX for suspension of trading of the Tatts Shares on ASX with effect from the close of trading on the Effective Date.
- (b) Tatts must apply to ASX for termination of official quotation of the Tatts Shares on ASX and the removal of Tatts from the official list of ASX with effect from the Business Day immediately following the Implementation Date.

7. General Scheme provisions

7.1 Appointment of agent and attorney

Each Scheme Shareholder, without the need for any further act:

- (a) on the Implementation Date, irrevocably appoints Tatts and each of its directors, officers and secretaries (jointly and each of them severally) as its agent and attorney for the purpose of executing any document or form or doing any other act necessary to give effect to the terms of this Scheme including, without limitation, the execution of the share transfer(s) to be delivered under clause 4.2 and the giving of the Scheme Shareholders' consent under clause 7.3; and
- (b) on the Effective Date, irrevocably appoints Tatts and each of its directors, officers and secretaries (jointly and each of them severally) as its agent and attorney for the purpose of enforcing the Deed Poll against Tabcorp, and Tatts accepts such appointment. Tatts, as agent of each Scheme Shareholder, may sub-delegate its functions, authorities or powers under this clause 7.1 to all or any of its directors, officers or secretaries (jointly, severally or jointly and severally).

7.2 Enforcement of Deed Poll

Tatts undertakes in favour of each Scheme Shareholder that it will enforce the Deed Poll against Tabcorp (as applicable on behalf of and as agent and attorney for the Scheme Shareholders).

7.3 Scheme Shareholders' consent

Each Scheme Shareholder irrevocably:

- (a) consents to Tatts and Tabcorp doing all things and executing all deeds, instruments, transfers or other documents as may be necessary, incidental or desirable to the implementation and performance of the Scheme; and
- (b) acknowledges that the Scheme binds Tatts and all of the Tatts Shareholders from time to time (including those who do not attend the Scheme Meeting, do not vote at that meeting or vote against the resolution to approve this Scheme).

7.4 Scheme Shareholder's agreements

Under the Scheme:

- (a) each Scheme Shareholder to whom New Tabcorp Shares are to be issued in accordance with this Scheme:
  - (i) agrees to become a member of Tabcorp and to have their name entered in the Tabcorp Share Register; and
  - (ii) accepts the New Tabcorp Shares issued under this Scheme on the terms and conditions of the constitution of Tabcorp and agrees to be bound by the constitution of Tabcorp as in force from time to time, without the need for any further act by a Scheme Shareholder;
- (b) each Scheme Shareholder agrees to the transfer of their Scheme Shares, together with all rights and entitlements attaching to those Scheme Shares, to Tabcorp in accordance with the terms of this Scheme; and
- (c) agrees to the variation, cancellation or modification (if any) of the rights attached to their Scheme Shares constituted by or resulting from this Scheme.

7.5 Warranty by Scheme Shareholders

Each Scheme Shareholder is deemed to have warranted to Tabcorp and, to the extent enforceable, appointed and authorised Tatts as its agent to warrant to Tabcorp, that:

- (a) all of its Scheme Shares (including any rights and entitlements attaching to those Scheme Shares) will, at the date of the transfer of them to Tabcorp under this Scheme, be fully paid and free from all Encumbrances and security interests (within the meaning of section 12 of the Personal Properties Securities Act 2009 (Cth)), and from any interests of third parties or any restrictions on transfer of any kind (whether legal or otherwise), and that it has full power and capacity to sell and to transfer those Scheme Shares together with any rights and entitlements attaching to such shares to Tabcorp under this Scheme. Tatts undertakes that it will provide such warranty to Tabcorp as agent and attorney of each Scheme Shareholder; and
- (b) it has no existing right to be issued any other Tatts Shares or any other form of Tatts securities. Tatts undertakes that it will provide such warranty to Tabcorp as agent and attorney of each Scheme Shareholder.

7.6 Title to Scheme Shares and transfer free from encumbrance

- (a) Immediately upon the provision of the Scheme Consideration to each Scheme Shareholder in the manner contemplated under clause 4.3, Tabcorp will be beneficially entitled to the Scheme Shares transferred to it under this Scheme pending registration by Tatts of Tabcorp in the Tatts Share Register as the holder of the Scheme Shares.

- (b) To the extent permitted by law, the Scheme Shares (including all rights and entitlements attaching to the Scheme Shares) transferred under this Scheme to Tabcorp, will, at the time of transfer to Tabcorp, vest in Tabcorp free from all Encumbrances and security interests (within the meaning of section 12 of the Personal Properties Securities Act 2009 (Cth)) and free from any restrictions on transfer of any kind.

7.7 Appointment of sole proxy

Immediately upon the provision of the Scheme Consideration to each Scheme Shareholder in the manner contemplated by clause 4.3, and until Tatts registers Tabcorp as the holder of all Scheme Shares in the Share Register, each Scheme Shareholder:

- (a) is deemed to have appointed Tabcorp as attorney and agent (and directed Tabcorp in each such capacity) to appoint any director, officer, secretary or agent nominated by Tabcorp as its sole proxy and, where applicable or appropriate, corporate representative to attend shareholders' meetings, exercise the votes attaching to the Scheme Shares registered in their name and sign any shareholders' resolution or document;
- (b) must not attend or vote at any of those meetings or sign any resolutions, whether in person, by proxy or by corporate representative (other than pursuant to clause 7.7(a));
- (c) must take all other actions in the capacity of a registered holder of Scheme Shares as Tabcorp reasonably directs; and
- (d) acknowledges and agrees that, in exercising the powers referred to in clause 7.7(a), Tabcorp and any director, officer, secretary or agent nominated by Tabcorp under clause 7.7(a) may act in the best interests of Tabcorp as the intended registered holder of the Scheme Shares.

7.8 Alterations and Conditions

Tatts may, by its counsel or solicitors, and with the consent of Tabcorp by its counsel or solicitors, consent on behalf of all persons concerned, including a Scheme Shareholder, to any modification of or amendment to the Scheme which the Court may impose, and each Scheme Shareholder agrees to such alterations or conditions which Tatts has agreed to.

7.9 Notices

Where a notice, transfer, transmission application, direction or other communication referred to in the Scheme is sent by post to Tatts, it will not be deemed to be received in the ordinary course of post or on a date other than the date (if any) on which it is actually received at Tatts' registered office or at the Tatts Share Registry (as the case may be).

7.10 Inconsistencies

This Scheme binds Tatts and all Tatts Shareholders, and to the extent of any inconsistency, overrides Tatts' constitution.

7.11 Further assurance

Tatts and Tabcorp will execute all documents and do all acts and things as may be necessary or desirable for the implementation of, and performance of their respective obligations under, this Scheme.

7.12 Stamp Duty

Tabcorp will:

- (a) pay any stamp duty payable and any related fines and penalties in respect of this Scheme and the Deed Poll, the performance of the Deed Poll and each transaction effected by or made under this Scheme and the Deed Poll; and
- (b) indemnify each Scheme Shareholder against any liability arising from its failure to comply with clause 7.12(a).

7.13 Governing Law

This Scheme is governed by the law applying in Victoria. The parties submit to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of Victoria and the courts competent to determine appeals from those courts, with respect to any proceedings in connection with the Scheme.

1 Definitions and interpretation

---

1.1 Definitions

(a) The meanings of the terms used in this deed poll are set out below.

| Term                       | Meaning   |
|----------------------------|---|
| First Court Date    | the first day on which an application made to the Court for an order under subsection 411(1) of the Corporations Act convening the Scheme Meeting to consider the Scheme is heard or, if the application is adjourned or subject to appeal for any reason, the day on which the adjourned application is heard. |
| Implementation Deed | the merger implementation deed entered into between Tatts and Tabcorp dated 18 October 2016.  |

| Term          | Meaning   |
|---------------|---|
| Scheme | the scheme of arrangement under Part 5.1 of the Corporations Act between Tatts and the Scheme Shareholders, the form of which is annexed to this deed poll, subject to any alterations or conditions made or required by the Court under subsection 411(6) of the Corporations Act and agreed to in writing by Tabcorp and Tatts. |
| (b)           | Unless the context otherwise requires, terms defined in the Scheme have the same meaning when used in this deed poll.   |

1.2 Interpretation

Sections 1.2 and 1.3 of the Scheme apply to the interpretation of this deed poll, except that references to 'this Scheme' are to be read as references to 'this deed poll'.

1.3 Nature of deed poll

Tabcorp acknowledges that:

- (a) this deed poll may be relied on and enforced by any Scheme Shareholder in accordance with its terms even though the Scheme Shareholders are not party to it; and
- (b) under the Scheme, each Scheme Shareholder irrevocably appoints Tatts and each of its directors, officers and secretaries (jointly and each of them severally) as its agent and attorney to enforce this deed poll against Tabcorp.

2 Conditions to obligations

2.1 Conditions

This deed poll and the obligations of Tabcorp under this deed poll are subject to the Scheme becoming Effective.

2.2 Termination

The obligations of Tabcorp under this deed poll to the Scheme Shareholders will automatically terminate and the terms of this deed poll will be of no force or effect if:

- (a) the Implementation Deed is terminated in accordance with its terms; or
- (b) the Scheme is not Effective on or before the End Date, unless Tabcorp and Tatts otherwise agree in writing.

2.3 Consequences of termination

If this deed poll terminates under clause 2.2, in addition and without prejudice to any other rights, powers or remedies available to it:

- (a) Tabcorp is released from its obligations to further perform this deed poll except those obligations under clause 7.1; and

- (b) each Scheme Shareholder retains the rights they have against Tabcorp in respect of any breach of this deed poll which occurred before it was terminated.

3 Scheme Consideration

---

3.1 Undertaking to provide Scheme Consideration

Subject to clause 2, Tabcorp undertakes in favour of each Scheme Shareholder to:

- (a) in relation to cash component of the Scheme Consideration (Cash Consideration), deposit, or procure the deposit of, in cleared funds, by no later than the Business Day before the Implementation Date, an amount equal to the aggregate amount of the Cash Consideration payable to all Scheme Shareholders under the Scheme into an Australian dollar denominated trust account operated by Tatts as trustee for the Scheme Shareholders, except that any interest on the amounts deposited (less bank fees and other charges) will be credited to Tabcorp's account;
- (b) in relation to the scrip component of the Scheme Consideration (Scrip Consideration), provide the Scrip Consideration to each Scheme Shareholder in accordance with the terms of the Scheme; and
- (c) undertake all other actions and obligations attributed to it under the Scheme, subject to and in accordance with the provisions of the Scheme.

3.2 Shares to rank equally

Tabcorp covenants in favour of each Scheme Shareholder that the New Tabcorp Shares are issued to each Scheme Shareholder in accordance with the Scheme will:

- (a) rank equally with all Tabcorp Shares existing at the issue date;
- (b) be duly and validly issued in accordance with all applicable laws and Tabcorp's constitution; and
- (c) be issued fully paid and free from any mortgage, charge, lien, encumbrance or other security interest, or any third party right.

4 Warranties

Tabcorp represents and warrants in favour of each Scheme Shareholder, in respect of itself, that:

- (a) it is a corporation validly existing under the laws of its place of registration;
- (b) it has the corporate power to enter into and perform its obligations under this deed poll and to carry out the transactions contemplated by this deed poll;
- (c) it has taken all necessary corporate action to authorise its entry into this deed poll and has taken or will take all necessary corporate action to authorise the performance of this deed poll and to carry out the transactions contemplated by this deed poll;
- (d) this deed poll is valid and binding on it and enforceable against it in accordance with its terms; and

HERBERT
FREEHILLS

- (e) this deed poll does not conflict with, or result in the breach of or default under, any provision of its constitution, or any writ, order or injunction, judgment, law, rule or regulation to which it is a party or subject or by which it is bound.

5 Continuing obligations

---

This deed poll is irrevocable and, subject to clause 2, remains in full force and effect until:

- (a) Tabcorp has fully performed its obligations under this deed poll; or
 (b) the earlier termination of this deed poll under clause 2.

6 Notices

---

6.1 Form of Notice

A notice or other communication in respect of this deed poll (Notice) must be:

- (a) in writing and in English and signed by or on behalf of the sending party; and
 (b) addressed to Tabcorp in accordance with the details set out below (or any alternative details nominated by Tabcorp by Notice).

| Address                               | Addressee             | Email                     |
|---------------------------------------|-----------------------|---------------------------|
| 5 Bowen Crescent, Melbourne, VIC 3004 | The Company Secretary | Fiona.Mead@tabcorp.com.au |

6.2 How Notice must be given and when Notice is received

- (a) A Notice must be given by one of the methods set out in the table below.
 (b) A Notice is regarded as given and received at the time set out in the table below.

However, if this means the Notice would be regarded as given and received outside the period between 9.00am and 5.00pm on a Business Day (business hours period), then the Notice will instead be regarded as given and received at the start of the following business hours period.

| Method of giving Notice                 | When Notice is regarded as given and received   |
|---|---|
| By hand to the nominated address        | When delivered to the nominated address   |
| By email to the nominated email address | When the email (including any attachment) comes to the attention of the recipient party or a person acting on its behalf. |

7 General

---

7.1 Stamp duty

Tabcorp:

- (a) will pay all stamp duty and any related fines and penalties in respect of the Scheme and this deed poll, the performance of this deed poll and each transaction effected by or made under the Scheme and this deed poll; and
- (b) indemnify each Scheme Shareholder against any liability arising from failure to comply with clause 7.1(a).

7.2 Governing law and jurisdiction

- (a) This deed poll is governed by the law in force in Victoria, Australia.
- (b) Tabcorp irrevocably submits to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of courts exercising jurisdiction in Victoria and courts of appeal from them in respect of any proceedings arising out of or in connection with this deed poll.

7.3 Waiver

- (a) Tabcorp may not rely on the words or conduct of any Scheme Shareholder as a waiver of any right unless the waiver is in writing and signed by the Scheme Shareholder granting the waiver.
- (b) The meanings of the terms used in this clause 7.3 are set out below.

| Term           | Meaning   |
|----------------|---|
| conduct | includes a failure or delay in the exercise or partial exercise of a right.   |
| right   | any right arising under or in connection with this deed poll (including for a breach of or default under this deed poll) and includes the right to rely on this clause. |
| waiver  | includes an election between rights and remedies, and conduct which might otherwise give rise to an estoppel.   |

7.4 Variation

A provision of this deed poll may not be varied unless the variation is agreed to by Tabcorp and:

- (a) if before the First Court Date, the variation is agreed to by Tatts; or
- (b) if on or after the First Court Date, the variation is agreed to by Tatts and the Court indicates that the variation would not of itself preclude approval of the Scheme, in which event Tabcorp will enter into a further deed poll in favour of the Scheme Shareholders giving effect to the variation.

FREEHILLS

7.5 Cumulative rights

The rights, powers and remedies of Tabcorp and the Scheme Shareholders under this deed poll are cumulative and do not exclude any other rights, powers or remedies provided by law independently of this deed poll.

7.6 Assignment

- (a) The rights created by this deed poll are personal to Tabcorp and each Scheme Shareholder and must not be dealt with at law or in equity without the prior written consent of Tabcorp.
- (b) Any purported dealing in contravention of clause 7.6(a) is invalid.

7.7 Further action

Tabcorp must, at its own expense, do all things and execute all documents necessary to give full effect to this deed poll and the transactions contemplated by it.

UBS Evidence Lab: Australian wagering iOS app download trends

Using iOS app downloads to forecast wagering market share

In FY15, we estimate that the digital market (including internet & phone) grew 20% and now represents more than 50% of turnover. In comparison, retail declined 6%. Along with a structural move to digital (from retail), competition is driving digital growth, underpinned by advertising / promotions. Tracking iOS app download share across the wagering operators (with the help of UBS Evidence Lab), and comparing this to digital market share, suggests that there appears to be some correlation. We believe this may prove to be an indicator of revenue trends across the operators and long term sustainable digital market share.

2H16 YTD: Tabcorp wagering app market share 18%, UBET stabilising at 5%

Tabcorp (including Luxbet) has the highest level of digital turnover (including internet & phone), and the second highest iOS app download share. However, according to our data, its share of app downloads / digital turnover share has generally been trending lower over the last two-years (which has continued into 2H16). We have previously suggested digital competition is intensifying, and the data suggests that Ladbrokes and William Hill are taking some share of downloads. Tatts launched "UBET" in April 2015. Although UBET initially saw a spike in app download share (to a high of 17%), it has averaged 5% share over the last six-months. With that said, the "tatts.com" app is still active and is operating a legacy wagering platform. We expect Tatts to fully migrate its digital wagering customers to "UBET" from mid-June. We believe monitoring app download share data over this period could provide a fairer indication of market share.

Digital turnover / revenue up 22% / 12% in the March '16 quarter (UBSe)

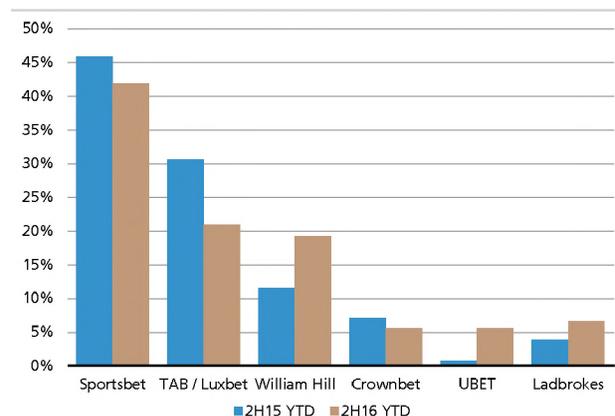

We estimate Tabcorp, William Hill, Sportsbet and Ladbrokes grew digital turnover 22% in the March '16 quarter (3Q16) compared to 20% in 1H16. However, most operators were impacted by unfavourable outcomes impacting revenue growth (digital revenue was up 12% in 3Q16, UBSe). These four operators represent around 70% of the Australian digital market, and as such provide a good growth proxy.

Australian wagering market

The chart below illustrates the digital turnover (including internet & phone) for six of the major Australian digital wagering operators. Combined, we estimate that they represent more than 80% of the digital market. NB: We have combined digital and phone because not all operators split the two.

The table below ranks the major Australian wagering iOS app operators based on download share.

| Company       | 2H16 YTD rank*    | UBS comments  |
|---------------|-------------------|---|
| Sportsbet     | 1 (36% mkt share) | Consistently ranked as the number one downloaded wagering app since 2014                      |
| TAB / Luxbet  | 2 (18% mkt share) | Consistently ranked as the number two downloaded wagering app since 2014                      |
| William Hill  | 3 (17% mkt share) | Includes "tomwaterhouse.com" / "Sportingbet" / "Centrebet" and has ranked third for 18 months |
| Bet365        | 4 (11% mkt share) | Consistently ranked as the number four downloaded wagering app since 2014                     |
| Ladbrokes     | 5 (6% mkt share)  | Has progressively improved ranking each year  |
| UBET          | 6 (5% mkt share)  | Launched in April 2015  |
| CrownBet      | 7 (5% mkt share)  | Launched in September 2014  |
| TABtouch (WA) | 8 (2% mkt share)  | Operated by the Western Australian government   |

The chart below illustrates the share of iOS app downloads over the last 22 months.

Source: UBS Evidence Lab, Sensor Tower, 2H16 YTD based on January – April 2016

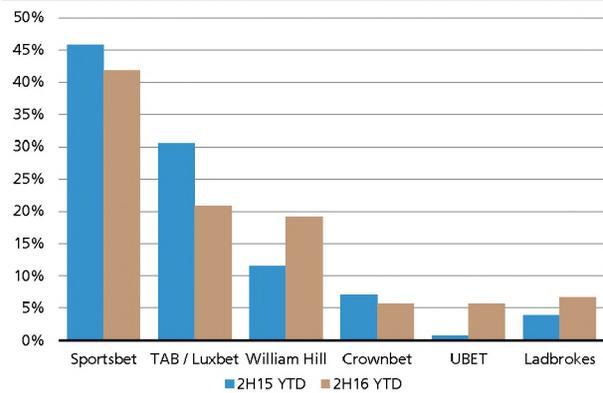

According to UBS Evidence Lab, there appears to be some correlation between "iOS app download share" and "digital wagering turnover" market share.

Source: UBS Evidence Lab, Sensor Tower, company reports, UBSe. Note results are relative to the sample set (Bet365 and TABtouch removed due to lack of revenue disclosure).

Source: UBS Evidence Lab, Sensor Tower, based on January to April 2016

Comparing app download shares over 2H16 YTD (January – April 2016) vs the pcp indicates that William Hill, UBET and Ladbrokes are taking app download market share. We note that: 1) William Hill market share gains are largely underpinned by the brand consolidation and subsequent marketing campaigns such as The Australian Open sponsorship and, 2) UBET only launched in April 2015 and is cycling a soft comp.

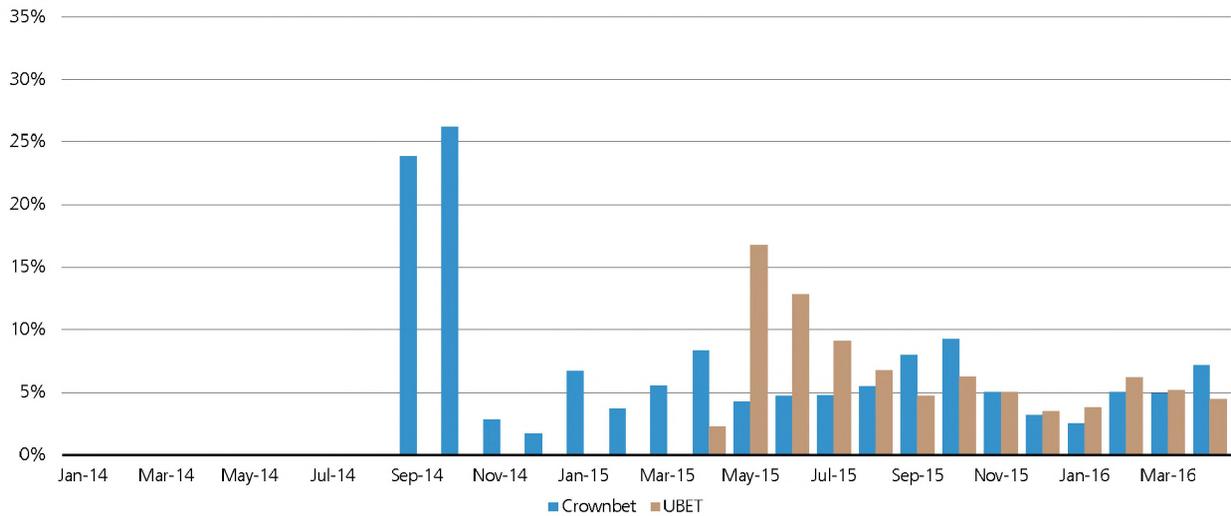

In regards to UBET, we note that the "tatts.com" app is still active and is operating a legacy wagering platform. We expect Tatt's to fully migrate its digital wagering customers to UBET from mid-June. Monitoring app download share data over this period should provide a fairer indication of market share.

App launches – CrownBet and UBET

In the chart below, we look at the brand launches of "CrownBet" and "UBET". From the chart, there seems to be a "spike" in app download market share followed by lower market share as downloads stabilise.

App launches / event sponsorships can lift iOS app download share... however, this quickly reverts to trend

William Hill app download growth

William Hill entered the Australian market through the acquisitions of "Sportingbet", "tomwaterhouse.com" and "Centrebet" in 2013. William Hill originally retained the brands however, in 2015 the brands were consolidated to "William Hill". The brand migration was largely carried out in two campaigns:

- February / March 2015: The "Sportingbet" app was rebranded to "William Hill". This app was then super seeded by the launch of the new "William Hill" app in September 2015.
- January 2016: William Hill sponsored the Australian open in January which coincided with the launch of its "in-play betting" capability. During the event William Hill reported that it had acquired ~1,000 customers per day. The "tomwaterhouse.com" app was de-activated in March 2016.

Source: UBS Evidence Lab, Sensor Tower

William Hill iOS app downloads have benefitted from the rebrand / Australian open sponsorship. However, we note William Hill has lost the most market share of digital turnover over the last 18 months.

William Hill has consolidated its Australian business under one brand... can it win back market share?

App launch success based on "download rankings"

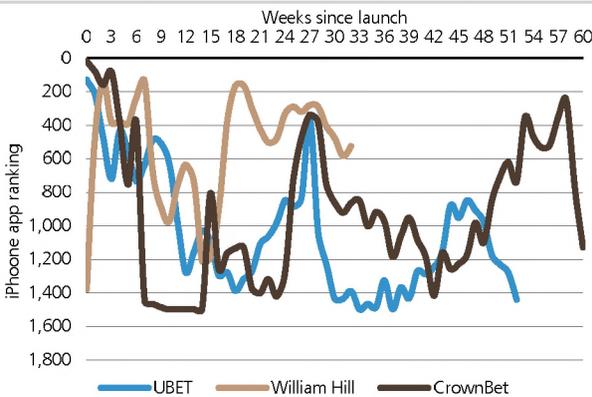

Based on "app download rankings" William Hill's brand re-launch has been more successful than the launch of "UBET" and "CrownBet".

- "William Hill" launched its "new" wagering app in September 2015
- "CrownBet" launched in September 2014
- "UBET" launched in April 2015.

The "William Hill" app re-launch was more successful than the launch of "UBET" and "CrownBet" based on "iPhone app rankings"

The two charts below illustrate the "app download rankings" on a weekly basis within the iPhone app store based on: 1) all apps and 2) all "sports category" apps.

Digital market update – March '16

We estimate Tabcorp, William Hill, Sportsbet and Ladbrokes grew digital turnover 22% in the March '16 quarter (3Q16) compared to 20% in 1H16. However, most operators were impacted by unfavourable outcomes impacting revenue growth (up 12% in 3Q16, UBSe). These four operators represent around 70% of the Australian digital market, and as such provide a good growth proxy.

|  | William Hill | Sportsbet | Ladbrokes | Tabcorp* |
|--|--------------|-----------|-----------|----------|
| Digital (internet & phone) – turnover growth (YoY) | 8%           | 31%       | 52%       | 11%      |
| Net revenue growth (YoY)                           | (22%)        | 25%       | 38%       | 7%       |

Source: Company reports, UBSe, *includes digital and phone and excludes Luxbet

- Tabcorp delivered 3% turnover growth YoY in the March quarter. Net revenue excluding Media increased 0.5%. Revenue growth was impacted by a 2.4% decline in retail betting and a 51 basis point decline in the win rate to 15.5% (from 16.1% in the pcp). The decline in the win rate follows adverse results from several major race days (which competitors have also commented on). Higher promotional activity may have also impacted the win rate, but the major impact was likely due to a large number of favourites winning. Tabcorp's digital turnover was up 15% YoY in the quarter. However, when isolating digital, phone betting, and Luxbet (which is more comparable to the corporate bookmakers), we estimate turnover / revenue increased 11% / 7% YoY. Refer to "3Q16 trading update slightly below expectations". 02/05/2016
- Sportsbet reported 31% turnover growth YoY in the March quarter. Net revenue increased 25%. The delta between turnover / net revenue was "impacted by adverse sports results in the period". Active customers increased 42%.
- William Hill reported 8% turnover growth YoY in the 17 week period to 26 April 2016. Net revenue was however down 22% reflective of a lower win rate of 9.4% (down 1.4%), impacted by horse racing results. The brand transition to "William Hill" delivered 22% increased wagering within the app. Active customer were up 1% and new accounts were up 46%, with acquisitions from the Australian Open partnership period continuing to generate "good returns".
- Ladbrokes reported 52% turnover growth YoY in the March quarter. Net revenue increased 38.4% on a flat gross win rate (9.8%). Active customers increased 87%. Management indicated that "marketing and sponsorship activity delivered increases actives and recreational customer base".

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Tabcorp / Tatts - We believe the key risk to Tabcorp / Tatts is any change in government regulation negatively impacting its gaming and wagering licences in key jurisdictions, along with a softer than expected consumer environment, and changes to consumer preferences.

We value both Tabcorp / Tatts on a DCF implied SOTP.

KEY DEFINITIONS: Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Short-Term Ratings reflect the expected near-term (up to three months) performance of the stock and do not reflect any change in the fundamental view or investment case. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES: UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Committee (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

Tabcorp and Tatts to combine to create a world-class, diversified gambling entertainment group

- Creates a leading, diversified portfolio of gambling entertainment businesses well placed to compete in a rapidly evolving marketplace and pursue growth opportunities globally
- Anticipated to provide a wide range of benefits for stakeholders and is expected to result in at least $50 million per annum of additional funding to the Australian racing industry, which enhances its long term sustainability
- Pro forma enterprise value of approximately $11.3 billion<sup>1</sup>, revenue of over $5 billion, EBITDA of over $1 billion<sup>2</sup> and a strong balance sheet with an intended investment grade credit rating
- Combination expected to deliver at least $130 million of annual EBITDA synergies and business improvements, net of benefits to the racing industry
- Transaction expected to be EPS accretive (before significant items) and value accretive for both Tabcorp and Tatts shareholders
- Combined Group expected to target a dividend payout ratio of 90% of net profit after tax, before significant items and amortisation of the Victorian Wagering and Betting Licence
- Combined Group expected to undertake a $500 million share buyback, post implementation of the Transaction and subject to Board approval and market conditions
- Completion expected mid-2017 following Tatts shareholder, regulatory and other approvals
- Transaction is unanimously recommended by the Boards of Tabcorp and Tatts<sup>3</sup>

Transaction details

Tabcorp Holdings Limited ("Tabcorp") and Tatts Group Limited ("Tatts") are pleased to announce the companies have reached an agreement to combine the two companies via a Tatts Scheme of Arrangement in which Tatts shareholders will receive 0.80 Tabcorp shares plus 42.5 cents cash for each Tatts share held (the "Transaction").

The Transaction will create a world-class, diversified gambling entertainment group, with a pro forma enterprise value of approximately $11.3 billion<sup>1</sup>, a national footprint and a diverse suite of product offerings across wagering, media, lotteries, Keno and gaming services (the "Combined Group").

Based on the most recent closing price of Tabcorp shares ($4.89 per share as at 17 October 2016), the Transaction implies a value of $4.34 per Tatts share (before the value of synergies and business improvements). This represents:

- a premium of approximately 20.8% to the most recent closing price of Tatts shares ($3.59 per share);

<sup>2</sup> Based on reported FY 2016 revenue and EBITDA for Tabcorp and Tatts. Excludes the impact of synergies and business improvements

<sup>3</sup> In Tatts Board's case, subject to there being no superior proposal and also to an independent expert concluding the Transaction is in the best interests of Tatts shareholders

- a premium of approximately 18.4% to the 1-month volume weighted average price ("VWAP") of Tatts shares ($3.66 per share)<sup>4</sup>; and
- an implied enterprise value (EV) for Tatts of $7.4 billion and an implied FY 2016 EV/ EBITDA valuation multiple of 15.0x.<sup>5</sup>

On completion of the Transaction, existing Tabcorp shareholders will own approximately 42% of the Combined Group and existing Tatts shareholders will own approximately 58%.<sup>6</sup>

Based on a blended FY 2017 EV/EBITDA multiple for Tabcorp and Tatts of 10.7x<sup>7</sup>, the estimated synergies and business improvements are worth approximately $1.4 billion.<sup>8</sup>

Taking into account the estimated synergies and business improvement benefits, the Transaction implies a pro forma value uplift for Tatts shareholders of approximately 30% per Tatts share (before taking into account any potential market re-rating).<sup>9</sup>

Tatts intends to pay its shareholders a fully-franked special dividend of 20 cents per share<sup>10</sup> (subject to the availability of franking credits) immediately prior to implementation of the Transaction in lieu of part of the cash consideration. A fully-franked dividend of 20 cents per share would have approximately 8.6 cents per share of franking credits attached.

The Directors of both Tabcorp and Tatts believe the Transaction represents a unique and compelling opportunity to create significant value for Tabcorp and Tatts shareholders, a winning offer for customers and material benefits for stakeholders, including the racing industry, TAB agencies, licensed venues, small businesses, and Federal, State and Territory Governments and regional communities.

The Directors of Tabcorp believe the Transaction is in the best interests of Tabcorp shareholders and unanimously support the Transaction. The Directors of Tatts believe the Transaction is in the best interests of Tatts shareholders and unanimously recommend that Tatts shareholders vote in favour of the Transaction, in the absence of a superior proposal and subject to an independent expert concluding the Transaction is in the best interests of Tatts shareholders. Subject to those considerations, the Directors of Tatts intend to vote all shares they personally hold in favour of the Transaction.

AustralianSuper, one of Tatts' largest shareholders, has indicated that it intends to vote its Tatts shares in favour of the Transaction, in the absence of a superior proposal and subject to there being no material adverse change in circumstances.

<sup>4</sup> Based on the 1-month volume weighted average price of Tatts shares up to and including 17 October 2016, being the last trading day prior to the announcement of the Transaction

<sup>5</sup> Based on Tatts' reported net debt of $1,041 million as 30 June 2016, FY 2016 reported EBITDA of $495 million, Tatts' fully diluted shares outstanding of 1,469 million (including performance rights) and the Tabcorp share price as at 17 October 2016, being the last trading day prior to the announcement of the Transaction

<sup>6</sup> Based on Tabcorp's ordinary shares outstanding of 835 million and Tatts' fully diluted shares outstanding of 1,469 million (including performance rights) as at 18 October 2016

<sup>7</sup> Based on the Bloomberg consensus FY 2017 EBITDA estimates as at 18 October 2016, implying an FY 2017 EV/EBITDA multiple for Tabcorp of 9.1x, Tatts of 12.4x and the implied weighted average for the Combined Group of 10.7x

<sup>8</sup> Based on $130 million of expected EBITDA synergies and business improvements

<sup>9</sup> Based on the Bloomberg consensus FY 2017 NPAT estimates as at 18 October 2016, implying a FY 2017 P/E multiple for Tabcorp of 20.6x, Tatts of 19.6x and an implied weighted average for the Combined Group of 20.0x. Potential value uplift assuming Transaction terms and taking into account full pro forma run-rate EBITDA synergies and business improvements of $130 million, estimated transaction costs of approximately $90 million and net one-off estimated integration costs and capital expenditure of approximately $110 million

<sup>10</sup> Whilst Tatts estimates the special dividend will be 20 cents per Tatts share, under the Implementation Deed Tatts is able to pay a special dividend of up to 25 cents per share (subject to the availability of franking credits)

Chairman's comment

Tabcorp's Chairman, Paula Dwyer, said:

"In today's rapidly changing landscape, bringing together our businesses will create a strong and diversified business that is well placed to invest, innovate and compete, both in Australia and globally.

"This Transaction is expected to deliver significant value for both sets of shareholders, and material benefits to other key stakeholders including the racing industry, business partners, customers, and Governments.

"Together we will be able to pursue more investment and innovation to deliver a winning offer for customers, including best-in-class digital products and experiences.

"In wagering, combining our two complementary businesses will give us a national footprint and could create a pathway to larger wagering pools. We are excited by this opportunity, which we believe will deliver an enhanced wagering experience for our customers and, in turn, will generate stronger returns to the Australian racing industry, underpinning its sustainability.

"At the same time, bringing together our lotteries, Keno and gaming services businesses will give us the capability to create an even more compelling offer for customers and retail stakeholders as the combination increases capability, while increasing diversification."

Tatts' Chairman, Harry Boon, said:

"The combination of Tabcorp and Tatts is based on clear industrial logic and a strong and tangible synergy proposition. It comes at a time of escalating competition from new business models and rapid consolidation of gaming and wagering companies globally. The scale and efficiency benefits from this combination will provide a stronger platform in this dynamic environment.

"We believe the implied value accretion for Tatts shareholders fairly reflects the strategic value of our businesses. Further, the scrip consideration allows Tatts shareholders the opportunity to participate as shareholders in the Combined Group, with ongoing exposure to the future growth of wagering, while also retaining exposure to Tatts' unique and growing lotteries business.

"In addition to our shareholders, the benefits of this combination are also very clear for the racing industry and for customers who should, in due course and with racing industry support, be able to access deeper and more liquid wagering pools.

"A combination of Tabcorp and Tatts has been the subject of numerous discussions between the two companies over time and this transaction is fully supported by our respective Boards."

Significant value for Tabcorp and Tatts shareholders

The Directors of both Tabcorp and Tatts expect the Transaction to deliver a number of financial and other benefits to both sets of shareholders:

- The Combined Group is expected to have an attractive, diversified national portfolio of predominantly long-dated gambling licences, and be strongly positioned to invest, innovate and compete in an evolving marketplace
- The Transaction is expected to generate earnings per share accretion (before significant items) and value accretion for both Tabcorp and Tatts shareholders. The combination is expected to deliver at least $130 million of annual EBITDA synergies and business improvements, net of benefits to the racing industry, in the first full year following completion of integration. Completion of integration is expected to take approximately two years, subject to the receipt of all necessary regulatory approvals.

Net one-off estimated integration costs and capital expenditure are estimated at approximately $110 million

- The Combined Group is expected to have a strong balance sheet, with the capacity to pursue capital management initiatives. The Combined Group will target a gross debt to EBITDA ratio of 3.0x to 3.5x and intends to have an investment grade credit rating
- The Combined Group expects to undertake a $500 million share buyback, post implementation of the Transaction and subject to Board approval and market conditions
- The Combined Group is expected to target a dividend payout ratio of 90% of net profit after tax, before significant items and amortisation of the Victorian Wagering and Betting Licence. Both Tabcorp and Tatts expect to continue to pay dividends in the ordinary course (subject to the Implementation Deed) until implementation of the Transaction

Benefits to the Australian racing industry and beyond

- Tabcorp and Tatts are together the largest source of funding for Australia's racing industry, having delivered approximately $1 billion to the racing industry in FY 2016
- The Combined Group's commitment to investment, its national footprint and enhanced operational platform will create a stronger business, and provide a strong financial base to support the racing industry, strengthening its overall sustainability
- The Transaction is expected to result in at least $50 million per annum of additional funding to the racing industry, which will flow to participants and related industries across Australia
- Additional payments to the racing industry will create broader economic benefits, including in regional areas
- The Transaction provides a pathway to national pooling for pari-mutuel wagering, subject to regulatory and racing industry approvals and an enhanced ability to adopt strategies to address the national decline in pari-mutuel betting

Profile of the Combined Group

The Combined Group is expected to have a pro forma enterprise value of approximately $11.3 billion, market capitalisation of approximately $8.6 billion<sup>11</sup>, revenue of over $5 billion and EBITDA of over $1 billion.<sup>12</sup>

The Combined Group will have diversified national wagering, media, lotteries, Keno, and gaming operations including:

Wagering & Media

- Totalisator and fixed odds licences and retail wagering networks in NSW, VIC, QLD, SA, TAS, ACT and NT, offering wagering products in approximately 4,300 retail outlets
- National Sky Racing media business

Lotteries

- An iconic Australian lotteries business with licences to offer products in NSW, VIC, QLD, SA, TAS, ACT and NT

<sup>11</sup> Based on the closing share prices of Tabcorp and Tatts as at 17 October 2016, being the last trading day prior to the announcement of the Transaction. Pro forma net debt of the Combined Group as at 30 June 2016 (including estimated transaction costs of $90 million) adjusted for cash paid to Tatts shareholders under the Transaction of $624 million based on a cash consideration component of 42.5 cents per Tatts share and Tatts' fully diluted shares outstanding of 1,469 million (including performance rights). Excludes synergies and business improvements

<sup>12</sup> Based on reported FY 2016 revenue and EBITDA of Tabcorp and Tatts. Excludes impact of synergies and business improvements

Keno

- Keno distribution network of over 4,200 venues across clubs, hotels and TAB agencies in VIC, QLD, SA and the ACT, and in clubs and hotels in NSW

Gaming Services

- Gaming machine monitoring operations in NSW, QLD and NT under the MAX and Odyssey<sup>13</sup> brands, and venue services operations nationwide, under the TGS, Intecq<sup>13</sup> and Bytecraft brands

Governance

The Combined Group will benefit from a highly experienced Board and senior executive team.

The Board will be comprised of the existing Tabcorp Board of Directors with Paula Dwyer as Chairman. Tatts Chairman Harry Boon will join the Board of the Combined Group as a Non-Executive Director following implementation of the Transaction.

David Attenborough will be Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of the Combined Group and Damien Johnston will be Chief Financial Officer.

Implementation process

In addition to the approval by Tatts shareholders of the Tatts Scheme of Arrangement, the Transaction is also subject to satisfying regulatory conditions, including competition approval and approvals from various industry and State Government wagering, gaming, monitoring and lotteries regulators, obtaining court approval for the Scheme and an independent expert concluding the Transaction is in the best interests of Tatts shareholders.

The obligations of Tabcorp and Tatts regarding the implementation of the Transaction, the deal protections and break fee are agreed and set out in the Implementation Deed entered into by both parties. A copy of this Deed is attached to this announcement.

Tabcorp and Tatts currently expect the Transaction to complete in mid-2017 following Tatts shareholder, regulatory and other approvals.

Transaction costs are estimated at approximately $90 million.

Presentation and market briefing details

To provide an overview of the Transaction in further detail, a presentation has also been released to the ASX today.

A briefing for investors and analysts will be held today at 10.00 a.m. AEDT. The briefing will be hosted by Paula Dwyer, Chairman of Tabcorp, Harry Boon, Chairman of Tatts, David Attenborough, Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of Tabcorp and Robbie Cooke, Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of Tatts.

Advisers

UBS is acting as financial adviser and Herbert Smith Freehills is acting as legal adviser to Tabcorp.

Goldman Sachs is acting as financial adviser and Clayton Utz is acting as legal adviser to Tatts.

Seven and Racing Victoria shake up horse racing with Hong Kong deal

Racing Victoria and Seven West Media's joint venture may bid for racing in other states. Vince Calligiuri

by John Stensholt

Seven West Media and Racing Victoria's Racing.com joint venture will announce on Monday it has gained the rights to broadcast arguably the best-quality horse racing in the world from Hong Kong.

It is a small but significant step for Racing.com, one that may be the first domino to fall in what looms as a year or two of intensive broadcast deal negotiations across several states and merger and acquisition activity in the wagering sector.

Plenty of this may have Seven and Racing.com at the centre of the action and have ramifications for the established listed wagering operators such as Tabcorp and racing administrators around the country.

Racing.com's coverage of Hong Kong is likely to begin this weekend or next Wednesday evening. Its popular on-air host Shane Anderson says the coverage, shown on Seven's free-to-air Racing.com channel, on Foxtel's pay television service and online, will be "an elite product covered with elite talent", including preview and analysis shows.

Tabcorp's Sky Racing channel will still cover Hong Kong but Mr Anderson believes Racing.com's ability to showcase it as a premium product makes it a differentiator. At present, Hong Kong is part of a constant suite of racing, including greyhounds and harness, shown on Sky's main channel or moved to its secondary

The theory is greater exposure to horse racing on television means more people bet and more flows through to the industry in race fields fees. It can also be said that Tabcorp – which shares the spoils of tote betting – will also benefit.

But the Hong Kong deal shows the divergent paths Tabcorp is taking from Seven and Racing Victoria, which shows the crown jewels of the Spring Carnival that features races such as the Cox Plate, the Caulfield Cup and the Melbourne Cup.

Hong Kong marks the first jurisdiction outside Victoria that Racing.com will show vision of, having hastily been born in January 2015 out of the messy end to the TVN channel, which had the rights to both Victoria and NSW racing.

Back then, Victoria elected to spend about $10 million establishing Racing.com with Seven, which then launched the free-to-air channel in July. Meanwhile, Racing NSW quickly signed a 10-year exclusive broadcast deal with Sky.

Sky covers races across other states and overseas, but that may soon change.

South Australian racing is up for renewal next year, while the rights for New Zealand racing are in play now. Queensland authorities, meanwhile, are understood to have served Sky with breach notices regarding their contract over changes it made to Victorian coverage last year (which was off-air for a short time due to a contract dispute).

Racing.com may move to poach the rights off Sky for all of those, though will then face the quandary of having to lavish attention and resources on interstate racing as it does for Victoria, and perhaps even have to sell or offer those states a shareholding.

Victorian authorities argue the Racing.com service, which is also pumped out via the corporate bookmakers website, has increased wagering turnover. It may be up by about 7 per cent this financial year, compared with a fall in Queensland and South Australia of the same figure (NSW is said to be up about 3-4 per cent), and Racing Victoria may go close to matching its bumper $50 million record profit in 2015.

Racing.com is already profitable after about 10 months of operation, paying Racing Victoria and Seven a decent annual dividend, mostly thanks to stronger than expected advertising deals that Seven's sales team signed with corporate bookmakers

"We are quietly pleased with what has already been achieved, the future performance and the potential of this business is very, very significant," Seven chief executive Tim Worner told The Australian Financial Review. "We have already seen what can be done. Look at the roll up to the [recent Warrnambool carnival], look at the turnover numbers. Victorian racing is positioning itself for a very interesting future and so is Seven."

When it comes to racing, however, the real money is to be made in wagering. There has already been speculation about Seven looking at a bid for the West Australian tote. Far more likely is a tie-up between Seven and an operator such as CrownBet, given the latter already advertises on Racing.com and James Packer and Kerry Stokes, former and current chairman of CrownBet's part-owner Crown Resorts and Seven respectively, are close.

Then there is the vexed issue of Tabcorp's joint venture with Victoria to deliver racing a share of tote betting losses. Tabcorp's retail monopoly is under threat from the rise of corporate bookmakers such as CrownBet and market leader Sportsbet, and Racing Victoria has made good money charging them higher race fields fees.

Both Tabcorp and Racing Victoria say the joint venture is still a fruitful one, and relations are good. The different, and competing, broadcasting strategies may mean that is not the case forever.

Western Australia rift over TAB sell-off

The privatisation of Western Australia's TAB agency looks to have stalled with a rift emerging between the state government and racing industry over control of the sales process.

The Racing Representative Group, charged with lobbying on behalf of the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound codes, has been holding talks with government ministers over any potential sale, including minimum funding commitments for each of the clubs it represents.

However, West Australian Premier Colin Barnett and Treasurer Mike Nahan appear to have hardened their stance over the racing group's role in the mooted sell-off which, if it proceeds, is likely to attract bids from both Tabcorp and Tatts Group.

Mr Nahan told media on Wednesday the government was in charge of the privatisation should it proceed.

"The [racing group] will have a role as an interest group with input into it," said Mr Nahan. "But they won't control the process and they won't make the decisions. They are an input to it, we will listen to them but they want to basically run the sale as if they own it and that's not the case."

The Treasurer said the government would consider the best outcome for the public interest.

"The public of West Australia own that asset and the government who represents the public will make the decision and undertake the sale."

Mr Nahan said the government had engaged in extensive consultation with the racing group and provided $300,000 in funding in the state budget for a report on the industry's requirements.

"When we first started this sales process two years ago the response was 'no way, over my dead body', " said Mr Nahan. "They've come on board now and I think we have a consensus in the community and in the industry that it's time the government no longer owned a gambling business."

Tabcorp, which owns the former government TABs in NSW and Victoria, and Tatts, the owner of the TABs in Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and Tasmania, are logical front runners in the West Australian privatisation.

The government appeared to confirm the two companies as the most logical bidders despite the fact a request for proposal has yet to be sent to the industry.

"Going forward we will get a consensus for sale and the sale will be a very easy one," said Mr Nahan. "There are only two purchasers in this."

It had previously been expected the sale may spark bids from global players, including international pension funds that could seek to partner with local companies or corporate bookmakers.

Racing and Wagering Western Australia, the owner of the TAB, confirmed it would meet with the racing industry group on Friday to discuss developments in the sale.

"They are an important body in terms of having endorsement of the racing industry so we are liaising with them on a variety of issues," said RWWA chief executive Richard Burt.

However, he noted there was no defined timeframe for any sale,

"We may be running the licence but we are not aware at this stage what the timeframe is or what the process is," said Mr Burt. "We are experts in running the wagering business but we are not intimately involved in what is happening with a potential sale."

RWWA contributed $165 million in funding to the state's racing and sports industry in the 2014-15 year.

RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA

ABOUT US

Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA) was established on 1 August 2003. RWWA's Charter under the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 is to foster development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing in the interests of the long-term viability of the racing industry in Western Australia. RWWA also has responsibility for the off-course wagering functions trading as the TAB.

PURPOSE

To provide a positive sustainable future for the Western Australian racing industry.

MISSION

Position RWWA as a competitive and responsible gambling organisation providing a major source of funding for the development of racing and sports in Western Australia.

VISION

To make racing great.

CHAIRMAN AND CEO REPORT

It is our pleasure to present the Annual Report for Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA).

As raised in the previous year’s report, 2016 was anticipated to be a more challenging year with softening economic conditions in Western Australia impacting consumer confidence, increased levels of competition both on and off-course for the wagering dollar and a broad range of strategic programs being implemented throughout RWWA’s wagering and racing businesses.

When taking these important issues into account, 2016 was a productive year, where RWWA has been able to provide the required leadership during very uncertain times for the organisation and its many stakeholders.

FINANCIAL PERFORMANCE

RWWA’s revenue from all sources was 1.2% below the prior year, largely resulting from a fall in wagering revenue from the TAB of $5.5M or 1.6%. Importantly, RWWA’s wagering activity measured by bet volumes was up 2.7% for the twelve months, however, bet value was down 4.7% contributing significantly to the revenue decline. This result is superior to many state economic trends such as consumer confidence, inflation and wages growth, both of which declined materially in 2016 as detailed in Charts 1 and 2 below.

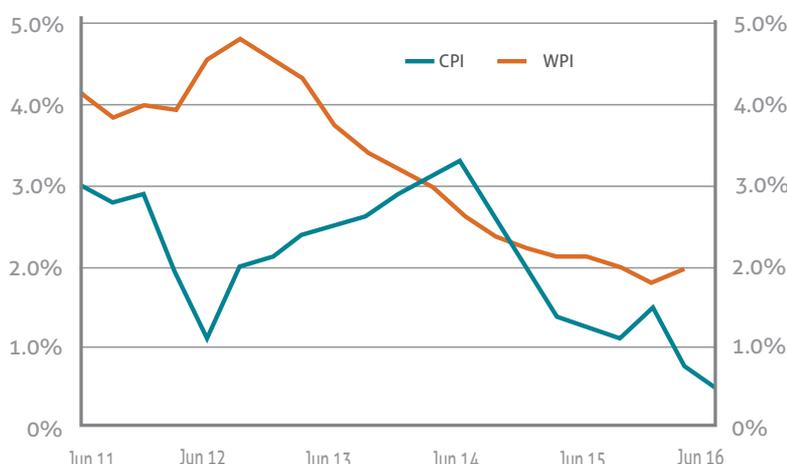

RWWA operating expenses, excluding direct funding to industry, increased by $8.9M or 3.5% for the year as a result of significant investment in wagering initiatives both on and off-course, together with increased investment in racing and integrity services to industry.

CHAPTER 1 / OVERVIEW

These expense increases complement RWWA's longer term strategic agenda ensuring the TAB remains competitive and as Western Australia's economic conditions improve, the organisation is well placed to generate growth in wagering revenues.

In addition, RWWA continues to invest in club infrastructure to improve the customer experience and assist clubs to increase income from on-course activities. Investment in drug testing was elevated in 2016 as was the commitment in new technology for on-course integrity systems, to provide greater visibility of racing competition for stewards.

All of RWWA's profit from operations in 2016 was distributed to racing and sports stakeholders. A further $9.1M was provided to race clubs for racing infrastructure grants - funded in part by RWWA's reserves - taking the total funding to racing and sports to $152M.

This record level of industry funding was made possible by RWWA's long term strategy of building cash reserves to manage key racing infrastructure projects such as those detailed later in this Report. In addition, the Western Australian Government through the Royalties for Regions and Racing Industry Grants Programs provided a further $1.28M to support metropolitan and regional race clubs.

RACING

2016 was a positive year for racing with record prizemoney levels provided to the three codes in Western Australia.

Key highlights from the year include the following Western Australian feature racing achievements:

Thoroughbreds

- Railway Stakes (Group One): won by Good Project; C Waller (trainer); C Williams (jockey); and C Cheong Lai (owner).
- Winterbottom Stakes (Group One): won by Buffering; R Heathcote (trainer); D Brown (jockey); and V Heathcote, S Krslovic, C Moore, R Ciobo, D Merola, C Lord, Crafty Racing Syndicate, Aspariamo Racing Syndicate and B Harry (owners).
- Kingston Town Classic (Group One): won by Perfect Reflection; G Williams (trainer); W Pike (jockey); and Peters Investments Pty Ltd Syndicate (owners).
- Perth Cup (Group Two): won by Delicacy; G Williams (trainer); P Hall (jockey); and Peters Investments Pty Ltd Syndicate (owners).
- WATC Derby (Group Two): won by Arcadia Dream; G Williams (trainer); W Pike (jockey); and Peters Investments Pty Ltd Syndicate (owners).
- Karrakatta Plate (Group Two): won by Whispering Brook; S Miller (trainer); P Knuckey (jockey); and A Macalister, B Macalister, K Wardle, C Macalister, R Lear (owners).

Harness

- Inter Dominion (Group One): won by Lennytheshark; D Aiken (trainer); C Alford (driver); and K and M Riseley (owners).
- Fremantle Pacing Cup (Group One): won by Beaudiene Boaz NZ; G Hall Snr (trainer); G Hall Jnr (driver); and B Richardson, G Moore, K Hall, G Ralston, M Walker, A Curran (owners).

- WA Pacing Cup (Group One): won by My Hard Copy NZ; G Hall Snr (trainer); C Hall (driver); and S Chapman, C Chapman and D Chapman (owners).
- WA Derby (Group One): won by Chicago Bull NZ; G Hall Snr (trainer); G Hall Jnr (driver); and B Richardson, G Richardson, G Moore, D Roberts, S Beven, S Simmonds (owners).
- WA Oaks (Group One): won by Dodolicious; G and S Bond (trainer); R Warwick (driver); and G Bond (owner).

Greyhound

- Perth Cup (Group One): won by Ima Wagtail; J Iwanyk (trainer); and N Burke (owner).
- Galaxy (Group One): won by Seeking Justice; K Harding (trainer); and Fast Track Racing Syndicate (owner).
- All Stars Sprint (Group Two): won by Tureaud; P Stuart (trainer/owner).

It is important to explain RWWA's decision to distribute funds totalling $152M in 2016 being $7M higher than the organisation's $145M profits from operations.

RWWA recognises the ongoing need to increase returns to participants in order to maintain a vibrant, sustainable industry. While geographically isolated from the rest of Australia and reliant on a smaller state population base from which to generate wagering income, racing in Western Australia is exposed nationally to competition for owner's investments in horses and greyhounds. This requires the application of competitive prizemoney levels against the Eastern States.

Western Australian racing has benefited to date through RWWA's capacity to protect it from economic and other headwinds such as those presently impacting the state. Recognising this need, RWWA consciously held back distributing the full extent of available profits over the past five years to have the capacity to meet the demand for assistance in more telling times.

Even with the increased funding, the thoroughbred and harness industries in particular, continue to suffer declines in breeding and foaling numbers as well as ownership. As a result of this fragile base, RWWA undertook a range of key long term racing initiatives throughout the year, including:

- Elevating the profile of the Group 1 Winterbottom Stakes and Kingston Town Classic races;
- Securing the Inter Dominion heats and final events to Western Australia from 2016-2018;
- Construction of the new Cannington greyhound facility to secure wagering income for all codes, and racing and trialling opportunities for greyhound participants;
- Introduction of 'Owners Only' to promote ownership across all sectors of racing;
- Relaunch of WA Country Cups to promote iconic regional racing events;
- Installation of large screen semaphore board and racewall technology at selected metropolitan and provincial venues to improve patron experience;
- Promotion of Western Australian thoroughbred and harness racing through new mass media marketing; and
- Supporting Western Australian race clubs with cooperative funding through Community TAB.

WAGERING

2016 was an intense year of wagering activity for the TAB. As a result of softening economic conditions in Western Australia, together with increased levels of competition from national operators, RWWA was required to invest significantly more in all areas of its wagering business to meet its core objectives of funding the racing industry and maintaining the long term value of the TAB licence.

During the year a new long-term retail agency agreement was finalised with TAB agents, better aligning the organisation's objectives with agents. The agreement that is now in place will promote account business in agencies and provide agents with the opportunity to generate recurring income from customer account turnover, irrespective of the customer's location.

Towards the end of 2016, RWWA together with Sky Racing, executed new arrangements for a range of key agreements, including media rights for all thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing (not including metropolitan thoroughbreds) and retail agency, on-course and digital streaming distribution. These agreements are important in underpinning the TAB's ability to generate revenues. As part of the new media rights arrangement, RWWA will for the first time receive income from national digital sales of competing wagering operators together with improved income from international wagering operators, betting on Western Australian racing product. This additional benefit will contribute to RWWA being able to provide increased funding to racing in 2017.

SIGNIFICANT ISSUES AND TRENDS

The matter of whether the Western Australian TAB will be privatised continued to test the efficiency and effectiveness of our wagering operations throughout the year. From our Board's perspective, this uncertainty cannot continue if we are to protect the value of the TAB and its ability to make returns for the racing industry, either as a continuing in-house operation or under the banner of a privatised entity.

The Western Australian Racing Representative Group (WARRG) and RWWA have progressed the discussion with Government to resolve this matter for the benefit of the State and the racing industry. It is fair to say that there are many moving parts to this complex matter.

WARRG as a representative group of the racing industry, should be complimented on the work that they have done to understand the complexities of the wagering operations, and to be in a position to adequately discuss options and the impacts of a privatisation scenario.

During the year, the New South Wales Government moved to ban greyhound racing in that State from July 2017, following adverse reports regarding animal welfare and in particular instances of live baiting on the eastern seaboard. At the time of publishing this Report, the NSW ban has been overturned on a conditional basis by the Baird Government. Whilst details of the ban and any revised framework for greyhound racing are not known at this stage, there is still the potential for a significant reduction in the amount of racing product available to TAB customers with likely challenges for accommodating unwanted greyhounds migrating from that State to other licensed jurisdictions.

RWWA is of the view that this decision may still impact the performance of the TAB given the significant support from Western Australian based customers for New South Wales based greyhound racing. Whilst there is likely to be some wagering substitution, it is likely that turnover may be adversely affected and as a result impact the Western Australian TAB's profitability in the shorter term.

The events leading up to the ban in New South Wales and subsequent conditional overturning are a timely reminder to all jurisdictions and racing codes of the importance of having and implementing appropriate codes of conduct and effective animal welfare strategies that ensure community support for its ongoing operation. Elsewhere in this Report we comment on the effectiveness of our animal welfare programs and an Integrity unit that is dedicated to ensuring compliance with our Rules of Racing.

Whether privatisation of the Western Australian TAB happens or not, there is a need for the government to recognise the need for tax parity with other major wagering States, so as to not hamstring the Western Australian

TAB in its endeavour to be competitive and to be able to generate a commensurate return to the racing bodies in this State as happens elsewhere. RWWA will be looking to achieve tax parity with Victoria and New South Wales as recommended in the Joint Standing Committee Report to the Western Australian Parliament of 2010.

Recently, the South Australian Government announced the introduction of a Point of Consumption Tax on wagering transactions to apply from mid-2017.

This is a significant issue for wagering operators and parties who receive financial benefit from the proceeds of wagering. RWWA is undertaking its own external review to understand the impact on the customer, the wagering competitive landscape at state and national levels and potential flow on effects such as product pricing and substitution.

In 2016 RWWA completed a review of the size and scope of the Western Australian racing industry. The findings from the report again highlight the important economic and social role racing plays in the State.

A summary of key highlights from the report include:

- The racing industry creates more than $821M in real gross value-added to the Western Australian economy;
- Racing generates total direct expenditure of $682.3M;
- More than 24,400 people participate in racing, with around 1 in every 79 people in Western Australia involved in racing;
- Over 8,000 people are directly employed in racing; and
- In excess of 823,000 people attend race meetings throughout the State.

RECOGNISING THE ORGANISATION

The racing industry is being challenged in these very uncertain times by many factors, some from within over which we have some influence and others that are simply global, demanding flexibility and ingenuity to prevail. It is against this background that our racing clubs and RWWA itself has had to adapt to ensure that our industry remains viable and sustainable for the longer term.

We would like to recognise the people within the industry at all levels who were contributors to the greatness of racing in the past year. Many of these people are volunteers at club level and deserve recognition for the many hours of toil without which our industry would falter.

Within RWWA, our CEO and executive leaders have been able to deliver outcomes which the Board views as outstanding given the current economic climate and increasing competition in the marketplace. Let me pay tribute to my fellow Directors who continue to give so much of their time in the interests of the racing industry and to Director Matthew Benson-Lidholm who stepped down from the RWWA Board at year's end.

INDUSTRY FUNDING

In the financial year 2015/16, RWWA contributed $152M in funding to the Western Australian racing and sporting industry, and $20.5M in funding towards its racing and integrity services, a total increase of $7.5M from the previous financial year. This significant increase was made possible by the WA TAB, the brand that funds the industry.

PURPOSE OF FUNDING

- Distributions: more than $136.2M of funding was distributed to the Western Australian racing industry as prize money, owners and breeders bonuses, participant payments, event fees and training services, as well as providing funding for initiatives such as the Australian Jockey Association and welfare initiatives
- Grants and Club Subsidies: RWWA has continued to assist clubs with infrastructure grants outside of the Racing Infrastructure Grants Program (RIGP) and Royalties for Regions (RFR) funding, with $12M provided to the Western Australian racing industry in 2015/16.
- Racing and Integrity Services: an additional $20.5M in funding was allocated to racing and integrity services to ensure the proper conduct and integrity of racing activities across the State.
- Community Sport: every year RWWA, through the profits generated by the TAB, invests a portion of sports wagering turnover back into community sports through the Sports Wagering Account with the Department of Sport and Recreation. A total of $4M was provided in 2015/16.

THE CONTINUAL INCREASE IN FUNDING REFLECTS RWWA'S WIDER STRATEGY TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF RACING PRODUCT, TRACK ATTENDANCE AND RELEVANCE OF WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING.

CHAPTER 1 / OVERVIEW

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING OVERVIEW

The Western Australian racing industry plays an important role in providing social and economic benefits to local communities, generating more than $821M in economic contribution to the State.

Furthermore, Western Australia has one of the biggest country racing precincts in the world, with 48 out of 51 race clubs located in regional areas and over 75% of race meetings conducted at country race tracks.

| REGIONS              | NUMBER OF RACE CLUBS | NUMBER OF RACE MEETINGS | REAL GROSS VALUE-ADDED* |

* Real gross value-added is the measure of the value of production from economic activity.

KEY WESTERN AUSTRALIAN RACING INDUSTRY FACTS

- The Western Australian racing industry generates more than $682.3M in direct expenditure, with more than half of expenditure occurring in regional areas.
- The training and preparation of racing animals results in more than $165M in expenditure.
- In excess of 823,000 racegoers attend thoroughbred, harness and greyhound race meetings in Western Australia each year; over 57% of these attendances occur at country racecourses, with Peel and the South West representing the largest regions.
- More than 24,400 individuals participate in the Western Australian racing industry (as an employee, participant or volunteer), which equates to approximately 1 in every 79 adult residents in the State.
- The economic activity generated by the racing industry sustains more than 7,360 full-time-equivalent positions in Western Australia.
- On average 260 community organisations and charities are financially assisted by the industry, and over 150 community organisations share race club facilities and resources.

OPERATIONAL STRUCTURE

ENABLING LEGISLATION

RWWA commenced operations on 1 August 2003 upon promulgation of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003. The Act established RWWA as the controlling authority for thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing in Western Australia, together with the responsibility for off-course TAB wagering. Implementation of RWWA's responsibilities occurred in two stages.

Effective 1 August 2003, RWWA assumed the principal club/controlling authority responsibilities of The Western Australian Turf Club, Western Australian Trotting Association and Western Australian Greyhound Racing Authority. On 30 January 2004, the Totalisator Agency Board Betting Act 1960 was repealed and RWWA assumed responsibility for the conduct of off-course TAB wagering. The Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 were enacted to establish key employee licensing procedures relating to RWWA's wagering activities, and to include those provisions of the Totalisator Agency Board (Betting) Regulations 1988 needed to control RWWA's wagering activities. To complement the formation of RWWA, the Betting Control Board, established under the Betting Control Act 1954, was abolished and its functions transferred to the Gaming Commission of Western Australia, which was re-titled the Gaming and Wagering Commission of Western Australia. Hence, the Gaming and Wagering Commission, under the Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987, now regulates RWWA's gambling activities.

As part of the legislative package to establish RWWA, the Totalisator Agency Board Betting Tax Act 1960 was repealed and replaced by the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003. The Racing Restriction Act 2003 replaced the Racing Restriction Act 1917. Under the Racing Restriction Act, no thoroughbred, harness or greyhound race for prize (exceeding $50 in value) or betting may be held without a licence from RWWA.

BOARD COMMITTEES

The RWWA Board has established committees to oversee various functions of the organisation and industry. These committees have delegated authority to perform certain functions and exercise powers of the Board. The formal committees of the Board, their terms of reference and membership are listed below:

INTEGRITY ASSURANCE COMMITTEE

The Integrity Assurance Committee (IAC) has primary oversight of those aspects of RWWA's functions that relate to stewards, drug testing and control, licensing and registration, handicapping, racing appeals, rules of racing and wagering compliance.

Committee members:

- Dr Lianne Cretney-Barnes (Chairman)
- Mr Anthony Hasluck
- Mrs Kirrilee Warr
- Mr Jeff Ovens (ex-officio)

REMUNERATION AND NOMINATION COMMITTEE

The Remuneration and Nomination Committee (RNC) oversees and reports on remuneration for the CEO, bonuses for staff and executive, allowances for committee members, and the nomination process for the recruitment, appointment and development of the Board and Committees, in accordance with its Charter.

Committee members:

- Mr Jeff Ovens (Chairman)
- Dr Lianne Cretney-Barnes
- Mr Robert Pearson

AUDIT AND RISK COMMITTEE

The Audit and Risk Committee (ARC) plays an important role in providing oversight of RWWA's values and ethics, governance, risk management and internal control practices. The ARC has oversight of the Internal Audit function. The ARC also reviews and approves the Annual Report.

Committee members:

- Mr Gary Gliddon (Chairman)
- Mr Jeff Ovens (ex-officio)
- Mr Anthony Hasluck
- Mr Michael Heath

CHAPTER 1 / OVERVIEW

STRATEGIC PRIORITIES

RWWA maintains a strong focus on the following strategic priorities over the medium and long-term in the context of achievement of the organisation's stated purpose:

1. Work with industry to increase the effectiveness and utilisation of racing assets;
2. Increase our share of the competitive wagering market through enhanced product and services;
3. Strengthen government relations and demonstrate the economic and social benefits of a positive and sustainable racing industry;
4. Improve the quality of racing product, track attendance and relevance of Western Australian racing through increasing stakes distribution and industry marketing and planning;
5. Implement strategies to demonstrate best practice in animal welfare, as well as the promotion and delivery of responsible wagering; and
6. Strengthen the integrity and welfare standards across Western Australian racing to ensure public confidence and support.

FUTURE OUTLOOK 2016/17

The following announcements form part of RWWA's wider strategy to increase the quality of racing product, track attendance and relevance of racing in Western Australia.

DISTRIBUTIONS - RECORD FUNDING BOOST

RWWA has approved a new racing season funding allocation of $146M for 2016/17; an increase of 5.3% from the previous year. Despite challenging economic conditions in Western Australia and a highly competitive wagering market, RWWA is committed to increasing racing industry funding by $7.6M across the three racing codes.

Of the $7.6M in distribution funding increase, $5.5M will be directed toward supporting race clubs across thoroughbreds, harness and greyhounds, with RWWA for the first time funding on course broadcast costs commencing from 1 August 2016.

In addition, RWWA has allocated a further $5.8M funding for race club infrastructure work, resulting in overall racing industry funding for 2016/17 of $151.8M.

THOROUGHBREDS - THREE $1M GROUP 1 FEATURE RACES

For the second year in a row, all Group 1 feature races in Western Australia will carry stakes of $1M. The $1M feature races will form part of the 2016 TABtouch Masters at Ascot and will include the Railway Stakes (1600m), Winterbottom Stakes (1200m) and Kingston Town Classic (1800m), which will be held on three consecutive Saturdays.

RWWA has also announced that during the 2016/17 racing season, three full metropolitan class Saturday meetings will be allocated to the Bunbury Turf Club and the Pinjarra Race Club, which will include the WA Magic Millions Race Day in February 2017.

HARNESS - RETURN OF THE TABTOUCH INTER DOMINION

The TABtouch Inter Dominion will once again return to Gloucester Park Harness Racing in November 2016, for the running of the second series of a three year tenure.

Known as Australasia's greatest harness racing event, the Inter Dominion Grand Final is worth $1.1M, making it the richest pacing race in Australasia, and the overall series is worth $1.8M in prize money.

The Inter Dominion forms part of RWWA's broader strategic vision to relaunch, revitalise and re-energise harness racing in Western Australia.

GREYHOUNDS - INCREASED GAP INVESTMENT

Implementing methods to demonstrate the best practice in animal welfare forms part of RWWA's overall strategic priorities. In 2016/17, RWWA will increase its investment in the Greyhounds as Pets (GAP) program to over $500K, with the aim to significantly increase the number of greyhounds being re-homed.

The investment includes the lease of a new GAP facility that will increase kennel capacity from 20 to 37 as well as continued employment of a dedicated Programme Coordinator, Kennel Manager and expanding the working hours of staff. In addition, the funding will assist with marketing and communications campaigns aimed at raising awareness about the GAP program and positioning greyhounds as the preferred breed of canine pets.

CHAPTER TWO. REPORT ON OPERATIONS

---

CHAPTER 2 / REPORT ON OPERATIONS

RACING

The Racing division is responsible for racing operations and the overall strategic direction of the racing industry in Western Australia. Responsibilities include fixture planning, racing systems and information maintenance, handicapping and grading, race programming, base and feature stakes allocations, domestic and international vision contracts, industry consultation, racing industry development, industry training, club and racing industry related occupational safety and health (OSH) and control of RWWA-owned animal industry training venues.

RWWA, as the Principal Racing Authority for the three codes of Racing in Western Australia, operates under the Racing and Wagering Western Australian Act 2003 but also applies National Rules of Racing for each code.

OPERATIONS AND DISTRIBUTION

The 2015/16 season provided 873 race meetings across the three codes of racing, featuring a total of 8,165 races contested by 73,565 starters. Of these, 7,558 individual animals raced including 3,846 thoroughbreds, 1,846 standardbreds and 1,866 greyhounds.

FUNDING FOR RACE CLUBS

In 2015/16, RWWA provided distribution funding as follows:

- One greyhound club (Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association (WAGRA)) racing at three venues (Cannington, Mandurah and Northam).
- Thirty-six thoroughbred clubs (including tenanted arrangements for Coolgardie Race Club at Kalgoorlie).
- Fourteen harness clubs (including tenanted arrangements for York Racing at Northam).
- Five harness training only venues - Byford, Dunbarton, Jandakot, Wanneroo and York*.
- Total distribution funding (in the form of event and training fees) provided to Western Australian racing clubs in 2015/16 amounted to $21.7M or 19% of total industry distributions.
- Total distributions to clubs excludes capital infrastructure funding, SKY broadcast associated costs, pooling fees and product fees.
- The source of funds for distributions is made up of RWWA profits/retained earnings, government grants and through Western Australian race fields legislation (under which all race fields income is passed to the Clubs).
- Capital infrastructure funding was sourced via the Racing Infrastructure Grants Program (RIGP), Royalties for Regions (RFR), Club and RWWA supplementary funding.

THOROUGHBRED RACING

Major thoroughbred racing activities in 2015/16:

- RWWA provided thoroughbred race clubs and participants with payments for stakes and subsidies of $65M.
- The Westspeed Scheme provided owners, breeders, trainers and riders with an additional $5.6M in bonuses.
- Race clubs conducted a total of 292 race meetings (including non-TAB meetings) and 2,233 races.
- The Western Australian thoroughbred race clubs paid a total of $59.2M in prize money, with 22,644 starters.
- There were 3,846 individual thoroughbreds that raced.
- The Magic Millions Yearling Sales recorded an aggregate for the premier sale of $10.4M and an average sale price for the premier sale of $41K. The clearance rate for this sale was 80%.
- RWWA commenced a project to migrate from the internal legacy thoroughbred racing computer system to the single national system administered by Racing Australia. This project is expected to be completed by June 2017.
- Toodyay Race Club conducted a race meeting in their own right for the first time since 2000 after operating under the auspices of the Northam Race Club in the interim period.

RACING CONT.

HARNESS RACING

Major harness racing activities in 2015/16:

- RWWA provided harness race clubs with base and feature stakes funding of $25.7M.
- RWWA paid out an additional $1.7M in Westbred bonuses.
- Race clubs conducted a total of 277 race meetings and 2,308 races, which provided 21,995 racing opportunities for 1,846 individual horses that raced.
- The 21,995 starters were trained by 437 individual trainers with 55 trainers having 100 or more starters for the year and 18 having 200 or more starters.
- A total of 234 Western Australian trained mares earned at least one of the EPONA bonuses, winning 491 races and generating $259K in credits. Three mares each earned the maximum credit amount of $5K and a total of $105K was paid out in claims to the owners of 56 mares.
- The Gloucester Standardbreds Yearling Sales recorded an aggregate for the sale of $1.3M and an average sale price for fillies of $14K and for colts $13K. The clearance rate for this sale was 81%.
- RWWA and Gloucester Park Harness Racing hosted the first of the Inter Dominion in Perth in December 2015. RWWA committed $1.8M for each year in stakes to host the event, making it the richest harness racing series in the world.

GREYHOUND RACING

Major greyhound racing activities in 2015/16:

- RWWA provided the WAGRA with base and feature stakes funding of $11.7M.
- The WESTCHASE Incentive Scheme paid out a new record of $835K in bonuses for the year.
- WAGRA conducted 3,624 races at 304 meetings, which provided 28,926 racing opportunities for 1,866 individual greyhounds.
- Consistent with RWWA's animal welfare policies, RWWA supports the re-homing of retired greyhounds through the Greyhounds as Pets (GAP) program, with a new facility leased to increase the re-homing capability of the program, along with other strategies to assist in the placement of these animals post racing.

- The RWWA Information Services division continues development of OzChase, the joint venture greyhound racing system designed, built, hosted and maintained in Western Australia for use by the two joint venture partners, RWWA and Greyhound Racing New South Wales (GRNSW). All Australian states and territories apart from Victoria are now fully operational on the OzChase platform.
- The new Cannington facility opened on 23 March 2016. RWWA invested significantly in the new facility, reaffirming the commitment to metropolitan racing for the greyhound code in this State.

INDUSTRY TRAINING HIGHLIGHTS

Major industry training highlights in 2015/16:

- Four apprentice jockeys commenced, with two graduating into senior ranks during the year.
- RWWA again supported the National Apprentice Jockey Challenge, with a heat being held at Ascot in April, which was won by local apprentice Sarah Bonner, riding her first metropolitan winner. Western Australian apprentices rode in each heat, represented by Clint Johnston-Porter, Jake Casey, Randy Tan and Jordan Turner. Western Australia won the series for the first time.
- Eight new C grade harness drivers (trials only) commenced during the season.
- Nine drivers progressed to B grade drivers' licences during the period.
- The Garrard's Young Drivers Challenge was won by Stewart McDonald, resulting in him representing Western Australia in the New South Wales Rising Stars Series, where he finished second.

CHAPTER 2 / REPORT ON OPERATIONS

INFRASTRUCTURE GRANTS

RACECOURSE INFRASTRUCTURE GRANTS PROGRAM (RIGP) AND ROYALTIES FOR REGIONS

In July 2010, the Western Australian State Government announced a $13M funding program over five years toward racing infrastructure. The Western Australian State Government also approved boost funding from Royalties for Regions (RFR) of $6.6M in November 2012, increasing infrastructure grant funding to the racing industry to $19.6M during the period 2010/11 - 2014/15.

RWWA administers the Racecourse Infrastructure Grants Program (RIGP) for the Minister for Racing and Gaming. During 2015/16 financial year outstanding projects were progressed towards completion, with no additional Government funding or grants approved by the Minister.

RIGP/RFR Funding Allocated by RWWA

|             | 2015/16 | Since 2010/11 |
|-------------|---------|---------------|
| RIGP Grants | $0.00M | $13.0M       |
| RFR Boost   | $0.00M | $6.6M        |

Major projects with approved RIGP/RFR funding that commenced works during the year include the following. These projects will be completed in 2016/17:

- Pinjarra Harness Racing Club - Race day stalls development ($1.0M)
- Pinjarra Race Club - Video Vision & Semaphore Board ($348K)
- Bunbury Turf Club - Video Vision & Semaphore Board ($348K)
- Kalgoorlie-Boulder Race Club - Video Vision & Semaphore Board ($360K)

MAJOR RWWA FUNDED GRANTS

Cannington Greyhounds New Facility

The new Cannington greyhound racing facility commenced operation in March 2016. RWWA provided a further $5.3M in 2015/16 towards the completion of the project, totalling $16M, to ensure the longevity of metropolitan greyhound racing in this State.

Other RWWA funded projects for 2015/16:

- Bunbury Harness Vision Screen ($373K)
- Ascot Racecourse Drainage ($290K)

Gloucester Park Refurbishment

The patron facilities refurbishment works at Gloucester Park were completed. The $1.6M investment was to maximise the utilisation of the venue for race nights as well as non-race night functions and events.

Belmont Park Irrigation

The RWWA Board committed to $1.7M of funding for the Belmont Park irrigation replacement in 2015/16. These works will be undertaken at the conclusion of the Belmont Park season and will conclude in the 2016/17 fiscal year.

ANIMAL WELFARE

Animal welfare is a critical element of the RWWA racing strategy. The quality of racing within Western Australia is dependent on many factors but at the forefront is the welfare of its horses and greyhounds.

Animal welfare legislation, and the rules and policies that racing authorities enforce, underpin the successful regulation of welfare in racing.

RESEARCH AND EDUCATION

RWWA has formed a research partnership with Murdoch University and has contributed toward the funding of a three year research project examining Exercise Induced Pulmonary Hemorrhage (EIPH) in horses, specifically aimed at further understanding mitigating factors that could be managed to improve safety, welfare and durability of racehorses. This project is entering its final phase with one scientific paper already published in the Equine Veterinary Journal (July 2016) and a second paper, following a longitudinal study of EIPH in a large group of Western Australian horses, likely to be accepted for publication next year.

OFF THE TRACK PROGRAM FOR RETIRED RACEHORSES

RWWA's Off the Track program continues to be an active voice within the racing and equestrian industries, positioning retired racehorses as the preferred choice for equestrian disciplines and other pursuits. The program's activities increase the demand for and support the placement of retired thoroughbred and standardbred racehorses in second careers via sponsoring of events, sharing success stories, promoting re-trainers and re-homing services, and holding education clinics for horses off the track. The program is widely recognised in the equestrian community as being a conduit for the successful transition of horses from the race track to alternative pursuits.

Now in its third year of operation, Off the Track has supported the equestrian community through the sponsorship of more than 200 equestrian events, including horse shows in which over 6,000 retired racehorses have competed, and hosted Education Clinics.

Education Clinics

Quarterly Off the Track horse and rider education clinics were held, with a total of 287 attendees and their retired thoroughbred and standardbred racehorses. Clinics are open to those riders and owners needing assistance with educating and extending the training of their retired racehorses. The clinics employ some of Western Australia's most popular, qualified and competent coaches. Hosting regular education clinics is essential to assist equestrian riders to transition their newly retired racehorses to a second career after racing, thus improving the success rate of these transfers and increasing the horses' value, health and abilities post racing. These education clinics are held with the generous support of program partners Touchstone Farms, Thompson and Redwood, Biojohn Superstore, Mitavite and Glenroy Hay.

I JUST WANTED TO SAY THANK YOU SO MUCH FOR ORGANISING THE OFF THE TRACK CLINICS. A YEAR AGO I CAME TO MY FIRST ONE AND COULDN'T EVEN RIDE BECAUSE MY HORSE WAS REARING VERTICALLY AND I JUST DID A GROUND WORK LESSON. NOW SINCE COMING TO EVERY ONE SINCE, "EMKAY" IS GOING SO WELL. TODAY I DID MY FIRST CROSS COUNTRY LESSON ON HER. SHE WAS AWESOME, SHE TRIED SO HARD AND WE BOTH HAD THE BEST TIME! THANK YOU FOR ALL YOUR HARD WORK THAT I KNOW MUST GO INTO EVERY CLINIC YOU PUT ON. I JUST WANTED TO LET YOU KNOW HOW MUCH I APPRECIATE IT.

School Visits

During 2015/16, Off the Track commenced with the planning and development of a new strategy involving school visits, which aims to educate students and the school community on the options available to retired racehorses in second careers post racing.

The first school visit took place at Alkimos Primary School on 10 August 2016, in conjunction with the Victoria Racing Club's Melbourne Cup Tour. The visit featured guest appearances by former stars, Scenic Shot, who competed in the 2007 Melbourne Cup, and Western Australian Hall of Fame Inductee, Scenic Blast. Each classroom received a visit from an Off the Track representative where they were shown a presentation and video regarding the program, as well as memorabilia of both horses. Each student also received an Off the Track show bag, which included merchandise and a Scenic Blast book.

SHOWMAN DAY

A one day event was organised and held by Off the Track on 10 July 2016, at Brookleigh, where 86 off the track horses and their riders participated in dressage, show jumping and in hand showing.

LATEST THOROUGHBRED RETIREMENT STATISTICS

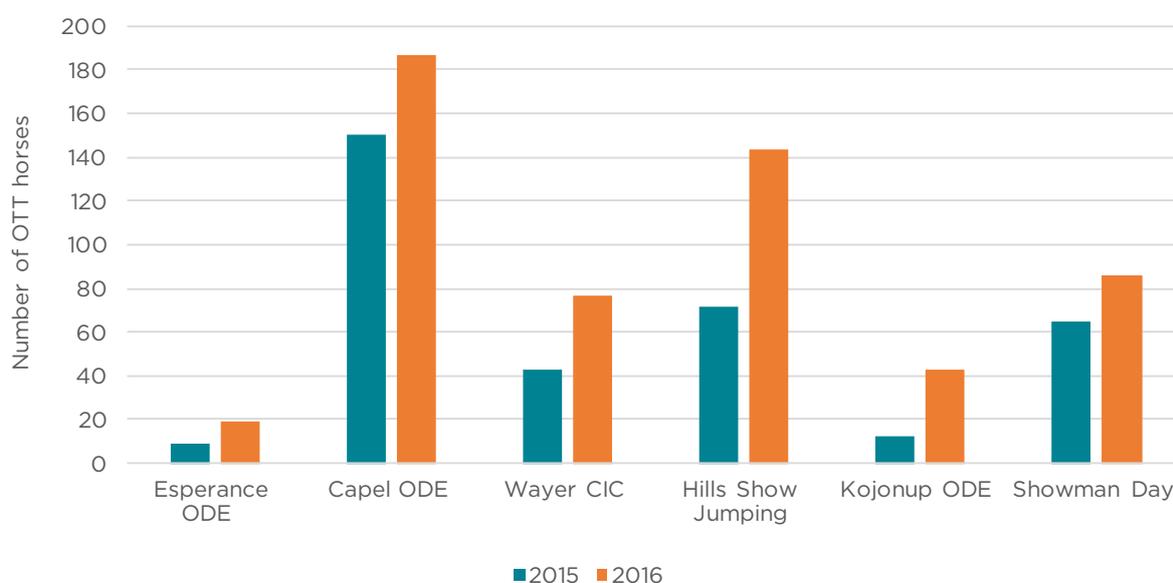

Recent statistics collected by RISA from the now mandatory thoroughbred 'Retirement of Racehorses Notification Form' indicate that over 68% of retired thoroughbred racehorses are sold or gifted as pleasure, performance, working or companion horses, which demonstrates that there is a high demand for thoroughbreds for equestrian disciplines and other pursuits post racing.

As of 1 September 2016, it will also be mandatory for all standardbred owners to complete a Retirement of Racehorse Notification Form upon the retirement of any standardbred racehorse.

Sonja Johnson and "Bullionaire" Selected for Rio Olympic Eventing Squad

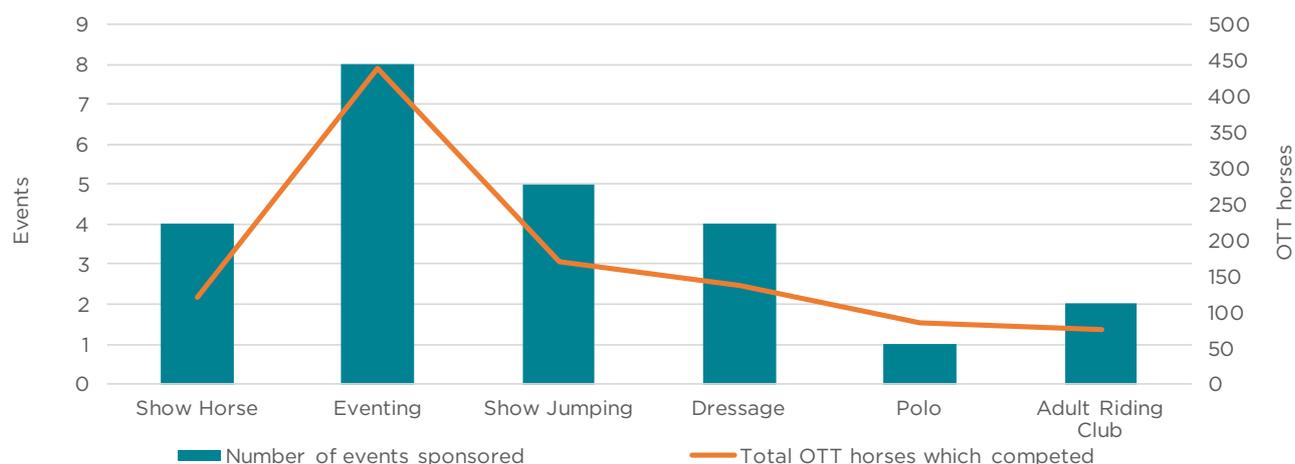

A video has been produced for the RWWA website showcasing Sonja Johnson's efforts in qualifying for the Rio Olympics eventing squad with her Western Australian retired thoroughbred racehorse "Bullionaire" (competition name "Parkiarrup Illicit Liaison").

GREYHOUND WELFARE

In 2015/16, RWWA has continued to adopt initiatives within the Greyhounds Australasia National Animal Welfare Strategy and the RWWA Holistic Greyhound Welfare Strategy.

The RWWA Holistic Greyhound Welfare Strategy looks at all stages of a greyhound's life and documents the disciplines and controls required around these stages.

The overarching mission statement of this welfare strategy is:

RWWA is committed to ensuring that the best levels of care are given to greyhounds throughout all stages of their lives, through a program of investment, education, monitoring and regulation. When a greyhound retires from the racing industry, at any age, RWWA will aim to have every healthy and behaviourally sound greyhound re-homed.

The central disciplines that make up the RWWA Holistic Greyhound Welfare Strategy include:

- Controlling supply via greyhound breeding controls;
- Increasing demand for greyhounds as pets;
- Increased resourcing of the industry Greyhounds as Pets program;
- Educating the industry;
- Monitoring performance against key metrics;

- Tracking of all greyhounds at every stage of their life cycle;
- Policing of the industry; and
- Overarching governance to ensure that the animal welfare strategy is applied across all stages of animals' lives.

Key Achievements in 2015/16:

- A RWWA and RSPCA working party convened, aimed at further developing minimum standards for the keeping of greyhounds through an industry adopted and controlling body enforced code of practice.
- RWWA greyhound stewards have continued to be active both in lifecycle and tracking retirements of greyhounds through auditing industry compliance with the submission of mandatory Rule 106 retirement forms.
- RWWA's greyhound stewards conducted 257 individual kennel and property inspections.
- A continuing education seminar for veterinarians with an interest in greyhound medicine and surgery was sponsored by RWWA and held in conjunction with the Australian Veterinary Association in June 2016. Guest lecturer from Victoria, renowned greyhound veterinarian Dr. Ray Ferguson, was present to deliver lectures on the day to 30 veterinarians on what was a very well attended and educational day.

GREYHOUNDS AS PETS

Greyhound as Pets (GAP) is expanding and undergoing a series of changes with the goal of positioning the program as the peak re-homing body for retired greyhounds in Western Australia.

GAP remains passionate about promoting and facilitating greyhound pet ownership to the community through the provision of safe, healthy greyhounds to homes throughout Western Australia.

Key Achievements in 2015/16:

- Transitioning to a new kennel facility taking the number of kennels available from 20 to 37. The new kennels are purpose built for greyhounds and boast state of the art facilities including an automated dog walker, temperature controlled kennels and large runs and training pens. From this facility, GAP will run training sessions for foster carers and large scale adoption days. GAP will also introduce a community volunteer program in the 2016/17 period.
- Increased number of adoptions over previous years. In the 2015/16 period, 121 greyhounds were adopted through the GAP program. Every greyhound adopted through GAP has passed the National Temperament Testing Assessment and is exempt from wearing a muzzle in public. Additionally, all greyhounds re-homed through GAP have completed a four week foster period to get used to living in a home environment, are sterilized, wormed, vaccinated and microchipped.
- Employment of a GAP Team Leader to manage the internal processes of the program and increase marketing initiatives and opportunities.
- Attendance at community events including the Perth Royal Show, Million Paws Walk, WA Sighthound Club, Perth Pet Expo and various adoption days.

RACING INTEGRITY

The integrity of the Western Australian racing industry remains paramount to the long term sustainability and viability of the industry. The confidence of stakeholders, participants and those that support the racing industry through their wagering on the outcome of events is inextricably linked to the need to manifestly maintain a level playing field for all.

The objective of the Racing Integrity division is to maintain a level playing field for racing participants through the promotion of integrity, ethics and fair play with the view of preventing all methods or practices which might jeopardise the integrity of racing.

INTEGRITY STRATEGIC PLAN

RWWA is currently well advanced in the execution of its Integrity Strategic Plan, as approved by the RWWA Board, to deliver the highest levels of confidence in the integrity of Western Australian racing product. This is achieved through the application of modern and effective approaches to stewarding and industry regulation.

This has included the acquisition of enhanced vision technology systems for use by racing Stewards in the assessment of races. The Hawkeye® system that has been implemented in the metropolitan area for thoroughbreds is being progressively rolled out to the major provincial areas in the forthcoming year including some harness venues. This technology, which has also been adopted by other national and international racing jurisdictions in recent times, provides a valuable tool to ensure transparency and confidence in racing decisions.

The investigation department has undergone structural and staffing changes to ensure it is positioned to effectively meet the increasing demands associated with non-race day integrity functions, including inspections, compliance, investigation, testing and other key duties. RWWA's exceptional rates of very few prohibited substances being detected in racing animals is greatly aided by the level of system controls, such as the use of security personnel for key feature races who attend trainer's premises in the period prior to racing, and vigilance of all integrity personnel. Multiskilling of personnel and establishment of cross coding of investigators across the three racing codes, combined with increased resources to drive expanded out-of-competition testing strategies, ensures greater levels of focus and activity across all codes. The expanded rates of stable and kennel inspections not only increase visibility and presence throughout the industry, but also ensures compliance with various rules concerning possession of substances.

In accordance with the Strategic Plan, as part of professional development of integrity staff, RWWA Stewards and Integrity Officers have participated in various exchange programs with other jurisdictions, both formal and informal, whereby they have officiated with other panels or those of other jurisdictions have joined the Western Australian panels. This has included the attendance of Senior Victorian Harness Stewards for the Perth Inter Dominion finals to work with the Western Australian Stewards. Also, RWWA integrity staff were again invited to officiate at the Darwin Cup carnival. This hands-on collaboration with experienced integrity regulators from other jurisdictions is planned to continue to foster future development and knowledge of Western Australian Stewards.

INTEGRITY ASSURANCE COMMITTEE INTERNAL AUDIT

As part of the RWWA 2015/16 Internal Audit Plan, Ernst and Young completed an internal audit of the Governance of the Integrity Assurance Committee (IAC).

The objective of this engagement was to understand and assess the effectiveness of the structure, processes and key controls in place in order for the IAC to discharge its duties.

CHAPTER 2 / REPORT ON OPERATIONS

Through the performance of this internal audit, including conducting a survey of IAC members, the internal audit identified the following:

- No instances of non-compliance with the RWWA Act and the IAC Charter;
- No significant weaknesses in the design effectiveness of the IAC Charter, which provides the governance framework that articulates the operations of the IAC and its supporting processes; and
- No significant weaknesses in the operating effectiveness of key reporting processes provided by management to the IAC.

The findings and associated recommendations identified in the internal audit, to further strengthen the formality of processes and better enable the IAC to discharge its duties, will be implemented by management in 2016/17.

GREYHOUND RACING INTEGRITY

In light of events occurring in relation to greyhound racing in some Australian states, in October 2015 RWWA reported the outcomes of an extensive investigation into the Western Australian greyhound industry, code-named Operation QUATRO. This investigation commenced in February 2015 in co-operation with RSPCA WA and was targeted toward identifying or investigating any matters relating to live baiting and training of greyhounds in Western Australia.

The investigation formed part of the integrity department's overall review of the Western Australian greyhound racing industry and adoption of more stringent rules, increased mandatory penalties, greater covert surveillance activities (including installation of surveillance cameras at the Northam venue), and increased rates of inspection.

In the joint media release issued in October 2015, both the RSPCA WA and RWWA advised that comprehensive investigations had not uncovered any evidence that would support accusations of live baiting being conducted or practiced in Western Australia.

Various operational and regulatory initiatives have also been implemented in alignment with the National Greyhound Welfare strategies to ensure Western Australia's strong control of the greyhound industry is maintained to the highest standards. In this regard RWWA is well advanced in the implementation of various planned controls across the life cycle of greyhounds, designed to holistically manage the supply of greyhounds for racing and all activities thereafter. Whilst the Western Australian greyhound racing industry is significantly smaller than that of most other states, the Stewards remain focused and vigilant in maintaining the strict controls of the industry.

PROHIBITED SUBSTANCE CONTROL

Critical to the future deployment of resources is the important investment in drug testing. This represents a significant investment for RWWA, which has grown in reflection of the increased challenges in sporting drug control, particularly racing. Some $1.3M has been expended for analytical service costs and other related costs. In recent years the emergence of new threats to integrity, such as cobalt, has demanded greater focus and investment in appropriate control measures.

RWWA has maintained its scale of drug analysis across all codes of racing. This has included the additional screening for arsenic and cobalt of which over 1,000 samples were screened throughout the year. Pleasingly, although RWWA maintains one of the highest rates of testing in Australia, the rates of positives continue to be well below that of other commensurate jurisdictions. The scope of sampling combined with a strong approach to penalties for breaches of associated rules is central to maintaining these good records.

As part of the Integrity Strategic Plan a review of RWWA's existing laboratory arrangements for its human and animal drug analysis was completed.

RACING INTEGRITY CONT.

Renowned racing analyst Dr John Vine (former Manager of Racing Analytical Services Ltd - Victoria) was engaged to conduct this review with the scope of this investigation, including:

- Depth and breadth of screening technologies utilised for routine screens;
- Arrangements in relation to the application of potentially available screening methods or techniques with respect to standard screening processes of samples to ensure sufficient coverage of potential prohibited substances;
- Comparative benchmarking of the ChemCentre versus other racing laboratories in terms of its ability to screen for prohibited substances as defined by the Rules of Racing;
- Effectiveness of Out of Competition (OOC) sample screening methods and processes (for banned substances); and
- Long term storage arrangements for samples, in particular in relation to re-analysis of samples identified by RWWA.

The outcomes of this review will be considered by the RWWA IAC to identify any future requirements and improvements that can be pursued.

Statistics for 2015/16 across the three codes are as follows:

| Thoroughbred | Samples | Positives |
|---------------------|----------------|------------------|
| Post Race           | 2,019          | 5                |

CHAPTER 2 / REPORT ON OPERATIONS

RACING MARKETING AND COMMUNICATIONS

The Racing Marketing and Communications division comprises the racing marketing, corporate communications and TABradio teams. The division is responsible for managing corporate communications, promoting RWWA's key objectives through its media assets, and developing and implementing racing marketing plans aimed at:

- Increasing on-course attendance;
- Promoting animal ownership;
- Repositioning the brand of racing; and
- Championing our animals.

The Racing Marketing Strategy requires strong stakeholder engagement across the racing industry. Ensuring the local industry has a role to play in the process is critical to the overall success of the division's objectives.

Key Achievements in 2015/16:

- Commenced new racing marketing campaigns for thoroughbreds, 'For the Love of Racing' and harness, 'Harness the Rhythm'.
- Expansion of the WA Country Cups brand, including:
  - Showcasing the Regions; and
  - Launch of the WA Country Cups Fashions on the Field competition in March 2016.
- Expansion of Owners Only into harness racing May 2016.
- Refresh of the RWWA website in November 2015.

RACING MARKETING CAMPAIGNS

Late 2015 saw the commencement of two new racing branding campaigns specific to thoroughbred and harness racing. Industry feedback was sought in April 2015 with the findings and resulting concepts identified at the Racing Symposium in June 2015, under the direction of marketing agency 303Lowe. The objective of the campaign is to reposition racing to a broader market, highlighting the social and entertainment characteristics of the industry. It is anticipated that a carefully targeted and thorough campaign outreach will lead to increases in participation.

For the Love of Racing

The feedback received from the thoroughbred industry provided a clear direction for the code's marketing campaign, which was to:

- Celebrate the 'theatre', magic and emotion of racing;
- Tell the real stories of racing and celebrate our heroes;
- Foster the passion and energy in the racing experience and take it to a broader audience;
- Create a relevant, engaging, social experience for a younger audience; and
- Excite industry and community.

After the June 2015 Symposium, RWWA worked with 303Lowe to bring a thoroughbred campaign aimed at promoting the Western Australian thoroughbred racing industry called 'For the Love of Racing'.

The campaign launched on 4 October 2015 via social and digital media, outdoor signage and television commercials.

The photography and footage for the campaign was shot locally in Western Australia, with the support of many industry members and RWWA staff.

A Channel Seven broadcast, covering three hours over Super Saturday and Kingston Town Classic Day at Ascot, complemented the 'For the Love of Racing' campaign, and provided content optimisation and advertising maximisation.

Harness the Rhythm

The feedback received from industry workshops and surveys also provided a distinct direction for the harness marketing campaign, which was to:

- Invite everyone to experience the fun, excitement and entertainment of harness racing;
- Showcase the vibrant social atmosphere that offers something for everyone;
- Educate and engage a bigger and younger audience in the professionalism of the sport itself;

- Celebrate the heroes – our trainers and drivers;
- Invite the audience to get to know them; and
- Position harness racing as a uniquely fun and rewarding social experience.

RWWA worked with 303Lowe to bring together 'Harness the Rhythm', a campaign aimed at promoting the Western Australian harness racing industry.

The supporting objectives in elevating it to a television commercial were as follows:

- Build the profile of harness racing;
- Instil confidence within industry; and
- Encourage participation to broader audiences.

The campaign was launched on 13 March 2016 via social and digital media, and television commercials on Channel Seven and GWN7.

OWNERS ONLY

Owners Only, RWWA's dedicated ownership program, is designed to recognise and reward current Western Australian racing animal owners, with the ultimate intention to attract new participants to the industry. Throughout the 2015/16 season, Owners Only expanded its presence into the harness code, providing networking opportunities through race day and non-race day functions and consistent communication to harness owners. Some of the functions Owners Only facilitated across both equine codes included:

- Inaugural Ownership Expo, incorporating the Magic Millions Barrier Draw;
- Pop-up lounges on race day;
- Trackwork and trial breakfasts;
- Winners merchandise gifts for winning connections;
- Non-race day competitions; and
- Consistent email communications.

A survey was distributed in January 2016 as a means to measure the effectiveness of Owners Only after twelve months in operation. The survey provided vital feedback, in regards to:

- Brand Recognition - over 70% of owners surveyed had heard of Owners Only;
- Ambassadors - 99% of owners surveyed recognised Dean Cox and Rick Hart as the Owners Only ambassadors;
- Industry Advocacy - many responses indicated that Owners Only is having a positive impact, and that there is a need for the initiative to have a continued presence throughout the Western Australian racing industry;
- Perceived Influence - over 70% of current owners show inclination to re-invest in racehorse ownership; and
- Functions and Competitions - owners provided information regarding which functions and competitions they prefer to have access to.

WA COUNTRY CUPS

WA Country Cups is an initiative by RWWA to foster the development and promote the longevity of country racing across the State. WA Country Cups works with regional race clubs and local communities to further promote their major race meetings, to showcase not only the race events themselves, but also local tourism and fashion.

SHOWCASING THE REGIONS

RWWA via WA Country Cups aims to further promote and enhance the country racing 'experience' by not only showcasing major race events, but also showcasing tourist attributes of the region (e.g. local attractions, local produce and landmarks), and using these celebrated racing events as a focal point. Promoting local tourism will help attract visitors outside of the regions to attend major race meetings, and also encourage visitors to consider major race days as an opportunity to plan a 'unique racing holiday' that incorporates other local activities outside of the race day.

As part of this, RWWA has started to produce promotional videos for each region, which feature the nominated race days and their surrounding local attractions. The videos are presented in a way that makes them 'timeless'.

Key benefits for producing the videos include:

- Producing valuable promotional tools that can be used at liberty by the featured race clubs, local businesses, tourism providers and entities, and local and state government; and
- Showcasing local racing identities, who are entrenched in their regional racing communities, discovering the history and background of racing in remote regions through their eyes.

In 2015/16, 'Showcasing the Regions' promotional videos were produced for the following regions and their subsequent areas:

- Kimberley – Derby and Broome;
- Pilbara – Port Hedland and Marble Bar;
- Wheatbelt – Northam and Toodyay; and
- Goldfields – Leonora and Kalgoorlie.

WA COUNTRY CUPS FASHIONS ON THE FIELD

In March 2016, RWWA, incorporating WA Country Cups and Community TAB, announced the WA Country Cups Fashions on the Field initiative.

The initiative is a state-wide racing fashion competition, consisting of nine regional heats held at major race meetings across the State, culminating in a Final at Ascot Racecourse on 26 November 2016, for a $25,000 Racing Holiday and Spending Spree in Hong Kong.

In addition to the nine nominated regional heats, any winner of a Western Australian regional Fashions on the Field competition, is able to enter into an online 'Wildcard Competition'. The three entrants with the most votes will also be invited to Ascot where one of the top three will be selected to join the regional heat finalists in the Final.

In July 2016, proclaimed Western Australian model and avid horseracing lover, Holly Young, was unveiled as the official ambassador for the WA Country Cup Fashions on the Field.
