

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

IN THE AUSTRALIAN COMPETITION TRIBUNAL

ACT

of 2017

Re: Proposed acquisition of Tatts Group Limited by Tabcorp Holdings Limited

Tabcorp Holdings Limited (Applicant)

Statement of: David Attenborough

Address: 5 Bowen Crescent, Melbourne VIC 3004

Occupation: Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer

Date: 8 March 2017

The document contains confidential information which is indicated as follows:

[Confidential to Tabcorp] [.....]

[HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [.....]

---

Filed on behalf of Tabcorp Holdings Limited (Applicant)

Prepared by Grant Marjoribanks

Herbert Smith Freehills

Tel (02) 9225 5517

Email grant.marjoribanks@hsf.com

Address for service

Level 34

161 Castlereagh Street

Sydney NSW 2000

AUSTRALIA

Fax (02) 9322 4000

Ref 82602332

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

Contents

|      |   |    |
|------|---|----|
| A.   | INTRODUCTION.....   | 3  |
| A.1. | My experience and employment history .....                          | 3  |
| A.2. | Overview of the Australian gambling industry.....                   | 4  |
| B.   | OVERVIEW OF TABCORP .....   | 5  |
| B.1. | Structure of Tabcorp’s operations.....                              | 5  |
| B.2. | Tabcorp’s management structure .....                                | 8  |
| B.3. | Tabcorp’s recent operational and financial performance .....        | 9  |
| C.   | TABCORP PROPOSAL TO ACQUIRE TATTS.....                              | 10 |
| C.1. | Wagering industry trends.....                                       | 10 |
| C.2. | Tabcorp’s outlook.....  | 12 |
| C.3. | Previous discussions regarding proposed Tabcorp / Tatts merger..... | 12 |
| C.4. | The proposed transaction .....                                      | 12 |
| C.5. | Expected profile of the merged entity .....                         | 13 |
| C.6. | Tabcorp’s rationale for the proposed transaction.....               | 16 |
| C.7. | Anticipated cost savings and revenue increases .....                | 17 |
| C.8. | Enhanced customer experience .....                                  | 18 |
| C.9. | Strengthening of the racing industry .....                          | 19 |
| D.   | POTENTIAL WA TAB PRIVATISATION .....                                | 20 |
| D.1. | Potential WA TAB privatisation .....                                | 20 |
| D.2. | Tabcorp’s views on WA TAB .....                                     | 24 |
| D.3. | [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED] .....            | 24 |
| D.4. | [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED] .....            | 25 |
| D.5. | [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED] .....            | 26 |
| D.6. | [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED] .....            | 28 |
| D.7. | Implications for Tabcorp.....                                       | 35 |
| E.   | POTENTIAL FUTURE WAGERING INDUSTRY TRENDS .....                     | 36 |
| E.1. | Changes in wagering industry and future trends .....                | 36 |
| E.2. | [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED] .....            | 39 |

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed*A. INTRODUCTION

1. I am the Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of Tabcorp Holdings Limited (Tabcorp) and I am authorised to make this statement on Tabcorp's behalf.
2. Exhibited to me at the time of signing this statement and marked "Exhibit DA-1" is a bundle of documents. Exhibited to me at the time of signing this statement is one further bundle of documents marked "Highly Confidential Exhibit DA-2". Where in this statement I refer to tabs in DA-1 or DA-2, I am referring to the tabs of Exhibit DA-1 and Highly Confidential Exhibit DA-2 respectively. I also refer to documents by reference to their unique document number beginning with a "TBP" prefix. I have reviewed the documents I have referred to prior to signing this statement. Tabcorp claims confidentiality over Highly Confidential Exhibit DA-2.
3. The matters set out in this statement are based on my knowledge of Tabcorp's operations, my participation on the board of Tabcorp (Board), my participation in the Senior Executive Leadership Team, my involvement with Tabcorp's business and my experience in the gambling and wagering industries for over 25 years, which I set out in Part A.1 below. As Managing Director and CEO of Tabcorp it is my job to know and understand all aspects of its business. Although I am not involved in the day to day operations of the business divisions, I am involved in setting overall strategies and agendas across the business. I expect those who report to me (directly or indirectly) to raise with me issues and developments that are material to Tabcorp's business and I regularly communicate with them regarding such matters.

A.1. My experience and employment history

4. I have been employed by Tabcorp since April 2010 when I was appointed as Managing Director of Tabcorp's wagering division, which included the TAB, TAB Sportsbet, Luxbet and Sky Media businesses. I held that position until my promotion to Managing Director and CEO on 15 June 2011.
5. I have had over 25 years' experience in the wagering and gambling industry, in Australia, England and South Africa.
6. Prior to joining Tabcorp:
  - (a) I was employed by Phumelela Gaming and Leisure Limited (PGLL), South Africa's leading wagering operator, from October 2003 to February 2010. I was initially employed at PGLL as the head of wagering before being promoted to Chief Operating Officer in 2004 and then to CEO (South Africa) in 2008; and

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (b) I held various positions within Ladbrokes (formerly part of the Hilton Group Plc) from 1990 to 2002, where I was responsible initially for running the United Kingdom licensing and development for the bookmaking business, and then the development of casino and gaming opportunities internationally from 1995. In those roles I was based in the United Kingdom and South Africa.
- 7. I hold a Bachelor of Science (Honours) from the University of Exeter and a Master of Business Administration from the Henley Business School.
- 8. I am a member of the Australian Institute of Company Directors and a director of the Australasian Gaming Council.

A.2. Overview of the Australian gambling industry

- 9. Gambling is the placement of a wager or bet on the outcome of a future uncertain event. The primary legal forms of gambling in Australia are:
  - (a) Wagering, or betting, involving staking money on the outcome of a contest or of an event occurring or not occurring. The principal events on which wagering is conducted are racing (thoroughbred, harness and greyhound) and sports. The types of wagering in Australia include:
    - i. totalisator (or 'pari-mutuel') wagering, in which all bets are consolidated into a totalisator pool and final odds are not calculated until after the close of betting on the relevant event. The totalisator operator deducts from the totalisator pool a predetermined percentage as a 'commission' or 'take out rate' and the remainder of the dividend pool is distributed to the winning customers. The current totalisator operators in Australia are TAB (Tabcorp), UBET (Tatts) and WA TAB (Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWAA));
    - ii. tote derivative wagering, a derivative of totalisator wagering whereby corporate bookmakers synthetically create products that offer payout odds which are set by reference to the final dividend paid by one or more totalisators;
    - iii. fixed odds wagering, in which odds are fixed for each customer at the time their bet is placed, although customers who bet on the same outcome at different times will not necessarily receive the same odds due to adjustment of the odds by the wagering operator. The operator's revenue in fixed odds wagering depends on the outcome of the event, its management of the book of bets and the extent to which bets are placed with another wagering operator so as to spread the risk of the loss; and

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- iv. betting exchanges, which allow customers to wager directly against each other at agreed fixed odds, instead of betting with a totalisator or bookmaker. The betting exchange operator derives an income by charging a commission on the customer's net winnings.
- (b) Gaming, which includes betting on electronic gaming machines (EGMs) (such as poker or slot machines) and table games (such as roulette and blackjack) in licensed gaming venues and casinos.
- (c) Keno, which is an interactive social game played in-venue at pubs, clubs, hotels, casinos and online, in which random numbers are drawn every few minutes providing players the chance to win instant prizes.
- (d) Lotteries, which involves a game of chance whereby customers buy lottery tickets and the funds from ticket sales are pooled into a prize pool from which the operator deducts a commission and pays the net amount to winners by drawing 'lots' (usually numbers from a defined set) for prizes.

B. OVERVIEW OF TABCORP

B.1. Structure of Tabcorp's operations

- 10. Tabcorp conducts business as a supplier of gambling and entertainment products and services. It is one of the few integrated gambling and entertainment companies in the world.
- 11. Tabcorp is a public company limited by shares and is listed on the Australian Securities Exchange (ASX).
- 12. Tabcorp is the holding company of various other entities in the Tabcorp group (the Group) including:
  - (a) Tabcorp Wagering Manager (Vic) Pty Ltd (ACN 154 419 342) (Tabcorp Manager) (which manages Tabcorp's Victorian wagering business through an unincorporated joint venture with the Victorian racing industry (Joint Venture), and the SuperTAB pool);
  - (b) Tabcorp Wagering (Vic) Pty Ltd (ACN 134 587 107); Tabcorp Wagering Participant (Vic) Pty Ltd (ACN 154 418 489) (Tabcorp Participant) and Tabcorp Wagering Assets (Vic) Pty Ltd (ACN 154 419 226) (Tabcorp Assets) (which are also parties to the Joint Venture);

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (c) Tab Limited (ACN 081 765 308) (TAB Limited) (which operates Tabcorp's New South Wales wagering business);
  - (d) Tabcorp ACT Pty Ltd (ACN 167 957 002) (Tabcorp ACT) (which operates Tabcorp's Australian Capital Territory wagering and Keno businesses);
  - (e) Keno (NSW) Pty Limited (ACN 003 992 327), Keno (Qld) Pty Limited (ACN 071 366 446) and Tabcorp Investments No. 5 Pty Limited (ACN 105 341 366) (which operate Tabcorp's Keno business in New South Wales, Queensland and Victoria);
  - (f) Tabcorp Gaming Solutions Pty Limited (ACN 138 853 675), Tabcorp Gaming Solutions (NSW) Pty Limited (ACN 141 733 575), Tabcorp Gaming Solutions (Qld) Pty Limited (ACN 136 582 851) and Tabcorp Gaming Solutions (ACT) Pty Limited (ACN 605 478 902) (which provide gaming and venue services to commercial venues in New South Wales, Victoria and the Australian Capital Territory);
  - (g) Sky Channel Pty Limited (ACN 009 136 010) and 2KY Broadcasters Pty Limited (ACN 000 820 057) (which operate Tabcorp's television and radio broadcasting business); and
  - (h) Luxbet Pty Ltd (ACN 092 104 786) (Luxbet) (which operates a corporate bookmaking business registered in the Northern Territory).
13. Tabcorp's business is divided into three main business divisions corresponding to each of the principal sectors in which it operates:
- (a) wagering and media;
  - (b) gaming services; and
  - (c) Keno.

B.1.1. Wagering and media

14. Tabcorp's Australian wagering operations include:
- (a) off-course totalisator and fixed odds wagering on racing, sports and other events in TAB agencies and licensed venues (hotels, pubs and clubs, live sites and stadiums) in Victoria, New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory, and by telephone, mobile apps and the internet nationwide;
  - (b) on-course totalisator and fixed odds wagering in Victoria, New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory;

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (c) tote derivative and fixed odds betting on racing, sports and other events nationwide through Luxbet, its wholly-owned Northern Territory licensed bookmaker; and
  - (d) Trackside, a computer simulated racing product, in Victoria, New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory.
15. In each State and Territory, there is one wagering operator licensed or authorised to conduct off-course totalisator wagering. These operators are typically referred to as 'TABs'. Tabcorp and/or its subsidiaries hold the following wagering licences:
- (a) Victoria: Tabcorp Wagering (Vic) Pty Ltd holds the sole Victorian Wagering and Betting Licence (Victorian licence) until 2024. The licence may be extended by the Victorian Government in its discretion for a further two years (to 2026). The licence allows Tabcorp Wagering (Vic) Pty Ltd to offer off-course and on-course totalisator wagering services, fixed odds betting on racing, totalisator and fixed odds betting on sports and other events and Trackside products. It also permits the operation of a betting exchange (although Tabcorp Wagering (Vic) Pty Ltd does not currently operate one);
  - (b) New South Wales: TAB Limited holds an on-course and off-course wagering licence to provide off-course and on-course totalisator wagering services in New South Wales for thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing until 2097. The licences also allow TAB Limited to offer fixed odds betting on racing, totalisator and fixed odds betting on sports and other events and Trackside products, both online and through retail wagering venues. The exclusivity of TAB Limited's wagering licences applies until 2033; and
  - (c) Australian Capital Territory: Tabcorp acquired ACTTAB in October 2014 and as part of the acquisition was issued a 50 year exclusive totalisator licence (until 2064), a sports bookmaking licence for an initial term of 15 years with further rolling extensions to a total term of 50 years, and ongoing approvals to offer Keno and Trackside products for 50 years.
16. The wagering licences in Queensland, South Australia, Northern Territory and Tasmania are held by Tatts or its subsidiaries. In Western Australia, RWWA, the Western Australian state-owned TAB operator, has an exclusive retail wagering licence.
17. Tabcorp's overseas wagering operations include:

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (a) a joint venture with South Africa's Phumelela Gold International to operate Premier Gateway International Limited (PGI) which is based in the Isle of Man and provides wagering and wagering interface systems;
- (b) a partnership with News UK to operate Sun Bets, an online wagering and gaming business in the United Kingdom and Ireland;
- (c) the distribution of racing vision and data in North America through its wholly-owned United States subsidiary Sky Racing World; and
- (d) an agreement with United States-based Unikrn to provide wagering services for eSports gaming tournaments.

18. Tabcorp's media business includes the operation of three Sky Racing television channels which are broadcast throughout Australia as well as the broadcasting of racing commentary on Sky Sports radio in New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory. The media business also handles the distribution of Australian and NZ Racing vision and data into 54 countries around the world via satellite, cable, mobile and the internet. Tabcorp has a wholly-owned United States subsidiary, Sky Racing World, which manages the distribution of racing vision and data in North America.

B.1.2. Gaming services

19. Tabcorp's gaming services division includes Tabcorp Gaming Solutions (TGS), which supplies Electronic Gaming Machines (EGMs) and associated systems and services to licensed hotels and clubs in Victoria and New South Wales, and Intecq, which Tabcorp acquired in December 2016 and which provides EGM monitoring services and gaming systems in Queensland and gaming systems in Victoria, Tasmania and New South Wales.

B.1.3. Keno

20. Tabcorp distributes Keno products to licensed venues (such as pubs, clubs and casinos) in Victoria, the Australian Capital Territory, Queensland and New South Wales and in TAB agencies in Queensland, Victoria and the Australian Capital Territory.

B.2. Tabcorp's management structure

21. Tabcorp has a Senior Executive Leadership Team (SELT) of which I am a member. The SELT is a group of senior business unit leaders within Tabcorp. SELT members attend weekly meetings to discuss key priorities for their respective business units and Tabcorp as a whole and are involved in strategy and business planning sessions. They are:

- (a) Executive General Manager – Commercial Development (Doug Freeman);

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (b) Chief Operating Officer – Wagering and Media (Craig Nugent);
  - (c) Chief Operating Officer – Keno and Gaming (Adam Rytenskild);
  - (d) Chief Financial Officer (Damien Johnston);
  - (e) Chief Risk Officer (Clinton Lollback);
  - (f) Executive General Manager – People, Culture & Communications (Merryl Dooley);
  - (g) Group General Counsel (Acting) (Julian Hoskins);
  - (h) Company Secretary (Fiona Mead);
  - (i) Chief Marketing Officer (Claire Murphy); and
  - (j) Chief Information Officer (Kim Wenn).
22. In my role as Managing Director and CEO, I also report to and work closely with the Board, including participating in decision making. The Board is currently comprised of Paula Dwyer (Chair), Steven Gregg, Jane Hemstritch, Justin Milne, Zygmunt Switkowski AO, Elmer Funke Kupper (on leave of absence) and myself.
23. Additionally, I am the head of the Office of the CEO, which incorporates:
- (a) General Manager – Corporate Affairs;
  - (b) General Manager – Investor Relations & Strategy;
  - (c) General Manager – Government Relations; and
  - (d) General Manager – Government & Industry Relations.
- B.3. Tabcorp’s recent operational and financial performance
24. For the financial year ending 30 June 2016 (FY16), Tabcorp’s total reported revenue and EBIT were:
- (a) for wagering and media: $1,873 million and $252.2 million respectively;
  - (b) for gaming services: $107.2 million and $41 million respectively; and
  - (c) for Keno: $208.5 million and $50.7 million respectively.
25. Approximately 70% of the revenue generated by Tabcorp’s businesses ($1.5 billion in FY16) is returned to its partners – governments, the racing industry, retail venues and the community.
26. Tabcorp’s contribution to the racing industry and stakeholders increased by 1.8% to $787 million in FY16 and included:

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (a) a contribution to the Victorian racing industry in the amount of $331.2 million (in accordance with Tabcorp's revenue-sharing arrangements arising from its joint venture with the Victorian racing industry (comprising of Racing Victoria, Harness Racing Victoria and Greyhound Racing Victoria));
  - (b) a contribution to the New South Wales racing industry in the amount of $290.8 million (in accordance with Tabcorp's revenue-sharing arrangements arising from its racing distribution agreement with the New South Wales racing industry);
  - (c) race fields fees in the amount of $94.8 million; and
  - (d) fees for broadcast rights and international contributions in the amount of $70.1 million.
27. In addition, Tabcorp paid $428.6 million in gambling taxes and $61.4 million in income taxes in FY16.
28. In total, Tabcorp generated more than $1.2 billion in gambling taxes and racing industry funding in FY16.

C. TABCORP PROPOSAL TO ACQUIRE TATTS

29. Tabcorp proposes to acquire the issued share capital of the Tatts Group Limited (Tatts) by means of a scheme of arrangement (the proposed transaction). In my role as Managing Director and CEO of Tabcorp, I have been directly involved, at a Board level and as part of the Senior Executive Leadership Team, in the proposed transaction.
30. I set out below the background to the proposed transaction and Tabcorp's rationale for it.

C.1. Wagering industry trends

31. There have been substantial changes to the Australian wagering industry over the last decade. As Managing Director of Wagering, which is Tabcorp's primary business division, and then as Managing Director and CEO of Tabcorp, I have spent a significant amount of time getting to know and understand our wagering business and the environment it operates in. I, together with my leadership team, have observed the following key trends in the current Australian wagering industry:
- (a) the growth and widespread use of online wagering (primarily via smartphones and mobile betting apps) which has increased the number of online wagering services and digital offerings (primarily through mobile devices) in Australia;
  - (b) a decline in the proportion of overall wagering turnover transacted in retail facilities;

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (c) the removal of historical advertising restrictions governing wagering and a favourable regulatory environment in the Northern Territory has seen a significant growth of corporate bookmakers (that are not subject to the same regulatory requirements and racing industry funding requirements as totalisator operators such as Tabcorp or Tatts);
  - (d) a decline in totalisator wagering, as a proportion of total Australian wagering, and a rise in the proportion of wagering accounted for by fixed odds products; and
  - (e) the growing popularity of sports betting.
32. There is now considerable diversity in the wagering products and wagering services that are available to consumers which include totalisator (pari-mutuel), tote derivative and fixed odds products provided online, on mobile apps, by phone, through retail locations or on-course. Customers in each State and Territory have a wide range of options when placing bets, and are not restricted to a licensed operator in their home jurisdiction. In each State and Territory, customers have the option of placing fixed odds or tote derivative bets online through corporate bookmakers licensed in the Northern Territory or in other jurisdictions. They can also place online totalisator bets with operators based in States or Territories outside their home State or Territory.
33. The corporate bookmakers' offering of fixed odds and tote derivative products are easily substitutable for totalisator products and are often offered at a better price point due to the regulatory environment they operate in. For example, corporate bookmakers offer a 'top tote plus' tote derivative bet which offers customers the highest dividend paid by the three totalisator operators. Corporate bookmakers' wagering operations may be combined with other complementary interests – for example, Crown is focused on luxury experiences, gaming, hotel accommodation, signature dining and retail in addition to more recently expanding into wagering through its majority interest in CrownBet.
34. Recently, a number of independent Australian corporate bookmakers have been acquired by large, well-capitalised and well-established international wagering companies (Sportsbet by Paddy Power; Sportingbet, Centrebet and tomwaterhouse.com by William Hill; and Bookmaker.com and Betstar by Ladbrokes) as part of an aggressive targeting of the Australian market by global companies.
35. In my view, it is critical to the ongoing success of Tabcorp to respond to the competitive threat posed by corporate bookmakers in this environment. Corporate bookmakers have doubled their turnover over the past five years and, on average, have grown 19% per annum since 2006.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed*C.2. Tabcorp's outlook

36. In order to respond to the changes in the industry referred to above, Tabcorp has sought to improve its online and fixed odds offerings and has adopted a number of measures designed to strengthen its overall pari-mutuel and fixed odds offering in direct response to the increased competition from corporate bookmakers. Some of the recent measures we have taken include:

- (a) investment in retail outlets to promote retail wagering, including working with venues to improve venue design and offerings with the aim of optimising the experience for customers;
- (b) continuing to expand our international pooling activities through pooling and coverage agreements with a number of international wagering operators;
- (c) investment in new totalisator and fixed odds products;
- (d) significant investment in our digital offering, including mobile phone apps and live streaming of racing on the internet and mobile phones;
- (e) a loyalty program for New South Wales, Victoria and the Australian Capital Territory account and retail customers; and
- (f) acquiring a new pari-mutuel betting system that offers a number of advantages including an improved customer information interface and the ability for new bet types to be developed more quickly.

C.3. Previous discussions regarding proposed Tabcorp / Tatts merger

37. On 16 November 2015, Tabcorp and Tatts announced that they had been in confidential discussions regarding a potential nil-premium merger of equals. The parties were unable to reach agreement on key transaction terms and, in particular, as to the nil-premium exchange ratio. As a result, those discussions concluded. A copy of Tabcorp's ASX statement is at Tab 1 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.0007].

C.4. The proposed transaction

38. In September 2016, I recommended to the Board that it resolve to pursue the current proposed merger with Tatts, in the form of an acquisition of the issued share capital of Tatts by means of a scheme of arrangement. Under the scheme of arrangement, Tatts shareholders will receive 0.80 Tabcorp shares plus 42.5 cents cash for each Tatts share held.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

39. There were papers and discussion materials presented to the Tabcorp Board in September 2016:
- (a) on 14 September 2016, at Tab 1 of DA-2 [TBP.001.001.8697] at [.89111]; and
  - (b) on 23 September 2016, at Tab 2 of DA-2 [TBP.001.001.8629].
40. On 23 September 2016, the Tabcorp Board considered and resolved to pursue the proposed merger with Tatts.
41. On 18 October 2016, following a period of information exchange, due diligence and negotiation, Tabcorp and Tatts entered into an implementation deed (Implementation Deed). A copy of the Implementation Deed is at Tab 2 of DA-1 [TBP.006.001.0136].
42. Tabcorp announced the proposed transaction to the market in a statement to the ASX on 19 October 2016. A copy of the ASX statement and accompanying presentation is at Tab 3 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.0110] and Tab 4 of DA-1 [TBP.006.001.0121].
43. Under the terms of the Implementation Deed, the proposed transaction is subject to certain conditions precedent, including:
- (a) competition approval (from the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission, the Australian Competition Tribunal or the Federal Court of Australia) (clause 3.1(a)(1));
  - (b) various state and territory regulatory approvals (clause 3.1(a)(2));
  - (c) shareholder approval by Tatts shareholders to agree to the scheme of arrangement (clause 3.1(b));
  - (d) court approval of the scheme of arrangement (clause 3.1(c)); and
  - (e) the issuance of new Tabcorp shares in accordance with the terms of the scheme of arrangement (clause 3.1(d)).

C.5. Expected profile of the merged entity

44. Based on the closing share prices of Tabcorp and Tatts as at 17 October 2016, being the last trading day prior to the announcement of the proposed acquisition, the merged entity is expected to have a pro forma enterprise value of approximately $11.3 billion, market capitalisation of approximately $8.6 billion, revenue of over $5 billion and EBITDA of over $1 billion.
45. The merged entity will have diversified wagering, media, lotteries, Keno and gaming operations in the following four key areas:

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (a) Wagering and media: totalisator and fixed odds licences and retail wagering networks in New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, the Australian Capital Territory and Northern Territory, offering wagering products in approximately 4,300 retail outlets as well as Trackside in New South Wales, Victoria and the Australian Capital Territory (with the potential for expansion into other jurisdictions);
  - (b) Lotteries: an Australian lotteries business with licences to offer products in New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, the Australian Capital Territory and the Northern Territory;
  - (c) Keno: a Keno distribution network of over 4,200 venues across clubs, hotels and TAB agencies in Victoria, Queensland, South Australia and the Australian Capital Territory, and in clubs and hotels in New South Wales; and
  - (d) Gaming Services: gaming machine monitoring operations in New South Wales, Queensland and the Northern Territory and venue services operations nationwide.
46. As emphasised in our statements to the market, the merger combines the complementary strengths of Tabcorp and Tatts. Tabcorp's history is in wagering. Although Tabcorp operates significant gaming, Keno and media businesses, its core expertise and the highest proportion of its revenue is wagering.
47. By contrast, Tatts' main business is in lotteries. Although Tatts also operates a significant wagering business, it does so largely in different states and territories to Tabcorp. Tatts also operates gaming services businesses, which again have limited overlap with the Tabcorp businesses.
48. Tatts' key business units are:
- (a) wagering services, including:
    - i. on-course and off-course totalisator and fixed odds wagering in Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania and the Northern Territory; and
    - ii. totalisator and fixed odds wagering over the telephone and internet nationwide and overseas;
  - (b) gaming services, incorporating the provision of monitoring systems and technical support to gaming venues. Tatts' gaming services business is made up of two separate reporting units, namely:

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- i. Maxgaming, Tatts' gaming venue services division. This business is focused on the provision of government mandated electronic monitoring systems to gaming machine venues in New South Wales, Queensland and the Northern Territory. The operation uses this network and the associated infrastructure to provide additional value-adding services to its contracted venues; and
  - ii. Bytecraft, Tatts' provider of maintenance, technology and logistics support. It provides warehousing, installation, relocation, repair and maintenance of gaming machines, lottery and wagering terminals and other transaction devices in Australia and New Zealand; and
- (c) lotteries, as the leading lotteries operator in Australia in all States other than Western Australia (which has a government owned and operated lottery) under brands such as Lotto, Powerball, OzLotto and Golden Casket. Tatts also offers Instant Scratch-it tickets in all states except for Western Australia.

C.5.1. Wagering

49. Tabcorp and Tatts have largely complementary wagering businesses, with no overlap in retail operations. They and their subsidiaries are the sole licensed providers of retail and totalisator wagering in the States and Territories in which they operate (Tabcorp in Victoria, New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory, and Tatts in Queensland, South Australia, the Northern Territory and Tasmania). Tabcorp and Tatts also provide totalisator and fixed odds wagering products online through their website and mobile apps as well as over the telephone. Corporate bookmakers, traditional bookmakers and Betfair (a licensed betting exchange) also all provide wagering products online through their websites and apps and over the telephone.

C.5.2. Lotteries

50. Prior to its merger with UniTAB Limited (the former operator of the TABs in Queensland) in 2006, where it acquired UniTAB Limited shares by scheme of arrangement, Tatts was focused solely on lotteries. It continues to operate the public lotteries in each State and Territory, except in Western Australia where the State is the operator.
51. Tabcorp does not hold any licences to conduct public lotteries and therefore does not and cannot supply lottery products.

C.5.3. Keno

52. Keno products are almost exclusively supplied through retail outlets such as pubs, clubs and TABs. Keno is seen as a social game – typically played by consumers as they enjoy a meal or drink and socialise at a pub or club. The games are run at short intervals (normally around every three minutes).

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

53. Tabcorp is the only licensed provider of Keno in retail outlets in Queensland, New South Wales, Victoria and the Australian Capital Territory, while Tatts is the only licensed provider in retail outlets in South Australia. Their licences and retail outlets do not overlap.

C.5.4. Gaming

54. Following Tabcorp's December 2016 acquisition of INTECQ Limited, Tabcorp and Tatts overlap in two aspects of gaming:

- (a) the supply of gaming and promotional management systems in Victoria and New South Wales; and
- (b) the supply of EGM monitoring services, and gaming and promotional management systems, in Queensland.

55. In relation to gaming and promotional management systems, there are a number of suppliers including global operators Aristocrat, Konami, Bally and IGT and Australian operator Global Gaming.

56. In relation to monitoring services, Intecq and Tatts are the principal suppliers in Queensland. There are two other licensed monitors in Queensland (Utopia and Progressive Venue Services), as well as a number of entities with existing capabilities in related services. There is no limit to the number of monitoring licences that are able to be issued in Queensland.

C.5.5. Media

57. Tabcorp operates three Sky Racing television channels and Sky Sports Radio, which is broadcast in New South Wales and the Australian Capital Territory. It also distributes Australian and New Zealand Racing vision and data internationally.

58. Tatts operates RadioTAB, which is broadcast in Queensland, South Australia, the Northern Territory and Tasmania.

59. There is no overlap between the parties' media operations.

C.6. Tabcorp's rationale for the proposed transaction

60. The proposed transaction would create a combined Tabcorp and Tatts entity (the merged entity) which would be positioned to compete effectively as a global wagering, lotteries and gaming business. The merged entity would hold an enhanced portfolio of long term wagering, lotteries and gaming licences. I believe that the proposed acquisition would strengthen Tabcorp's operating platform and better enable us to compete and grow in the rapidly changing and increasingly global market.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

61. A central reason for my recommendation to the Board that Tabcorp enter into the proposed transaction was to maintain the viability of the racing industry across Australia. A healthy racing industry supporting a large number of race meetings with good prize money and strong and deep fields is essential to Tabcorp's ability to continue to offer attractive Australian wagering products. I believe that Tabcorp operates in a racing industry ecosystem where a decline in any significant part of that system has a negative impact on Tabcorp's wagering operations. I am concerned that the racing industry has been in decline in States where Tatts holds the wagering licences. The decline of the racing industries in Queensland, South Australia and Tasmania has been the subject of considerable commentary. A sample of reports on these racing industries' decline is at Tab 5 of DA-1 [TBP.001.026.0161].
62. In particular, I believe that the merged entity will be positioned to:
- (a) deliver substantial synergies of at least [Confidential to Tabcorp] per annum EBITDA (net of benefits to the racing industry);
  - (b) enhance the customer experience through business growth and improvements, including greater investment in existing businesses and the introduction and the development of new products;
  - (c) better compete against corporate bookmakers in Australia; and
  - (d) provide a range of benefits to stakeholders. In particular, the transaction is expected to result in at least [Confidential to Tabcorp] per annum of additional funding to the Australian racing industry and unlock growth in wagering, lotteries and Keno.

C.7. Anticipated cost savings and revenue increases

63. The proposed merger is likely to deliver annual cost savings and revenue increases of more than [Confidential to Tabcorp] and EBITDA (net of any increased annual revenue that is estimated to flow to the racing industry) of at least [Confidential to Tabcorp].
64. I expect that cost savings and revenue increases will be available from:
- (a) cost savings of approximately [Confidential to Tabcorp] per annum in the following areas:

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- i. wagering;
  - ii. technology;
  - iii. corporate;
  - iv. procurement; and
  - v. property and field services;
- (b) revenue increases in the merged entity's wagering business of approximately [Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED] per annum through:
- i. fixed odds performance improvement primarily due to risk management improvement;
  - ii. business improvements including the introduction of new and increased product offerings, re-branding to the TAB brand, and retail and customer account investment in Tatts states; and
- (c) revenue increases in the merged entity's South Australian Keno business of approximately [Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED] per annum as a result of:
- i. investing in rebranding and marketing to attract customers;
  - ii. upgrading Keno venues to enhance the customer experience; and
  - iii. pooling South Australian Keno jackpots with Keno jackpots in the wider Tabcorp network to make them more attractive to customers and introducing new Keno products.

C.8. Enhanced customer experience

65. I expect that the merged entity will be strongly positioned to innovate, invest, and compete in an evolving marketplace. It will have greater capacity to invest in all of its distribution channels, including as a result of the synergy benefits arising from the proposed transaction, and will have a strong incentive to do so given the highly competitive environment in which Tabcorp and Tatts are currently operating.
66. I also expect that a larger balance sheet would better facilitate the pursuit of growth and investment opportunities.
67. This would provide benefits from the wagering customer perspective, including:
- (a) the introduction and development of new products, and the expansion of wagering products in some States;

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (b) the potential for larger, more liquid pools, which are more stable and may potentially result in larger payouts to winning customers;
- (c) investment in retail outlets, including improving the customer digital experience within these locations, which will allow retail outlets to better compete with online wagering services; and
- (d) increased ability to respond to opportunities in an increasingly global wagering market.

C.9. Strengthening of the racing industry

- 68. Tabcorp and Tatts are the principal funders of the racing industry in Australia. Their combined financial contribution to the racing industry in FY2016 was approximately $1 billion.
- 69. Tabcorp and Tatts currently contribute a significant percentage of their margin (revenue less certain expenses) to the racing industries in their respective jurisdictions. For example:
  - (a) under Tabcorp's Victorian wagering and betting licence, VicRacing receives a product fee based on net wagering revenue and 50% of the total net 'profit' derived from wagering and betting under the authority of the licence, as well as a range of other fees; and
  - (b) TAB Limited is party to a Racing Distribution Agreement under which it pays to the New South Wales racing industry a product fee of approximately 22% of net wagering revenue, a wagering incentive fee of 25% of wagering earnings, an annual fixed product fee indexed to CPI, and certain other fees in respect of particular products.
- 70. The nature of those funding arrangements means that the benefits arising from synergies and business improvements would not only accrue to the merged entity's shareholders but also deliver additional funding directly to the racing industry.
- 71. I expect the synergies arising from the proposed merger to result in approximately $50 million in increased annual revenue that will flow to the racing industry. This additional funding could be used to (for example):
  - (a) support increased prize money and provide more capital for investment in racing infrastructure; and
  - (b) create broader economic benefits, including in regional areas.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

72. UBET's wagering business has also been underperforming compared to the TAB, which has impacted on the level of funding flowing through to the racing industry in states where Tatts holds the wagering licence. It is critical therefore for Tabcorp to take steps to improve the UBET business in order to strengthen the racing industry in these States. This in turn will enable Tabcorp to continue to offer attractive Australian racing products to its customers. Tabcorp has an additional incentive to improve that business in that one of the few levers declining racing industries can use to raise additional funding in response to any flow-through shortfall is to increase race field fees. This directly impacts on Tabcorp.

D. POTENTIAL WA TAB PRIVATISATION*D.1. Potential WA TAB privatisation

73. The potential privatisation of WA TAB, the Western Australian totalisator operated by the state-owned body corporate Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA) which has the exclusive right to conduct retail wagering in that state, has been the subject of speculation for some time. In May 2014 the WA Treasurer Dr Mike Nahan, when handing down his second State Budget, announced that total public sector net debt stood at $22 billion (and subsequently announced in December 2014 a $1.3 billion operating deficit, the state's first in 15 years). The Treasurer announced at the time of delivering the May 2014 Budget the Government's intention to pursue asset sales to combat rising debt and included the WA TAB in a list of assets in respect of which the Government's continued ownership would "be reviewed". In mid-2014, the Western Australian Government initiated a consultation process with the Western Australian racing industry and other stakeholders to consider the merits of a privatisation.
74. A number of Western Australian racing industry representatives established the Western Australian Racing Representative Group (WARRG) to represent the Western Australian racing industry in relation to the potential privatisation. In August 2014, WARRG commissioned Mr Ray Gunston to prepare a report on the potential privatisation of WA TAB in order to assist the industry's consideration of the issue (Gunston Report). Mr Gunston concluded that the Western Australian racing industry is barely self-funding on an operational cash flow basis and that any racing funding model that did not sustain current funding levels would immediately impact the Western Australian racing industry and reduce investment. He therefore concluded that for a privatisation to occur there must be a commitment to secure a funding model that meant the Western Australian racing industry was at least no worse off under the industry funding model delivered by the WA TAB operator. A copy of the Gunston Report is at Tab 6 of DA-1 [TBP.004.026.3769].

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

75. Various racing industry representatives have expressed a range of views on privatisation throughout the process to date, ranging from supporting it on the condition that the racing industry is at least no worse off under any privatisation, to a “wait and see” position, to outright opposition. A sample of public documents and media reports reporting the views of various racing industry representatives at different points in time is at Tab 7 of DA-1 [TBP.001.026.0384].
76. Various Liberal, National, Labor and One Nation politicians have also expressed a range of different views at different stages of the WA TAB privatisation debate. A sample of public statements and media reports reporting the views of various Western Australian politicians at different points in time is at Tab 8 of DA-1 [TBP.001.026.0736].
77. Various politicians and racing industry representatives have also expressed concern regarding the potential detrimental impact of privatisation on the future of the racing industry in Western Australia by reference to the experience of the racing industry in Queensland, South Australia and Tasmania following the privatisation of the totalisators in those states. A sample of public statements and media reports reporting on those concerns is at Tab 9 of DA-1 [TBP.001.027.1279].
78. The Executive Chairman of WARRG, Mr Michael Grant, was reported as having said in November 2016 that WARRG believes that the WA TAB should be privatised as long as there are guarantees that the industry would be no worse off under a private owner, there is a fund set aside for infrastructure investment, and governance issues are resolved. Following Mr Grant’s November 2016 statement Liberal MP Murray Cowper, in direct response to Mr Grant’s statement, stated that Mr Grant did not speak for the entire racing industry and that he (Mr Cowper) remained opposed to the sale: “the industry is bigger than just Perth and there are significant elements in country gallops, trots and greyhounds that aren’t on board”. Copies of these media reports are at Tabs 10 and 11 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.2258] and [TBP.014.001.0996].
79. The Western Australian Premier Mr Barnett had said, around the same time as Mr Grant’s statement and a few days before Mr Cowper’s statement, that he had long held the view that the State should not own the TAB, and believed that the racing industry now shared his view and was “hopeful the Nationals and racing industry will join with the Liberal Party on an agreed position to sell the TAB”. The Labor Party’s Shadow Racing and Gaming Minister Mr Mick Murray stated in response that a Labor Government would sell the WA TAB only if it has the support of the entire racing industry, and “That’s important, because there’s still some groups that don’t agree with where Michael Grant’s group [WARRG] is going.” A copy of this media report is at Tab 10 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.2258].

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

80. On around 30 January 2017, WARRG released a position paper ahead of the State Government election in Western Australia which will take place on 11 March 2017. The position paper states that the Western Australian racing industry has formally adopted a position of “conditional support” of the WA TAB privatisation and that the Western Australian racing industry will work constructively with the Western Australian Government to contribute to the development of an appropriate post-privatisation framework based upon certain conditions including:

- (a) “at least no worse off” funding for the Western Australian racing industry;
- (b) wagering taxation reform / parity with other Australian States;
- (c) the guarantee of an infrastructure fund of “at least $100 million” from the proceeds of any privatisation; and
- (d) an appropriate operating model.

A copy of the WARRG position paper is at Tab 12 of DA-1 [TBP.001.018.8262].

81. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

82. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- 83. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
- 84. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
- 85. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
- 86. Following the release of WARRG’s position paper Opposition Leader Mark McGowan was reported as saying that the Labor Party’s position was, consistent with the Labor Party’s previously reported position, that “if the racing industry is united and wants to sell it, then [we] would agree with that.” A sample of media reports regarding the responses of various politicians following the WARRG report is at Tabs 13 and 14 of DA-1 [TBP.001.018.6846] and [TBP.001.018.6432].
- 87. A major issue in the Western Australian state election campaign has been the current Liberal Government’s plan to privatise 51% of WA Power. Labor strongly opposes that proposed privatisation. A sample of public statements and media reports reporting on this issue is at Tab 15 of DA-1 [TBP.001.026.0013].
- 88. In May 2016, the RWWA Chief Executive Mr Richard Burt confirmed there was no defined timeframe or process for any sale and was quoted as saying “We may be running the licence but we are not aware at this stage what the timeframe is or what the process is." A copy of this media report is at Tab 16 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.2111].

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

D.2. Tabcorp's views on WA TAB

89. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(a) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(b) [REDACTED]

(c) [REDACTED]

i. [REDACTED]

ii. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

iii. [REDACTED]

iv. [REDACTED]

D.3. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

90. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

91. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

92. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(a) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

[REDACTED]

(b) [REDACTED]

(c) [REDACTED]

93. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

94. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

95. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

D.4. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

96. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- (a) [REDACTED]
- (b) [REDACTED]
- (c) [REDACTED]
- (d) [REDACTED]
- (e) [REDACTED]

D.5. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

97. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

98. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

- (a) [REDACTED]
- (b) [REDACTED]
- (c) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
- (d) [REDACTED]
- (e) [REDACTED]
- (f) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
- (g) [REDACTED]
- (h) [REDACTED]
- (i) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
- (j) [REDACTED]
- (k) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

99. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]. RWWA's 2016 Annual Report notes that:

“Whilst the TAB continues to perform favourably at or above national benchmarks, soft economic conditions and weak consumer confidence are likely to weigh on the financial performance of the business in 2016. In addition to the economic backdrop, wagering competition is expected to increase during the upcoming years with corporate bookmakers seeking greater market penetration at the expense of traditional Australian wagering operators.”

A copy of this report is at Tab 17 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.2143].

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

100. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

101. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]. Premier Barnett has been reported as saying that his Government "will only sell the TAB if it gets the right price for it". A copy of a transcript of a press conference recording this position is at Tab 18 of DA-1 [TBP.015.001.4234].

102. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(a) [REDACTED]

(b) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

103. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

104. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

D.6. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

105. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]. There were five bidders to acquire the ACTTAB assets. Although only Tabcorp and Tatts proceeded to the final bid stage, that was because the ACT government excluded the other three bidders from the final bid process primarily because it assessed them as not meeting the operational capacity tender requirement. The ACT Auditor-General subsequently concluded in a report that "[t]he evaluation of the operational capacity criterion inappropriately excluded interested parties from further consideration.” A copy of the Auditor-General’s report is at Tab 19 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.2808].

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

106. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(a) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(b) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(c) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(d) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(e) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

(f) [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

107. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]. A sample of those media reports is at Tab 20 of DA-1 [TBP.001.026.0036].

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed*D.6.1. CrownBet

108. CrownBet is an online wagering company, majority-owned by Australian company Crown Resorts Limited (Crown) which has a 62% interest in CrownBet. Crown combines wagering operations with other complementary interests, including luxury experiences, gaming, hotel accommodation, signature dining and retail. Crown's global profit for FY2015 was A$526 million.
109. CrownBet CEO Matthew Tripp previously owned Sportsbet before selling it to Irish bookmaker Paddy Power in 2010. He subsequently acquired BetEzy in 2013 after his non-compete clause expired, before establishing CrownBet with Crown in late 2014.
110. Crown holds a 50% interest in Aspers Group, which operates casinos throughout the United Kingdom, and a 24.5% interest in Cannery, which operates casinos throughout the United States. Crown also has other Australian gambling interests, including Crown Melbourne, Crown Perth and a proposed resort in Sydney's Barangaroo which will have a gaming licence.
111. In Western Australia, the absence of poker machines in retail venues such as pubs and clubs means that customers wanting to use poker machines will attend Crown Perth. Crown's exclusivity arrangements provide that the State of Western Australia must not grant another licence to a casino and hotel of similar size and standard as Crown Perth within a 100km radius of Crown Perth. Crown also has the rights to Keno in Western Australia (operating in the casino only).
112. Crown is rapidly investing in complementary assets. In addition to its online wagering operation CrownBet (62% interest) and online betting exchange Betfair Australia (100% interest), in July 2015 Crown acquired 60% of United States-based online social gaming business DGN Games (and currently holds a 70% interest through subsequent investment). Through this majority-owned subsidiary, Crown has an interest in Winners Club Limited (100% owned by DGN Games), which provides development and analytical services to online social gaming sites.
113. CrownBet is one of Australia's fastest growing bookmakers. It is the exclusive wagering partner of the AFL for the next five years and premium wagering partner of Racing.com.
114. CrownBet has made considerable investment in interfaces including new Apple iOS (iPhone) and Android Apps (smartphone), along with a website released in September 2014. These interfaces are all industry best practice in their use, design, and consistency in user experience across all devices. Tabcorp estimates that CrownBet as a relative newcomer to the market currently accounts for around 5% of online wagering in Australia.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

115. CrownBet has also been progressing initiatives to compete in the retail environment. It has approached a number of pubs and clubs in various States to propose arrangements where the pub or club would display CrownBet advertising and merchandising material in the venue and promote CrownBet to the customer base in the venue to subsequently open CrownBet betting accounts. CrownBet has also made proposals to venue operators that would involve venue customers that sign up to CrownBet accounts obtaining the benefits of the Crown loyalty scheme across the venue's products, including gaming.
116. [Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
117. On 7 February 2017, ClubsNSW and CrownBet announced a partnership for the provision of digital wagering services in NSW clubs. A copy of the joint media release for CrownBet and ClubsNSW is at Tab 21 of DA-1 [TBP.001.018.5446]. Clubs have the option of engaging CrownBet to provide exclusive digital wagering services by way of an Individual Licenced Venue Agreement. A copy of a summary of the key terms and conditions of that agreement is at Tab 22 of DA-1 [TBP.001.020.0259].
118. Tabcorp understands based on that summary and media reports that the deal involves an initial period of 10 years during which Crownbet is appointed as the club's exclusive 'Official Digital Wagering Advertising Partner' and 'Official Daily Fantasy Sports Partner'. CrownBet will invest in Wi-Fi and technology upgrades for over 1,200 clubs across New South Wales as well as developing a new app which would allow club patrons to wager through CrownBet in NSW clubs on mobile phones and tablets. Other features of the deal involve CrownBet paying the clubs a percentage of relevant wagering received in respect of certain bets made by club members who register as a CrownBet customer. Club members and patrons will be able to redeem CrownBet Rewards points earned on bets for offers at specific club venues. CrownBet terminals displaying racing and sports information and betting odds will also be installed in participating venues. A sample of media reports on CrownBet's digital partnership with Clubs NSW are at Tab 23 of DA-1 [TBP.001.026.0084].
119. Tabcorp is concerned that the CrownBet arrangements contravene the terms of Tabcorp's existing New South Wales exclusive retail licence and the legislative regime which supports that licence. It is considering its position in that regard.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

120. At the time of the announcement Crownbet CEO Matthew Tripp was quoted as saying that CrownBet is “open to discussions with any other organisations where CrownBet can offer wagering services in venues where people congregate.” Following that statement Clubs Queensland’s Chief Executive Officer Douglas Flockhart was quoted as saying that he sees no merit in such a deal in Queensland. A copy of these media reports are at Tab 24 of DA-1 [TBP.001.018.5426].
121. Crown has customer assistants in its casinos offering to assist casino customers in opening new CrownBet accounts. CrownBet similarly cross-sells to its account holders to encourage attendance at Crown casinos.
122. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

D.6.2. Seven West

123. Seven West Media (Seven West) is an ASX-listed diversified media business based in Western Australia. Seven West’s EBITDA for FY2016 was A$363.5 million.
124. In 2015 Seven West acquired Victorian thoroughbred broadcasting rights and has since launched a thoroughbred racing channel, Racing.com, on Channel 78 and through digital devices in a joint venture with Racing Victoria. Tabcorp’s assessment is that Racing.com may continue to expand its racing coverage by acquiring further thoroughbred racing product rights. A copy of a media article reporting on this is at Tab 25 of DA-1 [TBP.001.018.5450].
125. In May 2016 the Racing.com joint venture announced it had non-exclusive rights to broadcast Hong Kong racing. The Australian Financial Review reported that this could be the first step in “broadcast deal negotiations across several states and merger and acquisition activity in the wagering sector”, noting that it had “ramifications for the established listed wagering operators such as Tabcorp and racing administrators around the country”. The same article notes that “[w]hen it comes to racing, however, the real money is to be made in wagering. There has already been speculation about Seven West looking at a bid for the West Australian tote. Far more likely is a tie-up between Seven West and an operator such as Crown Bet, given the latter already advertises on Racing.com and James Packer and Kerry Stokes, former and current chairman of Crown Bet's part-owner Crown Resorts and Seven respectively, are close." A copy of that article is at Tab 26 of DA-1 [TBP.011.001.1169].

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

126. CrownBet is Racing.com's premium wagering partner for 2015 and 2016 and Ladbrokes is its Associate partner.

127. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

128. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]. Copies of a sample of media reports reporting on this are at Tab 27 of DA-1 [TBP.001.026.0118].

D.6.3. Ladbrokes

129. Ladbrokes is a British-based betting and gaming company. It merged with Gala Coral Group in 2016 to form Ladbrokes Coral, with an estimated enterprise value of A$11.7 million. The Group has a presence in the United Kingdom, Ireland, Belgium and Spain as well as in Australia. Ladbrokes has considerable expertise in retail; around 70% of its United Kingdom operation is made up of retail revenue and it has reported that it is focusing on investments in retail and digital. Copies of a selection of these reports are at Tabs 28, 29 and 30 of DA-1 [TBP.014.001.0980], [TBP.014.001.0954] and [TBP.013.001.0398].

130. Ladbrokes has been expanding its presence in Australia through acquisition. In 2013 Ladbrokes acquired Bookmaker Pty Ltd and in April 2014 it acquired Australian online bookmaking business Betstar. Tabcorp estimates that Ladbrokes accounts for around 12% of online wagering in Australia, with reported year on year digital turnover growth to March 2016 of 52%.

131. Ladbrokes' strategy in Australia is to develop innovative products and build a strong customer base backed by investment in brand awareness. One of its new strategies is to allow customers to instantly deposit money into their Ladbrokes account at over 1,000 newsagents across Australia. Ladbrokes has also developed retail account withdrawal functionality via the Visa card network. Ladbrokes Australia also became the official corporate bookmaker for the Melbourne Racing Club from 1 January 2016.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

132. Ladbrokes net revenue in Australia in FY2015 increased by 54% to £53.2m. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

D.6.4. William Hill

133. William Hill was founded in 1934 and listed on the London Stock Exchange in 2002.
134. The Group's revenue in the 2015 calendar year was over £1.59 billion and group profit for the year ending 29 December 2015 was £190 million. William Hill's Australian operating profit for FY2015 was A$26 million.
135. William Hill entered the Australian market in 2013 when it acquired the Australian and Spanish operations of Sportingbet. Sportingbet had acquired ASX-listed Centrebet two years prior. In 2013 William Hill also acquired Australian bookmaker tomwaterhouse.com. All three companies (Centrebet, Sportingbet and tomwaterhouse.com) have subsequently been rebranded under the William Hill banner, with all customers migrated to the single platform.
136. William Hill provides online racing and sports betting, is the third largest betting operator in Australia by net revenue, and boasts a market advantage in its innovative technology and ability to leverage the Group's resources to enter into new parts of the market. William Hill was the first betting operator to launch in-play betting in Australia. William Hill is investing heavily to build its brand presence in Australia. Tabcorp estimates that William Hill accounts for approximately 12% of online wagering in Australia, with reported year on year digital turnover growth to March 2016 of 8%. A copy of a report on this is at Tab 31 of DA-1 [TBP.008.001.1118].
137. William Hill also manages RWWA's fixed odds book and acts as WA TAB's manager. The WA TAB's fixed odds bookmaking is outsourced to William Hill. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed*D.6.5. Sportsbet (Paddy Power)

138. Paddy Power is an Irish listed betting company. Paddy Power recently merged with Betfair, and now has an estimated enterprise value of A$13.4 billion.
139. Paddy Power acquired a 51% stake in Sportsbet in May 2009, before acquiring the remainder of the company in December 2010. Sportsbet was Australia's first licensed corporate bookmaker founded in 1993.
140. Paddy Power's global profit for the year ended 31 December 2015 was €152.8m (approximately A$228m). Approximately 44% of Paddy Power's operating profit for FY15 was derived from the Australian market, and the group's Australian operating profit increased by 52% in that financial year. In the first quarter of 2016, Paddy Power's online sales rose by 17% to £195m, with Sportsbet reportedly contributing strongly to that growth. Paddy Power announced in its 2016 interim results that Australian revenue was up 17% to £129m.
141. Sportsbet's EBITDA has risen from $24 million to $129 million in the last six years. It is the largest corporate bookmaker currently operating in Australia and Tabcorp estimates that it accounts for approximately 20% of online wagering, with reported year on year digital turnover growth to March 2016 of 31%.
142. Paddy Power describes its presence in Australia as "the market leader in the fast-growing Australian online betting market". Paddy Power is extracting significant profits from Sportsbet [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED].

D.7. Implications for Tabcorp

143. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
144. The current Western Australian Premier has recently been reported as saying that the merger of Tabcorp and Tatts is not likely to affect the amount received from any sale of the WA TAB and that he expects there would be bidders beyond Tabcorp and Tatts. A copy of a transcript of the press conference in which he made those statements is at Tab

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

18 of DA-1 [TBP.015.001.4234]. The Premier said that he based this belief on his knowledge as to the likely interest of other bidders. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp]

[REDACTED]

145. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

E. POTENTIAL FUTURE WAGERING INDUSTRY TRENDS

146. In my capacity as CEO and Managing Director of Tabcorp, and previously as Managing Director of the Wagering division, I have received numerous reports and also participated in many SELT and Board discussions regarding wagering industry competition. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

E.1. Changes in wagering industry and future trends

147. The last decade has seen a complete transformation of the Australian wagering industry and the competitive wagering landscape. The market is continuing to experience significant structural changes in both products and channels. Over the past 5 years, fixed-odds racing and sports wagering has grown from 41% to 63% of industry turnover, with increased penetration expected to continue. The industry has also seen rapid digital convergence over the past 5 years with digital increasing from 30% to 51% of industry turnover. Channel convergence is occurring at pace in key global markets, with Australia and the United Kingdom experiencing a rapid uptake of mobile based online betting. Where allowed, the predominant business model is multi-product as this provides growth, leverages fixed costs and provides attractive cross-sell opportunities.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

148. One major recent wagering industry change has been the consolidation in the United Kingdom market. Consolidation via mergers with other wagering operators has seen Paddy Power (with Betfair) and Ladbrokes (with Coral) significantly increase the scale of their United Kingdom operations with approximately 80% of the betting market in the United Kingdom now controlled by these two major companies and William Hill. There has been a significant amount of merger and acquisition activity amongst corporate bookmakers in Australia, driven largely by foreign entrants to the Australian market. Corporate bookmakers have doubled their turnover over the past 5 years and now account for more than $12 billion in national annual turnover. The major corporate bookmakers have seen strong growth in account holders, particularly Sportsbet (owned by Paddy Power). This competition has driven significant increases in marketing spend – total industry spend has increased from $119m to $328m in the last 5 years.

149. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

150. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

151. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
152. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
153. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
154. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
155. Sportsbet (owned by Paddy Power) had the highest number of account holders at the end of calendar year 2015 with 754,000 account holders compared to just over 430,000 for Tabcorp in the middle of 2016. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
- [REDACTED]
156. This growth reflects a very high level of marketing spend by the corporate bookmakers. Tabcorp estimates that in FY15 Sportsbet spent approximately $92 million, William Hill $77 million and Ladbrokes $65 million (doubling its spend from the previous year). Sportsbet has various sponsorships, including the NRL on Nine, the AFL, the FFA and the Big Bash, with CrownBet also emerging as a major sponsor of the AFL. CrownBet is Racing.com's premium wagering partner and Ladbrokes its associate wagering partner.

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

157. One consequence of the growth in numbers of corporate bookmaker digital account holders is that Tabcorp increasingly faces competition for customers within its retail venues. Although Tabcorp has the sole right to offer over the counter betting and self-service betting machines in retail venues in the States where it holds the retail licence, there is nothing to stop customers in those venues wagering through their digital accounts with other wagering operators. Corporate bookmakers are able to advertise through the vision available in the venues to encourage venue customers to open accounts with them or bet through their existing accounts with them, such as CrownBet advertising associated with its sponsorship of the AFL and CrownBet and Ladbrokes advertising associated with their Racing.com wagering partner status. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

158. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

E.2. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

159. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]. Copies of a sample of analyst reports commenting on this are at Tab 32 of DA-1 [TBP.001.027.0114]. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

160. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Confidential Restriction on Publication Claimed

[REDACTED]

161. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

162. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

163. [HIGHLY Confidential to Tabcorp] [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

Signature of witness

Name of witness

David Attenborough

Date of signature

8 March 2017

IN THE AUSTRALIAN COMPETITION TRIBUNAL

ACT of 2017

Tabcorp Holdings Limited (Applicant)

RE: PROPOSED ACQUISITION OF TATTS GROUP LIMITED BY TABCORP HOLDINGS LIMITED

EXHIBIT CERTIFICATE

This is the exhibit marked “DA-1” to the statement of DAVID ATTENBOROUGH dated 8 March 2017.

Exhibit DA-1

---

Filed on behalf of Tabcorp Holdings Limited (Applicant)

Prepared by Grant Marjoribanks

Herbert Smith Freehills

Tel (02) 9225 5517

Email grant.marjoribanks@hsf.com

Address for service

Level 34

161 Castlereagh Street

Sydney NSW 2000

AUSTRALIA

Fax (02) 9322 4000

Ref 82602332

RE: Proposed acquisition of Tatts
Group Limited by Tabcorp Holdings Limited

| Tab | Document Description  | Document ID                      |
|-----|---|----------------------------------|
| 1   | Tabcorp ASX announcement dated 16 November 2015 regarding merger discussions  | TBP.011.001.0007 |
| 2   | Merger Implementation Deed between Tabcorp Holdings Limited and Tatts Group Limited dated 18 October 2016   | TBP.006.001.0136 |
| 3   | Tabcorp and Tatts ASX announcement dated 19 October 2016 regarding the proposed transaction   | TBP.011.001.0110 |
| 4   | Presentation dated 19 October 2016 titled "Recommended Combination of Tabcorp Holdings Limited and Tatts Group Limited – Tabcorp and Tatts to combine to create a world-class, diversified gambling and entertainment group"                | TBP.006.001.0121 |
| 5   | Sample of public documents and media reports on the Queensland, South Australian and Tasmanian racing industries' decline   | TBP.001.026.0161 |
| 6   | Report to the Western Australian Racing Representative Group (WARRG) on the potential privatisation of the Western Australian TAB dated November 2014   | TBP.004.026.3769 |
| 7   | Sample of public documents and media reports reporting the views of various racing industry representatives on privatisation of the WA TAB at different points in time  | TBP.001.026.0384 |
| 8   | Sample of public statements and media reports reporting the views of various Western Australian politicians at different points in time regarding WA TAB privatisation  | TBP.001.026.0736 |
| 9   | Sample of public statements and media reports reporting concerns of politicians and racing industry representatives regarding the WA TAB by reference to the experience in Queensland, South Australia and Tasmania following privatisation | TBP.001.027.1279 |
| 10  | Media report titled "Industry group backs TAB Sale" – The West Australian, 11 November 2016   | TBP.011.001.2258 |

| Tab | Document Description   | Document ID                      |
|-----|--|----------------------------------|
| 11  | Media report titled "Liberal MP pours cold water on TAB sale bid" – The West Australian, 14 November 2016  | TBP.014.001.0996 |
| 12  | Paper 1 – "Racing Towards the 2016 State Election" – The Racing Industry's Position, prepared by the Western Australian Racing Representative Group (WARRG) on behalf of the WA Racing Industry dated January 2017 | TBP.001.018.8262 |
| 13  | Media report titled "Privatising TAB back on track" – The West Australian, 2 February 2017   | TBP.001.018.6846 |
| 14  | Media report titled "Libs need last-gasp deal with Hanson" – The Australian, 3 February 2017   | TBP.001.018.6432 |
| 15  | Sample of media reports reporting on the issue of the Liberal Government's plan to privatise 51% of WA Power   | TBP.001.026.0013 |
| 16  | Media report titled "Western Australia rift over TAB sell-off" – Sydney Morning Herald, 18 May 2016  | TBP.011.001.2111 |
| 17  | RWWA's 2016 Annual Report dated 17 October 2016  | TBP.011.001.2143 |
| 18  | Transcript of Press Conference of Colin Barnett dated 19 October 2016  | TBP.015.001.4234 |
| 19  | Auditor-General's report regarding the sale of the ACTTAB (Report No 7/2015) dated 26 June 2015  | TBP.011.001.2808 |
| 20  | Sample of media reports on the wagering market and the likelihood of CrownBet, SevenWest, Ladbrokes, William Hill and Sportsbet participating in sale process for the WA TAB                                       | TBP.001.026.0036 |
| 21  | Joint media release of Clubs NSW and CrownBet  | TBP.001.018.5446 |
| 22  | Summary of the key terms and agreements of CrownBet's digital partnership agreement with Clubs NSW   | TBP.001.020.0259 |

| Tab | Document Description  | Document ID                      |
|-----|---|----------------------------------|
| 23  | Sample of media reports regarding CrownBet's digital partnership with Clubs NSW   | TBP.001.026.0084 |
| 24  | Media report titled "Crown makes $300m bet on NSW with Clubs deal" – The Australian, 7 February 2017   | TBP.001.018.5426 |
| 25  | Media report titled "Tabcorp aggressively bidding for horse racing broadcast rights" – The Australian Financial Review, 7 October 2016  | TBP.001.018.5450 |
| 26  | Media report titled "Seven and Racing Victoria shake up horse racing with Hong Kong deal" – The Australian Financial Review, 22 May 2016  | TBP.011.001.1169 |
| 27  | Sample of media reports reporting on the prospect of a bid from Seven West (either in its own right or in conjunction with one of its wagering partners such as Crown or Ladbrokes) | TBP.001.026.0118 |
| 28  | Media report titled "Ladbrokes reports profit as digital turnaround begins to take hold" – Diginomica, 4 August 2016  | TBP.014.001.0980 |
| 29  | Ladbrokes Notification of 2016 Interim Results dated 4 August 2016  | TBP.014.001.0954 |
| 30  | Ladbrokes Annual Report 2015  | TBP.013.001.0398 |
| 31  | UBS Analyst Report dated 7 June 2016 – Australian Gaming, UBS Evidence Lab: Australian wagering iOS app download trends   | TBP.008.001.1118 |
| 32  | Sample of analyst reports commenting on the Victorian licence   | TBP.001.027.0114 |

Risk takers, growth makers, wealth creators.

Home / Business / Gambling

Feb 7 2017 at 4:52 PM | Updated Feb 7 2017 at 7:57 PM

Save Article | Print | License Article

Crown makes $300m bet on NSW with Clubs deal

CrownBet CEO Matt Tripp (right) and Clubs NSW boss Anthony Ball have signed a $300 million online wagering deal. Louie Douvis

Advertisement

by John Stensholt

James Packer's Crown Resorts has made its biggest bet on online wagering, with its corporate bookmaker CrownBet set to spend $300 million in NSW to end Tabcorp's exclusive relationship with the powerful licensed clubs network.

As foreshadowed by The Australian Financial Review, CrownBet and Clubs NSW confirmed on Tuesday that the online bookmaker – 62 per cent owned by Crown Resorts – has signed a 10-year deal to be the clubs' official digital wagering partner.

The deal will involve considerable capital expenditure for CrownBet during the next three years, including paying for Wi-Fi and technology upgrades to almost 1140 clubs, and the building of a special app for club patrons that will allow punters to gamble on the CrownBet app on their phones or tablets and in competition with TAB outlets in the same venues.

CrownBet chief executive Matthew Tripp said the deal was the biggest he had undertaken during 20 years in the wagering industry, but signalled he could clinch similar agreements in other states.

Related articles

Crown gains 90-storey hotel approval

26 mins ago

SkyCity profit jumps 18pc

1 hr ago

Tabcorp share price, daily ($)

SOURCE: BLOOMBERG

Crown moves fast on Tabcorp-Tatts territory

Crownbet to upset Tabcorp NSW clubs monopoly

Tabcorp dividend blooper a miss for advisers

Latest Stories

More

"We could look to go up to Queensland in the future, and we are open to discussions with any other organisations where we can offer wagering services in venues where people congregate."

Mr Tripp said Mr Packer, who rejoined the Crown Resorts board in January, had been supportive of CrownBet's push into NSW after telling the Financial Review that the online wagering business was one of his five main priorities for 2017.

"James has been really engaged on this and been very positive about our strategy," Mr Tripp said. "He has been very supportive through this whole process."

Crownbet will also enter into a revenue share arrangement with the NSW clubs, and will install terminals in clubs that will contain racing and sports information and betting odds. Though the terminals may in the future offer punters refund options, bets will not be able to placed through them.

Mr Tripp said CrownBet will end the 2017 financial year with more than 200,000 active customers, and estimated the deal in NSW – where the company has only about 4 per cent market share – could increase that client base 50-60 per cent during the next five years.

The deal will come as a blow to rival Tabcorp, which has TAB outlets in clubs throughout the country and still relies heavily on bets placed by customers in retail outlets.

Related Quotes

CWN

TAH

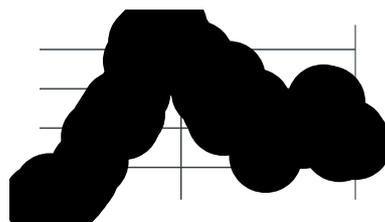

CROWN FPO (CWN)

$11.24 0.02 0.18%

volume 87286 value 981867.9

5 YEARS

1 DAY

Last updated: Thu Feb 09 2017 - 11:38:33 AM

View full quote

Company Profile

An international casino and gaming entity, with businesses and investments in key international markets.

www.crownresorts.com.au

Hotels, Restaurants &amp; Leisure (253010)

ASIC 125709953

ASX Announcements

- 9/2/17 Queensbridge Hotel Tower Receives Planning Approval
- 10/1/17 John Alexander to be Appointed Chairman of Crown Resorts
- 23/12/16 Legal Challenge To Crown Sydney Planning Approval Dismissed
- 16/12/16 Further Update on Major Initiatives
- 15/12/16 Trading Halt

View all announcements

2/9/2017

Crown makes $300m bet on NSW with Clubs deal | afr.com

Tabcorp chief executive David Attenborough would not comment on the specifics of the deal but said: "Tabcorp is competing vigorously in the digital space, as we have been, to very good effect. We have made big strides in that area and think we have a very good digital wagering product."

He also pointed to Tabcorp's own recent deal to incentivise retail operators, including pubs and clubs, to share in digital TAB wagering revenue. Tabcorp is also seeking an $11.3 billion merger with Tatts Group.

Clubs NSW chief executive Anthony Ball said about 95 per cent of clubs in the state were losing money on operating a TAB outlet in their venues and the clubs needed to undertake a digital wagering deal to stay relevant to members.

"The economics of wagering in clubs is poor. And when you look at all the 18-25-year-olds, these days they do everything on their phone. That extends to betting. So we have to play in that space now."

Mr Ball said it would be up to individual clubs whether they would maintain their TAB outlets into the future, though some are concerned Tabcorp could turn off their Sky Racing channel in clubs, even though the clubs and Tabcorp operate the Keno lottery-style jackpot game.

CWN TAH

Recommended

They know a tier 1 asset when they see one at BHP, and that led...

Digitally tied to the ATO, accountants want compo

Departing CEO Greg Roebuck gives Carsales one last lift

Vanguard's bond king sees billions flood in

President bookworm

From Around the Web

End of Life Insurance in Australia - Just Months Away?

Life Insurance Options

Still using Excel for inventory management? It might be costing...

TradeGecko

Value based investing will return in 2017

Clime

Diamonds are forever! Learn more about the importance of the 4Cs...

Michael hill

11 Rules For Building Wealth After 50

Motley Fool Australia

Recommended by

Special Reports

Watch industry trends to watch

Some ugly truths about fashion

What 'Love Wins' author is reading

The Aussie helping low-wage Americans invest

Food trends 2017: we're going troppo

Can this man make Australia more innovative?

The chief marketing officers rewriting the rulebook

The secret to Atlassian's success

Digital is a channel not a marketing strategy

The factory workers everyone wants

3 Australian dream homes you can buy today

Stylish blueprint for high-rise happiness

Sushi and a hammam beneath the Alps

Travel wardrobe secret of a fashion jetsetter

Consultant favours bike paths after crash at 40km/h

Bidders into second round for NSW's land titles auction

Deal to secure Alcoa's future in sight

Paytm cashes in on demonetisation

How Russia overtook China as cyber enemy No.1

How to build digital leadership

MY FINANCIAL REVIEW

My Alerts | Create alert
Portfolio
Account
My Saved Articles (0)

MARKETS DATA

Markets Overview
Australian Equities
World Equities
Commodities
Currencies
Derivatives
Interest Rates
Share Tables

SUBSCRIPTION TERMS

Digital Subscription Terms
Newspaper Subscription Terms
Corporate Subscriptions

BRANDS

The Australian Financial Review Magazine
BOSS
BRW Lists
Chanticleer
Luxury
Rear Window
The Sophisticated Traveller

CONTACT & FEEDBACK

About us
Our Events
FAQ
Contact us
Letters to the Editor
Give feedback
Advertise
Site Map

CONNECT WITH US

Facebook      Twitter

Linkedin      Instagram

FAIRFAX NETWORK

The Sydney Morning Herald
The Age
Adzuna
Domain
Drive
RSVP
Essential Baby
Home Price Guide
Weatherzone
Oneflare
The Store

M E D I A   R E L E A S E

7 February 2017

---

CLUBSNSW AND CROWNBET FORM HISTORIC PARTNERSHIP

ClubsNSW and CrownBet are pleased to announce a groundbreaking partnership for the provision of digital wagering services in NSW clubs.

The agreement follows ClubsNSW's extensive wagering review and tender process which saw CrownBet clearly beat Australia's largest wagering providers through their world-class wagering products, strong commitment to responsible gambling and substantial benefits for clubs of all sizes.

"More than 90% of clubs have been losing money on their TAB facilities in recent years as more and more people switch to online wagering," ClubsNSW CEO Anthony Ball said.

"Our arrangement with CrownBet will ensure all NSW clubs get their fair share from digital bets and will help ensure the industry's long-term viability. Small and regional clubs will be the biggest winners," he said.

The CrownBet affiliation will be available to clubs today. It will not necessarily affect existing retail betting infrastructure, but it will update and modernise the in-venue wagering experience.

"We're thrilled to receive this groundbreaking endorsement from ClubsNSW. Our plan is to change the entire wagering experience for the benefit of their members and guests," CrownBet CEO Matt Tripp said.

"We're going to offer a world-class digital wagering experience for punters in clubs right across NSW," Mr Tripp said.

CrownBet will integrate its market-leading CrownBet Rewards into club loyalty programs. Club members will be able to earn and redeem points in venue, including at club restaurants and cafés or over the bar.

"This is a watershed agreement which will bring clubs into the 21st century digital economy, helping all clubs stay relevant and profitable," Mr. Ball said.

END

FINANCIAL REVIEW

PREMIUM

Home
NEWS
BUSINESS
MARKETS
STREET TALK
REAL ESTATE
OPINION
TECHNOLOGY
PERSONAL FINANCE LEADERSHIP LIFESTYLE
ALL

Risk takers, growth makers, wealth creators.

Home / Business / Gambling

Oct 7 2016 at 11:45 PM | Updated Oct 7 2016 at 11:45 PM

Save Article | Print | License Article

Tabcorp aggressively bidding for horse racing broadcast rights

Tabcorp is pushing for new broadcast rights in several jurisdictions. bradleyphotos.com.au

FINANCIAL REVIEW | bhpbilliton

Business
Summit

afrsummit.com

Advertisement

by John Stensholt

Tabcorp is aggressively protecting its horse racing broadcast rights in several Australian states and New Zealand in the face of strong competition from Seven West Media and Racing Victoria's Racing.com joint venture.

Tabcorp, which broadcasts racing on its Sky Racing pay-television platform and online on its TAB website, recently shelled out big money to maintain access to vision in Western Australia and is currently locked in talks with racing authorities in South Australia and New Zealand to extend deals.

The extensions will be costly, with Racing.com having forced Tabcorp to pay as much as $26 million over the next six years for WA rights, about 10 times more than it was previously paying annually. Tabcorp has paid a premium to maintain its relationship with WA racing ahead of a mooted move by the state government to sell off the WA TAB agency. It is also set to clinch an extension to broadcast WA country thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing.

In South Australia, Tabcorp is in an exclusive negotiating period with racing authorities. It holds "first" and "last" rights, meaning it can negotiate before others and match any bids that may come in once the exclusive period ends. Racing.com is said to be keen to bid.

Related articles

Arnie to Donald: 'Why don't we switch jobs?'

45 mins ago

03/02/2017

Tabcorp aggressively bidding for horse racing broadcast rights | afr.com

Meanwhile, Tabcorp is also in protracted negotiations regarding rights to New Zealand racing. The rights have rolled over to Tabcorp for more than two years and negotiations with authorities across the Tasman with both Tabcorp and Racing.com have been on-going for at least 12 months.

Domestic and international broadcast rights are up for grabs, and New Zealand is also in the market for a company to manage its fixed-odds business. Tabcorp and corporate bookmakers including Sportsbet are in the market for that contract.

But Tabcorp is understood to be playing hard ball and has threatened to end its co-mingling relationship with New Zealand, where all bets are consolidated in the same pool, on October 31 – the day before the Melbourne Cup.

Tabcorp would not comment on the rights negotiations, and has denied it has made the co-mingling threat.

Racing.com was established in August last year, broadcasting Victorian thoroughbred racing and Hong Kong racing. Tabcorp also has rights to Victorian racing – several corporate bookmakers stream races on their websites – and NSW, though William Hill is understood to be paying $6 million annually and $3 million in marketing contributions for online streaming rights.

Tabcorp, meanwhile, will launch a digital advertising campaign that will run as the spring racing carnival reaches its peak with the Melbourne Cup on November 1.

Featuring trainer James Cummings, grandson of Bart Cummings, and other racing identities, the ads will promote Tabcorp's financial contribution to the thoroughbred and harness racing industries.

"The campaigns will celebrate the heroes of the industry, the wider community that benefits from that [funding] and we think it is right to inform the public how important the TAB is to the health of racing," Tabcorp chief executive David Attenborough said this week.

Sheila McGregor resigns from Seven board

Collingwood to launch online lottery

Tabcorp defends Tatts bid price as profits fall

It's a jungle out there for Tabcorp's CEO

Latest Stories

Snapchat parent files publicly for $US3b IPO

0 min ago

Trump's Turnbull snub 'healthy' for Australia

6 mins ago

ASIC builds case against directors of BBY

More

Related Quotes

Company Profile

The provision of gambling and other entertainment services. The company has wagering and media, gaming services, and Keno operations.

<http://www.tabcorp.com.au/>

Hotels, Restaurants & Leisure (253010)

ASIC 063780709

ASX Announcements

- 2/2/17 Intention to redeem Tabcorp Subordinated Notes
- 2/2/17 Dividend/Distribution - TAH
- 2/2/17 Half year results presentation
- ▲ 2/2/17 Appendix 4D and half year results announcement
- 30/1/17 Tabcorp Subordinated Notes Quarterly Report

View all announcements

TAH

Recommended

Smoking's good for you

The real reason why you always board a plane from the left side

Iron ore prices to pull back, says RBC

Short seller Jim Chanos warns markets could be on verge of...

Client deals help women climb the ranks at BCG

From Around the Web

2017 Investment Themes

AMP Capital

11 Rules For Building Wealth After 50

Motley Fool Australia

100-year-old-home wedged between apartment blocks hits

Domain

Updated Subaru BRZ price revealed

Subaru on Drive

How Lottoland Is Able to Make Their Jackpots Even Bigger

Lottoland Australia

Recommended by

THE AUSTRALIAN Financial Review Magazine

- Watch industry trends to watch
- Some ugly truths about fashion
- What 'Love Wins' author is reading
- The Aussie helping low-wage Americans invest
- Food trends 2017: we're going troppo

BOSS

- Funding footy helps build a better Australia
- 3 ways to avoid an awful business divorce
- Meet the nation's sharpest minds: Best of BOSS 2016
- Coca-Cola, ANZ and David Jones bet on social media
- How to create a good company culture

Life & Leisure

- Easy style for men
- This week's 5 best luxury properties
- Conquering the Iron Curtain on a shopping bike
- Haute couture faces down Paris fear with puffs of tulle
- Paris east fights back with village tactic

Special Reports

- Bidders into second round for NSW's land titles auction
- Deal to secure Alcoa's future in sight
- Paytm cashes in on demonetisation
- How Russia overtook China as cyber enemy No.1
- How to build digital leadership

MY FINANCIAL REVIEW

- My Alerts | Create alert
- Portfolio
- Account
- My Saved Articles (0)

MARKETS DATA

- Markets Overview
- Australian Equities
- World Equities
- Commodities
- Currencies
- Derivatives
- Interest Rates
- Share Tables

SUBSCRIPTION TERMS

- Digital Subscription Terms
- Newspaper Subscription Terms
- Corporate Subscriptions

BRANDS

- The Australian Financial Review Magazine
- BOSS
- BRW Lists
- Chanticleer
- Luxury
- Rear Window
- The Sophisticated Traveller

CONTACT & FEEDBACK

- About us
- Our Events
- FAQ
- Contact us
- Letters to the Editor
- Give feedback
- Advertise
- Site Map

CONNECT WITH US

- Facebook
- Twitter
- LinkedIn
- Instagram

FAIRFAX NETWORK

- The Sydney Morning Herald
- The Age
- Adzuna
- Domain
- Drive
- RSVP
- Essential Baby
- Home Price Guide
- Weatherzone
- Oneflare
- The Store

1 of 1 results

NewsRoom

2/3/17 Australian (Newspaper) 5
2017 WLNR 3380922

Australian

Copyright (c) 2017 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

February 3, 2017

Section: TheNation

Libs need last-gasp deal with Hanson

ANDREW BURRELL; EXCLUSIVE

Support for Pauline Hanson's One Nation is soaring across WesternAustralia ahead of next month's state election, in a dramatic shift that could deliver it lower house seats and help the Labor Party win government.

The latest Newspoll, taken exclusively for The Australian this week, suggests the rapid re-emergence of One Nation will hinder Premier Colin Barnett's attempt to win a third term on March 11.

The result will increase pressure on Mr Barnett — the nation's longest-serving leader — to negotiate a preference-swap deal with One Nation, which could be his only chance of hanging on to power.

With the campaign officially beginning this week, the Labor Party under Mark McGowan has increased its election-winning lead over the Liberal-National government.

The ALP leads by 54 per cent to 46 per cent in two-party preferred terms — up from 52-48 in the last Newspoll in October — which would deliver the party 14 more seats at the election and make Mr McGowan premier.

The Liberal Party's primary vote has slumped to just 30 per cent — its worst result in the Barnett era. Labor's primary vote also went backwards, from 41 per cent to 38 per cent.

But One Nation's share of the statewide primary vote soared from 3 per cent to 13 per cent, making it more likely the party will hold the balance of power in the upper house.

Senator Hanson unveiled her candidates for the election only last month after the party had been largely inactive in WesternAustralia for years.

One Nation's leader in the state, businessman Colin Tincknell, claimed last night that internal party polling was showing it could win more than 30 per cent of the vote in several seats in regional and outer-suburban areas, where the state's economic downturn was hitting hard.

Attributing One Nation's success to voters being sick of "political correctness", he said the party aimed to win the seats of Swan Hills, Darling Ranges, Baldivis, Central Wheatbelt, Roe, Moore, Pilbara, Kalgoorlie, Collie-Preston and Warren-Blackwood.

All but two of the seats are held by the Liberal-National government. "In those 10 seats, we are running second at the moment," Mr Tincknell said. "We can win them by polling 35 per cent (of the primary vote) and then picking up another 15 per cent of the vote on preferences." The Newspoll survey also asked One Nation voters about how they intended to allocate their preferences.

The flow of preferences was split roughly 50-50 between Labor and the Liberal-Nationals, which would boost Labor's chances in several conservative-held seats that it aims to win.

The Liberals are expected to attempt to strike a preference deal with One Nation, but Mr Tincknell said last night he expected One Nation would allocate preferences equally to both Liberal and Labor in different seats.

He defended the party's policy of opposing the sale of poles-and-wires utility Western Power, a move proposed by the Barnett government that would slash state debt by about $8 billion.

"Quick fixes are not the answer (to cutting debt)," he said. "Once you privatise — the TAB, Western Power, or the ports — once we get rid of all of our assets, history tells us that the cost of living goes up.

"So when you're on the margins, when you're a pensioner or a low-income worker, you can't afford to pay more for power or going down to have a bet." Mr Tincknell said he believed debt would need to be repaid slowly, but the best way to fix the budget was to create jobs. "I'm sick and tired of McGowan, Barnett and (Nationals leader Brendon) Grylls saying we can fix the budget in one term — they're just hoodwinking the public," he said.

According to Newspoll, Mr Barnett's personal approval ratings have improved slightly but remain among the lowest ever recorded by a state leader.

Only 32 per cent of voters are satisfied with his performance and 57 per cent are dissatisfied. In contrast, 46 per cent of voters are happy with Mr McGowan and 34 per cent are dissatisfied. On the question of who would make a better premier, 32 per cent nominated Mr Barnett and 44 per cent chose Mr McGowan.

---- Index References ----

News Subject: (Campaigns & Elections (1CA25); Global Politics (1GL73); Government (1GO80); Political Parties (1PO73); Public Affairs (1PU31); World Elections (1WO93))

Region: (Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); WesternAustralia (1WE82))

Language: EN

Other Indexing: (Pauline Hanson; McGowan; Brendon; Colin Tincknell; Colin Barnett; Warren-Blackwood)

Edition: Australian

Word Count: 697

---

End of Document

© 2017 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

NewsRoom

Privatising TAB back on track

The West Australian · 2 Feb 2017 · Daniel Emerson, Gary Adshead and Dylan Caporn

The WA TAB is all but certain to be privatised after the three major parties yesterday revealed they would go to the election in support of the previously contested move.

After first being touted in 2011 and added to the State Government's assets sales list in 2014, the privatisation had fallen off the political radar until Monday when the industry described continuing uncertainty as a "noose around (its) neck".

The WA Racing Representative Group has called for a "no worse off" privatisation committing $100 million to an infrastructure fund and guaranteeing recurrent yearly funding of at least $193.7 million from any buyer.

After being opposed at various stages by WA Labor, the Nationals and the industry and more recently put on the backburner by the Liberals, yesterday heralded a breakthrough. Premier Colin Barnett said "the position of the Liberal Government is yes, we would sell the TAB".

Opposition Leader Mark McGowan said: "If the racing industry is united and wants to sell it, then would agree with that."

Nationals leader Brendon Grylls said the industry model would "breathe new life back into the sport of racing".

WARRG chairman Michael Grant said last night: "We look forward to working with the next State government to find a positive outcome." The timing for the on-again, off-again Ellenbrook rail link has been brought forward but could still be more than 30 years away.

The final version of the Barnett Government's long-term transport plan was released online yesterday and has shifted the timing for the link — which is a spur line to Marshall Road in Malaga — so it will be ready before Perth's population hits 3.5 million in about 2050.

“...Racing Towards the 2017 State Election...”

The Racing Industry's position

The WA racing industry and its participants throughout the State call on the next elected State Government to support and invest in racing to sustain the industry and maximise the very significant economic contribution generated throughout the state

Prepared by the Western Australian Racing Representative Group (WARRG) on behalf of the WA racing industry

Racing activity is conducted throughout our entire State

Provincial and country racing make up the majority of race meetings

Racing is important to WA as it provides a total economic contribution of $821.1M each year <sup>(1)</sup>

58% of racing industry employment is outside of the metropolitan area

Western Australia Total

|   |                 |
|---|-----------------|
| Economic Contribution              | $821.1M |
| People Participating in Racing     | 24,459   |
| Full Time Employees <sup>(2)</sup> | 7,360    |
| Wagering Tax &amp; GST             | $62.5M  |
| Racegoers Attendance               | 823,000  |

(1) Size and Scope of the W.A. Racing Industry, IER, January 2016
 (2) Many of the FTEs within the racing industry are relatively unskilled

Uncertainty is causing a decline in confidence and investment in thoroughbred, harness and greyhound ownership

“The WA racing industry has a strong heartbeat but is facing more than its fair share of challenges which affects the rhythm and prosperity of the industry”

WA’s struggling economy and uncertainty over the future of the WA TAB has impacted confidence and resulted in declining investment of up to 40% across all three codes

RWWA and the Government have underfunded race clubs and infrastructure over the last decade which has resulted in there now being a >$100M need for investment in infrastructure and OHS

The WA Racing industry seeks support from the next elected State Government to work directly with each of the Industry codes to address many of the major issues and challenges facing racing and commit the necessary financial stimulus to reinvigorate one of WA’s most significant industries

(1) Includes interstate bred thoroughbred foals born in WA

Policy Platform 1: Strengthen the economic, social & community impact of racing

Policy Platform:

|                             |       |   |
|-----------------------------|-------|---|
| Metro Racing                | 1 (a) | Government to contribute investment into metropolitan racing carnivals such as the Masters Series, Ascot Autumn Racing Carnival, Inter Dominion Pacers Championship and Pacing Cup Series |
| All WA Racing               | 1 (b) | Reinstate Government infrastructure funding support to the industry (≈$20M over 4 years) that was previously provided via the RIGP and R4R programs                                      |
| Provincial & Country Racing | 1 (c) | Government to commit to funding of $1M per year for four years for an expansion of the Country Cups program into additional regional areas   |

Rationale for funding commitments

Metro racing is the primary economic driver of the industry, contributing >$500M of the $821M economic activity. It also inspires participants to invest in the industry, generates tourism and attracts the largest attendance levels.

Funding is needed to urgently address high-priority racing infrastructure requirements, particularly to address OSH issues, track sustainability and ensure amenities reflect contemporary community standards. Without funding support some community clubs won't survive

Country Cups generates tourism and economic benefits in regional areas. Expanding the Country Cups program will enable racing to drive tourism and economic benefits in more regional areas

Policy Platform 2: The next State Government to determine its WA TAB privatisation position in the first half of 2017

“Indecision affects confidence”

Indecision surrounding the proposed privatisation of the WA TAB continues to be a noose around the industry’s neck

The 2014/15 State Budget, released in May 2014, indicated that while no decisions had been made concerning individual assets, the Government would pursue an orderly program of asset sales overseen by the Premier. This included the Government’s continuing ownership of the WA TAB

Indecision about the proposed privatisation affects the WA racing industry in several ways:

- The WA TAB loses competitiveness when investment in medium to longer-term wagering initiatives are deferred;
- The level of sustainable funding generated by the WA TAB is not being maintained in real terms;
- Industry participants have less confidence in future prizemoney levels and investment in animal ownership declines; and
- Decreases in the numbers of animals racing reduces the quality of the racing product which further affects the funding generated as a result of smaller field sizes

Guiding consideration of the WA racing industry in relation to its position on post-privatisation funding arrangements

“Given that the WA Racing Industry has calibrated to the current funding levels, despite increased costs growing faster than returns in most cases, there is no room in the value chains for any less funding from wagering.”

Excerpt from: Ray Gunston (2014); Report to Western Australian Racing Representative (WARRG) On the Potential Privatisation of the Western Australian TAB

Policy Platform 3: The WA racing industry has formally adopted a position of conditional support of the WA TAB privatisation (1 of 3)

Components of Policy Platform 3: WA Racing will work constructively with the State Government to contribute to the development of an appropriate post-privatisation framework based upon the following:

(1) Includes race fields revenue plus the cost of race fields on other product; (2) NSW rate being progressively reduced to the VIC rate
 (3) Assuming 10% Gross Win on fixed odds turnover

Policy Platform 3: The WA racing industry has formally adopted a position of conditional support of the WA TAB privatisation (2 of 3)

Components of Policy Platform 3: The WA Racing industry will work constructively with the State Government to contribute to the development of an appropriate post-privatisation framework based upon the following:

3 (c)

Guarantee of an Infrastructure fund of “at least $100M” from the privatisation proceeds

Racing infrastructure across the three codes and >50 clubs is ageing and requires the establishment of a significant infrastructure fund managed by the racing industry to;

- Ensure each race track is in a suitable condition for racing so as to meet product supply commitments to an acquirer
- Repair and maintain assets which are broken or past their useful life
- Renew assets such as amenities for patrons to bring to a contemporary standard

Infrastructure funding has previously been supported by access to Government grants, however, the level of funding to meet the current backlog of requirements is >$100M and the State Government needs to commit funding from privatisation proceeds

3 (d)

“Responsible product expansion” within the existing TAB retail footprint

Comparison of product licences and approvals

|                                 | WA | VIC | NSW | TAS | ACT | QLD | SA | NT             |
|---------------------------------|----|-----|-----|-----|-----|-----|----|----------------|
| Pair-mutuel              |    |     |     |     |     |     |    | TAB Corporates |
| Racing                          | ✓  | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓  | ✓              |
| Sports                          | ✓  | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓  | ✓              |
| Fixed Odds               |    |     |     |     |     |     |    |                |
| Racing                          | ✓  | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓  | ✓              |
| Sports                          | ✓  | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓  | ✓              |
| Top Fluc                        |    |     |     |     |     |     |    | ✓              |
| SP                              |    |     |     |     |     |     |    | ✓              |
| Other Novelty Sports            | ✓  | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓  | ✓              |
| Exchange                        | ✗  | ✓   | ✗   | ✓   | ✗   | ✗   | ✗  | ✗              |
| Trackside                       | ✗  | ✓   | ✓   | ✗   | ✓   | ✗   | ✗  | ✗              |
| Keno                     |    |     |     |     |     |     |    |                |
| Retail                          | ✗  | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓  | ✗              |
| Online                          | ✗  | ✗   | ✗   | ✗   | ✓   | ✓   | ✗  | ✗              |
| Tote Derivatives         | ✗  | ✗   | ✗   | ✗   | ✗   | ✗   | ✗  | ✓              |
| In-play Betting - Retail | ✓  | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓   | ✓  | ✗              |

Product expansion examples + new products as they come to market

Poker machines within the TAB retail network are not proposed as part of the product expansion

Policy Platform 3: The WA racing industry has formally adopted a position of conditional support of the WA TAB privatisation (3 of 3)

Components of Policy Platform 3: The WA Racing will work constructively with the next State Government to contribute to the development of an appropriate post-privatisation framework based upon the following:

|       |   |  |
|-------|---|--|
| 3 (e) | Appropriate operating model with acquirer and industry agreed Principal Racing Authority (PRA) e.g. RWWA governance and integrity framework | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ The WA racing industry will have an ongoing exposure to the revenue profile of the acquirer for the term of the WA TAB licence. The risk of future wagering performance falls completely to the WA racing industry, and given the fragile calibration of the current funding model, any future decrease in funding would have dire consequences for the overall industry and consequently the WA economy.</li> <li>○ The acquirer and the WA racing industry need an appropriate structure put in place to govern the commercial, funding and working arrangements between each other</li> <li>○ It is essential that the WA racing industry contributes to the development and implementation of commercial and funding arrangements which protect the Industry's future revenue streams and forge a mutually beneficial relationship between the acquirer and the industry for the duration of the licence</li> <li>○ The most appropriate form of new PRA structure(s), inclusive of integrity framework, to be put in place will require extensive stakeholder consultation. It requires the racing industry to carefully consider the various options and provide recommendations to Government</li> </ul> |
|-------|---|--|

|   |   |
|---|---|
| Counterfactual:In the event the proposed privatisation of the WA TAB does not proceed | The WA racing industry expects to collaborate with the State Government to seek the same commitments in relation to taxation reform / parity, infrastructure funding and responsible product expansion, which remain relevant under a continuation of the current operating model |
|---|---|

Policy Platform 4: Committing to National Best Practice in Integrity & Animal Welfare

Strong and proactive management of integrity and animal welfare by RWWA and the racing clubs has meant WA has maintained national best practice and consequently been removed from the integrity issues experienced throughout the rest of Australia.

Funding commitments are required to maintain national best practice in integrity and animal welfare and exceed community standards and expectations. This includes broadening the reach and effectiveness of successful existing programs such as GAP and Off the Track as well as enhancement of race day and out of competition testing and stewarding functions.

All Enquiries:

Michael Grant

Chairman, Western Australian Racing Representative Group

E: gandgbloodstock@gmail.com

M: 0409 902 517

January 2017

INDIVIDUAL LICENCED VENUE AGREEMENT - SUMMARY OF KEY TERMS & CONDITIONS

ClubsNSW has appointed CrownBet as its exclusive Official Digital Wagering Advertising Partner and Official Daily Fantasy Sports Partner. The appointment of CrownBet will ensure that clubs in the ClubsNSW network are provided with a superior digital wagering service for their members and patrons, and are provided an equitable financial return.

All clubs now have the option of engaging CrownBet to provide exclusive digital wagering services, by way of an Individual Licenced Venue Agreement (ILVA). The ILVA sets out the terms and conditions of the relationship between the club and CrownBet.

ClubsNSW has negotiated the commercial terms of the ILVA with CrownBet on behalf of all clubs and sought legal advice from Baker McKenzie with respect to the provisions contained in the ILVA.

The ILVA cannot be altered by CrownBet without prior consent from ClubsNSW.

A summary of the ILVA's key terms and conditions is provided below. This is a high level summary only. You should read the ILVA (and the accompanying CrownBet Guidelines) in full and ensure you understand all rights and obligations set out in the ILVA before signing anything.

|                                  |   |
|----------------------------------|---|
| Term &amp; Exclusivity    | An initial period of 10 years, during which CrownBet is appointed as the club's exclusive "Official Digital Wagering Advertising Partner" and "Official Daily Fantasy Sports Partner".  |
| Capital Investment        | There is no up-front capital outlay required by the club.   |
| Impact on retail wagering | The engagement of CrownBet to provide digital wagering services does not prevent the club from maintaining a TAB retail wagering facility. However, in order to provide both retail and digital wagering services, it is likely that the club's current Licensed Venue TAB Distribution Services Agreement (TAB Agreement) will need to be terminated and replaced by a new agreement that removes any restriction on the Club promoting alternate digital wagering services to members and patrons. Alternatively the club can switch solely to digital wagering by terminating the TAB Agreement. In all cases, the Club must ensure that it fully complies with its obligations under the TAB Agreement, including, in particular, any exclusivity obligations. If the Club wishes to terminate the TAB Agreement, it must ensure that it does so strictly in accordance with the terms of the agreement, including any specified Minimum Term and any minimum period for notice of termination (typically 60 days). |
| Profit Share              | CrownBet agrees to pay the club quarterly a profit share of 30% on wagering revenue received in respect of all Attributable Customers (eg club members who register as a CrownBet customer within 45 days of any direct communication to them by the club). The profit share is calculated as follows: (Net Attributable Wagering Revenue – Marketing Costs – Capital Charge) x 30% - Adjustment for Prior Period Losses<sup>1</sup>  |

<sup>1</sup> Refer Appendix 1 for a worked example

|   |  |
|---|--|
|   | The profit share applies to all bets regardless of whether they are placed inside or outside of the club and will be payable for the lifetime of the CrownBet customer. However, if the wagering activity occurs in another participating club, that club will earn the profit share for those bets and not your club.  |
| CrownBet Rewards loyalty program | Club members and patrons will be able to participate in the CrownBet Rewards loyalty program. This will allow them to earn and redeem CrownBet Rewards points based on their CrownBet digital wagering activity. They will also be able to redeem their CrownBet Rewards points at the club, following completion of the necessary technical integration. CrownBet will reimburse the club, in full, for the value of any CrownBet Rewards points redeemed in the club.  |
| Marketing                        | CrownBet will work with you to develop a marketing plan to launch the digital wagering service to members and patrons, which will include electronic marketing to members. CrownBet will provide the club with all the necessary marketing materials and collateral to conduct marketing and promotional activities. CrownBet will also offer the following six specific marketing promotions, which have been designed to drive increased club patronage and the acquisition of customers: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) First Matched Deposit;</li> <li>(b) Digital Corporate Bookmaker Buy Out</li> <li>(c) CrownBet Rewards 'Double Points'</li> <li>(d) CrownBet Rewards Incentive (Asterix);</li> <li>(e) Crown Resorts Accommodation Discount; and</li> <li>(f) One way transfer of CrownBet Rewards points to in-club redemptions</li> </ul> |
| Access to CrownBet Dashboard     | CrownBet will provide you with access to a near-to-live self-service online 'Dashboard' reporting tool containing (at a minimum) the following key metrics on members' activity with CrownBet: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(a) Net Wagering Revenue generated by CrownBet customers;</li> <li>(b) CrownBet customers acquired;</li> <li>(c) Total CrownBet Rewards points earned and redeemed by customers;</li> <li>(d) Total CrownBet Rewards redemptions made in-club;</li> <li>(e) Marketing costs;</li> <li>(f) Cost of goods sold; and</li> <li>(g) Such other information agreed to.</li> </ul>   |
| Provision of equipment           | CrownBet will pay finance, supply, and install all of the equipment and related services necessary to offer digital wagering services in the club (i.e. television/digital screens, signage, Wi-Fi internet, sign-up stations, mobile phone charging stations, etc.) in a designated area allocated as the 'CrownBet Advertising Zone'.   |

|   |  |
|---|--|
| Ownership of equipment           | The club does not have any title to or ownership of the equipment in the CrownBet Zone, other than equipment that has been purchased by the club.  |
| Maintenance of equipment         | CrownBet will use reasonable endeavours to maintain and keep the equipment in good technical working order. The club will be required to report any technical issues to the CrownBet Account Representative. If the equipment is lost, stolen or damaged whilst on the premises CrownBet (or a relevant third party) will repair or replace the equipment (as applicable) entirely at your cost and expense.  |
| Your obligations                 | The club will be required, among other things, to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• send electronic direct marketing (EDMs) and other correspondence to club members in accordance with the marketing plans developed in consultation with CrownBet;</li> <li>• assist CrownBet to install equipment in the CrownBet Advertising Zone;</li> <li>• ensure sufficient power and power points are available in the CrownBet Advertising Zone;</li> <li>• ensure that the CrownBet Advertising Zone is kept clean and well presented at all times;</li> <li>• display promotional material provided by CrownBet and promote the club's association with CrownBet; and</li> <li>• display CrownBet proprietary odds data and feed on the applicable equipment (as agreed with CrownBet) at all times.</li> </ul> |
| Insurance                        | The club will be required to hold public and products liability insurance cover in the amount of $20 million in respect of any one occurrence, and at least $20 million in respect of the annual aggregate.  |
| Crown Sydney and Gaming          | No content or marketing collateral will be sent to clubs or members and patrons that promotes any product or service of the Crown Sydney property, or any gaming product or service. Customers will be restricted from redeeming their CrownBet Reward points on Crown Sydney offerings.   |
| Data Ownership                   | The club will retain ownership of all Intellectual Property Rights in its member database. After a member becomes a CrownBet customer, CrownBet will collect data in respect of that member when they register and wager with CrownBet and CrownBet will own any Intellectual Property Rights in and to that data.   |
| Termination for Poor Performance | CrownBet has set the club annual targets for the acquisition of new CrownBet customers. These annual targets are expressed as a percentage of the club's member database. If the club fails to meet its annual targets by 50% or more in two consecutive years, either CrownBet or the club may terminate the ILVA.  |

Appendix 1 - Quarterly Profit Share Worked Example

| CLUBS NSW - LARGE VENUE (WORKED EXAMPLE - NOTE ALL NUMBERS ARE ILLUSTRATIVE ONLY) | Q1                  | Q2                 | Q3                  | Q4                 | YEARLY TOTAL        |
|---|---------------------|--------------------|---------------------|--------------------|---------------------|
| Licensed Venue Stake  | $ 2,135,555        | $ 101,523         | $ 4,392,857        | $ 1,910,092       | $ 8,540,027        |
| Network GWR Margin  | 11.00%              | 9.85%              | 11.20%              | 10.85%             | 11.06%              |
| Licensed Venue Gross Wagering Revenue   | $ 234,911          | $ 10,000          | $ 492,000          | $ 207,245         | $ 944,156          |
| Cost of Goods Sold   |                     |                    |                     |                    |                     |
| Product Fees  | $ (43,459)         | $ (1,850)         | $ (91,020)         | $ (38,340)        | $ (174,669)        |
| GST   | $ (21,377)         | $ (910)           | $ (44,772)         | $ (18,859)        | $ (85,918)         |
| Bonus Bets  | $ (12,685)         | $ (540)           | $ (26,568)         | $ (11,191)        | $ (50,984)         |
| Loyalty   | $ (21,142)         | $ (900)           | $ (44,280)         | $ (18,652)        | $ (84,974)         |
| Transaction fees  | $ (7,047)          | $ (300)           | $ (14,760)         | $ (6,217)         | $ (28,325)         |
| Total Cost of Goods Sold   | $ (105,710) | $ (4,500)  | $ (221,400) | $ (93,260) | $ (424,870) |
| Net Attributable Wagering Revenue (NAWR)                                   | $ 129,201   | $ 5,500    | $ 270,600   | $ 113,985  | $ 519,286   |
| Marketing Costs   | $ (10,200)         | $ (19,300)        | $ (10,299)         | $ (9,659)         | $ (49,458)         |
| Capital Charge  | $ (3,462)          | $ (3,462)         | $ (3,462)          | $ (3,462)         | $ (13,849)         |
| NAWR after Marketing &amp; Capital   | $ 115,539   | $ (17,262) | $ 256,839   | $ 100,864  | $ 455,979   |
| Cumulative NAWR for distribution after Marketing & Capital                        | $ 115,539          | $ 98,277          | $ 355,115          | $ 455,979         | $ 455,979          |
| VENUE CALCULATIONS   |                     |                    |                     |                    |                     |
| 30% of NAWR after Marketing & Capital   | $ 34,662           | $ (5,179)         | $ 77,052           | $ 30,259          | $ 136,794          |
| Adjustment for Prior Period Losses  | $ -                | $ -               | $ (5,179)          | $ -               | $ -                |
| Club Profit Share  | $ 34,662    | $ -        | $ 71,873    | $ 30,259   | $ 136,794   |
| CROWN BET CALCULATIONS   |                     |                    |                     |                    |                     |
| 70% of NAWR after Marketing & Capital   | $ 80,877           | $ (12,084)        | $ 179,787          | $ 70,604          | $ 319,185          |
| Adjustment for Portion of Venue Losses  | $ -                | $ (5,179)         | $ -                | $ -               | $ (5,179)          |
| Adjustment for Portion of Venue Repayments  | $ -                | $ -               | $ 5,179            | $ -               | $ 5,179            |
| CrownBet Carrying Position   | $ 80,877    | $ (17,262) | $ 184,966   | $ 70,604   | $ 319,185   |
| Checksum (Club Profit Share + CrownBet Carrying Position)                  | $ 115,539   | $ (17,262) | $ 256,839   | $ 100,864  | $ 455,979   |

Financial Definitions

Gross wagering revenue (GWR) is the venue's stake multiplied by the network gross wagering revenue margin (where the network gross wagering revenue margin represents the margin % for all ClubsNSW's venues combined)

Net Attributable Wagering Revenue (NAWR) is the venue's GWR less certain costs made up of:

- Bonus and promotional bets
- Product fees (fees paid to racing and sports bodies)
- Transaction fees
- GST and any other required taxes
- Licence fees
- CrownBet Rewards costs
- Customer verification fees
- Entertainment costs (within agreed budget caps)
- Affiliate costs

NAWR after Marketing & Capital is the venue's NAWR, less the costs of the agreed ClubsNSW marketing promotions and the capital charge. The venue will receive 30% of this value as its profit share, adjusted for any prior losses.

WA budget: Opposition slams Western Power privatisation as business groups applaud

By Nicolas Perpitch

Updated Thu 12 May 2016, 8:08pm

Opposition Leader Mark McGowan has slammed the West Australian Government's intention to privatise Western Power as a "disastrous" plan that the Premier himself has previously recognised was irresponsible.

Treasurer Mike Nahan today announced the Government would take the proposed sale of Western Power to the next election and seek a mandate to sell it in the next term of government.

The Pilbara poles and wires of Horizon Power would also be sold off.

Spelling out their reaction to the budget, the peak business and mining groups expressed their strong support for privatisation as a way to pay off debt.

But unions warned they would campaign strongly against the move in the run up to next March's state election.

Dr Nahan estimated $16 billion in revenue would be raked in from the sale of Western Power, Horizon Power and Fremantle Port.

He announced $11 billion would be used to pay down debt and help regain the state's AAA credit rating, while $5 billion would be placed in an infrastructure fund to pay for capital works.

State's finances 'wrecked': Opposition

Mr McGowan labelled it a "sneaky privatisation plan of essential services".

"It's a disaster of a plan," he told reporters.

The Labor leader said Premier Colin Barnett had repeatedly said he would not sell Western Power.

"He said it was economically irresponsible to sell off those assets. He said it would damage services across Western Australia," he said.

"He said it would damage services across Western Australia. And now he's going back on his word.

"The Government has just wrecked Western Australia's finances. They've got a shaky plan to have a fire sale of important State Government assets.

"It's no way to govern Western Australia."

Privatisation welcomed by business

But the Chamber of Commerce and Industry WA said the asset sales would wipe significant debt off the budget balance sheet.

"The sale of these assets will allow these assets to be more efficiently run in the private sector, it will improve the efficiency of government and will also allow the Government very importantly to reduce debt and set aside funds to invest in future economic infrastructure," CCI chief executive Deidre Willmott said.

PHOTO: Mr McGowan says selling assets is "a disaster of a plan". (ABC News: Andrew O'Connor)

MAP: WA

The Chamber of Minerals and Energy also welcomed the privatisation announcement.

But chief executive Reg Howard-Smith said it was not enough.

"The revenue from the sale of assets will in part assist in reducing the budget deficit which regrettably has increased in this year's budget," Mr Howard-Smith said.

"Additional reductions in State Government expenditure will be needed."

Power sale an election campaign issue: unions

Unions were already campaigning against privatisation before the budget, and made clear today they would fight the move until polling day in March.

Electrical Trade Union state secretary Les McLaughlan said it was a "fire sale".

"And when you have a fire sale you sell off things cheap just to try and get a grab for cash," Mr McLaughlan said.

"And we will gladly take this on at the election."

He predicted the community would oppose privatisation, which he said would be the undoing of the Barnett Government.

"It's a foolish thing to do and they should back away from that before they make a huge mistake that our community will pay for for generations to come," he said.

United Voice State secretary Carolyn Smith said privatisation did not work.

"We've seen very directly what privatisation has meant with Serco at Fiona Stanley Hospital," Ms Smith said.

"It's a failed model. Why he thinks it's going to work with electricity, with ports, is absolutely beyond me."

---

From other news sites:

- News.com.au: WA Budget 2016: Nahan blames low commodity prices, less GST for budget deficit
- The Sydney Morning Herald: WA State Budget 2016: The biggest deficit in history
- SBS: WA budget in the red for second year
- Sky News: WA budget still in the red
- PerthNow: WA Budget 2016: Nahan blames low commodity prices, less GST for worst budget in WA history

Powered by  bing

Find out more about these links

---

Topics: budget, government-and-politics, wa

First posted Thu 12 May 2016, 7:46pm

WA Premier softens stance on Western Power privatisation in wake of 'Mediscare' success

Source: ABC Premium News
Publication Date: July 7, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Broadcast

7/7/16 Austl. Broad. Corp. (ABC) News (Pg. Unavail. Online)

News

Copyright (c) 2016 ABC
Andrew O'Connor

Thursday, July 7, 2016

The West Australian Government softens its stance on the planned privatisation of Western Power to head off what Premier Colin Barnett predicts will be a massive scare campaign in next year's state election.

The West Australian Government has softened its stance on the planned privatisation of Western Power to head off what Premier Colin Barnett predicts will be a massive scare campaign in next year's state election.

In his first public appearance since the federal election, where the Coalition Government suffered major losses on the back of Labor's Medicare scare campaign, Mr Barnett said he would carefully evaluate the public mood.

"I think that signals to me there is no doubt the Labor Party will run a scare campaign around privatisation," he said.

"My job, if we do go down that path, I've got to get public support and at the moment I don't think that is there, but I'll be talking to people face to face over the next few months about that."

The Premier's comments represent a significant shift in the Government's commitment to its privatisation agenda, which stands as the centrepiece of its debt reduction plan.

The Barnett Government has been slammed for its financial management, with , and debt heading towards $40 billion by 2020.

It wants to , to help to fund capital works and ease the state's growing debt, and fund future infrastructure spending.

The Government had planned to take the issue to the March 2017 election, in the hope of securing a mandate from voters to proceed with the sale.

In May, the ABC reported the Electrical Trades Union released polling that showed and diminished the Government's chances of re-election.

At the time, Dr Nahan dismissed the polls as union "propaganda", and he guaranteed the Barnett Government would stick with its policy to evaluate and consider the sale ahead of the election.

"We will map it out and we will convince the public that this is the right, once we specify what we're going to do, this is the right move to take," Dr Nahan said in May.

Public 'hesitant' on privatisation: Premier

But in the wake of the weekend federal election result and the apparent success of the 'Mediscare' campaign, Mr Barnett has shifted to a more cautious approach, leaving the door open to shelve the idea.

"I've always been a realist on privatisation. The Australian public is always hesitant about that, and will take some time to accept it," he said.

"I think you really can only privatise a major government asset if you have a sense the community is accepting of it."

Mr Barnett said he did not believe the proposal to sell off Western Power currently had that support.

"I don't think the community is particularly accepting of selling Western Power but I will, at a lot of public meetings and discussions, I will try to gauge that as best I can."

With after the Nationals opposed the deal, the Government has been left with only Western Power and the TAB as significant privatisation targets.

Mr Barnett believes there is public support for selling the TAB, but the Government needs to secure industry support.

"I don't think any sale could be completed [before the election], but I hope we can get a broad agreement, certainly with the racing industry, that it is in the racing industry's interest that the TAB be privately owned."

Premier trying to create confusion: Opposition

The State Opposition insists it will run a positive campaign built around its plan for jobs, the MetroNet public transport project.

But Opposition Leader Mark McGowan said WA Labor would be clear about the risks of privatising assets like Western Power and Fremantle Port.

He is unconvinced by the Premier's more cautious and consultative approach.

"If the Liberal Party wins the next state election they will flog off Western Power and Fremantle Port in a heartbeat. That's what will happen," he said.

Mr McGowan said the public statements on privatisation by both the Premier and Treasurer have made their support for privatisation clear.

"They can't back away from that they've said. They have made it totally clear what they plan," he said.

"Now he's trying to muddy the water and create confusion around the issue.

"But my view, and anyone who has watched their commentary, particularly Mike Nahan's, is they'll privatise, they'll sell, they'll flog for whatever price they can get, Western Power and Fremantle Port."

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: FREMANTLE PORT AUTHORITY; METRONET PTY LTD; WESTERN POWER CORP

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Campaigns & Elections (1CA25); Corporate Events (1CR05); Global Politics (1GL73); Government (1GO80); Political Parties (1PO73); Privatization (1PR92); Public Affairs (1PU31); World Elections (1WO93)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40)

OTHER INDEXING: (liberal party) (Mike Nahan; Colin Barnett; Mark McGowan)

WORD COUNT: 746

West Australian Liberal voters oppose Western Power sale

SHARE

TWEET

MORE

Almost half of Liberal voters in WA Treasurer Mike Nahan's safe seat of Riverton are opposed to the proposed privatisation of utility Western Power, according to ReachTel data.

The sale is the centrepiece of the Barnett government's asset sales plan as it strives to fix its ailing finances, and was initially expected to fetch $15 billion but expectations were revised downwards to $12 billion at the state budget in May.

Liberal Party's plan to sell Western Power does not seem to be supported by Liberal voters. Photo: Erin Jonasson

Premier Colin Barnett was initially opposed to the sale but Dr Nahan convinced him of the financial necessity, although he said July that public support was essential.

About 1000 people in the southern suburbs seat were canvassed last month, with 49.35 per cent of respondents who said they would vote Liberal at the March state election saying they were against privatising the electricity poles and wires operator.

Only 21.41 per cent supported it while 29.24 per cent were undecided

MOST POPULAR

- 1 Ben Cousins back in court as he fights to be free for Christmas
- 2 Non-stop Perth to London flights could cost 40 per cent more: aviation expert
- 3 All trained up with nowhere to go: WA's hundreds of unemployed nurses
- 4 WA beautician who touched clients during treatments loses fight over sex crimes
- 5 'Free to a good home': Perth mum offers to sell her 'frustrating' daughter

12/13/2016

West Australian Liberal voters oppose Western Power sale

Only 21.41 per cent supported it while 29.24 per cent were undecided.

"There is no doubt that the Liberal Party's plan to sell Western Power is not supported by the community, even in Dr Nahan's own electorate," opposition energy spokesman Bill Johnston told AAP on Monday.

Among Labor voters canvassed by ReachTel, 77.7 per cent were against the transaction.

Labor says the sale is a one-off, short-term 'sugar hit' that will deny the state recurrent income.

Western Power's recently released 2016 annual report shows it paid $400.9 million in dividends to the state government during the year to June 30.

Mr Johnston said the plan was against the interests of the state economy and was clearly opposed by the community.

"It's a bad idea, and that's why WA Labor is opposed to it," he said.

Dr Nahan said on Monday the state government was finalising the privatisation options.

"We'll go through a whole range of issues in the next few weeks. We will enunciate the approach that we're going to take to the transaction," he said.

Labor leader Mark McGowan told a business forum last week that selling off monopoly assets was always fraught with danger.

"The one thing worse than a public monopoly is a private monopoly," Mr McGowan said at the time.

The proposal is being fiercely fought by the Electrical Trades Union and Australian Services Union, which cite Victoria's deadly Black Saturday bushfires as an example of why such important infrastructure should not be placed into private hands.

- AAP

EVERY JOB. EVERYWHERE. FOR YOU

Java Developer

Perth, Perth Region

ASPNet Developer

Perth CBD, Perth

e.g.job,company,title

Please select region

Search jobs on Adzuna

Recommended

Why people stay in unhealthy relationships
DAILY LIFE

Say Goodbye To Snoring With This Cool Trick ONLINE HEALTH WIKI

Opposition leader driving force behind woman's vehicle rescue
WA NEWS

Built to keep the Americans out of Canada - bet they wish it still did...
INTERNATIONAL TRAVELLER

What it would take to Test Your Knowledge With

PROPERTY NEWS

Reservoir: has this up-and-coming ...

Melbourne property: what buyers can get ...

FOLLOW WA TODAY

NEWSLETTERS

12/13/2016

West Australian Liberal voters oppose Western Power sale

replace the age pension
MONEY

This WWII Quiz
HOWSTUFFWORKS

We're So Glad These Companies Decided To Change Their Names
THE HUFFINGTON POST

Qantas to fly direct to Bali this summer
AWOL

The photo that captures a mum's shock at delivery room surprise
ESSENTIAL BABY

Mysterious houseboat washes up on Irish shore after crossing the...
DOMAIN

Recommended by

COMPARE & SAVE

Get a better home loan deal & you could WIN $10,000*

ENTER NOW

Need a Credit Card? Access exclusive Credit Card offers

COMPARE NOW

Property Investment Join our property investment hub today

ACCESS NOW

Calculate your borrowing power! Compare 25+ lenders & find out how much you can afford to borrow

GET STARTED

MOST VIEWED TODAY

WA NEWS

All trained up with nowhere to go: WA's hundreds of unemployed...

Non-stop Perth to London flights could cost 40 per cent more:...

WA beautician who touched clients during treatments loses fight ove...

Two dead after car collides head-on with road train in WA's south

Barnett explains $14 million public funding for Perth-London flights

All trained up with nowhere to go: WA's hundreds of unemployed...

Time, not money, the reason for split with Nine: Brayshaw

Making a mint from sending products from the Big Apple

Non-stop Perth to London flights could cost 40 per cent more:...

WA beautician who touched clients during treatments loses fight ove...

It's time we called out Daily Mail's treatment of Sam Armytage for...

Hottest day since last summer on the way

Making a mint from sending products from the Big Apple

Minutes from retirement, he blasted his bosses in a company-...

NSW Treasury braces for Sydney property market slowdown

DREAM HOMES
Connolly

5 4 2

DREAM HOMES
Brighton, Vic

3 4 3

DREAM HOMES
Sippy Downs, Qld

5 3 2

12/13/2016

West Australian Liberal voters oppose Western Power sale

PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

AM Edition
PM Edition
Good Food Guide
Newsletters

WA TODAY

Sitemap
About Us
Contact Us
Advertise With Us
Text Version
Site Accessibility Guide

CLASSIFIEDS

Classifieds & Notices
Cars
Dating
Jobs
Real Estate
Commercial Real Estate
Oneflare
Nabo

OUR SITES

SMH
The Age
AFR.com
Adzuna
Domain
Drive
RSVP
Essential Baby
Home Price Guide
Weatherzone

WEBSITE FEEDBACK

Member Centre News Store Archive Fairfax Syndication Careers Events Press Council

Copyright © 2016

Western Power: Labor escalates anti-privatisation push, vows never to sell utility

By Andrew O'Connor

Posted Mon 17 Oct 2016, 4:12pm

PHOTO: Mark McGowan says Western Power is a critical public asset. (ABC News: Andrew O'Connor)

WA Labor is intensifying its campaign against the privatisation of Western Power, launching a public petition calling on the Barnett Government to abandon the plan.

Labor leader Mark McGowan was joined by Labor candidates contesting seats at the March election, as they sought public support for the campaign in the centre of Perth.

"We do not want Western Power privatised. We will stand against the privatisation of Western Power and we will make this a major issue in the lead up to the next election," he said.

Western Power is the latest in a string of public assets targeted for sale by the financially-pressed Barnett Government.

After delivering record debt and deficits in the May state budget, the Government wants to use asset sales to curb spiralling debt, and fund capital works.

Sale would be 'serious mistake'

But WA Labor argues the Western Power is a critical public asset and a source of revenue for the cash-strapped Government, and believes selling it would be a serious mistake.

Mr McGowan said the utility, which owns the poles and wires which distribute electricity across the state's south-west, is efficient, profitable and returns a dividend to the state.

RELATED STORY: Western Power sale plan to be revealed soon

RELATED STORY: Western Power sale to Australian super funds has 'appeal', WA Premier says

RELATED STORY: Western Power debt could be sold to super funds

RELATED STORY: Western Power sale dismissed by Labor as answer to soaring debt

MAP: WA

"If you sell off Western Power, you will lose that ongoing dividend, that ongoing revenue to the people of the state," he said.

"I think that is a major point. If you lose $550 million-plus in revenue, in dividends and tax-equivalent payments to the people of the state, that money has to be made up somewhere."

'Recycling assets' beneficial, says Treasurer

With Western Power's debt about $8 billion, WA Treasurer Mike Nahan argues privatisation of the utility would punch a big hole in the Government's overall debt, projected to be $33.8 billion by the end of the financial year.

Dr Nahan said the Government would be mindful of public opinion on the issue.

"We represent the public and we have gone about this very cautiously," he said.

But he said both Liberal and Labor state governments on the east coast demonstrated the value of recycling public assets which no longer needed to be in government ownership.

"The fastest growing states right now are New South Wales and Victoria, based in large part, on construction, funded in large part by the recycling of assets that they no longer need and investing in assets they do need," he said.

Mr McGowan and Labor candidates sought signatures from shoppers and lunchtime diners in Forrest Chase, in the next step what would be a five-month campaign against privatisation.

"We'll be aiming for many thousands of signatures and our candidates and members will be out there campaigning on this issue in the lead up to the next election," he said.

Topics: electricity-energy-and-utilities, government-and-politics, wa

Western Power sale: Government allies draw closer to privatisation agreement

By Andrew O'Connor

Updated Tue 18 Oct 2016, 8:57pm

The WA Liberals and Nationals are edging closer to forming a united front on the sale of state-owned electricity supplier Western Power, which is shaping as a key battleground for the state election next year.

Treasurer Mike Nahan unveiled plans to sell the utility in the state budget in May, with funds used to retire some of the state's ballooning debt as well as fund infrastructure.

The Nationals, who form government in Western Australia with the Liberal Party, have flagged support for the idea, but only if the funds were quarantined for capital works and infrastructure.

Now less than five months out from the next state election, the Treasurer yesterday suggested the bulk of the funds from any sale of Western Power would be directed to capital works.

State Nationals leader Brendon Grylls this morning said his party was open to the idea of selling some assets, including Western Power.

"The sell-down of Western Power, to facilitate investment in infrastructure, help grow the state and keep people in jobs is critically important," he said.

Mr Grylls is also pushing for a $5 a tonne iron ore tax on the state's biggest miners, Rio Tinto and BHP Billiton, to help pay off state debt, and indicated his party was looking for agreement with their government alliance partner on both issues.

"I'm hopeful that both on revenue and on asset sales, the Liberals and Nationals can take a policy to the election," he said.

Partial sale on cards

WA Nationals State President James Hayward told ABC radio the party would support a partial sale of Western Power.

"Our view I think is that we'd only support half," Mr Hayward said.

"But that's still all to be worked out. There's certainly no proposal at the moment to sell Western Power."

But he said support for the sale would be contingent on a clear benefit in using the funds for other projects.

"The sale of half of Western Power could raise something like $10 billion," he said.

"Our view is that that money should immediately [go] into large scale infrastructure programs that create jobs.

"We need to work out ways that we can get large amounts of money to build some of these state building projects."

Premier Colin Barnett said he would be seeking a shared policy position with the Nationals on Western Power.

PHOTO: The privatisation of Western Power is expected to raise billions of dollars. (ABC News: Andrew O'Connor)

RELATED STORY: Labor vows never to sell-off Western Power

RELATED STORY: Western Power sale plan to be revealed soon

RELATED STORY: Western Power sale dismissed by Labor as answer to soaring debt

MAP: WA ●

Key points:

- Liberal Party wants to sell Western Power to pay off state debt
- Nationals flagged support but want money used to create jobs
- Labor has vowed to fight the sale as an election issue

"We will be having some discussions. The Liberal Party has its view as to what we should do. We'll be discussing that with the National Party and if there's agreement, then we'll declare that publicly," he said.

Mr Barnett said no final decision had been made on selling the utility.

He said the options for selling Western Power would first be discussed at Cabinet and then with the Liberal Party room.

The Nationals are expected to debate the issue at the party's state conference in Geraldton at the end of this month.

Labor vows to fight privatisation bid

Labor leader Mark McGowan challenged Mr Barnett to what he described as a "town hall debate" on the possibility of selling Western Power, saying the public deserved the chance to quiz the Government.

"There are town hall meetings going on across Perth and I will meet Mr Barnett any time, any day, any place to debate this issue," he said.

"There are a lot of Western Power workers are concerned about their jobs, ordinary people in the suburbs are worried about the loss of this important public asset."

Electrical Trades Union state secretary Les McLaughlan said selling Western Power would increase the risk of bushfires around the state, claiming it would "without a doubt" lead to reduced maintenance of the poles and wires network.

"If you bring a private enterprise in, they are there to make profit for their shareholders and they will look to save money," he said.

"Where they have saved money in the past is maintenance."

Topics: government-and-politics, wa

First posted Tue 18 Oct 2016, 6:42pm

WA:WA electricity supply at risk: Labor

Source: AAP Newswire
Publication Date: October 23, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newswire

10/23/16 AAP Newswire 19:36:19

News

Copyright © 2016 Australian Associated Press

PERTH, Oct 23 AAP - Privatising WA's poles and wires utility Western Power would be a mistake that would cost the state $550 million a year and threaten electricity supply, says state Labor leader Mark McGowan.

The Labor opposition ramped up its campaign against the privatisation last week - holding media events every day, including launching a public petition and visiting at a transformer manufacturing business whose contract with Western Power had been axed, costing 80 jobs.

The Liberal National government's Treasurer Mike Nahan wants to sell Western Power, Fremantle Port and the TAB betting agency and use a significant part of the proceeds to pay down debt.

Western Power's $8 billion in debt represents about a quarter of government borrowings.

Mr McGowan says that as well as risking jumps in electricity prices and a fall in service quality - with the government denies will occur - the risk to supply was the most serious issue.

"Mr Nahan doesn't look at these issues based upon facts, he looks at them based upon his ideology and his ideology is extreme privatisation, that's what he wants to do to Western Power," Mr McGowan told reporters on Sunday.

"I think my position is the conservative position, it's the safe position - don't sell off an asset that provides an essential service in a monopoly environment when you can't connect into the other states' electricity supplies and where the asset provides a huge revenue to taxpayers."

The Barnett government fought back against Labor during the week, floating the idea of a 50 per cent-plus sale of Western Power in which it would be floated on the share market and both mum and dad investors and superannuation funds could separately buy shares.

Super funds were key players in the controversial $16 billion Ausgrid sale in NSW, which blocked a Chinese bid.

AAP GR/EVT

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: AUSGRID; FREMANTLE PORT AUTHORITY

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92)

INDUSTRY: Electric Utilities (1EL82); Electric Utilities Generation (1EL37); Electric Utilities Generators (1EL15); Energy & Fuel (1EN13); Utilities (1UT12)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)

OTHER INDEXING: (Mike Nahan; Mark McGowan)

WORD COUNT: 304

Home / News / Policy

Nov 30 2016 at 12:37 PM | Updated Dec 1 2016 at 8:47 AM

Save ArticlePrintLicense Article

Colin Barnett to sell Western Power to raise $11b

The sale of Western Power will be a key election battleground ahead of the March poll. Erin Jonsson

by Julie-anna Sprague Angela Macdonald-Smith

The West Australian government has blacklisted foreign investors from the first stage of the $11 billion privatisation of the state's electricity grid which it hopes will secure it a third term in office.

The Barnett government wants to float 51 per cent of Western Power in a deal that will generate $11 billion to cut ballooning debt and pay for education and transport infrastructure.

The plan which the Labor opposition, along with unions, staunchly oppose is likely to be the key issue in the state election in March.

Premier Colin Barnett, who until this year opposed any sale, said on Wednesday he wanted to keep the asset in Australian hands and has set "indicative targets" for ownership of any shares issued in a prospectus.

In an attempt to pre-empt a potential scare campaign about foreign ownership of the electricity network, Mr Barnett said about 30 per cent of shares via the float would be allocated to Australian superannuation funds and 20 per cent reserved for "mum and dad retail investors", including Western Power employees.

But Mr Barnett said this did not mean foreigners were being blocked from owning shares in Western Power.

"Anyone can buy a share on the Australian stock exchange but the fact that is going to be 49 per cent West Australian government owned and 31 per cent Australian super

---

Related articles

Facebook fake news fears hit sharemarket

Nano-Nouvelle 'milestone' could add 50pc to battery life

TechnologyOne eyes dual Nasdaq listing

12/12/2016

Colin Barnett to sell Western Power to raise $11b | afr.com

funds means it will be an ASX listed company, it will be an Australian company," Mr Barnett said.

Repair job

It is expected the government would raise about $3 billion via a public offering of shares while shifting $8 billion in Western Power debt off its balance sheet.

A sale could drastically reduce WA's $30 billion debt load and make significant inroads toward repairing its balance sheet and regaining the triple A credit rating.

Treasurer Mike Nahan said the float structure would address any national security concerns.

Taking a leaf out of NSW premier Mike Baird's playbook, Mr Barnett promised to spend sale proceeds on infrastructure by creating a $3 billion 'Next Generation Account'.

He said $1 billion would be spent on schools and TAFE facilities, $1 billion would be earmarked for transport infrastructure and about $150 million would be used to

PREMIUM

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

Mr Barnett insisted it would not fund election promises in the lead up to the March poll.

Withering economy

The election is on a knife edge with the Barnett government sagging in popularity as the economy withers amid the mining downturn that has conspired to push down house prices and lifted the unemployment rate to the highest in the country.

No investment bank has been mandated for the sale however UBS, Macquarie, Goldman Sachs and Rothschild have all provided input.

Western Power accounts for about $7.4 billion of government debt, a figure expected to grow to nearly $8 billion by 2018-19, when the government, if it wins the March poll, expects to sell the asset.

The government's valuation is based on 1.3 times Western Power's $10.8 billion regulated asset base, valuing the company at $14 billion.

The decision to plump for a float over a trade sale will disappoint several infrastructure investors who were expected to be keen to run the ruler over Western Power as the next "poles and wires" prize up for grabs following the NSW electricity distributors.

Spark Infrastructure chief executive Rick Francis has said that his consortium that acquired NSW transmission grid owner TransGrid could "quite possibly" be interested in Western Power.

Foreigners blocked

Foreign investors already had their ambitions severely dented in the NSW poles and wires auction, most notably with the Federal Treasurer's eleventh-hour blocking of

Trump taps Aussie as manufacturing tsar

There is no alternative climate plan

Latest Stories

Macquarie Capital Australia chief Bishop to retire

0 min ago

AA Gill: deliciously rude and irreverent

2 mins ago

HP's phone PC is sadly ahead of its time

4 mins ago

More

12/12/2016

Colin Barnett to sell Western Power to raise $11b | afr.com

final bids for Ausgrid by Hong Kong's Cheung Kong Infrastructure and China State Grid Corporation.

Ausgrid was later snared by the all-Australian partnership IFM Investors and Australian Super in a $16 billion deal that was negotiated outside the formal auction process.

They are among superannuation funds expected to invest in the float.

Restrictions were also placed around foreign investors in NSW government's sale of high-voltage grid owner Transgrid, although the final winning consortium includes funds from Canada and the Middle East, as well as local partners.

Foreign investors will also be limited in the stake they can apply for in the last NSW asset to be sold, Endeavour Energy, with any individual foreign bidder limited to half the 50.4 per cent stake on offer, according to sources.

Opposition leader Mark McGowan went on the attack on Wednesday saying he would fight the sale "every step of the way".

---

 PREMIUM

---

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

SELLING WESTERN POWER IS NOT IN THE BEST INTERESTS OF EVERYDAY WESTERN AUSTRALIANS and does not make economic sense."

Mr McGowan argues selling the asset deprives the state of ongoing revenue.

Mr Barnett conceded his government had "a job to do" convincing the public about the merits of the sale. He hoped the electorate would welcome a partial sale as a "sensible compromise".

Latest Stories

Macquarie Capital Australia chief Bishop to retire

8 min ago

AA Gill: deliciously rude and irreverent

2 mins ago

HP's phone PC is sadly ahead of its time

4 mins ago

More

Recommended

Lawyer starts second line of work bags in disguise

Netflix doesn't seem to like movies, but you can fight back

Abbott on Trump: He's a weird guy

Surging auction numbers lift Melbourne, Sydney property...

How a 28-year-old used Uber to help him buy 6 properties

From Around the Web

Are You a Serious Investor With Over $500? Learn Pro Forex...

Forex Capital Trading

Mortgage broker secrets - 4 things they will never tell you

Compare Home Loans

Aussie Recession On The Horizon. How To Weather The Financial...

The Daily Reckoning

Brilliant new health insurance site sweeping Aus

Health Insurance Comparison

Wine like you've never seen it before.

Yalumba on YouTube

Recommended by

Special Reports

How Tim Cahill is getting rich off-field, too

Chanel is moving into wine. Here's why.

Fashion for summer, from Paul Smith to Prada

How fashion sources global and sells local

Get ready for cocktail hour

LGBTI executives lead by example

The Boss-Deloitte LGBTI leaders list 2016

Where the business crowd meets in Paris

Why women shouldn't be called 'guys'

Stockland's Mark Steinert is upbeat on cities

Top liners make waves in our port cities

Women of style on gifts that mean the most

Executive buys in Australian property

Life & Leisure's luxury gift guide for women

6 beautiful books for your coffee table

Gaming for diversity

Contactless issues still to be resolved

China and India making huge leaps

Making the shopping experience more personal

ABBA's Ulvaeus urging cashless future

MY FINANCIAL REVIEW

My Alerts | Create alert

FAIRFAX BUSINESS MEDIA

The Australian Financial Review Magazine

CONNECT WITH US

PREMIUM

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

Markets Data
Australian Equities
World Equities
Commodities
Currencies
Derivatives
Interest Rates
Share Tables

The Sophisticated Traveller

CONTACT & FEEDBACK

FAQ
Contact us
Letters to the Editor
Give feedback
Advertise
License Content

ABOUT

About us
Our Events
Digital Subscription Terms
Newspaper Subscription Terms
Site Map
Corporate Subscriptions

Latest Stories

CHOOSE YOUR READING EXPERIENCE

Macquarie Capital Australia chief Bishop to retire

0 min ago

AA Gill: deliciously rude and irreverent

2 mins ago

HP's phone PC is sadly ahead of its time

4 mins ago

More

The Bill that Turnbull didn't have time for

Sky News joins News Corp stable

Tourism disaster looms for Australia

Medibank's ambitious turnaround plan

LATEST IN FINANCE

economy ► australian economy

Western Australian Government's $11bn plan to sell off Western Power

DECEMBER 1, 2016 11:06AM

Advertisement

Video Image

WA premier heckled at Western Power rally

AAP

WESTERN Australia's power utility will be sold off under a plan which Premier Colin Barnett says he is confident will raise at least $11 billion to repair the state's beleaguered finances.

If the Liberal National government is re-elected — it has trailed Labor in recent polls — it will sell 51 per cent of the Western Power poles and wires utility business, keeping the rest in state hands.

The divisive issue is shaping as one of the most important of the March state election, given the Labor opposition has guaranteed it will not sell the electricity transmission and distribution company.

WA Labor leader Mark McGowan said the privatisation would be a disaster. "They have wrecked the state's finances, they have delivered us the highest unemployment

National | World | Lifestyle | Travel | Entertainment | Technology | Finance | Sport | Video

BUT PREMIER BARNETT SAID THE $11BN BUDGET BOOST WAS ONLY A "CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE" OF HOW MUCH COULD BE RAISED.

RIGHT NOW IN FINANCE

- 701 READERS Are university degrees worth it? Probably not, according to ...
- 271 READERS Life Gold Pass: Government too busy for Bill to scrap politi...
- 208 READERS Chemist Warehouse backpays workers \$3.5m for compulsory onli...
- 253 READERS Backpacker tax: Tourism in Australia in trouble if tax not p...
- 161 READERS 'Australia's best' brothel has sold in Sydney's Rushcutters ...

FINANCE BREAKING NEWS

- 15:25 ASX to administer BBSW rate
- 15:19 Navarre hits first high grades at Irvine
- 14:51 Downer wins \$1.7bn Sydney trains order
- 14:18 Metalicity finds thick lithium zones
- 12:24 Virgin stops adding insurance to bookings

12/1/2016

Western Power sale: Electricity poles and wires to be sold by WA Government

Western Power is to be privatised if the LNP retain power> Picture: AFP. Source:AFP

Western Power would be floated on the share market, with 31 per cent offered to Australian industry superannuation funds and 20 per cent to “mum and dad” retail investors.

The $11 billion figure implies Western Power is worth at least $21 billion to $22 billion, well above past valuations such as a PwC report last month estimating a $12 billion to $16 million total value.

Mr Barnett and Treasurer Mike Nahan said their higher price was based on the prices paid for similar assets such as the Ausgrid and Transgrid NSW sales and their discussions with the banks involved.

“It is going to be a significant amount of money, the $11 billion estimate is probably fair ... it is a conservative estimate,” Mr Barnett told reporters. Superannuation funds were “queuing up to buy these assets”, Mr Nahan said, given utilities were considered defensive, reliable investments.

The majority of the money — $8 billion — will be used to wipe out Western Power’s debt making a decent dent in current government debt of $28 billion that is forecast to grow to $40 billion.

WA Premier Colin Barnett talks to media at announcement on sale of Western Power. Picture: Colin Murty Source:News Corp Australia

However there was a risk for the WA government in using proceeds from asset sales to pay down debt, as it had been unpopular with voters in Queensland. RBC Capital which would be spent on ageing schools, $1 billion on public transport and other transport infrastructure and $150 million on improving electricity supplies in more remote areas, which helped secure WA Nationals’ leader Brendon Grylls’ support.

National | World | Lifestyle | Travel | Entertainment | Technology | Finance | Sport | Video

Today's Deal <http://www.ratecity.com.au>

Rate Buster 100% Offset Variable Home Loan (LVR <80%)

✓ Extra low interest rate
✓ 100% full offset account

3.44%

Comparison Rate*

Go To Site

REDUCE Australian Credit Licence 316710. See our disclosures & comparison warning (<http://www.ratecity.com.au/disclaimer>)

Advertisement

Advertisement

“The level of borrowings was getting uncomfortably high ... this makes our finances manageable,” Mr Barnett said, arguing that WA’s debt had only soared because it’s share of national GST revenue had fallen so low. Labor leader Mark McGowan said selling Western Power would push up prices, drive down services, lose revenue and jobs.

“Mr Grylls and Mr Barnett are financial and economic cowboys. They have wrecked the state’s finances, they have delivered us the highest unemployment in the nation and now they plan to flog off the family silver.”

WA Labor Leader Mark McGowan and members of the WA Labor team launch a petition, as part of a new campaign to stop the Barnett Liberal Government's privatisation of Western Power. Source: News Corp Australia

However, the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of WA welcomed the plan, saying it would create thousands of jobs and drive economic growth. They said it would boost business confidence and enable the state government to create jobs by investing in new infrastructure.

Mr Barnett said there was no downside for West Australians because money would now be freed up for infrastructure for a growing population. The prices Western Power charges — which he said represented 40 per cent of residents’ power bills — would not rise sharply because that, along with maintenance, safety and investment issues, were all still highly regulated. There would also be no forced redundancies at Western Power, Dr Nahan said. Notre Dame University adjunct professor of politics Peter Kennedy said the issue would be crucial to the election result, with Mr Barnett banking on the past successful floats in WA of Bankwest and Alinta.

PROMOTED STORIES

6 Things ForexCT Does for Serious Traders
FOREX CAPITAL TRADING

This solar plan is smart, flexible and costs nothing upfront.
AGL

Paying the lazy tax on your mortgage? Read this
HOME LOANS AUSTRALIA

Why You Should Consider Investing In These 10 Australian Mining Stocks
MONEY MORNING

Revolutionary Mercedes straight-six revealed
CARSGUIDE.COM.AU CAR NEWS

Why Mount Everest is so dangerous
THE ECONOMIST

Transfer your credit card debt to 0% until 2018 - exclusive offer
CFREDITCARD.COM AU

What is the Biggest Investment Opportunity for SMSFs?
AMP CAPITAL

National | World | Lifestyle | Travel | Entertainment | Technology | Finance | Sport | Video

NEED TO READ THIS NOW: ELECTRICITY AND GAS

FACTORS ON THE ROAD: AMP CAPITAL

Recommended by

Be Inspired By NSW's Rich Culture & Amazing Art.
DESTINATION NSW

How to pick shares
COMMSEC

Read this to save big on your mortgage!
HOME LOANS AUSTRALIA

A jam-packed trip to Canberra? Easy.
TIGER AIRWAYS

powered by plista

JUMP BACK TO TOP ▲

DAILY DEALS

Compare Home Loans
Compare 3000+ home loans

iPhone 7 & 7 Plus
Compare all carrier prices now

Samsung Galaxy S7
All plans for the world's best Android

Best credit cards
Compare 100+ credit cards

Compare Personal Loans
Personal loans starting from 8.66%

Best Car Loans
Compare 50+ Car loans

A NOTE ABOUT RELEVANT ADVERTISING: We collect information about the content (including ads) you use across this site and use it to make both advertising and content more relevant to you on our network and other sites. Find out more about our policy and your choices, including how to opt-out.

NEWSLETTER ▶

RSS ▶

ADVERTISE ▶

ABOUT US ▶

Legal: Privacy Policy | Relevant Ads Opt-Out | Cookie Policy | Terms & Conditions

News Limited Copyright © 2016. All times AEDT (GMT +11).

National | World | Lifestyle | Travel | Entertainment | Technology | Finance | Sport | Video

---

 THE AUSTRALIAN

---

WA election: Colin Barnett launches his electricity privatisation sales pitch

WA Corrective Services Minister Joe Francis, left-to-right, Mental Health Minister Andrea Mitchell, Premier Colin Barnett, Police Minister Liza Harvey and Attorney General Michael Mischin today.

PAIGE TAYLOR THE AUSTRALIAN 4:09PM February 5, 2017

West Australian premier Colin Barnett says he is not surprised most voters oppose his privatisation plan for the state's electricity poles and wires, but today launched a sales pitch for the proposal that he hopes will change their minds before the March 11 election.

A Newspoll taken exclusively for *The Weekend Australian* showed 61 per cent of voters oppose the Liberal-National government's key election platform; the sale of 51 per cent of Western Power, the utility that delivers electricity across the state. On Friday, *The Australian* published a Newspoll that confirmed the fears of Liberal insiders: Labor is leading the Barnett government 54-46 on a two-party preferred basis.

Campaigning in Perth this morning, Mr Barnett acknowledged there was widespread opposition to the partial sale of Western Power but hinted that might change.

"I think more people will think about it carefully and I'm not surprised by that figure — most people generally take an initial position of generally opposing privatisation," he said.

"But again can I remind people we are selling only 51 cent of Western Power. We are retaining 49 per cent of it in government ownership so the state government will always be the largest shareholder by a big, big margin."

Under the Liberal-National plan, 30 per cent of Western Power will be sold to Australian superannuation funds and 20 per cent will be sold to what Mr Barnett described as "mum and dad investors, small investors primarily for their own super funds".

"So it stays Australian-owned," Mr Barnett said.

He said the partial sale would raise $11 billion — $8 billion to wipe debt and a billion dollars each for new schools, transport and improvement to the electricity network.

Announcing compulsory rehabilitation for meth addicts and tougher sentences for dealers outside the WA Supreme Court today, Mr Barnett said it was the role of government to do the things the private sector could not.

"In day's gone by the West Australian government used to own and run hotels who would ever think about that (now)," he said.

"I don't think we need to run a betting agency (TAB) anymore — the world does move on a little bit.

Mr Barnett predicted that, after a partial sale, electricity prices would reduce as they had in other states where poles and wires were privatised.

"Remaining fully in government ownership, Western Power would have a huge call on taxpayer and community funds to fund the capital expenditure," he said.

"The biggest component of state debt is Western Power debt because our population has gone up 500,000 people in eight years — they all need power supplies right throughout the state. That's just borrowing to supply power," he said.

"So I think the government responsibility is to do the things the private sector can't help with."

Reader comments on this site are moderated before publication to promote lively and civil debate. We encourage your comments but submitting one does not guarantee publication. We publish hundreds of comments daily, and if a comment is rejected it is likely because it does not meet with our comment guidelines, which you can read here. No correspondence will be entered into if a comment is declined.

FROM THE HOMEPAGE

Morrison hails Victoria Labor on homes ◆

ROSIE LEWIS

Scott Morrison has commended the Victorian Labor government for unveiling a housing package aimed at first-home buyers.

FBI wants Trump claim rejected ◆

FBI Director James Comey considers Donald Trump's accusation that Barack Obama tapped his phones to be false, reports say.

N Korea fires 'multiple' missiles ◆

North Korea has fired multiple missiles off its east coast, which flew about 1,000 km, South Korea's military says.

Solution is in storage not coal ◆

ALAN KOHLER

Rather than propping up coal, Canberra should be leading the push for integrating innovative energy storage technology.

Uni threat over sugar campaigner ◆

ADAM CREIGHTON

The University of Sydney has threatened to ban a high-profile financial markets economist and anti-sugar campaigner.

CONGRATULATIONS BOWRAVILLE SERIES

WINNER Mumbrella-Publish Awards, Kennedy Awards and Walkley Awards.

BOWRAVILLE
THE AUSTRALIAN

A NOTE ABOUT RELEVANT ADVERTISING: We collect information about the content (including ads) you use across this site and use it to make both advertising and content more relevant to you on our network and other sites. This is also known as Online Behavioural Advertising. You can find out more about our policy and your choices, including how to opt-out here

^ Back to top

SUBSCRIBE

NewsFlash

Daily Edition

Terms of Use

Contact Us

About Us

Editorial Code of conduct
Standards of Practice
Subscription terms
Group Subscription Terms
Accessibility
Privacy Policy
Relevant Ads Opt-out
Cookie Policy

Help
Contact Us info
Photo Sales
News Archive

About The Australian
Advertise with us
Our journalists
Subscribe
The Australian Plus member benefits
Sign up to Newsletters
Manage Your Newsletters

Copyright The Australian. All times AEST (GMT +10:00)

Tabcorp rides a tidal wave of change

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: May 6, 2013
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

5/6/13 Austl. Fin. Rev. 48

News

Copyright (c) 2013 Financial Review Group
 Michael Smith and Jessica Gardner

Tabcorp's is a familiar tale of a traditional company at the heart of a massive structural shift in its industry. The corporate bookmaker is on the rise and the traditional tote operators are playing catch-up. If there was any doubt that the corporate bookmakers, once derided as the tax-avoiding cowboys of the industry, had come into their own, then Tom Waterhouse's deal with the National Rugby League last year should have put minds at rest.

Not content with ousting Tabcorp as the NRL's wagering partner, Waterhouse has his sights set on Tabcorp's AFL partnership.

So two years after spinning off its casino operations, Tabcorp has reached another inflection point as technology and politics pose fresh challenges to its long-running efforts to derisk the company. The shake-up of the Victorian gaming industry and a string of badly executed acquisitions which culminated in a demerger of the company in 2011 have forced Tabcorp to reinvent itself in recent years.

After ceasing its management of poker machines, previously a significant contributor to the group, last year, Tabcorp has been focused on diversifying its revenue base.

Chief executive David Attenborough has secured new wagering and Keno licences in Victoria and extended its Queensland Keno licence in Queensland. But he faces another big challenge in 2013. Tabcorp's licence to operate 2130 TABs in NSW is valid to 2097, but its exclusivity is due to expire on June 22.

Retaining exclusivity in NSW, the company's biggest wagering market where revenues topped around $3 billion in the first nine months of 2013, is crucial because it provides certainty. The decision on exclusivity comes as the state government considers a world-first proposal to monetise royalties from the state's lotteries business.

While a plan to sell the rights to $300 million in tax revenue only applies to NSW Lotteries at this stage, it could herald a wider look at securitising all of the state's gambling revenue. The NSW government is looking at converting this tax stream into a security that could be bought or sold in a process known as securitisation. The government could then sell these securities to the private sector to raise money.

This will form an important part of Tabcorp's argument to the NSW government when it is time to plead its case on exclusivity. While it is understood the state government has not yet canvassed the securitisation issue with Tabcorp, it is only logical the gaming group will point out the danger of tinkering with a model which provides certainty on revenues. The argument is that an exclusive licence ensures a predictable stream of revenue for the government at a time when budgets are under pressure.

A spokeswoman for NSW Treasurer Mike Baird says an investigation into the monetisation of part of future lottery revenue duties is continuing but no final decision has been made. Securitisation will be an important issue for Tabcorp and other gaming companies as they navigate the minefield of regulation governing the wagering industry.

"At the end of the day it is a pretty good revenue stream. With gambling revenue you have the ability to forecast a track record of what could be delivered over an economic cycle," says Robert Camilleri, an investment manager at Realm Investment House who specialises in securitisation. "When you securitise you need that predictability of cash flow stream."

Tabcorp holds the licence for both its 210 standalone TAB agencies and the 760 services in clubs and 1160 in hotels. NSW is its biggest market. The deal, which bans rivals from setting up competing services, expires in June. While there is no guarantee a major competitor would enter the market, losing exclusivity strips away the certainty Tabcorp wants for its investors.

It suffered a blow last year when the Victorian government scrapped a poker machine licence duopoly enjoyed by Tabcorp and Tatts Group. At the same time the terms of its joint venture licence with the state's racing industry was also curbed.

CLSA analysts, who believe a new entrant in NSW is "highly unlikely", expect exclusivity to cost Tabcorp more than $80 million. Tabcorp recently paid $410 million for 12 years in Victoria but that also included the fee for the licence, which it owns until the end of the century.

Corporate bookmaker Sportsbet has said it would consider opening rival wagering outlets in NSW but there are doubts about whether it would establish anything more ambitious than a handful of flagship sites.

Tatts Group could break into the market in a cost-effective fashion as it already has exclusive retail wagering licences in Queensland, South Australia, the Northern Territory and Tasmania.

Bookmakers such as Waterhouse could choose to set up flagship stores in high-profile locations which offer a modern alternative to the suburban TAB.

Nomura analyst Nick Berry says the probability of a new player setting up a retail network is "very low" because of the expense and difficulty in generating a return, in competition with Tabcorp's incumbency.

"In the next 10 years, you would still expect cash retail wagering to remain a major proportion of total bets, if not the majority through that period," Berry says.

"It's important to protect retail exclusivity through that period even if you think it's a remote chance of someone coming in. After that period, exclusivity probably becomes more of a moot point due to the [higher] penetration of online [betting]."

It would also be difficult for a new entrant to compete unless the government guaranteed it access to a parimutuel pool, which is an arrangement where bets are placed in a pool and winnings shared.

It is also expensive. A new competitor would have to adopt a similar tax and fee regime to Tabcorp's existing NSW licence, which would make doing business four times more expensive than operating under a Northern Territory licence. Most online corporate bookmakers are licensed in the NT to take advantage of the lower cost of doing business. "Why would a corporate bookmaker already making good margins from NSW punters agree to pay significantly more on those bets? The benefits of a retail licence do not come close to outweighing the costs," CLSA analyst Sacha Krien says.

Tabcorp had also already locked in the majority of the best sites in NSW on long-term deals. One potential competitive threat is a rival obtaining a licence to set up betting kiosks in pubs and clubs, which would be a low-cost way to enter the market.

Regulation is a huge headache for the gaming industry due to the different rules that apply in each state. Tabcorp chairman Paula Dwyer says the foundation of successful funding to the industry was a "sole retail wagering licence model, which is adopted by all Australian states and territories".

The other change sweeping the industry is the impact of new technology as punters migrate online, whether it is through automated kiosks in TABs or via smartphones and computers.

Self-service kiosks in existing retail outlets now account for 53 per cent of the turn-over in TAB outlets in Victoria and 41 per cent in NSW. Rival bookmakers may also be interested in the "Betbox" concept, a potential low-cost entry point into the market. The Federal Court last year ruled against a rival introducing the technology in Victoria. The Betbox is an ATM-style machine installed in a pub or hotel which allows punters to use their credit card to place bets on screen by effectively logging into another bookmaker's website.

Tabcorp's big advantage is that it has a 25 per cent share of online gaming revenue and higher online margins than its competitors but it is hurting.

Attenborough, who inherited the top job from Elmer Funke Kupper in 2011 following the casinos spinoff, recognises the structural threat and has been rolling out new technology offerings, including the first betting apps for the iPhone and iPad.

Tabcorp's turnover from its digital operations rose 15 per cent to $1.8 billion in the first nine months of the current financial year, while wagering revenue fell 4.7 per cent in the third quarter to $368.6 million.

The competitive threat from bookmakers is intensifying but the company is growing its share of the wagering market. Its online corporate bookmaker, Luxbet, reported an 18.7 per cent rise in turnover for the first nine months of the financial year. This has helped underpin its share price, which hit its highest level in 22 months last week.

Michael Smith and Jessica Gardner

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Funding Instruments (1FU41); Securitization (1SE75)

INDUSTRY: Casinos (1CA80); Entertainment (1EN08); Financial Services (1FI37); Gaming Industry (1GA25); I.T. (1IT96); I.T. in Gambling (1IT08); Investment Management (1IN34); Palmtop Computing (1PA77); Rugby (1RU17); Rugby League (1RU18); Securities Investment (1SE57); Sports (1SP75)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Queensland (1QU50)

OTHER INDEXING: (Nick Berry; Luxbet; Jessica Gardner; Sacha Krien; Mike Baird; Paula Jane Dwyer; Paula Dwyer; Tom Waterhouse; Robert Camilleri; Michael Smith; Elmer Funke Kupper; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 1394

Sport

SUBSCRIBE LOGIN / SIGN-UP

NEWS SITE OF THE YEAR

News Sport Business World Politics Comment Property Entertainment Lifestyle Travel

NRL Union AFL Football Cricket Racing Motorsport Basketball Netball Cycling Tennis Scores Golf

Home / Sport

SEPTEMBER 4 2014

SAVE PRINT LICENSE ARTICLE

Channel Seven to take a big punt on racing

 Andrew Webster

3 comments

SHARE TWEET MORE

- Question & Answer: Kieren Jack

Channel Seven is poised to become a major force in horse racing – to the point where the free-to-air network could angle for a wagering licence in the future.

Off and racing: James McDonald celebrates victory in this year's Golden Slipper on Mossfun. Channel Seven is expanding its involvement in racing. Photo: Anthony Johnson

Not many people want to talk about it, most likely because all the major players involved have been forced to sign confidentiality agreements to ensure the story doesn't leak out.

But this column has this week caught wind of plans for racing television channel TVN to run all of its content on one of Seven's digital channels.

Advertisement

MOST POPULAR

- 1 The truth is out there Mr Bogut, you just have to look
- 2 Cummins excites with speed and scalps in latest comeback
- 3 Here's to more sporting fairytales in 2017
- 4 MCC set introduce red cards in cricket
- 5 Why Pakistan can knock off Australia

12/8/2016

Channel Seven to take a big punt on racing

Happy days: Mick Potter and Robbie Farah front the media after the Tigers were humbled 64-6 by the Cowboys in Townsville. Photo: Getty Images

As it stands, TVN already pays Seven about $2 million to show 28 meetings a year on 7TWO.

But the association is about to get a whole lot stronger, with the racing network keen to expand into free-to-air TV, rather than have a viewing audience of 30 per cent on subscription TV.

Advertisement

We have been told the end game for Seven is the long-term view of acquiring a wagering licence: first in Western Australia and then in Victoria.

"Something like Seven-bet," is how one figure close to negotiations describes it.

We're told the deal maker behind the scenes is Gold Coast businessman Scott Perrin, who made his fortune alongside brother Matthew when they sold their stake in surfwear giant Billabong for $490 million.

Matt spectacularly lost his $150 million fortune because of bad business deals in China, a $1.7 million gambling debt and an ugly divorce.

The Perrins have always been avid racing enthusiasts, champion jockey Glen Boss writing of Scott Perrin in his autobiography:

"Scottie Perrin became a mate of mine and I soon developed a high regard for the cool way he went about making the world of business sound every bit as exciting as racing."

Pair of Jacks: Garry and Kieran in 2005. Photo: Getty Images

LATEST SPORT VIDEOS

Warner leads Aussies in Canberra win

Best goal fail or save ever?

Dangerfield: No players, no game

FOLLOW SMH SPORT

Latest from the Sports Desk of The Sydney Morning Herald.

FACEBOOK

TWITTER

FOLLOW SMH

Get notified when the big things happen.

NEWSLETTERS

TVN is owned by the Australian Turf Club, Melbourne metropolitan clubs and Country Racing Victoria.

Perrin, who did not return calls, has been dealing with Racing NSW chairman John Messara and ATC vice-chairman Laurie Macri. For his part, TVN boss Bruce Mann has repeatedly denied talking with Seven, which is also keen to enhance its profile as a major player in racing.

It announced this week that it had struck a long-term deal with Magic Millions co-owners Katie Page and Gerry Harvey to broadcast the annual racing event on the Gold Coast. It already has the rights to the Melbourne Cup carnival, The Championships and Golden Slipper.

"As you have seen with this week's announcement with Gerry Harvey and our signing of the Magic Millions, we are increasing our exposure to horse racing," a Seven spokesperson said. "We love being the broadcast television partner of horse racing. It's a great partnership for our television business."

Sydney springs to life

Still on racing, the ATC held an intimate lunch at The Stables at Royal Randwick on Tuesday to launch its spring carnival. Recently retired rugby league star Braith Anasta was revealed as one of the club's new ambassadors, alongside wife Jodi.

Yes, yes, it's not the monster that is the spring carnival in Melbourne, but the classy launch further strengthened the angle Sydney racing is looking for: a more elegant, refined feel than the masses who trample all over Flemington in early November.

The Sydney spring carnival is worth $5 million in prizemoney, starting on September 13 with the Golden Rose at Rosehill Gardens.

100 years of hate and still going strong

Russell Crowe showed us this week that rugby league doesn't always have to be serious. You can also have a laugh.

The Souths owner spotted Roosters patriarch Nick Politis at Sydney Airport last month.

They were both waiting at the luggage carousel. Crowe walked up and stuck out his hand.

"Contrary to popular belief among Souths fans, he only had the one head and wasn't eating babies at the time I met him," Crowe told News Corp in the lead-up to Thursday night's final round blockbuster between the foundation clubs.

Gold.

We're told the amicable exchange was only about five words, though.

Politis hasn't been a huge fan of Crowe since the Oscar-winning actor did a Commodus-like "thumbs down" during a Bunnies win over the Roosters.

Crowe's claim that the Tricolours' home base of Moore Park is in South Sydney territory also didn't go down well in Rooster land.

12/8/2016

Channel Seven to take a big punt on racing

Some officials pointed out how Crowe lives in Woolloomooloo, Souths chairman Nick Pappas lives in Vaucluse and star player Sam Burgess lives in Rushcutters Bay – right in the heart of Chooks' territory.

More than 100 years of hate and it's still going strong. Fabulous stuff.

The end is nigh for Potter

Mick Potter is expected to coach his last game at the helm of Wests Tigers on Saturday night when his side takes on the Sharks.

Yes, Mad Monday cannot come quick enough for some clubs.

We're hearing the coach will not even be afforded an interview to outline why he should keep his job, which doesn't surprise given how many knives have been thrown at his back in recent months.

With the appointment of three independent directors supposedly imminent, you would expect them to speak to the head coach and ask what led to his demise.

An indication of the way the Tigers are being run came during the week when they advertised for the rather important position of "General Manager of Football" on the employment website seek.com.au.

It prompted former Tigers sponsorship manager Brett Clarke to tweet: "Why do Wests Tigers advertise a job such as the GM Football on Seek. FFS it is such a specialised role – get out and headhunt the right hire."

Knights look West to go forward

In other independent director news just to hand, NRL boss Dave Smith and head of club services Tony Crawford were in Newcastle on Thursday, trying to clear the path for the embattled Knights in the post-Tinkler world.

They were meeting with the cashed-up Wests Leagues Club about taking over the running of the club.

For those of us with long memories, the irony is hard to ignore: Wests were cuddled up in bed with the Hunter Mariners during the Super League days.

Still on Smith, he has dismissed tension between the NRL and Club Land over his desire for independent directors to be parachuted onto to every board as a "miscommunication".

It is a distinctly different view from several power brokers, who have been adamant for some time that Smith wanted independent directors and chairpeople in control of every board.

"He's backflipped," reports one.

Question & Answer: Kieren Jack

We speak to the Swans star ahead of Saturday afternoon's finals match against Fremantle at ANZ Stadium.

As the son of a Balmain legend, how do you react when you hear the

News & Views Markets Quotes Workplace Consumer Property Innovation Retail Economy CBD Money SUBSCRIBE NICHOLAS

Home / Business

JUNE 10 2015

SAVE PRINT LICENSE ARTICLE

Seven in the race for a wagering licence

John Stensholt

Seven West Media could bid for a wagering licence with the broadcaster set to win the rights to Victorian horse racing, which will be shown on a newly established free-to-air digital channel.

The new channel, the name of which is set to include Racing Victoria's racing.com digital brand, is forecast to be operating by August 28, in time for the first group 1 race of the spring carnival.

Seven West Media may bid for wagering licence as it is poised to win Victorian horse racing rights Photo: Vince Caligiuri

Seven's move to broaden its coverage of horse racing – it already shows top-level Saturday Victorian and NSW race meets – is subject to final confirmation from the four Victorian racing clubs and comes after administrator Racing Victoria awarded the network preferred bidder status over Tabcorp's Sky Channel.

Any move by Seven into wagering would be in the medium term. It could bid, potentially in conjunction with Racing Victoria, for a licence when Tabcorp's joint venture with the Victorian authority expires in 2024 or for the Western

0% p.a. Balance transfers for 15 months

Reverts to the variable cash advance rate, available on non-HSBC credit cards. Conditions apply.

Apply now > HSBC

Advertisement

HUFFPOST AUSTRALIA

Amazon's Grocery Store Lets You Grab ...

Use These 6 Concepts To Teach Your Kids ...

Australian TAB WA Premier Colin Barnett has signalled he wants to privatise the wagering operator.

Seven has also been approached by corporate bookmakers for a potential equity investment or joint venture. Seven would not comment on any wagering or broadcasting plans.

Tabcorp, meanwhile, announced on Tuesday it would turn off its broadcast of Victorian racing next Monday, June 15. However, it is understood Racing Victoria could offer an olive branch in the form of awarding Tabcorp international broadcast rights and also hopes to negotiate to continue showing Victorian racing on at least the Sky Racing 1 channel.

Advertisement

Should that eventuate Tabcorp may not pay a rights fee, arguing given Racing Victoria will pay at least $10-12 million to help establish the new Seven channel it should not pay for rights that are effectively been given to Seven for no free in return.

Tabcorp earlier this year agreed to a 10-year rights deal with Racing NSW after Victoria and NSW split their rights, which had previously been aggregated under the ThoroughVision Network (TVN) brand.

The listed wagering operator had reportedly offered Racing Victoria $30 million annually for 10 years for the broadcast rights.

But it is understood a presentation by Seven executives – including its Melbourne boss Lewis Martin, commercial director Bruce McWilliam and commentator Bruce McAvaney – two weeks ago to the Racing Victoria board swayed the vote in favour of the free-to-air network, which will cross-promote racing across its other sports and entertainment shows.

Any deal still needs to be signed off by the Victorian clubs. The Melbourne Racing Club, Victoria Racing Club, Moonee Valley Racing Club and Country Racing Victoria confirmed their boards and members will assess presentations from Tabcorp and Seven on Wednesday and Thursday. A decision is expected by the end of the week.

Racing Victoria chairman David Moodie said if Seven is successful, he hopes Tabcorp would continue to broadcast Victorian racing in tandem with the network. Tabcorp may also consider bidding for digital rights.

Corporate bookmaker Sportsbet already has an agreement to show Victorian racing, while other wagering operators such as CrownBet and William Hill are also understood to be interested in streaming vision on their websites.

Racing Victoria also shows its races online via its racing.com service, which was established last August. In May it signed a broadcast, media and data services deal with Telstra that could see race information and multiple camera angles used in future broadcasts.

MOST POPULAR

- 1 'Her role on the project was just to be an ornament'
- 2 NAB makes its move to $1.7b Wynyard Place
- 3 Paddle Pop's 15-second ad dumped after complaint
- 4 Shares and bonds see GDP shock differently
- 5 YouTube makes $US1 billion case that it's good for music industry

FOLLOW BUSINESSDAY

FACEBOOK

TWITTER

FOLLOW SMH

NEWSLETTERS

Prepared for your family's future?

Join our property investment hub today

FIND OUT MORE

0% p.a. Balance transfers for 15 months

Reverts to the variable cash advance rate, available on eqvt+HSBC credit cards. Conditions apply.

Apply now > HSBC

THE AUSTRALIAN

Rights deal bursts Michael Burn's Ascot bubble

Peter Nicholson

BEN BUTLER, CHRISTINE LACY THE AUSTRALIAN 12:00AM June 17, 2015

There'll be no bubbles at Royal Ascot this week for horse-mad Macquarie banker Michael Burn, who's firmly stuck down under wearing his (top) hat as chairman of the home of the Melbourne Cup, Victoria Racing Club.

While hordes of other Aussies including mining services rich lister Kevin Maloney have descended on an unprepared England to see four Antipodean horses go round the Ascot track this week, Burn has been locked in talks with governing body Racing Victoria over its proposed media rights deal with Kerry Stokes' Seven West.

The problem is not the Seven deal, which the VRC likes, but the terms under which the club will tip its rights into a pot held by Racing Victoria to then be sold to Seven.

Tabcorp's David Attenborough has given up on a rights deal with RVL, but is waiting for a sub-deal to get the races back on Sky Channel.

Things could get more complicated if Stokes makes a bid for the WA TAB, which is to be sold in a controversial privatisation.

That could see Victoria turn its back on its long-term wagering joint-venture partner Tabcorp when their deal ends in 2024 in favour of a Stokes-controlled TAB in the west.

Meantime, the Sky blackout and waiting for Seven's racing Channel 78 to go live has given everybody plenty of time to focus on Royal Ascot, where the first Australian horse, Shamal Wind, was due to run late last night.

Another pony, Criterion, runs late tonight — but all eyes will be on Saturday's Diamond Jubilee Stakes, which features two Australian horses — colt Brazen Beau and the Gai Waterhouse-trained Wandjina. Brazen Beau is the rare hayburner that's made money for its 38 owners — originally picked up for $75,000 as a yearling, he was sold late last year for $12m to Sheikh Mohammed Al Maktoum's Darley.

Nine's disclosure slip

Whoops. Just when Nine chief David Gyngell needs to be seen by the corporate regulator to be dotting his I's and crossing his T's, the under-pressure entertainment group slips up on its disclosures.

Nine lodged a "final" notice for its share buyback yesterday, which it has enthusiastically used to prop up its shares following its recent profit downgrade. Except it wasn't the "final" notice and had to be reissued by company secretary Rachel Launders, who said the buy-back would continue.

This is as ASIC continues its investigation into Gyngell's share sales. Gyngell hasn't lawyered up just yet but is using Nine's in-house counsel in his dealings with the regulator.

ASIC's learned and numerate lawyer folk might compare and contrast Nine's shock June 5 downgrade — which described conditions in the free-to-air ad market in May and June as "particularly soft" — with the actual market figures just released by Standard Media Index.

SMI data shows Nine's revenue in May fell 9 per cent year-on-year, but the metro TV market grew by 0.4 per cent in the month — not quite what Gyngell told investors.

It is understood that at Nine's post-downgrade investor briefing, the company also told analysts that the TV ad market was down 5 per cent in May and was expected to be the same in June.

MCN jockeying

The unification of ad sales at Network Ten and Foxtel's sales house Multi Channel Network won't be without pain as execs jostle for position in the new world order.

Manoeuvrings have already begun towards a new combined sales structure, which will result in a round of redundancies at the group.

The agreement flies in September as part of the wider deal for the Richard Freudenstein-led Foxtel to buy 15 per cent of Ten, currently led by Hamish McLennan. Ten will buy 24.99 per cent of MCN.

Even if the ACCC blocks the deal, MCN and Ten ad sales would still unite, so talk now has turned to who will achieve top-dog status.

Ten ad chief Lou Barrett, previously head of sales at ACP and before that at Nine, oversees revenues of more than $600 million a year.

MCN boss Anthony Fitzgerald, who has been in the role for 12 years and before that was national sales director at Seven, commands revenues of $500m a year.

That gives bold-as-brass Barrett the weight of revenues, but the Ten team is moving into MCN's offices in Sydney, Brisbane and Melbourne, leaving her to find a new bolt-hole in Fitzgerald's digs.

butlerb@theaustralian.com.au
christine.lacy@news.com.au

Seven and Racing Victoria Unveil Racing.com Partnership

(25 August, 2015) The Seven Network – a key business of Seven West Media, one of Australia’s leading integrated media and content creation companies – and Racing Victoria today confirmed plans for the launch of Racing.com, a new free to air television channel devoted daily to Victorian thoroughbred racing.

The new channel – Racing.com – is the only free to air channel on Australian television dedicated to broadcasting and promoting a single sport and will extend beyond broadcast television across all communication platforms to deliver horse racing to all Australians on any connected device.

The first day of Racing.com will be this Saturday with coverage of the Group 1 Memsie Stakes Day from Caulfield.

Bruce McAvaney will host this very first broadcast for Racing.com.

Racing.com today also confirmed CrownBet as its premium wagering partner for 2015 and 2016 and Ladbrokes as its Associate partner.

Details on Racing.com were announced today by Tim Worner, Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director of Seven West Media, Lewis Martin, Managing Director of Channel Seven Melbourne, and David Moodie, Chairman of Racing Victoria.

Commenting, Mr Worner said: “This is an important new partnership for our company. We are the home of horse racing on broadcast television and we are committing our company to building an increasing presence for horse racing in Victoria across our expanding presence in all forms of content delivery. Our Racing.com partnership joins our portfolio of major sports and we are looking forward to working with Racing Victoria in ensuring the future growth and success of horse racing in this state.”

Commenting, Mr Moodie said: “The launch of the free-to-air Racing.com channel achieves the goal of the Victorian thoroughbred racing industry to make our sport available to more people in more places than ever before. It is the start of a new era for Victorian thoroughbred racing and one that provides us with a foundation for growth in engagement, participation, ownership, wagering and attendance. Racing.com will showcase Victorian racing 363-days-a-year to well over 90 per cent of the Australian population. The industry’s partnership with Seven is a great result for racing fans, punters and participants and I would like to take this opportunity to thank our three Metropolitan Clubs and Country Racing Victoria for their support in achieving this.”

Building on its significant partnerships in horse racing television coverage, Seven is evolving an increasing presence in the sport as it advances plans for the delivery of a new content channel on its digital broadcast television platform.

The new joint venture – Racing.com – delivers a significant new platform for Seven and Racing Victoria as Seven continues to extend beyond broadcast television and publishing and expand its presence in the digital delivery of content and builds 1:1 direct engagement with its audiences.

Racing.com, which will broadcast race meetings from across Victoria 363 days a year, will provide the state’s thoroughbred racing industry with unprecedented and unrivalled free to air coverage.

The new partnership between Racing Victoria and the Seven Network to showcase Victorian thoroughbred racing nationally will also see the new, dedicated free-to-air channel integrated with a suite of streaming and digital services at Racing.com, where punters, fans and participants can view the broadcast on their mobile, tablet and desktop.

Channel Seven Melbourne Managing Director, Lewis Martin, said: “We are pleased to confirm that we have secured some terrific people for Racing.com and we are well-advanced in our plans to further expand our coverage of racing over the coming months. Channel Seven is looking forward to working closely with Racing.com in the promotion and marketing of this exciting new venture.”

The partnership today confirmed that joining the channel will be experienced and highly respected racing hosts Jason Richardson and Shane Anderson and astute form analysts David Gately and Warren Huntly as the key presenters on the new channel. They will combine with former AFL footballer and racehorse owner Campbell Brown and popular Hong Kong-based form analyst Clint Hutchison.

Chief Executive Officer of Racing.com, Scott Perrin, said: "This coming Saturday is day one. We have exciting plans for the evolution and development of this partnership over the coming 12 months. Victoria has the best racing product in the country and we are thrilled to be able to promote and grow it. This is the start of a new channel and we look forward to working to build our content over the coming months. We are also proud to have CrownBet as our premier partner and I want to thank CrownBet CEO Matt Tripp for his support of this ground-breaking free-to-air channel."

Chief Executive Officer of CrownBet, Matt Tripp, said: "We're delighted that Racing Victoria and the Seven Network have chosen CrownBet as their premier wagering partner for Racing.com after a thorough and competitive tender process. This partnership will play an important role in CrownBet's growth strategy and allow us to reach a wide audience right across Australia. It will help drive our mission to become the leading operator in the sector."

The Racing.com channel will also feature three magazine programs as part of its initial content offering. Launching in early September will be the Thursday night preview show Get On and Sunday morning review show Correct Weight, whilst the weeks following will bring The Carnival, an entertaining and informative look at Victoria's Spring Carnival. Racing.com will detail these new programs over the coming weeks.

About Seven Network

Seven is Australia's most-watched broadcast television platform. The network is expanding its presence in media, driving its leadership in the creation of content and delivering that content anywhere, anytime to the biggest audiences. The company is expanding its presence in the further delivery of its video and publishing content beyond its three digital broadcast channels and across an array of platforms, including Hybrid Broadband Broadcast Television. Seven is also expanding into SVOD with Presto, a joint venture with Foxtel in Australia.

Seven is now creating more content than at any time in its history and is expanding its presence in international content production with the formation of two new international production companies: 7Wonder and 7Beyond. These two new businesses underline a key part of its strategy for today and in the future: the expansion of our leadership in the production of content.

Seven is a key business of Seven West Media, Australia's leading multiple platform media company which has a market-leading presence in broadcast television, magazine and newspaper publishing and online. The company is the home of many of Australia's best performing media businesses – Seven, 7TWO and 7mate, Pacific Magazines, The West Australian and Yahoo!7, and the biggest content brands including My Kitchen Rules, House Rules, The X Factor, Home and Away, Sunrise, the Australian Football League, the Olympic Games, Better Homes and Gardens, marie claire, New Idea, Who, The West Australian, Presto and PLUS7.

About Racing Victoria

Racing Victoria is the Principal Racing Authority in the state of Victoria overseeing the conduct of 550 thoroughbred race meetings annually across 67 racetracks. Amongst Racing Victoria's responsibilities are industry funding, integrity, equine welfare, licensing, infrastructure, racing programs and management of the annual racing calendar.

Seven delivers leadership in sports

Today's announcement confirms Seven's leadership in sports.

Seven is focused on delivering the biggest sports events to all Australians. Seven's long-term partnerships confirms the company's leadership in sports television with the network continuing to dramatically expand its coverage of major sports across its three digital broadcast television channels and accelerate coverage across online, IPTV, HbbTV (Hybrid TV), mobile and other emerging forms of content delivery.

Seven is the network of the Australian Football League.

Seven's commitment to an expanding presence in sports builds on the network's unprecedented new agreement with the International Olympic Committee encompassing the Games of the XXXI Olympiad in Rio de Janeiro in 2016, the XXIII Olympic Winter Games in PyeongChang in 2018 and the Games of the XXXII Olympiad in Tokyo in 2020. Seven will also broadcast the 2016 Winter Youth Olympic Games in Lillehammer and the 2018 Summer Youth Olympic Games in Buenos Aires. Underlining this new partnership is an option which, if exercised, extends the rights to include the XXIV Olympic Winter Games in 2022 and the XXXIII Olympic Games in 2024.

Seven is also the network of the Paralympic Games in Rio in 2016 and the Commonwealth Games on the Gold Coast in 2018. Seven is also the network of the first European Games in Baku, Azerbaijan.

Seven's agreements for the Olympic Games, Paralympic Games, European Games and Commonwealth Games on the Gold Coast, and the World Swimming Championships builds on the company's long-term commitment to the National Football League, including the Super Bowl, The US Masters, Royal Ascot and Wimbledon as major international sports franchises for Seven.

Seven also has all-encompassing agreements for coverage of the Australian Football League Premiership Season, Finals Series, the Grand Final and Brownlow Medal, and the local Australian Rules Football competitions the West Australian Football League, the Victorian Football League and the South Australian National Football League, the Tottenham and Chelsea football matches in Sydney, the Bathurst 12 Hour Endurance Race, all major horse racing events including the Sydney Easter Carnival, the Melbourne Spring Carnival and the Melbourne Cup Carnival, the Sydney-Hobart Yacht Race, all major Australian golf tournaments, the Stawell Gift, the Cadel Evans Great Ocean Road Race, the New South Wales Shute Shield in Rugby, all major iron man and triathlon events, the Gold Coast Marathon and all major tennis tournaments in Australia including The Australian Open and The Davis Cup.

DATAROOM

Source: Australian
Publication Date: November 17, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

11/17/15 Australian (Newspaper) 20

News

Copyright © 2015 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

EDITED BY: BRIDGET CARTER CARTERB@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU GRETCHEN FRIEMANN
 FRIEMANN@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU ADDITIONAL REPORTING: KYLAR LOUSSIKIAN

Shareholders would have bet on Cooke Major shareholders in the country's two wagering giants would have most likely lobbied for Tatts boss Robbie Cooke to take the top job had the $9 billion-plus merger proceeded, according to sources.

Investment bankers from UBS and Goldman Sachs, advisers on the deal, were believed to have been working around the clock at the weekend to ensure the transaction came to fruition after spending several months preparing for the merger to take place.

However, the fact that Tatts was lobbying for a greater slice of the newly merged entity in exchange for Tabcorp securing management control for the business is understood to have caused negotiations to collapse.

Some believe that deal could still happen, but on the major shareholders' terms, with sources suggesting it could create a betting giant worth as much as $11bn due to synergistic benefits.

One theory is that if major investors had their way, Robbie Cooke would become the chief executive of the newly merged entity opposed to Tabcorp boss David Attenborough.

The situation is unfolding at a time of widespread consolidation among wagering companies globally in an effort to remain profitable on the back of online betting.

This year, global betting giant Ladbrokes merged with Gala Coral, while Paddy Power joined with Betfair.

It comes as the West Australian government's anticipated privatisation of the state's TAB remains a point of discussion for industry participants.

The plan to privatise TAB is currently between the Premier and Treasurer, and it would need to be restructured before it was sold to create a profitable operation.

Currently, the TAB is structured in a way where the profits are returned to the racing industry, which means that the government receives no financial benefit during times of strong financial performance.

However, when the TAB books a loss, the responsibility is -shouldered by the government.

Adding to the logic for the state to sell the TAB is that it will receive a dividend of about $90m from the federal government for embarking on the sale at a time it needs to drive down debt.

Perth media baron Kerry Stokes is seen as the logical buyer when the asset is on the market, likely to fetch a price of about $500m.

Sources say that Premier Colin Barnett is unlikely to sell to Tatts or Tabcorp, given that both groups would likely collapse the option into their existing businesses and jobs would be lost as a result, which would not be politically palatable.

Mums and dads opt in Westpac closed the books on its $3.5 billion rights issue yesterday after fund managers paid $29.50 for entitlements not taken up by retail investors.

While persistent volatility on the stockmarkets was blamed for the narrow discount to the last traded close, the turnout from mum and dad shareholders on last month's raising was comparatively high with close to 70 per cent opting to follow their money.

In total, 23 entitlements were sold bringing the deal size of the retail shortfall bookbuild to $678.5m. The Australian's BusinessNow blog was the first to report the final price and scale of this last leg of the raising.

Yet while Westpac succeeded in persuading most of its retail investors to participate in its rights issue - unlike Commonwealth Bank, which received a lukewarm reception from its mum and dad shareholders - many are divided about whether the stock will rally heavily and retrace the losses suffered in the past eight months. Since April, when the shares were trading at a 12 month peak of $39.89. Westpac has slumped by close to 25 per cent.

It closed yesterday at $30.02.

This is despite a prevailing view that Westpac has handled the tougher operating environment better than its peers, partly by its leadership in increasing mortgage rates in the face of tightening regulations, but also because of its pledge to reduce costs, sell non-core asset and pursue less risky credit growth.

According to analysts at Morgan Stanley, Westpac's CET 1 ratio - a key measure of a bank's resilience - ranks as the highest among the big four at 9.5 per cent.

Some in the market anticipate the persistent anxiety about the resources sector, combined with the high yield on offer from the banks present an attractive buying opportunity and are betting on a rally in the shares of the big four in the lead up to Christmas.

Westpac's retail shortfall represents the final act in a string of issuances from the banks. In total the big four have tapped the markets for $19bn, still shy of the pre-financial crisis volumes but an extraordinary level in one year.

The question now is whether the banks, which have all continued to post stonking profits, have raised enough to meet the harsher regulations.

There are clear signs retail investors are tiring of the constant drains on their wallets. Commonwealth Bank, which raised $5.1bn from investors, only persuaded half of its retail register to accept the entitlements, leaving the nation's largest bank with a larger than anticipated shortfall. While the low turnout was blamed on the difficult trading conditions, others argued the discount on the deal - at an effective 10.5 per cent rate - was too narrow.

By contrast both National Australia Bank, which raised $5.5bn, and Westpac offered wider discounts.

Bank of America Merrill Lynch and UBS were the joint underwriters and bookrunners to Westpac's raising with Deutsche acting as a third joint lead manager.

Vocation suspended Could troubled education provider Vocation be in serious strife? The company was yesterday expected to reveal details of a financing arrangement, but instead its shares were suspended prompting fears a salvage plan had collapsed.

Several sources told DataRoom Vocation's prospects for survival were bleak. It is understood the company, which suffered a share price crash and had to divest major assets earlier this year as part of a deal with its banking syndicate, will be unable to make its next loan repayment and has been negotiating with its financiers.

Vocation's banking syndicate is made up of Westpac, Commonwealth Bank and NAB. It hoped to make an announcement but had yet to reach an arrangement. Last night Vocation chief executive Stewart Cummins, however, said it was simply a matter of the deal taking longer than expected. KordaMentha-owned 333 Group, which had assisted the company shedding assets, did not return calls.

EDITED BY: BRIDGET CARTER CARTERB@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU GRETCHEN FRIEMANN FRIEMANN@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU ADDITIONAL REPORTING: KYLAR LOUSSIKIAN

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: BANK OF AMERICA CORP; GOLDMAN SACHS GROUP INC (THE); LADBROKES PLC; NATIONAL AUSTRALIA BANK LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; UBS AG; VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH BANK; VOCATION LTD; WESTPAC BANKING CORP

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39)

INDUSTRY: Banking (1BA20); Banking Services for Small Business (1BA68); Commercial Banking Services (1CO19); Financial Services (1FI37); Loans (1LO12); Retail Banking Services (1RE38)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (BRIDGET CARTER CARTERB; GRETCHEN FRIEMANN FRIEMANN; Robbie Cooke; Kerry Stokes; Stewart G. Cummins; Stewart Cummins; Gala Coral; Paddy Power; Colin Barnett; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough)

EDITION: Australian

WORD COUNT: 1071

Tabcorp, Tatts may revisit deal

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: November 21, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

11/21/15 Austl. Fin. Rev. 35

News

Copyright © 2015 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Companies and Markets

John Stensholt

Reasons for reviving a merger are pretty compelling.

A little-known but significant milestone reached a couple of months ago goes to the heart of why a $9 billion merger between wagering companies Tabcorp and Tatts Group may not be dead yet.

In late August, Irish bookmaking giant Paddy Power announced its results for the six months to June 30, showing that the amount wagered by punters over the internet with its Australian Sportsbet business has risen sharply to about $1.73 billion.

A couple of weeks later, Tabcorp's annual results revealed its tab.com.au digital wagering business has turnover of $1.65 billion in the first six months of the calendar year.

The upstart Sportsbet had surpassed the local and long-established player in Tabcorp, at least in a digital sense.

While Tabcorp's retail business turned over about $3.16 billion in the six months, and its online business Luxbet another $350 million, still leaving it as the nation's biggest wagering outfit, all the growth in betting is coming online.

Figures contained in an Australian Wagering Council report released this week show that while the overall wagering market is not growing markedly, there is a definite shift by punters to betting over the internet rather than in traditional retail outlets.

In the 2009 financial year, $3.9 billion was wagered over the internet, and $18 billion "offline" in retail shops and over the phone. In the 2014 financial year those figures were $15.6 billion and $11.06 billion respectively. At about the same time that the wagering figures for the first half of 2015 were revealed, Tatts Group made an approach to Tabcorp regarding a merger of equals. Talks continued for the best part of two months, with Goldman Sachs and Investec advising Tatts and UBS working for Tabcorp.

Insiders describe the reasons for the merger as compelling. A combined entity would have market capitalisation of more than $9 billion, giving it the scale of the world's biggest wagering operators. It would diversify both businesses given the strength of the Tatts lotteries business and as advisers for both camps worked away during Melbourne's spring racing carnival a deal looked certain to happen.

There is also a belief from both parties that a merger would have benefited the horse racing industry, to which about $25 million of the mooted $100 million in annual synergies could flow. A merger would have also provided the chance to establish a national betting pool, allowing the combined entity to offer a better product to consumers and take the fight to the corporate bookmakers.

But after a trading update on October 29, Tabcorp's share price began to fall. By comparison, Tatts said first-quarter trading for the 2016 financial year "had a solid start" with both lotteries and wagering performing well, and though it released less information than Tabcorp, the Tatts share price held up.

The respective share price performances ultimately scuppered the deal. Tatts said in its statement that there had been disagreement on "a nil-premium exchange ratio", while Tabcorp said the two "were unable to mutually agree acceptable terms and ... there are no further discussions taking place between the parties relating to a merger or any other form of corporate transaction."

But sources indicate another move to merge is only a matter of time.

"The deal went within a whisker of happening, and it could be game on again next year," one source said.

"We believe a deal is highly likely, but not until the Western Australian wagering licence is sold," said CLSA analyst Sacha Krien in a note to clients last week. The WA licence is expected to be privatised in mid-2016.

Given that and what is happening in a global context, where Paddy Power and Betfair, and Ladbrokes and Coral, are poised to merge and create huge combined companies in the process, some sort of move has to happen - a fact that has been exercising the minds of both the Tabcorp and Tatts boards for some time.

When the dust settles there is likely to be only a handful of huge and truly global players, which has plenty of implications for the Australian market, where the mostly overseas-owned online only or corporate bookmakers have made huge inroads in recent years, putting huge pressure on Tabcorp and Tatts in the process.

The local implications could be another round of deal-making frenzy among the corporate bookmakers, some potential new entrants and Tabcorp and Tatts either have to merge or do deals offshore in order to stay relevant in an online era and stave off intense competition. It is a case of get scale or get run over by the competition.

In the past few years in Australia alone, Paddy Power has bought Sportsbet, William Hill has acquired the Tom Waterhouse.com, Sportingbet and Centrebet brands and Ladbrokes has taken over bookmaker.com.au and Betstar. Added to that has been the entrant of former Sportsbet majority owner and chief executive Matthew Tripp with Crownbet, born out of the shell of the former Betezy brand, and the huge Bet365 business to the Australian market.

All have aggressively advertised their online offerings and, crucially, don't have the legacy issues of having to operate the slowly waning TAB outlets in NSW and Victoria in Tabcorp's case, and Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania and the Northern Territory for Tatts.

So where to next? The intense competition from the online upstarts should make it easier for Tabcorp and Tatts, should they rekindle their relationship, to get a deal done than in the past (the idea of a merger goes back more than a decade). Back in 2006, the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission said a merger between the country's two biggest wagering companies would reduce further competition for licences, but the rise of digital operators means the battle for market share is fiercer than ever.

Tatts shareholders could push for a divestment of its wagering arm in the hope of realising between $1.6 billion and $1.8 billion from a competitive bidding process that would certainly include Tabcorp, but may also include Seven West Media in concert with Racing Victoria - the two have a broadcasting joint venture in the Racing.com business - and potentially an overseas party such as Paddy Power via its Sportsbet business in Australia. Other overseas suitors such as Ladbrokes and William Hill could also be interested.

The privatisation of the WA TAB will also be hotly contested. Tabcorp and Tatts are thought to be natural bidders, with both Seven and its Perth-based chairman Kerry Stokes understood to be contemplating a bid.

The possible move by Seven into the wagering sector could also include a tilt at the Victorian wagering licence, held by Tabcorp until 2022. Racing Victoria and Seven executives are thought to be keen to explore a bid for the licence, having laid the groundwork for this when the licence was last up for renewal - but before the Brumby Labor state government denied it a chance to bid.

Seven and Racing Victoria could also look at a relationship with Crownbet in the future, though the latter has been growing aggressively by taking big sponsorship deals with the likes of the AFL and Racing.com.

Crownbet could look at merging with a business of similar scale such as William Hill's Australian arm or the local Ladbrokes operation, which has performed relatively strongly.

William Hill, once the Paddy Power/Betfair and Coral/Ladbrokes deals are consummated, will be a medium-sized global player and may be a suitor for a Tabcorp or Tatts in order to reach a similar size to its rivals. The newly merged Ladbrokes may also decide to focus more on the Australian market and make more acquisitions.

Furthermore, industry observers say there is a chance overseas operators such as Bwin.Party or a US casino group such as Caesars, may enter the market. Whatever happens, it is clear that when the dust settles within the next few years, the wagering industry in Australia will have changed considerably. It is now up to Tabcorp and Tatts if they want to move with the times or get left languishing.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: BETFAIR GROUP PLC; CENTREBET INTERNATIONAL PTY LTD; GOLDMAN SACHS GROUP INC (THE); INTERNATIONAL SPEEDWAY CORP; INVESTEC PLC; LADBROKES PLC; PADDY POWER PLC; SEVEN WEST MEDIA LTD; SPORTINGBET LTD; SPORTSBET PTY LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; TATTS GROUP LTD; UBS AG; WILLIAM HILL PLC; BWIN PARTY DIGITAL ENTERTAINMENT PLC

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39)

INDUSTRY: Bricks to Clicks (1BR78); Casinos (1CA80); E-Commerce (1EC30); E-Commerce Industries (1EC99); Entertainment (1EN08); Gaming Industry (1GA25); Internet (1IN27); Retail (1RE82)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Victoria (1VI05); Western Australia (1WE82)

OTHER INDEXING: (Matthew Tripp; Crownbet; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes; Sacha Krien)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 1348

Melbourne Cup star Payne set to turn heads at Randwick next month

Source: Sydney Morning Herald, The (Australia)
Publication Date: November 23, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

11/23/15 Sydney Morning Herald (Austl.) 42

News

Copyright © 2015 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Sport
Chris Roots

Melbourne Cup-winning jockey Michelle Payne will be honoured by the Australian Turf Club as she rides at its Randwick meeting next month.

The club has worked on finding a date to get Payne to Sydney since her history-making Melbourne Cup win on Prince Of Penzance and has confirmed Saturday, December 5 as the date.

"We have worked with her to get her up here, so that people in Sydney can have the chance to congratulate her on a remarkable achievement," ATC's Brett de Vine said. "She is going to ride on the day and bring her Melbourne Cup with her. We are working on having her brother Stevie [Prince Of Penzance's strapper] here as well.

"We had a really successful day with Jim Cassidy on Saturday and we want to give the public opportunities to see the stars of our sport." The club is working out details for the afternoon but there will be a chance for fans to meet Payne during the afternoon.

Prizemoney push

Racing NSW will make an announcement on how the first part of tax parity funds will be distributed in Dubbo on Tuesday. Being in the seat of deputy premier and racing minister Troy Grant it is almost certain to do with prizemoney in country areas.

The Racing NSW strategic plan suggests that prizemoney should increase from $15,000 to $20,000 a race for country TAB meetings along with other prizemoney targets across the board.

As tax parity with Victoria will be delivered during the next five years all the prizemoney targets cannot be hit in the first year but rest assured country racing is a high priority for the government.

The ATC announcement of more than $2 million in increases to prizemoney across nine group 1s in the autumn carnival has fulfilled another part of the strategic plan; that there should be a $500,000 minimum stake for group1 in NSW.

Buffering's brilliance

How good is Buffering? As an eight-year-old he is still near the top horses in the country and is loved by punters. Especially those that got $4.40 after the barrier draw for the Winterbottom Stakes, which he won on Saturday. Robert Heathcote has done a remarkable job to keep his star sprinter at the top of his game.

Buffering's record of 31 starts for six wins, six seconds, seven thirds and six fourths would make a great career for any horse - but that's Buff's record in group 1s.

"I have never called him the WBS, [world's best sprinter] there has always been one better than him," Heathcote said. "At the start of his career we were running into Black Caviar and Hay List and happy to run third. We thought his time will come. It has but I didn't think it would go on this long."

Buffering has earned $5.6 million and who's to say he can't add an international success to his record if Heathcote chooses to go to Dubai and Royal Ascot next year.

Broadcast battles

The battle for the next broadcast and wagering deal in Western Australia is well and truly on. The vision rights to WA racing come up in 2017 and racing.com is already courting Perth officials in an effort to take over from the Tabcorp-owned Sky Channel. The privatisation of the WA TAB is also under consideration and with it would come the technology infrastructure needed should Seven West and Racing Victoria want to buy the TAB licence in Victoria sometime in the next decade.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92)

INDUSTRY: Consumer Products & Services (1CO62); Entertainment (1EN08); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Horse Racing (1HO27); Luxury Items (1LU28); Sporting Events (1SP65); Sports (1SP75)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); New South Wales (1NE75); Oceania (1OC40); Victoria (1VI05); Western Australia (1WE82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Stevie; Prince; Michelle Payne; Jim Cassidy; Troy Grant)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 584

08 Jan 2016
Australian Financial Review, Australia

Author: Perry Williams • Section: Companies and Markets • Article type : News Item
Classification : National • Audience : 57,243 • Page: 13 • Printed Size: 272.00cm<sup>2</sup>
Market: National • Country: Australia • ASR: AUD 4,756 • Words: 641
Item ID: 522156936

isentia.mediaportal

Copyright Agency licensed copy (www.copyright.com.au)

Tabcorp
the bigger better game

Page 1 of 1

▲
back

Tatts, Tabcorp jockey to win race for last state-owned TAB

Exclusive

Perry Williams

Gaming giants Tatts Group and Tabcorp have held talks with the Western Australia government over a potential $1 billion deal to buy Australia's last remaining state-owned betting agency as pressure grows on the state to prop up its ailing economy.

Premier Colin Barnett first raised the for-sale flag over the TAB in mid-2014 as attention focused on how the former boom state would deal with a ballooning debt crisis.

While it was officially listed for sale in the state's May budget, political squabbling and divisions within the racing industry raised questions over the timetable for a privatisation.

However, sources close to the process say intense lobbying from Australia's two largest wagering companies over the past few months suggest the timetable for a deal may accelerate.

Billionaire Kerry Stokes is also tipped as a likely suitor for the TAB as Seven West Media looks to build on a broadcasting deal struck with the Victorian thoroughbred racing industry in 2015. Seven is also thought to have been approached by corporate bookmakers for a potential equity investment or joint venture.

"This is the only remaining tote opportunity within Australia, so there is huge interest among the big wagering players as you would expect," the source said. "Tatts and Tabcorp have held dozens of meetings in the last year to position themselves for a possible sale while Stokes has the home-town advantage."

Corporate bookmakers and global betting giants eager to gain a foothold in Australia's strong market are also expected to bid should the government give the green light to a deal.

Tabcorp owns the former government TABs in NSW and Victoria while Tatts owns the TABs in Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and Tasmania. The two market-leading wagering companies held merger talks last year but failed to agree on a price.

Tabcorp was the winning bidder in the 2014 privatisation of the ACT's TAB where it received a 50-year totalisator licence, a 15-year sports bookmaking licence and approval to offer its Keno and Trackside products in Canberra pubs, clubs and betting shops.

Tatts boss Robbie Cooke confirmed in December the company would be interested in bidding for WA's TAB.

Corporate advisory firms and investment banks have held early talks about an advisory role to the government.

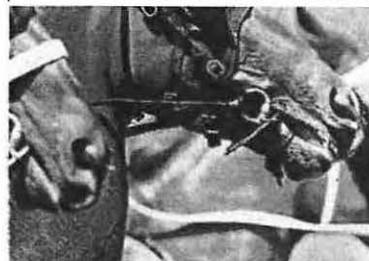

WA Liberal Treasurer Mike Nahan said in December that $17 billion in expected revenue over the budget years had disappeared since last year's forecasts largely due to the dramatic fall in iron ore prices.

The Racing Representative Group charged to lobby on behalf of the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound codes is also looking to appoint an independent expert in the expectation a sale proceeds, and has drawn on the expertise of former Tatts finance head Ray Gunston to help the industry shape its negotiating position.

The group's representative, Michael Grant, said he was frustrated by delays in instigating the first steps of the sales process and he had not heard from the government since putting a formal

Continued next page

However, the consideration of a sale of the TAB provides an opportunity to address the likely challenges that will arise in the future," the website states.

There's huge interest in buying the West Australian state-owned tote.

From previous page

Tatts, Tabcorp jockey for state-owned TAB

proposal around the possible deal in October.

"The government has made a commitment but we will only sell it if it's what the industry wanted and only if we can be sure of all the ongoing benefits to the industry," Mr Grant said.

"Make no mistake the industry is suffering a crisis of confidence in not having that surety going forward, so we need the government to move forward on this."

A government spokesman was unavailable for comment. The WA Treasury website under an asset sales heading says a deal remains on its agenda.

"The TAB has operated successfully in Western Australia, and this has resulted in a strong racing industry.

Barnett told to sell WA TAB to pay off debt

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: January 13, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

1/13/16 Austl. Fin. Rev. 18

News

Copyright © 2016 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Companies and Markets

Perry Williams

West Australia's leading business group has urged Colin Barnett's government to sell Australia's last remaining state-owned betting agency as gaming giants Tatts Group and Tabcorp prepare to battle for the potential $1 billion deal.

The WA Chamber of Commerce and Industry said the government was not a natural owner of the asset and should include the sale as part of a privatisation push that could reduce its large debt pile.

"Gaming has evolved from the tote at the local races into a highly competitive, global online industry offering countless betting markets and the modern reality is an unnatural fit for a state government," said WA Chamber of Commerce and Industry chief executive Deidre Willmott.

Premier Colin Barnett first raised the for-sale flag over the TAB in mid-2014 and while it was officially listed for sale in the state's May budget, political divisions and issues within the racing industry have raised questions over the timetable for a privatisation.

Ms Willmott said the obvious interest from companies, which are expected to include Tabcorp, Tatts and a potential bid from billionaire Kerry Stokes meant it should be put on the market.

"The government should sell any asset where the private sector can provide the service more efficiently and in a competitive market, which is clearly the case with the TAB and the ongoing support of the local industry should be made a condition of the sale process."

The WA Treasury website said a deal remains on its agenda but the state's racing and gaming minister Colin Holt would not be drawn on his appetite for whether the process may move forward in 2016.

"I am focused on ensuring the racing industry in Western Australia including country racing, continues to succeed, is sustainable in the long term, and continues making a strong contribution to the economy, just as it has in the past," Mr Holt said in a statement to Fairfax Media.

Tabcorp owns the former government TABs in NSW and Victoria while Tatts owns the TABs in Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and Tasmania.

Tabcorp was the winning bidder in the 2014 privatisation of the ACT's TAB where it received a 50-year totalisator licence, a 15-year sports bookmaking licence and approval to offer its Keno and Trackside products in Canberra pubs, clubs and betting shops.

Tatts chief executive Robbie Cooke confirmed in December the company would be interested in bidding for WA's TAB.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: FAIRFAX MEDIA LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; TATTS GROUP LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Campaigns & Elections (1CA25); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92); U.S. Congressional Campaigns (1US07)

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); E-Commerce (1EC30); E-Commerce Industries (1EC99); Entertainment (1EN08); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Australian Capital Territory (1AU58); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)

OTHER INDEXING: (Colin Holt; Robert Michael Sean Cooke; Robbie Cooke; Deidre Willmott; Colin Barnett; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 404

WA TAB worth $700 million-plus, Credit Suisse says

Tabcorp has capacity for a $600 million debt-funded acquisition, Credit Suisse analysts said. Jenny Evans

by Sarah Thompson Anthony Macdonald Joyce Moulakis

Western Australia's TAB could be worth more than $700 million if it is managed along the same margins as ASX-listed Tabcorp, according to Credit Suisse analysts.

The analysts told clients on Friday morning that the WA TAB generated about $350 million revenue, which on Tabcorp's 20 per cent earnings margin would imply $70 million annual earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation.

WA has flagged the TAB's potential sale and is consulting with the racing industry to find an industry funding structure that would enable the TAB to be sold.

The unit is expected to attract the likes of Tabcorp, listed rival Tatts Group and offshore corporate bookmakers.

Credit Suisse said Tabcorp had about $600 million in debt-funded acquisition capacity, which would send its net debt to 2.5-times earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation.

"That may initially be above management's target balance sheet leverage ratio of 2.0x-2.5x gross debt to EBITDA; however, strong cash flow generation would see the business de-lever quickly," the analysts said.

The comments came after Tabcorp announced a \$97.5 million profit for the six-months to December 31, up from \$90.9 million a year earlier.

News & Views Markets Quotes Workplace Consumer Property Innovation Retail Economy CBD Money SHARE TWEET MORE SUBSCRIBE NICHOLAS

Home / Business

FEBRUARY 12 2016

SAVE PRINT LICENSE ARTICLE

WA fires starting gun on $1b TAB sell-off

Perry Williams

Australia's last state-owned betting agency will be officially put up for sale by the West Australian government within weeks, in a potential $1 billion-plus deal.

The TAB privatisation sets up the tantalising prospect of billionaire Kerry Stokes entering the wagering market for the first time and battling fierce rivals Tabcorp and Tatts Group for the rights to run the profitable betting business, while corporate bookmakers including James Packer's CrownBet may also consider a bid.

The West Australian government will end years of speculation by placing the TAB on the market in a potential $1 billion-plus deal. Photo: Jenny Evans

The WA government will issue a request for proposal to major players in the industry in the coming weeks after Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt decided the state was not a natural owner of the TAB, and said it was time to test the market's appetite for the assets, which include 320 retail outlets.

"From my viewpoint, it's time to test the market now," Mr Holt told Fairfax Media in an exclusive interview. "I'm responsible to the industry and I've Collect your rewards with an HSBC Platinum Credit Card.

Advertisement

HUFFPOST AUSTRALIA

Amazon's Grocery Store Lets You Grab ...

Use These 6 Concepts To Teach Your Kids ...

reached the conclusion we need to look at the potential privatisation of the TAB to see what opportunities it presents for the industry itself."

Depending on the value and structure of initial offers, the government may legislate to offer an exclusive retail TAB wagering licence to the successful bidder.

With Tabcorp and Tatts holding a monopoly over retail TAB outlets in every other state and territory in Australia, the mooted sale is likely to spark a frenzy of bidding for operators to gain a foothold in the market, given a dearth of opportunities in the last few years.

Advertisement

Mr Holt said he had met with major players, including Tabcorp and Tatts, and expects other new entrants including Seven West Media, which created the racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria last year, to look at the opportunity.

"I've met with some of those big players who we already know exist in Australia. And there may well be two or three others who are thinking of getting into a wagering business," said Mr Holt. "The fact racing.com has come on board has actually changed the game. Maybe one of the corporate bookies is interested and Crown may want to add a wagering business."

WA accounts for 9 per cent of Australia's wagering market, according to Macquarie Research.

Massive corporate interest

Mr Holt spent much of last year travelling around Australia to meet with racing bodies and better understand the fast-moving wagering space. He said the experience led him to the conclusion the state must make a move to capture massive corporate interest in the sector and deliver a sale which strengthens the state's own racing industry.

"It was originally floated as an asset sale to help address our deficit issues, but in reality it will be more realistic that it is about an outcome for the industry," said Mr Holt. "The WA TAB performs really strongly; we're like a jewel in the crown, and we're the last ones to be privatised in Australia so we can obviously learn from all the potential pitfalls and opportunities that the others have been through."

Premier Colin Barnett first raised the for-sale flag over the TAB in mid-2014 as attention focused on how the mining state would deal with a ballooning debt crisis.

While it was listed for sale in the state's May budget, political squabbling and divisions within the racing industry raised questions over the timetable for a privatisation.

MOST POPULAR

- 1 'Her role on the project was just to be an ornament'
- 2 NAB makes its move to $1.7b Wynyard Place
- 3 Paddle Pop's 15-second ad dumped after complaint
- 4 Shares and bonds see GDP shock differently
- 5 YouTube makes $US1 billion case that it's good for music industry

FOLLOW BUSINESSDAY

FACEBOOK
TWITTER

FOLLOW SMH

NEWSLETTERS

Prepared for your family's future?

Join our property investment hub today

FIND OUT MORE

Mr Holt said he has held constructive talks with the Racing Representative Group charged to lobby on behalf of the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound codes, but admits a potential sale of the TAB will not be universally welcomed.

"We're working with the WA racing industry to clearly define benchmarks for the sale and I expect we'll have some of those very shortly," said Mr Holt. "My responsibility is to the industry, and I won't be agreeing anything unless it gives a really good outcome for the industry broadly across WA."

Racing and Wagering Western Australia, the owner of the TAB, said it contributed $165 million in funding to the state's racing and sports industry in the 2014-15 year.

YOU MIGHT LIKE

Gold Coast

BOOKING.COM SPONSORED

Advertisement

EVERY JOB. EVERYWHERE. FOR YOU

Home & Garden Needed In...
Penrith, Penrith Area

Home & Garden Help Wanted
Lane Cove, Lane Cove Area

e.g.job,company,title      Please select region      Search jobs on Adzuna

Recommended

Family of dead miner lose bid to claim his life insurance after payroll...
WA NEWS

Where Would You Invest? Shane Oliver's Top Tips for SMSFs
AMP CAPITAL E)

The swimsuit trend that's also good for you
DAILY LIFE

Never Transfer Money Overseas Again Without Reading This
OFX E)

Illegal 'cash-in-hand' payments on the rise
BUSINESS

It's probably Europe's hippest summer city and Aussies totally miss it
INTERNATIONAL TRAVELLER

'Sitting ducks': The Sydney homeowners facing reduced property values
BUSINESS

Got Private Health Insurance? You Should Read This Now!
HEALTH INSURANCE

Donald Trump's gift to Australia worth billions in the long run
BUSINESS

Forget Sydney, investors have their eye on a new booming hotspot in NSW
DOMAIN E)

Recommended by

SMALL BUSINESS MBA ONLY $1      THE FORTUNE INSTITUTE      CLICK HERE

FEATURED IN      Bloomberg      Forbes      TODAY      todaytonight      60

Bankers at the barrier for WA TAB mandate

WA Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt will in the coming weeks seek advisers who can guide the government on the future funding needs of the state's racing industry. Brendan Foster

by Sarah Thompson Anthony Macdonald Joyce Moulakis

With the clock ticking on the $1 billion privatisation of West Australia's TAB network, advisers are starting to position themselves for a plum role negotiating the sale of Australia's last state-owned betting agency.

Sources told Street Talk the request for proposal process to spark the spin-off will be split into two stages.

WA Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt will in the coming weeks seek advisers who can guide the government on the future funding needs of the state's racing industry.

The scoping study will focus on the potential transfer of value from the state to the new owner, the possible rationalisation of racing clubs and the structure and shape of the industry should a sale proceed.

Rothschild and Deloitte, who partnered up on the Utah Ports privatisation, will be in the running along with EY who recently advised on the Perth Market Authority sale.

Racing and Wagering Western Australia, the owner of the TAB, is understood to have held a board meeting in the last few days to discuss the sales process.

The second stage will evaluate formal expressions of interest from bidders for the TAB network and is likely to stretch into the second half of 2016.

There's little surprise that both Tabcorp and Tatts Group have already put their hands up as interested bidders and several of the corporate bookmakers including James Packer's CrownBet and Sportsbet, owned by Ireland's Paddy Power, may also take a look.

Meanwhile, Kerry Stokes' Seven West Media is expected to lever off its successful racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria to have a crack at the wagering market. Seven West also has a strong position in WA, selling 158,000 copies of the West Australian every day.

Seven West boss Tim Worner did not rule out a potential deal on Wednesday when analysts questioned the media company about its intentions in the wagering sector.

Credit Suisse analysts reckon WAT TAB's \$350 million annual revenue could be worth $70 million in earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation for an industry player like Tabcorp, assuming a 20 per cent earnings margin.

It's all about a cut in licence fees: Worner

Source: Australian
Publication Date: February 18, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/18/16 Australian (Newspaper) 19

News

Copyright © 2016 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

JAKE MITCHELLMedia

Seven West Media chief executive Tim Worner has taken aim at rival media companies for "running around Canberra" and "talking their own businesses down" in the pursuit of changes to owner-ship laws.

Mr Worner told The Australian he was disappointed the sector had not presented more of a united front on the need to cut television licence fees, which are among the highest in the world.

Regional television networks WIN Corporation, Prime Media Group and Southern Cross Media Group have led a push for media -reform that has focused on abolishing the population reach rule and cross media ownership laws.

"Licence fee reductions is the reform that can actually assist the entire industry," Mr Worner said.

"Instead they're running around Canberra and running around talking their own businesses down. I think they're starting to reap what they sow." Asked whether Seven, which owns The West Australian and magazines including New Idea, had been trying to stall the progress of reform because the -removal of media ownership rules was not in its interests, Mr Worner said: "That's absolute rubbish.

"We haven't stalled anything. We just want an entire package of -reform and we want to see licence fees at the top of it." It has been speculated that Seven or chairman Kerry Stokes' 73 per cent-controlled Seven Group Holdings may be interested in bidding for the Western Australian TAB, which is set to be privatised. Mr Worner would not be drawn on whether Seven was interested but said the company's Racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria was going from "strength to strength".

The media executive was speaking as Seven -reported a $135.2 million net profit for the six months ended on -December 26, turning around a $993.6m loss in the previous corresponding -period, which was hit by writedowns to its television, newspaper and magazine licences.

The company reported an underlying net profit of $140.3m, which was a rise of 2.1 per cent, as a cost-cutting program helped -offset a sluggish advertising -market and structural challenges facing its assets.

Seven's revenue slipped by 4.1 per cent to $896.7m, while earnings before interest, tax, -depreciation and amortisation fell by 8.5 per cent to $229.3m.

Group costs were down 4 per cent to $687.5m.

The company's top placed free-to-air television business, the Seven Network, recorded a 2.1 per cent revenue decline to $662.9m, while earnings before interest and tax were up by 2 per cent to $185.4m.

The latest accounts show the television operations now represent 83 per cent of the group's earnings.

Newspaper earnings of $24m for the half year were down 22 per cent, while magazine earnings slumped 39 per cent to $7.3m.

Macquarie Securities analyst Andrew Levy said Seven's progress in cutting costs was encouraging before the impact of the network's broadcast rights for the Rio 2016 Summer Olympics and new AFL deal.

"This is a robust result overall for Seven and demonstrates good near-term cost control," Mr Levy said.

Seven will pay an interim dividend of 4c a share. The company's shares closed on Wednesday flat at 81.5c.

JAKE MITCHELLMedia

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: PRIME MEDIA GROUP LTD; ROWIN CO LTD; SEVEN GROUP HOLDINGS LTD; SEVEN NETWORK LTD; SEVEN WEST MEDIA LTD; SOUTHERN CROSS MEDIA GROUP LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Financial Data (1XO59); Dividends (1DI76); Equity Instruments (1EQ90); Funding Instruments (1FU41); Privatization (1PR92)

INDUSTRY: Broadcast TV (1BR25); Entertainment (1EN08); Financial Services (1FI37); Investment Management (1IN34); Securities Investment (1SE57); TV (1TV19); TV Stations (1TV23); Traditional Media (1TR30)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Australian Capital Territory (1AU58); Oceania (1OC40)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Andrew Levy; Tim Worner; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes)

EDITION: Australian

WORD COUNT: 517

CrownBet profitable, declares CEO Tripp

Sports betting

John Stensholt

CrownBet chief executive Matthew Tripp claims his upstart wagering business is now profitable, less than two years after he established the business from the remnants of the BetEzy brand.

In a wide-ranging interview, Tripp revealed CrownBet was performing ahead of his expectations and had benefited from its ties to Crown Resorts, which owns 62 per cent of the business, and its Signature Club membership and loyalty rewards program, as well as its big sponsorship deals with the AFL and Racing.com.

Tripp said he would aggressively pursue sponsorship deals in the NRL, Super Rugby and A-League, admitting that CrownBet was still too Victoria-centred, and was confident his business would emerge as one of the market's big players should another round of mergers and acquisitions take place in the wagering sector.

He also said CrownBet would pursue its own in-play betting option should the Barry O'Farrell review of the Interactive Gaming Act, due in mid-March, at least indicate in-play betting should be legalised.

Tripp said CrownBet's financial results had been improving rapidly, helped in recent months by a decision to rein in some of its television advertising spending.

"We broke even on a monthly basis in November and have kept that up every month since," Tripp said. "While that's only been four months, I think we will be profitable for the rest of the year. That is ahead of where we thought we would be."

Tripp established CrownBet in a joint venture with Crown Resorts in late 2014, after taking over the BetEzy brand the previous April after a non-compete clause after his sale of Sportsbet to Irish Giant Paddy Power expired.

CrownBet is now understood to be comparable in size to William Hill Australia, which recently announced it made $198.4 million net revenue from about $2.05 billion amount wagered with it in the 2015 calendar year.

Tripp said CrownBet has about 150,000 active customers, 220 per cent up from a year ago, and 300 staff, 180 of which were hired during 2015.

A focus on AFL and horse racing has helped fuel the growth, as has the popularity of the National Basketball Association (NBA) in the United States with Australian punters.

"Basketball is at least our third-best sport now, and probably second, though I'd expect the NRL to overtake it," Tripp said.

"We are conscious that we have to do more outside of Victoria so we will be looking at [sponsorship] deals with NRL clubs and we've been talking to rugby and soccer clubs as well."

Like others in industry, Tripp is eagerly awaiting the O'Farrell review. He said CrownBet would be ready to go should there be support for legalising in-play betting online, now banned in Australia.

"We've been ready for it for a couple of years and we're really confident that the technology we have and the offering we would put out there would be very popular.

"We are very confident about the legality of it as well, but we will wait for an indication of where things could head from the report."

The review could also set the wagering industry down the path of more mergers and acquisitions, with Tripp predicting a shake out.

"I really think we will go from five corporate [online wagering only] companies to at least four, maybe three, within five years. And I think we will be well placed to survive that."

But Tripp said it was unlikely CrownBet would be a contender for the West Australian TAB, which the state government will move to sell later this year with a price tag of about $1 billion.

"We would look at it, but I'm not sure we are geared up enough at this stage to take on a retail operator as you would have to in that situation. Maybe in the future."

Barnett to start WA TAB sale talks

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: March 15, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

3/15/16 Austl. Fin. Rev. 18

News

Copyright © 2016 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Companies and Markets

Perry Williams

West Australian Premier Colin Barnett is poised to proceed with the $1 billion privatisation of the state's TAB agency with talks planned this week with the racing industry.

Mr Barnett, who flagged the TAB privatisation in mid-2014, was initially due to meet the Racing Representative Group on Monday morning in Perth. However, the meeting was changed because of a delay in cabinet proceedings. It is due to be held in coming days.

The racing body, charged with lobbying on behalf of the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound codes, is expected to list its demands relating to any potential sale, including minimum funding commitments for each of the clubs it represents.

Sources said Racing Minister Colin Holt and Treasurer Mike Nahan would also attend the meeting.

It was thought Mr Nahan expressed concern last week the state needed to ensure it engineered a strong outcome for the region should the sale proceed.

That could take the form of a one-off payment by a successful bidder in addition to the minimum guarantees needed to be in place with the racing clubs.

RRG spokesman Michael Grant has previously said it is imperative to have the correct structure in place, which includes minimum undertakings and benefits to the racing industry. The group is concerned the government has yet to appoint an external adviser to guide it in the complex process.

It is thought firms including Rothschild, Investec and EY are positioning themselves for an advisory role in the privatisation process, although no formal request for the proposal has been sent to the industry.

Tabcorp, which owns the former government TABs in NSW and Victoria, and Tatts, the owner of the TABs in Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and Tasmania, are logical front runners in the West Australian race.

Most in the industry expect Tabcorp to have the best chance of securing the TAB sale.

Tabcorp chief executive David Attenborough has confirmed the betting giant will likely lob in a proposal.

Tabcorp was the winning bidder in the 2014 privatisation of the ACT TAB, where it received a 50-year totalisator licence, a 15-year sports bookmaking licence and approval to offer its Keno and Trackside products in Canberra pubs, clubs and betting shops.

The two rivals, which canned $9 billion merger talks in November, may consider resurrecting a wagering tie-up in the next few months, potentially removing a source of competitive tension in the bidding process depending on the WA government's timeline.

Alternatively, should Tabcorp or Tatts emerge as the winner in the West Australian sale, that process might stall the momentum for a merger between the two companies.

The sale also sets up the prospect of two of Australia's highest-profile billionaires, James Packer and Kerry Stokes, entering the wagering market in the west.

Mr Stokes' Seven West Media, which created the racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria last year, is thought to be mulling an assault on the wagering market with Western Australia an obvious entry point.

However, Mr Packer's CrownBet remains an outside chance given the large retail network footprint.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: ERNST AND YOUNG; INVESTEC PLC; ROTHSCHILD AND CO SCA; SEVEN WEST MEDIA LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92)

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); Casinos (1CA80); Entertainment (1EN08); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Horse Racing (1HO27); Sports (1SP75)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Australian Capital Territory (1AU58); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)

OTHER INDEXING: (Racing Representative Group) (Mike Nahan; Colin Holt; Michael Grant; Colin Barnett; James Douglas Packer; James Packer; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 509

PNG's PM delivers for Ferrovial boss

Source: Australian
Publication Date: April 29, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

4/29/16 Australian (Newspaper) 32

News

Copyright © 2016 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

MARGIN CALL WITH BEN BUTLERCHRISTINE LACY

Ferrovial boss Santiago Olivares will have PNG Prime Minister Peter O'Neill to thank for delivering takeover target Broadspectrum into the dashing Spaniards' acquisitive hands.

By late yesterday 19 per cent cornerstone investor Simon Mawhinney at fund manager Allan Gray was softening his previously steadfast stance against Ferrovial's $1.50-a-share bid for the detention centre operator, as Broadspectrum's hopes of maintaining its PNG camp contract were dimming.

(Yesterday we said the bid was $1.35, which was wrong.) "At this stage we are gathering as much information as possible so that we can make an informed decision before the expiry of the offer at 7pm on Monday," Mawhinney told us.

By last night Broadspectrum chair Diane Smith Gander was still telling investors to reject the bid, but was assessing whether the situation on Manus warranted a change.

Despite that the action in the PNG Supreme Court was on foot, DSG didn't think it important enough to note it in her target statement. In contrast, Immigration Minister Peter Dutton says he's been "planning for this since late last year".

Allan Gray tipping into the bid gets Ferrovial close to its 50.1 per cent minimum acceptance, the mums and dads will probably follow and the conquistadors will be locked into buying the company, regardless of how things play out on Manus.

Skala departs board Steven Skala has left the board of Deutsche Bank's main Aussie arm after 10 years, resigning his directorship of Deutsche Australia in February.

The banking veteran, who retains his broader role as vice-chairman of Deutsche Bank Australia and NZ, has left Deutsche Australia two legacies: a bumper profit and an expansive "discussion" with Chris Jordan's tax office.

The bonanza $82 million profit in 2015, nearly three times 2014's $28m effort, is easily explained, thanks to increased trade by fixed interest clients but long-running tea-and-biscuits with the ATO is shrouded in mystery. Annual reports disclose talks have been going on for at least five years, although the subject matter may have moved.

In 2011, they were "in relation to certain matters", but by last year the chitchat covered "the determination of the company's tax position", which could "lead to additional tax liabilities", quantum unknown. All DB will say is that it is not under audit and the chinwags do not relate to a dispute.

West beckons Perrin Millionaire Billabong founder Scott Perrin and wife Rachel are having another shot at flogging his $30m Gold Coast home, which has been for sale for almost a year.

Perrin, who's now running Seven and Racing Victoria's Racing.com out of Melbourne, has switched agents on the little Mermaid Beach six-bedder in the hope of finally offloading it.

He's still commuting to work from up north, but might soon be looking west as WA Racing Minister Colin Holt ramps up plans to flog Australia's last government-owned wagering business, WA TAB.

Racing.com is mooted as billionaire boss Kerry Stokes' platform for further expansion into racing, potentially bidding for the wagering licence in his home state. It already has a hook-up with the James Packer-backed Crownbet. Holt's talking to industry about how he can sell the TAB to the market as a profitable enterprise - last year it made $156m in profit but gave $150m of that to the clubs.

Nine's breathing space Over at Nine, under-pressure boss Hugh Marks was finally able to deliver some breaking good news to his board of directors yesterday. As the Peter Costello-chaired Nine board met in Sydney, the action against the network by its Bermuda-based billionaire affiliate partner Bruce Gordon was being thrown out of court, with the judge now considering costs in the case.

Marks had already warned the market that the increase in legal costs from the WIN defence could eat into earnings this half, but if it goes away that could give the boss some headroom towards the growing list of expenses incurred from the 60 Minutes debacle in Beirut.

It was the board's first coming together since the news and current affairs scandal broke but directors, including former boss David Gyngell, Holly Kramer and Elizabeth Gaines, have been updated daily with written reports on the Levantine drama.

Nine is now saying the internal 60 Minutes review could take until mid-May. The board yesterday was not updated on the investigation. christine.lacy@news.com.au butlerb@theaustralian.com.au

MARGIN CALL WITH BEN BUTLERCHRISTINE LACY

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: ALLAN GRAY (PTY) LTD; DEUTSCHE BANK AG; DEUTSCHE AUSTRALIA LTD; FERROVIAL SA; GOLD COAST RESOURCES INC; INFRATIL LTD; JORDANS FURNITURE INC
NEWS SUBJECT: Board of Directors (1BO47); Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Immigration & Naturalization (1IM88); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39); Social Issues (1SO05); Taxation (1TA10)
INDUSTRY: Accounting, Consulting & Legal Services (1AC73)
REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Victoria (1VI05)
LANGUAGE: English
OTHER INDEXING: (Steven Skala; Holly Kramer; Colin Holt; David Gyngell; Diane Smith Gander; Scott Perrin; Simon Mawhinney; Hugh Marks; Kerry Stokes; Chris Jordan; Allan Gray; Santiago Olivares Blazquez; Santiago Olivares Blazquez; BEN BUTLERCHRISTINE LACY; Bruce Gordon; Bruce Gordon; Elizabeth Gaines; Peter Dutton; Rachel)
EDITION: Australian
WORD COUNT: 736

Today's Paper Videos Infographics Markets Data BRW Lists

My Premium AFR  Logout
search the AFR

PREMIUM

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

THE Store BY FAIRFAX THE NEW ONLINE DESTINATION FOR AUSTRALIAN DESIGN EXPLORE NOW >

Home / Business / Sport

May 22 2016 at 6:05 PM Updated May 22 2016 at 6:05 PM

Save Article Print License Article

Seven and Racing Victoria shake up horse racing with Hong Kong deal

Racing Victoria and Seven West Media's joint venture may bid for racing in other states. Vince Calligiuri

Expression of Interest
Land for Future School Sites

Fishermans Bend
www.schoolbuildings.vic.gov.au
www.fishermansbend.vic.gov.au

Advertisement

by John Stensholt

Seven West Media and Racing Victoria's Racing.com joint venture will announce on Monday it has gained the rights to broadcast arguably the best-quality horse racing in the world from Hong Kong.

It is a small but significant step for Racing.com, one that may be the first domino to fall in what looms as a year or two of intensive broadcast deal negotiations across several states and merger and acquisition activity in the wagering sector.

Plenty of this may have Seven and Racing.com at the centre of the action and have ramifications for the established listed wagering operators such as Tabcorp and racing administrators around the country.

Racing.com's coverage of Hong Kong is likely to begin this weekend or next Wednesday evening. Its popular on-air host Shane Anderson says the coverage, shown on Seven's free-to-air Racing.com channel, on Foxtel's pay television service and online, will be "an elite product covered with elite talent", including preview and analysis shows.

Tabcorp's Sky Racing channel will still cover Hong Kong but Mr Anderson believes Racing.com's ability to showcase it as a premium product makes it a

Related articles

Foxtel executive von Hauenschild resigns

Netflix rating process fast-tracked

Football a business for Max Donnelly

differentiator. At present, Hong Kong is part of a constant suite of racing, including greyhounds and harness, shown on Sky's main channel or moved to its secondary

The theory is greater exposure to horse racing on television means more people bet and more flows through to the industry in race fields fees. It can also be said that Tabcorp – which shares the spoils of tote betting – will also benefit.

But the Hong Kong deal shows the divergent paths Tabcorp is taking from Seven and Racing Victoria, which shows the crown jewels of the Spring Carnival that features races such as the Cox Plate, the Caulfield Cup and the Melbourne Cup.

Hong Kong marks the first jurisdiction outside Victoria that Racing.com will show vision of, having hastily been born in January 2015 out of the messy end to the TVN channel, which had the rights to both Victoria and NSW racing.

Back then, Victoria elected to spend about $10 million establishing Racing.com with Seven, which then launched the free-to-air channel in July. Meanwhile, Racing NSW quickly signed a 10-year exclusive broadcast deal with Sky.

Sky covers races across other states and overseas, but that may soon change.

South Australian racing is up for renewal next year, while the rights for New Zealand racing are in play now. Queensland authorities, meanwhile, are understood to have served Sky with breach notices regarding their contract over changes it made to Victorian coverage last year (which was off-air for a short time due to a contract dispute).

Racing.com may move to poach the rights off Sky for all of those, though will then face the quandary of having to lavish attention and resources on interstate racing as it does for Victoria, and perhaps even have to sell or offer those states a shareholding.

Victorian authorities argue the Racing.com service, which is also pumped out via the corporate bookmakers website, has increased wagering turnover. It may be up by about 7 per cent this financial year, compared with a fall in Queensland and South Australia of the same figure (NSW is said to be up about 3-4 per cent), and Racing Victoria may go close to matching its bumper $50 million record profit in 2015.

Racing.com is already profitable after about 10 months of operation, paying Racing Victoria and Seven a decent annual dividend, mostly thanks to stronger than expected advertising deals that Seven's sales team signed with corporate bookmakers

GTN has 'Eye in the Sky' on US expansion

Search the App

NEWS BUSINESS MARKETS SPORT TALK REAL ESTATE OPINION TECHNOLOGY PERSONAL FINANCE LEADERSHIP LIFESTYLE ALL

Cricket Australia's executive kitchen jars

Related Quotes

SWM

SEVENWEST FPO (SWM)

$0.70 0.00 0.00%

volume 0 value 0.0

5 YEARS 1 DAY

Last updated: Thu Dec 08 2016 - 10:12:05 AM

View full quote

Company Profile

National Media Group.

<http://www.sevenwestmedia.com.au>

Media (254010)

ASIC 053480845

ASX Announcements

|         |   |
|---------|---|
| 9/11/16 | Results of Annual General Meeting                           |
| 9/11/16 | Annual General Meeting Addresses                            |
| 7/11/16 | SWM Signs Contract to Acquire Sunday Times and PerthNow     |
| 4/11/16 | NWZ: Newzulu signs multi-product deal with Seven West Media |
| 2/11/16 | Ceasing to be a substantial holder                          |

View all announcements

Latest Stories

Is Pebble just the first smartwatch to fall?

2 min ago

Markets Live: Back in the saddle

LIVE

Depp, Clooney top 'overpaid' Forbes list

8 mins ago

More

such as CrownBet, which shelled out $5-10 million for the biggest ad package, and Ladbrokes

PREMIUM

search the AFR

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

"We are quietly pleased with what has already been achieved, the future performance and the potential of this business is very, very significant," Seven chief executive Tim Worner told The Australian Financial Review. "We have already seen what can be done. Look at the roll up to the [recent Warrnambool carnival], look at the turnover numbers. Victorian racing is positioning itself for a very interesting future and so is Seven."

When it comes to racing, however, the real money is to be made in wagering. There has already been speculation about Seven looking at a bid for the West Australian tote. Far more likely is a tie-up between Seven and an operator such as CrownBet, given the latter already advertises on Racing.com and James Packer and Kerry Stokes, former and current chairman of CrownBet's part-owner Crown Resorts and Seven respectively, are close.

Then there is the vexed issue of Tabcorp's joint venture with Victoria to deliver racing a share of tote betting losses. Tabcorp's retail monopoly is under threat from the rise of corporate bookmakers such as CrownBet and market leader Sportsbet, and Racing Victoria has made good money charging them higher race fields fees.

Both Tabcorp and Racing Victoria say the joint venture is still a fruitful one, and relations are good. The different, and competing, broadcasting strategies may mean that is not the case forever.

Recommended

What would Australia look like without China?

iRobot's Braava robot mop is like having an infant crawling..

Mike Baird on changes to negative gearing

HSBC's new private bank in Australia will target rich C-suite...

Iron ore resets lower after surge

From Around the Web

Technology is opening new doors for private investors

Saxo Bank

Older Aussies overpaying on health insurance big time...

Health Insurance Comparison

Getting the Chinese to buy your house isn't easy anymore, just...

Domain

Ever considered a career on the slopes?

Explore

Pensioning off old ideas of retirement

Perpetual

Recommended by

Kerry Stokes revises plan for East Perth Power Station museum

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: September 28, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

9/28/16 Austl. Fin. Rev. 36

News

Copyright © 2016 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Features

Joe Aston and Bryce Corbett

At 76, Seven billionaire Kerry Stokes has asked himself a rather salient question: what the hell to do with all of this art?

Stokes' extensive stockpile of Picassos and Matises, and historical artefacts such as Scott of the Antarctic's sled and the Rothschild Prayerbook, ambiguously known as the Kerry Stokes Collection, is displayed at the West Perth offices of the family's private investment arm Australian Capital Equity. It is curated by seven full-time staff and has been exhibited in parts and in full at various institutions around the country.

For some time, Stokes has been looking for a permanent site to establish an eponymous public museum. Though he's scoped other Australian destinations, his ties to Perth make it city most likely. Think a MONA of the West. And if he buys the TAB from Colin Barnett, both can be funded by gambling!

ACE had submitted an Expression of Interest proposal for the East Perth Power Station, but state treasurer Mike Nahan told the WA Parliament this month that the bidders - whose number also include Mirvac and Lend Lease - "did not bid a sufficient amount, in our mind, to sell the thing".

It's understood ACE has since submitted a revised proposal. The issue for the TV and tractor baron is that while the site itself is valued at $25.7 million, it requires another $100 million in pre-development works (contamination, heritage, blah blah) before a sod could be turned on new works. And with iron ore at $US55 per tonne, oil still sub-$US50 per barrel and the media business structurally rooted, a lazy $300 million isn't spare change to Stokes like it was five years ago, when the ore price was $US177 a tonne and he could shoot cash out of water cannons into the Swan River. We loved those days, being bull market specialists...

Mind you, he's a determined fellow, so don't write off the project just yet. We'll watch this space, shall we?

UBS desk gets around to downgrading Estia Health

Well it took them a while, but finally, UBS Equities has downgraded one of its favourite stocks, Estia Health. Good of them to get with the program!

Up until April 19, the desk's target price for the listed aged care player rolled up by private equity sharks Quadrant was a whopping $8.65. On that day, it was cut to $8.35 - both laughable in hindsight, but then isn't hindsight a beautiful thing?

In May, lead analyst Shav Bedrossian heroically dropped his EHE price target to $8.15, still 33.2 per cent above his peers' consensus of $6.12; the actual price then was $5.32. And on it goes: by July, UBS was spruiking a fair price of $6.95, by which time the stock was trading below $4.

On Monday, UBS released new research on Estia, dropping Bedrossian from its list of analysts, a list he previously sat atop, and set a new target of $4.10, down from that $6.95 in one fell swoop. The shares closed at $3.45.

Back in December 2014, when UBS' investment banking division floated Estia for Quadrant, the deal was led by Michael Stock, now at Credit Suisse. Stock is also an investor (in a private capacity) in the hedge fund VGI Partners, which holds the biggest short position in Estia and across the sector. Which way does he want the stock to go or the wind to blow?!

Mitchell book squibs on famous Bush G20 line

They were three words, attributed to the then president of the United States and leader of the free world - George W. Bush.

"What's the G20?"

A question reportedly uttered by Bush during a private phone conversation with the then Australian PM, Kevin Rudd, back in 2008. A conversation that was apparently overheard by the then editor-in-chief of The Australian, Chris Mitchell, and which formed the basis of a subsequent report in that newspaper which reverberated around the world and sent a chill through US-Australian relations at the time.

Strange then that those three simple words fail to appear in Mitchell's tome, Making Headlines (available now in all good bookstores).

In his re-telling of the infamous "phone call affair", Mitchell writes around the specifics, recording that Rudd took the call with Bush on speaker phone and "deliberately left the door open in what I concluded was a deliberate way".

"After the call, he [Rudd] came back smiling, sipped his beer and asked whether I had heard all of the conversation," Mitchell writes. "I most certainly had and was amazed and surprised that he had let me."

We asked Mitchell why, given that those famous three words were very much the crux of The Oz's explosive story, they were excised in the book version of events?

He replied: "After approving the quotes in the story as published, the PM's office later said the president did not make the comment. The reporter did not have a transcript."

But wasn't he the reporter?

"No, of course not," came the reply. "Political correspondent Matt Franklin wrote the story."

Which he did. But only after Mitchell - who was one of only two people privy to the phone call and "most certainly" had "heard all of the conversation" - briefed him on it. So we called Franklin - who declared himself distinctly uninterested in discussing the topic, beyond telling us: "I never reveal sources".

Then Mitchell contacted us to refer us to Paul Kelly's book Triumph and Demise, where, he told us, the incident is "explained in detail".

Which it is. On pages 208 and 209 to be precise. Except the detail is different to that recorded in Mitchell's own book. And here we quote Kelly: "Mitchell's recollection was that Bush had asked a question about the G20. "I'm not sure exactly what it was," he said."

So in one version he "heard all of the conversation" and in another, he was "not sure exactly" what was said.

And so we asked Mitchell the simple question: Did you or did you not hear president Bush ask, "What's the G20"?

His obtuse reply: "That is how the long discussion after the call was framed by KR. And his office ticked off on the version we ran with those quotes."

Hmmm. It's an equivocation that doesn't fill us with confidence.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CREDIT SUISSE AG; EQUUS MINING LTD; LENDLEASE GROUP; MIRVAC GROUP;

STOKES LTD; VGI PARTNERS PTY LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Art (1AR38); Funding Instruments (1FU41); Major Corporations (1MA93); Private Equity (1PR15)

INDUSTRY: Book Publishing (1BO18); Books (1BO26); Entertainment (1EN08); Financial Services (1FI37); Major Financial Services Firms (1MA21); Publishing (1PU26); Traditional Media (1TR30)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (George Bush; Chris Mitchell; Kerry Stokes; Kevin Rudd; Mike Nahan; Matt Franklin; Colin Barnett; Michael Stock; Paul Kelly; Shav Bedrossian)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 1044

search the AFR

PREMIUM

NEWS BUSINESS MARKETS STREET TALK REAL ESTATE OPINION TECHNOLOGY PERSONAL FINANCE LEADERSHIP LIFESTYLE ALL

FENDING OFF THE BEARS. NO BULL.

Home / Business

Jan 10 2017 at 11:30 PM Updated Jan 10 2017 at 11:30 PM

Save Article Print License Article

James Packer lays out his plan for Crown Resorts

James Packer has returned to lead Crown after stepping down as executive chairman 17 months ago. Getty Images

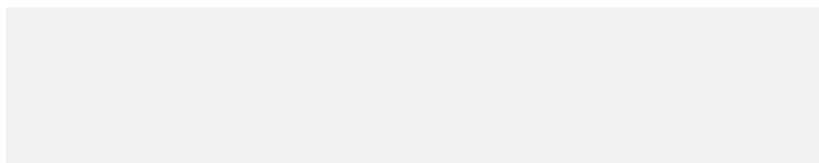

by Anne Hyland John Stensholt

Gaming billionaire James Packer has made an extraordinary return to the Crown Resorts board as a director after only stepping down as executive chairman 17 months ago, and has laid out a strategy for the company, while also announcing the departure of chairman Robert Rankin.

Mr Packer, who is holidaying in Aspen, told The Australian Financial Review there were five priorities for Crown Resorts management and board in the year ahead. His private company Consolidated Press Holdings owns 48.2 per cent of Crown.

Mr Rankin, also CPH's chief executive, will leave both roles from February 1 but remain on the Crown board.

Mr Packer said the first priority of Crown would be "managing through the whole China situation in a way that is respectful to China and in a way that best represents our staff". Next would be to run the Australian business in a "more lean and focused fashion".

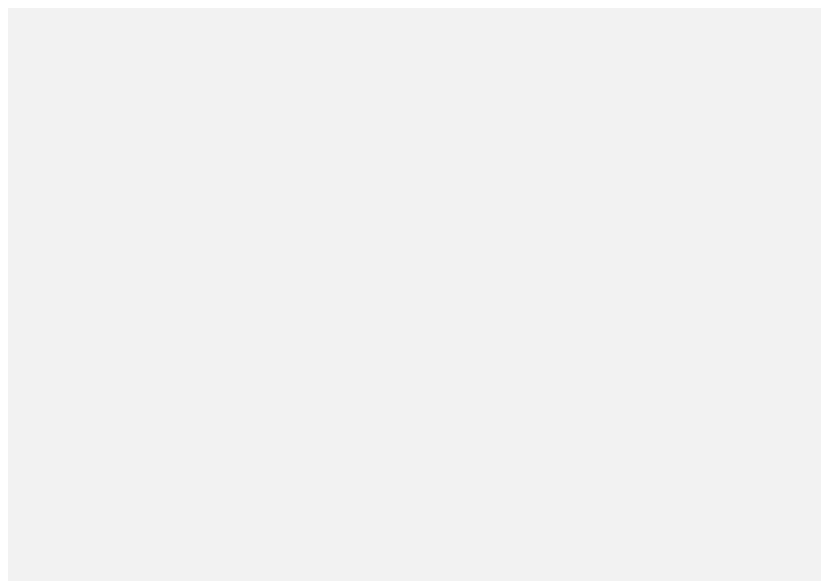

Last year 18 Crown staff, three of whom are Australian nationals including its head of international VIP gambling, were arrested in China for "gambling crimes". In China, it is illegal to promote or organise gambling activities and the arrests came amid a broader anti-corruption blitz by the Chinese government targeting money laundering and illicit money transfers offshore. One Crown employee has been released.

Mr Packer said Crown's third priority would be to continue to drive and build "a meaningful, profitable, online business" and following this would be to deliver the company's Sydney casino, which is being built at Barangaroo, "on time and on budget".

There have been market rumours of a potential deal between Crown Resorts and ClubsNSW. ClubsNSW, which has 1200 member clubs, is said to have been looking for a digital partner. Neither group has commented on the speculation.

Mr Packer said Crown management and the board's final commitment in the year ahead was "being shareholder focused in the way we do business".

Shares in Crown Resorts fell 14¢ to $11.58 on the announcement of the board change.

215 Adelaide Street BRISBANE CIT...

Offices 952m<sup>2</sup>

973 Fairfield Road YEERONGPILLY...

Industrial / Warehouse 21,290m<sup>2</sup>

Related articles

Welcome to EBITDA-DA land

WorleyParsons rejects Dar claims on $2.9b bid

Rio lays off 100 as high power prices hit output

TasFoods chair Woolley quits

Nick Greiner: Libs to blame for housing impasse too

Latest Stories

China targets growth of about 6.5 pc

2 min ago

Centuria plots merger with 360 Capital fund

2 mins ago

Growth, not Trump, is fuelling the rally

30 mins ago

More

Crown chairman Robert Rankin, also CPH's chief executive, will leave both roles from February 1 but remain on the Crown board. David Rowe

John Alexander, who has been a director of Crown since 2007, will replace Mr Rankin and become executive chairman of Crown Resorts. Mr Alexander is also a director on the Seven West Media board and analysts speculated that with his increased responsibilities at Crown he may step down from that role.

"Crown Resorts is and will remain one of Australia's most valuable tourism assets with its world-class resorts in Melbourne and Perth, and construction in Sydney now under way," Mr Alexander said. "I am also excited about our plans to continue building our wagering and online businesses."

Mr Guy Jalland, a long-time legal adviser to Mr Packer, was appointed chief executive of CPH. Both he and Mr Alexander have worked for years for Mr Packer, including as executives of Publishing and Broadcasting Ltd. Another former PBL executive, Michael Johnston, is also on the Crown Resorts board.

Mr Jalland will join the Crown board when a vacancy becomes available.

Sources told the Financial Review it was expected Mr Jalland would replace Mr Rankin on the board.

Both Mr Rankin and Mr Packer maintained that the former's departure was an amicable one. Mr Rankin said he would focus on his and Mr Packer's investment vehicle Pacific Point Partners. He said he was "excited" about the international investment opportunities for Pacific Point Partners, which began with the taking of a 19.9 per cent stake in Contango Asset Management last June.

"The next stage of development of Crown Resorts will be rightfully more focused on its outstanding [Australian] assets, and led by John Alexander. Crown Resorts has a very strong team in place to do that," Mr Rankin said.

The change to the board structure of Crown Resorts is understood to have come about after the finalisation of the company selling a portion of its shares in Macau operator Melco Crown back to joint venture partner Lawrence Ho for $1.6 billion in December. The company has said the remainder of its Melco stake would be sold on market.

It came only days after Crown also canned its Las Vegas casino project. Both moves almost completely abandon its international business and reversed the strategy it announced in June of spinning its international assets into a separately listed vehicle. In June, Crown Resorts also unveiled plans for a hotel REIT, on which work continues to progress.

Mr Packer said following Crown's sell-down of the Melco stake it would be strategically more important to have an Australian-based chairman, hinting at what was to come. In December, Mr Alexander was with the billionaire in Argentina at his polo property Ellerstina when plans for Crown to scale back its international ambitions and sell-down most of Melco Crown were formulated. Mr Jalland is also understood to have attended and discussions are believed to have taken place about board changes.

However, it's believed the changes with Mr Rankin, who was in Aspen last week, were only finalised in the past fortnight. Mr Rankin has homes in Hong Kong and London, where his family will now spend more time.

"Rob is a world-class chief executive who has done a very good job at CPH and Crown," Mr Packer said.

"I trust and respect him as much today as ever and we remain the closest of friends. We have had discussions about what makes the most sense for CPH and Rob personally, since the material announcements made by Crown late last year, including its sell-down in Melco Crown and its increased focus on its core Australian business.

"This realignment of corporate priorities, which Rob strongly endorsed and drove, coupled with his own professional and personal priorities based overseas, made this conversation, like all our conversations, straightforward. I look forward to working with Rob on the board of Crown."

It was Mr Rankin who worked on the deal to unwind the Melco investment.

After he left the Crown board in December 2015 as a director, Mr Packer had intended to take an executive position at Crown with a mooted annual salary of up to $10 million, a move that was later abandoned.

Recommended

Boeing lays off 1500 machinists in Seattle area

Estia Health numbers propped up by 635% spike in unpaid refunds

Two valuation methods that make shares look expensive

Lego launches Women of NASA figurines to encourage girls to take...

Oil falls as Russian production unchanged in February

From Around the Web

11 Rules For Building Wealth After 50

Motley Fool Australia

Your lender doesn't want you to refinance. Here's why.

Finder.com.au

Analysis of Exchange Traded Managed Funds [White Paper]

AMP Capital

How Smart Aussies are saving hundreds on their mortgage every...

Home Loans Australia

How Older Men Tighten Their Skin

The Modern Man Today

Recommended by

Special Reports

What you missed: AFR Magazine's Art issue

Why this global artist spent 'months failing'

Who's making serious money from comedy

How this musicals maestro pursued mentors

How a capitalist dream failed in PNG

Should shareholders trump stakeholders?

How a gold scandal became a fairytale

This woman is taking on the trolls

How do you solve a problem like Millennials?

Has this man got private banking's best job?

Scented history in vial at Florentine apothecary

Capture heritage chic with these luxury gifts

Scent sense: why just one perfume will not do

How to pick the right perfume, every time

So much more to umami than taste

How to succeed at family business succession

Taking small wins the key, say experts

Strategies for dealing with a changing world

Taking advantage of the Trump trade

New entrants flock to resources

MY FINANCIAL REVIEW

My Alerts | Create alert
Portfolio
Account
My Saved Articles (0)

MARKETS DATA

Markets Overview
Australian Equities
World Equities
Commodities
Currencies
Derivatives
Interest Rates
Share Tables

SUBSCRIPTION TERMS

Digital Subscription Terms
Newspaper Subscription Terms
Corporate Subscriptions

BRANDS

The Australian Financial Review Magazine
BOSS
BRW Lists
Chanticleer
Luxury
Rear Window
The Sophisticated Traveller

CONTACT & FEEDBACK

About us
Our Events
FAQ
Contact us
Letters to the Editor
Give feedback
Advertise
Site Map

CONNECT WITH US

Facebook      Twitter
LinkedIn      Instagram

FAIRFAX NETWORK

The Sydney Morning Herald
The Age
Adzuna
Domain
Drive
RSVP
Essential Baby
Home Price Guide
Weatherzone
Oneflare
The Store

LONG WAY TO GO FOR CROWN ONLINE

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: January 14, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

1/14/17 Austl. Fin. Rev. 13

News

Copyright © 2017 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Perspective
 JOHN STENSHOLT

Former BRW Young Rich-Lister Matthew Tripp is known to rue selling his Sportsbet online bookmaker business to Irish giant Paddy Power in a $338 million deal in 2011.

Sportsbet has gone on to become the market leader in Australia and Tripp, who teamed up with James Packer's Crown Resorts to create CrownBet, now has his old company and other rivals in his sights in the belief there's room for another big operator in an extremely competitive digital wagering market.

Crown has a 62 per cent stake in the joint venture, while Tripp and his management team own the remainder.

Tripp says he has been working more closely with Packer in recent months. "We've had great support from James and his team and believe the combination of our wagering expertise and the land-based businesses they have here means we can build a compelling and successful digital business. We want to be the number one online wagering operator here."

CrownBet has been aggressively growing its market share since forming two years ago, using its tie-up with Crown as a differentiator, including a rewards program that allows punters to accrue points based on the amount they bet. Among the items the points can be used for are restaurants, hotel rooms and other offers at Crown casinos.

The bookmaker's 2016 financial report revealed it spent more than $80 million on marketing and its wagering revenue almost quadrupled to $157 million.

There have been rumours CrownBet wants to make a bigger splash by acquiring the Australian operations of a rival such as William Hill and Ladbrokes.

It is also in the race with Tabcorp for a new digital partnership with Clubs NSW. A decision is due next month. W

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CROWN RESORTS LTD; LADBROKES PLC; PADDY POWER BETFAIR PLC; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

INDUSTRY: E-Commerce (1EC30); Entertainment (1EN08); Gaming Industry (1GA25); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Matthew Tripp; James Douglas Packer; James Packer)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 284

search the AFR

PREMIUM

NEWS BUSINESS MARKETS STREET TALK REAL ESTATE OPINION TECHNOLOGY PERSONAL FINANCE LEADERSHIP LIFESTYLE ALL

Home / Business / Gambling

Feb 6 2017 at 11:00 PM | Updated Feb 6 2017 at 11:08 PM

Save Article | Print | License Article

Crown to sign online betting deal with Clubs NSW in blow to Tabcorp

James Packer's CrownBet deal will come as a blow to Tabcorp, which still relies heavily on bets placed by customers in retail outlets. Getty-Images

by John Stensholt

James Packer's Crown Resorts' online wagering business CrownBet is set to sign a groundbreaking partnership with Clubs NSW, which will see punters in pubs and clubs able to place bets online and end the TAB's monopoly on in-venue betting.

The deal signals Crown Resorts' latest big push into the online betting market, which Mr Packer told The Australian Financial Review was one of his main priorities for the year when he re-joined the Crown board in January.

An agreement with the clubs, which could be announced as early as Tuesday, is understood to involve the building of a special app for club patrons that will allow punters in venues to gamble on the Crownbet app.

The deal will come as a blow to rival Tabcorp, which has TAB outlets in pubs and clubs across the country and still relies heavily on bets placed by customers in retail outlets despite a big improvement in its digital wagering revenue in recent years.

It may even result in some clubs ditching TAB outlets and just offering online betting to customers via CrownBet.

Clubs in NSW will be given incentives to sign up members and will receive a commission on bets placed. The app will also tie in with the CrownBet rewards

Related Quotes

CWN TAH

Related articles

Gambling or investing: play it safe

New Aristocrat CEO leaving for Las Vegas

VGW plots March IPO

Two minute miracle: Crown's lightning CEO news program, with points earned on bets able to be redeemed for offers at specific club venues and presumably at the Crown casino complex at Barangaroo when it opens in early 2021.

Clubs NSW represents about 1200 clubs with 6.7 million members across the state, with many having long been unhappy about the price Tabcorp charges for venues to have TAB outlets and carry its Sky Racing broadcasting service.

The move will involve considerable capital expenditure for CrownBet, including building the app and potentially helping improve Wi-Fi at clubs and install signage.

But CrownBet management is understood to see the move as part of a big push into NSW, with the wagering company having more customers in Victoria – it has a five-year sponsorship agreement with the AFL worth almost $10 million annually and also is a big advertiser on Racing Victoria and Seven West Media's Racing.com channel – and Western Australia.

The deal also strikes at Tabcorp's recent move to roll out its new program incentivising pubs, clubs and other venues that contain TAB outlets to sign up customers to bet via the company's digital apps.

Corporate bookmakers such as CrownBet have also complained about pending changes to the Interactive Gambling Act with the insertion of a measure they claim will easily allow the introduction of online in-play betting in TAB outlets and pubs and clubs around the country.

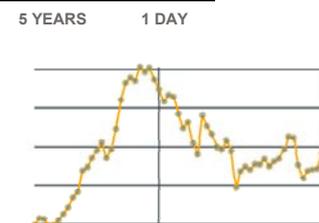

They argue it would hand Tabcorp and Tatts Group – which in October announced an \$11.3 billion merger that will see the TAB brand replace Tatts' Ubet in Queensland and South Australia – a significant advantage by potentially being able to hand out tablets or smartphones and allow punters to bet in-play as long as they are inside a venue.

CrownBet is 62 per cent owned by Crown Resorts, with the remaining stake owned by CrownBet chief executive and former BRW Young Rich list member Matthew Tripp and several of his executives.

Mr Tripp is a former owner of Sportsbet, the biggest online bookmaker in Australia which he sold to Irish giant Paddy Power in 2011.

CROWN FPO (CWN)

$11.65 -0.09 -0.77%
volume 2090014 value 24353680.4

Last updated: Sun Mar 05 2017 - 2:46:51 PM

View full quote

Company Profile

An international casino and gaming entity, with businesses and investments in key international markets.

www.crownresorts.com.au

Hotels, Restaurants & Leisure (253010)

ASIC 125709953

ASX Announcements

- 3/3/17 Final Director's Interest Notice - Rowen Craigie
- 27/2/17 S&P Global Ratings Research Update
- 24/2/17 Response to ASX Aware Query
- 23/2/17 Senior Executive Changes
- 23/2/17 Crown Subordinated Notes II - Key Financial Ratios

View all announcements

Packer reaps $387m from bumper Crown dividend

Latest Stories

China targets growth of about 6.5 pc

3 mins ago

Centuria plots merger with 360 Capital fund

3 mins ago

Growth, not Trump, is fuelling the rally

31 mins ago

More

CWN TAH

Recommended

-

Julian Assange says Pamela Anderson is attractive, savvy
-

Why welfare must take a cut
-

China's appetite for Australian coal surged through 2016. Will...
-

Tesla's China sales triple to more than $US1 billion
-

Amber Harrison to counter-sue Seven West Media

From Around the Web

-

11 Rules For Building Wealth After 50
Motley Fool Australia
-

Explore With a Safety Net: Get a Travel Insurance Quote Now travelinsurance.nrma.com.au
-

Common Mistake Australians Make with Mortgages
Mozo.com.au
-

Try Forex Trading at Home With a $20k Demo Account
Forex Capital Trading
-

Which lenders are winning the mortgage battle?
Finder.com.au

Recommended by

Special Reports

- What you missed: AFR Magazine's Art issue
- Should shareholders trump stakeholders?
- Scented history in vial at Florentine apothecary
- How to succeed at family business succession
- Why this global artist spent 'months failing'
- How a gold scandal became a fairytale
- Capture heritage chic with these luxury gifts
- Taking small wins the key, say experts
- Who's making serious money from comedy
- This woman is taking on the trolls
- Scent sense: why just one perfume will not do
- Strategies for dealing with a changing world
- How this musicals maestro pursued mentors
- How do you solve a problem like Millennials?
- How to pick the right perfume, every time
- Taking advantage of the Trump trade
- How a capitalist dream failed in PNG
- Has this man got private banking's best job?
- So much more to umami than taste
- New entrants flock to resources

MY FINANCIAL REVIEW

- My Alerts | Create alert
- Portfolio
- Account
- My Saved Articles (0)

MARKETS DATA

- Markets Overview
- Australian Equities
- World Equities
- Commodities
- Currencies
- Derivatives
- Interest Rates
- Share Tables

SUBSCRIPTION TERMS

- Digital Subscription Terms

BRANDS

- The Australian Financial Review Magazine
- BOSS
- BRW Lists
- Chanticleer
- Luxury
- Rear Window
- The Sophisticated Traveller

CONTACT & FEEDBACK

- About us
- Our Events
- FAQ
- Contact us
- Letters to the Editor
- Give feedback
- Advertise
- Site Map

CONNECT WITH US

- Facebook
- Twitter
- Linkedin
- Instagram

FAIRFAX NETWORK

- The Sydney Morning Herald
- The Age
- Adzuna
- Domain
- Drive
- RSVP
- Essential Baby
- Home Price Guide
- Weatherzone
- Oneflare

© Copyright 2017

Reprints & Permissions

Privacy Policy

Terms & Conditions of Use

M E D I A   R E L E A S E

7 February 2017

---

CLUBSNSW AND CROWNBET FORM HISTORIC PARTNERSHIP

ClubsNSW and CrownBet are pleased to announce a groundbreaking partnership for the provision of digital wagering services in NSW clubs.

The agreement follows ClubsNSW's extensive wagering review and tender process which saw CrownBet clearly beat Australia's largest wagering providers through their world-class wagering products, strong commitment to responsible gambling and substantial benefits for clubs of all sizes.

"More than 90% of clubs have been losing money on their TAB facilities in recent years as more and more people switch to online wagering," ClubsNSW CEO Anthony Ball said.

"Our arrangement with CrownBet will ensure all NSW clubs get their fair share from digital bets and will help ensure the industry's long-term viability. Small and regional clubs will be the biggest winners," he said.

The CrownBet affiliation will be available to clubs today. It will not necessarily affect existing retail betting infrastructure, but it will update and modernise the in-venue wagering experience.

"We're thrilled to receive this groundbreaking endorsement from ClubsNSW. Our plan is to change the entire wagering experience for the benefit of their members and guests," CrownBet CEO Matt Tripp said.

"We're going to offer a world-class digital wagering experience for punters in clubs right across NSW," Mr Tripp said.

CrownBet will integrate its market-leading CrownBet Rewards into club loyalty programs. Club members will be able to earn and redeem points in venue, including at club restaurants and cafés or over the bar.

"This is a watershed agreement which will bring clubs into the 21st century digital economy, helping all clubs stay relevant and profitable," Mr. Ball said.

END

0:00 / 3:30

Tabcorp encouraging digital punting.

NSW

James Packer-backed CrownBet will be unveiled as the official betting partner of Clubs NSW

EXCLUSIVE, NICK TABAKOFF, Editor at Large, The Daily Telegraph

February 7, 2017 12:00am

 Subscriber only

THE betting landscape in the NSW club industry will be dramatically altered as early as today, with the James Packer-backed CrownBet to be revealed as the official digital wagering partner of Clubs NSW, and a serious rival to club-based TAB outlets.

The Daily Telegraph understands that under the 10-year deal, clubs will for the first time earn commissions on bets made with an online betting operator by their members in NSW venues.

2/9/2017

James Packer-backed CrownBet will be unveiled as the official betting partner of Clubs NSW | Daily Telegraph

The incentive for punters to bet with CrownBet will be to earn club loyalty points which can be redeemed for food and drink purchases at each venue.

 CrownBet will be the official betting partner of Clubs NSW, who in turn will earn commissions on bets made by their members. Picture: Patrina Malone Clubs will continue to have the option of running traditional TABs with cash wagering facilities. However, the new deal will see CrownBet become a betting rival to traditional TABs in clubs, where the online gaming operator will offer cash redemption machines which allow members to withdraw their winnings.

It is the first time online betting companies have offered cash machines to take winnings directly out of their betting accounts, rather than redemption through transfers to personal bank accounts.

The deal adds weight to claims Mr Packer is refocused on growing his Australian gambling operations — after he shocked the market in 2016 by withdrawing from Macau and Las Vegas casino plays — particularly his new $2 billion Crown Sydney casino.

📷 There are claims billionaire James Packer is refocusing his Australian gambling operations. Picture: Justin Chin/Bloomberg

---

The Clubs NSW contract would likely significantly grow CrownBet's current 4 per cent stake in NSW, where it has until now been a small player.

Clubs NSW CEO Anthony Ball has estimated 90 per cent-plus of clubs are currently losing money on their physical in-club betting operations — raising questions about whether some may ditch TABs.

However, most clubs will probably continue to offer both the CrownBet and TAB offerings for members' convenience.

2/9/2017

James Packer-backed CrownBet will be unveiled as the official betting partner of Clubs NSW | Daily Telegraph

📷 CrownBet will be a serious rival for TAB. Picture: John Grainger

CrownBet has won the fiercely contested Clubs NSW digital tender from three rivals: the TAB, Sportsbet.com.au and Betting.Club. CrownBet is understood to have offered a higher commission structure for clubs, as well as a generous reward structure for members.

Clubs will not be compelled to sign up to the CrownBet offering over those of other online operators.

However, early signs are that the majority of the state's 1350 club venues will take up the offer rather than seek their own betting partner. It is the first deal Clubs NSW has conducted with an online betting operator.

FED:CrownBet, ClubsNSW seal gaming deal

Source: AAP Newswire Financial News
Publication Date: February 7, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newswire

2/7/17 AAP Newswire Fin. News 05:57:51

News

Copyright © 2017 Australian Associated Press

SYDNEY, Feb 7 - James Packer's CrownBet has made a major assault on the TAB by sealing a deal with ClubsNSW to provide digital wagering services for its 1200 clubs.

The agreement follows ClubsNSW's extensive wagering review and tender process in which CrownBet beat Australia's largest wagering providers, the companies announced in a joint statement on Tuesday.

The CrownBet affiliation will be available to clubs from Tuesday. It won't necessarily affect existing retail betting infrastructure, but will update and modernise the in-venue wagering experience.

ClubsNSW CEO Anthony Ball says more than 90 per cent of clubs have been losing money on their TAB facilities in recent years as more and more people switch to online wagering.

The change to CrownBet will lead to an upgrade in facilities.

"Our arrangement with CrownBet will ensure all NSW clubs get their fair share from digital bets and will help ensure the industry's long-term viability," he said.

CrownBet will integrate its CrownBet Rewards into club loyalty programs. Club members will be able to earn and redeem points in venue, including at club restaurants and cafes or over the bar.

"We're thrilled to receive this groundbreaking endorsement from ClubsNSW. Our plan is to change the entire wagering experience for the benefit of their members and guests," CrownBet CEO Matt Tripp said.

AAP jlw

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Loyalty Marketing (1LO95); Sales & Marketing (1MA51)

INDUSTRY: Travel & Tourism (1TR07); Travel Bargains (1TR46); Travel Loyalty Programs (1FR52)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); New South Wales (1NE75); Oceania (1OC40)

OTHER INDEXING: (ClubsNSW) (Matt Tripp; James Packer; Anthony Ball)

WORD COUNT: 218

Crown makes $300m bet on NSW with Clubs deal

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: February 8, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/8/17 Austl. Fin. Rev. 15

News

Copyright © 2017 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Companies and Markets

John Stensholt

James Packer's Crown Resorts has made its biggest bet on online wagering, with its corporate bookmaker CrownBet set to spend $300 million in NSW to end Tabcorp's exclusive relationship with the powerful licensed clubs network.

As foreshadowed by The Australian Financial Review, CrownBet and Clubs NSW confirmed on Tuesday that the online bookmaker - 62 per cent owned by Crown Resorts - has signed a 10-year deal to be the clubs' official digital wagering partner.

The deal will involve considerable capital expenditure for CrownBet during the next three years, including paying for Wi-Fi and technology upgrades to almost 1140 clubs, and the building of a special app for club patrons that will allow punters to gamble on the CrownBet app on their phones or tablets and in competition with TAB outlets in the same venues.

CrownBet chief executive Matthew Tripp said the deal was the biggest he had undertaken during 20 years in the wagering industry, but signalled he could clinch similar agreements in other states.

"We could look to go up to Queensland in the future, and we are open to discussions with any other organisations where we can offer wagering services in venues where people congregate."

Mr Tripp said Mr Packer, who rejoined the Crown Resorts board in January, had been supportive of CrownBet's push into NSW after telling the Financial Review the online wagering business was one of his five main priorities for 2017.

"James has been really engaged on this and been very positive about our strategy," Mr Tripp said. "He has been very supportive through this whole process."

Crownbet will also enter into a revenue share arrangement with the NSW clubs, and will install terminals in clubs that will contain racing and sports information and betting odds. Though the terminals may in the future offer punters refund options, bets will not be able to placed through them.

Mr Tripp said CrownBet would end the 2017 financial year with more than 200,000 active customers, and estimated the deal in NSW - where the company has only about 4 per cent market share - could increase that client base 50-60 per cent during the next five years.

The deal will come as a blow to rival Tabcorp, which has TAB outlets in clubs throughout the country and still relies heavily on bets placed by customers in retail outlets.

Tabcorp chief executive David Attenborough would not comment on the specifics of the deal but said: "Tabcorp is competing vigorously in the digital space, as we have been, to very good effect. We have made big strides in that area and think we have a very good digital wagering product."

He also pointed to Tabcorp's own recent deal to incentivise retail operators, including pubs and clubs, to share in digital TAB wagering revenue. Tabcorp is also seeking an $11.3 billion merger with Tatts Group.

Clubs NSW chief executive Anthony Ball said about 95 per cent of clubs in the state were losing money on operating a TAB outlet in their venues and added that the clubs needed to undertake a digital wagering deal to stay relevant to members.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CROWN RESORTS LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; TATTS GROUP LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39)

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); E-Commerce (1EC30); E-Commerce Industries (1EC99); Entertainment (1EN08); I.T. (1IT96); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Palmtop Computing (1PA77); Retail (1RE82)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Matthew Tripp; Anthony Ball; Anthony Ball; James Douglas Packer; James Packer; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 509

FINANCIAL REVIEW |  bhpbilliton
Business Summit

book now at afrsummit.com

Home / Opinion

OPINION | Feb 7 2017 at 8:27 AM | Updated Feb 7 2017 at 9:08 AM

Save Article | Print | License Article

Crown Resorts deal with Clubs NSW shows why Tabcorp must win Tatts Group

Crown Resorts' push into the pubs and clubs of NSW underlines why Tabcorp can't afford to lose the battle to takeover Tatts. Ironically, the Crown plan might just help them do that. Adam McLean

by James Thomson

Crown Resorts' push into the pubs and clubs of New South Wales underlines why Tabcorp can't afford to lose the battle to takeover Tatts Group. And ironically, the Crown plan might just help them do that.

The deal, revealed by *The Australian Financial Review*, would lead to the creation of a special app for club patrons allowing them to bet online while they are in the venue – the very venues where Tabcorp's existing TAB outlets and terminals have been operating exclusively for decades.

The pubs and clubs get a commission on bets placed, Crown Resorts' Crownbet subsidiary gets access to a new group of customers and Tabcorp sees its monopoly over retail wagering diminished.

Tabcorp could – and probably will - justifiably complain that the Crown model is against the spirit of its retail wagering monopoly.

But many would see this as an extension of the trend towards online betting that has swept the racing industry over the past decade. Go to any pub, club, TAB and race

Related articles

Crown gains 90-storey hotel approval
26 mins ago

2/9/2017

Crown Resorts deal with Clubs NSW shows why Tabcorp must win Tatts Group | afr.com

track on a Saturday and you'll see a good proportion of punters using their smartphones to bet.

It could be argued that the Crownbet plan is simply a more formal extension of this – and one that actually gives venue operators a chance to recover some of the revenue they are losing when a punter spends an afternoon in the sports bar without physically placing a bet.

If there's one positive for Tabcorp from the Crown plan it is that it gives Tabcorp more ammunition to shoot down competition concerns about its $11 billion takeover of Tatts Group.

That deal would have Tabcorp merge its TAB operations in Victoria, Tasmania and New South Wales with Tatts' retail monopolies in South Australia, Queensland and the Northern Territory.

Not surprisingly, Australian Competition and Consumer Commission chair Rod Sims has made noises about the deal, although he has noted the competition from online wagering players.

Surely the Crown deal will allow Tabcorp to show it's not just facing online competition, but also competition at a retail level.

But the deal also shows why Tabcorp cannot afford to lose out in the fight for Tabcorp.

Late last year a powerhouse consortium – including Macquarie Group (a 10 per cent stake), private equity firm KKR (a 30 per cent stake), Morgan Stanley's infrastructure wing, North Haven Infrastructure Partners (30 per cent), and local superannuation investor First State Super (30 per cent) – lobbed a rival bid for Tatts, which was subsequently rejected by the Tatts board.

The consortium was most keen to get its hands on Tatts' lotteries business, which offers a stable, predictable source of cash and growth. But Tabcorp is just as keen to grab the business, which is really the jewel in the Tatts crown.

Deals like the Crown one show that the competition for the wagering dollar is only going to get more intense. And who knows, perhaps those retail wagering monopolies could one day come to an end.

Grabbing Tatts will give Tabcorp an important new revenue stream and one that, at least to this point at least, has proven relatively resistant to digital disruption.

Related Quotes

| TAH               | CWN             | TTS    |
|-------------------|-----------------|--------|
| TABCORP FPO (TAH) |                 |        |
| $4.17            | -0.01           | -0.36% |
| volume 1460956    | value 6042333.3 |        |
| 5 YEARS           |                 | 1 DAY  |

Last updated: Thu Feb 09 2017 - 11:37:46 AM

View full quote

Company Profile

The provision of gambling and other entertainment services. The company has wagering and media, gaming services, and Keno operations.

<http://www.tabcorp.com.au/>

Hotels, Restaurants & Leisure (253010)

ASIC 063780709

ASX Announcements

- 8/2/17 Ceasing to be a substantial holder - Vinva
- 8/2/17 Ceasing to be a substantial holder
- 6/2/17 Revised Dividend/Distribution - TAH
- 3/2/17 Cancel - Dividend/Distribution - TAH
- 3/2/17 Suspension of dividend reinvestment plan

View all announcements

Books are back because Bezos likes them

29 mins ago

SkyCity profit jumps 18pc

1 hr ago

Turnbull unleashes his savage bastard

From the pits of Hell, Turnbull catches his antelope

Latest Stories

More

The consortium has gone quiet on its intentions for Tatts, with most expecting it will wait until Tatts has delivered its interim earnings on February 20 before making its next move.

Tabcorp remains the favourite in the tussle – its bid has been accepted by the board, and, unlike the consortium, it actually wants to buy Tatts wagering division. Tabcorp investors will be hoping it keeps the whip hand.

TAH CWN TTS

Recommended

AFR Business Summit speaker Jim O'Neill says that the world...

Who is the 'we' that Barack Obama used to talk about?

Donald Trump's efforts to jawbone the US dollar lower are doomed

Grylls iron ore tax a self-inflicted wound on iron ore...

Energy, gaming and Donald Trump

From Around the Web

Why People Love This L.A. Watch Brand (8 Reasons)

MVMT Watches

New Life Insurance Comparison Service. Aussies over 50 love it!

Life Insurance Comparison |

More Australians Are Losing Weight

CuttingEdgeBiotech

Buy Telstra (Plus 4 More Top Dividend Picks) | Motley Fool...

Motley Fool Australia

Got Private Health Insurance? You Should Read This Now!

Health Insurance Comparison

Recommended by

Special Reports

Watch industry trends to watch

Some ugly truths about fashion

What 'Love Wins' author is reading

The Aussie helping low-wage Americans invest

Food trends 2017: we're going troppo

Can this man make Australia more innovative?

The chief marketing officers rewriting the rulebook

The secret to Atlassian's success

Digital is a channel not a marketing strategy

The factory workers everyone wants

3 Australian dream homes you can buy today

Stylish blueprint for high-rise happiness

Sushi and a hammam beneath the Alps

Travel wardrobe secret of a fashion jetsetter

Consultant favours bike paths after crash at 40km/h

Bidders into second round for NSW's land titles auction

Deal to secure Alcoa's future in sight

Paytm cashes in on demonetisation

How Russia overtook China as cyber enemy No.1

How to build digital leadership

MY FINANCIAL REVIEW

My Alerts | Create alert
Portfolio
Account
My Saved Articles (0)

BRANDS

The Australian Financial Review Magazine
BOSS
BRW Lists
Chanticleer

CONNECT WITH US

2/9/2017

Crown Resorts deal with Clubs NSW shows why Tabcorp must win Tatts Group | afr.com

MARKETS DATA

- Markets Overview
- Australian Equities
- World Equities
- Commodities
- Currencies
- Derivatives
- Interest Rates
- Share Tables

SUBSCRIPTION TERMS

- Digital Subscription Terms
- Newspaper Subscription Terms
- Corporate Subscriptions

- Luxury
- Rear Window
- The Sophisticated Traveller

CONTACT & FEEDBACK

- About us
- Our Events
- FAQ
- Contact us
- Letters to the Editor
- Give feedback
- Advertise
- Site Map

Facebook

Twitter

Linkedin <

Instagram

- The Sydney Morning Herald
- The Age
- Adzuna
- Domain
- Drive
- RSVP
- Essential Baby
- Home Price Guide
- Weatherzone
- Oneflare
- The Store

© Copyright 2017

Reprints & Permissions

Privacy Policy

Terms & Conditions of Use

CrownBet deal sidesteps casino

Source: Australian
Publication Date: February 8, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/8/17 Australian (Newspaper) 21

News

Copyright (c) 2017 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

DAMON KITNEY, GAMING

James Packer's business partner in online wagering business CrownBet has rejected speculation a deal with ClubsNSW to provide digital wagering services for its 1200 clubs will allow rewards redeemable by mass-market gamblers at Crown's new Barangaroo casino complex.

Under the deal announced yesterday, punters in pubs and clubs in NSW will be able to place bets online, ending the Tabcorp-owned TAB's monopoly on in-venue betting.

A betting app will be rolled out for club patrons allowing them to gamble on the CrownBet platform, which will tie in with the CrownBet rewards program.

But CrownBet chief executive Matt Tripp said points earned on bets would only be redeemable on offers at specific club venues, not at Barangaroo.

There has been speculation that while the NSW government has said it would not allow Barangaroo to have poker machines, the deal with ClubsNSW could provide Crown with a mass market clientele as its target high-roller market has become more challenged following the arrests of its employees in China.

The minimum bet on tables at Barangaroo will be $30.

"Barangaroo cannot be marketed to any of these attributed clubs customers. Points earned through the clubs association cannot be redeemed at Barangaroo," Mr Trip said yesterday.

"I own 38 per cent of CrownBet — I have no vested interest in promoting Barangaroo. We are looking to drive revenue for clubs and this is a win-win for them." The deal is a challenge to Tabcorp as it works through approvals for its merger with Tatts.

Mr Tripp said NSW clubs had "put up with wagering being a loss leader at their venues for decades". "TAB comes with a whole bunch of overheads the clubs can't afford," he said, noting that under the new deal CrownBet would carry the costs of new capital expenditure at clubs, including signage and WiFi.

Tabcorp chief David Attenborough would not be drawn on the specifics of the ClubsNSW deal, but said it had already moved to reward TAB venues in Victoria and pub TABs in NSW the commissions on bets placed digitally in those venues. "It is already equivalent to 2 per cent of retail turnover," Mr Attenborough said. "We are integrating the digital and retail experience. The venues (are) paid commission on the overall turnover on their venue so the returns to venues will go up."

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CROWNBET PTY LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); Casinos (1CA80); E-Commerce (1EC30); Entertainment (1EN08); Gaming Industry (1GA25); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Matt Tripp; Trip; James Douglas Packer; James Packer; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough)

EDITION: Australian
WORD COUNT: 393

Bet on gaming battle royale

Source: Daily Telegraph (Sydney, Australia)
Publication Date: February 9, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/9/17 Daily Tel. (Sydney) 3

News

Copyright (c) 2017 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: News

ANDREW CLENNELL

PLANS by an online bookmaker to install cash withdrawal machines in clubs across NSW has led to a -declaration of war by rival gaming giant Tabcorp.

As revealed in yesterday's Daily Telegraph, the James Packer-owned CrownBet revealed its ATM-style withdrawal machines was part of a 10-year deal signed with Clubs NSW.

But the plan yesterday sparked Tabcorp — which has its own betting machines located in the state's pubs and clubs — to write to hundreds of clubs across NSW warning them they may be in breach of the law if they install CrownBet machines in their clubs.

The letter from Tabcorp comes after CrownBet announced a deal with Clubs NSW for clubs to earn commissions on bets made with the online betting operator by their members in NSW venues.

Under the proposal, the incentive for punters to bet with CrownBet will be to earn club loyalty points which can be -redeemed for food and drink purchases at each venue.

In a statewide-first, the online gaming operator will also offer cash -redemption machines which allow members to withdraw their winnings, rather than transfer them to personal bank accounts.

But a letter from Tabcorp Chief Executive David Attenborough (pictured) to club chief executives yesterday insists the TAB "is the sole wagering provider that is entitled to provide gambling services (including digital wagering) off-course in NSW, by virtue of its wagering licence and New South Wales wagering legislation".

The letter goes on: "Tabcorp is reviewing the proposed CrownBet service and considering options, including whether the combination of features that comprise that service cause CrownBet (or would cause the owner or occupier of a New South Wales venue facilitating that service) to contravene various sections of the Unlawful Gambling Act.

"We note that s31 of that Act prohibits an owner or occupier of a premises from knowingly allowing the premises to be used for, or in connection with, bookmaking carried on by or on behalf of a person who is not a licensed bookmaker.

"Tabcorp's strong understanding is that CrownBet is not a licensed bookmaker for the purposes of the UGA.

"We encourage you to evaluate the CrownBet proposal in light of the legal risks as well as Tabcorp's commercial offering." Tabcorp paid $75 million to the NSW government for a 20-year exclusivity deal with the clubs and pubs in 2013. A spokesman for Gaming and Racing Minister Paul Toole said yesterday: "Liquor & Gaming NSW will examine the (CrownBet/Clubs) arrangements to ensure they are consistent with regulatory requirements."

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CROWNBET PTY LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

INDUSTRY: ATMs & Networks (1AT57); Bank Operations (1BA31); Banking (1BA20); Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); Casinos (1CA80); E-Commerce (1EC30); Entertainment (1EN08); Financial Services (1FI37); I.T. in

Banking (1IT59); I.T. in Financial Services (1IT24); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); New South Wales (1NE75); Oceania (1OC40)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Paul Toole; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough)

EDITION: Telegraph

WORD COUNT: 423

Clubs take a punt on CrownBet

Source: Australian
Publication Date: February 15, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/15/17 Australian (Newspaper) 21

News

Copyright (c) 2017 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

Sarah-Jane Tasker EXCLUSIVE

The James-Packer backed CrownBet will use its new deal with ClubsNSW to increase its push to limit wagering advertising and focus its marketing efforts on engaged punters.

As opposition to gambling advertising grows and politicians warm to the idea of further reform of the industry, CrownBet said the deal with ClubsNSW meant the company could speak directly to a wagering audience in venues across the state. "We want to avoid scattergun gambling ads that are out of step with community expectation and have clearly harmed our industry," CrownBet chief executive Matt Tripp said.

"The ability to speak directly to millions of NSW club members is the centrepiece of our affiliation with ClubsNSW and will be key to its success." The 10-year deal will allow clubs to earn commissions on bets made with CrownBet by their members in NSW venues. The agreement will also see CrownBet have the ability to install its ATM-style machines in clubs to allow members to withdraw their winnings rather than transfer them to personal bank accounts.

Under the proposal, the incentive for punters to bet with CrownBet will be to earn club loyalty points which can be -redeemed for food and drink purchases at each venue.

The Australian understands that Clubs Queensland and British wagering giant Ladbrokes looked at a similar deal but a final agreement wasn't reached.

Tabcorp, which also bid for the digital partnership with ClubsNSW, hit out at the deal and wrote to hundreds of clubs across the state warning them they could be in breach of the law if they installed CrownBet machines.

ClubsNSW chief executive Anthony Ball said the only people questioning the legality of the deal was Tabcorp.

"It's predictable Tabcorp would come out and challenge the offering but we are confident in the legality of it," he said.

"We have said to our clubs assess this deal on its merits. We believe CrownBet offers them the best wagering service." Clubs now have to register their interest and the technology will soon be tested in clubs, with the general roll out expected to be well underway by midyear.

Mr Ball said CrownBet beat the opposition because of the strength of its offering, not just the economics of wagering but their ability to enable clubs in the digital world. He said the wagering company was also chosen because of the strength of its harm minimisation program.

"They are the leader among digital wagering companies. They never engaged in micro betting or live betting in-play," Mr Ball said.

"Online and bricks and mortar gambling are merging and we feel minimisation strategies need to do the same and we are now positioned to build that system." Mr Ball added that community expectations had risen and that the groups had to meet those -expectations.

"It is being actively debated in parliaments around the country but also around the kitchen table," Mr Ball said. "Since Tom Waterhouse was non-stop on our TVs people have been worried about the exposure of children to betting advertising and odds." CrownBet, to their great credit, is prepared to take action there and respond to those concerns."

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CROWNBET PTY LTD; LADBROKES PLC; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); Casinos (1CA80); E-Commerce (1EC30); Entertainment (1EN08); Gaming Industry (1GA25); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (ClubsNSW) (Matt Tripp; Anthony Ball; Tom Waterhouse)

EDITION: Australian

WORD COUNT: 527

Concern over Demetriou links in $300m deal

Source: Age, The (Australia)
Publication Date: February 15, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/15/17 Age (Austl. Full Text) 19

News

Copyright © 2017 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Business

Heath Aston

The deal was presented as another win for billionaire deal maker James Packer, with his online gambling business CrownBet breaking into the lucrative NSW betting market through a "digital partnership" with the state's 1200 registered clubs.

But questions have now emerged around the process that ended with ClubsNSW choosing CrownBet over bitter rivals Tabcorp - the traditional betting provider in clubs - Sportsbet and Betting.club.

The focus of industry concern is former AFL supremo Andrew Demetriou, whose sports and marketing company Beyond Boundaries Group ran the tender process on behalf of ClubsNSW.

Mr Demetriou is also a board member of both CrownBet and Mr Packer's flagship company Crown Resorts, which owns 62 per cent of CrownBet.

Beyond Boundaries, which Mr Demetriou founded with former Football Federation Australia boss Ben Buckley last year, is a boutique consultancy with a small team of 12 executives.

Mr Demetriou is overseas and did not return calls but in a statement to Fairfax Media, ClubsNSW said it was "aware of a potential conflict of interest in relation to Andrew Demetriou".

"We sought, and received, the necessary undertakings to manage the conflict. Andrew Demetriou was not involved in the process," said a ClubsNSW spokesman.

In a statement, Mr Buckley, who is chief executive of Beyond Boundaries, said "strict processes" had managed any potential conflicts.

"At all times any potential conflicts were divulged in advance to ClubsNSW and tabled for discussion and approval by their board. ClubsNSW sought the technical expertise provided by Beyond Boundaries Group and in consultation with the two parties agreed on strict processes that were put in place to manage any potential conflicts," he said.

Fairfax Media has spoken to figures involved in the losing tenders and found anger at the close links to CrownBet in the process.

Kelly Signell, the chief executive of Betting.club, which is owned by three large NSW clubs - Mounties, Campsie RSL and Club Rivers - raised the prospect of some clubs opting out of the deal altogether.

"We are disappointed in the outcome, but it's business as usual for us," she said.

"The Crownbet-ClubsNSW announcement is simply an endorsement - not a mandatory rollout for clubs. Clubs across NSW and Australia have a choice of who they partner with."

A source familiar with one of the other two losing bids said: "There is no way this would pass the pub test." "The optics aren't great: a firm run by Andrew Demetriou awards deal to company he is a board member of."

The $300 million deal is seen as a blow to the TAB because participating clubs will spruik for CrownBet to sign up patrons to its betting app and provide loyalty rewards and cash-out facilities on premises. Clubs offer a 6.7 million strong membership and participating clubs will hand over that customer database to CrownBet.

Mr Demetriou's long-time right-hand man Andrew Catterall - who is listed on Beyond Boundaries' website as its chief operating officer - ran the process.

But questions have also been raised around Mr Catterall's involvement.

On December 8, almost two months before CrownBet's win was announced, Mr Catterall was announced as the new chief executive of Racing.com, the free-to-air thoroughbred broadcaster in Victoria.

Racing.com's betting partner, including the presentation of live odds, is CrownBet.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CROWN RESORTS LTD; CROWNBET PTY LTD; FAIRFAX MEDIA LTD; GOLDEN PATRIOT CORP; INTERNATIONAL SPEEDWAY CORP; SPORTSBET PTY LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Executive Personnel Changes (1EX23); HR & Labor Management (1HR87); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39)

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); E-Commerce (1EC30); E-Commerce Industries (1EC99); Entertainment (1EN08); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82)

REGION: Oceania (1OC40)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (ClubsNSW; James Packer; Mr Packer) (Andrew Catterall; Kelly Signell; Ben Buckley; Packer; Andrew Demetriou)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 543

Government will examine $300m clubs betting deal with CrownBet

Source: Sydney Morning Herald, The (Australia)
Publication Date: February 16, 2017
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/16/17 Sydney Morning Herald (Austl.) 3

News

Copyright © 2017 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: News

Heath Aston Political correspondent

The NSW government will investigate the $300 million digital gambling deal struck by ClubsNSW with James Packer's online betting business CrownBet.

Racing Minister Paul Toole said officials from the state's betting regulator, Liquor & Gaming NSW, would review the deal which opens the door to more than 1200 registered clubs and their 6.7 million members for Melbourne-based CrownBet.

On Tuesday Fairfax Media revealed bad blood in the online betting industry over the way in which CrownBet beat off rivals Tabcorp, Sportsbet and Betting.club to stitch up a lucrative digital partnership that would encourage club patrons to sign up to CrownBet's betting app in return for loyalty rewards and cash-out facilities on club premises.

The digital deal is a significant blow to the TAB, which provides physical outlets in clubs.

Controversy centres on the tender process in which sports marketing consultancy Beyond Boundaries Group, owned and chaired former AFL boss Andrew Demetriou, recommended CrownBet as the winning bid.

Mr Demetriou is a board member of CrownBet and Mr Packer's Crown Resorts.

ClubsNSW and Beyond Boundaries have both acknowledged the potential conflict of interest but insisted Mr Demetriou took no part in the tender.

The NSW government, which oversees the clubs sector, was not required to approve the deal but a spokesman for Mr Toole said: "Liquor & Gaming NSW will examine the arrangements to ensure they are consistent with regulatory requirements."

The deal has angered certain senior figures in the club sector, with some large clubs likely to opt out of proceeding with CrownBet, Fairfax Media understands.

Questions have also been raised about the timing of the completion of the tender process because the Beyond Boundaries executive involved in assessing the bids, Andrew Catterall, signed on as chief executive of Racing.com months before the losing tenderers were informed.

Racing.com, which broadcasts Victorian thoroughbred racing, has a cornerstone live odds partnership with CrownBet.

ClubsNSW said Mr Catterall's involvement had wrapped up before he was awarded the job on December 8, but stories in Fairfax Media as far back as October identified him as the "frontrunner" for the job.

On Wednesday, ClubsNSW confirmed a group of chief executives from large clubs met with CrownBet before the decision was revealed.

"A group of club CEOs travelled to Melbourne recently to visit the CrownBet facility and receive a briefing on the digital wagering offer," said a spokesman.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CROWN RESORTS LTD; CROWNBET PTY LTD; INTERNATIONAL SPEEDWAY CORP; SPORTSBET PTY LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups &
Ownership (1XO09); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39)

INDUSTRY: E-Commerce (1EC30); E-Commerce Industries (1EC99); Entertainment (1EN08); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Horse Racing (1HO27); Internet (1IN27); Internet Media (1IN67); Online
Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82); Sports (1SP75)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Victoria (1VI05)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Betting) (Andrew Catterall; Paul Toole; James Douglas Packer; James Packer; Andrew Demetriou; Andrew Demetriou)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 396

1 of 1 results

NewsRoom

2/28/17 Courier-Mail (Austl.) 15
2017 WLNR 6170955

Courier Mail (Australia)
Copyright (c) 2017 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

February 28, 2017

Section: News

Interstate bookie deals off table for Clubs Queensland

TRENTON AKERS

CLUBS Queensland has ruled out making any retail gaming deals with interstate corporatebookmakers similar to counterparts in NSW.

Clubs NSW shocked wagering partner Tabcorp earlier this year when it signed a multimillion-dollar deal with the James Packer-owned CrownBet that will see patrons encouraged to sign up to their website and offered lucrative reward points and cash-out facilities, despite Tabcorp signing exclusive rights.

Despite conceding they had "considered" the idea several years ago, Clubs Queensland chief executive Doug Flockhart said there would be no such deal in Queensland. "We saw no merit in it at all."The NSW Government is currently investigating the deal, which opens the door to more than 1200 registered clubs and their 6.7 million members for Melbourne-based CrownBet. It would be the first time online betting companies would offer cash-out machines to take winnings directly out of their accounts, rather than through personal bank transfers. Tatts Group, the operators of UBET, currently hold exclusive retail licences in Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania and the Northern Territory.

---- Index References ----

Company: TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; TATTS GROUP LTD

Industry: (E-Commerce (1EC30); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82))

Region: (Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Queensland (1QU50))

Language: EN

Other Indexing: (Clubs Queensland) (Doug Flockhart)

Edition: CourierMail

Word Count: 173

---

End of Document

© 2017 Thomson Reuters. No claim to original U.S. Government Works.

NewsRoom

Channel Seven to take a big punt on racing

Andrew Webster

3 comments

SHARE

TWEET

MORE

- Question & Answer: Kieren Jack

Channel Seven is poised to become a major force in horse racing – to the point where the free-to-air network could angle for a wagering licence in the future.

Off and racing: James McDonald celebrates victory in this year's Golden Slipper on Mossfun. Channel Seven is expanding its involvement in racing. Photo: Anthony Johnson

Not many people want to talk about it, most likely because all the major players involved have been forced to sign confidentiality agreements to ensure the story doesn't leak out.

But this column has this week caught wind of plans for racing television channel TVN to run all of its content on one of Seven's digital channels.

Advertisement

MOST POPULAR

- 1 The truth is out there Mr Bogut, you just have to look
- 2 Cummins excites with speed and scalps in latest comeback
- 3 Here's to more sporting fairytales in 2017
- 4 MCC set introduce red cards in cricket
- 5 Why Pakistan can knock off Australia

12/8/2016

Channel Seven to take a big punt on racing

Happy days: Mick Potter and Robbie Farah front the media after the Tigers were humbled 64-6 by the Cowboys in Townsville. Photo: Getty Images

As it stands, TVN already pays Seven about $2 million to show 28 meetings a year on 7TWO.

But the association is about to get a whole lot stronger, with the racing network keen to expand into free-to-air TV, rather than have a viewing audience of 30 per cent on subscription TV.

Advertisement

We have been told the end game for Seven is the long-term view of acquiring a wagering licence: first in Western Australia and then in Victoria.

"Something like Seven-bet," is how one figure close to negotiations describes it.

We're told the deal maker behind the scenes is Gold Coast businessman Scott Perrin, who made his fortune alongside brother Matthew when they sold their stake in surfwear giant Billabong for $490 million.

Matt spectacularly lost his $150 million fortune because of bad business deals in China, a $1.7 million gambling debt and an ugly divorce.

The Perrins have always been avid racing enthusiasts, champion jockey Glen Boss writing of Scott Perrin in his autobiography:

"Scottie Perrin became a mate of mine and I soon developed a high regard for the cool way he went about making the world of business sound every bit as exciting as racing."

Pair of Jacks: Garry and Kieran in 2005. Photo: Getty Images

LATEST SPORT VIDEOS

Warner leads Aussies in Canberra win

Best goal fail or save ever?

Dangerfield: No players, no game

FOLLOW SMH SPORT

Latest from the Sports Desk of The Sydney Morning Herald.

FACEBOOK

TWITTER

FOLLOW SMH

Get notified when the big things happen.

NEWSLETTERS

TVN is owned by the Australian Turf Club, Melbourne metropolitan clubs and Country Racing Victoria.

Perrin, who did not return calls, has been dealing with Racing NSW chairman John Messara and ATC vice-chairman Laurie Macri. For his part, TVN boss Bruce Mann has repeatedly denied talking with Seven, which is also keen to enhance its profile as a major player in racing.

It announced this week that it had struck a long-term deal with Magic Millions co-owners Katie Page and Gerry Harvey to broadcast the annual racing event on the Gold Coast. It already has the rights to the Melbourne Cup carnival, The Championships and Golden Slipper.

"As you have seen with this week's announcement with Gerry Harvey and our signing of the Magic Millions, we are increasing our exposure to horse racing," a Seven spokesperson said. "We love being the broadcast television partner of horse racing. It's a great partnership for our television business."

Sydney springs to life

Still on racing, the ATC held an intimate lunch at The Stables at Royal Randwick on Tuesday to launch its spring carnival. Recently retired rugby league star Braith Anasta was revealed as one of the club's new ambassadors, alongside wife Jodi.

Yes, yes, it's not the monster that is the spring carnival in Melbourne, but the classy launch further strengthened the angle Sydney racing is looking for: a more elegant, refined feel than the masses who trample all over Flemington in early November.

The Sydney spring carnival is worth $5 million in prizemoney, starting on September 13 with the Golden Rose at Rosehill Gardens.

100 years of hate and still going strong

Russell Crowe showed us this week that rugby league doesn't always have to be serious. You can also have a laugh.

The Souths owner spotted Roosters patriarch Nick Politis at Sydney Airport last month.

They were both waiting at the luggage carousel. Crowe walked up and stuck out his hand.

"Contrary to popular belief among Souths fans, he only had the one head and wasn't eating babies at the time I met him," Crowe told News Corp in the lead-up to Thursday night's final round blockbuster between the foundation clubs.

Gold.

We're told the amicable exchange was only about five words, though.

Politis hasn't been a huge fan of Crowe since the Oscar-winning actor did a Commodus-like "thumbs down" during a Bunnies win over the Roosters.

Crowe's claim that the Tricolours' home base of Moore Park is in South Sydney territory also didn't go down well in Rooster land.

12/8/2016

Channel Seven to take a big punt on racing

Some officials pointed out how Crowe lives in Woolloomooloo, Souths chairman Nick Pappas lives in Vaucluse and star player Sam Burgess lives in Rushcutters Bay – right in the heart of Chooks' territory.

More than 100 years of hate and it's still going strong. Fabulous stuff.

The end is nigh for Potter

Mick Potter is expected to coach his last game at the helm of Wests Tigers on Saturday night when his side takes on the Sharks.

Yes, Mad Monday cannot come quick enough for some clubs.

We're hearing the coach will not even be afforded an interview to outline why he should keep his job, which doesn't surprise given how many knives have been thrown at his back in recent months.

With the appointment of three independent directors supposedly imminent, you would expect them to speak to the head coach and ask what led to his demise.

An indication of the way the Tigers are being run came during the week when they advertised for the rather important position of "General Manager of Football" on the employment website seek.com.au.

It prompted former Tigers sponsorship manager Brett Clarke to tweet: "Why do Wests Tigers advertise a job such as the GM Football on Seek. FFS it is such a specialised role – get out and headhunt the right hire."

Knights look West to go forward

In other independent director news just to hand, NRL boss Dave Smith and head of club services Tony Crawford were in Newcastle on Thursday, trying to clear the path for the embattled Knights in the post-Tinkler world.

They were meeting with the cashed-up Wests Leagues Club about taking over the running of the club.

For those of us with long memories, the irony is hard to ignore: Wests were cuddled up in bed with the Hunter Mariners during the Super League days.

Still on Smith, he has dismissed tension between the NRL and Club Land over his desire for independent directors to be parachuted onto to every board as a "miscommunication".

It is a distinctly different view from several power brokers, who have been adamant for some time that Smith wanted independent directors and chairpeople in control of every board.

"He's backflipped," reports one.

Question & Answer: Kieren Jack

We speak to the Swans star ahead of Saturday afternoon's finals match against Fremantle at ANZ Stadium.

As the son of a Balmain legend, how do you react when you hear the

News & Views Markets Quotes Workplace Consumer Property Innovation Retail Economy CBD Money NICHOLAS SHARE TWEET MORE SUBSCRIBE

Home / Business

JUNE 10 2015

SAVE PRINT LICENSE ARTICLE

Seven in the race for a wagering licence

John Stensholt

Seven West Media could bid for a wagering licence with the broadcaster set to win the rights to Victorian horse racing, which will be shown on a newly established free-to-air digital channel.

The new channel, the name of which is set to include Racing Victoria's racing.com digital brand, is forecast to be operating by August 28, in time for the first group 1 race of the spring carnival.

Seven West Media may bid for wagering licence as it is poised to win Victorian horse racing rights Photo: Vince Caligiuri

Seven's move to broaden its coverage of horse racing – it already shows top-level Saturday Victorian and NSW race meets – is subject to final confirmation from the four Victorian racing clubs and comes after administrator Racing Victoria awarded the network preferred bidder status over Tabcorp's Sky Channel.

Any move by Seven into wagering would be in the medium term. It could bid, potentially in conjunction with Racing Victoria, for a licence when Tabcorp's joint venture with the Victorian authority expires in 2024 or for the Western

0% p.a. Balance transfers for 15 months

Reverts to the variable cash advance rate, available on non-HSBC credit cards. Conditions apply.

Apply now > HSBC

Advertisement

HUFFPOST AUSTRALIA

Amazon's Grocery Store Lets You Grab ...

Use These 6 Concepts To Teach Your Kids ...

Australian TAB WA Premier Colin Barnett has signalled he wants to privatise the wagering operator.

Seven has also been approached by corporate bookmakers for a potential equity investment or joint venture. Seven would not comment on any wagering or broadcasting plans.

Tabcorp, meanwhile, announced on Tuesday it would turn off its broadcast of Victorian racing next Monday, June 15. However, it is understood Racing Victoria could offer an olive branch in the form of awarding Tabcorp international broadcast rights and also hopes to negotiate to continue showing Victorian racing on at least the Sky Racing 1 channel.

Should that eventuate Tabcorp may not pay a rights fee, arguing given Racing Victoria will pay at least $10-12 million to help establish the new Seven channel it should not pay for rights that are effectively been given to Seven for no free in return.

Tabcorp earlier this year agreed to a 10-year rights deal with Racing NSW after Victoria and NSW split their rights, which had previously been aggregated under the ThoroughVision Network (TVN) brand.

The listed wagering operator had reportedly offered Racing Victoria $30 million annually for 10 years for the broadcast rights.

But it is understood a presentation by Seven executives – including its Melbourne boss Lewis Martin, commercial director Bruce McWilliam and commentator Bruce McAvaney – two weeks ago to the Racing Victoria board swayed the vote in favour of the free-to-air network, which will cross-promote racing across its other sports and entertainment shows.

Any deal still needs to be signed off by the Victorian clubs. The Melbourne Racing Club, Victoria Racing Club, Moonee Valley Racing Club and Country Racing Victoria confirmed their boards and members will assess presentations from Tabcorp and Seven on Wednesday and Thursday. A decision is expected by the end of the week.

Racing Victoria chairman David Moodie said if Seven is successful, he hopes Tabcorp would continue to broadcast Victorian racing in tandem with the network. Tabcorp may also consider bidding for digital rights.

Corporate bookmaker Sportsbet already has an agreement to show Victorian racing, while other wagering operators such as CrownBet and William Hill are also understood to be interested in streaming vision on their websites.

Racing Victoria also shows its races online via its racing.com service, which was established last August. In May it signed a broadcast, media and data services deal with Telstra that could see race information and multiple camera angles used in future broadcasts.

MOST POPULAR

- 1 'Her role on the project was just to be an ornament'
- 2 NAB makes its move to $1.7b Wynyard Place
- 3 Paddle Pop's 15-second ad dumped after complaint
- 4 Shares and bonds see GDP shock differently
- 5 YouTube makes $US1 billion case that it's good for music industry

FOLLOW BUSINESSDAY

FACEBOOK

TWITTER

FOLLOW SMH

NEWSLETTERS

Prepared for your family's future?

Join our property investment hub today

FIND OUT MORE

0% p.a. Balance transfers for 15 months

Reverts to the variable cash advance rate, available on eqvt+HSBC credit cards. Conditions apply.

Apply now > HSBC

THE AUSTRALIAN

Rights deal bursts Michael Burn's Ascot bubble

Peter Nicholson

BEN BUTLER, CHRISTINE LACY THE AUSTRALIAN 12:00AM June 17, 2015

There'll be no bubbles at Royal Ascot this week for horse-mad Macquarie banker Michael Burn, who's firmly stuck down under wearing his (top) hat as chairman of the home of the Melbourne Cup, Victoria Racing Club.

While hordes of other Aussies including mining services rich lister Kevin Maloney have descended on an unprepared England to see four Antipodean horses go round the Ascot track this week, Burn has been locked in talks with governing body Racing Victoria over its proposed media rights deal with Kerry Stokes' Seven West.

The problem is not the Seven deal, which the VRC likes, but the terms under which the club will tip its rights into a pot held by Racing Victoria to then be sold to Seven.

Tabcorp's David Attenborough has given up on a rights deal with RVL, but is waiting for a sub-deal to get the races back on Sky Channel.

Things could get more complicated if Stokes makes a bid for the WA TAB, which is to be sold in a controversial privatisation.

That could see Victoria turn its back on its long-term wagering joint-venture partner Tabcorp when their deal ends in 2024 in favour of a Stokes-controlled TAB in the west.

Meantime, the Sky blackout and waiting for Seven's racing Channel 78 to go live has given everybody plenty of time to focus on Royal Ascot, where the first Australian horse, Shamal Wind, was due to run late last night.

Another pony, Criterion, runs late tonight — but all eyes will be on Saturday's Diamond Jubilee Stakes, which features two Australian horses — colt Brazen Beau and the Gai Waterhouse-trained Wandjina. Brazen Beau is the rare hayburner that's made money for its 38 owners — originally picked up for $75,000 as a yearling, he was sold late last year for $12m to Sheikh Mohammed Al Maktoum's Darley.

Nine's disclosure slip

Whoops. Just when Nine chief David Gyngell needs to be seen by the corporate regulator to be dotting his I's and crossing his T's, the under-pressure entertainment group slips up on its disclosures.

Nine lodged a "final" notice for its share buyback yesterday, which it has enthusiastically used to prop up its shares following its recent profit downgrade. Except it wasn't the "final" notice and had to be reissued by company secretary Rachel Launders, who said the buy-back would continue.

This is as ASIC continues its investigation into Gyngell's share sales. Gyngell hasn't lawyered up just yet but is using Nine's in-house counsel in his dealings with the regulator.

ASIC's learned and numerate lawyer folk might compare and contrast Nine's shock June 5 downgrade — which described conditions in the free-to-air ad market in May and June as "particularly soft" — with the actual market figures just released by Standard Media Index.

SMI data shows Nine's revenue in May fell 9 per cent year-on-year, but the metro TV market grew by 0.4 per cent in the month — not quite what Gyngell told investors.

It is understood that at Nine's post-downgrade investor briefing, the company also told analysts that the TV ad market was down 5 per cent in May and was expected to be the same in June.

MCN jockeying

The unification of ad sales at Network Ten and Foxtel's sales house Multi Channel Network won't be without pain as execs jostle for position in the new world order.

Manoeuvrings have already begun towards a new combined sales structure, which will result in a round of redundancies at the group.

The agreement flies in September as part of the wider deal for the Richard Freudenstein-led Foxtel to buy 15 per cent of Ten, currently led by Hamish McLennan. Ten will buy 24.99 per cent of MCN.

Even if the ACCC blocks the deal, MCN and Ten ad sales would still unite, so talk now has turned to who will achieve top-dog status.

Ten ad chief Lou Barrett, previously head of sales at ACP and before that at Nine, oversees revenues of more than $600 million a year.

MCN boss Anthony Fitzgerald, who has been in the role for 12 years and before that was national sales director at Seven, commands revenues of $500m a year.

That gives bold-as-brass Barrett the weight of revenues, but the Ten team is moving into MCN's offices in Sydney, Brisbane and Melbourne, leaving her to find a new bolt-hole in Fitzgerald's digs.

butlerb@theaustralian.com.au
christine.lacy@news.com.au

Seven and Racing Victoria Unveil Racing.com Partnership

(25 August, 2015) The Seven Network – a key business of Seven West Media, one of Australia’s leading integrated media and content creation companies – and Racing Victoria today confirmed plans for the launch of Racing.com, a new free to air television channel devoted daily to Victorian thoroughbred racing.

The new channel – Racing.com – is the only free to air channel on Australian television dedicated to broadcasting and promoting a single sport and will extend beyond broadcast television across all communication platforms to deliver horse racing to all Australians on any connected device.

The first day of Racing.com will be this Saturday with coverage of the Group 1 Memsie Stakes Day from Caulfield.

Bruce McAvaney will host this very first broadcast for Racing.com.

Racing.com today also confirmed CrownBet as its premium wagering partner for 2015 and 2016 and Ladbrokes as its Associate partner.

Details on Racing.com were announced today by Tim Worner, Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director of Seven West Media, Lewis Martin, Managing Director of Channel Seven Melbourne, and David Moodie, Chairman of Racing Victoria.

Commenting, Mr Worner said: “This is an important new partnership for our company. We are the home of horse racing on broadcast television and we are committing our company to building an increasing presence for horse racing in Victoria across our expanding presence in all forms of content delivery. Our Racing.com partnership joins our portfolio of major sports and we are looking forward to working with Racing Victoria in ensuring the future growth and success of horse racing in this state.”

Commenting, Mr Moodie said: “The launch of the free-to-air Racing.com channel achieves the goal of the Victorian thoroughbred racing industry to make our sport available to more people in more places than ever before. It is the start of a new era for Victorian thoroughbred racing and one that provides us with a foundation for growth in engagement, participation, ownership, wagering and attendance. Racing.com will showcase Victorian racing 363-days-a-year to well over 90 per cent of the Australian population. The industry’s partnership with Seven is a great result for racing fans, punters and participants and I would like to take this opportunity to thank our three Metropolitan Clubs and Country Racing Victoria for their support in achieving this.”

Building on its significant partnerships in horse racing television coverage, Seven is evolving an increasing presence in the sport as it advances plans for the delivery of a new content channel on its digital broadcast television platform.

The new joint venture – Racing.com – delivers a significant new platform for Seven and Racing Victoria as Seven continues to extend beyond broadcast television and publishing and expand its presence in the digital delivery of content and builds 1:1 direct engagement with its audiences.

Racing.com, which will broadcast race meetings from across Victoria 363 days a year, will provide the state’s thoroughbred racing industry with unprecedented and unrivalled free to air coverage.

The new partnership between Racing Victoria and the Seven Network to showcase Victorian thoroughbred racing nationally will also see the new, dedicated free-to-air channel integrated with a suite of streaming and digital services at Racing.com, where punters, fans and participants can view the broadcast on their mobile, tablet and desktop.

Channel Seven Melbourne Managing Director, Lewis Martin, said: “We are pleased to confirm that we have secured some terrific people for Racing.com and we are well-advanced in our plans to further expand our coverage of racing over the coming months. Channel Seven is looking forward to working closely with Racing.com in the promotion and marketing of this exciting new venture.”

The partnership today confirmed that joining the channel will be experienced and highly respected racing hosts Jason Richardson and Shane Anderson and astute form analysts David Gately and Warren Huntly as the key presenters on the new channel. They will combine with former AFL footballer and racehorse owner Campbell Brown and popular Hong Kong-based form analyst Clint Hutchison.

Chief Executive Officer of Racing.com, Scott Perrin, said: "This coming Saturday is day one. We have exciting plans for the evolution and development of this partnership over the coming 12 months. Victoria has the best racing product in the country and we are thrilled to be able to promote and grow it. This is the start of a new channel and we look forward to working to build our content over the coming months. We are also proud to have CrownBet as our premier partner and I want to thank CrownBet CEO Matt Tripp for his support of this ground-breaking free-to-air channel."

Chief Executive Officer of CrownBet, Matt Tripp, said: "We're delighted that Racing Victoria and the Seven Network have chosen CrownBet as their premier wagering partner for Racing.com after a thorough and competitive tender process. This partnership will play an important role in CrownBet's growth strategy and allow us to reach a wide audience right across Australia. It will help drive our mission to become the leading operator in the sector."

The Racing.com channel will also feature three magazine programs as part of its initial content offering. Launching in early September will be the Thursday night preview show Get On and Sunday morning review show Correct Weight, whilst the weeks following will bring The Carnival, an entertaining and informative look at Victoria's Spring Carnival. Racing.com will detail these new programs over the coming weeks.

About Seven Network

Seven is Australia's most-watched broadcast television platform. The network is expanding its presence in media, driving its leadership in the creation of content and delivering that content anywhere, anytime to the biggest audiences. The company is expanding its presence in the further delivery of its video and publishing content beyond its three digital broadcast channels and across an array of platforms, including Hybrid Broadband Broadcast Television. Seven is also expanding into SVOD with Presto, a joint venture with Foxtel in Australia.

Seven is now creating more content than at any time in its history and is expanding its presence in international content production with the formation of two new international production companies: 7Wonder and 7Beyond. These two new businesses underline a key part of its strategy for today and in the future: the expansion of our leadership in the production of content.

Seven is a key business of Seven West Media, Australia's leading multiple platform media company which has a market-leading presence in broadcast television, magazine and newspaper publishing and online. The company is the home of many of Australia's best performing media businesses – Seven, 7TWO and 7mate, Pacific Magazines, The West Australian and Yahoo!7, and the biggest content brands including My Kitchen Rules, House Rules, The X Factor, Home and Away, Sunrise, the Australian Football League, the Olympic Games, Better Homes and Gardens, marie claire, New Idea, Who, The West Australian, Presto and PLUS7.

About Racing Victoria

Racing Victoria is the Principal Racing Authority in the state of Victoria overseeing the conduct of 550 thoroughbred race meetings annually across 67 racetracks. Amongst Racing Victoria's responsibilities are industry funding, integrity, equine welfare, licensing, infrastructure, racing programs and management of the annual racing calendar.

Seven delivers leadership in sports

Today's announcement confirms Seven's leadership in sports.

Seven is focused on delivering the biggest sports events to all Australians. Seven's long-term partnerships confirms the company's leadership in sports television with the network continuing to dramatically expand its coverage of major sports across its three digital broadcast television channels and accelerate coverage across online, IPTV, HbbTV (Hybrid TV), mobile and other emerging forms of content delivery.

Seven is the network of the Australian Football League.

Seven's commitment to an expanding presence in sports builds on the network's unprecedented new agreement with the International Olympic Committee encompassing the Games of the XXXI Olympiad in Rio de Janeiro in 2016, the XXIII Olympic Winter Games in PyeongChang in 2018 and the Games of the XXXII Olympiad in Tokyo in 2020. Seven will also broadcast the 2016 Winter Youth Olympic Games in Lillehammer and the 2018 Summer Youth Olympic Games in Buenos Aires. Underlining this new partnership is an option which, if exercised, extends the rights to include the XXIV Olympic Winter Games in 2022 and the XXXIII Olympic Games in 2024.

Seven is also the network of the Paralympic Games in Rio in 2016 and the Commonwealth Games on the Gold Coast in 2018. Seven is also the network of the first European Games in Baku, Azerbaijan.

Seven's agreements for the Olympic Games, Paralympic Games, European Games and Commonwealth Games on the Gold Coast, and the World Swimming Championships builds on the company's long-term commitment to the National Football League, including the Super Bowl, The US Masters, Royal Ascot and Wimbledon as major international sports franchises for Seven.

Seven also has all-encompassing agreements for coverage of the Australian Football League Premiership Season, Finals Series, the Grand Final and Brownlow Medal, and the local Australian Rules Football competitions the West Australian Football League, the Victorian Football League and the South Australian National Football League, the Tottenham and Chelsea football matches in Sydney, the Bathurst 12 Hour Endurance Race, all major horse racing events including the Sydney Easter Carnival, the Melbourne Spring Carnival and the Melbourne Cup Carnival, the Sydney-Hobart Yacht Race, all major Australian golf tournaments, the Stawell Gift, the Cadel Evans Great Ocean Road Race, the New South Wales Shute Shield in Rugby, all major iron man and triathlon events, the Gold Coast Marathon and all major tennis tournaments in Australia including The Australian Open and The Davis Cup.

DATAROOM

Source: Australian
Publication Date: November 17, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

11/17/15 Australian (Newspaper) 20

News

Copyright © 2015 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

EDITED BY: BRIDGET CARTER CARTERB@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU GRETCHEN FRIEMANN
 FRIEMANN@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU ADDITIONAL REPORTING: KYLAR LOUSSIKIAN

Shareholders would have bet on Cooke Major shareholders in the country's two wagering giants would have most likely lobbied for Tatts boss Robbie Cooke to take the top job had the $9 billion-plus merger proceeded, according to sources.

Investment bankers from UBS and Goldman Sachs, advisers on the deal, were believed to have been working around the clock at the weekend to ensure the transaction came to fruition after spending several months preparing for the merger to take place.

However, the fact that Tatts was lobbying for a greater slice of the newly merged entity in exchange for Tabcorp securing management control for the business is understood to have caused negotiations to collapse.

Some believe that deal could still happen, but on the major shareholders' terms, with sources suggesting it could create a betting giant worth as much as $11bn due to synergistic benefits.

One theory is that if major investors had their way, Robbie Cooke would become the chief executive of the newly merged entity opposed to Tabcorp boss David Attenborough.

The situation is unfolding at a time of widespread consolidation among wagering companies globally in an effort to remain profitable on the back of online betting.

This year, global betting giant Ladbrokes merged with Gala Coral, while Paddy Power joined with Betfair.

It comes as the West Australian government's anticipated privatisation of the state's TAB remains a point of discussion for industry participants.

The plan to privatise TAB is currently between the Premier and Treasurer, and it would need to be restructured before it was sold to create a profitable operation.

Currently, the TAB is structured in a way where the profits are returned to the racing industry, which means that the government receives no financial benefit during times of strong financial performance.

However, when the TAB books a loss, the responsibility is -shouldered by the government.

Adding to the logic for the state to sell the TAB is that it will receive a dividend of about $90m from the federal government for embarking on the sale at a time it needs to drive down debt.

Perth media baron Kerry Stokes is seen as the logical buyer when the asset is on the market, likely to fetch a price of about $500m.

Sources say that Premier Colin Barnett is unlikely to sell to Tatts or Tabcorp, given that both groups would likely collapse the option into their existing businesses and jobs would be lost as a result, which would not be politically palatable.

Mums and dads opt in Westpac closed the books on its $3.5 billion rights issue yesterday after fund managers paid $29.50 for entitlements not taken up by retail investors.

While persistent volatility on the stockmarkets was blamed for the narrow discount to the last traded close, the turnout from mum and dad shareholders on last month's raising was comparatively high with close to 70 per cent opting to follow their money.

In total, 23 entitlements were sold bringing the deal size of the retail shortfall bookbuild to $678.5m. The Australian's BusinessNow blog was the first to report the final price and scale of this last leg of the raising.

Yet while Westpac succeeded in persuading most of its retail investors to participate in its rights issue - unlike Commonwealth Bank, which received a lukewarm reception from its mum and dad shareholders - many are divided about whether the stock will rally heavily and retrace the losses suffered in the past eight months. Since April, when the shares were trading at a 12 month peak of $39.89. Westpac has slumped by close to 25 per cent.

It closed yesterday at $30.02.

This is despite a prevailing view that Westpac has handled the tougher operating environment better than its peers, partly by its leadership in increasing mortgage rates in the face of tightening regulations, but also because of its pledge to reduce costs, sell non-core asset and pursue less risky credit growth.

According to analysts at Morgan Stanley, Westpac's CET 1 ratio - a key measure of a bank's resilience - ranks as the highest among the big four at 9.5 per cent.

Some in the market anticipate the persistent anxiety about the resources sector, combined with the high yield on offer from the banks present an attractive buying opportunity and are betting on a rally in the shares of the big four in the lead up to Christmas.

Westpac's retail shortfall represents the final act in a string of issuances from the banks. In total the big four have tapped the markets for $19bn, still shy of the pre-financial crisis volumes but an extraordinary level in one year.

The question now is whether the banks, which have all continued to post stonking profits, have raised enough to meet the harsher regulations.

There are clear signs retail investors are tiring of the constant drains on their wallets. Commonwealth Bank, which raised $5.1bn from investors, only persuaded half of its retail register to accept the entitlements, leaving the nation's largest bank with a larger than anticipated shortfall. While the low turnout was blamed on the difficult trading conditions, others argued the discount on the deal - at an effective 10.5 per cent rate - was too narrow.

By contrast both National Australia Bank, which raised $5.5bn, and Westpac offered wider discounts.

Bank of America Merrill Lynch and UBS were the joint underwriters and bookrunners to Westpac's raising with Deutsche acting as a third joint lead manager.

Vocation suspended Could troubled education provider Vocation be in serious strife? The company was yesterday expected to reveal details of a financing arrangement, but instead its shares were suspended prompting fears a salvage plan had collapsed.

Several sources told DataRoom Vocation's prospects for survival were bleak. It is understood the company, which suffered a share price crash and had to divest major assets earlier this year as part of a deal with its banking syndicate, will be unable to make its next loan repayment and has been negotiating with its financiers.

Vocation's banking syndicate is made up of Westpac, Commonwealth Bank and NAB. It hoped to make an announcement but had yet to reach an arrangement. Last night Vocation chief executive Stewart Cummins, however, said it was simply a matter of the deal taking longer than expected. KordaMentha-owned 333 Group, which had assisted the company shedding assets, did not return calls.

EDITED BY: BRIDGET CARTER CARTERB@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU GRETCHEN FRIEMANN FRIEMANNG@THEAUSTRALIAN.COM.AU
ADDITIONAL REPORTING: KYLAR LOUSSIKIAN

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: BANK OF AMERICA CORP; GOLDMAN SACHS GROUP INC (THE); LADBROKES PLC; NATIONAL AUSTRALIA BANK LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; UBS AG; VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH BANK; VOCATION LTD; WESTPAC BANKING CORP

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39)

INDUSTRY: Banking (1BA20); Banking Services for Small Business (1BA68); Commercial Banking Services (1CO19); Financial Services (1FI37); Loans (1LO12); Retail Banking Services (1RE38)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (BRIDGET CARTER CARTERB; GRETCHEN FRIEMANN FRIEMANNG; Robbie Cooke; Kerry Stokes; Stewart G. Cummins; Stewart Cummins; Gala Coral; Paddy Power; Colin Barnett; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough)

EDITION: Australian

WORD COUNT: 1071

Tabcorp, Tatts may revisit deal

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: November 21, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

11/21/15 Austl. Fin. Rev. 35

News

Copyright © 2015 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Companies and Markets

John Stensholt

Reasons for reviving a merger are pretty compelling.

A little-known but significant milestone reached a couple of months ago goes to the heart of why a $9 billion merger between wagering companies Tabcorp and Tatts Group may not be dead yet.

In late August, Irish bookmaking giant Paddy Power announced its results for the six months to June 30, showing that the amount wagered by punters over the internet with its Australian Sportsbet business has risen sharply to about $1.73 billion.

A couple of weeks later, Tabcorp's annual results revealed its tab.com.au digital wagering business has turnover of $1.65 billion in the first six months of the calendar year.

The upstart Sportsbet had surpassed the local and long-established player in Tabcorp, at least in a digital sense.

While Tabcorp's retail business turned over about $3.16 billion in the six months, and its online business Luxbet another $350 million, still leaving it as the nation's biggest wagering outfit, all the growth in betting is coming online.

Figures contained in an Australian Wagering Council report released this week show that while the overall wagering market is not growing markedly, there is a definite shift by punters to betting over the internet rather than in traditional retail outlets.

In the 2009 financial year, $3.9 billion was wagered over the internet, and $18 billion "offline" in retail shops and over the phone. In the 2014 financial year those figures were $15.6 billion and $11.06 billion respectively. At about the same time that the wagering figures for the first half of 2015 were revealed, Tatts Group made an approach to Tabcorp regarding a merger of equals. Talks continued for the best part of two months, with Goldman Sachs and Investec advising Tatts and UBS working for Tabcorp.

Insiders describe the reasons for the merger as compelling. A combined entity would have market capitalisation of more than $9 billion, giving it the scale of the world's biggest wagering operators. It would diversify both businesses given the strength of the Tatts lotteries business and as advisers for both camps worked away during Melbourne's spring racing carnival a deal looked certain to happen.

There is also a belief from both parties that a merger would have benefited the horse racing industry, to which about $25 million of the mooted $100 million in annual synergies could flow. A merger would have also provided the chance to establish a national betting pool, allowing the combined entity to offer a better product to consumers and take the fight to the corporate bookmakers.

But after a trading update on October 29, Tabcorp's share price began to fall. By comparison, Tatts said first-quarter trading for the 2016 financial year "had a solid start" with both lotteries and wagering performing well, and though it released less information than Tabcorp, the Tatts share price held up.

The respective share price performances ultimately scuppered the deal. Tatts said in its statement that there had been disagreement on "a nil-premium exchange ratio", while Tabcorp said the two "were unable to mutually agree acceptable terms and ... there are no further discussions taking place between the parties relating to a merger or any other form of corporate transaction."

But sources indicate another move to merge is only a matter of time.

"The deal went within a whisker of happening, and it could be game on again next year," one source said.

"We believe a deal is highly likely, but not until the Western Australian wagering licence is sold," said CLSA analyst Sacha Krien in a note to clients last week. The WA licence is expected to be privatised in mid-2016.

Given that and what is happening in a global context, where Paddy Power and Betfair, and Ladbrokes and Coral, are poised to merge and create huge combined companies in the process, some sort of move has to happen - a fact that has been exercising the minds of both the Tabcorp and Tatts boards for some time.

When the dust settles there is likely to be only a handful of huge and truly global players, which has plenty of implications for the Australian market, where the mostly overseas-owned online only or corporate bookmakers have made huge inroads in recent years, putting huge pressure on Tabcorp and Tatts in the process.

The local implications could be another round of deal-making frenzy among the corporate bookmakers, some potential new entrants and Tabcorp and Tatts either have to merge or do deals offshore in order to stay relevant in an online era and stave off intense competition. It is a case of get scale or get run over by the competition.

In the past few years in Australia alone, Paddy Power has bought Sportsbet, William Hill has acquired the Tom Waterhouse.com, Sportingbet and Centrebet brands and Ladbrokes has taken over bookmaker.com.au and Betstar. Added to that has been the entrant of former Sportsbet majority owner and chief executive Matthew Tripp with Crownbet, born out of the shell of the former Betezy brand, and the huge Bet365 business to the Australian market.

All have aggressively advertised their online offerings and, crucially, don't have the legacy issues of having to operate the slowly waning TAB outlets in NSW and Victoria in Tabcorp's case, and Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania and the Northern Territory for Tatts.

So where to next? The intense competition from the online upstarts should make it easier for Tabcorp and Tatts, should they rekindle their relationship, to get a deal done than in the past (the idea of a merger goes back more than a decade). Back in 2006, the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission said a merger between the country's two biggest wagering companies would reduce further competition for licences, but the rise of digital operators means the battle for market share is fiercer than ever.

Tatts shareholders could push for a divestment of its wagering arm in the hope of realising between $1.6 billion and $1.8 billion from a competitive bidding process that would certainly include Tabcorp, but may also include Seven West Media in concert with Racing Victoria - the two have a broadcasting joint venture in the Racing.com business - and potentially an overseas party such as Paddy Power via its Sportsbet business in Australia. Other overseas suitors such as Ladbrokes and William Hill could also be interested.

The privatisation of the WA TAB will also be hotly contested. Tabcorp and Tatts are thought to be natural bidders, with both Seven and its Perth-based chairman Kerry Stokes understood to be contemplating a bid.

The possible move by Seven into the wagering sector could also include a tilt at the Victorian wagering licence, held by Tabcorp until 2022. Racing Victoria and Seven executives are thought to be keen to explore a bid for the licence, having laid the groundwork for this when the licence was last up for renewal - but before the Brumby Labor state government denied it a chance to bid.

Seven and Racing Victoria could also look at a relationship with Crownbet in the future, though the latter has been growing aggressively by taking big sponsorship deals with the likes of the AFL and Racing.com.

Crownbet could look at merging with a business of similar scale such as William Hill's Australian arm or the local Ladbrokes operation, which has performed relatively strongly.

William Hill, once the Paddy Power/Betfair and Coral/Ladbrokes deals are consummated, will be a medium-sized global player and may be a suitor for a Tabcorp or Tatts in order to reach a similar size to its rivals. The newly merged Ladbrokes may also decide to focus more on the Australian market and make more acquisitions.

Furthermore, industry observers say there is a chance overseas operators such as Bwin.Party or a US casino group such as Caesars, may enter the market. Whatever happens, it is clear that when the dust settles within the next few years, the wagering industry in Australia will have changed considerably. It is now up to Tabcorp and Tatts if they want to move with the times or get left languishing.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: BETFAIR GROUP PLC; CENTREBET INTERNATIONAL PTY LTD; GOLDMAN SACHS GROUP INC (THE); INTERNATIONAL SPEEDWAY CORP; INVESTEC PLC; LADBROKES PLC; PADDY POWER PLC; SEVEN WEST MEDIA LTD; SPORTINGBET LTD; SPORTSBET PTY LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; TATTS GROUP LTD; UBS AG; WILLIAM HILL PLC; BWIN PARTY DIGITAL ENTERTAINMENT PLC

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39)

INDUSTRY: Bricks to Clicks (1BR78); Casinos (1CA80); E-Commerce (1EC30); E-Commerce Industries (1EC99); Entertainment (1EN08); Gaming Industry (1GA25); Internet (1IN27); Retail (1RE82)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Victoria (1VI05); Western Australia (1WE82)

OTHER INDEXING: (Matthew Tripp; Crownbet; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes; Sacha Krien)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 1348

Melbourne Cup star Payne set to turn heads at Randwick next month

Source: Sydney Morning Herald, The (Australia)
Publication Date: November 23, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

11/23/15 Sydney Morning Herald (Austl.) 42

News

Copyright © 2015 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Sport
Chris Roots

Melbourne Cup-winning jockey Michelle Payne will be honoured by the Australian Turf Club as she rides at its Randwick meeting next month.

The club has worked on finding a date to get Payne to Sydney since her history-making Melbourne Cup win on Prince Of Penzance and has confirmed Saturday, December 5 as the date.

"We have worked with her to get her up here, so that people in Sydney can have the chance to congratulate her on a remarkable achievement," ATC's Brett de Vine said. "She is going to ride on the day and bring her Melbourne Cup with her. We are working on having her brother Stevie [Prince Of Penzance's strapper] here as well.

"We had a really successful day with Jim Cassidy on Saturday and we want to give the public opportunities to see the stars of our sport." The club is working out details for the afternoon but there will be a chance for fans to meet Payne during the afternoon.

Prizemoney push

Racing NSW will make an announcement on how the first part of tax parity funds will be distributed in Dubbo on Tuesday. Being in the seat of deputy premier and racing minister Troy Grant it is almost certain to do with prizemoney in country areas.

The Racing NSW strategic plan suggests that prizemoney should increase from $15,000 to $20,000 a race for country TAB meetings along with other prizemoney targets across the board.

As tax parity with Victoria will be delivered during the next five years all the prizemoney targets cannot be hit in the first year but rest assured country racing is a high priority for the government.

The ATC announcement of more than $2 million in increases to prizemoney across nine group 1s in the autumn carnival has fulfilled another part of the strategic plan; that there should be a $500,000 minimum stake for group1 in NSW.

Buffering's brilliance

How good is Buffering? As an eight-year-old he is still near the top horses in the country and is loved by punters. Especially those that got $4.40 after the barrier draw for the Winterbottom Stakes, which he won on Saturday. Robert Heathcote has done a remarkable job to keep his star sprinter at the top of his game.

Buffering's record of 31 starts for six wins, six seconds, seven thirds and six fourths would make a great career for any horse - but that's Buff's record in group 1s.

"I have never called him the WBS, [world's best sprinter] there has always been one better than him," Heathcote said. "At the start of his career we were running into Black Caviar and Hay List and happy to run third. We thought his time will come. It has but I didn't think it would go on this long."

Buffering has earned $5.6 million and who's to say he can't add an international success to his record if Heathcote chooses to go to Dubai and Royal Ascot next year.

Broadcast battles

The battle for the next broadcast and wagering deal in Western Australia is well and truly on. The vision rights to WA racing come up in 2017 and racing.com is already courting Perth officials in an effort to take over from the Tabcorp-owned Sky Channel. The privatisation of the WA TAB is also under consideration and with it would come the technology infrastructure needed should Seven West and Racing Victoria want to buy the TAB licence in Victoria sometime in the next decade.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92)

INDUSTRY: Consumer Products & Services (1CO62); Entertainment (1EN08); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Horse Racing (1HO27); Luxury Items (1LU28); Sporting Events (1SP65); Sports (1SP75)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); New South Wales (1NE75); Oceania (1OC40); Victoria (1VI05); Western Australia (1WE82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Stevie; Prince; Michelle Payne; Jim Cassidy; Troy Grant)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 584

08 Jan 2016
Australian Financial Review, Australia

Author: Perry Williams • Section: Companies and Markets • Article type : News Item
Classification : National • Audience : 57,243 • Page: 13 • Printed Size: 272.00cm<sup>2</sup>
Market: National • Country: Australia • ASR: AUD 4,756 • Words: 641
Item ID: 522156936

isentia.mediaportal

Copyright Agency licensed copy (www.copyright.com.au)

Tabcorp
the bigger better game

Page 1 of 1

▲
back

Tatts, Tabcorp jockey to win race for last state-owned TAB

Exclusive

Perry Williams

Gaming giants Tatts Group and Tabcorp have held talks with the Western Australia government over a potential $1 billion deal to buy Australia's last remaining state-owned betting agency as pressure grows on the state to prop up its ailing economy.

Premier Colin Barnett first raised the for-sale flag over the TAB in mid-2014 as attention focused on how the former boom state would deal with a ballooning debt crisis.

While it was officially listed for sale in the state's May budget, political squabbling and divisions within the racing industry raised questions over the timetable for a privatisation.

However, sources close to the process say intense lobbying from Australia's two largest wagering companies over the past few months suggest the timetable for a deal may accelerate.

Billionaire Kerry Stokes is also tipped as a likely suitor for the TAB as Seven West Media looks to build on a broadcasting deal struck with the Victorian thoroughbred racing industry in 2015. Seven is also thought to have been approached by corporate bookmakers for a potential equity investment or joint venture.

"This is the only remaining tote opportunity within Australia, so there is huge interest among the big wagering players as you would expect," the source said. "Tatts and Tabcorp have held dozens of meetings in the last year to position themselves for a possible sale while Stokes has the home-town advantage."

Corporate bookmakers and global betting giants eager to gain a foothold in Australia's strong market are also expected to bid should the government give the green light to a deal.

Tabcorp owns the former government TABs in NSW and Victoria while Tatts owns the TABs in Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and Tasmania. The two market-leading wagering companies held merger talks last year but failed to agree on a price.

Tabcorp was the winning bidder in the 2014 privatisation of the ACT's TAB

where it received a 50-year totalisator licence, a 15-year sports bookmaking licence and approval to offer its Keno and Trackside products in Canberra pubs, clubs and betting shops.

Tatts boss Robbie Cooke confirmed in December the company would be interested in bidding for WA's TAB.

Corporate advisory firms and investment banks have held early talks about an advisory role to the government.

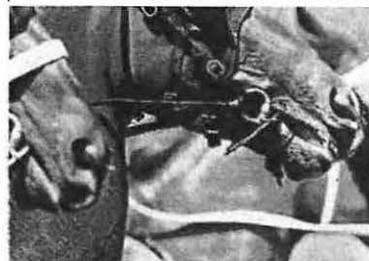

WA Liberal Treasurer Mike Nahan said in December that $17 billion in expected revenue over the budget years had disappeared since last year's forecasts largely due to the dramatic fall in iron ore prices.

The Racing Representative Group charged to lobby on behalf of the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound codes is also looking to appoint an independent expert in the expectation a sale proceeds, and has drawn on the expertise of former Tatts finance head Ray Gunston to help the industry shape its negotiating position.

The group's representative, Michael Grant, said he was frustrated by delays in instigating the first steps of the sales process and he had not heard from the government since putting a formal

Continued next page

However, the consideration of a sale of the TAB provides an opportunity to address the likely challenges that will arise in the future," the website states.

There's huge interest in buying the West Australian state-owned tote.

From previous page

Tatts, Tabcorp jockey for state-owned TAB

proposal around the possible deal in October.

"The government has made a commitment but we will only sell it if it's what the industry wanted and only if we can be sure of all the ongoing benefits to the industry," Mr Grant said.

"Make no mistake the industry is suffering a crisis of confidence in not having that surety going forward, so we need the government to move forward on this."

A government spokesman was unavailable for comment. The WA Treasury website under an asset sales heading says a deal remains on its agenda.

"The TAB has operated successfully in Western Australia, and this has resulted in a strong racing industry.

Barnett told to sell WA TAB to pay off debt

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: January 13, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

1/13/16 Austl. Fin. Rev. 18

News

Copyright © 2016 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Companies and Markets

Perry Williams

West Australia's leading business group has urged Colin Barnett's government to sell Australia's last remaining state-owned betting agency as gaming giants Tatts Group and Tabcorp prepare to battle for the potential $1 billion deal.

The WA Chamber of Commerce and Industry said the government was not a natural owner of the asset and should include the sale as part of a privatisation push that could reduce its large debt pile.

"Gaming has evolved from the tote at the local races into a highly competitive, global online industry offering countless betting markets and the modern reality is an unnatural fit for a state government," said WA Chamber of Commerce and Industry chief executive Deidre Willmott.

Premier Colin Barnett first raised the for-sale flag over the TAB in mid-2014 and while it was officially listed for sale in the state's May budget, political divisions and issues within the racing industry have raised questions over the timetable for a privatisation.

Ms Willmott said the obvious interest from companies, which are expected to include Tabcorp, Tatts and a potential bid from billionaire Kerry Stokes meant it should be put on the market.

"The government should sell any asset where the private sector can provide the service more efficiently and in a competitive market, which is clearly the case with the TAB and the ongoing support of the local industry should be made a condition of the sale process."

The WA Treasury website said a deal remains on its agenda but the state's racing and gaming minister Colin Holt would not be drawn on his appetite for whether the process may move forward in 2016.

"I am focused on ensuring the racing industry in Western Australia including country racing, continues to succeed, is sustainable in the long term, and continues making a strong contribution to the economy, just as it has in the past," Mr Holt said in a statement to Fairfax Media.

Tabcorp owns the former government TABs in NSW and Victoria while Tatts owns the TABs in Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and Tasmania.

Tabcorp was the winning bidder in the 2014 privatisation of the ACT's TAB where it received a 50-year totalisator licence, a 15-year sports bookmaking licence and approval to offer its Keno and Trackside products in Canberra pubs, clubs and betting shops.

Tatts chief executive Robbie Cooke confirmed in December the company would be interested in bidding for WA's TAB.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: FAIRFAX MEDIA LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD; TATTS GROUP LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Campaigns & Elections (1CA25); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92); U.S. Congressional Campaigns (1US07)

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); E-Commerce (1EC30); E-Commerce Industries (1EC99); Entertainment (1EN08); Internet (1IN27); Online Gambling (1ON09); Retail (1RE82)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Australian Capital Territory (1AU58); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)

OTHER INDEXING: (Colin Holt; Robert Michael Sean Cooke; Robbie Cooke; Deidre Willmott; Colin Barnett; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 404

News & Views Markets Quotes Workplace Consumer Property Innovation Retail Economy CBD Money SHARE TWEET MORE SUBSCRIBE NICHOLAS

Home / Business

FEBRUARY 12 2016

SAVE PRINT LICENSE ARTICLE

WA fires starting gun on $1b TAB sell-off

Perry Williams

Australia's last state-owned betting agency will be officially put up for sale by the West Australian government within weeks, in a potential $1 billion-plus deal.

The TAB privatisation sets up the tantalising prospect of billionaire Kerry Stokes entering the wagering market for the first time and battling fierce rivals Tabcorp and Tatts Group for the rights to run the profitable betting business, while corporate bookmakers including James Packer's CrownBet may also consider a bid.

The West Australian government will end years of speculation by placing the TAB on the market in a potential $1 billion-plus deal. Photo: Jenny Evans

The WA government will issue a request for proposal to major players in the industry in the coming weeks after Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt decided the state was not a natural owner of the TAB, and said it was time to test the market's appetite for the assets, which include 320 retail outlets.

"From my viewpoint, it's time to test the market now," Mr Holt told Fairfax Media in an exclusive interview. "I'm responsible to the industry and I've Collect your rewards with an HSBC Platinum Credit Card.

Advertisement

HUFFPOST AUSTRALIA

Amazon's Grocery Store Lets You Grab ...

Use These 6 Concepts To Teach Your Kids ...

reached the conclusion we need to look at the potential privatisation of the TAB to see what opportunities it presents for the industry itself."

Depending on the value and structure of initial offers, the government may legislate to offer an exclusive retail TAB wagering licence to the successful bidder.

With Tabcorp and Tatts holding a monopoly over retail TAB outlets in every other state and territory in Australia, the mooted sale is likely to spark a frenzy of bidding for operators to gain a foothold in the market, given a dearth of opportunities in the last few years.

Advertisement

Mr Holt said he had met with major players, including Tabcorp and Tatts, and expects other new entrants including Seven West Media, which created the racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria last year, to look at the opportunity.

"I've met with some of those big players who we already know exist in Australia. And there may well be two or three others who are thinking of getting into a wagering business," said Mr Holt. "The fact racing.com has come on board has actually changed the game. Maybe one of the corporate bookies is interested and Crown may want to add a wagering business."

WA accounts for 9 per cent of Australia's wagering market, according to Macquarie Research.

Massive corporate interest

Mr Holt spent much of last year travelling around Australia to meet with racing bodies and better understand the fast-moving wagering space. He said the experience led him to the conclusion the state must make a move to capture massive corporate interest in the sector and deliver a sale which strengthens the state's own racing industry.

"It was originally floated as an asset sale to help address our deficit issues, but in reality it will be more realistic that it is about an outcome for the industry," said Mr Holt. "The WA TAB performs really strongly; we're like a jewel in the crown, and we're the last ones to be privatised in Australia so we can obviously learn from all the potential pitfalls and opportunities that the others have been through."

Premier Colin Barnett first raised the for-sale flag over the TAB in mid-2014 as attention focused on how the mining state would deal with a ballooning debt crisis.

While it was listed for sale in the state's May budget, political squabbling and divisions within the racing industry raised questions over the timetable for a privatisation.

MOST POPULAR

- 1 'Her role on the project was just to be an ornament'
- 2 NAB makes its move to $1.7b Wynyard Place
- 3 Paddle Pop's 15-second ad dumped after complaint
- 4 Shares and bonds see GDP shock differently
- 5 YouTube makes $US1 billion case that it's good for music industry

FOLLOW BUSINESSDAY

FACEBOOK
TWITTER

FOLLOW SMH

NEWSLETTERS

Prepared for your family's future?

Join our property investment hub today

FIND OUT MORE

Mr Holt said he has held constructive talks with the Racing Representative Group charged to lobby on behalf of the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound codes, but admits a potential sale of the TAB will not be universally welcomed.

"We're working with the WA racing industry to clearly define benchmarks for the sale and I expect we'll have some of those very shortly," said Mr Holt. "My responsibility is to the industry, and I won't be agreeing anything unless it gives a really good outcome for the industry broadly across WA."

Racing and Wagering Western Australia, the owner of the TAB, said it contributed $165 million in funding to the state's racing and sports industry in the 2014-15 year.

YOU MIGHT LIKE

Gold Coast

BOOKING.COM SPONSORED

Advertisement

EVERY JOB. EVERYWHERE. FOR YOU

Home & Garden Needed In...
Penrith, Penrith Area

Home & Garden Help Wanted
Lane Cove, Lane Cove Area

e.g.job,company,title    Please select region    Search jobs on Adzuna

Recommended

Family of dead miner lose bid to claim his life insurance after payroll...
WA NEWS

Where Would You Invest? Shane Oliver's Top Tips for SMSFs
AMP CAPITAL E)

The swimsuit trend that's also good for you
DAILY LIFE

Never Transfer Money Overseas Again Without Reading This
OFX E)

Illegal 'cash-in-hand' payments on the rise
BUSINESS

It's probably Europe's hippest summer city and Aussies totally miss it
INTERNATIONAL TRAVELLER

'Sitting ducks': The Sydney homeowners facing reduced property values
BUSINESS

Got Private Health Insurance? You Should Read This Now!
HEALTH INSURANCE

Donald Trump's gift to Australia worth billions in the long run
BUSINESS

Forget Sydney, investors have their eye on a new booming hotspot in NSW
DOMAIN E)

Recommended by

SMALL BUSINESS MBA ONLY $1

THE FORTUNE INSTITUTE

CLICK HERE

FEATURED IN Bloomberg Forbes todaytonight 60

Bankers at the barrier for WA TAB mandate

WA Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt will in the coming weeks seek advisers who can guide the government on the future funding needs of the state's racing industry. Brendan Foster

by Sarah Thompson Anthony Macdonald Joyce Moulakis

With the clock ticking on the $1 billion privatisation of West Australia's TAB network, advisers are starting to position themselves for a plum role negotiating the sale of Australia's last state-owned betting agency.

Sources told Street Talk the request for proposal process to spark the spin-off will be split into two stages.

WA Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt will in the coming weeks seek advisers who can guide the government on the future funding needs of the state's racing industry.

The scoping study will focus on the potential transfer of value from the state to the new owner, the possible rationalisation of racing clubs and the structure and shape of the industry should a sale proceed.

Rothschild and Deloitte, who partnered up on the Utah Ports privatisation, will be in the running along with EY who recently advised on the Perth Market Authority sale.

Racing and Wagering Western Australia, the owner of the TAB, is understood to have held a board meeting in the last few days to discuss the sales process.

The second stage will evaluate formal expressions of interest from bidders for the TAB network and is likely to stretch into the second half of 2016.

There's little surprise that both Tabcorp and Tatts Group have already put their hands up as interested bidders and several of the corporate bookmakers including James Packer's CrownBet and Sportsbet, owned by Ireland's Paddy Power, may also take a look.

Meanwhile, Kerry Stokes' Seven West Media is expected to lever off its successful racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria to have a crack at the wagering market. Seven West also has a strong position in WA, selling 158,000 copies of the West Australian every day.

Seven West boss Tim Worner did not rule out a potential deal on Wednesday when analysts questioned the media company about its intentions in the wagering sector.

Credit Suisse analysts reckon WAT TAB's \$350 million annual revenue could be worth $70 million in earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation for an industry player like Tabcorp, assuming a 20 per cent earnings margin.

It's all about a cut in licence fees: Worner

Source: Australian
Publication Date: February 18, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

2/18/16 Australian (Newspaper) 19

News

Copyright © 2016 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

JAKE MITCHELLMedia

Seven West Media chief executive Tim Worner has taken aim at rival media companies for "running around Canberra" and "talking their own businesses down" in the pursuit of changes to owner-ship laws.

Mr Worner told The Australian he was disappointed the sector had not presented more of a united front on the need to cut television licence fees, which are among the highest in the world.

Regional television networks WIN Corporation, Prime Media Group and Southern Cross Media Group have led a push for media -reform that has focused on abolishing the population reach rule and cross media ownership laws.

"Licence fee reductions is the reform that can actually assist the entire industry," Mr Worner said.

"Instead they're running around Canberra and running around talking their own businesses down. I think they're starting to reap what they sow." Asked whether Seven, which owns The West Australian and magazines including New Idea, had been trying to stall the progress of reform because the -removal of media ownership rules was not in its interests, Mr Worner said: "That's absolute rubbish.

"We haven't stalled anything. We just want an entire package of -reform and we want to see licence fees at the top of it." It has been speculated that Seven or chairman Kerry Stokes' 73 per cent-controlled Seven Group Holdings may be interested in bidding for the Western Australian TAB, which is set to be privatised. Mr Worner would not be drawn on whether Seven was interested but said the company's Racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria was going from "strength to strength".

The media executive was speaking as Seven -reported a $135.2 million net profit for the six months ended on -December 26, turning around a $993.6m loss in the previous corresponding -period, which was hit by writedowns to its television, newspaper and magazine licences.

The company reported an underlying net profit of $140.3m, which was a rise of 2.1 per cent, as a cost-cutting program helped -offset a sluggish advertising -market and structural challenges facing its assets.

Seven's revenue slipped by 4.1 per cent to $896.7m, while earnings before interest, tax, -depreciation and amortisation fell by 8.5 per cent to $229.3m.

Group costs were down 4 per cent to $687.5m.

The company's top placed free-to-air television business, the Seven Network, recorded a 2.1 per cent revenue decline to $662.9m, while earnings before interest and tax were up by 2 per cent to $185.4m.

The latest accounts show the television operations now represent 83 per cent of the group's earnings.

Newspaper earnings of $24m for the half year were down 22 per cent, while magazine earnings slumped 39 per cent to $7.3m.

Macquarie Securities analyst Andrew Levy said Seven's progress in cutting costs was encouraging before the impact of the network's broadcast rights for the Rio 2016 Summer Olympics and new AFL deal.

"This is a robust result overall for Seven and demonstrates good near-term cost control," Mr Levy said.

Seven will pay an interim dividend of 4c a share. The company's shares closed on Wednesday flat at 81.5c.

JAKE MITCHELLMedia

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: PRIME MEDIA GROUP LTD; ROWIN CO LTD; SEVEN GROUP HOLDINGS LTD; SEVEN NETWORK LTD; SEVEN WEST MEDIA LTD; SOUTHERN CROSS MEDIA GROUP LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Financial Data (1XO59); Dividends (1DI76); Equity Instruments (1EQ90); Funding Instruments (1FU41); Privatization (1PR92)

INDUSTRY: Broadcast TV (1BR25); Entertainment (1EN08); Financial Services (1FI37); Investment Management (1IN34); Securities Investment (1SE57); TV (1TV19); TV Stations (1TV23); Traditional Media (1TR30)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Australian Capital Territory (1AU58); Oceania (1OC40)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Andrew Levy; Tim Worner; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes)

EDITION: Australian

WORD COUNT: 517

Barnett to start WA TAB sale talks

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: March 15, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

3/15/16 Austl. Fin. Rev. 18

News

Copyright © 2016 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Companies and Markets

Perry Williams

West Australian Premier Colin Barnett is poised to proceed with the $1 billion privatisation of the state's TAB agency with talks planned this week with the racing industry.

Mr Barnett, who flagged the TAB privatisation in mid-2014, was initially due to meet the Racing Representative Group on Monday morning in Perth. However, the meeting was changed because of a delay in cabinet proceedings. It is due to be held in coming days.

The racing body, charged with lobbying on behalf of the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound codes, is expected to list its demands relating to any potential sale, including minimum funding commitments for each of the clubs it represents.

Sources said Racing Minister Colin Holt and Treasurer Mike Nahan would also attend the meeting.

It was thought Mr Nahan expressed concern last week the state needed to ensure it engineered a strong outcome for the region should the sale proceed.

That could take the form of a one-off payment by a successful bidder in addition to the minimum guarantees needed to be in place with the racing clubs.

RRG spokesman Michael Grant has previously said it is imperative to have the correct structure in place, which includes minimum undertakings and benefits to the racing industry. The group is concerned the government has yet to appoint an external adviser to guide it in the complex process.

It is thought firms including Rothschild, Investec and EY are positioning themselves for an advisory role in the privatisation process, although no formal request for the proposal has been sent to the industry.

Tabcorp, which owns the former government TABs in NSW and Victoria, and Tatts, the owner of the TABs in Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and Tasmania, are logical front runners in the West Australian race.

Most in the industry expect Tabcorp to have the best chance of securing the TAB sale.

Tabcorp chief executive David Attenborough has confirmed the betting giant will likely lob in a proposal.

Tabcorp was the winning bidder in the 2014 privatisation of the ACT TAB, where it received a 50-year totalisator licence, a 15-year sports bookmaking licence and approval to offer its Keno and Trackside products in Canberra pubs, clubs and betting shops.

The two rivals, which canned $9 billion merger talks in November, may consider resurrecting a wagering tie-up in the next few months, potentially removing a source of competitive tension in the bidding process depending on the WA government's timeline.

Alternatively, should Tabcorp or Tatts emerge as the winner in the West Australian sale, that process might stall the momentum for a merger between the two companies.

The sale also sets up the prospect of two of Australia's highest-profile billionaires, James Packer and Kerry Stokes, entering the wagering market in the west.

Mr Stokes' Seven West Media, which created the racing.com joint venture with Racing Victoria last year, is thought to be mulling an assault on the wagering market with Western Australia an obvious entry point.

However, Mr Packer's CrownBet remains an outside chance given the large retail network footprint.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

LANGUAGE: English

COMPANY: ERNST AND YOUNG; INVESTEC PLC; ROTHSCHILD AND CO SCA; SEVEN WEST MEDIA LTD; TABCORP HOLDINGS LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92)

INDUSTRY: Bars & Nightclubs (1BA02); Casinos (1CA80); Entertainment (1EN08); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Horse Racing (1HO27); Sports (1SP75)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Australian Capital Territory (1AU58); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)

OTHER INDEXING: (Racing Representative Group) (Mike Nahan; Colin Holt; Michael Grant; Colin Barnett; James Douglas Packer; James Packer; David Robert Henry Attenborough; David Attenborough; Ryan Kerry Stokes; Ryan Stokes)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 509

PNG's PM delivers for Ferrovial boss

Source: Australian
Publication Date: April 29, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

4/29/16 Australian (Newspaper) 32

News

Copyright © 2016 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Business

MARGIN CALL WITH BEN BUTLERCHRISTINE LACY

Ferrovial boss Santiago Olivares will have PNG Prime Minister Peter O'Neill to thank for delivering takeover target Broadspectrum into the dashing Spaniards' acquisitive hands.

By late yesterday 19 per cent cornerstone investor Simon Mawhinney at fund manager Allan Gray was softening his previously steadfast stance against Ferrovial's $1.50-a-share bid for the detention centre operator, as Broadspectrum's hopes of maintaining its PNG camp contract were dimming.

(Yesterday we said the bid was $1.35, which was wrong.) "At this stage we are gathering as much information as possible so that we can make an informed decision before the expiry of the offer at 7pm on Monday," Mawhinney told us.

By last night Broadspectrum chair Diane Smith Gander was still telling investors to reject the bid, but was assessing whether the situation on Manus warranted a change.

Despite that the action in the PNG Supreme Court was on foot, DSG didn't think it important enough to note it in her target statement. In contrast, Immigration Minister Peter Dutton says he's been "planning for this since late last year".

Allan Gray tipping into the bid gets Ferrovial close to its 50.1 per cent minimum acceptance, the mums and dads will probably follow and the conquistadors will be locked into buying the company, regardless of how things play out on Manus.

Skala departs board Steven Skala has left the board of Deutsche Bank's main Aussie arm after 10 years, resigning his directorship of Deutsche Australia in February.

The banking veteran, who retains his broader role as vice-chairman of Deutsche Bank Australia and NZ, has left Deutsche Australia two legacies: a bumper profit and an expansive "discussion" with Chris Jordan's tax office.

The bonanza $82 million profit in 2015, nearly three times 2014's $28m effort, is easily explained, thanks to increased trade by fixed interest clients but long-running tea-and-biscuits with the ATO is shrouded in mystery. Annual reports disclose talks have been going on for at least five years, although the subject matter may have moved.

In 2011, they were "in relation to certain matters", but by last year the chitchat covered "the determination of the company's tax position", which could "lead to additional tax liabilities", quantum unknown. All DB will say is that it is not under audit and the chinwags do not relate to a dispute.

West beckons Perrin Millionaire Billabong founder Scott Perrin and wife Rachel are having another shot at flogging his $30m Gold Coast home, which has been for sale for almost a year.

Perrin, who's now running Seven and Racing Victoria's Racing.com out of Melbourne, has switched agents on the little Mermaid Beach six-bedder in the hope of finally offloading it.

He's still commuting to work from up north, but might soon be looking west as WA Racing Minister Colin Holt ramps up plans to flog Australia's last government-owned wagering business, WA TAB.

Racing.com is mooted as billionaire boss Kerry Stokes' platform for further expansion into racing, potentially bidding for the wagering licence in his home state. It already has a hook-up with the James Packer-backed Crownbet. Holt's talking to industry about how he can sell the TAB to the market as a profitable enterprise - last year it made $156m in profit but gave $150m of that to the clubs.

Nine's breathing space Over at Nine, under-pressure boss Hugh Marks was finally able to deliver some breaking good news to his board of directors yesterday. As the Peter Costello-chaired Nine board met in Sydney, the action against the network by its Bermuda-based billionaire affiliate partner Bruce Gordon was being thrown out of court, with the judge now considering costs in the case.

Marks had already warned the market that the increase in legal costs from the WIN defence could eat into earnings this half, but if it goes away that could give the boss some headroom towards the growing list of expenses incurred from the 60 Minutes debacle in Beirut.

It was the board's first coming together since the news and current affairs scandal broke but directors, including former boss David Gyngell, Holly Kramer and Elizabeth Gaines, have been updated daily with written reports on the Levantine drama.

Nine is now saying the internal 60 Minutes review could take until mid-May. The board yesterday was not updated on the investigation. christine.lacy@news.com.au butlerb@theaustralian.com.au

MARGIN CALL WITH BEN BUTLERCHRISTINE LACY

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: ALLAN GRAY (PTY) LTD; DEUTSCHE BANK AG; DEUTSCHE AUSTRALIA LTD; FERROVIAL SA; GOLD COAST RESOURCES INC; INFRATIL LTD; JORDANS FURNITURE INC
NEWS SUBJECT: Board of Directors (1BO47); Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Corporate Groups & Ownership (1XO09); Immigration & Naturalization (1IM88); Mergers & Acquisitions (1ME39); Social Issues (1SO05); Taxation (1TA10)
INDUSTRY: Accounting, Consulting & Legal Services (1AC73)
REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Victoria (1VI05)
LANGUAGE: English
OTHER INDEXING: (Steven Skala; Holly Kramer; Colin Holt; David Gyngell; Diane Smith Gander; Scott Perrin; Simon Mawhinney; Hugh Marks; Kerry Stokes; Chris Jordan; Allan Gray; Santiago Olivares Blazquez; Santiago Olivares Blazquez; BEN BUTLERCHRISTINE LACY; Bruce Gordon; Bruce Gordon; Elizabeth Gaines; Peter Dutton; Rachel)
EDITION: Australian
WORD COUNT: 736

Today's Paper Videos Infographics Markets Data BRW Lists

My Premium AFR  Logout
search the AFR

PREMIUM

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

THE Store
BY FAIRFAX

THE NEW ONLINE DESTINATION FOR AUSTRALIAN DESIGN

EXPLORE NOW >

Home / Business / Sport

May 22 2016 at 6:05 PM Updated May 22 2016 at 6:05 PM

Save Article Print License Article

Seven and Racing Victoria shake up horse racing with Hong Kong deal

Racing Victoria and Seven West Media's joint venture may bid for racing in other states. Vince Calligiuri

Expression of Interest
Land for Future School Sites

Fishermans Bend
www.schoolbuildings.vic.gov.au
www.fishermansbend.vic.gov.au

Advertisement

by John Stensholt

Seven West Media and Racing Victoria's Racing.com joint venture will announce on Monday it has gained the rights to broadcast arguably the best-quality horse racing in the world from Hong Kong.

It is a small but significant step for Racing.com, one that may be the first domino to fall in what looms as a year or two of intensive broadcast deal negotiations across several states and merger and acquisition activity in the wagering sector.

Plenty of this may have Seven and Racing.com at the centre of the action and have ramifications for the established listed wagering operators such as Tabcorp and racing administrators around the country.

Racing.com's coverage of Hong Kong is likely to begin this weekend or next Wednesday evening. Its popular on-air host Shane Anderson says the coverage, shown on Seven's free-to-air Racing.com channel, on Foxtel's pay television service and online, will be "an elite product covered with elite talent", including preview and analysis shows.

Tabcorp's Sky Racing channel will still cover Hong Kong but Mr Anderson believes Racing.com's ability to showcase it as a premium product makes it a

Related articles

Foxtel executive von Hauenschild resigns

Netflix rating process fast-tracked

Football a business for Max Donnelly

differentiator. At present, Hong Kong is part of a constant suite of racing, including greyhounds and harness, shown on Sky's main channel or moved to its secondary

The theory is greater exposure to horse racing on television means more people bet and more flows through to the industry in race fields fees. It can also be said that Tabcorp – which shares the spoils of tote betting – will also benefit.

But the Hong Kong deal shows the divergent paths Tabcorp is taking from Seven and Racing Victoria, which shows the crown jewels of the Spring Carnival that features races such as the Cox Plate, the Caulfield Cup and the Melbourne Cup.

Hong Kong marks the first jurisdiction outside Victoria that Racing.com will show vision of, having hastily been born in January 2015 out of the messy end to the TVN channel, which had the rights to both Victoria and NSW racing.

Back then, Victoria elected to spend about $10 million establishing Racing.com with Seven, which then launched the free-to-air channel in July. Meanwhile, Racing NSW quickly signed a 10-year exclusive broadcast deal with Sky.

Sky covers races across other states and overseas, but that may soon change.

South Australian racing is up for renewal next year, while the rights for New Zealand racing are in play now. Queensland authorities, meanwhile, are understood to have served Sky with breach notices regarding their contract over changes it made to Victorian coverage last year (which was off-air for a short time due to a contract dispute).

Racing.com may move to poach the rights off Sky for all of those, though will then face the quandary of having to lavish attention and resources on interstate racing as it does for Victoria, and perhaps even have to sell or offer those states a shareholding.

Victorian authorities argue the Racing.com service, which is also pumped out via the corporate bookmakers website, has increased wagering turnover. It may be up by about 7 per cent this financial year, compared with a fall in Queensland and South Australia of the same figure (NSW is said to be up about 3-4 per cent), and Racing Victoria may go close to matching its bumper $50 million record profit in 2015.

Racing.com is already profitable after about 10 months of operation, paying Racing Victoria and Seven a decent annual dividend, mostly thanks to stronger than expected advertising deals that Seven's sales team signed with corporate bookmakers

GTN has 'Eye in the Sky' on US expansion

Cricket Australia's executive kitchen jars

Related Quotes

SWM

SEVENWEST FPO (SWM)

$0.70 0.00 0.00%

volume 0 value 0.0

5 YEARS 1 DAY

Last updated: Thu Dec 08 2016 - 10:12:05 AM

View full quote

Company Profile

National Media Group.

<http://www.sevenwestmedia.com.au>

Media (254010)

ASIC 053480845

ASX Announcements

|         |   |
|---------|---|
| 9/11/16 | Results of Annual General Meeting                           |
| 9/11/16 | Annual General Meeting Addresses                            |
| 7/11/16 | SWM Signs Contract to Acquire Sunday Times and PerthNow     |
| 4/11/16 | NWZ: Newzulu signs multi-product deal with Seven West Media |
| 2/11/16 | Ceasing to be a substantial holder                          |

View all announcements

Latest Stories

Is Pebble just the first smartwatch to fall?

2 min ago

Markets Live: Back in the saddle

LIVE

Depp, Clooney top 'overpaid' Forbes list

8 mins ago

More

such as CrownBet, which shelled out $5-10 million for the biggest ad package, and Ladbrokes

PREMIUM

search the AFR

NEWS ▾ BUSINESS ▾ MARKETS ▾ STREET TALK REAL ESTATE ▾ OPINION ▾ TECHNOLOGY ▾ PERSONAL FINANCE ▾ LEADERSHIP ▾ LIFESTYLE ▾ ALL ▾

"We are quietly pleased with what has already been achieved, the future performance and the potential of this business is very, very significant," Seven chief executive Tim Worner told The Australian Financial Review. "We have already seen what can be done. Look at the roll up to the [recent Warrnambool carnival], look at the turnover numbers. Victorian racing is positioning itself for a very interesting future and so is Seven."

When it comes to racing, however, the real money is to be made in wagering. There has already been speculation about Seven looking at a bid for the West Australian tote. Far more likely is a tie-up between Seven and an operator such as CrownBet, given the latter already advertises on Racing.com and James Packer and Kerry Stokes, former and current chairman of CrownBet's part-owner Crown Resorts and Seven respectively, are close.

Then there is the vexed issue of Tabcorp's joint venture with Victoria to deliver racing a share of tote betting losses. Tabcorp's retail monopoly is under threat from the rise of corporate bookmakers such as CrownBet and market leader Sportsbet, and Racing Victoria has made good money charging them higher race fields fees.

Both Tabcorp and Racing Victoria say the joint venture is still a fruitful one, and relations are good. The different, and competing, broadcasting strategies may mean that is not the case forever.

Recommended

What would Australia look like without China?

iRobot's Braava robot mop is like having an infant crawling...

Mike Baird on changes to negative gearing

HSBC's new private bank in Australia will target rich C-suite...

Iron ore resets lower after surge

From Around the Web

Technology is opening new doors for private investors

Saxo Bank

Older Aussies overpaying on health insurance big time...

Health Insurance Comparison

Getting the Chinese to buy your house isn't easy anymore, just...

Domain

Ever considered a career on the slopes?

Explore

Pensioning off old ideas of retirement

Perpetual

Recommended by

Kerry Stokes revises plan for East Perth Power Station museum

Source: Australian Financial Review
Publication Date: September 28, 2016
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

9/28/16 Austl. Fin. Rev. 36

News

Copyright © 2016 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

Section: Features

Joe Aston and Bryce Corbett

At 76, Seven billionaire Kerry Stokes has asked himself a rather salient question: what the hell to do with all of this art?

Stokes' extensive stockpile of Picassos and Matises, and historical artefacts such as Scott of the Antarctic's sled and the Rothschild Prayerbook, ambiguously known as the Kerry Stokes Collection, is displayed at the West Perth offices of the family's private investment arm Australian Capital Equity. It is curated by seven full-time staff and has been exhibited in parts and in full at various institutions around the country.

For some time, Stokes has been looking for a permanent site to establish an eponymous public museum. Though he's scoped other Australian destinations, his ties to Perth make it city most likely. Think a MONA of the West. And if he buys the TAB from Colin Barnett, both can be funded by gambling!

ACE had submitted an Expression of Interest proposal for the East Perth Power Station, but state treasurer Mike Nahan told the WA Parliament this month that the bidders - whose number also include Mirvac and Lend Lease - "did not bid a sufficient amount, in our mind, to sell the thing".

It's understood ACE has since submitted a revised proposal. The issue for the TV and tractor baron is that while the site itself is valued at $25.7 million, it requires another $100 million in pre-development works (contamination, heritage, blah blah) before a sod could be turned on new works. And with iron ore at $US55 per tonne, oil still sub-$US50 per barrel and the media business structurally rooted, a lazy $300 million isn't spare change to Stokes like it was five years ago, when the ore price was $US177 a tonne and he could shoot cash out of water cannons into the Swan River. We loved those days, being bull market specialists...

Mind you, he's a determined fellow, so don't write off the project just yet. We'll watch this space, shall we?

UBS desk gets around to downgrading Estia Health

Well it took them a while, but finally, UBS Equities has downgraded one of its favourite stocks, Estia Health. Good of them to get with the program!

Up until April 19, the desk's target price for the listed aged care player rolled up by private equity sharks Quadrant was a whopping $8.65. On that day, it was cut to $8.35 - both laughable in hindsight, but then isn't hindsight a beautiful thing?

In May, lead analyst Shav Bedrossian heroically dropped his EHE price target to $8.15, still 33.2 per cent above his peers' consensus of $6.12; the actual price then was $5.32. And on it goes: by July, UBS was spruiking a fair price of $6.95, by which time the stock was trading below $4.

On Monday, UBS released new research on Estia, dropping Bedrossian from its list of analysts, a list he previously sat atop, and set a new target of $4.10, down from that $6.95 in one fell swoop. The shares closed at $3.45.

Back in December 2014, when UBS' investment banking division floated Estia for Quadrant, the deal was led by Michael Stock, now at Credit Suisse. Stock is also an investor (in a private capacity) in the hedge fund VGI Partners, which holds the biggest short position in Estia and across the sector. Which way does he want the stock to go or the wind to blow?!

Mitchell book squibs on famous Bush G20 line

They were three words, attributed to the then president of the United States and leader of the free world - George W. Bush.

"What's the G20?"

A question reportedly uttered by Bush during a private phone conversation with the then Australian PM, Kevin Rudd, back in 2008. A conversation that was apparently overheard by the then editor-in-chief of The Australian, Chris Mitchell, and which formed the basis of a subsequent report in that newspaper which reverberated around the world and sent a chill through US-Australian relations at the time.

Strange then that those three simple words fail to appear in Mitchell's tome, Making Headlines (available now in all good bookstores).

In his re-telling of the infamous "phone call affair", Mitchell writes around the specifics, recording that Rudd took the call with Bush on speaker phone and "deliberately left the door open in what I concluded was a deliberate way".

"After the call, he [Rudd] came back smiling, sipped his beer and asked whether I had heard all of the conversation," Mitchell writes. "I most certainly had and was amazed and surprised that he had let me."

We asked Mitchell why, given that those famous three words were very much the crux of The Oz's explosive story, they were excised in the book version of events?

He replied: "After approving the quotes in the story as published, the PM's office later said the president did not make the comment. The reporter did not have a transcript."

But wasn't he the reporter?

"No, of course not," came the reply. "Political correspondent Matt Franklin wrote the story."

Which he did. But only after Mitchell - who was one of only two people privy to the phone call and "most certainly" had "heard all of the conversation" - briefed him on it. So we called Franklin - who declared himself distinctly uninterested in discussing the topic, beyond telling us: "I never reveal sources".

Then Mitchell contacted us to refer us to Paul Kelly's book Triumph and Demise, where, he told us, the incident is "explained in detail".

Which it is. On pages 208 and 209 to be precise. Except the detail is different to that recorded in Mitchell's own book. And here we quote Kelly: "Mitchell's recollection was that Bush had asked a question about the G20. "I'm not sure exactly what it was," he said."

So in one version he "heard all of the conversation" and in another, he was "not sure exactly" what was said.

And so we asked Mitchell the simple question: Did you or did you not hear president Bush ask, "What's the G20"?

His obtuse reply: "That is how the long discussion after the call was framed by KR. And his office ticked off on the version we ran with those quotes."

Hmmm. It's an equivocation that doesn't fill us with confidence.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: CREDIT SUISSE AG; EQUUS MINING LTD; LENDLEASE GROUP; MIRVAC GROUP;

STOKES LTD; VGI PARTNERS PTY LTD

NEWS SUBJECT: Art (1AR38); Funding Instruments (1FU41); Major Corporations (1MA93); Private Equity (1PR15)

INDUSTRY: Book Publishing (1BO18); Books (1BO26); Entertainment (1EN08); Financial Services (1FI37); Major Financial Services Firms (1MA21); Publishing (1PU26); Traditional Media (1TR30)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (George Bush; Chris Mitchell; Kerry Stokes; Kevin Rudd; Mike Nahan; Matt Franklin; Colin Barnett; Michael Stock; Paul Kelly; Shav Bedrossian)

EDITION: First

WORD COUNT: 1044

2009

(No. 16)

---

Parliament of Tasmania

---

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE

ENVIRONMENT, RESOURCES AND DEVELOPMENT

INTERIM REPORT

---

Sale of the TOTE

---

Members of the Committee

Mr Brenton Best MP
Mr Bryan Green MP
Hon Greg Hall MLC (Chair)
Hon Tania Rattray-Wagner MLC

Mr Kim Booth MP
Mr Peter Gutwein MP
Hon Paul Harriss MLC
Hon Jim Wilkinson MLC

Secretaries: Mrs Sue McLeod, Dr Colin Huntly & Mr Nathan Fewkes

Table of Contents

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| INTRODUCTION .....                                      | 3   |
| APPOINTMENT AND TERMS OF REFERENCE .....                       | 3          |
| PROCEEDINGS.....   | 4          |
| EXECUTIVE SUMMARY .....                                 | 5   |
| THE GOVERNMENT CASE FOR SALE OF THE TOTE .....          | 7   |
| TOTE TASMANIA (SALE) BILL 2009 FACT SHEET .....                | 7          |
| TOTE TASMANIA (SALE) BILL 2009 SECOND READING SPEECH.....      | 8          |
| TOTE TASMANIA (SALE) ACT 2009 NOTES ON CLAUSES .....           | 12         |
| GAMING CONTROL AMENDMENT BILL 2009 FACT SHEET .....            | 31         |
| GAMING CONTROL AMENDMENT BILL 2009 SECOND READING SPEECH ..... | 34         |
| GAMING CONTROL AMENDMENT BILL 2009 NOTES ON CLAUSES .....      | 45         |
| APPENDIX 1.....   | 57  |
| APPENDIX 2.....   | 58  |
| APPENDIX 3.....   | 59  |
| Mr ANTHONY MURRAY.....                                  | 59  |
| Mr PAUL BULLOCK, MR WALKER and MS FYSH .....            | 69  |
| Mr COLIN HOWLETT .....                                  | 83  |
| Mr DON CHALLEN .....                                    | 90  |
| THE HONOURABLE MICHAEL AIRD.....                        | 104 |
| Mr KEVIN THOMAS RING.....                               | 118 |
| Mr TERRY EDWARD CLARKE .....                            | 126 |
| Mr CRAIG COLEMAN.....                                   | 133 |
| Ms ROBYN LOUISE WHISHAW .....                           | 139 |
| Mr KEVIN NEILSON .....                                  | 145 |
| Mr PHILIP GEOFFREY SWINTON.....                         | 150 |
| Mr GRAEME JOHN RUSSELL .....                            | 156 |
| Mr WALTER McSHANE.....                                  | 161 |
| Mr TONY JEFFRIES.....                                   | 169 |
| MR ROBERT BIFFIN and MR NEIL HERBERT .....              | 178 |
| Mr GEOFFREY ALLAN HARPER.....                           | 186 |
| THE HONOURABLE MICHAEL AIRD.....                        | 196 |

INTRODUCTION

APPOINTMENT AND TERMS OF REFERENCE

The Joint Standing Committee on Environment, Resources and Development was established for a trial period from 7 April 2004 and was re-established on 30 May 2006 following the State Election on 18 March that year. The Committee as at the date of this Report was re-established by Order of the Legislative Council on 4 March 2008, agreed to by resolution of the House of Assembly on 5 March 2008.

At a regularly constituted meeting on 5 February 2009, the Committee resolved to inquire into -

- (a) the proposed sale of the TOTE. Tasmania by the Government of Tasmania; and
- (b) any other matters incidental thereto.

In announcing the Committee, the Hon. Greg Hall MLC said:

“The Committee does believe that this issue is one of great significance to the State, and it is essential that all Members of Parliament are fully briefed on the circumstances surrounding the proposed sale before we are asked to vote on it.”<sup>1</sup>

The membership of the Committee currently comprises four members of the Legislative Council – Mr Hall (Chairman), Mr Harriss, Mrs Rattray-Wagner and Mr Wilkinson; and four members of the House of Assembly – Mr Best, Mr Booth, Mr Green and Mr Gutwein.

The Committee has general jurisdiction over the following areas: Government Business Enterprises; regulation of business, commercial and industrial relations; economic and finance development; environment and land use planning; natural resources – forestry, mining and fisheries; energy; tourism; transport; and primary industry.

This is an interim report in relation to the sale of the TOTE.

As at the date of this Interim Report the Committee is still awaiting receipt of a number of documents which were the subject of summonses and addressed to the Secretaries for the Department of Treasury and Finance and the Department of Infrastructure, Energy and Resources. Once these outstanding issues have been resolved, this Committee will table its Final Report on the Sale of the TOTE.

---

<sup>1</sup> Hall, Hon. Greg MLC, Media Release, January 20 2009.

PROCEEDINGS

Advertisements were placed in the three regional daily newspapers on 7 February 2009.

19 witnesses gave verbal evidence to the Committee in Hobart and are listed in Appendix 1. 15 documents received into evidence are listed in Appendix 2. Transcripts of all public hearings are attached in Appendix 3.

The Committee held public hearings in Hobart on 6 and 19 March 2009.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Timeline

The following timeline is adapted from one that appeared in the Mercury on 7 March 2009:

- “May 7, 2008:            Treasurer Michael Aird first approached Treasury to provide advice about sale of TOTE Tasmania.

- November 12, 2008:    Legislation for the restructure of the racing industry is introduced to State Parliament. Mr Aird says the restructure is not about preparing TOTE for sale.

- November 19, 2008:    Treasury provides a Cabinet brief to Treasurer Michael Aird recommending the sale of TOTE. The brief is not signed.

- November 20, 2008:    Jim Cox says during debate about the racing amendment Bill: “There is no intention at this stage that TOTE is for sale.”

- November 24, 2008:    Deloitte Corporate Finance begins pre-paring advice on the restructure of TOTE and possible options for its sale.

- December 4, 2008:     Mr Aird tells a Legislative Council Government Business Enterprise committee he is “not aware” of rumours he planned to sell TOTE.

- December 19, 2008:    A second Cabinet document recommending the sale of TOTE is prepared for Treasury, including advice from Deloitte.

- December 22, 2008:    Cabinet approves the sale.

- January 8, 2009:        The sale of TOTE is announced.”<sup>2</sup>

- January 20, 2009:     Mr Greg Hall MLC suggested a review of the sale to the Joint Standing Committee on the Environment, Resources and Development.

- February 5, 2009:     The review was approved.

---

<sup>2</sup> Stedman, Michael, “Aird denies TOTE lie”, The Mercury, 7 March 2009, p. 5.

This Interim Report contains information that has been gathered by the Committee to date which may assist Honourable Members of both Houses in their consideration of the proposed sale of the TOTE.

The Committee reports without recommendation.

April 2009

Greg Hall MLC
Chairman

THE GOVERNMENT CASE FOR SALE OF THE TOTE

TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill 2009 Fact Sheet

The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill 2009 provides for:

- the Treasurer to have the necessary authority and powers to divest the whole or any part of TOTE Tasmania. This will provide certainty to potential bidders during the sale process.
- the Treasurer to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania or the business of TOTE Tasmania;
- the Treasurer to have regard to the achievement of a fair and reasonable sale price;
- the Treasurer to facilitate the sale by entering in to contracts, giving directions to TOTE and amending the constitution of TOTE;
- the protection of employee entitlements in respect of long service leave and the RBF contributory scheme;
- transitional arrangements for the business and arrangements for employees if the business is sold;
- part of TOTE Tasmania or part of a subsidiary of TOTE Tasmania to be transferred into Crown ownership upon sale completion if they are not sold;
- the Auditor-General to review the sale of TOTE after completion and report to Parliament on this review;
- TOTE Tasmania and the Government to disclose all information to bidders, and ensures that existing commercial documents are not terminated as a result of the sale process; and
- normal governance arrangements to apply to the business until the sale is completed.

Passing the Bill will provide Parliamentary support for divestment of TOTE Tasmania and will also facilitate the sale process and provide certainty to all the parties involved.

TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill 2009

Second Reading Speech

Madam President

The Government is committed to ensuring the Tasmanian community's assets are put to their best use. In this context, the Government has reviewed its equity investment in TOTE Tasmania to determine whether it is in the public interest to retain, or whether the equity could be put to better strategic use.

The purpose of this Bill is to provide for the sale of TOTE Tasmania. This is part of the Government's reforms of TOTE Tasmania and its regulatory environment.

Honourable Members will recall that in November 2008 Parliament approved the separation of the racing and wagering operations of TOTE, with the creation of the Tasmanian Racing Board from 1 January 2009. This has enabled the TOTE to operate solely as a wagering business.

The second part of the reforms is to provide a modern regulatory framework for TOTE that is consistent with the regulation of other wagering and gaming businesses already operating in Tasmania. The Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 will provide such a framework.

Madam President

TOTE Tasmania currently provides funding support to the newly formed Tasmanian Racing Board, for the benefit of the Tasmanian racing industry. The Government is replacing these funding arrangements with a legally binding Funding Deed between the Government and the Tasmanian Racing Board.

The Deed provides for the Government to fund the Tasmanian Racing Board to meet its operational expenses. The Funding Deed will also provide funding for capital expenditure upon the successful sale of TOTE. I have provided details about this Deed during the Council's debate on the Gaming Control Amendment Bill.

Madam President

Let me be very clear on this point. The sale of the TOTE will not disadvantage the racing industry. On the contrary, it will provide $40 million of funding for capital expenditure that would not otherwise have been available. These arrangements while guaranteeing the Tasmanian Racing Board's future, also place it in a clear commercial context with responsibility for improving its own performance.

TOTE Tasmania has successfully operated since 2000 as a State-owned Company in an increasingly aggressive and dynamic market. If it is to remain competitive it needs to be able to continue to expand its business both interstate and overseas and be capable of dealing with the rigours of national and international competition. There is no longer any justification for retaining the TOTE in Government ownership. Indeed there are very persuasive reasons why it should not continue to be owned by the Government.

All jurisdictions other than Western Australia and the ACT have sold their TABs. The wagering product has subsequently been successfully provided by the private sector. There is no need for the Government to continue to hold equity in a business that can be provided by the private sector.

Secondly, it is the Government's intention to reinvest the net proceeds from sale, after provision for Tasmanian Racing Board funding and sale costs, into other state assets for the benefit of the wider Tasmanian community.

Thirdly, the sale of TOTE will benefit the community and taxpayers through reduced financial risk. The Australian wagering industry is highly competitive and subject to rapid technological change. This environment presents a number of ownership risks, which are better suited to private ownership, where the business can grow without the constraints of Government ownership. These constraints include the lack of access to capital and lack of scale economies. The Government does not consider that it is either prudent or responsible to continue its ownership of the TOTE within such an environment.

The Government has retained independent expert financial and legal advisers to ensure that the State's interests are properly protected. A probity adviser has also been retained to ensure that the sale process is conducted fairly and openly.

Madam President

TOTE Tasmania currently has a successful business model and has demonstrated significant earnings growth over the last two years. Despite prevailing economic conditions, I am confident that a sale in the near future will attract significant buyer interest and yield an attractive sale price.

Both the Board and the management of the TOTE fully support its sale. The Board and the management have concluded that there are considerable constraints and commercial difficulties associated with continued government ownership of what is a successful and profitable commercial enterprise anxious to expand its business interstate and overseas.

The sale will only proceed if it is in the best interests of the State. The Bill requires the Treasurer to have regard to the achievement of a fair and reasonable price for TOTE Tasmania. The Bill also provides for the Auditor-General to review the sale of TOTE Tasmania and report to Parliament within four months on the outcome.

The community has an expectation that the sale of TOTE Tasmania will occur in a manner that:

- is administratively efficient and transparent;
- maximises financial and economic returns to the State; and
- ensures employees are treated fairly.

The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill ensures these factors will be achieved.

Madam President.

Potential bidders for TOTE Tasmania must have certainty about the sale process and, importantly, must have the assurance that the time and resources they devote to the process will be on the basis that a sale can occur. Bidders also require the assurance that there can be timely and swift execution of the sale. The market place needs to know, particularly in the current political and economic environment, that the Parliament has authorised the sale.

This Sale Bill provides the Treasurer, on behalf of the Crown, authority to enter into negotiations for the sale of TOTE Tasmania against a framework of certainty and within defined boundaries.

The Bill provides flexibility to enable the sale of the whole, or any part of TOTE Tasmania and establishes the mechanism to transfer any remaining elements of the business back to the Crown. These provisions, which are consistent with the approach taken in other Government business sales – will enable the Government to maximise the outcome for the State.

The Bill specifies provisions that will guide the sale process, including transitional arrangements such as the treatment of existing business contracts and protection for employee entitlements.

Madam President

The Bill also defines the alternative sale structures available for conducting a sale with a proponent. Under either approach, the objective is that TOTE Tasmania is sold as a going concern.

The first approach is to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania.

The second is to sell some or all of the assets and liabilities of TOTE Tasmania and transfer employees to the purchaser. The Bill provides for any remaining business assets and liabilities to then be transferred to the Crown.

The availability of two options is to provide bidders with the flexibility to consider their most preferred approach to the purchase of the business. This ensures that the best possible sale value is achieved.

Madam President

The Bill clearly provides for the minimum of disruption to employees arising from the sale process. The Bill broadly provides for the maintenance of employment terms and conditions for transferring employees and the ongoing recognition of service. It also provides a clear framework within which any potential redundancies arising from the sale of the TOTE business will be managed.

The sale of TOTE Tasmania makes sense, both from the perspective of the business and the Tasmanian community. It opens the way for the involvement of the private sector in an area in which it can appropriately contribute and enables the Government to better address the State's emerging needs.

The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Bill provides the enabling mechanism for this strategy to be implemented. It ensures that the sale will occur in a manner that ensures the greatest chance of financial and economic returns to the State being maximised, that employees are appropriately treated and that the sale process is administratively efficient.

Madam President

I commend the Bill to the Council.

TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Act 2009

Notes on Clauses

PART 1            PRELIMINARY

- Clause 1            Short Title.
- Clause 2            The TOTE Tasmania (Sale) Act 2009 commences on the day it receives Royal Assent.
- Clause 3            This clause interprets key terms used in the Bill.
- Clause 4            This clause defines the business of TOTE Tasmania. It also allows the Treasurer to exclude a part of the business of TOTE, or a TOTE subsidiary from this Act or a provision of this Act. This provides the Treasurer with flexibility to sell part of the business.

PART 2            AUTHORITY OF TREASURER TO SELL TOTE TASMANIA

- Clause 5            This clause provides authority for the Treasurer to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries, or the business of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries. This clause also provides that the Treasurer must have regard to achieving a fair and reasonable price in exercising this power of sale.
- Clause 6            This clause provides the Treasurer with powers to facilitate the sale process.
- Clause 7            This clause provides that the Treasurer may direct TOTE Tasmania to take certain actions that would facilitate the sale. This is consistent with existing powers under the Constitutions for State-owned Companies and the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003 and removes doubt about this power of direction.
- TOTE or its Board must comply with the direction provided by the Treasurer.
- Clause 8            This clause allows the Treasurer to amend the Constitution of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries. This provision allows for the constitution to be amended without tabling the amendments in Parliament as required under the TOTE Tasmania Act, which will allow for the sale to be expedited.
- Clause 9            This clause provides the Treasurer with the power to exempt from State tax a document prepared for the sale of TOTE Tasmania or the transfer of any unsold parts of the business to the Crown. This is consistent with the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003.

PART 3            SALE OF SHARES IN TOTE TASMANIA OR TOTE SUBSIDIARY

This Part contains similar provisions to those in the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003 relating to long service leave and superannuation.

Clause 10            This clause specifies that Part 3 of the Bill relates to the sale of the shares in TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries.

Clause 11            This clause provides a formula for uplifting the long service leave entitlements of TOTE Tasmania employees covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 when the sale of shares is completed. Its intent is to ensure that employees' current long service leave entitlements are not diminished as a result of sale.

The clause specifies that employees are not covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 after the sale of shares is completed.

Clause 12            This clause provides that, if the Treasurer agrees to sell the shares in TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiaries, the Minister administering the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 is to declare the sale agreement a prescribed arrangement for the purposes of the Retirement Benefits Regulation 1994. Declaration of the sale as a prescribed arrangement provides for a more favourable superannuation outcome for employees who are members of the RBF Contributory Scheme than would otherwise be the case. It allows them to receive a redundancy benefit if their membership ceases as a result of a prescribed arrangement.

PART 4            SALE OF BUSINESS OF TOTE TASMANIA OR TOTE SUBSIDIARY

This Part contains similar provisions to those in the Government Business Enterprises (Sale) Act 2003 relating to the sale of a business.

Clause 13            This clause specifies that Part 4 of the Bill relates to the sale of the business of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries.

Clause 14            Clause 14(1) defines transferring business.

Clause 14(2) provides that, when the business is sold, unless otherwise agreed, the purchaser assumes full legal responsibility in respect of the business sold, including any legal documents and proceedings.

Clause 14(3) provides that TOTE Tasmania is, after the sale day, discharged from any liabilities and obligations that are transferred to the purchaser on the sale day.

Clause 15      Clause 15(1) defines transferred employee.

Clause 15(2) provides that the Treasurer may transfer the employment of a person employed by TOTE Tasmania or a subsidiary to the purchaser. The Treasurer may also terminate the employment of a person employed by TOTE Tasmania, on conditions the Treasurer considers appropriate, provided that any termination is in accordance with any contract, award or agreement.

Clause 15(3) provides that before transferring or terminating the employment of a person, the Treasurer is to consult with the person in any manner the Treasurer considers appropriate including, but not limited to, consultation with representatives of the person or employee organisations to which the person belongs.

Clause 15(4) provides that any termination must be subject to and in accordance with any relevant contract, awards or agreement.

Clause 15(5) provides that each person whose employment is transferred or terminated is to be given written notice of the transfer or termination.

Clause 15(6) provides that if the employment of a person is transferred to the purchaser, that person becomes the employee of the purchaser and ceases to be an employee of TOTE Tasmania.

Clause 15(7) makes provision for any transferred employee to be employed by the purchaser for the same remuneration as was received immediately before the transfer. It also provides that except where an award, agreement or law otherwise provides, a transferred employee retains all existing and accrued rights and is entitled to claim those rights against the purchaser.

Clause 15(8) provides that an award or agreement applying to a transferred employee before transfer will continue to apply upon and after transfer except where another award, agreement or law provides otherwise.

Clause 15(9) provides that the period of service of an employee with TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiaries is taken to be service with the purchaser.

Clause 15(10) clarifies that the terms of employment of a transferred employee may be altered by an award, agreement or law after the employee becomes a transferred employee.

Clause 15(11) provides that where the employment of an employee of TOTE Tasmania is terminated, that employment is terminated immediately before the business of TOTE Tasmania is sold or on the day specified in the order. The employee is not entitled to any compensation or other payment in respect of termination except as provided by the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 or the Public Sector Superannuation Reform Act 1999, any other law, award, agreement or conditions determined by the Treasurer.

Clause 15(12) provides that the order transferring the employee under section 2 is not a statutory rule

Clause 16 This clause provides a formula for uplifting the long service leave entitlements of TOTE Tasmania employees covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 if their employment is transferred to the purchaser. Its intent is to ensure that employees' current long service leave entitlements are not diminished as a result of sale.

The clause specifies that employees are not covered by the Long Service Leave (State Employees) Act 1994 after the sale of shares is completed.

Clause 17 This clause provides that in the event the Treasurer makes an order under Section 15(2)(a) the agreement for sale is to be declared by the Minister administering the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 a prescribed arrangement for the purposes of the Retirement Benefits Regulation 1994. Declaration of the sale as a prescribed arrangement provides for a more favourable superannuation outcome for employees who are members of the RBF Contributory Scheme than would otherwise be the case. It allows them to receive a redundancy benefit if their membership ceases as a result of a prescribed arrangement.

- Clause 18
- Clause 18(1) defines for the purposes of Division 3 the terms "transfer day" and "transferring business".
- Clause 18(2) provides that the Treasurer, if only part of the business of TOTE Tasmania or a subsidiary is sold, may transfer the whole or any part of the remaining business to the Crown and to specify conditions relating to that transfer. The transfer is to occur by order published in the gazette.
- Clause 18(3) provides that this transfer may occur before the sale is completed.
- Clause 18(4) provides that the business of TOTE or a TOTE subsidiary, other than a liability, vests in the Crown. It also provides for a liability specified in the transferring order to become the responsibility of the Crown.
- Clause 18(5) provides that on and after the transfer day the Crown assumes full legal responsibility in respect of the transferred business.
- Clause 18(6) provides that if any dispute arises in respect of a transferring employee, the Treasurer may resolve the matter and will provide TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiary with written advice.
- Clause 18(7) provides that the Treasurer's determination under clause 18(6) is final and binding.
- Clause 18(8) provides that an order under subsection (2) is not a statutory rule.
- Clause 19
- Clause 19(1) defines the transfer day as specified in the Treasurer's order in 18(2).
- Clause 19(2) provides that the Treasurer may terminate the employment of a person if the business of TOTE Tasmania or a subsidiary is transferred to the Crown under clause 18.
- Clause 19(3) provides that any termination must be in accordance with any relevant contract, award or agreement.
- Clause 19(4) provides that each person whose employment is terminated is to be given written notice of the termination.
- Clause 19(5) provides that terminated employees are not entitled to compensation or other payments except as provided by the Retirement Benefits Act 1993 or the Public Sector Superannuation reform Act 1999, or any other law, an award, an agreement or any conditions determined by the Treasurer.

Clause 20 This clause provides for the de-registration of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries if the respective businesses are sold. This is because these companies will still exist, without assets or liabilities, and will need to be wound up under the Corporations Act.

PART 5 MISCELLANEOUS

Clause 21 Clause 21(1) defines a potential purchaser.

Clause 21(2) provides for relevant parties involved in the sale to disclose information, including confidential information to each other and to potential purchasers, their directors, employees, agents and advisors in order to facilitate the sale.

Clause 21(3) provides that a person who receives information under clause 21(2) must not disclose that information to parties other than those specified in this clause. It also provides for a penalty if the person discloses this information to unauthorised parties.

Clause 22 This clause provides that the obligations of TOTE Tasmania and its subsidiaries are not guaranteed by the Crown.

Clause 23 This clause provides for the proceeds of the sale to be paid into the Consolidated Fund.

Clause 24 This clause provides that the Auditor-General is to review a sale under clause 5 after the sale has completed and is to report to each House of Parliament within 120 days of the sale or the deregistration of TOTE Tasmania. This clause also provides that the Auditor-General must be given access to all information that the Auditor-General considers relevant to the report.

Clause 25 This clause provides protection for acts done or omitted under the Act if the act or omission is done in good faith. It protects contracts and agreements from being terminated and claims that confidentiality has been breached as a result of the sale.

Clause 26 This clause provides for matters to be excluded from the Corporations Act 2001. For example, this includes a sale under clause 5 and the amendment of TOTE's constitution under clause 8. This is a fairly standard provision for the sale of State owned Companies.

Clause 27 This clause provides for the Treasurer, by an order published in the Gazette, to exclude sale contracts from the Trade Practices Act 1974 and the Competition Policy Reform (Tasmania) Act 1996.

- Clause 28 This clause provides that TOTE Tasmania or its subsidiaries or any person concerned in the management of TOTE Tasmania or a TOTE subsidiary be convicted separately of an offence unless they had no knowledge of the offence or they used all due diligence to prevent the act or omission.
- Clause 29 This clause empowers the Governor to make regulations for the purposes of this Act.
- Clause 30 This clause provides that the administration of the Act is assigned to the Treasurer.
- Clause 31 This clause provides for the Auditor-General to conduct an audit for the financial year prior to the sale. It also requires the Treasurer to table TOTE's annual report in parliament. It provides for a penalty if TOTE does not provide the necessary information to the Auditor General.
- Clause 32 and schedule 1 This clause provides for the repeal of the Portfolio legislation once all the shares in TOTE are sold, or TOTE has been deregistered and the Governor has made such a proclamation on the recommendation of the Treasurer.
- This clause also provides for section 23 of the TOTE Tasmania Act 2000 to be repealed on Royal Assent. Section 23 does not permit the company to sell its assets or main undertaking unless the sale or disposal is approved by both Houses of Parliament.

CONFIDENTIAL

Funding Deed

The Crown in Right of Tasmania Government
Tasmanian Racing Board TRB

CONFIDENTIAL*Contents

|            |   |           |
|------------|---|-----------|
| 1.  | Definitions and interpretation .....                                   | 21 |
| 1.1        | Definitions .....   | 21        |
| 1.2        | Interpretation .....  | 23        |
| 2.  | Conditions Precedent.....  | 24 |
| 2.1        | Conditions relating to Operational Amount .....                               | 24        |
| 2.2        | Conditions relating to Capital Amount.....                                    | 24        |
| 2.3        | Notice in relation to satisfaction of Conditions.....                         | 24        |
| 2.4        | Waiver of Conditions .....  | 24        |
| 2.5        | Failure of Operational Funding Conditions.....                                | 24        |
| 2.6        | Failure of Capital Funding Condition.....                                     | 24        |
| 3.  | Funding Term.....  | 25 |
| 3.1        | Original Funding Term.....  | 25        |
| 3.2        | Extension of Original Funding Term .....                                      | 25        |
| 3.3        | Funding term .....  | 25        |
| 4.  | Funding .....  | 25 |
| 4.1        | Operational Funding.....  | 25        |
| 4.2        | Capital Funding .....   | 25        |
| 4.3        | No other funding.....   | 25        |
| 5.  | Payment of Operational Amount and Capital Amount .....                 | 25 |
| 5.1        | Payment of Operational Amount and Capital Amount.....                         | 25        |
| 5.2        | Withholding Payment.....  | 26        |
| 5.3        | Reduction/Set-Off of Double Payment Amounts .....                             | 26        |
| 6.  | Self Generated Funding.....  | 26 |
| 6.1        | Self Generated Funding.....   | 26        |
| 7.  | Distribution of and Agreements Relating to Distribution of Funds ..... | 26 |
| 7.1        | Distribution .....  | 26        |
| 7.2        | Reporting.....  | 26        |
| 8.  | Investment of Funds.....   | 26 |
| 9.  | Termination .....  | 27 |
| 9.1        | Termination by Government .....   | 27        |
| 9.2        | Effect of Termination .....   | 27        |
| 9.3        | Adjustment on Termination.....  | 27        |
| 10. | General .....  | 27 |
| 10.1       | Damages.....  | 27        |
| 10.2       | Notices .....   | 27        |
| 10.3       | Governing law .....   | 28        |
| 10.4       | Jurisdiction .....  | 28        |
| 10.5       | Taxes, Charges, Rates, etc .....  | 29        |
| 10.6       | Variation .....   | 29        |
| 10.7       | Waiver .....  | 29        |
| 10.8       | Further acts and documents .....  | 29        |
| 10.9       | Assignment.....   | 29        |
| 10.10      | Counterparts.....   | 29        |
| 10.11      | No representation or reliance .....   | 29        |

CONFIDENTIAL

10.12 Entire deed..... 30

CONFIDENTIAL

Funding Deed dated

Parties                    The Crown in the Right of Tasmania (Government)
                                       Tasmanian Racing Board (TRB)

Background

- A.        The TRB is responsible for the corporate governance, strategic direction and funding of the Tasmanian thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing and breeding industries.
- B.        The Government has agreed to provide funding to the TRB for the promotion and development of the Tasmanian thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing and breeding industries and for capital works to Tasmanian racing venues.
- C.        This deed represents the terms and conditions on which funding is granted.

Operative provisions

---

1.        Definitions and interpretation

1.1      Definitions

In this deed:

Adjustment Amount has the meaning given in paragraph (a) of the definition of "Operational Amount";

Business Day means a day that is not a Saturday, Sunday or public holiday and on which banks are open for business generally in Hobart;

Capital Amount means SX;

Capital Funding Condition means each condition specified in clause 2.2;

Capital Funding End Date means 30 June 2010 or such later date as may be notified by the Government to the TRB;

Commencement Date means the latter of 1 July 2009 and the first Business Day after all Operational Funding Conditions are satisfied or waived;

CPI figure means the Consumer Price Index: Average All Capital Cities published by the Australian Statistician under the Census and Statistics Act 1905 of the Commonwealth, or, if the index is no longer published, an alternative index reflecting the average cost of living in all capital cities of Australia as determined by the Government;

CPI year 0 means the average of the CPI figure for the four (4) Quarters ending 30 June in respect of the Financial Year preceding CPI year 1;

CPI year 1 means the average of the CPI figure for the four (4) Quarters ending 30 June in respect of the Financial Year immediately preceding the Financial Year in which the Operational Amount is to be paid;

CPI indexation factor means CPI year 1 divided by CPI year 0;

CONFIDENTIAL

Financial Year means the 12 calendar months commencing on 1 July in any year and ending on 30 June of the following year;

Funding Term means the Original Funding Term plus any extension pursuant to clause 3.2;

Indexation Factor means the CPI Indexation factor less 0.01;

Insolvency Event means in respect of the TRB, the occurrence of any of the following:

- (a) the TRB, or any person for or on its behalf, disposes of all, or substantially all, of its assets and/or undertakings;
- (b) the TRB ceases to carry on business;
- (c) an administrator is appointed or a resolution is passed or any steps are taken to appoint, or to pass a resolution to appoint, an administrator to the TRB;
- (d) a receiver, receiver and manager, official manager, trustee, administrator, other controller, as defined in the Corporations Act, or similar officer is appointed, or steps are taken for such appointment, over any of the assets or undertaking of the TRB;
- (e) the TRB proposes or takes steps to implement a scheme of arrangement or other compromise or arrangement with its creditors or any class of them;
- (f) the TRB is or becomes unable to pay its debts when they are due, or is otherwise insolvent;
- (g) the TRB suspends payment of its debts generally;
- (h) an application or order is made for the winding-up, dissolution or deregistration of the TRB or a resolution is passed or any steps are taken, including to pass a resolution in connection with, the winding-up or dissolution of the TRB;
- (i) the TRB is declared or taken under any applicable law to be insolvent;
- (j) a notice under section 601AB of the Corporations Act is given to, or an application under section 601AA is made by, or in respect of the TRB or, where the TRB is an incorporated association, any steps are taken in connection with the cancellation of its incorporation; or
- (k) a person appointed under a power of attorney or other instrument or arrangement with the TRB or the TRB's financiers becomes entitled to manage the business or affairs of the TRB or to perform obligations of the TRB;

Minister means the Minister for Racing in Tasmania;

Operational Amount means, subject to clause 5.3:

- (a) in respect of the first Financial Year or part thereof during the Funding Term, $X million less the amount of any moneys received under any Previous Funding Arrangement in respect of that Financial Year (Adjustment Amount) whether such money is received before or after the commencement date;
- (b) for each subsequent Financial Year during the Funding Term, the amount paid by the Government in respect of the immediately preceding Financial Year in accordance with clause 5.1(a) multiplied by the Indexation Factor;

CONFIDENTIAL

Operational Funding Condition means each condition specified in clause 2.1;

Operational Funding End Date means 30 September 2009 or such later date as may be notified by the Government to the TRB;

Original Funding Term means the period as provided in clause 3.1;

Previous Funding Arrangement means any funding or other financial arrangement in relation to the TRB or any thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing or breeding organisation or part of an organisation under any legislation or any arrangement with TOTE Tasmania Pty Ltd or the Government in existence before the Commencement Date;

Sale means the sale of the shares in and/or the assets of TOTE Tasmania Pty Ltd to a private interest.

1.2 Interpretation

In this deed:

- (a) headings are for convenience only and do not affect interpretation;
- and unless the context indicates a contrary intention:
- (b) an obligation or a liability assumed by, or a right conferred on, 2 or more persons binds or benefits them jointly and severally;
  - (c) "person" includes an individual, the estate of an individual, a corporation, an authority, an association or a joint venture (whether incorporated or unincorporated), a partnership and a trust;
  - (d) a reference to a party includes that party's executors, administrators, successors and permitted assigns, including persons taking by way of novation;
  - (e) a reference to a document (including this deed and the Treasurer's Instruction GBE 07-44-01 Investments) is to that document as varied, novated, ratified or replaced from time to time;
  - (f) a reference to a statute includes its delegated legislation and a reference to a statute or delegated legislation or a provision of either includes consolidations, amendments, re-enactments and replacements;
  - (g) a word importing the singular includes the plural (and vice versa), and a word indicating a gender includes every other gender;
  - (h) a reference to a party, clause, schedule, exhibit, attachment or annexure is a reference to a party, clause, schedule, exhibit, attachment or annexure to or of this deed, and a reference to this deed includes all schedules, exhibits, attachments and annexures to it;
  - (i) if a word or phrase is given a defined meaning, any other part of speech or grammatical form of that word or phrase has a corresponding meaning;
  - (j) "includes" in any form is not a word of limitation; and
  - (k) a reference to "S" or "dollar" is to Australian currency.

CONFIDENTIAL*2. Conditions Precedent*2.1 Conditions relating to Operational Amount

Clauses 3, 4.1, 4.3, 5.1(a), 7 and 8 do not become binding on the parties and have no force or effect unless and until each of the conditions listed below has either been satisfied or waived in accordance with clause 2.4:

- (a) the Minister's Order transferring assets and liabilities to the TRB from TOTE Tasmania Pty Ltd under the Racing Regulation Amendment (Governance Reform) Act 2008 (Tas) is published in the Tasmanian Government Gazette; and
- (b) sections 42 and 46 of the Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 or their equivalents are proclaimed.

2.2 Conditions relating to Capital Amount

Clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b) of this deed do not become binding on the parties and have no force or effect unless and until:

- (a) each Operational Funding Condition is satisfied or waived in accordance with clause 2.4; and
- (b) the Government receives the funds which are due and payable on the completion of the Sale.

2.3 Notice in relation to satisfaction of Conditions

Each party must within 1 Business Day after becoming aware of the satisfaction of any Operational Funding Condition or any Capital Funding Condition, notify the other party of the satisfaction of that condition and provide reasonable evidence that the condition has been satisfied.

2.4 Waiver of Conditions

The Government may in its absolute discretion waive an Operational Funding Condition and/or a Capital Funding Condition by giving notice to the TRB.

2.5 Failure of Operational Funding Conditions

If any Operational Funding Condition has become incapable of satisfaction and is not waived in accordance with clause 2.4 within 10 Business Days of the date the incapacity became evident, then the parties will negotiate in good faith an alternative funding agreement.

2.6 Failure of Capital Funding Condition

If:

- (a) at any time before the Capital Funding End Date the Capital Funding Condition has become incapable of satisfaction and is not waived in accordance with clause 2.4;
- (b) at any time after the Capital Funding End Date the Capital Funding Condition has not been satisfied or waived in accordance with clause 2.4; or
- (c) the Government gives notice to the TRB that it is no longer pursuing the Sale;

CONFIDENTIAL

clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b) shall be deemed severed from this deed and this deed shall be read as though clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b) did not exist.

---

3. Funding Term*3.1 Original Funding Term

The terms and conditions specified in this Deed commence on the Commencement Date and cease on 30 June 2014.

3.2 Extension of Original Funding Term

Subject to clauses 3.3 and 9.1 this deed, with the exception of clauses 4.2 and 5.1(b), will automatically be extended for a period of one Financial Year at the beginning of each Financial Year, commencing from the second year after the Commencement Date.

3.3 Funding term

The terms and conditions in this funding agreement cease to have effect on 30 June 2029.

---

4. Funding*4.1 Operational Funding

The Government will, in order to fund operational expenses, pay to the TRB the Operational Amount during the Funding Term.

4.2 Capital Funding

In addition to the amount payable under clause 4.1, the Government will, in order to fund capital expenditure, pay to the TRB the Capital Amount during the Funding Term in accordance with clause 5.1(b).

4.3 No other funding

The TRB acknowledges that in respect of the Funding Term, the amounts payable by the Government under this deed are the only amounts that the Government will contribute to the TRB and the Tasmanian thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing and breeding industries and the TRB will not seek any additional funding or financial assistance from the Government.

---

5. Payment of Operational Amount and Capital Amount*5.1 Payment of Operational Amount and Capital Amount

- (a) The Government will pay to the TRB the Operational Amount within 10 working days of the beginning of each financial year provided that where the Commencement Date is after 1 July 2009, the amount of the first instalment will be reduced by the Adjustment Amount; and
- (b) The Government will pay to the TRB the Capital Amount on the day that is 10 Business Days after the date on which the Government receives the funds due and payable to it on the completion of the Sale. The Capital Amount must only be used to fund capital expenditure.

CONFIDENTIAL*5.2 Withholding Payment

Notwithstanding clause 5.1 the Government may without liability withhold the whole or part of any payment due to the TRB under this deed whilst ever the TRB is not in full compliance with any Tasmanian legislation.

5.3 Reduction/Set-Off of Double Payment Amounts

If the TRB receives any amount of funding or financial assistance under a Previous Funding Arrangement which relates in whole or part to any period occurring during the Funding Term (or in the case of capital funding or assistance, which relates to projects or purposes to which the Capital Amount would otherwise relate) the amounts which would be otherwise payable by the Government to the TRB under this deed shall be reduced by the amount of such funding.

---

6. Self Generated Funding*6.1 Self Generated Funding

Nothing in this deed shall be taken as preventing or restricting the TRB from generating through its own activities income from sources other than Government.

---

7. Distribution of and Agreements Relating to Distribution of Funds*7.1 Distribution

The Operational Amount and Capital Amount must only be distributed or used by the TRB:

- (a) in the best interests of the Tasmanian thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing and breeding industries;
- (b) in a manner which promotes the development of an efficient and effective racing and breeding industry that accords with industry best practice;
- (c) in accordance with the TRB's obligations under the Racing Administration Act 2004 and any other Tasmanian legislation relating to the TRB;
- (d) for the purpose for which it was provided; and
- (e) in relation to the Capital Amount, in accordance with any requirements under clause 5.1(b).

7.2 Reporting

The TRB must report to the Minister the amount of the Capital Amount received and spent on capital expenditure projects undertaken in each Financial Year during the Funding Term in the applicable annual report of the TRB.

---

8. Investment of Funds

To the extent that the TRB is not obliged to distribute or expend funds received which comprise Operational Amount and/or the Capital Amount immediately, the TRB may invest such funds, provided that it does so through the Tasmanian Public Finance Corporation (Tascorp) and in doing so must comply with Treasurer's Instruction GBE 07-44-01 Investments.

---

CONFIDENTIAL

---

9. Termination*9.1 Termination by Government

The Government may terminate this deed:

- (a) if the TRB breaches any provision of this deed and fails within 30 Business Days of receiving notice of the breach to remedy the same;
- (b) if the TRB fails to comply with its obligations under the Racing Regulation Act 2004 (Tas);
- (c) the TRB ceases to exist or its functions are substantially changed;
- (d) the TRB ceases to be the controlling body for all three codes of racing (thoroughbred harness and greyhound); or
- (e) if an Insolvency Event occurs in relation to the TRB.

9.2 Effect of Termination

If this deed is terminated then:

- (a) the provisions of this deed shall cease to have effect except for the provisions of clauses 9 and 10.
- (b) each party retains the rights it has against the other in respect of any breach of this deed occurring before the termination.

9.3 Adjustment on Termination

The TRB must repay within 10 Business Days of termination that part of any amounts paid to it under this deed prior to the termination date which relate to any period occurring after the termination date.

---

10. General
10.1 Damages

The Government will have no liability in respect of any claim or action for any indirect or consequential loss or damage arising from or in connection with any breach of this deed by the Government.

10.2 Notices

Each communication (including each notice, consent, approval, request and demand) under or in connection with this deed:

- (a) must be in writing;
- (b) must be addressed as follows (or as otherwise notified by that party to each other party from time to time):

CONFIDENTIAL*Government

Name: Department of Infrastructure, Energy and Resources
 Address: 10 Murray Street, Hobart, TAS, 7000
 Fax:
 For the attention of: Secretary

TRB

Name: [insert relevant contact]
 Address:
 Fax:

- (c) must be signed by the party making it or (on that party's behalf) by the solicitor for, or any attorney, director, secretary or authorised agent of, that party;
- (d) must be delivered by hand or posted by prepaid post to the address, or sent by fax to the number, of the addressee, in accordance with clause 10.2(b); and
- (e) is taken to be received by the addressee:
  - (i) (in the case of prepaid post) on the third day after the date of posting;
  - (ii) (in the case of fax) at the time in the place to which it is sent equivalent to the time shown on the transmission confirmation report produced by the fax machine from which it was sent; and
  - (iii) (in the case of delivery by hand) on delivery, but if the communication is taken to be received on a day that is not a working day or after 5.00 pm, it is taken to be received at 9.00 am on the next working day ("working day" meaning a day that is not a Saturday, Sunday or public holiday and on which banks are open for business generally, in the place to which the communication is posted, sent or delivered).

10.3 Governing law

This deed is governed by and must be construed according to the law applying in Tasmania.

10.4 Jurisdiction

Each party irrevocably:

- (a) submits to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of Tasmania, and the courts competent to determine appeals from those courts, with respect to any proceedings that may be brought at any time relating to this deed; and
- (b) waives any objection it may now or in the future have to the venue of any proceedings, and any claim it may now or in the future have that any proceedings have been brought in an inconvenient forum, if that venue falls within clause 10.4(a).

CONFIDENTIAL*10.5 Taxes, Charges, Rates, etc

The TRB:

- (a) must pay all relevant state and local taxes, duties, levies, rates, charges and the like and any related fines and penalties in respect of this deed, the performance of this deed and each transaction effected by or made under this deed; and
- (b) indemnifies the Government against any liability arising from failure to comply with clause 10.5(a).

10.6 Variation

This deed may be varied by a deed executed by or on behalf of each party.

10.7 Waiver

- (a) Failure to exercise or enforce, or a delay in exercising or enforcing, or the partial exercise or enforcement of, a right, power or remedy provided by law or under this deed by a party does not preclude, or operate as a waiver of, the exercise or enforcement, or further exercise or enforcement, of that or any other right, power or remedy provided by law or under this deed.
- (b) A waiver or consent given by a party under this deed is only effective and binding on that party if it is given or confirmed in writing by that party.
- (c) No waiver of a breach of a term of this deed operates as a waiver of another breach of that term or of a breach of any other term of this deed.

10.8 Further acts and documents

Each party must promptly do all further acts and execute and deliver all further documents (in form and content reasonably satisfactory to that party) required by law or reasonably requested by another party to give effect to this deed.

10.9 Assignment

A party cannot assign, novate or otherwise transfer any of its rights or obligations under this deed without the prior consent of the other party.

10.10 Counterparts

This deed may be executed in any number of counterparts and by the parties on separate counterparts. Each counterpart constitutes the deed of each party who has executed and delivered that counterpart.

10.11 No representation or reliance

- (a) Each party acknowledges that no party (nor any person acting on a party's behalf) has made any representation or other inducement to it to enter into this deed, except for representations or inducements expressly set out in this deed.
- (b) Each party acknowledges and confirms that it does not enter into this deed in reliance on any representation or other inducement by or on behalf of any other party, except for representations or inducements expressly set out in this deed.

CONFIDENTIAL*10.12 Entire deed

To the extent permitted by law, in relation to its subject matter, this deed:

- (a) embodies the entire understanding of the parties, and constitutes the entire terms agreed by the parties; and
- (b) supersedes any prior written or other deed of the parties.

Executed as a Deed

Signed, Sealed and Delivered by the Minister for Racing for and on behalf of The Crown in the Right of Tasmania in the presence of:

_____
Signature of witness

_____
Signature of Minister for Racing

_____
Name of witness in full

_____
Name of Minister for Racing

Signed, Sealed and Delivered for and on behalf of The Tasmanian Racing Board by its authorised signatory in the presence of:

_____
Signature of Witness

_____
Signature of Authorised Signatory

_____
Name of Witness in full

_____
Name of Authorised Signatory

Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 Fact Sheet

- The Gaming Control Act Amendment Bill amends the Gaming Control Act 1993, to enable the regulation of TOTE Tasmania's gaming and wagering activities. The Bill also repeals the Racing (Totalizator Betting) Act 1952 and the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004.
- It also abolishes the current funding arrangements between the TOTE and the Tasmanian racing industry. The new Tasmanian Racing Board will be funded directly by the State Government through a separate Funding Deed.
- The amendments provide for the regulation and financial arrangements of the TOTE or its purchaser. Specifically, amendments to the Gaming Control Act:
  - establishes a new endorsement under a Tasmanian Gaming Licence (TGL) for totalisator betting with an annual fee of 350 000 fee units ($448 000), waived for the TOTE or its purchaser;
  - establishes an agent endorsement to allow TGL holders to participate in an agent arrangement with an external (third party) gaming or wagering provider for which it receives a commission. An annual licence fee of 5 000 fee units ($6 400), will apply to an agent endorsement, waived for the TOTE or its purchaser;
  - provides that the holder of a totalisator endorsement must pay a fixed wagering levy of 4.7 million fee units ($6 million per annum);
  - deems TOTE to hold a Tasmanian gaming licence with totalisator, race wagering (fixed odds), sports betting, and an agent endorsements;
  - deems TOTE's existing agent arrangements to be allowable under the endorsement. New arrangements will be subject to disallowance by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission;
  - deems TOTE's equipment (software and hardware) to be compliant for 24 months and control systems (manuals) for 6 months;
  - deems TOTE's special employees to be licensed for 12 months;
  - enables a second exclusive totalisator licence, subject to the Treasurer's written approval, to be granted by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission if the TOTE is sold;
  - establishes a period of exclusivity of 15 years after the new operator's totalisator endorsement commences;
  - sets the term of the Tasmanian gaming licence for the new

- operator to be 50 years then renewable for 49 years while the operator holds a totalisator endorsement;
- deems the new operator's equipment (software and hardware) to be compliant for 12 months and control systems (manuals) for 6 months;
  - deems the new operator's special employees to be licensed for 12 months;
  - provides that the TOTE or new operator can establish wagering rules under the licence that are allowed unless disallowed by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission;
  - provides that commission can be deducted, dividends are rounded and the fractions retained by the TOTE or the new operator;
  - authorises commission rates (take out rates) set out in operators rules are subject to maximum rates as determined by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission.
  - waives the race wagering, sports betting and agent endorsement fees for the TOTE or its purchaser while a totalisator endorsement is held;
  - limits the maximum fee payable for multiple endorsements held by any other operators (ie without a totalisator endorsement) at 450 000 fee units per annum ($576 000);
  - abolishes the current tax on sports betting from of 0.25 per cent of turnover and race wagering (fixed odds wagering) of 1.0 per cent of turnover;
  - limits the fees for the holder of both sports betting and race wagering endorsements to 200 000 fee units ($256 000);
  - provides that a totalisator, or any other Tasmanian gaming licence holder, may operate as an agent for a third party gaming or wagering operator external to Tasmania, for which the Tasmanian based operator receives a commission;
  - provides that unclaimed monetary prizes or dividends be paid to the Treasurer after six months;
  - provides that a totalisator operator may use retail outlets as an agent to accept wagers on its behalf;
  - provides that the actions of an outlet agent are taken to be the actions of a licence holder;
  - introduces penalties for serious offences by the outlet agents, such as allowing a minor to gamble, the outlet agent will also be held responsible;

- contains transitional and savings provisions in respect of the operations of the TOTE and the TOTE's agents, employees and technicians as they come under the control of the Act;
- allows employees to wager on their employer's wagering activity only when off duty; and
- provides for an adjustment of the product levy payable to Tasmania by Betfair where it is also required to pay race-fields publishing fees, product fees, or levies to racing authorities for the same event.

Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 Second Reading Speech

Madam President

The Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 can be considered in three distinct parts. Firstly, it provides for the regulation of TOTE Tasmania's gaming and wagering activities under the Gaming Control Act and the repeal of legislation currently governing the operation of the TOTE, namely the Racing (Totalizator Betting) Act 1952 and the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004. This is achieved by creating a new Tasmanian Gaming Licence totalisator endorsement, for the conduct of pari-mutuel wagering. This is the same process that was used to provide for betting exchanges.

Secondly, it provides for a new totalisator operator, if the TOTE is sold, to be licensed and regulated under the Gaming Control Act. There are also changes to the endorsement fees and tax rates for sports-betting and fixed odds wagering that will facilitate the attraction to Tasmania of corporate bookmakers. The Government is confident that this will help to make the sale of TOTE more attractive.

Thirdly, the Bill addresses several unrelated matters that have been raised by Betfair. These matters have arisen out of administering the regulatory and tax arrangements specific to its betting exchange activities.

Madam President

Since the original TOTE operations were established, the world has changed substantially and the gaming and wagering industry in particular is now more complex and commercially oriented than ever before. At present, a self-regulatory framework is in place for totalisator operations. This essentially means two things. First, the business itself is responsible for regulatory oversight of its wagering activities. Second, in responding to new market opportunities, the TOTE is often reliant on the Government or Parliament either to approve changes to the rules under which it operates, or for legislative change to introduce new products or services. Given that the commercial world requires quick assessment and fast response times, the current arrangements can be a cumbersome and time consuming process. This can inhibit product development. It is also the case that Government, through the relevant Minister, and Parliament, should not be involved in normal commercial decisions of TOTE. In fact, in the absence of any need for policy change, this is not an appropriate role for either. In those cases where there is a relatively low level of change required, and changes in wagering rules is a good case in point, the Gaming Commission is more technically equipped to make such decisions.

Furthermore, as the Government intends to sell TOTE Tasmania to a private sector operator, this cannot be done while the current regulatory arrangements are in place. This would open the Government to unnecessary risk in terms of accountability. It would also look to be treating other gaming providers in the State differently to have a situation in which the self-regulation model was permitted to transfer from a Government-owned entity to a new owner.

Therefore, sale or no sale, the current arrangements for regulatory oversight are no longer appropriate.

Madam President

The Bill before the House will bring TOTE under the same regulatory framework as other gambling providers in Tasmania, such as Betfair and lottery providers.

This will introduce a number of new requirements on the TOTE in relation to probity and the management of problem gamblers and consumer protection. On balance, these requirements will be no more or less burdensome for the TOTE as they are for other licensed Tasmanian-based gaming providers.

There are key regulatory considerations that have been applied to the wagering business model and these are contained in the Bill. For example, under the Gaming Control Act the TOTE will:

- have certain key employees and technicians licensed;
- establish the ability for its customers to self-exclude, or for third party exclusion;
- enable its registered customers to be able to pre-commit loss limits;

- have all its wagering equipment and systems independently tested; and
- have independent oversight of its wagering rules, its agent agreements, and the operation of its retail outlets.

Madam President

The Gaming Control Act currently provides for a Tasmanian gaming licensee to hold endorsements separately for the activities of: sports betting; fixed odds wagering; major lotteries; simulated gaming; and betting exchanges.

The amendments in this Bill provide for a new totalisator endorsement and the necessary financial and regulatory provisions needed to govern this activity. However, while other endorsements are non-exclusive, the totalisator endorsement will be provided on an exclusive basis, this being consistent with the exclusivity of licensing totalisator operations in other jurisdictions.

Bringing the TOTE activities directly under the regulatory control of the Gaming Control Act does not require significant change to the way in which TOTE activities are governed at present. However, it does need to remove some key inconsistencies between current TOTE practices, and the way other gaming providers are regulated. Bearing this in mind, the Bill provides for some transitional arrangements so that the main changes required of the TOTE, for example the validation of its systems, or the licensing of its employees where required, won't have to be in place immediately the new licence takes effect.

Madam President

Along with its totalisator activities, the TOTE currently offers fixed odds (race wagering) and sports betting products. The Bill provides for TOTE to initially be deemed to hold a Tasmanian Gaming Licence to enable it to operate its full current range of wagering activities. This deemed licence will be for an indefinite period while held by the TOTE.

TOTE also offers racing products on behalf of third parties that are licensed in other jurisdictions. TOTE offers these third party products under agency agreements, which are very similar in nature to a franchise. For example, the TOTE currently participates in agreements with the operators of South African and Swedish international totalisator pools.

In order to deal with these agency arrangements the Bill provides for the establishment of what will be referred to as an agent endorsement. This will allow for the continued participation of TOTE in its current third party-agent arrangements.

Given that the TOTE does not conduct these activities itself, rather it is an agent under an agreement with the primary licensed operator, the annual licence fee for an agent endorsement will be set lower than other endorsements. The fee will be 5 000 fee units per annum (which is currently equivalent to $6 400), to reflect the lesser regulatory oversight required for this type of activity.

These arrangements have also been accommodated because they are relatively common in the wagering industry and in recognition of this these endorsements will be made available to other licensed operators.

Madam President

The Bill provides for the current use of retail outlets, most of which are not actually owned by TOTE, to continue to be operated in the same way. This includes stand-alone totalisator retail outlets (that is the TOTE branded shops); retail outlets in licensed premises (such as in hotels); and retail outlets at various race courses.

Rather than licence each outlet and its employees, the actions of the outlet owner will be taken to be the actions of the primary licence holder.

However, certain disciplinary provisions will apply directly to these owner/agents for breaches of conduct, such as allowing minors to gamble, for providing credit betting; for not enforcing wagering rules as may required by the Gaming Commission; and for not complying with player exclusion requirements.

Madam President

Transitional arrangements will apply for the certification and testing of systems and equipment. This will be achieved by deeming the TOTE's existing systems and equipment to be fully compliant for an initial two-year period. This will allow time for the progressive independent validation of the TOTE's IT infrastructure and any non-compliance issues to be addressed during that period.

Key TOTE employees requiring a special employee licence will be given a 12 month period to apply for a licence, during which time they will effectively be deemed to be licensed. Similar transitional arrangements will be given to the purchaser of TOTE, with 12 months for the testing of equipment and 12 months for the licensing of special employees.

Consistent with current practice, unclaimed winnings are held for 6 months by the TOTE. However after this period, the unclaimed winnings will be paid to the Treasurer as unclaimed monies, rather than kept by the TOTE, as currently occurs.

This requirement for the payment of unclaimed winnings to the Treasurer will also apply to all Tasmanian gaming licence holders.

Also, consistent with current business practices of TOTE, the amendments provide for the deduction of commissions from bets and for the rounding of dividends.

The roundings from dividends, which amounted to $4.4 million in 2007-08 for the TOTE, are to be retained by the totalisator operator.

Madam President

Country race meetings remain an important part of the racing industry in all jurisdictions, but particularly in Tasmania and we need to continue to have totalisator services at those meetings. While not profitable services for the TOTE to provide, the amendments in this Bill will require that where a Tasmanian racing club needs a totalisator to operate at a programmed race meeting, or betting only meeting, the TOTE (or its successor) will be required to conduct the totalisator on behalf of that club.

This ensures that the current arrangement continues whereby the TOTE conducts the totalisator on behalf of the club. However, the Government must strike a balance between the expectations of the community and the commercial viability of the TOTE, or its successor. There cannot be an expectation by clubs that they will be able to request totalisator arrangements for any number of meetings they may wish to conduct. Therefore a limit of 40 meetings has been set that must be conducted by the TOTE or the new operator.

This is 10 more Tasmanian race meetings than the total number currently conducted by the TOTE.

Madam President

I have detailed the key changes required to bring the TOTE under the regulatory oversight of the Tasmanian Gaming Commission. However, there are some issues that the Government has considered, which are of direct relevance to the sale of TOTE. I will now deal with those matters.

Once the TOTE is sold there will need to be a new licence to the new operator. The amendments in this Bill provide in the first instance for the TOTE to be deemed to hold an exclusive endorsement to cover totalisator operations in Tasmania; and this will not be transferable to the new operator. Therefore the new operator will need to be licensed in its own right by the Gaming Commission.

Potential purchasers of the TOTE will, therefore, need to apply for a Tasmanian Gaming Licence so that they can be tested against Tasmania's strict probity tests. The licence endorsed for totalisator betting can only be granted by the Tasmanian Gaming Commission with the approval of the Treasurer. Therefore, this will ensure that only the successful bidder is granted the licence endorsed for totalisator betting and this licence will be granted for an exclusive period of 15 years after the TOTE is sold.

In addition to being exclusive for 15 years, the new operator's licence will be for a term of 50 years, renewable for a further 49 years while the operator holds a totalisator endorsement and continues to meet the probity standards required of all Tasmanian-based gaming operators. In return, the Government will be requiring that the new owner establishes a corporate presence here in Tasmania for the period during which it holds the exclusive licence endorsement.

The licence term I have outlined is consistent with licences granted to totalisators in other jurisdictions.

Madam President

The tax arrangements for the new operator have been difficult to establish. On the one hand the Government wants to be able to demonstrate to the community that this wagering opportunity is valuable and can support the commitment to directly fund the Tasmanian racing industry. However, we also need to recognise that a tax-free environment will potentially generate the greatest sale value in the TOTE business. The balance must also take into account that the tax environment here in Tasmania for totalisator activities will need to remain broadly aligned with totalisator tax regimes in other jurisdictions.

Therefore, the Government has decided that a fixed annual levy, rather than a tax on turnover, will provide the right balance. The holder of the totalisator endorsement will be required to pay a fixed annual wagering levy of 4.7 million fee units (currently about $6 million per annum). No tax in respect of the turnover of its totalisator activities will be required.

By using a fixed levy, this will allow growth activities now and into the future to be effectively tax free. This means that the incentives will be right for the operator to grow the TOTE business.

Madam President

In addition to conducting a totalisator, potential new purchasers of the TOTE will most likely also wish to conduct the same or similar sports betting, fixed odds and other related third party race products as the TOTE currently does.

Sports betting, race wagering and agent endorsements will therefore be available to the purchaser of TOTE, but in recognition of the fixed annual levy the fees associated with these additional endorsements will be waived while these endorsements are held in conjunction with the totalisator licence.

Madam President

In preparation for the sale of TOTE I have been made aware of the possibly synergies in having corporate bookmakers establish in Tasmania alongside our totalisator operator. Corporate bookmakers are potential major customers for the TOTE through the use of TOTE to lay-off substantial bets on their books.

With corporate bookmakers basing their operations here in the State, this would enable further opportunities for joint business arrangements between the TOTE (or its successor) and corporate bookmakers.

However, since the introduction of fixed odds and sports betting licences under the Gaming Control Act there have been no applications for such licences because of Tasmania's uncompetitive taxation regime.

Currently, the most competitive taxation regime in the nation for these activities is in the Northern Territory, where the majority of fixed odds and sports betting operators are located.

Therefore, to make Tasmania the most competitive jurisdiction for corporate bookmakers, the proposed amendments abolish the current tax rates on race wagering of 1 per cent of turnover; and sports betting of 0.25 per cent of turnover.

In addition, the endorsement fees where both a sports betting and race wagering endorsement is held will be 200 000 fee units ($256 000) in total for both endorsements. In return, the Government will be requiring that corporate bookmakers that are licensed in Tasmania will need to establish their risk management teams in Tasmania so that the State gets the employment benefits associated with the concessions made on fees and taxes.

Madam President

Members will be aware that new governance arrangements for the Tasmanian racing industry, which came into effect in January 2009, transfer the TOTE's racing development functions to the new Tasmanian Racing Board – the TRB

By separating the TOTE from the governance of the racing industry, the proposed amendments in this Bill sever the long-standing funding nexus between the TOTE and the Tasmanian racing industry.

The current requirements for the TOTE to directly fund the Tasmanian Racing Board under the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004 will, therefore, be abolished. The amendments also abolish the need for tax and product levy fee revenue from Betfair to be appropriated to the TOTE under the Gaming Control Act and then passed-on to the racing industry.

The racing industry will now enjoy funding certainty through the Deed with Government and have growth revenue opportunities to it through sponsorship arrangements and the revenue it raises directly through product fees or race-fields levies.

Madam President

As I have said, a separate funding Deed will be finalised shortly between the Government and the TRB to directly fund the Tasmanian racing industry and I am pleased to inform Honourable Members that the that it has in-principle support from the TRB. I have tabled a draft of the Deed.

Under the Deed, which will have an initial term of 20 years, the TRB will receive at least $27 million in annual recurrent funding, and this will be indexed, together with a one-off capital payment of $40 million. The capital funding will become payable after the sale of TOTE has been completed.

There will also be a requirement in the Deed that the TRB must not reduce stakes money.

The new funding arrangements under the Deed will commence on repeal of the current funding arrangements under section 152 the Gaming Control Act and Division 3 of Part 2 of the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004.

Madam President

The other matters the Bill addresses are as follows.

Since the licensing of Betfair, race-fields publishing fees have been introduced in some jurisdictions, including Tasmania, as a means for the industry to directly receive payment from wagering operators for the use of racing products.

There is currently no nationally consistent race-fields publishing regime. Therefore, it is not possible to adjust the rate of product levy payable to the State Government by Betfair to accommodate the payment of any race-fields publishing fee paid to racing authorities in other jurisdictions. At present, our arrangements are in effect double taxing Betfair. This issue came to light on the introduction of the race-fields legislation in NSW. Betfair have raised this with me and I have agreed to address it.

The proposed amendments will adjust the tax base applying to Betfair to take into account the actual payment of publishing fees, product fees or levies in each jurisdiction, including where they may be required under Tasmania race-fields legislation. A head of power in the Gaming Control Act will enable the product levy tax base to be defined in a regulation. This will give flexibility to deal with unforeseen but legitimate needs for change as the racing environment and the use of direct product fees evolves further.

It is also recognised that for existing Tasmanian gaming licence holders (such as Betfair) or potential licence holders that may in the future require multiple endorsements, the total endorsement fees can be substantial (up to $1.5 million per annum for four or more endorsements). This can be a disincentive for establishing operations in Tasmania, or to expand existing activities.

The endorsement fees are largely in place to cover the substantial costs of regulating these activities, such as: requests to approve product changes; have approved and introduce new products; and validation of operator systems and financial controls. However, if the trend in future is for fewer licensed operators to increase the breadth of their gaming activities through holding multiple endorsements, there will be some economies of scale in regulating the same firm for multiple activities, compared with regulating different firms for individual endorsement activities.

In recognition of this it is, therefore, proposed to cap the total amount of endorsement fees to 450 000 fee units ($576 000 per annum) for any one licence holder with multiple endorsements.

Madam President

Bringing the TOTE under the Gaming Control Act will expand the scope of the Tasmanian Gaming Commission to include the regulation of totalisator betting.

This will increase the regulatory work-load of the Tasmanian Gaming Commission. The increased regulatory costs of the Commission will be recovered from the wagering levy and licence fees from wagering operators.

Madam President

In conclusion, the TOTE operating environment has changed significantly from when its activities were first established and licensed. This, together with the Government's intention to sell the TOTE, makes it important that the TOTE, or a new operator, is appropriately regulated. The community needs the confidence that all of our wagering and gaming activities under licence here in Tasmania are conducted to the high standards of regulation and probity for which this state has gained significant recognition. The Government, on behalf of the community, will want the peace of mind that the regulation of the totalisator operator falls under the independent scrutiny of the Gaming Commission. The Government also wants the confidence that the risks associated with its activities in an increasingly complex and rapidly expanding commercial environment fall to the owners of the business. They are, after all, best placed to manage those risks.

The racing industry also wants certainty. It wants certainty in its funding streams so that it can confidently plan future development of the Tasmanian racing product. This will avoid it having to rely on the revenue risks associated with a direct reliance on the performance of TOTE and various tax revenue streams.

Madam President

The Gaming Control Amendment Bill will achieve these outcomes.

Let me finish by advising Honourable members that consultation has been undertaken with the TOTE in the development of the new regulatory framework and the TOTE supports the transition to regulation under the Gaming Control Act provided by this Bill.

Madam President

I commend the Bill to the House.

Gaming Control Amendment Bill 2009 Notes On Clauses

- Clause 1      Short title.
- Clause 2      The Act will commence on a day to be proclaimed to allow time for the Tasmanian Gaming Commission to put in place systems and process to be able to regulate the TOTE.
- Clause 3      Provides that the Gaming Control Act 1993 is the principal Act.
- Clause 4      Provides for a range of new definitions required in the Act which among other things, provide for the TOTE (or its purchaser) to be able to conduct its current wagering business.
- Clause 5      An associate includes someone who has a financial interest in the licensed gaming or wagering operator under the Act.
- This amendment to section 4 is required to ensure that a customer is not taken to be an associate, and therefore subject to investigation, by reason only that the totalizator has provided the customer with a rebate or discount on the normal commission taken out by the totalizator operator.
- Clause 6      Amends section 76B to remove the current exemption of TOTE Tasmania from requiring a Tasmanian gaming licence.
- The TOTE will now require a Tasmanian gaming licence under the Act.
- Clause 7      Clarifies that the endorsement on the licence must show where the wagering activity occurs (i.e. the equipment and infrastructure that facilitates the wagering activity) and that such activity can only be located at an approved location.
- This is achieved by reference to an approved location.
- Clause 8      A grammatical improvement only to an existing provision.
- Clause 9      Clarifies that a sports betting endorsement is required for the conduct of sports betting (as opposed to being just an agent).
- Omits the reference to "Tasmania" as the current drafting is unclear and potentially prevents a sports betting operator from offering sports bets on events held outside Tasmania (such as the Australian Tennis open) to persons physically present at the operator's Tasmanian premises (approved location).

- Clause 10 Replaces the term “fixed odds” wagering endorsement with “race wagering” endorsement. This enables a broader definition than fixed odds to be covered under this endorsement.
- However the definition of race wagering in section 3 excludes brokered wagering (betting exchange) or totalizator wagering which are covered under other endorsements.
- Ensures that a race wagering endorsement is required for the conduct of race wagering (as opposed to being just an agent).
- Clause 11 Fixes an omission in section 76V to a reference to paragraph (e).
- Clause 12 Creates new section 76VB to establish a new totalizator endorsement for the conduct of totalizator betting, and the accepting of wagers from approved outlets.
- Creates a new section 76VC to establish an agent endorsement. This allows Tasmanian gaming licence holders to enter into agent arrangements with third party gaming and wagering providers based outside of Tasmania.
- For example, providing an internet portal from the Tasmanian gaming licence holder’s web site to the business partner’s website. An agent endorsement can be disallowed by the Gaming Commission if the business partner is considered to be an unsuitable person to be associated with.
- An agent endorsement is not required for arrangements with third party gaming or wagering operators based in Tasmania because the third party operator will already be licensed under the Gaming Control Act.
- Clause 13 Amends section 76W to clarify that a prescribed endorsement cannot be used to conduct an activity that would require a totalizator endorsement.
- Clause 14 This amendment clarifies that a licence can be for a longer term than 5 years under section 76Z, if it is provided for elsewhere in the Act (i.e. under s76ZEE). – this is the second totalizator endorsement only, which will be issued to the purchaser of the TOTE.
- Clause 15 This provides that in the case of the TOTE, it is authorised to transfer its licence to a wholly owned subsidiary of the TOTE. This may be a necessary step before the TOTE is sold, i.e. its subsidiary is sold.

Clause 16 This is required because the current legislation does not provide a process for varying an existing licence, only the conditions of a licence.

The Gaming Commission currently has to cancel and reissue a licence if a variation such as a change of address is needed.

Clause 17 This provides that when the Tasmanian gaming licence with the second totalizator endorsement (the licence issued to the purchaser of the TOTE) ends under section 76ZEE, the Gaming Commission cannot refuse to renew the licence unless there has been no breaches and the holder of the licence or its associates are suitable.

This is to give greater certainty for potential purchasers of the TOTE as the normal renewal process set out in section 76ZC does not state the reasons a licence would not be renewed.

Clauses 18,19,20 Repeals definitions and sections that relate to registered player exclusions for betting exchange operators and will now be incorporated into a broader "TGL exclusion" process in Div 7, subdivision 2 of this part, (i.e. the exclusions provisions will include all Tasmanian gaming licence holders such as a totalizator).

Customers that wish to self exclude from a venue (including a totalizator customer) can still do so under the existing exclusions provisions under Part 5 Div 3.

Clause 21 Inserts a new Part 4A, Division 5A relating to totalizator operations. The Division applies to a Tasmanian gaming licence with a totalizator endorsement.

Provides that on “changeover day” (the day the amendment Act commences) that the TOTE is deemed to hold a Tasmanian gaming licence (“the transitional licence”) with the initial and only totalizator endorsement. The TOTE is also deemed to hold an agent endorsement, a race wagering endorsement and a sports betting endorsement [s76ZED(1)].

Provides that the TOTE can transfer its licence to a wholly owned subsidiary of the TOTE with the approval of the Minister. (This may be required as part of the sale process). [s76ZED(2)]

Clarifies that the holder of the initial and second totalizator endorsement is not required to be a registered as a bookmaker and pay taxes under the Racing Regulation Act 2004.

Provides that upon a “terminating event” (the TOTE or its subsidiary is sold either by shares or as a business), a second totalizator endorsement can be granted by the Gaming Commission with the written approval of the Treasurer [s76ZEE(1)].

The second totalizator endorsement is for a 15 year exclusivity period. ( i.e. only one totalizator endorsement is granted for a period up until 15 years after the terminating event).

Clause 21 The exclusive totalizator endorsement is authorised under the Act for the purposes of the Trade Practices Act 1974 and the Competition Policy Reform (Tasmania) Act 1996.
(cont)

The Tasmanian gaming licence with a totalizator endorsement is granted for 50 years renewable for a further 49 years [s76ZEE (2)].

Provides for special conditions to apply to a totalizator endorsement similar to conditions that apply to a betting exchange endorsement that relate to the management of wagering funds, establishment of wagering rules and which rules can be disallowed by the Commission.

Provides that a totalizator operator must conduct programmed race meetings for race clubs (as currently occurs by TOTE as a service to clubs to enhance their special race meetings). A limit of 40 meetings is set, about 10 more than currently required. [s76ZEF(L)].

Provides for the holder of a totalizator endorsement to be entitled to commission (the take out rate from each totalizator pool) in respect of totalizator betting, up to a maximum rate as the Commission authorises. [s76ZEG]

Provides for the calculating and paying of dividends, and for the rounding of dividends as is current practice in all jurisdictions. [s76ZEH]

For example, under section 76ZEH(2), a dividend of $1.32 has a fraction of 2 cents so the fraction becomes zero i.e. dividend rounded to $1.30. A dividend of $1.35 has a fraction of 5 cents so the fraction becomes 5 cents, i.e. dividend rounded to $1.35. A dividend of $1.38 has a fraction of 8 cents so the fraction becomes 5 cents i.e. dividend rounded to $1.35.

In 2007-08, the amount of fractions retained by the TOTE under this method was $4.4 million.

Provides that certain key employees and technicians of the TOTE or the purchaser of the TOTE are deemed to hold special employees or technicians licences for an initial 12 month period. [s76ZEI and s76ZEJ]

Provides for the TOTE's existing wagering equipment and systems to be compliant for an initial two year period and its control systems (operating manuals) for six months, or longer as prescribed. [s76ZEK and s76ZEL].

For the purchaser of the TOTE, the deeming period is 12 months for equipment and six months for control systems. A shorter period applies as the expectation is that the new operator will have existing systems that is likely to have already been assessed by another regulator.

- Clause 22 Inserts new heading Part 4A, Division 7, Sub-division 1 “General Protection”.
- Clause 23 Registered players of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder can establish self limits on the amount wagered. This is already in place for registered players of Betfair. [s76ZK]
- This provision gives the TOTE or its purchaser a transitional period of 12 months to establish the necessary software and systems changes before this requirement takes effect.
- Clause 24 Replaces the current exclusions provisions for Tasmanian gaming licence holders in the Act that currently apply only to registered players of betting exchanges [s76ZDH to s76ZDK] with the general provisions that will apply to registered players of any holder of a Tasmanian gaming licence, including a totalizator. [sub div 2 s76ZNA to s76ZNG]
- This provision gives the TOTE or its purchaser a transitional period of 6 months to establish the necessary software and systems changes before this requirement takes effect [s76ZNG].
- Customers that wish to self exclude from a retail outlet can do so under existing provisions under Part 5 Div 3.
- Clause 25 As an account can still be active even if no wager has been made for 2 years e.g. monies deposited or withdrawn. “If no wager has been recorded” is replaced with “if no activity is recorded”.
- Clause 26 Amends section 76ZR to define “prize” as including winnings so as to include, for example, wagering winnings from a totalizator.
- Clause 27 Inserts new section 76ZRA which requires unclaimed monetary prizes or dividends in respect of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder to be paid monthly to the Treasurer after a period of 6 months.

Clause 28 Inserts new sections 76ZZ, 76ZZAAA and 76ZZAAB to allow a Tasmanian gaming licence holder with a totalizator endorsement to establish approved outlets (i.e. TOTE's retail agencies such as in a hotel or a standalone shop) to accept wagers on behalf of the licence holder.

Rather than licence the outlets, the actions of an agent are taken to be the actions of a licence holder unless the licence holder has acted in good faith.

Disciplinary action under the Act that would apply to licence holder may also be brought against the agent for such matters "prescribed offences" i.e. providing credit, not enforcing rules, not complying with player exclusions provisions or accepting bets from a minor.

Approved outlets are allowed unless disallowed by the Commission (for example if the outlet or the agent is considered to be unsuitable). It will be a requirement to give 10 days notice to the Commission of an intention to open or close an outlet. A totalizator operator will have to give 3 days notice if there is a change in occupation of the premises.

Clause 29 Extends the ability to operate a trading account with debit and credit balances to a totalizator operator. [s76ZZAA]

Trading accounts are generally used by large customers that need to make large wagers at short notice to lay off bets for example.

The licence holder accepts any financial risk of enabling a large customer to operate a trading account.

Approval from the Gaming Commission is required to operate a trading account.

Clause 30 This provision clarifies that a licensed provider (which includes a totalizator) can give its registered players discounts.

Registered players are players that operate a wagering account with the operator.

Volume discounts are given to large customers of the TOTE on the take out rate (commission on turnover).

- Clause 31 Amends section 76ZZC to clarify a prohibition on special employee wagering only in the course of that employment applies only while the employee is on duty. Thereby allowing the employee to wager with its employer when off-duty.
- TOTE employees can already bet with TOTE whilst off duty and there are no grounds to restrict this under the Gaming Control Act.
- This is also consistent with employees of a licensed premises gaming licence holder (i.e. a hotel with gaming machines or Keno) where there is no restriction on gaming staff gaming while off duty. [s56(3)]
- Clauses 32 & 33 This provision requires that gaming equipment and control systems used by Tasmanian gaming licence holders must comply with gaming machine standards as set by the Gaming Commission. [s76ZZG and s76ZZI]
- Clause 34 Clarifies that the holder of a foreign games permit cannot conduct the activities authorised by a Tasmanian gaming licence.
- That is, a foreign games permit does not allow the permit holder to conduct a totalizator for which a Tasmanian gaming licence would be required with a totalizator endorsement. [s77J]
- Clause 35 Amends section 77V to expand the existing provision for the approval of certain contracts by the Commission to include licensed providers (any Tasmanian gaming licence holder's contracts including totalizator contracts).
- Approval is required to ensure fairness, probity and to ensure that any of the contract requirements would not be in breach of Act.
- This would cover contracts between the TOTE and its retail agents.
- Clause 36 Amends section 91 to expand the coverage of the Commission's power to establish rules to include any licensed gaming or wagering operator (including a totalizator).
- Clause 37 Amends section 92 to expand requirements relating to availability of rules to include licensed providers (any Tasmanian gaming licence holder including a totalizator).

- Clause 38 Expands the existing provision enabling the removal of persons from a venue by a venue operator to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder. [s99]
- This will cover approved outlets such as a TOTE retail outlet.
- Clause 39 Expands the existing provision enabling the detention of suspected persons in a venue by an inspector to apply to retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder. [s100]
- This will cover approved outlets such as a TOTE retail outlet.
- Clause 40 Expands the coverage of existing restrictions relating to minors under section 113 to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 41 Amends section 125 to expand the functions and powers of the Commission to include the regulation of wagering activities.
- Clause 42 Expands the coverage of the existing provisions under section 127A relating to inspectors to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 43 Amends section 130 relating to the entry onto premises by police officers or Gaming Commission inspectors to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 44 Expands the coverage of the investigation of complaints under section 132 from patrons at a venue or premises to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 45 Expands the coverage of the powers of inspectors under section 133 to include retail outlets of a totalizator operator or an approved location of a Tasmanian gaming licence holder.
- Clause 46 Expands the coverage of offences relating to inspectors under section 135 by including “wagering” in addition to gaming.
- Clause 47 Expands the provision that enables a betting exchange operator to keep records at a place other than at an approved location (for example in another jurisdiction if there are other premises outside of Tasmania) to all Tasmanian gaming licence holders (including a totalizator).

Clause 48 Corrects an incorrect reference section 77 should read section 77V.

Clause 49 Replaces the reference to a “fixed odds endorsement” to a “race wagering endorsement”.

Establishes an annual endorsement fee of 350 000 fee units ($448 000 in 2008-09) for a totalizator endorsement.

Establishes an annual endorsement fee of 5 000 fee units ($6 400 in 2008-09) for an agent endorsement.

Establishes a limit of 200 000 fee units ($256 000) where both a sports betting and race wagering endorsement is held. This is to be competitive with other states in respect of corporate bookmaker licence fees.

In other cases other than above where multiple endorsement fees are held the endorsement fees are capped at 450 000 fee units ($576 000).

For example:

Sports betting only - 200 000 fee units under s148A(a)

Sports betting and race wagering - 200 000 fee units (instead of 400 000 fee units) under s148A(f)

Sports betting and race wagering and agent - 205 000 fee units under s148A(f) and (dc)

Sports betting, race wagering, betting exchange and agent - 450 000 fee units (instead of 755 000 fee units) under s148A(g)

Waives the requirement to pay totalizator, race wagering, sports betting and agent endorsement fees in the case of the TOTE or its purchaser while a totalizator endorsement is held. [s148A(5)]

Clause 50 Repeals provisions relating to unclaimed winnings of Tasmanian gaming licence holders as this is now dealt with under section 76ZRA.

Clause 51 Amends section 150A by clarifying that taxation only applies where the section so provides. This clarifies that in the case of totalizator, race wagering and sports betting endorsements where no tax will be levied, section 150A does not apply.

Abolishes current taxation provisions relating to fixed odds and sports betting. (1.0 per cent of turnover for fixed odds and 0.25 per cent of turnover for sports betting).

Clause 52 Provides that betting exchange commission that is subject to the payment of the 20 per cent product levy under section 150AC is to be determined in regulations.

This is required to adjust the commission that is subject to the 20 per cent product levy in the case where the betting exchange operator is required to also pay a product fee or race fields publication fee to a racing authority for the same event.

Regulations are being prepared to commence when the Gaming Control Amendment Bill commences.

Clause 53 Establishes the requirement that a totalizator operator pay a fixed wagering levy of 4.7 million fee units or $6.016 million per annum. (a fee unit is $1.28 for 2008-09).

Payment of the wagering levy is each financial year.

The levy is pro rata if the operator commences the licence, or the licence ends, part way through a financial year.

If a licence with a totalizator endorsement is surrendered the Treasurer may provide a partial refund.

Clause 54 Repeals section 152 so it removes the requirement that revenue from a betting exchange operator is appropriated to the TOTE to fund the Tasmanian racing industry.

This severs the nexus between TOTE revenues and racing industry funding under the Gaming Control Act. A separate deed between the Government and the new Tasmanian Racing Board will be established for the Government to directly fund the industry.

Clause 55 Amends section 153A by replacing the reference to a “fixed odds endorsement” to a “race wagering endorsement” in respect of a gaming and wagering guarantee.

Exempts the requirement to pay a wagering guarantee by the TOTE while the TOTE is a government owned business.

A wagering guarantee is required in the case of race wagering and sports betting as there is a potential risk the operator can make losses on these products.

Clause 56 Repeals the regulation making powers relating to the guarantee provided by a betting exchange operator to make up any shortfall in funding to the racing industry because of the impact of the betting exchange operations on TOTE's funding.

This regulation is not required as funding will no longer be provided by TOTE, rather be provided directly by the Government.

Provides for regulations to deal with any transitional arrangements if required (such as in connection with bringing TOTE under the Gaming Control Act).

Clause 57 Inserts in Schedule 5 of the Act a transitional provision that deems a Tasmanian gaming licence with betting exchange endorsement to also hold an agents endorsement.

This allows Betfair to continue participation with any existing agent arrangements on commencement of this Act.

Clause 58 Repeals the Racing (Totalizator Betting) Act 1952. The Act that currently regulates TOTE's wagering activities; and Repeals the TOTE Tasmania (Racing Regulation) Act 2004. That Act sets out TOTE's current funding obligations to the Tasmanian Racing Board.

APPENDIX 1

The Committee took evidence from the following:

- Mr Tony Murray, General Manager, Racing Services, DIER
- Mr Paul Bullock, former Chair of Greyhound Racing Tasmania
- Mr Max Walker, former Deputy Chair of Greyhound Racing Tasmania
- Ms Denise Fysh, Chair, Hobart Greyhound Racing Club
- Mr Colin Howlett
- Mr Don Challen, Department of Treasury and Finance
- Hon. Michael Aird MLC, Treasurer and Minister for Racing
- Mr Kevin Ring, Secretary, Australian Jockeys' Association (Tas)
- Mr Terry Clarke, former CEO, TOTE Tasmania
- Mr Craig Coleman, CEO, TOTE Tas
- Ms Robyn Whishaw, Armidale Stud, Carrick
- Mr Kevin Neilson, Manager, Tasmanian Racing Board
- Mr Philip Swinton, President, Thoroughbred Breeders Tasmania
- Mr Graeme Russell, Former Chairman of the DRC
- Mr Walter McShane, President, Australian Trainers Association (Tas)
- Mr Tony Jeffries, North-West Coast Harness Racing
- Mr Robert Biffin, CEO, Tasmanian Turf Club
- Mr Neil Herbert, Chairman of TTC
- Mr Geoff Harper, Chairman, Tasmanian Racing Club and a number of other witnesses who gave evidence privately.

APPENDIX 2

The following papers were tabled:

- Sale of the Dampier to Bunbury Natural Gas Pipeline
- Dampier to Bunbury Pipeline Act 1997

Bullock, Walker, Fysh

- Newspaper Article – ‘Racing industry “misled” over Tote sale decision
- Tote Tasmania – Industry Funding

Mr Howlett

- Letter to Hon Minister of Racing dated 12/1/09

Ms Whishaw

- Australian Racing Board – study on the size and scope of the Australian Thoroughbred Racing industry
- Economic Impact of the Tasmanian Racing Industry – October 2007 – Final Report

Mr Jeffries

- Racing industry representation to the Legislative Council – 27 February 2009

Mr Harper

- Tatts Group – TOTE Tassie for sale Research Paper
- Oaths Act 2001 – Statutory Declaration by Hon Michael Hodgman QC MP 17/3/09

Mr Craig Coleman

- Report - Review of the Tasmanian Racing Industry’s Governance Structure – 31/10/08

Various private emails and letters.

APPENDIX 3

THE JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT, RESOURCES AND DEVELOPMENT MET IN COMMITTEE ROOM 2, PARLIAMENT HOUSE, HOBART, ON FRIDAY 6 MARCH 2009.

---

Mr ANTHONY MURRAY, GENERAL MANAGER, RACING SERVICES, DEPARTMENT OF INFRASTRUCTURE, ENERGY AND RESOURCES, WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Tony , I think that you have given evidence to parliamentary committees before so you are aware of privilege so I do not need to go through that. Thank you very much for appearing today. You have our terms of reference which is to inquire into the proposed sale of TOTE Tasmania by the Government of Tasmania and the old catchall of any other matters incidental thereto. I would like to invite you to make a presentation to the committee and then I would ask committee members to ask any questions they feel relevant.

Mr MURRAY - Mr Chairman, I have very little to say in my opening other than to clarify my role. I am the General Manager of Racing Services Tasmania. I am also appointed to the statutory role of Director of Racing under the Racing Regulation Act. My primary role is that I am in charge of, responsible for, the integrity of racing in Tasmania.

CHAIR - That is all you would like to say at this stage?

Mr MURRAY - Yes.

CHAIR - Are there questions from members of the committee to Mr Murray?

Mr HARRISS - In those roles which we understand you hold, Tony, in terms of integrity, probity and the like, can you describe to the committee what your beliefs are as to the sale of TOTE versus retaining TOTE in public ownership and the impacts that might have from your perspective one way or the other?

Mr MURRAY - From my role under the act, that is the integrity of the racing industry, I have no direct jurisdiction over the operations of a wagering operator such as TOTE. So I have no real opinion in terms of the integrity in terms of the sale because it does not currently come under my jurisdiction. Regardless of if there is a sale or not it still would not come under my jurisdiction so it will not affect the manner in which I do my business or my area of responsibility.

Mr HARRISS - So what cross-pollination, if any, then between your roles, your organisation, as to probity/integrity do you have with TOTE particularly given that wagering is one of the areas within any racing industry, no matter what code, that can be compromised?

Mr MURRAY - Under the act I have no responsibility or jurisdiction under TOTE. The only way there would be some cross-pollination is, for example, stewards from time to time may seek some information from a wagering operator in relation to activities on a particular race. If the question is the cross-pollination between my role as director of racing and the governance of TOTE, there is no cross-pollination

Mr GUTWEIN - Just to clarify that, in regard to matters of integrity with TOTE as it currently stands, you have no role or responsibility whatsoever?

Mr MURRAY - No, I do not.

Mr GUTWEIN - Who does?

Mr MURRAY - At this stage I think it is better asked of Mr Coleman. My understanding is that it falls within the realm of a cross between self-regulation and some form of relationship with Treasury, although I think the minister has indicated that TOTE may well come under the Gaming Control Act - I think he is looking at that into the future. That is more appropriately a matter for the minister.

Mr BOOTH - Have you had discussions with the minister, the Treasurer or anyone in government regarding the proposed sale?

Mr MURRAY - In relation to the proposed sale, no.

Mr BOOTH - So no-one has talked to you about it at all?

Mr MURRAY - No, the only discussion I had was when the minister called me aside at the Devonport Cup this year - which, from memory, was 7 January - and advised me that the next day he was going to announce the sale of TOTE. That is the first and only conversation he has had with me in relation to the sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - How long have you been involved with TOTE, Tony, in your current position?

Mr MURRAY - I was appointed in August 2003, so five-and-a-half years.

Mr WILKINSON - How long have you been involved in the racing industry?

Mr MURRAY - I have been involved in the racing industry for 23 years. Up until now it has been a regulatory role in New South Wales across the Department of Gaming and Racing. I was a TAB agent for a little while and I worked in Harness Racing New South Wales as racing manager and deputy CEO. I have worked generally in racing regulation for a period of approximately 23 years.

Mr WILKINSON - So it would be fair to say that you have a good understanding of the racing industry?

Mr MURRAY - I would hope so.

Mr WILKINSON - Was that understanding of the racing industry at all tapped into by the Government in order to ask whether they should or shouldn't sell TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Not at all?

Mr MURRAY - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Were you aware of any conversations prior to, say, 4 December in relation to selling the TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - We went through a restructure process last year, from August through to November or December. During that restructure process the matter of the sale of TOTE was raised at the forums we conducted.

Mr WILKINSON - When were the forums?

Mr MURRAY - There were two main workshops: one was at Bellerive on 26 September and one was at Launceston on 1 October at the racetrack, so we had two workshops for the whole of the industry.

Mr WILKINSON - And part of the workshop time was spent on whether TOTE should or shouldn't be sold?

Mr MURRAY - No, the workshop was involving the restructure of the industry. There was a presentation by myself on integrity matters, a presentation by Mr Coleman on commercial matters. It was facilitated by Global Value Management and they had various sessions within the workshops. One of them was about the issues confronting the industry at the moment and some persons at each workshop raised the possible sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - Was the Treasurer there?

Mr MURRAY - No, he was not.

Mr WILKINSON - When whoever it was raised the possible sale of TOTE obviously that was spoken about, whether it should or shouldn't be sold.

Mr MURRAY - There was some general discussion. Mr Coleman was looking after the integrity matters and in his response - and again I am only going from memory - he said something along the lines of 'TOTE is not currently for sale'.

Mr WILKINSON - Are you aware of any business case that has been prepared in relation to the sale of TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Have you seen any business case?

Mr MURRAY - No, I have not.

If I may, Mr Chairman, I didn't finish Mr Booth's question. He asked me had I had any conversations and I was discussing those workshops. During those workshops and during the consultation the issue of TOTE being sold was raised and was also raised in the media. At that time I had a private conversation with Mr Coleman and asked him, 'What is going on here?' and he said words to the effect, 'It has always been my belief since taking over the role that TOTE would be better in private hands'. He also made a comment to the effect, 'TOTE could be sold regardless of this restructure'. Then we followed up from there and basically said this restructure is not about the sale of TOTE. I asked him that question privately and he said no, the restructure is about a whole range of other issues and challenges facing the industry. We returned to the focus of progressing with the consultation for the restructuring ultimately to make a recommendation to the minister. That is the only conversation I had in terms of the sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - Does the restructuring make it easier to sell TOTE?

Mr MURRAY - Mr Coleman's advice to me was no.

Mr BOOTH - Did you get the impression that Mr Coleman's view was that it would be sold regardless?

Mr MURRAY - No, from my recollection I cannot recall him saying that, no.

Mr BOOTH - When the Treasurer told you on 7 January that it was to be sold, can you detail that conversation?

Mr MURRAY - He just called me aside and said, 'Just to let you know I am going to announce tomorrow the intention to sell TOTE'.

Mr BOOTH - What was your reaction to that?

Mr MURRAY - I said to him words to the effect, 'The perception of the industry will be the restructure was about the sale of TOTE'. He responded to me with words to the effect, 'Well, it wasn't, Tony, it was to do with all these other issues we had to deal with'. I said to him, words to the effect, 'That is my understanding and I approached the restructure along the lines it was needed for the racing industry and had nothing to do with the sale of TOTE'.

Mr BOOTH - Did you ask him what day he woke up in the morning and decided to sell TOTE, like what that process was?

Mr MURRAY - No, I did not, it was a very brief conversation.

Mr BOOTH - You must have been somewhat shocked, without putting words in your mouth.

Mr MURRAY - I do not think that shocked is the word. I have worked for government for the last 23 years and governments of the day of whatever political persuasion are entitled to make policy decisions. I have seen governments of all persuasions make all sorts of decisions, so I really have no reaction to it other than to appreciate the fact that he had told me before it was publicly announced.

Mr BOOTH - Given the undertakings that they had made during the consultation in Hobart and Launceston, it is completely opposed to what people were advised at those meetings. Is that correct?

Mr MURRAY - At those meetings, as I said, Mr Coleman, answered the questions along the lines TOTE was not for sale. My understanding is that at that time it was not for sale. Again, it is probably a question to ask Mr Coleman.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, I am just trying to see if there was any other indication of how long they had been intending or what the process was, whether there was some other consultation.

Mr MURRAY - Not with myself and not to my knowledge.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mr Murray, with regard to the conversation, you indicated that you had a private conversation with Mr Coleman during the process that was occurring last year. Was either on either of those dates, the 26 February the forum in Hobart or the October one in Launceston?

Mr MURRAY - It was separate to those two. It was when the matter became quite relevant within the media.

Mr GUTWEIN - Can you think roughly when that was?

Mr MURRAY - Some time between those two dates. I cannot put dates on it but there was some front page back page news/allegations about it and it was at that stage that we had a private conversation.

Mr BOOTH - You saw those reports so did you phone him?

Mr MURRAY - I did not specifically make an appointment to see him it was just at the time were we preparing for the next presentation or meeting I raised it with him. My concern was it was taking the focus off what we were trying to do. This restructure was really important for the future of the Tasmanian industry. My concern was that the media attention on TOTE and the focus on TOTE were taking away from the real purpose of the restructure.

Mr GUTWEIN - Whether you are prepared to answer this or not, you said, I think, that you have around 23 years' experience in the racing industry?

Mr MURRAY - That is correct.

Mr GUTWEIN - Do you have an opinion as to whether or not the sale of TOTE, taking it away from government ownership and placing it in private hands, would be a good thing or a bad thing for the industry?

Mr MURRAY - From a professional viewpoint my role is that of integrity, regulation. I do not have the full facts or the full knowledge of what it would possibly bring to the industry. From a professional viewpoint, I do not think that I have enough information to make an informed comment. From a personal viewpoint, I will make two comments. As I said earlier, I believe the Government of the day is entitled to make decisions in relation to assets, but I also think the racing industry of the day, under these circumstances, is entitled to seek some guarantees from government in terms of future funding.

Mr BOOTH - What about from a probity point of view? You mentioned that you do not have and role in probity arrangements within TOTE and its currently government enterprise. From that point of view, I guess the implication is that you are satisfied or you do not, in fact, have to look. Do you see that there is a threat in the future, or even currently, in terms of the potential for race rigging or other probity issues, particularly if it fell into private hands, that an owner could get inside information about the size of the pools or other information that would not be generally available or to manipulate races by the commissions and so forth?

Mr MURRAY - Race rigging in itself would not fall under the domain of TOTE. A wagering operator's pools, for example, are public knowledge. Anyone can go into the Internet at any stage. If we are rigging, stewards are in charge of race meeting. That is my area of expertise. We look after the integrity of racing, and whether TOTE be in private or public hands would not impact on the way that we ensure that racing is conducted with the highest level of integrity.

Mr BOOTH - Would you not see that integrity or probity issues would be any different whether it was in private hands or in the current arrangements?

Mr MURRAY - Not for the conduct of racing, no.

Mr GUTWEIN - I am wondering, Mr Murray, if you have a view on the type or length of guarantee that might be required under a sale. Obviously the industry benefits to the tune of tens of millions of dollars. In fact, I think the chairman's report indicated $23 million to $25 million in the last year alone. If a sale were to proceed, those guarantees, what time frame would you think was reasonable?

Mr MURRAY - I think that is a matter properly for the racing industry itself. I would not offer a view. One could argue a whole variety of time periods, but it is not a matter for which I have the current knowledge or expertise to offer a fully informed opinion.

Mr WILKINSON - You did mention your personal view was that if it was to be sold there should be some guarantees. What guarantees should be given?

Mr MURRAY - I said my personal view, just for clarity, was that the racing industry should be able to negotiate some form of guarantee in terms of future funding levels. I would assume the racing industry needs some guarantees for surety into the future. Then I suppose you come back to the current situation. They already have some guarantees through the legislation of what TOTE has to pay the industry and so it comes down to what guarantees they would have under a sale as opposed to without a sale.

Mr WILKINSON - Are you throwing the ball by saying that there should be guarantees? I am trying to find out what guarantees. I know you are probably in a difficult position.

Mr MURRAY - It is not my area of responsibility or expertise. Things we are talking about are stake money, breeding schemes and programming race dates. None of that is under my current area of jurisdiction or responsibility. I do not think it is appropriate that I make a comment because I do not have all the information and I am not fully informed.

Mr WILKINSON - Who do we ask?

Mr MURRAY - I would suggest that Mr Coleman or the racing industry itself obviously is appearing before the committee, so I am sure they will have some ideas to provide the committee.

Mr BOOTH - Given your experience in the industry outside of the probity arrangements, your history in the industry and as a personal comment, not in your role as director, what would you say could be the consequences on the industry if there were not those guarantees, hypothecated, if you like, or part of the legislation in terms of sale inquiry requiring some prescribed levels of support? For example, if an owner decided to simply not provide any support, what would the consequences be in your view?

Mr MURRAY - Obviously the racing industry depends on funding but we need to understand that the change in the landscape of wagering throughout Australia and internationally means that racing has to become more self-sufficient. We need to be exploring other market to sell our products - for example, Asian markets. The racing industry traditionally has relied upon guarantees, upon handouts through TABs and arrangements through governments more so than ever before. The racing industry must learn to fend for itself and seek other sources of revenue. That is one part of the revenue and the guarantee but they also need to go out and source other areas of revenue. That is what this restructure was all about and that is why I think it is really important to go through the reason for the restructure. The racing industry has never faced so many challenges. We look at corporate bookmakers, betting exchanges, race fields legislation, the breakdown of the gentleman's agreement - traditional sources of revenue are being usurped by new sources of revenue through race fields legislation, selling your product overseas, trying to gain sponsorship and so on. There is a whole range of things facing the racing industry. The guarantee through a TAB or government is but one area. The racing industry must learn to be more self-sufficient. This restructure about taking away from the three code councils and putting into one professional Tasmanian racing board was about meeting the challenges facing the industry and being able to promote and maximise the revenue back to the industry, which wasn't possible under the old structure.

Mr WILKINSON - The restructure was done with consultation with all the bodies in the industry, wasn't it?

Mr MURRAY - Yes. As I said, Mr Coleman and I held two workshops, one in the north and one in the south. We met with the three code councils, we held individual meetings with clubs and associations as required, so there was an extensive consultation before we went through.

Mr WILKINSON - So there was extensive consultation with the industry itself before it went through?

Mr MURRAY - Yes, there was.

Mr WILKINSON - And you believe that that was important?

Mr MURRAY - Yes, it was essential.

Mr WILKINSON - Why do you believe it was important?

Mr MURRAY - I think in any sphere of endeavour, whether it be government or private, you need to take the views of your stakeholders into account before you make any significant changes to a structure.

Mr WILKINSON - Would you suggest that there is a significant change in that now TOTE, if it is to be sold, is going out of the hands of government into the private sphere?

Mr MURRAY - No, I don't think it makes any difference. My concern with the talk about the TOTE sale during the restructure was that it was going to take the industry's eye off the real issues. The restructure, certainly from my viewpoint, had absolutely nothing to do with the sale of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - I hear what you're saying. You may have misunderstood the question. I accept what you are saying, that there was extensive consultation had with the industry prior to the restructure. Let's give it a tick. The reason for that is because it was necessary to keep the stakeholders informed as to what was taking place. In relation to the proposed sale of TOTE, would you accept that the stakeholders weren't spoken to, weren't kept in the loop, as they were kept in the loop with the restructure?

Mr MURRAY - They are two separate issues. In terms of the restructure, which was under my joint control, we made sure that there was extensive consultation. I am not aware of any consultation the minister has or has not had. All I am aware of is his announcement of the proposal to sell TOTE. I am also aware that that is dependent upon being passed by both Houses of Parliament, hence this committee will be given the opportunity to hear the views of industry. I am not aware; I can't sit here and say I am aware of the consultation that has taken place.

Mr WILKINSON - But you would be aware whether some consultation had taken place? I have had an extensive involvement in sport in a number of different fields. When I was in one field I was aware of what was taking place in another field just with the general conversation that flows. When I was in charge of Football Tasmania, I was aware of what the players were thinking because of general conversations that take place after a game or in the world of football at the time, likewise cricket or swimming. Are you really saying that you are so insulated in your position that you are not aware whether conversations were taking place with stakeholders in relation to the sale of TOTE or not?

Mr MURRAY - I am not aware of any conversations with stakeholders in relation to the sale of TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - I am not actually conceding that there was agreement in full knowledge by the industry codes to the racing restructure but setting that aside, is it a fair thing to say that the agreement that you achieved ultimately for a restructure was based on the understanding of all of those participants in the consultation processes that in fact TOTE would not be sold? Had the Treasurer announced they were going to sell TOTE during that consultation, what I am suggesting is that the outcome might have been different in terms of an agreement.

Mr MURRAY - That is a hypothetical question, which is difficult to answer. All I can say is that when we went to the workshops there were a number of issues raised and within the report of the workshops the sale of TOTE was but one of a number of issues. I think even in the report it prioritised the issues in terms of the ranking from the opinions of the workshop. Again, from memory, TOTE certainly wasn't high on the list; it wasn't number one, from memory. My point is that there was a whole range of other issues which the industry acknowledged - and I went through them before. Hypothesising, it is difficult to know whether the industry would have been any different. I think what they were seeking at the workshops was some assurance of future funding if TOTE was sold rather than questioning whether TOTE should be sold.

Mr BOOTH - Who owned it, basically?

Mr MURRAY - The future funding. What they were saying as an issue at the workshops was - and again this is just from memory - not will TOTE be sold or not, but what guarantees will we be provided if TOTE was sold? So to hypothesise and answer on the basis that there are some guarantees for future funding if TOTE was to be sold, I don't think it would have changed the opinion of the industry in supporting the restructure.

Mr BOOTH - However, I suppose then a corollary of that is that any sale would need to provide exactly the same levels or greater support into the future indefinitely than they already get through the current arrangements. Submissions that people have put to me are generally based around the culture of racing being destroyed as a result of changed arrangements. The Asian racing situation, for example, is raising some serious concerns in regard to the culture of racing.

Mr MURRAY - In my 23 years in racing the most difficult thing to do in the racing industry is to change culture. The racing industry are the most wonderful people you can ever come across but they're very much traditionalists and racing is very much based on tradition and that is how it should be. It is very hard to change the culture of people. I would think, hypothesising, if TOTE was sold and the guaranteed levels of funding met with the approval of the industry and were at least as good as would have been the case if TOTE were not sold, I think the industry would move on fairly quickly and focus on what the real issues are and that is the challenges facing the industry.

Mr BOOTH - So you would see that important, that the funding arrangements be locked into a sale arrangement effectively, some form of support guarantee?

Mr MURRAY - I don't know in which form it would come. I think the industry is entitled to some guarantee of future funding.

Mr BOOTH - But whether it comes through government or a sale arrangement -

Mr MURRAY - I can't really offer an opinion.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Mr Murray, do you believe that had the Government of the day - and I appreciate you said they have every right to make policy decisions - waited until the new structure of the racing industry was bedded down, so to speak, this would have been a more palatable proposed sale?

Mr MURRAY - I will be very selfish and say I would have preferred a greater period of time. The restructure was about putting a structure in place to quickly face the challenges and get resolutions on a number of issues. It is a really important time for racing. This is a very personal and selfish view because I think the restructure was very important in its own right. I repeat: the Government of the day has its right to make an announcement and make a decision on any matter under its area of responsibility, so I am certainly not criticising the timing, I am just stating my personal view.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Do you believe that the new board format has had time to settle into its new role?

Mr MURRAY - They are on a very steep learning curve, there's no doubt about that. They are doing a very good job initially. They are out there consulting with the industry. The chairman of the new board, Don Abell, in my opinion is doing an excellent job. He is engaging the industry, he is understanding the industry. It is early days but I have nothing but optimism for the future of the role of the new board.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - So with that board engaging with the stakeholders and industry players obviously this particular process is taking away from what they might well be concentrating on?

Mr MURRAY - I would have thought that they are just moving ahead with the job at hand. That is as they should be. In terms of the transitional arrangements under the restructure, the funding, the budget is as it was previously up until 30 June. No doubt they are developing their strategic plan and their future budgets and all those types of things. My understanding is and my belief would be that it would be business as usual from their viewpoint.

CHAIR - Are there any further questions to Mr Murray?

Mr BEST - In camera I would like to ask some questions.

CHAIR - The committee will now move in camera. I would ask everybody apart from the committee and people involved if they would move to out the back again and we will proceed as soon as that is done.

Mr PAUL BULLOCK, FORMER CHAIR, GREYHOUND RACING TASMANIA, Mr MAXWELL WALKER, FORMER DEPUTY CHAIR, GREYHOUND RACING TASMANIA, AND Ms DENISE FYSH, CHAIR, HOBART GREYHOUND RACING CLUB, WERE CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WERE EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you very much. I understand you are all appearing on behalf of the greyhound industry and I do not know whether any of you have given evidence before a parliamentary committee before. However, I will talk about privilege and restrictions on reporting so that you are clear on that. Everything you say to this committee is protected by parliamentary privilege. This is to allow you to speak freely. However, once you have left this committee room I must advise you not to specifically discuss your written or verbal evidence with anyone until the committee has made its report to the Legislative Council. You are free to speak generally about any issue to anyone but please do not refer specifically to anyone about the evidence you give to the committee until a report has been published on this.

I now invite you, whoever is the spokesperson, to talk and remind you to keep in the back of your minds all the time that we have specific terms of reference and that is the proposed sale of the TOTE Tasmania by the Government of Tasmania and any other matter incidental thereto.

Mr BULLOCK - Mr Chairman, first of all I would like to thank you very much for hearing us today because I was not available next week and to your secretary for fitting us in today. Thank you very much.

CHAIR - It is a pleasure.

Mr BULLOCK - I know some of the members, particularly Peter Gutwein. I have known Peter a long time, since he was a kid playing football. It is nice to see one familiar face here.

I will give a bit of the background because I don't reckon many people really know me. I started in racing in the early 1950s with my father working horses on St Marys Pass, which was gravel - the road from St Marys to Conara then was gravel, so it was a long time ago. Racing has always been part of my life. Unfortunately I did not have enough money to get into horses so I got into the next best thing, which was greyhounds. It was a pleasure to get involved with greyhound racing and the people in the industry. I owned, trained and bred for a period of 40 years and then I got involved in the administration in 1989 with the Launceston Greyhound Racing Club and was chairman in 1990. I then worked for the Racing Authority, as it was in those days when Michael Martin came from New Zealand, as the racing manager for greyhound racing. I looked after the Hobart club when they had their licence taken off them. I also took over Devonport when they handed theirs in. Mr Caylee became the chairman of the authority and we were worried about Devonport continuing. My suggestion to the authority at that time was to convert to a day meeting and get Sky Channel, if possible, and to race every week of the year if possible.

Around 1999 or 2000 I was elected to the greyhound council and I have been a member for the last nine years. Three of those years I was deputy chairman to my colleague, Max, and the last three years and when the council was wound up on 31 December 2008 I was chairman. One of the things that the council has done with the clubs - Denise is here today and is the chairman of Hobart - we have made sure that the clubs through the council are viable. Each club has received somewhere between $76 000-$80 000 a year to make sure they have made a profit at the end of the year.

When I went to the work meetings that the Director of Racing, Mr Murray, and the CEO of TOTE, Mr Coleman, presided over, along with John Lennon from his organisation, we were given a guarantee that TOTE would definitely not be sold. When the announcement came some seven days after the councils had been wound up, I am certain that people such as Bruce Freeland, Dick Bertram, Doug Martin - who were the instigators of the Tasmanian Totalisator Board which came into effect in 1973 - probably turned over in their graves.

For those who aren't racing minded, if they go back through the history of racing in New South Wales and Victoria, TAB was introduced to wipe the SP bookmaker in the local pub out of business, if possible. In New South Wales the result was enormous because they have a large population, and so has Victoria. The bookmakers, in my opinion - and I worked for two or three of them in Launceston over a period - were leeches. They took everything and put nothing back. Here we had an opportunity to have something for Tasmania that was going to put something back into racing. I can still remember the late Bruce Freeland saying at the time, 'This will really be good because we are going to appoint the Premier as one shareholder and the Treasurer as the other'. That has been the ploy ever since 1973. I believe that the Director of Racing and the CEO of TOTE either didn't know that the minister had intentions of selling TOTE or were accomplices for the workshops of getting rid of the councils to enable them to sell TOTE. I would say our code, and having spoken to the other two codes at recent meetings in Launceston in two previous weeks, it has got to the stage now that we don't trust the minister. That is a pretty defaming statement, I know, but we don't trust the minister.

One of the problems we have had with all of it is that there has been no consultation with the three codes, no consultation with racing and we have not seen a business plan. Anyone running a business usually has a business plan. This bloke just says sell. We might get $30 million from somewhere and in today's economic climate we do not think that is on. So we are very disappointed, we have an industry where there are 3 000 people involved, we have a greyhound industry where we race three times a week and distribute probably $40 000 a week in stake money and if we have not got that $30 million, and it is no good saying we have a guarantee, because that money might not be there with the economic climate we have at the moment.

We are going to be up so and so in the boat. It will just be damn hopeless. We have got a milking cow in what is now TOTE Tasmania because of the change in the name sometime back but at the moment they are almost guaranteeing us an income for racing.

We do not wish to go to the Government of the day and say look we know you have got education and we know you have health and we know you have got roads and we know that you have got police et cetera, but we really want $30 million.

Because the Government are likely to say to us sorry this year you can only have $21 million. Or only $18 million. With TOTE Tasmania we have got at least a guarantee at this stage of having enough money to do what we are doing at the moment.

The greyhound industry at this moment, and this is only from my point of view and I may be biased because I am the former chairman of the council, we have three clubs with $200 000 each in their bank account, we have a council that gave the new racing board around about $200 000 to do the job plus another $55 000 for promotion.

I wish the new person replacing me at the Tasmanian Racing Board all the very best. He has a huge job in front of him to represent greyhound racing with very little knowledge of administration but very good on welfare. They have dropped him really in the soup because I do not think that the new board knows where they are going.

That is with all due respect to those seven people that have been appointed. I really believe that if we want to do our best we need to retain TOTE Tasmania. Otherwise I can see racing being shot in the foot. The spin-off from racing is huge.

We race three times a week which means people travel three times a week, they pull into service stations three times a week, there are a new set of tyres three times a week, there is a mechanic somewhere that needs to work on their car. It is a huge employer. We look after the farmers with disposal of stock et cetera.

If we have not got TOTE and we have not got the income to race for what we are racing for now people will drop out of the game. The other thing is that if there are less meetings, if trainers can only race once a week like the gallops do half the people in our industry will drop out simply because they need to be able to compete twice a week and by having three meetings a week there is a chance that you can race twice a week and get an income.

Otherwise we are dead in the water. If you people cannot see that maybe you should not do the job you are doing. I will pass over to my Deputy Chairman.

CHAIR - I might just ask you a question first. I hear what you are saying and I will be the devil's advocate first up. In other jurisdictions, that is in other States, TOTE has been privatised. In South Australia I understand it has been done rather poorly, in Victoria it is working quite well and it has opened up new opportunities. Now if the industry, such as yourselves, were enshrined in legislation some guarantees how would you view it then?

Mr BULLOCK - Mr Chairman, if you listen to the chairman of the thoroughbred breeders in Victoria, in 2012 they will be $40 million to $80 million worse off. And they have all the guarantees in the world.

Mr BOOTH - It is pokie guarantees, isn't it?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, it is pokies and Tattersalls who aren't allowed to have the licence anymore. If another body put their hand up and say, 'Yes, we want to take it over', the first thing people want is the money for their shareholders. It is not really good when you pick up the Examiner and you read that Tattersalls have made $143 million profit and they are looking at buying TOTE Tasmania. When it has not been through Parliament, it has not been discussed with the industry, there is no business plan and you say, 'Please put your hand up and support it' it is not on!

Mr BOOTH - Thank you, Paul. I want to drill down into what you said that you were guaranteed at the meetings. Presumably that was the Hobart one on 26 September and Launceston on 1 October. Are they the meetings?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, and there was a follow-up meeting at Campbell Town which I could not go to but Max did go to and the guarantee was given again.

Mr BOOTH - In what form was that guarantee given?

Mr BULLOCK - It was given in writing. In the last handout that was given out at Campbell Town it was given out in writing that TOTE will not be sold.

Mr BOOTH - Do you have a copy of that which you can give the committee?

Mr BULLOCK - No, but I am certain that the place and people who have put together a nice brochure for the MLCs have got it and will supply it at a later date, but it is available.

Mr BOOTH - Would the greyhound racing industry, in your view and the combined view perhaps here, have supported the industry restructure had you known that TOTE was going to be sold?

Mr BULLOCK - There is nothing wrong with change. Getting change right is the problem. Personally and I do not speak on a personal level, Kim, because we have not discussed it, I was quite pleased to not be involved anymore because I have just had a quadruple bypass and I was looking to lay down the tools. But we had a survey back in October that we put out to see how the industry felt. I do not have that with me today but the industry was 50/50 whether we should have the council or not. I do not think the majority of our code or the other two codes understood exactly what their code councils were doing and that is probably our fault rather than the industry's fault.

You are aware with the people you have dealt with in all codes, but we have a lot of people in each code that their education is not the greatest. Some of the kids who work as stable hands and kennel attendants et cetera, do not want to go to school. It is the only place they can find a niche in life. So therefore their education standard is not greatest and they say, what do we have these people for? It is like me saying, what do we have the Legislative Council for. I am pleased they are there but a lot of people are not.

Laughter.

Mr WILKINSON - Keep talking.

Mr GUTWEIN - The lower House shares your view.

Mr BULLOCK - They probably do, Peter. But, seriously, I have been involved in a couple of organisations, and Peter knows only too well that I started the Junior Football Association in Launceston back in 1973. I used to write a page, and this is digressing a bit, for the Sunday Evening Express and I had a cartoon drawn up by one of the guys. We had the kids in around playing with a big steel fence around with the parents outside and sometimes you feel the same about greyhound racing. I wish we could keep them out there and just race the dogs because you really struggle at times to understand the mentality of some people.

From my point of view, the council did its job. It was not always liked by everybody but we did our job to the best of our ability.

Mr GUTWEIN - You said that, under TOTE, you are guaranteed income each year. How does that work and what arrangements are currently in place?

Mr BULLOCK - We get 16.9 per cent of the profit and whatever else is dished out by Betfair. TOTE, of course, handle the Betfair money. Last year there was $4.75 million of Betfair money distributed to the three codes and then they must have done a little bit better than people thought because we received another $93 000, probably a couple of months into the season. We had a reduction previously because we thought the previous Premier, Mr Lennon, handled the money badly when he gave so much to the interdominion and just about robbed harness racing right throughout Australia. This made it very difficult, where at one carnival that was in South Australia they had to hold a whole lot of heats in Melbourne, otherwise they could not afford it.

The money that we have received every year has increased slightly. It has been by CPI. Last year I think we received $48 000 from TOTE out of the TOTE profit, additional to what we had previously. We received another $93 000 from the Betfair money which was additional. Then TOTE paid a $125 000 bonus to each code. I can give you the figures for that because, unfortunately, the greyhound council in 2006 through freedom of information applied to get the actual figures from TOTE because they didn't want to give them to us. I can give you a copy of that today.

We have done our very best to pay out as much as possible. In the last 12 months we had paid out 79.81 per cent of our allocation. We had used about 20 per cent for administration. Everything that could possibly be pay out to the industry and the participants has been paid out. We have never had a problem with TOTE as such as they say, 'This is your lot'. We have to work with what we have. We have never been in a position to argue that we want a bigger share. We have told them on several occasions we want 19.6 per cent, or 20 per cent if we can get it, but we have always finished up with around 16.9 per cent of the total pool. This year we will pay out about $2 360 000, including our administration.

The clubs themselves - and Denise is very heavily involved with the Hobart club and is doing a very good job - with the administration of the money et cetera are in a situation where they get 3.55 per cent of TAB on-course and off-course turnover of a Thursday night. The clubs get somewhere between $80 000 and $90 000 because the council has always paid the salary of the racing manager, which is around $56 000. He manages all three clubs and does all their bookwork, works with the accounts and makes absolutely certain that every dollar that is spent is accounted for.

Mr GUTWEIN - How many people are involved in dogs in the State?

Mr BULLOCK - I can't give an exact figure, Peter, but there are 600-odd involved registered, but of course we have a lot of hangers-on as well. There are a lot of people involved as silent partners in greyhounds, as they are in horses et cetera.

We have a lot of people who help out at home who aren't registered. My guess would be there are somewhere between 700 and 1 000 people involved.

Mr WILKINSON - When you say 'involved', what do you mean?

Mr BULLOCK - Helping with training, cleaning kennels, cleaning yards. A lot of people are voluntary and help catch dogs. A lot of people go to maybe Brighton or the straight track at Mowbray - they can't go there any more because TOTE controls it - but we have always had people put their hand up to help out somewhere. Racing is a social industry and people forget that racing is really about bringing people together. The Launceston Cup carnival might not have been as good as it has been in the past but it gets people together and it is a day out. Greyhound racing is a very social industry. We just had the greyhound dinner at Mowbray in February and there were 190 people there. Getting 190 people to anything of a night socially is very difficult, as we all know. You have been involved in football, it has dropped off a bit to what it used to be. I have been involved in football with North Launceston and Beauty Point. It is not quite what it could be today but racing is very social. All three clubs have their social side of living in hand and care about it.

Mr WALKER - I have been involved since 1971, trying to train and breed dogs. In the late 1970s I became chairman of the Greyhound Owners, Trainers and Breeders Association. Back in those days it had a bit of punch, we conducted things for the Hobart Thousand. There was always a bit of feeling between the owners and trainers and the HGRC because if they blackballed you you couldn't become a member. They had a bit of power then. I left the Hobart area and went to Dover so I wasn't so involved with administration but I became involved in the late 1990s by becoming the Deputy Chairman of the Racing Council for three years. I came back on as chairman for three years and, at that time, I represented Tasmania on the Greyhounds Australasia which meant meeting every three months, overseas, in New Zealand or each of the other States and from time to time. I stepped down from that job and let Paul have a crack at it, and I have been the deputy chairman since that time.

I, like Paul, became involved with greyhound racing because, while I was always a bit of a punter, it was too costly for me to be involved in horses, and I thought I had given up football, which I didn't, but I needed the exercise for another 10 or 12 years. I have always taken the position of an underdog and I think that fits our situation very well because we have been the underdog in the three codes for quite a while.

One thing that Paul probably did not stress as much as he could have is the fact that we do not trust the administration. One of the reasons we do not trust them is the fact that back in 1999 Paul Lennon came to us and said, 'Look, get rid of your so-and-sos running this show and we will put some extra dollars in your pocket'. What was done was we dropped from 19.7 per cent to 16.9 per cent out of the total allocation. It went on from there.

Mr GREEN - When was that?

Mr HARRISS - In 1999.

Mr WALKER - We have been battling from that every since. When the Betfair money came around, we went from 16.9 per cent to 9 per cent for a time. When the big trots episode was on, we were duded again. We were able to prove our case, I thought, and they said, 'Oh well, yes, we can bridge you up to 19.7 per cent but it has to be new money. We can't take it off the other codes'. We have been told lies along the way.

Tony Murray said today that they had two meetings - we had three meetings. It was supposed to be consultation. The first two might have been. We had agreed to meet on a Friday, what happens? They want to put us on on a Thursday night when they know jolly well that people couldn't attend because they have their dogs to race on a Thursday night so two of us went to Campbell Town. Therese Kingston, who was my co-speaker at the time, asked Mr Murray, 'Why are we meeting on a Thursday night? We'd been promised a Friday when everyone could come'. His reply was, 'Well, I'm sorry, Therese, but most of them couldn't come on Friday', so he put it on Thursday night. She had the audacity to get up and ask, 'Who at this meeting can't attend tomorrow?'. There was one fellow out of the whole meeting.

We have been duded all the way through and so it is easy for us to understand why we think that we are getting shunted again. We do not believe Michael Aird for one minute. We were told on 15 December there would be no sale - this is members of TOTE, of course - and we find three weeks later, 'Oh, she's up for sale, fellas'. We cannot believe him for a minute.

I am happy to answer any questions.

CHAIR - Thanks. We might move on to Denise, if you want to have a few words and then we will ask questions.

Ms FYSH - I have only been in the administration of the club for about six years, but I would like to go back to the question that Mr Booth asked of whether we would have had the same thoughts to splitting racing and wagering had we known in the beginning, that TOTE was for sale. I know from my perspective we would not have supported it until a great deal of discussion was had on the sale of TOTE.

I believe that the industry was deceived by the Government during those workshops inasmuch as it seems obvious now that TOTE was going to be sold at the time of those workshops because the only way you could achieve the sale of TOTE was to separate wagering and racing. I believe that we were deceived that it was better for the industry should that be divided when in fact it was done so TOTE could be sold. Otherwise the announcement would not have been seven days after the new board started.

So I agree, and I think that the industry as a whole agrees that we have been deceived by this Government, that we have no trust in this Government and any guarantees that the Government at this point is going to say they will give, we have no trust in.

I think that there are a lot of areas that need to be brought forward. It cannot be done because nothing has been discussed with the industry re the sale of TOTE. We have to look at our breeding, we have to look at our training facilities, we have to make sure that in the long term these things are going to be addressed; that enough money is there to make sure that the facilities can grow so that the industry across the three codes can grow. But until there is some discussion with the industry I do not think that the Government would ever get any support for the sale of TOTE Tasmania.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - I am aware that there is an agreement that when the Betfair fund exceeds $5 million that the greyhound arm of racing will actually get up to that 19.7 per cent. Can you tell me what sort of agreement, is it a written agreement?

Mr BULLOCK - There is not an agreement in writing. We discussed it with the acting CEO of the new racing board, Mr Lottering, at the time, and Van Ransley who does not work there anymore. We discussed it with them and they said we will consider the 19.6 per cent. A lot of things that are done in racing are not exactly written all the time.

I am probably at fault but I have always taken peoples word on a handshake. Obviously it does not work a lot of the time. And after one person who is in this room was on ABC Radio at 10.45 a.m. I do not believe him either. Because he treated today as a joke. A great laughing point for Mr Best on radio. The sale of TOTE at 10.45 this morning.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - So there is not an actual written agreement?

Mr WALKER - There was an understanding given, Tania, that that would take place and as I said earlier it was to be on any new money not the allocation that would have gone back. So if TOTE makes a heap of money we were promised 19.7 per cent of the surplus of what they would have considered normal and anything from Betfair as well.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - But not what you would consider a formal agreement as well.

Mr GUTWEIN - In regard to any consultation since 7 January with your industry by the Government has any occurred?

Mr BULLOCK - None whatsoever.

Mr GUTWEIN - Has anybody spoken to you at all about any consultation coming forth?

Mr BULLOCK - Not from the Government's point of view. The three codes met in Launceston three weeks ago today and Chester Bullock and Joel Wallace from the pacing, Pam Cassidy and myself from greyhound racing and Mrs Wishaw from Armidale Stud had a meeting on the Friday. We had a follow-up meeting with five of the MLCs who live in the northern part of the State last Friday re the sale. And if you want their names I am quite happy to provide those. There was Don Wing -

CHAIR - We are aware of those.

Mr BULLOCK - We have had a couple of meetings. I was very impressed with Mrs Wishaw's soapbox in the Examiner. For those people who have not read it, there is a copy available here if you require it. That is it in a nutshell. The whole industry, it is not just greyhound racing, the whole racing industry is absolutely disgusted with the contempt that the Minister for Racing has shown towards the industry.

Mr GUTWEIN - May I ask you a question? You have said that you do not trust the minister -

Mr BULLOCK - I do not trust the minister, Peter, because not only has he lied and said TOTE will not be sold, but the people who are out there -

CHAIR - Order. Have to be careful about casting aspersions there in that regard.

Mr BULLOCK - I believe that the minister has lied. That is me. Sorry, I say it as I see it and I believe that the people who were working for him, the Director of Racing and the CEO of TOTE who done the workshops et cetera, if they knew TOTE was going to be sold, they lied. If they did not know, they were led astray by the minister.

Mr BEST - For fear of leading with the chin.

Mr BULLOCK - No, I am not.

Mr BEST - No, me, not you. I am interested and there is no double edge here. With your code, how often do you meet, just together, do not worry about the political aspect of it, just as a group to discuss issues?

Mr BULLOCK - We meet every month as a council right up until the end of December. Since then, as far a statewide thing goes, no, we have not. Gary Sutton from Devonport and Pam Cassidy from Launceston were in Launceston with the MLCs. Denise, unfortunately, was not there and Denise's partner trains greyhounds and it is not easy to get everywhere you want to be at certain meetings. I reckon she has done it pretty hard to get here this morning.

Mr BEST - No, that is fine. I am interested, though, because we have heard quite a bit about the views of interest versus business and the social aspect you spoke quite in depth about. As a code you must have some policies about some of these issues that you have written down?

Ms FYSH - What issues?

Mr BEST - Issues about how you see, moving forward, how you see yourselves in terms of business and how you see the social aspect?

Mr BULLOCK - One of the things that happens, and Max and Denise are in the same position as I am, I go to two greyhound meeting a week most of the time. Over a period of nine years I think I know almost everybody in the industry by their first name and they all know me. If they have a concern they have usually come to me when I was deputy chairman of the council and expressed their opinion and I have taken it back to a meeting where it has been discussed with the council and the clubs. We have had club and council meeting in Campbell Town et cetera to get the feel of the industry. That is personal consultation. That is the best we can do and I think that is the way it should be done in this instance and it has not been done.

Mr BEST - Finally, what is the collective view that you take?

Mr BULLOCK - The collective view of greyhound racing is not to sell TOTE.

Mr BEST - Okay.

Mr BULLOCK - The other issue is, had we had some consultation and a business plan we may not think that way but we have had nothing.

Mr GREEN - It flows on pretty well from what was just said really because what we are talking about today is the potential sale of TOTE and knowing that sale of TOTE has to go through both Houses of Parliament. So, consultation with respect to business plans and all of the other things associated with that will have to satisfy members of Parliament prior to it being sold.

The issue that I want to put to you is whether or not, given that it is likely that a position to ensure that the industry is looked after financially into the future, would be legislated and if it was, would the code then be satisfied that the industry therefore would be looked after on into the future and could look to build on the existing infrastructure et cetera that you have?

Mr BULLOCK - My answer is that irrespective of what happens we are prepared to look at anything but, for God's sake, please present something. Talking to accountants is probably the right thing to do in a business to sell it if it is worth money. Knowing the fickle industry of racing and the present Government we have, of which you are a member, we do not know.

Mr GREEN - It is fair enough for you to suggest that, and you have every right to do so, but I would say that from the Government's point of view we are taking industry very seriously and have always tried to ensure that the industry moves forward. If the sale of TOTE ensures that the industry has the opportunity to move forward, would the code be satisfied with that and focus on the issues associated with racing, et cetera, and doing all the other things that you enjoy doing?

Mr BULLOCK - I could not exactly answer for the industry.

Ms FYSH - It would also depend on how that was structured and where we sat within it, and what was available within that for future development of the racing industry. I would like to ask, was that decision to sell TOTE a knee-jerk decision that happened overnight because I just find it incredible that a government could do that? Is it good business practice to make a knee-jerk reaction overnight to sell TOTE Tasmania?

Mr GREEN - You are not asking me that question because I am not in a position to answer the question. What I am trying to put back to you is that if all of the things that you are concerned about with respect to the longevity of your particular code were satisfied as part of this process overall, would your code move on and concentrate on all of the things that you are good at, concentrating on running the greyhound meetings and so on?

Ms FYSH - I do not think we are going to have an option there. The alternative is what - that you will not sell TOTE?

Mr GREEN - We may not and we may not get the price, who knows?

Mr WALKER - What is the price?

Mr GREEN - I don't know.

Ms FYSH - Exactly. We do not seem to know a great deal except that the Government wants to sell it.

Mr WILKINSON - Am I right in saying that the real concern I can see over the last half hour is the lack of communication and that things were said which turned out to be not correct, that is that the Government was not selling then suddenly it was? I suppose it is a bit like being put on a plane and not knowing where you are going to. If you knew where you are going to you might say, 'Yes, I like that place, that's where I want to be', or, alternatively, 'No, I don't. We're going to get into trouble if we finish up landing there'.

Ms FYSH - But if you knew where you were going you may never have boarded the plane to begin with.

Mr WILKINSON - Yes, that is what I am saying.

Mr BEST - Sorry to interrupt, my question was really about the plane that you want to get on.

Mr BULLOCK - It would be absolutely lovely, Brenton, to have a look and say, 'Yes, we do' or 'No, we don't'. Seriously, most organisations that I have been wrapped up in do that first and then ask you for an answer, not say, 'We're going to do it' and then we have to argue about it.

Mr BEST - I take that point and I have that message loud and clear. What I am interested in is how you, as an organisation, see yourself moving forward. I hear what you have said, you do not want the sale of TOTE, but I am keen to know what strategies you see that will enhance, say, the interests, business end and the social end for yourselves. That is what I am keen to know about.

Mr BULLOCK - This is a difficult one. I think Craig Coleman, since he has been the CEO of TOTE, has done an outstanding job by getting the Betfair deal on-line with turnover, et cetera. I do not have a problem there. They are not bad people and I am not against them personally, but the whole issue is - and this is the bottom line all the time for me but it may not be for the other two people who are here because we have not been coerced to give you the one answer - there has been no consultation, there is no business plan, no-one wants to talk about it. It does not matter which politician you ring at home, 'Look, there's going to be a hearing in Hobart'. What is the problem? Let us talk about it because we will never get it fixed if we do not talk about it. What Jim says about communication is correct.

Mr BOOTH - What I am interested in is you have clearly said that you are opposed to the sale, is that because you think the culture of your industry will collapse, basically be ruined, if it proceeds? Is that the risk that in fact you will lose your industry as a result of the sale?

Ms FYSH - It is definitely a risk but until we see something on paper we do not know how big that risk is or where on the ladder the greyhound industry is going to sit. How far under the other two codes are we going to sit? South Australia is a glaring example of how to get it wrong. They have fought for 10 years to get back on their feet.

Mr BOOTH - Are there other intangible benefits that flow as a result of government ownership of TOTE at the moment that are not included in the stakes and bonuses and so forth, so whatever you provided to the industry that would be part of that like access to the training facilities, say, or facilities generally that might be taken away by a private operator or a charge imposed?

Ms FYSH - We are still trying to get our head around the new structure. We are very early into the new structure and trying to get our head around who now has responsibility for this trial track or that race track or where to go for particular funding. We are still trying to get our heads around this. On top of that, there is this. It is difficult to bring the two together.

Mr BULLOCK - There are a lot of issues in our industry that need attention. I believe, and according to some administrators, there is a problem with the Brighton training track that part of it is going to be taken away for soccer. I do not think there is a lease to the place. I know that the Launceston Greyhound Racing Club still has not signed heads of agreement for Mowbray and they have been there since 2004, that is five years ago.

Ms FYSH - Hobart has not either.

Mr BULLOCK - These are all little administration issues that no-one seems to get to because they do not want to discuss it.

Ms FYSH - And no-one knows whose job it is.

Mr BOOTH - Is it a lot more than just the stakes?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, a lot more.

Ms FYSH - It goes a lot deeper.

Mr BULLOCK - The stakes are part of it and that is thing that concerns us with the sale of TOTE, but there is maintenance and track maintenance.

Mr GREEN - What about Sky Channel?

Mr BULLOCK - It is a huge problem, Bryan, because at the moment I think TOTE and Sky Channel have signed an agreement up to the end of June. There is some doubt about Hobart staying on Thursday nights because it has become first track of the pay packet when everything can come in for nothing. It is where Sky Channel and the two major players, Victoria and New South Wales, once again, can get a product in that is not costing them anything, race field legislation and fees for buying their product. Tas TOTE will have to buy from New South Wales and Victoria what they are going to bet on. It is a whole changing world. Mind you, some of this was created by Greyhound Racing Authority of New South Wales originally -

Mr GREEN - Does it have an impact on potential dividends?

Mr BULLOCK - Yes, it does.

Mr GREEN - Changes on Sky can impact on your dividends overnight.

Mr BULLOCK - That's right.

Ms FYSH - Even down to how much time they allot you. If they do not give you a couple of minutes running into your race your turnover can be down $10 000 or $20 000 and you are talking a minute.

Mr BULLOCK - The other issue is that you are getting to is that if Hobart was taken off Thursday night and put on Tuesday morning there is going to be a huge downturn -

Mr GREEN - There is.

Mr BULLOCK - in TAB turnover. I understand that fully. I have discussed it with Sky Channel, I have discussed it with TOTE Tasmania.

Mr GREEN - Does Sky make those decisions or is it part of the -

Mr BULLOCK - I think Sky are dictating to the industry everywhere in Australia.

Mr GREEN - Yes.

Mr BULLOCK - The other issue with that is it is only New South Wales by Tabcorp. They always show the New South Wales races irrespective thereof and the rest are fill-ins. It is interesting to note that Victoria and New South Wales have the same number of programs on each occasion, the other States are just -

Mr BEST - I am interested in that you know a lot more about greyhound racing -

Mr BULLOCK - No, I do not.

Mr BEST - Where would be the top three or four places in the world for greyhound racing? Are we one of them?

Mr BULLOCK - Australia is one of them.

Mr BEST - How would you rate it if, as you said, Australia is one?

Mr BULLOCK - There is no doubt.

Mr BEST - What are the others?

Mr BULLOCK - Ireland, United Kingdom, America, Macau, Vietnam, Sweden and New Zealand. I went to New Zealand about 12 months ago and could not believe how far in front of us they are with stake money. The minimum stake in New Zealand is $2 900 and they are there by default with their screening of a Sunday afternoon. No-one wanted to race Sunday afternoons so they did and their TAB turnover went up something like 78 per cent. Just as now everybody wants to get on Thursday nights and Sundays in Australia with Sky Channel, the little people are getting forced out of the game.

The other thing is, since the mines have folded in Western Australia, TAB turnover has gone down something like 43 per cent in the last two months and people in Western Australia were buying greyhounds from the eastern States, to race over there, that were miners and those miners have either lost their job or they have come back to the eastern States and some of those dogs have gone by the wayside.

Mr BEST - So out of that, just a quick answer. Where would be the most turnover or the most betting out of those places that you have named?

Mr BULLOCK - I think, population wise, probably the United Kingdom.

CHAIR - Thank you very much for presenting. You have done that with passion and I think we have heard it loud and clear. I must just remind you again, though, that what you have said in here is protected by parliamentary privilege. However, it is a different matter outside that door. Thank you very much to the three of you and we will keep going with our hearings.

Mr BULLOCK - Once again, Mr Chairman, thank you for hearing us today because I would not have been available next week.

THE WITNESSES WITHDREW.

Mr COLIN HOWLETT WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Colin, you are aware of our terms of reference. I think you may have given evidence to a parliamentary committee before, and you heard what I read out in regard to parliamentary privilege. Are you okay with that?

Mr HOWLETT - I understand, Mr Chairman.

CHAIR - Okay. I will ask you to make a presentation.

Mr HOWLETT - Mr Chairman, unlike my former colleagues, I will read most of my notes. Unfortunately I do not have enough money to own a greyhound, a harness racer or a galloper. So that is my position.

Mr GREEN - I fly pigeons.

Mr HOWLETT - I am thinking about flying pigeons, Bryan. If you tolerate me reading this, it is in two parts.

CHAIR - That is fine.

Mr HOWLETT - I have written a letter to the Minister for Racing which I would certainly like to share with you.

Objection to the sale of TOTE Tasmania. The three racing codes in Tasmania provide significant employment to a broad range of individuals involved in small businesses, including tourism, in this State. Historically, the three codes of racing provide socioeconomic benefits to rural communities who are unable to provide the diverse job opportunities in more populated areas.

We wish to submit that private enterprise's first obligation is to its shareholders and not to the individual owners providing the product. Many examples exist where governments have forced transfers of ownership of publicly-owned enterprises and pledged its intervention would provide improved economic and customer service.

In many instances when governments decide to sell a public profitable enterprise it has a pecuniary interest to prop up a poorly managed budget. We wish to submit that in the case of the proposed sale of TOTE Tasmania the Government must be accountable to the industry shareholders and in any sale contract must make provision for realistic, long-term finance (indexed) for the infrastructure, breeding and prize money.

Mr GREEN - Excuse me Colin, when you say 'we' who are you talking about? Are you talking about the general public?

Mr HOWLETT - I am talking about many people in the greyhound industry and I am talking about -

Mr GREEN - But you say 'we must' as if you are representing a committee or somebody else. Are you on your own?

Mr HOWLETT - I am representing life members of the greyhound industry; I am representing many people who are unable to come along and attend the meeting today.

Mr GREEN - You are saying that we must be satisfied -

Mr HOWLETT - Do you want to discredit my attendance?

Mr GREEN - Not at all. I am asking the question whether you are representing yourself or representing another group because it sounded as though you were talking about a committee or somebody else who -

Mr HOWLETT - I am talking about the racing code and if you let me go through the entire process, you will probably learn more of where I am coming from.

Mr GREEN - Fair enough, Colin, go right ahead. I was only trying to help.

Mr HOWLETT - There is a little heading 'Sustainability for the greyhound industry'. Historically the greyhound industry has been treated as the poor relation by governments over many years. And I have heard that repeated and inferred many, many times this morning.

The TCA on the Hobart Domain accommodated greyhound racing and training activities for a long period of time until the racing authority/Government needed additional reasons to spend significant funds to upgrade the harness racing track at the Royal Showgrounds at Glenorchy.

The racing authority was keen to secure funds for the harness racing and training facility at the Royal Showgrounds, however, they needed additional justification to obtain government funds. Eventually all greyhound activities accommodated at the TCA ground were transferred to the Royal Showgrounds.

No say, similar to what is proposed at the moment. The transfer of greyhound racing to the Royal Showgrounds presented many challenges linked to infrastructure and many difficulties relating to the shared facilities.

People who are in the operational side of greyhound racing would be able to share those challenges with you with lures breaking down, boxes not working properly, track disintegrating to the point where race meetings had to be postponed and all those sort of challenges. And that is the intent and the spirit of what I am saying about challenges.

Subsequent to the greyhound racing and training being transferred to the Royal Showgrounds the southern Tasmanian component of the greyhound industry incrementally lost its independence and became more reliant on outside influence.

That statement is purely focused towards the Government. The greyhound code had more sustainability at the old TCA grounds because they had an independent lease arrangement with the principle of the TCA and in many respects people would argue that they had more future there had they not been manipulated and taken away from their principle home.

For numerous reasons some greyhound participants preferred to use privately-owned training facilities. However, over time the privately owned facilities in southern Tasmania disappeared. Thirty years ago there would have been 10 to 12 privately-owned training facilities for greyhounds, some of which were registered with the national body. My family had the first semi-circular track at Richmond registered during Mr Morgan's administration at the TCA ground. You had to go through a process there to go the tracks registered but that was one particular track. Many others were registered under the national greyhound regime.

Greyhound Owners, Trainers and Breeders Association was active in asking the Government to provide funding to commission and operate a much needed straight and circle greyhound training facility. Again, we were unsuccessful in obtaining funding. However, the GOTBA was mindful that the racing authority was starving the industry of infrastructure facilities and without alternative training facilities the greyhound industry would not be sustainable.

The following events have been documented and are in a separate briefing covering the GOTBA and the Howlett family providing funding for developing two training tracks on crown land at Brighton. The events over the past 23 years regarding the intent and spirit of the industry, which was intended to be a 99-year lease occupancy for the greyhound code, of approximately - and there is debate about whether it is 11 hectares or 12 hectares, but it is in that area of ground - 11 or 12 hectares of ground at Brighton which adjoins the horse training facility at Brighton. It is on the south-eastern end of the trialling facilities for harness racing and gallopers. Our understanding is that it is still under the one title. Historically the greyhound industry has not had the influence of other codes and in many respect has been handicapped from the provision of sustainable infrastructure. The racing authority, to the best of our knowledge, has not put money into training facilities other than on the proper principal racecourse venue.

Sometimes under difficult circumstances our participants have struggled to remain in the industry, which makes a significant contribution to the Tasmanian economy. Following large sums of money being spent on the horse training complex at Brighton, TOTE Tasmania is currently mowing grass on the straight greyhound track at Brighton. To the best of the greyhound code industry that is about the only dedicated money off the racing track proper that has been provided.

Employment and downstream benefits - racing authorities must recognise that the three codes of the racing industry provide significant employment throughout rural Tasmania.

Financial support for the other industries - historically governments have provided financial support for industry employment, however there is little evidence of the three industry codes receiving recognition in the same way. In fact, it is extremely difficult to access individual greyhound industry infrastructure programs which would support sustainability.

Essential tools required for a sustainable future for the greyhound industry - to provide sustainability the Government must enter into a legal contract providing a 20-year blueprint plan acknowledging that greyhound racing is an industry and future allocation of funds to be indexed to CPI for the provision of infrastructure, stake money, which must be fair and equitable and be performance-based.

The reason we say that is that is the greyhound, as I understand at this very moment, from a betting point of view, is producing a very significant amount of betting revenue to TOTE Tasmania. In fact, it is getting very close to the galloping code.

The greyhound code must be provided with a fair percentage of revenue produced from betting turnover which must be divided into infrastructure, development and stake money. The allocation of funds must be tied, indexed and distributed to an independent group delegated by the code to represent the entire participants.

The Joint Standing Committee on Environment, Resources and Development are requested to reject the sale of TOTE Tasmania, based on not being in the best interest of the industry and the Tasmanian economy.

I certainly would like to be questioned on some of these things but, in the end, I thank the committee for providing me with the time to produce this.

CHAIR - Thank you, Colin.

Mr HOWLETT - I have a letter here that went to the minister.

CHAIR - Do you want to table that?

Mr HOWLETT - Do you want me to table it rather than read it?

CHAIR - Yes, you can table that, if you wouldn't mind.

Mr HOWLETT - This deals entirely with the Brighton fiasco with land. Mr Chair, there are two or three additional copies here if any individual member would like one.

CHAIR - Thank you.

Mr GUTWEIN - Colin, I am sorry I missed the first couple of minutes of your presentation. You mentioned that the greyhound code needs a 20-year blueprint and that under that there would be provision made for infrastructure spending for stake money etcetera. You said that it needed to be performance-based; I am wondering what you meant by that and how that fits in.

Mr HOWLETT - The reason we say that is simply that governments will say that they cannot guarantee revenue from government to government. In our view, it would be quite simple if it was performance-based, providing the Government is not permitted to run down an industry and that is the way it appears at the moment. As I said, and I am repeating myself, the greyhound code has no influence, politically or otherwise, or it doesn't appear to have had any influence over the years that I have been involved.

I was a long-life member of the Greyhound Owners, Trainers and Breeders Association and some 23 years ago I had seven or eight years involved with the association. That is how my family and I became involved with Brighton because we knew it was absolutely essential. If it is performance-based, and the Government is not allowed to run down the code, which it appears it is doing at this very moment, providing that is treated fairly from a performance-based point of view, I think we are talking about revenue earned from betting. At the moment the greyhound industry is producing very close to the amount of money that the gallopers are producing, well in excess of the harness racing. I think it could be very close to a photo finish between the amounts of money that the galloping code and the greyhound code are producing in revenue. The argument would be that if they do not perform and they are treated fairly - and that will have to change because they have never been treated fairly - they would be quite happy to have it performance-based on betting turnover.

Mr GUTWEIN - That is fair enough.

Mr HARRISS - I want to go from the back of that. I want to know, Colin, do you have the statistical data to support that statement that you are getting close to the contribution that the gallopers make?

Mr HOWLETT - I do not have it here but I am sure I can access it for the committee.

CHAIR - If you could do that, thank you. You can provide that to the secretary when you can.

Mr BOOTH - Colin, thank you for your statement so far. What do you see as the threats if TOTE were privatised? Where do you see the greyhound industry being in the future?

Mr HOWLETT - Without being facetious, at the moment we getting our grass mowed on the straight track, which was provided by private money, and the Government absolutely did not, to my knowledge, put one cent into that. So the pluses are, at the moment, that TOTE Tasmania has been good enough to have the grass mowed on the straight trialing track at Brighton. That is a plus. We have made the evaluation that there is a better risk that TOTE Tasmania will treat the industry fairer; if we can prove to the politicians that we are not being treated fairly, we think there is a better proposition with the TOTE.

Needless to say, at the moment, at the Brighton Council the Government seems to be running a coordinated effort to incrementally squeeze the greyhounds out of the Brighton trialing facility. It is questionable whether, in fact, what the Brighton Council is doing is fair and reasonable from a planning perspective because, as I understand, that entire 11-12 hectares that we speak about is annexed as one title to the Brighton training complex. When the straight track went in there and the circle track was put in there, we were told that we did not have a planning problem because that section of ground, that 12 hectares, was already zoned for training purposes.

CHAIR - Colin, I think we need to move back to the core issue that we are here for today and it is about the sale of TOTE. I understand that is an issue that you have.

Mr HOWLETT - With the greatest respect, Chair, it is linked very closely to the sale of TOTE. If you rule differently I will have to accept that but I would think you are being a bit hard on me if you say it is not linked.

Mr BOOTH - Chair, for confirmation, it was following from a line of questioning about the effect of the sale. What Colin is detailing is a general support in the industry, off-track and on-track. I think it is relevant in terms of what I asked him.

Mr HOWLETT - The facility up there is extremely important for the future sustainability of the industry, for training, for people who want to use the facility to get the best performance out of their product for race nights. A lot of people do not like training their product on the track on which they race. I do not understand the technicalities but they will tell you and I can provide that information if you so desire. It is absolutely imperative that the racing code does not lose that 12 hectares of land that was originally intended.. We were duded. I have heard comments here earlier where I believe the industry was duded, because when we went in there the intent and spirit was that we had a 99-year lease on that 11 or 12 hectares of land, which was growing white wattles at the time.

CHAIR - Okay, I understand the nexus.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think the total aggregated industry as whole would be able to come up with a blueprint for the future in terms of your funding needs, support, and infrastructure to maintain your present culture?

Mr HOWLETT - I am absolutely certain they could come up with a business plan. The answer to that is, yes, we can. But on past performance, I would not like our chances.

Mr BOOTH - So there is a lack of trust in what the Government -

Mr HOWLETT - There is a local trust. As I say, it is unfortunate but the greyhound racing code has never had the interest, really. Geoff Pearsall was the only elected member that I can remember who took an interest in greyhound racing. It was about the time he was minister that this took place at Brighton - 23 or 24 years ago.

Mr BOOTH - In terms of a privatisation and sale of TOTE, the areas that you would lose out on would be generally the off-track support that you are currently getting, off the racing track support?

Mr HOWLETT - Private enterprise is generally interested in bottom lines and unless there is a very robust legal contract, there is no way. You only have to cast your mind back to other public enterprises that have been sold. It is always said it has been for the benefit of the customer but it generally does not turn out that way. There is the lack of trust. There is the lack of previous support. There is the lack of private money being spent to provide these facilities that are now being eroded.

CHAIR - Thank you. Are there any further questions to Colin? Do you have a closing statement, Colin?

Mr HOWLETT - I thank the committee for hearing me. I plead with members of the Legislative Council not to pass this bill to sell TOTE Tasmania unless there are long-term legal and binding contractual arrangements to protect us. In my view, the galloping code will be okay. They have the right doors to open and they will be okay. I am very concerned about, to a lesser degree, the harness racing and the greyhounds, and the greyhounds are the ones that always miss out.

Mr BEST - A long-term contract for funding for the codes; is that what you are saying?

Mr GUTWEIN - That is a blueprint you are talking about, is it?

Mr HOWLETT - I am talking about a proper strategic plan with objectives to keep the industries, with particular reference to the greyhounds, vibrant and robust and producing revenue for the State of Tasmania.

Mr BOOTH - You feel that the obligation of Government, before they consider a sale, is to make sure they consult with you, get that blueprint, look at it and factor in whatever arrangements are made?

Mr HOWLETT - Absolutely.

CHAIR - Thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr DON CHALLEN, DEPARTMENT OF TREASURY AND FINANCE, WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Welcome, Mr Challen. Don, you are well aware of our terms of reference and that is the proposed sale of TOTE by the Government of Tasmania and any other matters incidental thereto. I will hand over to you if you would like to make a statement and then you can take some questions from the committee.

Mr CHALLEN - I thought it might help if I made a brief statement outlining the structure and process that the Government has in mind in relation to the restructuring of the industry around TOTE and the sale. Members of this committee would be aware that some legislation has already been before the Parliament last year, and is now in place, that had the effect of separating the funding of the racing industry from the gaming operations of TOTE. That legislation established the Tasmanian Racing Board, which is now in place. It has left the TOTE as a business that is entirely focused on its gaming activities. Apart from that, the status quo hasn't changed and in particular the nexus that exists in the existing legislation between the income of the TOTE business and the funding of the racing industry has not changed.

The Government has in mind to bring two further pieces of legislation before the Parliament. One will be a set of amendments to the Gaming Control Act and the other will be a piece of legislation authorising the sale of the TOTE business. The amendments to the Gaming Control Act will break the funding nexus between the income of the TOTE and the racing industry. That will be replaced by a direct funding arrangement under which it is proposed there would be a funding deed, a legally-binding agreement between the Crown and the Tasmanian Racing Board. That will become the basis for the funding of the racing industry in the future. In addition, these amendments to the Gaming Control Act will provide for the licensing of the totalisator activity that is undertaken by the TOTE at present and bring the TOTE within a regulatory framework that is identical to the framework that other operators in the gaming industry are currently subject to. The mechanism we have in mind to do that would be the creation of a new totalisator endorsement under a Tasmanian gaming licence. If you are familiar with the Gaming Control Act, it creates a number of endorsements under Tasmanian gaming licences. There will be a new one for a totalisator licence and the TOTE will initially be deemed to hold one of those. Obviously there will be the usual structures of taxes and fees that go with the endorsements under the act but beyond that the entire suite of regulatory infrastructure that applies to all other gaming activities will then apply to the TOTE, or ultimately after the sale to a private operator of the TOTE. So we are moving from a regulatory framework in which the TOTE has been subject only to self-regulation to bring them under exactly the same regulatory model that applies to all other operators.

The legislation for the sale of the TOTE will be pretty familiar to you; it will just have the standard requirements that are necessary for us to get a business sold. And once we have the suite of legislation in place the plan is then to go through a very conventional sale process for the sale of the TOTE, pretty much along the lines of the one that we used for the sale of Hobart International Airport Proprietary Limited in the course of last year.

We have engaged some advisors to help us with this process. We have a financial advisor who initially we engaged to help us with some of the industry aspects of the restructuring. Their contract also provides for them to advise us in relation to the sale. We have engaged legal advisors and we have also engaged a probity adviser.

With that Mr Chairman, I am happy to hand over to the committee for any questions you would like to ask.

CHAIR - Don, I might ask the first question of you. Can you give any indication of when any of those particular pieces of legislation might come before the Parliament?

Mr CHALLEN - It is probably a matter best addressed to the Treasurer whom I understand will be with you later this afternoon.

CHAIR - Okay. When did Treasury start analysing this proposed sale? Can you recall that?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes. We first began work on options in relation to the restructuring and the sale on 7 May in 2008.

CHAIR - Okay. And a business case for the sale, has that been prepared?

Mr CHALLEN - A business case for the sale, no.

Mr WILKINSON - Don, if I might. You have said that Treasury began work on the restructuring and sale -

Mr CHALLEN - Options for.

Mr WILKINSON - Options for, yes, in May. Is that the same with all GBEs?

Mr CHALLEN - I do not understand the question.

Mr WILKINSON - What I am asking is do you always look at options in relation to all GBEs as to whether they should or should not be sold?

Mr CHALLEN - Always is probably putting it a little strong. Let us say that we have the government's business portfolio under regular review and there are various trigger points at times that occur like changes of government and changes of minister where we might have a fresh look at the government's business portfolio. But Treasury has been providing advice to Treasurers probably for more than a decade that we felt that the TOTE business was not one that any longer sat very well inside a government business portfolio. Our reviews of the government business portfolio would have had it in a category that had it available for sale if a government was of a mind to do that.

In this particular case we had a discussion with the Treasurer around 7 May which led to me internally commissioning some work that has ultimately grown in advice to government that has led to a decision that the Treasurer announced on 8 January 2009, as I recall. Which has ultimately led to these announcements.

Mr WILKINSON - At the start of December 2008, how far were you down the track of giving that final advice to the Treasurer to allow him to make a decision with obviously the rest of government to sell?

Mr CHALLEN - We were well advanced. We had provided a series of discussion papers to the Treasurer on what needed to be done to restructure the business and ultimately sell it; about how you would go about a sale if the government was of a mind to do that. We had provided advice to the Treasurer that if he so chose he could take to Cabinet to seek approval for the sale.

I emphasise that at that stage no decisions had been made.

Mr WILKINSON - Do you know when that went to Cabinet?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes, I do. The Treasurer approved the cabinet minute for transmission to Cabinet on 19 December. I am not authorised, Mr Chairman, to reveal the next piece of information but I have specific approval in this case. Cabinet approved the sale of the TOTE on 22 December, which is my birthday, Mr Chairman - very auspicious.

Mr WILKINSON - That is right, I will remember that. That has thrown me off what I was going to ask as a matter of fact. I will defer.

Mr GUTWEIN - So that we are clear, Mr Challen, prior to early December - in fact I know it was 4 December - in an upper House committee Mr Aird said that there was no intention to sell TOTE at that stage. In the lower House a couple of weeks earlier, on 20 November, Mr Cox spoke, on behalf of the Treasurer and Minister for Racing, and he said numerous times that TOTE is not for sale. Had the advice received by the Treasurer or by government prior to 20 November on the recommendation to sell TOTE, been received?

Mr CHALLEN - No.

Mr GUTWEIN - On what date was that received by government?

Mr CHALLEN - It would have been in a minute we provided to the Treasurer on 19 November.

Mr GUTWEIN - My question was, was the advice received before 20 November?

Mr CHALLEN - The day before, yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - So it was?

Mr CHALLEN - I do not know when it was received. It was signed by me and left the Treasury on 19 November. Often, these things take at least 24 hours to get to the Treasurer's office.

Mr WILKINSON - Don, the question I was going to ask concerned the restructuring and the selling. Did the TOTE have to be restructured or the racing legislation that we had before us towards the end of last year in relation to restructuring, did that have to take place for the sale?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes. The restructuring could take place without the sale, but you could not have sold that business in the form it was prior to that restructuring.

Mr WILKINSON - Was the restructuring partially done in order to allow it to be placed for sale?

Mr CHALLEN - The restructuring was done because it was a good thing to do. It was in the TOTE's interest and in the interests of the racing industry. One of the things the restructuring has done is to much improve the focus of the TOTE as a business and I think it has positioned us to put the funding of the racing industry on a much better and more secure, more certain footing going forward. All those things were a good idea, but you could not have sold the TOTE business without doing the restructuring. Decisions were made that government would proceed with the restructuring and bring the legislation that came to Parliament late last year forward a long time before any decisions were made in relation to the sale.

Mr WILKINSON - What I am wondering is, was the sale always part of the reasoning behind the restructure? I understand the argument that was used -

Mr CHALLEN - It depends in whose mind. In my mind, yes, because I was advising the Government to proceed with the sale all along. In the Government's mind you will have to ask the Treasurer because the Government considered the issues in sequence. It considered the advisability of proceeding with the restructuring and did not give the sale any particular attention. Then late last year, as you know, it turned to consideration of whether they would proceed with the sale. On 22 December Cabinet made a decision that they would and the Treasurer announced that publicly on 8 January.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Mr Challen, can I take you back to February 2003 - and I know that is quite a way back. There is a document called 'Government Business Divestment' which states in a table that TOTE would be an unlikely candidate for a sale. Can you tell me what happened between 2003 until when you arrived at the decision that TOTE was a good thing to sell? I need to understand how things have changed quite significantly.

Mr CHALLEN - I would have to review that document and the circumstances of it, but it no doubt reflects the thinking of the time. It probably reflects the thinking of the minister and the Government of the day that they were not interested in selling the TOTE. We prepare assessments like that of the government business portfolio from time to time and they reflect the realities of government policy of the day.

For instance, if you saw a document like that today, you would not see the three electricity businesses listed in a column for sale because the government policy of today is definitely not to sell those businesses. One thing that changes is a willingness on the part of government to consider selling certain businesses and the other is changes in market conditions. In 2003 not as many Australian governments had sold their government-owned totalisator businesses as now have. It is just that circumstances change through time.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - It also states that the divestment of any business should not occur until a thorough due diligence process has been conducted. Do you consider that that has happened?

Mr CHALLEN - We have just about completed that. We are in the process of doing it at the moment.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Is there no actual final due diligence material that we could look at at this point in time and say that is the right thing to do and so the sale should proceed?

Mr CHALLEN - With respect, I do not think you should look at that due diligence material ever. I think for that to get into your hands would seriously put at risk the price that we might get for that business. I would certainly counsel you not to ask for it.

Mr BOOTH - Chair, I was going to ask that the committee order the disclosure of all those documents, including the due diligence reports. In fact, I am somewhat concerned from what I have just heard that the decision to sell TOTE may have been made well before both Houses of the Parliament were advised. In order to get to the bottom of that, we are going to need to look at the contract regarding the restructure which is also advising the sale. Was that with Clayton Utz?

Mr CHALLEN - No, the advisers are Deloitte. Clayton Utz are our legal advisers. Mr Chairman, this committee summonsed me to produce a wide range of documents, which I have with me.

CHAIR - Did you say you have these documents with you?

Mr CHALLEN - I have them in my briefcase. I am proposing to pass them to the committee, after I have made a statement in relation to the material, at a convenient time to your committee and the contract that Mr Booth is referring to is in that folder.

CHAIR - Would you like to make that statement now or Kim, have you finished your questioning?

Mr BOOTH - Certainly, either way, Chair, I am happy for Mr Challen to make that statement. I have not finished this line of questioning.

CHAIR - Okay. We will do that in camera when you give that.

Mr CHALLEN - It might be convenient to do this at a later stage of the hearing.

Mr GREEN - Yes, that is exactly right. I was going to say that they are going to do that in camera.

Mr BOOTH - What date was the contract about the restructuring and advising of the sale that was made with Deloitte? You did mention it before but I didn't get that.

Mr CHALLEN - The contract with Deloitte was signed on 11 December. They started work for us before that. They were advised on 24 November 2008, that they had won the mandate and they began work for us on that date but we did not sign the contract until 11 December 2008.

Mr BOOTH - But weren't they contracted to do the restructure advice?

Mr CHALLEN - Not to us.

Mr BOOTH - I made a note that you said you had a contract for advice with someone and I think you said it was Deloitte at the time - the same people to do with giving advice about the restructuring of the industry.

Mr CHALLEN - But they were only commissioned to start that work on 24 November.

Mr BOOTH - After the restructuring had been passed through Parliament.

Mr CHALLEN - No, the restructuring had not been passed through Parliament at that stage.

Mr BOOTH - November last year?

Mr CHALLEN - I don't think so.

Mr BOOTH - The industry restructure regulations went through on 23 November.

Mr CHALLEN - In any event, that is when they commenced -

Mr BOOTH - I am somewhat confused here. You contracted Deloitte to advise on an industry restructure, from what you have said -

Mr CHALLEN - No, not on the industry restructure, on the restructure of the TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - Did they give you advice about the restructure of the industry itself?

Mr CHALLEN - Not prior to that, no.

Mr BOOTH - At the date it went through the House, sometime at the end of November, you engaged with Deloitte to give you advice about how to sell TOTE?

Mr CHALLEN - We engaged with them to give us some advice in relation to restructuring TOTE. A second part of the contract goes on to give advice in relation to the sale, but in fact they have hardly done anything under the second part of that yet. Most of the work that has been done to date has been on the structure of the business, what you have to do to make sure it is a viable business going forward. They have been doing a due diligence exercise for us as part of that contract.

Mr BOOTH - Will you be tabling that contract and the documents?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - I have two questions and one is in regard to due diligence. On 24 November you contracted Deloitte to look at the restructuring of TOTE, including the due diligence required for a sale?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - That is one month almost to the day before Cabinet approved the sale of TOTE. Would that be normal to be as pre-emptive as that?

Mr CHALLEN - We needed the work done.

Mr GUTWEIN - Even if there wasn't going to be a sale?

Mr CHALLEN - You will see when you see the contract that it is structured in such a way that there are two distinct bodies of work - they are quite separate - and I don't have to proceed with the second body of the work - and I don't want to - if the Government did not proceed to approve the sale. I structured the contract in such a way that the restructuring of the TOTE business advice I could get and then I could get the adviser to go on and give me the advice in relation to the sale.

There is something I would like to add, Mr Chairman, but I don't want to say it in public. I can add it later, if you like. I will explain to you why I structured the contract that way.

CHAIR - I accept that advice. We'll keep that until later.

Mr GUTWEIN - The other question is in regard to the decision-making process of government. I think you were asked a question earlier about whether or not a business case had been prepared for the sale of TOTE and you said that it hadn't.

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - On what basis did you provide advice then to government that it should proceed with the sale if the business case wasn't prepared? On what basis would Cabinet have made a decision to proceed with the sale of TOTE if there wasn't a business case prepared?

Mr CHALLEN - I don't understand this interest in a business case. It is not normal to do a business case when you are going to sell something. It is next to impossible to do that until you know what you can get for selling it. The reality is that, as part of the sale process itself, the final step before you recommend to the Government that it proceeds to sell to the selected bidder, is that you provide advice that the outcome of the sale will produce a preferable outcome to maintaining ownership of the business. I don't understand the interest in a business case.

Mr GUTWEIN - Could you explain the basis of the advice because perhaps that included the information that might be included in the business case?

Mr CHALLEN - The advice was around whether a totalisator business was something that was a good thing to have in the government business portfolio. Our view is, and has been for some time, that there is no particular reason for a government to own a totalisator business. Why would you? We had some connections between our totalisator business and the funding of the racing industry that provided a bit of an attachment within some quarters inside the public sector intending to own the TOTE, but that was a bit of an oddity. When you take that away and replace it with something that provides better and more certain funding to the racing industry, you are then left with a business that has no particular reason for being within the government business portfolios, in the same category as the Printing Authority. Why would you own a printing authority?

Mr GUTWEIN - In regard to that advice and using the Printing Authority as an example, any business has, hopefully, a profit at the end of the year. It would provide either dividend to government or tax equivalents. The TOTE, quite separate to the functions of the Printing Authority, provides a much greater benefit to Tasmania than what it simply declares in profits or the dividends to government or tax equivalents.

Mr CHALLEN - Does it? What benefit is that?

Mr GUTWEIN - The Chairman of Racing indicates that TOTE in the last 12 months has paid around $23 million to the Tasmanian racing industry and that would be a benefit to Tasmania, would it not?

Mr CHALLEN - If the racing industry gets the $23 million from somewhere else, there is no particular benefit from having the TOTE to the racing industry. The only benefit is that a racing industry needs a certain level of funding.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mr Challen, that goes to where my question was going, if I could finish. That advice to government and that provided advice as to how that sort of benefit to the Tasmanian racing industry might be protected under any sale.

Mr CHALLEN - Yes. What we have proposed and what I understand the Treasurer is proposing to do is to put in place a funding deed with the Tasmanian Racing Board in which the funding to the racing industry would come directly from the government budget. So the racing industry, instead of having an uncertain stream of income coming from the TOTE, subject to the vagaries of how the TOTE business performs, will have a certain stream of revenue like other things that are funded by the Government.

Mr GUTWEIN - Are the parameters of that deed in the document you are going to share with us or not?

Mr CHALLEN - No, they are not.

Mr GUTWEIN - Are you at liberty to share the parameters of Treasury's view in regard to that deed?

Mr CHALLEN - No, these are matters that are under policy discussion at the moment and that question is best put to the Treasurer.

Mr WILKINSON - I suppose one question could be, Don, was the advice received? Is it classed as ideological or philosophical advice or based on hard-nosed accounting and economic analysis?

Mr CHALLEN - It is definitely hard-nosed and it is definitely based on analysis. I do not think it is ideological or philosophical. But what businesses governments need to own are subject to a bit of fashion. Fifty years ago there were different views around about what were good things to be in government business portfolios and life is different now. Totalisator businesses were owned by probably all State and Territory governments in Australia up until a decade ago and now we are amongst the last to get rid of them. Likewise, 50 years ago I imagine every government had a construction business like our old department of construction and probably they all had government printers as well but now nobody does. You could say it is, in part, subject to a bit of fashion.

Mr WILKINSON - Why now? Is it because -

Mr CHALLEN - Sorry, if I may just finish that bit.

Mr WILKINSON - Yes.

Mr CHALLEN - Our view is that governments are not bright at being business owners and they are better off to confine their ownership of businesses to things that really need to be inside the government business portfolio.

Why now? We think this is a good time. The TOTE business has been performing well and there is no certainty that the business will continue to perform well. It is a very cut-throat, competitive business that it is operating in. So why wouldn't you exploit an opportunity to sell it when its value is probably at a relative high?

Mr BOOTH - Do you have a formal analysis of that or is that just a personal opinion?

Mr CHALLEN - It was a personal opinion based on, I confess, not huge expertise of the industry, but we have subsequently taken advice on that from expert industry advisers which confirms it.

Mr WILKINSON - Without sitting from outside in the upper House, Don, one could argue that the economy has been travelling well over the last x amount of years. Tasmania is still doing well, it would seem, as opposed to other States and certainly countries. But there are going to be difficulties with the budget as a result of GST and as a result of duties, payroll tax maybe, et cetera. Was the major reason for the sale in order to allow the Government to continue to fund things which they would not have otherwise have been able to fund if they do not sell the TOTE?

Mr CHALLEN - The decision was not directly made around particular budget pressures that existed at a point in time. But for a few years, the Government has been putting a particular priority on infrastructure spending, one I strongly support. The experience with the airport sale demonstrated the benefit that you can get from divesting yourself of a business that you do not really need to own in terms of having some money available to put into significant pieces of infrastructure - our irrigations schemes, our transport hub, road upgrades and the like. So selling a business that is ripe for sale is attractive when we can put the funds to good use, particularly on infrastructure.

If you hold the view, as I do, that the Government does not need to own this business, why would you keep it? Why wouldn't you put it into public infrastructure?

Mr BOOTH - It is not for the benefit of the industry that it is being sold, then? It is clearly to grab the cash and put it into something else?

Mr CHALLEN - I would not characterise it like that, Mr Booth. But no, it is not for the benefit of the industry, though I think that the industry will be better off as a result of these arrangements. It is an act of faith that the TOTE business is going to continue performing well. If I was a member of that industry I would be very happy to have my uncertain revenue stream tied to the fortunes of the TOTE replaced by a very certain and secure income stream coming directly from the Budget.

Mr BOOTH - I am intrigued in regard to what you said about the business case and your view that in fact it would not require a business case in this regard because you are simply selling the business on. I do not think I'm in conflict with what the Auditor-General's evidence was this morning that clearly you should have a business case prepared that takes into account all of the aspects, both social and economic, of the value of TOTE to the industry as a whole and that you would actually have to look at that. From a probity point of view that would be the appropriate thing to do. What have you got to say about that?

Mr WILKINSON - Certain evidence was in camera.

Mr CHALLEN - It doesn't matter; I do not know what he said so I cannot react to something I did not hear. Let me reiterate; I do not agree that it is necessary or appropriate to do a business case before you make a decision about whether you sell a business like this. You need to do what you would do in a business case at the final stage when you know what the market value of it is. How would we have done a business case for the airport sale, for instance. What price would you put on it to decide whether it was better sold or retained?

Mr GUTWEIN - That is ridiculous, Mr Challen. You must have had a bottom-line figure that a business case would support to say, 'Well, okay, if we do not get that price then we will not go to market'.

Mr CHALLEN - Indeed, but that is the retention value.

Mr GUTWEIN - So have you done a business case on that basis for the TOTE?

Mr CHALLEN - No, I have already answered that question. We have not done a business case for the sale of the TOTE. We will at the final stage before we recommend that the Government goes ahead and sells it. We will show them what the analysis looks like and compare the sale price that is available to the chosen bidder with the retention value of the business. If the sale price exceeds the retention value then we will recommend selling it and if it doesn't we won't.

Mr GUTWEIN - Then how can you justify the money that is obviously involved to this point in going through the process in engaging Deloitte's to look at his and do due diligence before taking it to the market to know whether or not? If indications early on through the process are that  $x$  can be achieved but you know that you need to get  $y$  to even make it worthwhile going forward, how do you put in place those sort of decision-making deal-breakers, if you like, that would stop you going right through to the end of a sales process where you actually get to a point where  $x$  price is achieved and you say, 'Well, gee, it has taken us six months but no, that is not going to do the job for us. I wish we had pulled out earlier'? That is a ridiculous proposition.

Mr CHALLEN - With respect, I do not think that any of my propositions are ridiculous.

Mr GUTWEIN - Well, I think that one was.

Mr CHALLEN - I do not think that it was and I take offence at being told my propositions are ridiculous. We have done some analysis on what the range of possible proceeds from a sale is and that analysis gives us a degree of confidence that the proceeds of the sale will exceed the retention value of the business. But that is not a business case; that is just a bit of analysis that gives you some confidence that a recommendation to government that this business is suitable for sale is a good recommendation.

As I have said twice now, when we get to the end of this process we will have to give a recommendation to government on whether they proceed knowing then that the final bid price either exceeds or does not exceed the retention value. It is possible we will get all that way down the track and find that the offered sale price does not exceed the retention value, in which case we will say to the Government, 'Do not proceed'. I think that is a fairly unlikely outcome in view of the analysis that we have done and the advice that we have received from our expert advisers.

Mr HARRISS - I think it is important to keep developing this point as people are going because I was going to go down the business case path.

Mr BOOTH - Do you not think, Mr Challen, that there should be a social licence to sell something like this. The sale of a GBE that provides a lot of ephemeral benefits beyond just the raw dollars that come back into the Government needs to be considered, which is what the business case, one would have thought, should have assessed - the actual contribution that TOTE makes, not just revenue flows to the Government but industry support. A lot of that, from what we have heard, is ephemeral, intangible. It creates community, it maintains the culture of racing and it keeps the people that provide the product alive and sustained and so forth. There is a huge amount of concern out there in the different industry codes that TOTE's sale could destroy the culture of racing and the culture of their industries and associations, because that is the picture that has occurred since the tri-co-location and in fact even earlier than that. The people that provide the products are going to be losing their social activities and culture and microeconomic activities that flow from that big family of people involved in racing. Therefore, why is it that you seem only to have a focus on the actual dollars that flow to the Government, the retention value of TOTE based on dollars alone?

Mr CHALLEN - The operations of the TOTE provide two sorts of benefits. They provide a flow of funding that at the moment goes to the racing industry and they provide employment and payments to contractors and so on, so they have a place in the overall economy. It does not matter who owns the business; if the business is here and is operating then all those other benefits, other than the flow of funding to the racing industry, will continue. Government does not have to own it. Look at the airport. The Government does not own the airport anymore but planes still land, people park their cars, the shops sell goods, people at the airport are still employed.

Mr BOOTH - With respect, sure the airport has changed. They are now a business and you are paying twice as much to park your car than you used to so there has actually been, I would argue, quite a detriment to the average person who goes out to the airport. They might be able to get a better cup of coffee, perhaps, or something like that through privatisation but what about something as complex as an industry which has been based around something like TOTE for a fair while? What I am putting to you is that there are a lot of things that are difficult to actually assess, unless you analyse it with some sort of social impact study at least. You can do the economic stuff in terms of the value of the airport itself in terms of income streams to the Government, but the economic and social activity around TOTE at the moment and around the industry needs to be analysed to make sure that you are getting the full social licence to sell the business off because it is a lot more than just the income stream. Unless you protect that and know what it is then it could have a detriment on the industry.

Mr CHALLEN - I just have to say I do not agree with you. Putting aside the benefit that the racing industry gets from funding - and we have an alternative way, a better way of doing that - apart from that, all of the benefits that you get socially or economically from the existence of the TOTE will continue with somebody else other than the Government owning it. I do not think there are ephemeral benefits. I think the culture of the industry and the way it relates to communities and so on comes from the racing industry and the funding that comes to the racing industry. It has nothing to do with the TOTE at all. The connection between the TOTE and the racing industry is just an accident of history.

Mr BEST - With the tracks, the ownership of the venues, who owns them?

Mr CHALLEN - Those bits that were previously owned by the TOTE, under the legislation that has already been passed by the Parliament, will go to the Tasmanian Racing Board. It has not actually happened yet. There is a transfer notice that is in the process of being sorted out so the mechanics of getting the old racing assets and liabilities that were with the TOTE into the hands of the Tasmanian Racing Board has not happened. As I understand, it is being worked on at the moment, but it will happen.

Mr BEST - At the moment, although I do not expect you to be able to answer this in detail, who owns the tracks? Are some owned by TOTE and some not?

Mr CHALLEN - Mr Best, I do not know in detail. I understand in concept that TOTE owned some of the infrastructure and some of the infrastructure was owned by racing clubs. Nothing will change, apart from the fact that those bits that were owned by the TOTE will become owned by the Tasmanian racing industry but beyond that, this is not my field.

Mr BEST - This might be commercial-in-confidence here, but is that part of the deed, looking after those facilities?

Mr CHALLEN - The deed is about funding. It is about how much money the industry is going to have for its recurrent funding and its capital works. The ownership of assets has already been dealt with in the legislation that Parliament passed last year and all that remains is just a little bit of mechanical stuff to move the assets from TOTE's books onto TRB's books. A rather simple thing in concept but a bit messy in practicality.

CHAIR - Members, I am aware that we have probably a considerable amount of work to do in camera and we are down to about 18 minutes or so to go for Mr Challen.

Mr HARRISS - Don, just going back to your comments about 7 May last year when you first started assessing options. You said something to the effect that you had a discussion with the Treasurer around that time about the possible sale. Who initiated that discussion?

Mr CHALLEN - That particular discussion I do not recall, Mr Harriss. There had been conversations going on around these issues since Mr Aird became Treasurer. He became Treasurer in March 2006, if I remember rightly, and I have been having conversations with him around the government business portfolio and around things like the airport and the Printing Authority and other businesses since then. So there would have been a conversation that took place a couple of days before and you will see in this pile of information I am going to leave with you some e-mail exchanges with Mr Aird's office in which I was given authority to commence some work, and I commenced work. You will see e-mails from me to my staff asking them to do various things to get stuff under way.

Mr BOOTH - With regard to the TOTE at the moment, there is no dividend coming back to the Government, I believe, and it has not come back for a few years, is that correct?

Mr CHALLEN - We have arrangements for a special dividend in place that has been suspended. I would have to check, Mr Booth, I do not recall off the top of my head.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, I thought legislation went through that absolved them of a couple of years of non-payment and, in fact, the legislation was that no-one had to pay a dividend. I may be wrong but I thought that is what we passed.

Mr CHALLEN - It does not ring a bell but I would have to take the question on notice.

Mr BOOTH - But in terms of cash, you do not think there has been a dividend coming back and after years suspended or otherwise, a special dividend?

Mr CHALLEN - My understanding is, and I would have to check, but I do not think there has been any direct benefit to the budget from the operations of the TOTE for some time.

Mr BOOTH - So if it were to be sold, if that was the decision that it was sold, where would the extra fat come for the person who bought the business if they are already incapable of paying a dividend? Isn't that going to rack up the race day charges? They have to get an income stream somehow, so how are they going to do it?

Mr CHALLEN - They are not capable of paying a dividend to government because they are paying all of their income to the racing industry. They are still a very viable, profitable business. It is just that everything that comes out of the TOTE business ends up in the racing industry.

Mr BOOTH - As far as the public are concerned, we own TOTE and the budget is all out of the public purse. So let us say the net return at the moment might be going from TOTE to the racing industry. Are you saying, sell it and then transfer that obligation back to the budget, consolidated revenue?

Mr CHALLEN - Yes.

Mr BOOTH - So, somewhere, the person who is buying TOTE is going to want to make more than the current return to the industry otherwise they are not going to buy it, are they?

Mr CHALLEN - They, I expect, will look at the opportunities for growing the business with synergies with their existing businesses, all the usual things. People will see it as a desirable asset simply because it provides a good, steady return. There is an awful lot of superannuation money around at the moment just desperately looking for good yield and secure businesses. So that is one of the reasons we think that is an attractive business to sell at the moment.

Mr BOOTH - But if that yield was available in that business, it ought to be coming into it now and flowing back to the racing industry.

Mr CHALLEN - But it is flowing to the racing industry, that is the point.

Mr BOOTH - If it is going to be of no net benefit then, other than allowing a privatised operator to bring in additional revenue -

Mr CHALLEN - The net benefit is, we are going to get the sale proceeds.

Mr BOOTH - But I think the detriment will be to the race day participants, the people that park their cars. All sorts of things are going to happen as a result of a privatised TOTE.

Mr CHALLEN - No, because those things depend on the funding of the racing industry and they have nothing to do with the TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - With respect, that is not correct. I am talking about in terms of the globalised pool of money, whether it be a public asset owned by TOTE or whether it be consolidated revenue. If there is a cost shift from the support of the racing industry, away from TOTE and back to consolidated revenue, unless we get that back as a benefit somehow through some taxation on TOTE turnover or something, I cannot see this isn't going to result in increased charges, like at the airport.

Mr CHALLEN - I find your thought process a bit obscure.

Mr BOOTH - I am sorry that you can't understand those complex issues.

CHAIR - We seem to be going around and around in circles here. At this stage we only have 15 minutes left. We need to move in camera. Therefore I would ask that people clear the room.

THE HONOURABLE MICHAEL AIRD, TREASURER, WAS CALLED AND EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you for appearing before the committee, Michael. Obviously being a minister of the Crown, you do not have to be sworn in. At this stage I will invite you, Treasurer, to make a brief statement to the committee and then I will open it up for questions.

Mr AIRD - I think there are a number of issues in play at the one time and my view is that we have, on one hand, a racing industry and, on the other hand, a wagering industry and I have always had a view that I did not think it was a government function to run a wagering industry but it was a government function to support the racing industry. So from very early on in my time as Treasurer I had a view that I thought TOTE should be in a position where it could be divested at some stage. Obviously that takes in a lot of judgment and a lot of information in terms of understanding the markets and where we can go from there.

I think it is fair to say that over a period of time, initially, I did not think TOTE had enough value in it to be an asset which was suitable for divestment. I now believe the time is right and that is why we announced that we are prepared to divest TOTE.

Obviously there has been some concern about the racing industry and the funding model for that, and I think that is a legitimate concern for them and I am working with the Tasmanian Racing Board to put in place a funding model which should be in place for the duration of 20 years. There are two components for that funding model.

One would be in terms of capital expenditure and the other would be on the operational expenditure, and I have said that the racing industry will be no worse off than it is now in terms of its funding. We have not concluded our discussions about that but I believe we will be able to get to an agreed position. It is my intention to sign a deed with the Tasmanian Racing Board which will give allocations over a time frame. With the model that I am looking at the deed would endure for 20 years. There would be initial allocations for four or five years on a rolling basis and we would negotiate the sixth year within the second year, if you can understand the methodology. That would allow us plenty of time to understand how we would make those allocations and obviously that would have to be transferred by virtue of the Consolidated Fund.

With the wagering issue, the principle is whether TOTE is part of core government business. If you say it is, obviously there is a difference of opinion about that. The other question is whether this is the right time? I have satisfied myself over a period that now is the right time and -

Mr BOOTH - How did you satisfy yourself of that?

Mr AIRD - A number of different things. Basically after observing what is occurring with wagering industries generally around Australia and what is happening in Victoria, I think we can extract optimum value out of TOTE now, considering that it has had a 30 per cent growth in turnover. In any divestment you have to in a data room show the data that will encourage someone to offer the optimum price. If you compare TOTE's revenue performance with that of similar wagering operations you will see that they are out-performing them in terms of turnover and that -

Mr BOOTH - Have you advice as to that? Did you actually get formal advice or -

Mr AIRD - There is a range of areas of advice and one is my knowledge of those potential organisations that might be interested in this type of asset.

Mr BOOTH - Personal knowledge?

Mr AIRD - Yes, personal knowledge. In the end, this is a judgment call. We took some advice from Deloitte about the appetite of the market, the potential bidders and whether they had enough capital to actually buy it.

Mr BOOTH - So you actually sought advice from Deloitte as to whether you should sell or not?

Mr AIRD - I know there has been some discussion generally about it. Deloitte were engaged for two parts really. They were engaged in terms of the separation of the wagering from Racing Services and I also sought preliminary advice from them in terms of the market at the time, if you like, if I wanted to support the divestment. So Deloitte were engaged at that level and by the time that I had signed off on a cabinet submission on 19 December I had had advice in terms of that information from Deloitte.

Mr BOOTH - For the market appetite?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr WILKINSON - When was that?

Mr AIRD - That was part of the cabinet submission.

Mr WILKINSON - What was the date?

Mr AIRD - In terms of?

Mr WILKINSON - One, when you asked for that advice from Deloitte and, two, when you got it?

Mr AIRD - I need to go back and check the actual dates, but I do know that I wanted commentary from Deloitte in preparing the cabinet submission, so it would been probably around the 19th - I actually know that on 19th I had that information.

Mr WILKINSON - The 19th of?

Mr AIRD - December.

Mr BOOTH - Can you table any advice for us?

Mr AIRD - It is a cabinet submission.

Mr BOOTH - You can table that.

Mr AIRD - No, I cannot.

Mr BOOTH - We might have a different view on that.

CHAIR - Can you give the committee any indication on when the legislation might be tabled?

Mr AIRD - We are preparing basically three pieces of legislation. I had hoped today to give you a draft of the TOTE sale bill. It is still in draft form. I will give it to the committee when I am satisfied that it is a closer final draft than it is at the moment. There are bits that I am not satisfied actually give a true indication about what we intend to do and how we intend to divest that.

Mr GUTWEIN - I was wondering what part, if any, the Commonwealth's mid-year financial report might have played. It would have been released, I think from memory, in early November or thereabouts, and it showed that we would lose around $300 million over this year in the forward Estimates with GST funding.

Mr AIRD - No. Let me be very clear about this. The time frame for making a decision was not affected by our fiscal position. It is true that through a successful sale we will gather some capital and that would be put to good use but that would be a transparent process in any event, it will not be part of this budget. It will not be factored in.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mind you, the problems that we face are going to be more far reaching than this budget as you well know.

Mr AIRD - I think it is a legitimate question. I am not saying that it had a capacity to affect; it is not going to affect our operational balance in that sense. The allocation will be in terms of investing in asset and therefore it will not be affecting our current expenditure to that degree.

The methodology will be that it will probably come in into the operating balance and affect the income of that and it will go to the Consolidated Fund to the operating balance and then it would be allocated in a way that would be identified in the various accounts it would be put to and that would affect most probably the fiscal balance but not the operating balance per se.

In other words, it is a bit similar that in the budget sense some of the allocations to nation building and so on it can throw artificial surpluses that do not represent your underlying business and how we are actually operating and what the ongoing operating costs are. Those types of events, in terms of transfers, will come in and affect your operating surpluses. To be quite frank, I would not sell the airport now in the current atmosphere.

Mr BOOTH - The superannuants would probably sell it back to you.

Mr AIRD - I did not say that as a provocative statement, I am just using it as an example.

Mr BOOTH - They would be pretty happy to get their cash back because what you are saying is it is not worth what you got for it now.

Mr AIRD - No, well -

Mr BOOTH - That's the corollary of what you are saying.

Members interjecting.

CHAIR - Order.

Mr AIRD - In fairness, let me finish what I was intending to put forward to you. We sold that at the peak market, no doubt about that. That was a timing issue. I believe that now is the time to sell TOTE. I know there is a strong appetite. There may be some local appetite to be a bidder and I know there will be some national and there could be some international as well and that is what I want to ensure occurs because I want a good competitive process to ensure we extract the optimal value from it.

Mr GUTWEIN - We heard this morning from the greyhound industry.

Mr AIRD - I heard they were very complimentary.

Mr GUTWEIN - I think it would be worth watching television tonight. I don't think I need to explain - you'll catch up in about an hour-and-a-half about what they had to say.

Obviously, one of the key issues that we have is the racing industry and their concerns about being supported. You've mentioned that there'll be a mechanism and a deed. I don't think that was something that we discussed in camera; I think that is something we can talk about. We know from the annual report that somewhere between $20 million and $30 million was paid to the racing industry last year. In fact, I think the chairman says in his annual report that last year it was $23.5 million or something, in funding, that went to the racing industry. Will the deed reflect that type of amount?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - The other question I have in regards to what you said about the rolling five years; I'm presuming that you get to year two, you renegotiate another five years which takes you through to six years so you're actually going to have 14 or 15 renegotiations of the deeds throughout the 20-year period?

Mr AIRD - That's the thing; you can have any variation of that if you like. If you go into four-year time frames, basically, we would be in the forward estimates, we think, in four-year terms but it could be five years. There's a bit of a mythology about the funding relationship now because everyone says that TOTE's a cash cow for the racing industry, but there's no guarantee of that. What we're saying is that we're prepared for a 20-year deed to wear any risk and we guarantee for the first time ever a 20-year funding model. I can give you an indication; I think that there should be an allocation of around $40 million capex. The Tasmanian Racing Board would then deal with the allocations from that; they would work out the priority.

Mr GUTWEIN - So, $40 million over the 20 years?

Mr AIRD - No. This would be dependent upon the sale. There are two ways to do it. You could just have a capital injection of $40 million straightaway and they could have the benefit of that or you could have a phased approach over the term of the original four-year allocation. I haven't determined the proper model because I haven't completed my discussions with the TRB. Basically, the racing service's costs are, in totality, whatever the allocation of the different funds going in, round about $32 million. What I'd be prepared to do is to provide a guaranteed amount in the deed for x dollars and allow some avenue for the TRB to capture the sponsorship and the race field's revenue that is going to be generated in the future. That gives them a growth path for their own revenue but this underwrites the basic requirements that they have -

Mr GUTWEIN - And you've indexed that through?

Mr AIRD - Yes, we've indexed that through and we have thought about that a bit. We think, in terms of CPI, that we would try to get a fixed percentage to try to flatten out CPI variations. We are in interesting times -

Mr GUTWEIN - We are in interesting times.

Mr AIRD - And perhaps the best way to do that would be to settle on a percentage rather than just CPI so then they can plan with some certainty rather than just have the variations of CPI. We don't know when the Reserve Bank is going to come back and say CPI is important.

Mr GUTWEIN - And then it is back out of the bottle again.

Mr WILKINSON - We are jumping all over the shop, but we started off by asking about the time frames; is it fair to say that you received advice from Treasury that TOTE should have been sold or should be sold either 19 or 20 November of last year?

Mr AIRD - That would be about right. I think there was a brief that came through from Treasury around that time.

Mr WILKINSON - At that time, had there been any information that you'd seen from Deloitte or any other body suggesting that it should or shouldn't be sold?

Mr AIRD - Not that I can recall, no. In terms of making an assessment the annual report really highlights the financial performance of TOTE.

Mr WILKINSON - I can see over the last four years, from 2005 onwards, it has increased dramatically - well, not dramatically but certainly significantly and I can see it would be a good time to sell. But one could also argue the opposite, that it is a long-term one, and I suppose that is the argument.

Mr AIRD - Okay.

Mr WILKINSON - But in relation to 19 November or 20 November, there was advice that you were aware of at about that time that TOTE should be sold?

Mr AIRD - Yes. I have a time line that says 19 November, a minute to me with EEO, a cabinet minute for approval.

Mr WILKINSON - So was it at that stage that you would have spoken to others in relation to putting a proposal to Cabinet that it should be sold? Is that the way it goes?

Mr AIRD - When you say 'others'?

Mr WILKINSON - Other members of the Government maybe, or members of TOTE.

Mr AIRD - I did not canvass this very widely and you will notice here that even as late as 19 November when I got the original minute I did not approve it. I was satisfied that by that stage it should be sold but until then, until you sign off, it is not for sale. I was prepared then, as I am now, to back my judgment with the right information. I know that TOTE is a good business, I know there is an appetite for it and I also know that there are changes afoot within the industry that I think are going to be an interesting challenge, and I do not think government should be involved in that.

Mr GUTWEIN - In the wagering industry?

Mr AIRD - Yes, the wagering industry.

Mr WILKINSON - In relation to the restructuring of the industry which, as you know, occurred with final legislation around about November of last year, was part of the reasoning behind that that certainly it made it easier to sell, as you would be aware, and it makes it cleaner to be for sale, as you would be aware or should be aware?

Mr AIRD - As I started out by explaining, there are two parts here. It is true that they may have converged or crossed over at various stages but it was always my view as Minister for Racing that I wanted three distinct parts of TOTE - that is, the radio station, the wagering business and the racing business. In terms of being organised for divestment, that was a key decision in how we can separate those things. The other determinant was that it was always my intention to bring TOTE under the Gaming Commission and bring it under the Gaming Control Act, and we are going to do that in any event.

While the separation was never a motivation, I think you needed to have the separation in any event. To be quite frank with you, until you make a decision to divest you have not divested. I think the separation was important for good accountability and regulatory reasons. I think that indicates my belief that we needed to have the Gaming Control Act as a way of regulating the wagering business.

Mr WILKINSON - In relation to the knowledge now that you are wishing to sell, what is the difference between this year and last year? Some might well argue that with the GST down, as was stated by Peter, with stamp duties obviously going to be down, maybe payroll tax et cetera, there is going to be a hole in the budget and this is one way of filling that hole.

Mr AIRD - It does not actually, though.

Mr WILKINSON - It won't fill it completely. Does it fill it at all?

Mr AIRD - I will be quite frank with you. In relation to the operating costs, the ongoing recurrent, it does not fill the hole in terms of the pressure on the operating balance. It can assist in the allocations of capital works and infrastructure and so on - that is true - but it is not a direct fiscal mechanism, and that is why I was drawing the example. That, really, nearly is a coincidence. In my view, if I did not think there were a strong appetite and a strong competitive position relating to the sale, I would not be proceeding with it.

Mr WILKINSON - So you are saying the major difference now between January 2009 as opposed to January 2008 is the fact that you believe now is the right time as opposed to 2008, because there was still an increase in 2008, as you know? You could still argue the same questions that your view, and other people's views perhaps in government, was that the Government should not be involved with a TOTE. It would just appear to be thoroughly coincidental that here we are, hard times, let's sell.

Mr AIRD - That is very simplistic assessment.

Mr WILKINSON - Yes, it is. It is one that can be made though, is it not?

Mr AIRD - There are people around who will make these assessments, including politicians, and I understand they can make that judgment. If you look at the value in TOTE, you will see that the growth is there and the potential is there, and there are other aspects of the industry you have to put in international and national context.

Mr GUTWEIN - And the fact that we have a hole in the budget is just convenient timing.

CHAIR - Order.

Mr AIRD - But it is not going to go to the budget.

Mr GUTWEIN - But at the end of the day it is going to be able to be spent. It will become taxpayers' funds. Let us not muck about with it.

Mr AIRD - I agree with that.

Mr GUTWEIN - And I understand it will not hold up the operational problems that we have.

Mr AIRD - Of course. We believe that the results of the sale will be put to good use. In a political sense we will make judgments about that, the same way as you will or Mr Booth will say that it's a waste, or that we could do better with that, or whatever. I think that is a legitimate argument. I am quite happy to have that argument and we will have it.

Mr GUTWEIN - It is a reasonable debate.

CHAIR - Mr Wilkinson has the floor.

Mr WILKINSON - You can see the growth in TOTE over the last four years, and the last year especially. One could argue that in hard times betting increases - there is evidence to suggest that wagering increases - therefore the value could increase by January 2010, and if that is the case one could well argue why sell now. Why sell now when people wanting to purchase the TOTE may not have the same amount of money available now as they might have next year, or vice versa.

Mr AIRD - No, it could be worse.

Mr WILKINSON - You are saying it could be worse?

Mr AIRD - It could be worse. In assessing those types of opportunities and risks, my firm belief is that we will extract maximum value out of TOTE now.

Mr BOOTH - But you do not have any advice to that effect. It is a gut feeling.

Mr AIRD - No, we have advice, as I indicated, from Deloitte to say that the market is right for this.

Mr WILKINSON - That was going to be my last question. In relation to that, the only way you could make that decision, I want to suggest, is if you had independent professional advice to suggest yes, now is the time to sell, and are you saying that is what you got?

Mr AIRD - No, what I am saying is this: it is same judgment I made with the selling of the airport.

Mr BOOTH - So that was a gut feeling as well?

Mr AIRD - No. You know, you talk to people, you understand what's going on in the market. There are people involved in the industry, there are people involved in banks, there are people involved and -

Mr BOOTH - With respect, as the Treasurer, surely you'd actually seek broader counsel than the old mate at the pub, surely.

Mr AIRD - I did seek advice from Deloitte who gave preliminary advice to say the market was there.

Mr BOOTH - When was that?

Mr GUTWEIN - What date was that?

Mr AIRD - I've mentioned it before. That advice was incorporated in the cabinet submission that I signed on the 19th.

Mr BOOTH - But the advice was sought prior to that, obviously?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GREEN - With respect to some of the questions that were asked about the industry itself and the racing board, a lot of the discussion you've briefly answered a moment ago but the various codes, of course, are concerned about the proportion that they get from those funds. Is it then entirely up to the racing board and their ability to lobby through the racing board to achieve the best outcome for their particular code or is there some other mechanism that is being considered?

Mr AIRD - No-one was really satisfied with the old model. I believe that the new model allows for the best opportunity in the fact that all the codes have to meet with the board at various stages to put their view. Yes, it is up to the TRB to make their decision about how they allocate the resources. My job is to say, 'Here's $40 million cap ex. You make your judgments about how best to spend that'. I base that $40 million on a reasonable understanding about what are going to be the future developments in the racing -

Mr GREEN - That's capital expenditure but I'm talking about stakes money and -

Mr AIRD - Yes, and in turn the TRB will be making decisions about that and we will be ensuring that they won't be any worse off as they are -

Mr GREEN - But if the revenue were coming from TOTE, as it does now, the same position would exist; that is, that they would still make decisions about how that allocation goes.

Mr AIRD - Under the old model -

Mr GREEN - Yes.

Mr AIRD - TOTE would make those decisions.

Mr GREEN - So if it is never sold, if we don't get the right price for it and it's not sold?

Mr AIRD - Under the model now, we are saying that we can give greater security to the funding of the racing industry than ever before by signing a deed.

Mr GREEN - If a new entity buys it, it will be regulated?

Mr AIRD - We haven't quite determined the regime that will be in place in terms of taxation or licence fee and so on. We haven't determined that. To be quite frank, we need to get through this exercise we are talking about now but I am thinking about the model and obviously Parliament will have to consider that.

Mr GREEN - But the expectation is obviously that there are funds coming back to the Government as a result of their operation.

Mr AIRD - There will be some returns back to the Government, yes.

Mr GREEN - Yes. Some of the line of questions is that it is gone forever and that you don't get anything back at all.

Mr AIRD - No, what I am saying is that under the present arrangement with TOTE there's no guarantee of any of the funding. What I am actually providing is greater long-term security than they've ever had before. If you were relying on TOTE, you are relying on a wagering industry. I just make this point: the racing industry here contributes 6.5 per cent to the total TOTE turnover. That's why there needed to be a separation. This is a very serious wagering business and you can see where the growth factor is in its wagering business and really that's what we are trying to capture now, the value in that and put it to work for the Tasmanian people. That includes a very substantial commitment to the racing industry.

Mr BOOTH - There is something I do not understand here in your theory. You have this plum tree at the moment with TOTE which is at the moment looking after the industry, providing for the industry. It is like an internalised cash or income stream that is used by the industry to keep itself going. You are proposing to get rid of that plum tree, sell it to someone else. You are going to get the cash that you get out of that sale and you will put that back into some capital expenditure to improve some of the tracks and facilities that they need now but from that point on, once you have expended the value of TOTE which may or may not exceed that amount - we do not know what it is going to bring - you may have the benefit of a bit more cash in consolidated revenue that has come back from the sale, surplus from the cap ex, Effectively, but from that point on that is no longer going to make a yield specifically that you could hypothecate across to the racing industry itself. Isn't that then going to shift the yearly cost back to consolidated revenue, which will be seen as a grab out of public cash to compete against the hospitals and schools and all of those sorts of things, and be subject to a more politicised outcome rather than the industry being seen to be self-supporting through the current ownership of TOTE as a GBE model?

Mr AIRD - Quite frankly with regard to TOTE, only 6.5 per cent of the industry is contributing to the revenue here. It is growing in other areas of wagering. Quite obviously we have over 10 years assiduously assisted the industry, and not without some criticism.

Mr BOOTH - That is the point I am making.

Mr AIRD - We are prepared to make a long-term commitment to the industry to satisfy their interests and other legitimate interests. They are a legitimate business and they are a generous stakeholder in providing that assistance. No, they will not be subject to the bidding of the Consolidated Fund because we will have a legally binding deed that will determine the level of funding. That will be the obligation that we will have to fulfil in terms of the Consolidated Fund.

Mr BOOTH - Just moving on; I realise we are going to run out of time and I cannot follow that any further so thank you.

In answer to a question I asked in the House yesterday, I think, you got back to me and said that Claytons was contracted on 6 January to prepare sale documentation. When did you start negotiations with Claytons to give them the brief that they could accept a contract on anyway?

Mr AIRD - I do not have that detail but it would have been some time prior to that. I can try to find it.

Mr BOOTH - Can you provide that for us?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr BOOTH - The other point, just fairly quickly, in terms of the advice; we had that exchange previously in regard to whether or not you just got it from the old mate down at the pub. Are you saying that, basically, generally if you are going to sell a GBE, whoever the Treasurer is at the time and I suppose you cannot talk about other treasurers, you would be content to go on your personal understanding of the industry and gut feeling in talking to various people to confirm whether or not it is a good idea to sell it or not?

Mr AIRD - I was supported by Deloitte. They provided the advice.

Mr BOOTH - You said that was preliminary advice.

Mr AIRD - Deloitte are involved. We will continue an association with Deloitte.

Mr BOOTH - Will you provide that advice from Deloitte?

Mr AIRD - I am not going to be providing advice, and I do not mean any disrespect. This has been the subject of some discussion with people here. My responsibility, basically, is to ensure that I don't, and neither should anyone here, jeopardise any potential optimum sale; that is the obligation. I will give you the information that I can as long as we understand that I am not going to provide dollar figures or anything that could actually artificially influence the market. With regard to the first part of your question, I think my judgment in making the call has been pretty good in terms of the divestment of asset. Some people were sceptical about the value we would get from the airport. I was never ever sceptical and I am not sceptical here.

Mr BOOTH - You thought you would get $40 million according to the Age.

Mr AIRD - No, that is not right.

Mr BOOTH - The headline says '$40 million from airport expected' and you got $350 million so your judgment could be a fair way out.

Mr AIRD - That article is not right.

Mr GREEN - Obviously some members are going to want to ask some questions in camera.

CHAIR - Yes, they are. We are down to about 15 minutes or so left so I had Mr Gutwein's one last question.

Mr AIRD - Can I just say that I really want this to be pretty thorough. If you want to go beyond 15 minutes I am happy to cooperate with the committee. I want to make it clear. I can indicate to the committee I am happy to come back.

CHAIR - At the end of the day we will be fixing another time and place so we can finish it off.

Mr AIRD - Well, perhaps you want to give me some questions on notice, Mr Gutwein.

CHAIR - Today we have a priority to finish.

Mr GUTWEIN - Just so I am clear, I will just run you through some of the dates that we have. On 19 November there was advice provided by Treasury to you that we should proceed with the sale, is that right?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - On 22 December Cabinet looked at that Treasury advice plus advice that was included in the Treasury minutes from Deloitte, is that correct?

Mr AIRD - There was an initial minute to me that I did not approve. Then there was a revised cabinet minute sent to me reflecting the changes that I required and that I signed on 19 December and I took it to Cabinet on 22 December.

Mr GUTWEIN - That included the advice from Deloitte?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - Due diligence is under way now, is that right?

Mr AIRD - I will be quite frank - I will put everything on hold until we have continued this. I did not want to be seen to be presumptuous.

Mr BOOTH - We would never suggest that.

Mr GUTWEIN - I will remind you of that at some other stage.

Mr AIRD - When I am.

Mr GUTWEIN - Are Clayton Utz still preparing the sales documents?

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - So that is not presumptuous.

Mr AIRD - I do not know what information -

Mr GUTWEIN - No, that is all right.

Mr AIRD - but in fact there is no -

Mr GUTWEIN - I am just playing with you there.

Mr AIRD - I would prefer it if you did not play with me, Mr Gutwein.

Mr GUTWEIN - The question I do have is do you have a business case that supports the sale?

Mr AIRD - No, there is no such animal, to be quite frank. A multiplier and all those types of things come into play and people will make some judgments. Until you get this information to a data room and you know that there is some contestability and some serious bidders that is of concern, it is going to be the market that determines the business case. It is not something you put in the front window of a shop and say, 'Here it is, go buy it'.

Mr GUTWEIN - I would have thought, though, that to support a sale like this you would have a figure in mind, that you would be able to say, 'If that is achieved, we know that we can achieve our aims. If that figure is achieved we can support the racing industry, we can do the other things we want to do'. I would have thought as a matter of course that you would have had some understanding as to what that was before you would proceed to go to the point where you are going to throw it to the market.

Mr AIRD - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - So you have that figure. I am not going to ask you, I just want to know whether you have it.

Mr AIRD - Yes, I have a figure in my head here.

Mr GUTWEIN - In your head?

Mr AIRD - I am not going to put anywhere, any time, a figure. People can make judgments about figures and it would be a judgment call because you are trying to anticipate. Some bidders will seek greater value than others because it will have facets of the operation of TOTE that they want to get hold of.

Mr GUTWEIN - With the greatest of respect, you have provided to the committee today some figures, that is, capital expenditure of $40 million. We know that there needs to be support to the racing industry on an annual basis and we know what's being currently provided. You don't need to be a genius to work out a present value of what lump sum you might require to be able to provide that support. So, in providing those details, you've actually probably provided sufficient information to anybody that actually wants to work through that and say, 'We can work out what the bottom-line figure is to the Tasmanian Government', with the greatest of respect.

Mr AIRD - That's okay; you don't have to say that - greatest respect. The fact is that I have to satisfy some interests here in terms of the racing industry; I have to provide some certainty and I am prepared to put those figures there to satisfy them. That means that when we put forward a deed, or whatever, of understanding, we wear the risk.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - I'd just like to get clear in my mind, Treasurer, why you couldn't have shared some of your thoughts about the sale of TOTE when you were doing the restructuring. What was so secretive that you needed not to share it with the industry and I guess also why you couldn't share it with the scrutiny committee back in early December?

Mr AIRD - Well, I hadn't determined that it was for sale.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - But if there had been some processes going on, could you not have said, 'We're doing some really light work on this'?

Mr AIRD - Well, that could have an effect upon a range of players, including the staff of TOTE. There are 300-odd employees in TOTE. When we made the announcement on the Thursday, having made the decision on the Monday, we put in a very serious communication strategy with the employees to make sure that they understood the nature of the process. Similarly, there are a whole range of things that you might consider or prepare for or get preliminary information on that you don't want to go on with. If Deloitte had come back and said, 'Hey, this is not going to work for you', I'd have to really consider that and ask why. I would have really quizzed them. But they didn't say that. Therefore, the issue of making a decision only occurred on 22 December and whatever thoughts or considerations that I may have might have ended up being nothing. It is only after you conclude the deliberations and thoughts about what is going on that you can make a decision.

Mr WILKINSON - People have stated, and stated in these hearings we've had today, that they were receiving assurances that TOTE wouldn't be sold pretty well up until the time that there was a sudden, as they call it, backflip. What's your comment about that?

Mr AIRD - If you look at all my statements about this, I've always said that I was casting my eye over assets and I'm sure you've gone back. I've always said that, as Treasurer, I am looking at assets and I'm looking at their core function to government and -

Mr GREEN - We've bought one - the power station.

Mr AIRD - Yes, well that's true; part of one. That aside, I have always been open about that and we've had discussions in the Legislative Council about it and I've said it in answers to questions; I've said it, in fact, in answer to the honourable member for Apsley.

Mr BOOTH - But didn't you specifically say that it's not going to be sold?

Mr AIRD - No.

Mr BOOTH - But you led people to believe before -

Mr AIRD - No.

Mr BOOTH - Well, certainly our House was led to believe that TOTE would not be sold.

Mr AIRD - No, I didn't.

Mr BOOTH - Well, what -

Mr AIRD - I know you've referred to things in the past, to the second reading speech that was made in terms of the separation. If you read that speech in the context of that bill, you will see that that is entirely consistent because we were saying that the separation of the wagering organisation, the racing services, was not about the sale, and it wasn't. People can make a judgment about does it help or not but I can tell you the motivation is not that. That separation would have occurred whether we proceeded with the sale or not.

Mr BOOTH - When you gave that assurance, when people asked you the because they wanted to know whether TOTE was sold, whether that was part of it, at they felt deluded into supporting the industry restructure because they had the assurance that TOTE would not be sold. Have you not effectively misled those people, at least by omission, by not saying, 'Okay, you want to know if it is going to be sold. Today I have not made the decision but tomorrow I probably will because I have made up my mind that clearly I will.

Mr AIRD - You cannot say you probably will make a decision. You either make a decision or you don't. If you look at my statements they have always reflected that as Treasurer I was casting my eye over the assets, and I have said that quite consistently.

CHAIR - Okay, thank you. We have now cut ourselves very short of time so we will now move in camera. I would ask that everybody else vacate the room. Thank you very much for your attendance this afternoon.

---

THE JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT, RESOURCES AND DEVELOPMENT MET IN COMMITTEE ROOM 1, PARLIAMENT HOUSE, HOBART, ON THURSDAY 19 MARCH 2009.

---

Mr KEVIN THOMAS RING WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you, Kevin. Please focus just on the main term of reference, which is the proposed sale of TOTE by the Tasmanian Government, and just give your opinion, particularly coming from your perspective as representing jockeys and having been a jockey.

Mr RING - Our association has spoken in depth about this. In fact we had a meeting last week about the subject of the sale of TOTE. Our members are not against the sale of TOTE. What our members are worried about is whether the jockeys and racing will be looked after in the same way as previously, and whether the Government will have a declaration in place that will be binding even with changes of government and changes over the years so that the same percentage of money, if not more hopefully, will be given back to racing. That is the jockeys' biggest fear with what is happening.

CHAIR - Yes, future sustainability.

Mr RING - We have all been reading about the sale of TOTE and the for and againsts in different articles and comments, but we have not heard a comment yet from the minister as to safeguards on racing, especially the financial aspects, and that is a concern. There are a lot of rumours as to who is buying et cetera, and until it is actually resolved we won't know who it is.

CHAIR - No, we have no idea.

Mr RING - It is just speculation at the moment. We hope it will result in the same situation as before, if not better, and wonder whether anything will be put in place to safeguard racing.

Mr HARRISS - Flowing from that then, Kevin, can I conclude that your association has not been engaged by the Government in any negotiation? You have said you have heard the Treasurer or the minister making comment, so is that a reasonable conclusion?

Mr RING - That is a reasonable conclusion.

Mr HARRISS - What is your feeling about that as an association?

Mr RING - As an association we like to think that we are fairly important in the whole scheme of racing in this State. We are a sub-branch of the Australian Jockeys Association as of last year. If our State association was not informed we would have liked our Australian Jockeys Association to have been informed. We think that this whole sale is very important to everyone and we feel we are a big part of that, and that the jockeys should be aware of what is happening. We have a small number of jockeys at the moment compared to previous years and if they are unsure as to how things are going I think we will lose more.

Mr HARRISS - Have they made an approach to the Government?

Mr RING - No, they have not made an approach.

Mr HARRISS - Yet the sale is on our doorstep. The Treasurer would, I presume, be desirous of having legislation in front of the Parliament fairly shortly. I suppose one could then argue that if your association, your jockeys, are not properly taken account of and the sale proceeds but you have no assurances before the sale, you would be a little concerned. Would you?

Mr RING - We have concerns. We have not made an approach, but thought as a courteous thing that the Government would have made an approach to us, even in writing.

CHAIR - Has there been nothing at all?

Mr RING - Nothing at all.

CHAIR - You have had no consultation.

Mr RING - No consultation. That is a concern to us. As I said, there has been no information as to the long-term stability of racing in this State financially.

Mr WILKINSON - Kevin, it seems to me from over the last couple of weeks asking a few questions around the place that people in your situation, not only the jockeys but other people in your situation, are saying you do not know whether it is a good thing or not as yet because you do not know what certainty there is going to be for the racing industry if TOTE is sold. Is that right?

Mr RING - That is right.

Mr WILKINSON - Am I right in saying that you are not really against it, it is only a lack of communication that leads you to not knowing whether to agree with it or not?

Mr RING - That is right. We are not against it because we can see that if handled right this could be good for racing in general in this State financially. We have always been of the view that, especially over the last 10 years, there has been a lack of race meetings in this State for our members. That is one of the reasons for the shortage of jockeys here. If there can be an input of more finances through the sale of TOTE then that would be good, but we do not know.

Mr WILKINSON - You obviously have plenty of experience in the industry. Have you any idea as to what has happened interstate where TOTEs have been sold, how their industries are going?

Mr RING - I think South Australia is a fairly good example. There are problems at the moment but they are only minor compared to what has happened over the last few years with the sale of racetracks et cetera. Their industry, from our association's point of view, has halted.

Mr WILKINSON - If - and I do not know yet because we are in the same position to some degree as you are - TOTE were to be sold, what would be a way of, in your opinion, ensuring that the industry would have the same if not better return than it has had over the last few years?

Mr RING - I am not an expert on it but I honestly think there should be a greater percentage of money returned to racing. I have always thought that. Racing is a very good industry for this State, financially for the Government. People from TOTE will tell you things are always being put in place to try to earn extra money for TOTE and the Government. I would like to see a little bit more put back in. We have great prize money for our big races but I would like to see the board put more money in over a 12-month period to create more money especially for our members, and also more race meetings.

Mr WILKINSON - It would seem to me that with any proposed sale the Government would need to ensure that whoever purchased TOTE would have to give some type of agreement in writing, in a contract, to say that they would be willing to put back into the industry a figure not less than whatever they decide is appropriate.

Mr RING - That is right. There has to be a guarantee as far as we are concerned and it has to be a binding guarantee that if there is a change of government and a change in the status quo then that money percentage-wise has to keep coming back in, if not more over the years. There has to be something in place.

Mr WILKINSON - Because you could say there is uncertainty if it is left with government to decide how much money you are to get. In hard economic times there is going to be an argument around the cabinet table, I suppose, or the treasury tables as to how much racing can get as opposed to health, education et cetera.

Mr RING - I would like to see something where the new racing board was able to have an input and have a binding contract. Not so much keeping government away from that aspect but have a binding contract with the Tasmanian Racing Board that will stay for years to come.

Mr GUTWEIN - Over what period of time, Kevin?

Mr RING - I would say a 20-year period. To me that would be fair. Then it can be readdressed in that period. Anything could happen in 20 years. It could be sold again. But there has to be something that is binding. I think a 20-year period would be very good.

Mr BOOTH - Kevin, are you concerned then in terms of long-term future stability and support of the industry that, by selling TOTE and leaving the stake money and support for the industry coming directly from government, politics will get in the road of industry during that 20 years? Guarantees are only worth the paper they are written on, as you know. Does that concern your industry? It certainly concerns me and people who have made submissions to me have stated that they do not want it to be taken out of TOTE because at the moment it is actually an industry that is self-supporting, whereas if it comes back then it is seen as a dividend from the public purse, that politics are getting in the way of the industry being sustainable.

Mr RING - My opinion is that politics have gotten in the way of racing for a fairly long time. I came to this State in 1989. Racing was going very well in the early 1990s. To me, over the last 10 years - or maybe a little bit longer - politics have gotten in the way of racing. Racing is a very large industry and it is a sport. Politics and sport do not really go hand in hand. It has been proven in other sports. I think politics may get in the way of this too much. I think it needs to be handled by the businesspeople who will be buying TOTE and the racing board.

Mr BOOTH - Just to clarify that, you do not have a concern either way, if TOTE was sold and then the Government put money into racing rather than TOTE putting money into racing as it does now, that then politics might get in the road of the future of that money coming directly from government to racing? At the moment it appears to be a bit more at arm's length.

Mr RING - I have a concern that it may get in the way. The Government gets their percentage out of racing and I think they should leave it at that. They should not interfere in the process of it, especially between TOTE and the racing board, as far as their percentage goes. The racing board - now different to how it used to be - controls all three codes. They should be allowed to handle them as they see it, with no interference. But they should be funded the same as it is at the moment, if not better over the period of years once TOTE is sold. These security things should be put into place to make sure it is. To me, over the 10 years racing has declined in this State. Some of our carnivals are quite big. The mainlanders love it, prize money-wise. But as for the general local racing population, it is declining as far as I am concerned. The chances of our jockeys earning a reasonable living - especially from our association's point of view - has declined with the declining numbers as well.

Mr BOOTH - You speak as though there is an inevitability of the TOTE being sold. Would you rather have the support coming from TOTE to the industry or from the public purse to the industry in the future?

Mr RING - I think the public purse would be a more concrete step rather than the sale of TOTE. That's not saying we are against it, we just think from the public purse. For what is put into the TOTE over the years percentage-wise I think it has been fairly good but from the top down it hasn't been handled in a way that look's after the industry's people.

Mr BOOTH - So if that distribution was handled properly, the TOTE model funding the industry and TOTE being owned by the Government as it is at the moment is better than TOTE being sold and the money coming from the public purse?

Mr RING - We don't know until something is put in place, until the minister tells us what is happening if it is sold, what guidelines will be put in place and what will be put in place to look after the people in the industry. At the moment we are only guessing.

Mr GUTWEIN - Your association is a sub-branch of the Australian Jockeys Association. What has been the situation in, say, South Australia or Victoria where it has been privatised? Has it been better for jockeys or worse? Could you explain why in either case?

Mr RING - Victoria has been terrific for jockeys. If I was 30 and still riding I wouldn't be here, I would be in Victoria where you have a chance to ride every day of the week. Even if you are a battling rider, you can ride on a Saturday at non-TAB meetings or on Mondays, Tuesdays - which is very average but you can pick up some rides. But, apart from that, you can make a good living riding barrier trials. Their fees are better, there are more of them. Even race riding, they are $160 a ride, whereas here we get $130 and they are riding them every day of the week if they can. In trials they are getting over $50 a ride and you could ride 10, 15, maybe 20 trials at Cranbourne, for instance, and earn a week's wages just riding trials, plus you are riding track work. There is a young rider over there at the moment, Dean Larson, who battled here but he has done well over there, not through getting a lot of race rides or winners but making a good living. He now owns two houses and I think he's got a little business going as well, just from that. From a jockey's perspective, Victorian racing has been terrific.

CHAIR - It is more a function of economies of scale, Victoria being a bigger State rather than the way the organisation is?

Mr RING - Yes, numbers and population betting-wise, but it has been handled very well. Racing is still in a very good position financially. Then you go to South Australia -

CHAIR - You mentioned South Australia and I just want to follow up on that. You mentioned that is a bit of a dog's breakfast at the moment, but you also talk about tracks being sold off. That was a separate issue from what happened since the TOTE had been privatised there, was it?

Mr RING - Yes, it's a separate issue to what has been going on at the moment. For instance, David Hayes, one of the leading trainers in Australia, has scaled down his team at Lindsay Park in South Australia. He has even sent horses over to Western Australia to be trained because their racing is going well. He has scaled things down to the point where he is not training horses at Lindsay Park anymore. He does have runners in South Australia - and David Hayes is a very good businessman - but from that point of view he's even set up a place at Euroa in Victoria because he knows that's the place to be. Western Australia and Victoria are the places he wants to be; they are the places he knows he's going to earn the money.

CHAIR - The model Western Australia currently operates under is the model we have here in Tasmania.

Mr RING - It is, it is very similar. That was discussed last year at the forums for the new board.

CHAIR - So would you go down the track of saying, 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it', or not?

Mr RING - That is right, to be honest. This new board is new. They are feeling their way. But I think it will be very good in the long-term, but with the sale of TOTE, that is a different ball game.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Kevin, you talked about the restructure from last year. What input did your organisation have in that restructure and also, would you mind telling the committee whether you asked the question whether the restructure had anything to do with the potential sale of TOTE and whether it would have made any difference to your support?

Mr RING - I asked the question a few times. Once was at one of those forums at Mowbray Racecourse and it was also asked by a member of the AWU because all our jockeys are members of the AWU. It was asked at the forum at Bellerive as well. I also asked at some meetings at the Thoroughbred Racing Council whether the TOTE was going to be sold and the answer was always no, and it was a very straight no. It is felt in the industry a bit that the new board was set up so they could separate TOTE and the board because previously TOTE had a lot of input into the racing part of it, especially tracks and maintenance and things like that. Whether it is correct, the feeling was that the new board was set up to separate TOTE so that it then could be put on the market and sold.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Would your association's support for the restructure have remained the same had you known that?

Mr RING - If we had known that there was to be a sale of TOTE we would have asked why it was being sold and we would have asked at the time whether there was a guarantee that the same set-up would be in place for the financial reasons for racing. We would not have been against it as long as it was known that everything would remain the same financially.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - In your opinion, is your industry disappointed at the fact that the Government and the minister have chosen not to take the industry and your association along for the ride in the sale?

Mr RING - Yes, we are. We would have liked to have known last year, and we would like to know now what guidelines will be in place as far as the racing the concerned.

Mr BOOTH - Kevin, how definite was this no when you asked the question a number of times? Was it an equivocal or an unequivocal no?

Mr RING - There was no thought put into it. It was straight off and done.

Mr BOOTH - Were you left with any impression that it was being considered or that there was a process in place?

Mr RING - We always thought it was going to happen. It was no surprise when we read at the start of this year that the TOTE was being sold. I think it was in the media within a week after the new board started. It was no surprise to us, let's put it that way.

Mr BOOTH - Basically you did not believe them when they told you no, then, or did you believe them when you asked them?

Mr RING - I do not think anyone believed it, to be honest. That is the opinion of a lot of people I have spoken to in racing. I don't think anyone believed them. You hear a lot of rumours, and especially in racing, but if it is said often enough you start to think it is true; and it was said plenty of times.

Mr GUTWEIN - Kevin, I want to bring you back to a point Mr Booth raised earlier in regard to the level of consultation. My understanding of what you said was that there had been no contact with the Jockeys' Association regarding the possible proposed sale of TOTE, nor have you been contacted since to provide input in regard to concerns or suggestions you might have about the proposed sale of TOTE. Is that correct?

Mr RING - The minister and the Government say they want to sell TOTE and that is fine, but we are disappointed that they did not let everyone know. They should do it officially in writing and give the reasons to the racing groups. As far as the running of racing is concerned, which has been put to me by the Racing Board, it is separate from the TOTE, especially now with the new board. It has been put to me by the board that we cannot tell the Government that we don't think they should sell TOTE because that is the business of the Government. But it is also the business of the people that make a lot of money for the Government through racing as well; as far as we are concerned, racing depends on TOTE.

The TAB was set up as an agency years ago to fund racing, but it also helps fund a lot of capital programs as well for hospitals and things like that but it was also set up to make sure that racing survived. Therefore we think that we should have some say or be informed, at least, about what is happening.

Mr WILKINSON - Kevin, you were saying that you do not believe that racing is as good now as it was when you first arrived in 1989. Secondly, you say that you do not know whether it is a good idea, it would seem, to sell TOTE because you do not know what the price would be and what racing would get out of it, and that there is no certainty for you. And, as I understand it, you say that there has to be more improvement in racing, more race meets, more this, that and one thing and another as you have described over the last half-hour. How are we going to do that, we might ask, if there is not a change in the ways things are dealt with?

Mr RING - One of the things that has been discussed by trainers, jockeys and owners is that we do not need the big prize money for those cups, not as big anyway. Money can be evenly disbursed over the year, with more minor race meetings, say mid-week, and we used to have a fair amount of mid-weeks years ago.

The jockeys, trainers and owners would be quite happy for those mid-weeks to have less prize money than, say, a Sunday meeting. At least it gives everyone a chance to earn some money and make a decent living out of it. The money needs to be spread across the board more evenly, and not just for those January and February race meetings.

Mr WILKINSON - So whether TOTE is sold or not, your major concern is as you have just described?

Mr RING - Yes. It has been explained to us by TOTE and the board also that they want quality, and that is fine. These people in business are talking about quality, but you have to have quantity to get quality and we are not doing that with the number of race meetings we have. There are fewer owners coming into the racing and there are fewer horses about because of a lack of chances to earn a living and a reasonable amount of money. So they are either getting out of racing or going interstate.

Mr WILKINSON - You are saying, aren't you, that the bigger the base of the pyramid the higher it goes?

Mr RING - Yes. I can understand that they want quality but the quality that we are getting over that two-month period when we have so much prize money is all coming from the mainland. People will certainly bet on them and that is what TOTE are trying to do and I can understand that; people will bet on them a lot more because they know the horses. Fifteen years ago we had some very good horses in this State that were able to go to Melbourne and win cups and reasonable races and we have not had those horses for a number of years because of the decline in racing in this State, as far as I'm concerned.

Mr BOOTH - Kevin, from your understanding of the Treasurer's proposal to sell TOTE, do you think that it is being done for the good of the industry or for the good of Treasury?

Mr RING - I cannot answer that until I get more information, but as it stands from just sitting back and hearing and reading and different things, I think that it is for the good of Treasury at the moment.

Mr BEST - Just quickly, Mr Chair, I was a bit late this morning as it was a 5 a.m. start at Liffey Falls, so I am sorry. First of all Kevin, congratulations on all the work that you have done with workers compensation for jockeys and other gains. I am sure that other committee members would be aware of the fine work that you have done there for jockeys. If we were to dot some of the key recommendations that you are making about quantity, where do you think that could take the industry over the next 10 years?

Mr RING - I think we could end up with more jockeys here and more owners, but it will take time. In the first five years, say, over a 10-year period it is not going to improve a lot because people are going to be a bit dubious about investing here, but I think it will improve. There is a decline in jockey numbers across the board across Australia but I think the decline in this State is very low; we have a higher percentage than anywhere. I think with some of the suggestions I have put forward today that eventually we will have more owners, more horses, more jockeys and even more trainers - probably more professional trainers.

CHAIR - Kevin, our time has expired, unfortunately. Thank you very much. The information you have given to the committee has been very informative. We have about 12 witnesses today so we have to keep rocking along.

Mr RING - You'd better drink lots of water.

Laughter.

CHAIR - Thank you very much. We appreciate your coming in.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr TERRY EDWARD CLARKE WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Terry, you have been before parliamentary committees before and so you are aware of privilege and all those sorts of things.

Mr CLARKE - Yes.

CHAIR - Obviously you are aware of our terms of reference, which is to inquire into the sale of TOTE and whether that is a good thing, bad thing or whatever. What I would invite you to do is to give your evidence to the committee, make some opening statements if you like, and then give the committee a chance to ask questions, bearing in mind that we are on a very tight time frame of 30 minutes per witness.

Mr CLARKE - I will make some opening observations, Mr Chairman, and then I would like to deal with a number of issues which have been stimulated by this decision by Cabinet to sell TOTE Tasmania.

Up until December 2008 there were two States in Australia where the racing industry, in my opinion, was set to really develop and had a good base. Those industries were in Western Australia and Tasmania and both were operated by combined wagering and racing bodies. In the other States, where privatisation has occurred in one shape or form, they are all in some trouble regarding their future funding - and I will come back to that later.

It appears to me - and I am making observations at the moment - that this decision is driven by two issues. One is that there is some value in the TOTE now that was not there years ago, so let's jump in and grab it before it disappears, and the threat of expulsion from SuperTAB might well be the driving motivation there.

The other one is an ideology that governments should not own gambling businesses, and I would like to challenge that later as well. The solution is, 'Well, let's fix the racing industry up. We'll put them on a budget and they won't need to complain anymore because they've got a guaranteed income - but hang on, there was no mandate to do that'. If I take Mr Aird's evidence at face value, I don't claim to be the world's best mathematician, but that tells me that the citizens of Tasmania need to fund something over $900 million in the next 20 years. They were not asked whether they wanted to do that, so there has been no public interest test as to whether or not this is a good decision. That is in stark contrast to when the Labor Party came to power in 1998 when they had a mandate to merge racing and wagering.

The second issue is that the Tasmanian racing industry now, whether they like it or not, is exposed to sovereign risk. If we do not think sovereign risk is real for the industry we only have to look at Melbourne and what happened to Tabcorp and Tattersalls, who were encouraged into privatisation on the basis they would get back some $600 million for their licence fee if they were not reallocated the licence in 2012. But the Government there has come in and said, 'No, we are not honouring that pledge; you can take us to the courts if you do not agree'.

The second thing is that without the TOTE, this organisation that has been created, the Tasmanian Racing Board, will effectively be going to the market with one hand tied behind its back. It will have very little power or ability to win its way compared to now with the TOTE, and I'm talking nationally and globally. The other thing that should be worrying people if they're interested in public finance is what incentives will there be for the Tasmanian Racing Board - I don't care whether it's a State-owned company or GBE - where are the market forces that are going to drive efficiency, or is it just going to roll back up to the Government and get caught up in the negotiating for each annual budget?

They are my observations. I think there are issues of public finance principles that are being violated here. I don't understand how a submission can go through Cabinet without the consultation section being filled in, without the economic and social impact, without the licence fees for the new operator having been determined, or the period or the licence. Worse still, if we listen to Mr Aird's evidence, we're just negotiating the deal with the racing industry now, so how did the Government take a decision to sell the TOTE? Where or when was the economic or public benefit test done?

I will now address a few issues that come out of this which I think might be of interest to the committee. TOTE Tasmania effectively provides half of the economic stimulus. In 2005-06, that was estimated to be $74 million, so if you sell off the TOTE to some company that takes it out of this State, you're looking at effectively impacting half of the impact on GDP in this State. As I said, if you take the face value figures given in evidence, that suggests something like $900 million is going to be paid out of the coffers to run racing for the next 20 years.

By the way, the new owner won't have any real necessity to put money back into Tasmania because with the product fee regime, if the Tasmanian racing is not of a quality that fits the new owner's perspective as far as offering product to the wagering punters - and they are the ones who in the end will determine what the new owner bets on - then he has no obligation unless it's part of the deal to put product fees back into Tasmania. If it's part of the deal, then it's going to impact the price.

As to the relationship between TOTE and racing, Mr Challen, I note, said that his decision was a personal one, 'based on, I confess, not huge expertise of the industry' - so again, he got some experts to help him. I would like to ask the committee, what do Japan, France, Ireland, South Africa, Sweden, Norway, Hong Kong, Macau and Singapore have in common? Why is the British Government trying to sell its TOTE to the racing industry? The one thing in common globally with all the major racing industries is that it is one organisation. Racing and wagering is the supply and demand side of the equation.

When the Western Australian Government review was under way into the future administration of that industry, I met the chairman and he told me that the Tasmanian model was the best they had identified after a widespread review. That is what they implemented, apart from the fact that they put probity into the organisation, whereas we argued it was the public good and should be funded for the wider public benefit.

Mr WILKINSON - Terry, what year was that review, please? Can we be provided with a copy of it?

Mr CLARKE - I think Craig might be able to help with that; I don't have that with me here.

Subsequent to the WA decision, New Zealand went the same way, combining racing and wagering into one organisation. In contrast, the most recent example of the privatisation of the TAB in Australia was the sale of SA TAB. Not only did the government there have a massive early return on its purchase price, but it also lost taxation on $80 million of wagering that we got here at TOTE Tasmania. That's because the punters want to stay in the big pool, and the same thing is going to happen here if you move out of the SuperTAB pool. More importantly, it's brought South Australian racing to its knees because the relationship with UNiTAB has not delivered the amount of revenue and income that they need. I understand recently the tax rates have been adjusted to acknowledge that.

Mr Aird quotes that activities in Victoria are a factor in his decision to sell TOTE. From my work with the industry in that State, the racing industry is very unhappy about being prevented from bidding for the parimutuel licence post-2012, and I can tell you from contact within the Government that the industry has tried hard to convince the minister to change his mind and let them bid for the licence. Racing and wagering are inextricably linked; they are the supply and demand sides of the one industry. By separating the wagering from racing and selling off the TOTE, the industry's bargaining power will be significantly impacted, such that the Tasmanian Racing Board, in my opinion, will have little capacity to achieve the targets for selling this racing nationally and globally that Mr Coleman has announced as part of the justification for the split in the administration. It is a suboptimal outcome and the decision to do this in Tasmania is not going with the trend nationally or globally, it is actually going against it.

Indeed, I recently had a phone call from the managing director of one of the two major thoroughbred transport companies in Australia, and I quote him. He said:

-

'What is going on down there? Have people got rocks in their heads selling off the TOTE?'

The third issue is the impact of funding racing from consolidated revenue. At the time of the incorporation of TOTE Tasmania, an investment bank was engaged to define the options for an appropriate financial relationship between the industry, government and TOTE. The consultants were critical of the option of direct funding of racing, noting it would make the allocation of funds largely a recurrent political issue, based around lobbying and negotiations which would tie up resources that could be better used elsewhere, as there is no direct interactive economic relationship between the Government and the racing industry. The consultants considered it difficult to conceive that a proper incentive structure could be established in such circumstances. Even more importantly - and I see you have had the head of Treasury giving you evidence - in their 2003 Regulatory Impact Statement to the National Competition Commission, the following is what the Treasury said five years ago:

'Retention and exclusivity for TOTE Tasmania's parimutuel wagering activities is the best model for providing stable, long-term and reliable sources of funding for the racing industry. This view is because the interests of TOTE Tasmania and the racing industry are aligned. This nexus creates market incentives for both the TOTE and the racing industry to maximise outcomes for both parties.

The TOTE has a direct interest in maximising funding for the racing industry to make it more appealing to the public as a betting product and likewise, the racing industry has an incentive to provide the appropriate racing product mix and quantity demanded by the public to maximise betting opportunities and therefore funding by the TOTE.'

Again, quoting:

'This market would not exist if the Government rather than TOTE funded the racing industry as it would no longer share the TOTE's success.'

I ask, what has changed the Treasury's stated position? Has someone been leaned on?

Mr Challen claims the connection between the TOTE and the racing industry is just an accident of history. The connection between racing and the TAB was never an accident of history. It was because of the racing industry that governments established a TAB in all States.

In Victoria the industry claimed ownership rights over the TAB and this was tested in the High Court at the time of its privatisation with the case being based on the fact of the funding of the assets of the TAB from profits withheld from the industry.

In a debate over the TOTE Tasmania Bill 2000 the then Minister for Racing, Paul Lennon, said in his second reading debate response, quote:

'We are enabling the industry to capitalise its assets for the first time in history, whilst at the same time continuing the government guarantee which underpins the industry now ... We are moving it to a State-owned company under this legislation, and on our way through, are recognising' -

The Government is saying this -

'what the High Court recognised during the sale of the Victorian TAB, that there is in fact some ownership right of the racing industry in the TAB. This legislation is better than what the Victorian racing industry gets in terms of its share of the profits of the privatised Tabcorp.

They get a profit. Here we are giving them earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation and that is quite unusual ... They get it off the top and that maximises the amount ... they get 25 per cent there ...'

It is worth noting the member of the Legislative Council responsible for taking this bill through the upper House was none other than Mr Aird. I believe therefore, and I want the committee to take this in, the industry should now argue that whatever the sale price is for TOTE Australia, 25 per cent of the proceeds should be provided to the TAB and this is in addition to the funds that the Treasurer has already identified he is prepared to give.

A minor issue in Mr Aird's evidence was that he said that he needed to separate out the three assets of the TOTE; the radio station, the TOTE and the racing business. The radio station loses about $700 000 a year. There are probably two logical buyers - Radio Sport 927 and UNiTAB, if they are a buyer. Whichever way it goes, if that was a separate issue it would be a fire sale.

That indicates a misunderstanding of the importance of the integrated nature of the industry; without that radio station some 40 per cent of the business would potentially be at risk. If it is going to be sold as a statewide radio network then you would simply undermine the value on that basis of the licence.

Another issue which Mr Aird raised, is there are changes within the industry that I think will be an interesting challenge and I do not think the Government should be involved in that. Any potential buyer would be well aware of what those issues are and would already have discounted the price. He knew that is was likely because a proportion of the business only exists because TOTE co-mingles its board with SuperTAB. That is what we lost. Also it is widespread industry knowledge that most of TOTE's growth since 2007 has been attracted by rebates to punters to improve their returns and a potential buyer would clearly discount this business if it is not prepared to offer the same rebates.

The major characteristics of a successful TAB are strong local racing, access to a betting pool of more than $1 billion, a competitive taxation regime and position against other forms of gambling and state-of-the-art IT equipment and software. All this would suggest to me that, unless it is a strategic buy and that seems unlikely without the buyer having access to one of the three Australia pools, the buyer may seek to pay the purchase price over a period on an earn-out basis, no doubt frustrating the Government's reinvestment plans; albeit, we do not know what assets they are going to put that money in and how it is going create more benefit than the existing arrangement.

The seventh issue is, another reason for selling a State-owned company is that it is not performing or could be perceived to perform better in the private sector. Since the establishment of the current arrangement, funding to racing has increased by more than 90 per cent and the organisation has never called on the Government to fund its operational activities. Because of its expertise and experience it has become the fastest-growing TAB in Australia.

In 1997, KPMG did a report for the Government and there were consultants who looked at the ACT about the same time. Both consulting groups could not see how the TAB could survive in the then turmoil in the market. It has, 12 years on and it is stronger than ever. I reject completely therefore, the ideologically-driven view that governments should not own TABs. Providing the racing wagering are operated together, and I am sure the Western Australian Government reached this view, the public benefits test will mean the overall social and economic benefits will outweigh the risks to the Government of the gambling business. If it is operated as an incorporated company, it is operated properly and ministers keep out of the day-to-day business, then they should have no reason to be concerned that is it going to come back and bite them.

CHAIR - Terry, I am aware that we are down to about 10 minutes, so if you can just encapsulate what you have to say.

Mr CLARKE - I can finish there, Mr Chairman. I do have another point to make later.

CHAIR - Yes, thank you. You gave us a multitude of information at 100 miles an hour, so we are probably still all absorbing that. That was good.

Mr CLARKE - I am happy to provide it to you as a paper, if you wish.

CHAIR - It is on Hansard. If you want to table that it would be handy.

Mr BEST - We have the picture; you are not happy.

Mr CLARKE - As a citizen I am a bit concerned when someone whacks $900 million on the budget and we were not asked, as people, whether or not we wanted that to happen. It is a very convenient way to say, 'Don't worry about the risk, I'll look after it. I am sorry, I do not agree. As we saw with Tabcorp and Tattersalls, sovereign risk is just that, it is sovereign risk and it exists in western governments as it exists in any other form of government.

Mr BOOTH - Terry, in your previous role with TOTE, was the sale of TOTE ever discussed before, at any level?

Mr CLARKE - No, it was not.

Mr BOOTH - When did you first become aware of it?

Mr CLARKE - I will put it to you this way, since I left TOTE as far back as in January 2008, I asked if I was to roll up with the right amount of money to do a MBO, how would I go? I was told it would be well received.

Mr BOOTH - Who did you ask?

Mr CLARKE - I prefer not to comment.

Mr BOOTH - Not the Treasurer?

Mr CLARKE - No, it was not the Treasurer and I guess I have then picked up things through the press and I knew that despite the Treasurer saying on WIN Television, on 10 November, it was not on their mind, I know that at the Oaks on 6 November there was discussion in the committee room with the VRC. Amongst people who had been invited there was just the Treasury in the sale of the TOTE. Clearly, it was on people's minds before 10 November.

Mr BOOTH - They had been invited to assist.

Mr CLARKE - To assist the Treasury in the sale of TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - Who were those people?

Mr CLARKE - Again, I am happy to give you that name in camera.

Mr BOOTH - Perhaps the Chair or someone can ask that in camera in regard to that just to clarify it.

Mr WILKINSON - Will we take that opportunity at the end of this session?

CHAIR - If it is quick we can do that.

Mr BOOTH - Just to clarify, what you are saying at the moment is that the industry is supported okay through TOTE and that model could take it in the future, whereas it becomes then a political risk and an argument every year for funding and support of the industry.

Mr CLARKE - It goes further than that because not only is the industry caught up in the machinations of the budgets, you actually weaken the organisation that runs racing because it no longer goes to the table with the ability to talk across the full range of wagering. If you are going to try to sell Tasmanian wagering into Asia, for example, it would certainly assist if you had the TAB there who is buying product on the other side. That is an issue which I know is part of the process to justify the separation and selling of Tasmanian product into Asia. The fact is that up until 2014, 2016 Sky Channel control all the vision rights of Racing Tasmania. So anything you sell you are going to get half-rights for it anyhow. So you are going to have to sell a hell of a lot of product, for example, if you wanted to economically justify putting lights on at Mowbray.

Mr GUTWEIN - You mentioned right at the end of the presentation - and if I can just commend you on that, I thought that was very well presented - that ministers should keep their hands off the day-to-day running of the business. Implicit in that is that in the past that has not been the case?

Mr CLARKE - That is absolutely the case. TOTE and the racing industry reaches out so far into the community that in my experience - 10 years at the head of it - you are in daily conflict because people do not get enough money or this dog had not been listed - a whole range of issues that all of you are well aware of. They go to the minister and they lobby the minister. The minister's support staff think they better get involved. A classic case with the current arrangement with people here is with the hotel down in the Channel. There was clearly no economic case for putting a TAB in there and yet we have spent weeks and weeks arguing because someone in the minister's office had that view. This is not consistent with operating a State-owned company. If you set up a company, you set up the board. It operates under Corporations Law and, as far as government is concerned, it should restrict its input to the strategic plan and the policies. If you are going to go around trying to solve every minor complaint from the racing industry and the betting public then you are effectively, instead of walking away and saying that this is a matter for the TOTE to solve, getting involved needlessly. In those circumstances I can understand why you probably would want to get rid of it, get it off the book.

CHAIR - The committee will now move in camera for a couple of minutes. Would you switch off any recording devices. We will not be long and then Mr Craig Coleman will be the next witness.

Mr CRAIG COLEMAN WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Mr Coleman, you are aware of the privilege issues that run as you have given evidence before. For the benefit of members of the gallery and the committee, Mr Coleman may wish to give some evidence in camera as well, but we will start off in open committee. Craig, I would ask you to make an opening statement, if you would, please.

Mr COLEMAN - First of all, I would like to thank the committee for the opportunity to appear before you today and to provide some comments.

Understandably there has been a great deal of interest in the sale of TOTE Tasmania within the Tasmanian racing industry. As I perceive it, the concern is about the continuity of funding, and certainly they were remarks that were echoed this morning by Kevin Ring in his presentation from the industry, and I think that is an entirely valid concern. The Tasmanian racing industry for the past 10 years has received a substantial increase in funding and, as Terry Clarke, the previous witness, indicated, that increase has been in the order of 90 per cent over that time. The profits that are generated by TOTE Tasmania and paid to the racing industry - this is my position - are a distribution of government funds. The Government owns the business, it was set up by the Government and it has chosen, as it did when it formed the company in 1999 and then formed the State-owned company in 2001, to distribute all its profits to the Tasmanian racing industry. So what we are actually getting in the Tasmanian racing industry is government funds.

The Tasmanian racing industry, in addition to the government funds, is provided with considerable other concessions in the form of dividend holidays. I know that has been of considerable debate in other committees and forums within the Parliament. It gets money from Betfair and direct capital injections from the Government, the most recent being the $22.6 million that was paid to the industry in 2002. Operational funding for racing from TOTE Tasmania alone this year is $23.8 million. The Tasmanian industry has seen the success of TOTE Tasmania in recent years and is understandably nervous about its future funding and the impact if TOTE Tasmania is sold. I consider this a strong vote of confidence in the management of TOTE Tasmania and for that I would like to acknowledge the fine work of the board and the management team of TOTE Tasmania. I suppose, in many respects, this probably makes it the right time now to sell the company.

Funding from TOTE Tasmania is but one form of investment in the Tasmanian racing industry. Many Tasmanians invest in the industry through ownership of horses, dogs and, more importantly, through investment in properties dedicated to breeding and training of horses and dogs. For some the investment is motivated by passion for the industry; however, it is important that an appropriate economic return must be considered for those individuals. In my view, the certainty of future funding by government, either through TOTE Tasmania or directly, is an important key element in encouraging that ongoing private sector investment in the racing industry. In this regard, I note the Minister for Racing has already committed the Government to a long-term funding deed, and he spoke of that when he appeared before the committee a couple of weeks ago. That funding deed, as I understand it, will be for 20 years and has agreed amounts of funding with the Tasmanian Racing Board, which accords exactly with the requirements of Mr Ring this morning.

As I understand it, the industry has been guaranteed a level of funding independent of the commercial operations of TOTE Tasmania, and that is a very important point I'll come back to in a moment. This resolves many of the concerns expressed about what private ownership of TOTE Tasmania may mean to the local industry, and I will touch on some of those concerns as they were referred to by Mr Clarke in his evidence, particularly on the sale of the South Australian TAB. The committee received evidence on the first day of the hearing that the sale of the South Australian TAB was a significant cause of the decline of the racing industry in that State. By way of contrast to TOTE Tasmania, when SA TAB was sold it was returning a loss to the operator. It was virtually stripped of all its profits by the Government of the time. Indeed, following the sale, turnover decreased further, and Mr Clarke referred to that in his evidence this morning. Funding for racing in South Australia is directly - and I emphasise 'directly' - related to the turnover of the TAB in that State, so as the turnover increases or decreases so too does the funding for racing in that State.

I can fully understand that the racing industry would be concerned if the Government was to implement a funding model similar to that model in South Australia, but this is not what the Government is proposing. I understand that the Government is proposing to enter into a long-term deed with the Tasmanian racing industry, which would provide a level of certainty of funding independent of and separate to the turnover of TOTE Tasmania. I encourage that approach because at least the industry will have some form of certainty about its funding model.

I would also like to address some of the comments that were made at the committee on the first day of hearings. The former chairman of the Tasmanian Greyhound Racing Council, Mr Bullock, raised two issues of concerns to him and his former council with respect to the guaranteed levels of funding for the greyhound code. The second matter was in respect to the potential sale of TOTE Tasmania during the industry consultation. Again, that matter was referred to by Mr Ring this morning, so I will address those two points.

It has been asserted that TOTE Tasmania advised the greyhound council that it would increase the level of funding for that code received from funding from Betfair in excess of $5 million; however, TOTE Tasmania did not formalise its commitment in writing. I have here in evidence copies of several letters which passed between the code council and Mr Bullock and TOTE Tasmania which refer specifically to that guarantee. Mr Bullock further asserted that in written documents handed out during industry forums, and in particular the industry forum at Campbell Town, there was a commitment that TOTE would never be sold. On this point I will read from the document - and there is a copy of this document incorporated in the papers that I've handed the committee this morning.

The comment was made that as TOTE Tasmania is not on the market, therefore there is no provision in the proposed legislation dealing with any hypothetical future sale. That falls well short of saying that TOTE will not be sold. Indeed, on a number of occasions during the consultation process, when asked about this question, I expanded my comments to say that the Tasmanian racing industry could never be guaranteed that the TOTE would not be sold. This Government, or indeed any future Labor or Liberal governments, may well decide to sell TOTE

Tasmania, so there's no guarantee in future. To rely on an organisation for the bulk of your funding appears to me to be madness. You need to broaden your income base so that the industry has a good and sustainable future well beyond the single-point sensitivity of TOTE Tasmania. I made that point quite clear at a number of those forums.

I also want to make comment as to why I was so motivated to see the implementation of the industry restructure which was approved by the Parliament last year. There are several papers here which refer to the documented process that we went through there, including board papers from the TOTE Tasmania board when the formation of the Tasmanian Racing Board was first raised and pursued in July and August 2003, almost some six years ago now. So this has been on the agenda for the company for several years and was first raised in public forums in 2004, but didn't proceed at that time for a number of reasons.

I again raised the prospects with the TOTE board in July 2008, and the process of the formation of the Tasmanian Racing Board as a governance model started in July 2008, well before any consideration of the sale of TOTE Tasmania was on the agenda. I, along with a number of other executives, developed that model within the company, and we were firmly of the view that we needed a model which took a one-industry approach to promoting the industry in Tasmania, and wasn't caught up in the fracturing of the three codes competing for their own individual positions, which was the case previously.

There are a number of people within the industry and I received lots of comments through the process. Indeed, I received a copy of a survey done for the greyhound code where 57 per cent of the constituents expressed a vote of no confidence in the old code structure. They were the motivations for me to take forward the industry restructure, it had nothing to do with the sale. Indeed, I would have said that TOTE Tasmania could have been sold regardless of whether the restructure occurred.

As the Minister for Racing indicated last week - and referred to by Mr Clarke this morning - we have restructured the company into three entities: a media entity, a racing entity and a wagering entity; not ostensibly to sell, but because of the efficiencies of running the business in that way. Any one of those entities could have been hived off from the business and could have proceeded forward without the other two. That is all I would like to say about that at this time, but I may have a further comment on that later, Mr Chairman. In conclusion, in my view, the restructuring of the Tasmanian racing industry has nothing to do with the sale of TOTE Tasmania.

CHAIR - Okay. Any questions?

Mr BOOTH - When did you first become aware that the Government was interested in selling TOTE?

Mr COLEMAN - I have made no secret over the last four or five years that I have had an interest in seeing the TOTE pass into private ownership. I have raised those observations with a number of people, including the Government, over that time. So when did I first have those discussions with the Government? Maybe three, four or five years ago.

Mr BOOTH - So with this current proposal to sell, when did you start discussing with the Government the prospect of its being sold? Not from your position in the past that you thought it was a good idea, but with the Government specifically to do with selling it?

Mr COLEMAN - The first discussions I would have had on the possibility for sale would have been in May or June 2008.

Mr BOOTH - What form did those discussions take?

Mr COLEMAN - 'Is it worth considering?' - it was no more than that. Of course I was very keen on the notion of it being worth considering.

Mr BOOTH - In your mind, when did you believe the Government would proceed or was seriously considering the sale?

Mr COLEMAN - I really had not formed a view on that. There needed to be some consideration about the appropriate process. There needed to be advice on that and ultimately it is not for me to sell the TOTE, it is for the Government to sell it. I am part of what gets sold but they make those decisions.

Mr BOOTH - Was it in your understanding that it would be sold back in October last year, for example, or prior to that, prior to November last year?

Mr COLEMAN - That it would be sold, no, it was not my understanding. My knowledge of it being sold would have come in late December.

Mr BOOTH - How were you advised of that?

Mr COLEMAN - I was advised that it had been to Cabinet and that Cabinet had considered the sale of TOTE.

Mr BOOTH - Did you know it was going to Cabinet?

Mr COLEMAN - No.

Mr WILKINSON - Was there an increase in activity? Proposed sales do not drag along at snail's pace. If there is to be a sale or a decision to sell there is a bit more activity just prior to that happening. What I am suggesting is that you would have noticed that increase in activity, in terms of discussions with you, looking at business plans et cetera.

Mr COLEMAN - No, there were none of those discussions.

Mr WILKINSON - None with you?

Mr COLEMAN - None with me.

Mr WILKINSON - And you were not aware of any?

Mr COLEMAN - I was not aware of any, no.

Mr BOOTH - Were you shocked when you heard that it was going to be sold?

Mr COLEMAN - Pleasantly surprised or pleased.

Mr WILKINSON - I am not in government so I do not know, Craig, but I have been involved in private enterprise for a number of years and the Legislative Council for a number of years. People know what is going on around them. Are you saying that this was so cloak and dagger that you did not have any idea as to what was going on around you?

Mr COLEMAN - No, it is not fair to say that. In response to the question, did I know that TOTE was going to be sold? No, I did not know that TOTE was going to be sold until December. Was I aware of any consideration of the potential value of the TOTE over that time? The answer is yes, I was. Was I directly involved in any activity? No.

Mr WILKINSON - You were not aware that that activity was increasing. Can I take that to be -

Mr COLEMAN - I do not know that that is a fair characterisation of what actually occurred.

Mr WILKINSON - That is what I am trying to find out, you see?

Mr COLEMAN - My understanding is consultants, Deloitte, were engaged to give advice on the structure of the company under the Gaming Control Act and they were subsequently engaged to give advice on whether it was appropriate to sell the company. If that is an increase in activity, I was aware of that.

Mr BOOTH - Did they approach TOTE at all in regard to that then? Deloitte were engaged to consider selling the TOTE off, so surely they must have approached TOTE and discussed the business operation, model and the finances of it - what you owned, what you didn't?

Mr COLEMAN - All of those discussions occurred subsequent to the announcement of the sale of TOTE.

Mr GUTWEIN - Mr Coleman, are you telling us that the Cabinet made a decision to sell TOTE without there being any direct involvement by yourself, the CEO of TOTE, in regards to the value that might be ascribed to that asset should it go to sale?

Mr COLEMAN - I think we need to be clear on the decision the Government has made. The decision is the Government has an intention or a desire to sell TOTE given the right circumstances. Those circumstances have yet to be identified and finalised, so saying that TOTE is on the market today is wrong, it is not. Indeed, one of the key processes that needs to be dealt with is the passage of legislation through both Houses of Parliament and a price will need to be achieved which satisfies the Treasurer and the Government in particular. To say it will be sold, there are a lot of things -

Mr GUTWEIN - I said the decision had been made to sell TOTE by Cabinet which I think was certainly how the decision by Cabinet was portrayed; that the Government had decided that they would sell the TOTE. It seems a little strange that as CEO you were not involved in providing any advice to either Deloitte's or to Government about the potential value of TOTE prior to Cabinet making that decision.

Mr COLEMAN - If we are going to get into some of those questions I would rather answer them -

CHAIR - Any further questions? If not, we will have a short time in camera again.

Ms ROBYN LOUISE WHISHAW WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you very much for coming along. What I might do is just read a couple of lines on parliamentary privilege, Robyn, because you may not have given evidence to a parliamentary committee before.

Ms WHISHAW - No, I have not.

CHAIR - Basically what it says is that everything you say to this committee today is protected by parliamentary privilege. This is to allow you to speak freely. However, once you have left the committee room, I must advise you not to specifically discuss your written or verbal evidence with anybody until the committee has made its report to the Parliament. You are free to speak generally about the issue to anyone, but please do not refer specifically to anyone about the evidence you give the committee until the report has been published. Our main term of reference is the proposed sale of TOTE by the Government of Tasmania, so I will let you make some remarks.

Ms WHISHAW - Firstly I would like to introduce myself. For those of you who don't know me, most of you, my name is Robyn Whishaw. I am a manager and part-owner of Tasmania's oldest and largest stud, Armidale, at Carrick in northern Tasmania. I have been involved in breeding and racing horses for over 30 years. My children, the eldest of whom is now home working full-time in the business, are fourth-generation farmers and third-generation horse-breeders. Our business currently employs six full-time staff, with 12 part-time staff during our busier times of year. We also provide a large amount of work for an equine vet, two farriers, two transport companies, a chaff supplier, a fencing contractor, a hay-making contractor and an irrigation company, as well as numerous others.

I would like to make the following points regarding the proposed sale of TOTE, and also ask you the following questions. How do we know just what we are being asked to comment on when the Government has not consulted with our industry at all about this proposed sale and, furthermore, has not given any indication at all of how the sale will work and how the industry will be funded? Amazingly, they did not even consult the TOTE chairman, Craig Coleman, on the sale of TOTE. How can Premier Bartlett possibly claim to have an open, transparent and accountable government?

In December 2007 Mr Michael Aird released a study showing the importance of the racing industry to Tasmania's economy, and I have a copy here. It found that the industry generates more than $74.1 million output for the economy, directly employs over 2 500 people, and many more indirectly and part-time. A study done in 2000 by the Australian Racing Board - and I also have a copy of that - had that figure at nearly 5 000 in Tasmania being full-time employed. It also generates a total construction contribution of over $73 million. It is a most valuable industry for Tasmania and one that has shown significant growth trends in recent years.

TOTE turnover was up substantially last year, from $387 million to $498 million in just 12 months, a growth rate of 30 per cent. The racing industry is labour-intensive and provides employment for a subset of people with unique labour skills who may struggle to find work elsewhere. Over 50 per cent of those employed are from rural areas. The employment levels have continued to grow as the industry grows, and the industry largely has not been dependent on government subsidies.

It is very important to note that TOTE was formed to fund the racing industry, to maximise return to stakeholders, and to free the Government from having to fund racing. TOTE was developed to make sure the industry and all the stakeholders were able to progress and reinvest in the future of building a better industry, and this has been very successful. Consider that England, with its wonderful racing, steeped in tradition, bets over twice as much in dollars as Australia, yet it races for less than a third of the prize money. Why? Because Australia has had the best betting and funding system in the world, and that is TOTE. Remember that. Australian racing is the envy of many overseas countries, certainly the envy of the English.

Sadly, other States that have sold their TOTE to private enterprise are starting to suffer. You only have to talk to the administrators in New South Wales, Victoria and South Australia to hear of their grave concerns for the future funding of racing, yet both Western Australia and the ACT, who still have government-owned TOTES, are booming. Has our Government taken the time to look at Western Australia and how their TOTE works to see if their model would be appropriate for Tasmania? In fact, Mr Clarke said earlier that Western Australia based their model on Tasmania with a few changes. It is working brilliantly.

What options has our Government explored? If they have explored any options they certainly have not told us. It is difficult not to be cynical about the timing of the announcement of the sale. Just as the Government has totally changed the structure of the administration of racing, taking it away from TOTE and the race clubs and has formed a new Government-appointed board, it announces suddenly the time is right for TOTE to be sold, right when racing's voice has been disbanded and the new Government board has barely had time to meet. We can be certain the new board members are not going to question the Government's timing in the sale of TOTE now, are they?

I do not doubt that private enterprise would run TOTE more efficiently. But private enterprise will have an obligation to shareholders to maximise their returns. Where will the profit go? It is most likely that an interstate buyer, or an overseas buyer indeed, would be interested in buying our TOTE. They therefore will take the profits out of the State. This will in turn have an enormous negative impact on the State's economy. The way it is at the moment, the profit from TOTE goes back into the State, is spent in the State on building the industry, on employment, and tourism and all the other things that the industry generates. I am asking you if an outsider buys it, where will the profits go and how will this affect our economy? Has the Government done a study on this? It would be nice to see if it had. Remember why TOTE was set up in the first place: to fund the industry.

Aren't we - those that have invested long, hard hours and financial commitment to the racing industry over many years and for my family over three generations - the shareholders of TOTE? For as we work hard to grow our industry and employ more and generate more money, so TOTE too has profited and grown. This in turn has kept the growth spiral onwards and upwards. What I would like to know is how our Government is going to offer protection to our industry and to the livelihoods of all those people and families who have worked so hard to build a viable racing and breeding industry in Tasmania. Without that huge effort and financial commitment by so many the Government would have no TOTE to sell.

It is rather sad to think that we have been so successful in building such a vibrant industry and TOTE that our Government has now forgotten the fundamental reason it was developed in the first place and can only see the dollars it can get from the income of selling it. I think it is important to consider that we must also be aware that governments cannot promise things in perpetuity. Mr Aird may well talk about 20-year promises. I am sorry, but that is all it is: it is only talk. Besides, for me, 20 years is nothing. My youngest son, who aspires to come back to the stud and assist in running the business, will only be in his 30s in 20 years' time. Mr Aird most likely will be long gone but my children will be in their 30s. Twenty years is not long enough, I am sorry.

I challenge our Government to provide a funding model that is not static, that can grow as racing grows as TOTE has done; a model that is sensitive to the needs of the industry and can guarantee us a strong, growing and progressive industry into the future; an industry that can continue to be a major economic and social contributor to our wonderful State of Tasmania. They need to provide us with a model that is better than TOTE. I believe that the racing industry would prefer to stay in the commercial world rather than be dependent on a government for future funding. That is what will happen if TOTE is sold: the Government will have to fund it. I have done the maths and I was alarmed to hear Mr Clarke say that that is the equivalent of $900 million over 20 years.

Finally, I would like to strongly recommend that this committee make a recommendation that the sale of TOTE be put on hold until a proper transparent inquiry can be held to allow thorough investigation of the pros and the cons, and most importantly to allow for public input from those who rely on the industry for their livelihood and income. Thank you.

CHAIR - Thank you, Robyn. I understand the passion you have for the industry and how long you have been in it. You made some very good points. I put a question to you hypothetically, in response to a statement towards the end of your deliberation that you would rather see the racing industry take their chance with the commercial world rather than having a funding model, and you were rather sceptical about the 20-year time line. What happens if there are other commercial pressures which really impact upon TOTE, and they couldn't deliver what they've been delivering in the past? Would it not be better then hypothetically - I am being the devil's advocate here - to have a funding model which delivers some certainty, even though it's for only 20 years?

Ms WHISHAW - I can see your point, yes. I think TOTE has performed well, and it's properly managed - and I would say that the management has been good; you only have to look at the growth of TOTE. In fact, someone was saying there has been 90 per cent growth over 10 years, is that right? It has grown enormously. Obviously, we face a lot of challenges with gambling, and someone like Mr Clarke or Mr Coleman would be in a much better position than I to understand the complexities of those. But from talking to the people in the industry and being reliant on the industry myself, I would think we would rather compete in the marketplace than rely on a government which ostensibly is also competing in the marketplace to get its funds to supply the industry.

I would much prefer that, I would prefer to compete in the marketplace as we have. I think TOTE can continue to grow with good management, and we obviously need to look to Asia for markets, but we have the right personnel to do that. Also, it will force our industry to continue to upgrade and be competitive.

Mr BOOTH - Thanks for the evidence; it is pretty unequivocal that what you're saying is that you don't want it sold. You are representing Armidale Stud, but do you have a broader connection, do you think that what you're saying is broadly what your industry wants?

Ms WHISHAW - I talk to a lot of people in the industry, obviously, through my clients. This is something that a lot of people in the industry are very alarmed about. Certainly the way it's been done has been very alarming because there's been no consultation at all, and yet we have a government saying they are going to. Why wouldn't you go to the industry, why wouldn't you go to the Chairman of the TOTE and asked him about it? It seems farcical that he wasn't asked, but I am not a politician. Talking to the people that I talk to, and I wrote an article in the Examiner which was published on Launceston Cup day and I had a number of calls regarding that; people are very concerned.

CHAIR - That article certainly raised some interest. Soapbox, I think it was called, wasn't it?

Ms WHISHAW - Yes. I am sorry, people don't trust the Government in that we know a government's promise will only last as long as that government is in, and then it can be changed. The industry feels that it has experienced good growth over the years that TOTE's been formed; it has made good progress, so why change? States that have changed are in trouble. In the States and the countries sticking with this model, racing is very sound and growing. All right, when the economy is tough it will not grow as quickly, that is life. We will go through a tough time now, but I think when times are good, if people put in the hard work then we have had the growth and that's exactly what TOTE has done.

I think the general feeling that I get from grassroots - and I certainly can't speak for the whole industry - is that they're very alarmed, that the Government cannot come up with a model which can't be changed, can't be taken away from us, that can cope with growth - and I can't see how they can come up with a model that's flexible enough, but I'm not that smart so perhaps they can - as TOTE has. As we've grown, TOTE's grown, they feed off one another. Can they come up with a model like that?

CHAIR - Following what you were saying, for instance you were going on a line there, I understand the recent yearling sales were less than satisfactory.

Ms WHISHAW - Disastrous. We certainly expected they would be down.

CHAIR - Obviously an economic downturn comes into play there as well. What percentage do you think can be attributed to the uncertainty around the sale? Some trainers have said to me it was all to do with that.

Ms WHISHAW - We'd all have to guess at exactly what it was to do with. We certainly expected a downturn based on other sales figures around Australia. You would have expected a 25 per cent to 30 per cent downturn. I think there's certainly a lot of uncertainty in the industry and unrest about this sudden proposal. One minute TOTE is not for sale and the next minute it is for sale. One minute we have a say in our industry, the next minute there is a new government-appointed board who are not going to stand up and fight against this because they have been appointed by the Government.

We feel that no-one is representing us. Who have we to speak out? The industry feels very uncertain but there is no way that you could guess how that influenced the sales. I think that it was a negative impact but of what amount I do not know.

Mr BOOTH - Why do you think the Treasurer is selling it then?

Ms WHISHAW - I would like to look inside his head and be able to answer that. It would appear on the surface for someone naive and ignorant like myself that perhaps he is a little bit short of funds. If he looked at it long term and what it is going to take to fund the industry over the next 20 years, $900 million is a lot of money and that probably does not even allow for growth. I am sure that it would not be based on the 30 per cent growth we have had in the last year or the 90 per cent growth we have had in the last 10 years. I think that figure is probably just what we are at now, plus the CPI index.

Mr BOOTH - Would you have accepted effectively the assurances prior to the announcement that it was for sale, but in fact it was not for sale?

Ms WHISHAW - Yes. Why should we do otherwise? The question was repeatedly asked. I must admit, though, being a bit of a cynic, that as soon they started to separate TOTE from the administration of racing a lot of us in the industry were saying that the next thing they would be saying is that TOTE was for sale. I was talking about it with a vet back in October; we were joking about it, saying we would hear TOTE was for sale.

Mr BOOTH - Do you feel that the industry has been misled by the Government?

Ms WHISHAW - Definitely. And I do not think the industry trusts the Government at all, if, face to face, they cannot answer you honestly.

Mr GUTWEIN - So absolutely no contact with the industry throughout last year?

Ms WHISHAW - None whatsoever that I know of. I am only a State's leading breeder; why would they ask me?

Mr GUTWEIN - You have also been quite prominent in your public statements on this and in Letters to the Editor as well.

Ms WHISHAW - Well, if I don't, who else is going to?

Mr GUTWEIN - Have you have been contacted after making those public statements?

Ms WHISHAW - Yes, I have and perhaps I might need to say something in camera regarding that. I have been contacted by a lot of the industry too.

Mr GUTWEIN - Just before we go in camera, are you aware of any other contact being made with anyone else in the industry or any formal process being put in place because obviously it appears over the last month to six weeks a lot of concerns have been raised, a lot of people out there are raising issues. Are you aware of any formal process that has been put in place by government or any other body to actually begin to engage?

Ms WHISHAW - This is the only formal process that I know of where some public have been asked to comment. I imagine I was asked to comment because I made a noise. Many people have stopped me in the street and rung me up. Some have written to me and e-mailed me to say good on you for being brave enough to speak out; we need someone to speak out for the industry because we have no-one now because they have just disbanded our voice.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Robyn, obviously the new structure has taken away what you perceive as your voice, but do you still as an industry stakeholder meet on a regular basis?

Ms WHISHAW - No, not as a group. We have been trying to. Since this has happened I have been trying to form a group of stakeholders so that we can have a voice so that when issues like this happen someone, an elected person, can speak for the industry. It is very hard, the Government has just disbanded it, the new board only came into being on 1 January and then this is thrown on us, so it takes a little bit of time.

We are in the process of trying to get a body together because we feel that the new racing board, being all government appointees - I am not saying that they do not have the interest of racing at heart because I think that they will have - they cannot be seen as going against government policy otherwise they will be asked to move on down the road and someone else will fill the seat.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Thank you.

CHAIR - We will go in camera. We will be short.

Mr KEVIN NEILSON WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Kevin, are you au fait with parliamentary privilege and all that sort of thing?

Mr NEILSON - I have read the documents. I think I am fairly familiar with it.

CHAIR - Okay, I will not go through it again.

Kevin, thank you very much for appearing. You are the manager of the Tasmanian Racing Board - or TRB - therefore I will invite you to make a statement if you would like and then open up the proceedings for members to ask some questions. Thank you.

Mr NEILSON - I need to clarify my position. I am not the manager of the Tasmanian Racing Board.

CHAIR - Aren't you? That is what is said on the running sheet.

Mr NEILSON - No, I am the Manager of Harness with the Tasmanian Racing Board.

CHAIR - Okay, thank you.

Mr NEILSON - The original request for me to appear before this committee was in my capacity as CEO of Harness Racing Tasmania. As a result of the legislative change Harness Racing Tasmania ceased to exist from 1 January 2009 and the roles and responsibilities simply were taken over by the Tasmania Racing Board. My current position, as I said, is Manager of Harness with the TRB. When I was asked to appear before the committee I reviewed the minutes of Harness Racing Tasmania board meetings for any indication of the position of HRT concerning the possible sale of TOTE Tasmania.

As the racing restructure consultation leading to the abolition of the co-councils and the formation of TRB was announced in August 2008, I checked the minutes from then to 1 January 2009, and there was no reference to any HRT position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania. That is not a surprise because the sale was announced on 9 January, after Harness Racing Tasmania ceased to exist. During the racing restructure consultation I do recall some individuals making aside comments such as, 'This looks as if it may be set up for sale', but those comments were sort of there one moment and gone the next. At least one HRT council member made a similar comment and said it was just a one-liner. So I suppose, in conclusion, HRT has never had a position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania as the notification of that sale was made after the entity ceased to exist.

CHAIR - Thanks, Kevin. Questions from the committee to Kevin?

Mr GUTWEIN - Do you have a position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania?

Mr NEILSON - Do I personally, Peter?

Mr GUTWEIN - Yes.

Mr NEILSON - No, I do not. The reason for that is that in my current role as Manager of Harness I am concerned about the day-to-day running of harness racing in the Tasmanian racing industry. I know that the Tasmanian Racing Board is working with the minister at the moment to put in place a funding model for the future. I am leaving the Tasmanian Racing Board to do their job while I go ahead with my job, so I do not have a personal position on the sale of TOTE Tasmania. I do not understand the reasons it is being put up for sale. I have not researched them. I genuinely do not have a position on it.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - What about your industry, though? Do you think there is any position generally from people you know and speak with, other than the people who have said, 'This could well be a set-up for a sale' prior to the restructure?

Mr NEILSON - There is a two-part answer to that. I am aware that there is an entity that has got together and canvassed clubs and put a petition forward objecting to the sale of TOTE Tasmania. I have not seen that bit of paper. I do not know what the wording is.

The second part of that answer is that I am sure that what the industry wants is security of funding. The minister has given an undertaking that he would look at a 20-year plan in regard to the funding of the racing industry. The racing industry has had secure funding in the past. If you go back to about 2000 when TOTE Tasmania came in and the legislation required that x number of units were paid back to the racing industry to sustain that industry.

In fact, TOTE exceeded that by a long way in the subsequent years from 2000 to 2008. They initially were sole provider of funding for racing. As we went through the early 2000s, entities such as AAMI, Wrest Point Casino and other sponsors came on board and provided a minimal amount of funding for racing - a very important amount but minimal. Then, of course, with 2006 the licensing of Betfair came in and, as such, funding flowed to the racing industry from Betfair. That is about 25-28 per cent of our funding. So the climate is changing in regard to where funding for racing comes from but TOTE still provides an enormous amount of funding. Into the future, I think the industry just wants surety as to the funding into the future and I do not think they care where it comes from, as long as it is secure.

Mr GUTWEIN - Kevin, whilst you might not have a personal opinion about the sale of TOTE, obviously the outcome of the sale is very important for harness racing. If the outcome was not as good as it currently is, would the sale of TOTE be a good thing?

Mr NEILSON - It is a hypothetical question.

Mr GUTWEIN - I can understand your reasons for not wanting to have a personal position in this room, but in the position that you hold, obviously the outcome of any sale is going to have a direct and material impact on harness racing in Tasmania in some way. Either it is going to be better for the industry, it is going to be the same or it might be worse. From what you understand of what is going forward, is the sale going to be better or worse for the industry, and if it were to be worse but perhaps better for the other codes, would you be supporting it?

Mr NEILSON - First of all, I have confidence in the Government in regard to how they have handled racing in the last eight to 10 years. They have put us on a very high pedestal, comparatively speaking, as far as stake money is concerned, and especially the support that they have given harness breeding through their funding and also through TOTE Tasmania has been sensational. I obviously would not condone anything which reduced the funding to racing into the future. It is a hypothetical question, but if TOTE was sold and the funding went down, in hindsight, obviously I would not support it.

Mr GUTWEIN - Fair enough.

Mr NEILSON - But there is a lot of hypothetical in that.

Mr BOOTH - Just following on from Peter's question, are you concerned then that the funding at the moment effectively is being taken out of the political domain to a fair degree, because TOTE exists as a racing entity that funds its stakes and so forth, whereas if it was transferred back directly from consolidated revenue to support the stakes that a strong political argument would occur each Budget as to what the public would see as the public purse paying for the racing industry, and therefore be subject to the whims of whatever was in - the political pressure?

Mr NEILSON - I think no matter whether it is health, education or racing, it is always at the whim of the Government at the time in regard to the support for it.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, but that is the point I am making at the moment. If you are queuing up for a hospital bed, you are not necessarily going to look at what money TOTE puts back to support stakes, whereas if it is a direct Treasury contribution from consolidated revenue, budgetary and portionary, that goes to support that industry, then you are competing, aren't you, more directly? That is the point I am making.

Mr NEILSON - Yes, let us get this clear. The current funding is through until the end of this financial year. With the restructure, the funding that the code councils have has been transferred across to the Tasmanian Racing Board and the funding is secure until 30 June. As I mentioned before, I know at the moment that the TAB's main priority in the past two month has been to work with the minister to get a funding model up and going, and I believe that process is almost complete now. Again, I refer to the statement that Mr Aird made to this committee at the first sitting when he said he was looking for long-term surety, and I had noticed the figure of 20 years was mentioned. Does that answer the question?

Mr BOOTH - Well, you have answered it how you want to. The question I was really concerned about was whether, in fact, from an industry point of view you would have more security if you funded through the yield from the racing industry itself, which is effectively and directly hypothecated, if you like, back into the industry rather than Treasury having to grab for cash, selling off the TOTE and putting that into consolidated revenue, and then hooking up a deal that gives you 20 years of certainty in the sense that it becomes a political issue if you get funding. That is the point that I am making.

Mr NEILSON - In regard to the funding from TOTE Tasmania, or an entity like TOTE Tasmania, their performance has been outstanding in the last couple of years. We all know the figures, so I will not go through those again. Who knows what will happen with regard to the racing industry in Tasmania, or worldwide what will happen with betting and so on? It is really a hypothetical, again. As I said, I want a funding model that is guaranteed, whether from the racing industry itself or from consolidated revenue through the government budget each year. To me it does not particularly matter and I do not know which one is better at the moment but I have a lot of faith in what the Government has done in the last eight to 10 years.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think the industry should have a plebiscite with all three codes to decide whether TOTE should be sold?

Mr NEILSON - My answer to that would be, provided all the information is given to them about why the sale of TOTE is proceeding, yes. But I do not think a plebiscite is much good unless people have all the information in regard to why the sale has been put up and so on.

Mr BOOTH - Do you know why it is being sold?

Mr NEILSON - No, I do not.

Mr BOOTH - The Government should be transparent about why it wants to sell it?

Mr NEILSON - I do not know what the processes have been with other entities that have been sold, like the Hydro and so on. I do not know what the process is in regard to how much information is given out.

Mr GUTWEIN - We tried with the Hydro. I think Tony Rundle would be appalled.

Mr NEILSON - Sorry, had the wrong one there.

Mr GUTWEIN -How are your members reacting at the moment? One of the concerns that I am hearing from the industry more broadly than we have heard to date and Robyn Whishaw, concerns the lack of consultations concerning them. Do you believe that former members of Harness Racing Tasmania, as they exist now, are concerned about the sale? If so, what could be done?

Mr NEILSON - I understand that you are interviewing one of those former members this afternoon, Tony Jeffries. Tony would be able to give you a straight-from-the-horse's-mouth answer to that, I would suggest. The industry wants security of funding into the future. That is my summary of what the industry thinks about it.

Mr BOOTH - In regard to that, when the pokie licence was given out and a lot of betting money went into pokies there was a lot of concern at the time that that money should have been hypothecated straight back into the industry. It did not happen to the detriment of the industry. I did not support that contention myself. Do we not have a similar situation where the business that supports the industry at the moment by being set up over the years partially through government support but effectively through industry self-generation is now to be plundered by the Treasury, but unless there is absolute guarantee, there is 100 per cent hypothecation, then you might end up in the same situation as when the pokies were set up which stripped away a lot of the gambling money?

Mr NEILSON - When the pokies were set up there was a concern in regard to the lack of funding coming back to racing, but time has shown that the Betfair model and also the performance of TOTE Tasmania, I believe, well and truly made up for any perceived shortfall.

Mr BOOTH - There was $200-odd million lost on pokies. There are a couple of hundred million coming out of the gambling pools for poker machines. It is a fair bit when you consider the $23 million that goes back to TOTE from the State.

Mr NEILSON - I answer that question on the basis of the stake money available to participants in Tasmania. While we would all like it to be higher, it stacks up very well compared with other States in Australia and that is the base on which I say it has turned out pretty well.

CHAIR - Kevin, thank you very much for your time.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr PHILIP GEOFFREY SWINTON WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - I invite you to give some evidence or make an opening statement and then let the committee ask you some questions.

Mr SWINTON - First, my position is Secretary of the Devonport Racing Club and also President of Thoroughbred Breeders Tasmania. In those two capacities I have a strong interest in the sale of TOTE Tasmania.

CHAIR - You are a mixed grill.

Mr SWINTON - I suppose so. Both organisations are looking for a good future for thoroughbred racing in the State. I will make a statement from each of those entities. First, the Devonport Racing Club has enjoyed a very good association with TOTE Tasmania and has handed over staffing responsibilities and so forth to them over the last three or four years. We have seen a lot improvements to the track and, having seen Launceston come on line, we are looking for more improvements for that racecourse moving into the future and for racing on the north-west coast.

As far as thorough bred breeders are concerned, once again we have enjoyed a very good relationship with TOTE Tasmania. TOTE is a wonderful supporter of the thoroughbred yearling sales, which have gone from strength to strength over the last few years with the advent of Magic Millions coming on board. We owe a lot to TOTE for high average prices for a lot of breeding studs. Robyn spoke to you earlier, she runs one of the largest studs in the State, along with Graeme McCulloch, ourselves and Bowthorpe. We have all seen a lot of improvement in the breeding side of things and we are all investing quite heavily in the industry. Obviously when the sale of TOTE Tasmania was first mooted in early January, we were all seeking some long-term surety as to the future in which we were going. Both organisations, the Devonport Racing Club and Thoroughbred Breeders Tasmania were, I suppose, taking a position of opposition to the sale of TOTE simply because we did not have information as to a long-term funding model.

We are not saying it is necessarily a bad thing, but until we are given that sort of information it is difficult for us to make a positive comment towards it. The sale of TOTE to private hands could be a great thing for the racing industry in Tasmania. As we all know a private operator tends to run that type of business more efficiently. However, we would need to see a long-term funding model before we could support it.

Mr BOOTH - Philip, you mentioned that it could deliver potentially better outcomes if it was run by private enterprise, but are some of those efficiencies and things that the industry would then lose as a result of it no longer being a government business intangible? After all, a government business is seen to be a public facility which does, by its very nature, have to deliver certain other benefits that are non commercial directly.

Mr SWINTON - Yes, that is very true, Kim. I suppose one of the things with TOTE at the moment being a government business is that it is quite easy for us to justify the fact that TOTE is putting in $27 million or whatever it is to racing because you can say that has been generated by TOTE Tasmania.

Having spoken to the Treasurer who said, eventually the money is coming out of one big pool anyway, it does not matter which organisation is generating that money. But obviously it is a far easier model for everybody to relate to if they know that is where it is coming from, it is funding racing. We have had some great increases in stakes and so forth in the past. If that is no longer there we will be competing with every other entity in the State money out of the consolidated revenue. It is going to be far more difficult to justify, I would have thought, than the model we have at the moment. But, once again, if it is run very efficiently and generates more turnover then it could be a positive in the industry if there is a funding model in place that the industry benefits from.

Mr BOOTH - Where do you see those efficiency gains occurring? That is where I was saying in terms of the intangibles that are provided.

Mr SWINTON - TOTE Tasmania is probably entering a difficult phase at the moment where they have lots of legislation issues with other States that they need to deal with. I know that they have been very proactive overseas and that is a big growth area. Depending on who was to buy the business they would need to find some niche markets, but that is not my area of expertise.

Mr BEST - Thank you very much for your contribution today. We heard earlier from representative jockeys of their view about quality being important but also quantity. I am just interested in your view. Could that be solved with more funding so that there could be more events? Maybe I could simplify the question by simply asking what would be the key features that you would be looking for in a funding-model agreement?

TOTE Tasmania and Magic Millions going forward with a very successful sale has brought a lot of new people into the industry, which in turn has helped the local economy. It has brought a larger pool of horses coming through. From a thoroughbred perspective, there have been insufficient races for those horses to compete in. I know that there is a view in some quarters that we need to get quality instead of quantity and there are various ways to do that. We are doing some work at the moment on some modelling for that. Going from approximately 68 to 78 race meetings per year would probably satisfy the demand and supply issues we have at the moment. Whilst that would require some extra funding, we believe that there are other areas that we could get funding from - some of the larger races and so forth. No matter which funding model we look at, we have to constantly be increasing our stakes pool because, whilst I heard Mr Neilson say earlier we have done very well in comparison with Victoria and New South Wales in their country racing, we have to keep growing because otherwise we will stagnate and fall behind. The industry is very vibrant at the moment and we need to continue that.

Mr BEST - Is there a set percentage? Is it CPI? How do you work out how the increments need to keep adjusting?

Mr SWINTON - The benchmark that we have been working on is Country Racing Victoria. We were about 85 per cent of their stakes money and I believe that we are about 100 per cent of it at the moment. We are getting interest now from Victoria with people bringing horses over here or trainers relocating from Victoria, and that is all a good thing for our industry. We need that positive vibe to continue. An issue that we have had just recently is that unfortunately our sales this year were 41 per cent down in late February, just before the Launceston Cup. Obviously the economic climate has contributed to that but also I think the uncertainty in the local industry with the announcement of the sale of TOTE without any model as to where we are moving in the future has probably caused some of our local buyers and trainers to be a little apprehensive this year and to stand back to see where the industry is going.

Mr BEST - When you said 'pool of horses coming through' you were talking Tasmanian, is that right?

Mr SWINTON - Yes.

Mr BEST - When we are talking about the funding model, what are you proposing there? Are you suggesting that the funding model needs to be worked out and decided upon well in advance of any proposed sale of TOTE?

Mr SWINTON - It would certainly be very difficult to go backwards from what we have at the moment. Once again, as I said, if it goes into private hands it becomes more profitable. It could be a huge winner for the State, it really could, as long as we have some surety from the industry that some of that money will be going back into the industry to benefit in the long term.

CHAIR - Philip, you talked about, and I think we may have had some prior evidence that there need to be more race meetings in the State. There was always a bit of a contrary view that we have a very small pool of jockeys here and that some horses have gone to the knackery in the last few months. I think you were painting a bit more of a positive picture, saying that there are trainers coming in and wanting to train horses here.

Mr SWINTON - That is right, yes.

CHAIR - In a general overview of the racing industry, are more race meetings required within the State at this stage? Is that something that you would support?

Mr SWINTON - Yes, they are. I have spoken to Don Abell in regard to this. Whilst he did not know which way it would be he said to come forward with the proof. We are actually working on some modelling at the moment that shows that that is in fact the case.

CHAIR - The other thing you talked about was the performance of TOTE and how they had performed quite well in the last few years. Given the very competitive commercial environment that they operate in and there may be external forces which may impact in the future upon their viability and therefore that would deliver less return to the Tasmanian people and obviously to the racing industry, is that a concern, you being within the industry? I know that's a bit of a hypothetical. Is that something you would be concerned about, you would prefer to have a guaranteed funding model from consolidated revenue rather than from TOTE itself?

Mr SWINTON - It is a hypothetical question, but I suppose you can only go back on their performance over the last few years, which has been very strong. You would hope that in any competitive environment, which hasn't no doubt been the case over the last few years, they have performed very well. So as an industry, we would hope that would continue to happen.

CHAIR - So you are not aware of any things that might be looming on the horizon in terms of pressures that may diminish their performance?

Mr SWINTON - Certainly race fields legislation, which you are probably well aware of, which means we need to buy our product and sell our product well. I believe they have done very well, especially with their Internet side of the business with looking at opportunities outside of Australia, and so forth, so the industry I think would be very positive in all their aspects in respect to TOTE Tasmania.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Just following on from the Chair's line of questioning, there obviously was evidence earlier today from a person saying that too few get too much, and the stakes are not evenly spread. Obviously the Hobart and Launceston cups are examples of that, and then there's not enough for the smaller race meetings. Do you support that theory?

Mr SWINTON - It's an interesting idea. Certainly leading up to the thoroughbred sales this year, first, second and third in the majority of our larger races all went out of the State, so that was a negative for the State. However, if we have a horse good enough, we will take it to the mainland and try to win their prize money, don't worry about that. It's quite difficult for us to limit the opportunities of mainland competitors to come over here. It's a good thing when they come over here because hopefully it raises standards that we need to have in Tasmania, but I think there's probably a balance.

I think at the moment maybe we do have some of our races a little too high, and some of that money could be directed to minor races. I don't think it would make a lot of difference if we were to take a percentage off most of those larger races; it wouldn't affect the horses who came over, it wouldn't affect our fields, but it certainly would help the local industry here 52 weeks a year.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - That was the message that I was getting out in the public as well. You said your particular organisation is working with the minister to look at a funding model. Has that happened only since the announcement's been made for the proposal to sell TOTE?

Mr SWINTON - No, it was Mr Neilson who said that; we haven't been working with the minister on that at the moment. We've had meetings as a group with Don Abell, and we are developing a plan at the moment to send to the racing board that will show that the facts and figures as to why we need more race meetings.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - You haven't had any direct conversations or meetings with the minister in regard to -

Mr SWINTON - Not formally, no.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - What about informally?

Mr SWINTON - Yes, I have spoken to him informally about it.

Mr BOOTH - I am intrigued just in regard to your comments that if TOTE was sold into private enterprise then it would do a lot better, there is more potential. Given that it is a government business enterprise supposed to work on a corporate model, implicit in that, then, is that TOTE isn't performing to capacity or there's some undetermined or undisclosed capacity that they should be going into. What are those areas, or is that just a generalisation?

Mr SWINTON - It is only a generalisation, I think that probably comes just from dealing with businesspeople in general. I suppose if you're out there in the private sector then you could probably run a little bit leaner and meaner. As far as the industry is concerned, I suppose we are very pleased with the way that TOTE has performed, but for it to go to private enterprise then there may be other opportunities that come with that.

Mr BOOTH - Correct me if I'm wrong, but I'm assuming that would mean that if it went better, the Government would have to have some sort of taxation model in place to take some of the funding back out of that increased pool or better performance, that business, that would somehow then be redistributed back to the industry.

Mr SWINTON - Certainly it's difficult for us to comment on it at the moment because we haven't seen any funding model at all.

Mr BOOTH - So at this point of time, where you are sitting, is it a fair assumption that the decision to sell TOTE is in fact a Treasury-driven imperative as a grab for cash rather than for the good of the industry? Or do you think it is taken for the good of the industry?

Mr SWINTON - I thought the timing of it was interesting in that on 11 November there was an announcement that there was a new era in racing and the board was selected and announced on 28 December and then the sale was announced on 8 January. That seemed probably to a lot of people that it was something that had been considered beforehand. I suppose it is hard to know. I mean, we have not been told the reasons for TOTE's sale, so any answer to that would only be a guess.

We have spoken a lot about ongoing funding with stakes, but another really important issue to look at is infrastructure. Whilst Launceston has just had a major track upgrade and it is an unfortunate situation that we have Launceston, Devonport, Brighton and Hobart all probably needing new tracks all at the one time, another very important thing to look at as we move forward is where that infrastructure money is going to come from.

Mr BOOTH - Just one question in regard to the funding model in the future which you are looking at if the TOTE was sold. Doesn't it concern you that you would be queuing up for money, even if it was a long-term commitment? I mean, there is no such long-term commitment with football, for example, or pogo-stick riding or any other activity that occurs. Doesn't that then put the industry at risk of the whims of politics each budgetary session, and it becomes an election issue?

Mr SWINTON - It certainly does.

Mr BOOTH - I have been very critical of the Government in the past in terms of their prioritisation of funding streams to the racing industry when you have issues with health and education and road infrastructure, all sorts of things, and that is an argument that has been perennial, it keeps coming up, whereas at the moment with the TOTE funding the industry directly you do not have that white noise coming across each budget. Nobody looks at it and says racing is getting all this money because it is actually seen to be a self-generating thing which to me, from the industry perspective, is much more desirable. Is that a fair comment?

Mr SWINTON - It is a fair comment, yes. From my dealings with people in other States, I sit on the board of Thoroughbred Breeders Australia and there are a number of studs that have been looking at opportunities in Tasmania and I think they are probably sitting back now and waiting to see what happens before making any commitment, but certainly the industry is seen as being very vibrant down here at the moment and I would hate to see that go backwards.

CHAIR - Thank you very much, Philip, for your presentation. We will no doubt talk again.

Mr SWINTON - We will, thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr GRAEME JOHN RUSSELL WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Mr Russell, we invite you to introduce yourself and make a statement and then we will ask you some questions.

Mr RUSSELL - My name is Graeme Russell, I am Vice-Chairman of the Devonport Racing Club and an ex-committee member of the Thoroughbred Racing Council which, as you aware, no longer exists. So I am here to represent the racing club of Devonport and see where everything goes.

CHAIR - We have given our terms of reference, the proposed sale of TOTE. Do you have an opinion or has the club formed an opinion as to whether it is a good or bad thing?

Mr RUSSELL - I have not really formed an opinion and, I guess, listening to a lot of the others as well - because we have not had a lot of information on the conditions of sale of the TOTE and all the other things that are going on - it is really a 'not knowing' situation as yet. We have spoken at our committee meetings and it all comes out the same - 'Give us some information on why it is going to be sold and what the conditions will be when it is sold'.

CHAIR - Has it created some anxiety within the club?

Mr RUSSELL - I think it has because even a lot of our committee members have backed off on buying horses at the yearling sales. I settled for one. I do not have a race horse at the moment because I have just held back because I am not sure -

CHAIR - You might be saving money.

Laughter.

Mr RUSSELL - Or making money. Until the decision has been made to either sell or not to sell, and with the new racing council as well, nobody really knows what is happening in the industry.

CHAIR - So I suppose the sooner that Parliament make a decision in that respect so we know which way we are going, it could be an advantage to the industry.

Mr RUSSELL - That is exactly right.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Graeme, in your mind, had this proposed sale been held off, say, for 12 months while the new racing structure is bedded down, so to speak, do you believe that would have been more beneficial and your part of the industry may have had more time to digest what was going to happen?

Mr RUSSELL - I think it probably would have been a good idea to move the industry forward a little slower than it is. It seems that everything is trying to happen right at the one time and when you talk to a lot of the trainers and owners they all ask the same question, 'What the hell is happening at TOTE? What's going on with the industry?'. There are a lot of 'don't knows' at the moment.

Mr BOOTH - Drilling down on what you said in regard to buying horses at the sale, for example, you said you no longer have any horses yourself. Had the sale not been announced, would you have proceeded in the same environment as pre the announcement and bought horses?

Mr RUSSELL - I probably would have. If I went to the sale I probably would have bought two but I decided not to go because I am a bit of a sucker when I go to an auction - I seem to put my hand up.

Laughter.

Mr RUSSELL - So, yes, I possibly would have looked at buying, but just at the moment the industry is in a little bit of an unsure situation so I thought maybe I would just hold off for 12 months.

Mr BOOTH - So is it a reasonable thing to extrapolate from that then that the industry is concerned that the sale or privatisation of TOTE might be detrimental to the industry?

Mr RUSSELL - I do not know. This is going back to what I said a while ago, but I think it is just that the industry does not know. I think if the industry was told that the conditions of sale would be that the money would go straight back into the racing industry it would be different. If we have to sit and look at our money for racing coming out of consolidated revenue, maybe there is going to be a lot of public reaction out there that we are taking money away from hospitals and education and all the rest of it, whereas now, you still read in the media that we still have a few problems like that, but at least now we know that the money for racing is coming from racing.

Mr BOOTH - So do you see a need to sell to privatise TOTE under the current arrangements? Is there any reason that you see why it ought to be sold?

Mr RUSSELL - Not particularly, unless of course the conditions and whatever comes out of the sale make a big improvement to our racing industry. If we can get more race meetings and improve the balloting system - and the only way I believe we can improve that is by having more race meetings - I believe the sale would be a good idea, but the timing of it is probably not just quite right.

Mr BOOTH - From where you sit in the industry, and given the positions that you hold and have held, there has been a lot of white noise about the potential for a sale, which was denied; in fact it was unequivocally stated that it wasn't going to be sold. Were you shocked when you heard that it was going to be sold?

Mr RUSSELL - I was actually, because we were told at, I think it was our last or second-last Thoroughbred Racing Council meeting, that there was no intention of TOTE being sold.

Mr BOOTH - When was that?

Mr RUSSELL - That was probably a month before the Tasmanian Racing Board took over. Whether it was a quick decision after that or not, it's -

Mr BOOTH - Do you feel you were misled in regard to this?

Mr RUSSELL - Probably a little, yes, but by whom we don't quite know.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think that the industry should have a plebiscite on the sale, all codes, an industry-wide plebiscite in terms of whether the industry accepts it should be sold or not?

Mr RUSSELL - I don't think you could do that until, as I say, the information gets out and things are a little more transparent about how it's being sold, maybe who the contenders are for buying, and that sort of thing.

Mr GUTWEIN - How much capital might be required to bring some of the other racetracks up to scratch, so to speak? We've heard this morning that money has been spent in recent years, on Launceston for example, but Devonport particularly?

Mr RUSSELL - I reckon for Devonport we'd be looking at $12 million to $15 million to bring it up to scratch. I probably believe Launceston is a fantastic track now with the new StrathAyr. We're looking at some prospects at the moment so that when the board comes to us and tells us they're going to spend a heap of money at Devonport, we can say, 'This is what we'd like' or 'This is not what we'd like', instead of being able to say, 'Oh, we don't know'. We are looking at a StrathAyr against the other tracks like Geelong has, the synthetic tracks. We are getting some information together as a club for that.

Mr GUTWEIN - Over what sort of time frame do you think that upgrade would occur, or is it important that something is done with Devonport relatively quickly?

Mr RUSSELL - I think it's very important that in the next two or three years something's done at Devonport. We found a problem last year when Launceston was closed, and the racing industry really struggled to have enough because our track's not up to scratch enough to race through the winter. We had two or three meetings cancelled, so more horses get balloted out, owners get frustrated and trainers are crabby. Yes, it becomes very important, I think, that we have the three tracks up and running.

Mr BOOTH - Are you concerned that there might be a strategy for a two-track model in Tasmania?

Mr RUSSELL - I don't believe so. A lot of people talk about that, but I don't believe it's possible that you could run Tasmanian racing on two tracks. I think it's important that if we had to have two tracks we'd never survive.

Mr BEST - Pretty much from my reading of what you're saying is that your view in relation to the sale of TOTE really would be dependent upon what might be the situation in the funding model. If you could see that, then you could actually probably give the committee a firm view either way, couldn't you?

Mr RUSSELL - For sure, yes. As I said before, it could be a wonderful thing for racing, but it's probably like a motor car that no-one's ever seen.

Mr BEST - In that, there are some matters that have been raised about things that people would like to see in a funding model. Do you have anything other than what's been said today, or would you like to enforce some of the things that may have been said today?

Mr RUSSELL - Not really, no. I think from what I've heard from two or three speakers today, everyone's is of virtually the same opinion. We need some transparency and to find out what the reasons are and what the conditions of sale are, then we can sit down and make a fair assessment.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Graeme, it was said previously today that for your particular part of the racing industry to grow and have more opportunity for the horses to race, so from your perspective do you believe that Devonport needs to be upgraded for that to happen?

Mr RUSSELL - Definitely.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - In your mind, does there need to be a commitment for that $12 million to $15 million to be committed before that next part could well and truly take place.

Mr RUSSELL - Yes, definitely. I do not believe there has been money spent on Devonport in a major upgrade for probably 15 to 20 years. I am not sure. The track at the moment requires really heavy maintenance all the time just to keep it up and running so that we can race on it.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - That is at the level that you already race at. That is not being able to extend out those opportunities for racing people?

Mr RUSSELL - That is right.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - To get equal coverage across the State, Devonport would need that $12 million to $15 million, in your mind?

Mr RUSSELL - In my mind, I am sure it would, yes.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Are you supported by the rest of your organisation on this issue?

Mr RUSSELL - Yes. It was stated by TOTE before all this happened that they were verbally guaranteeing that Devonport would be the next upgrade. But now this is all happening it all up in the air again.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Ahead of Launceston lights?

Mr RUSSELL - No, Launceston lights would be going ahead and the next major restructure would be Devonport.

Mr BOOTH - In terms of the politics, you make it clear that, if it were to be funded out of consolidated revenue, how would you feel going out and competing against football, health, education and so forth for an annual support for stakes and so forth?

Mr RUSSELL - I guess it would make it much harder, wouldn't it? You are also competing against football, hospitals, health and all the rest of it, but you are also competing against the public because of the look of it, more than anything. Even though maybe the money is going into Consolidated Revenue and then coming out and going into racing.

Mr BEST - Your money would be going into it.

Mr RUSSELL - Yes, but it probably does not look quite as good if it is coming straight from racing back into racing.

CHAIR - Graeme, thank you very much for your evidence. We appreciate your coming down and wish you all the best. Have a safe trip back.

Mr RUSSELL - Thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr WALTER McSHANE WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - You are aware of the issues that surround privilege and that sort of thing?

Mr McSHANE - Yes.

CHAIR - You are au fait with that?

Mr McSHANE - Yes.

CHAIR - You do not need me to explain those to you?

Mr McSHANE - No.

CHAIR - Thank you very much for coming along. You know what our term of reference is. I will just read that to you again - we propose to inquire into the proposed sale of TOTE by the Government of Tasmania and any other matters incidental. I would invite you to make an opening statement if you like and then we will ask you some questions.

Mr McSHANE - Paul Lennon did a great job when he designated a lot of money to the racing industry because it is a very important industry, as racing is all over Australia. He engendered a lot of confidence in racing when he put as much money aside as he did - albeit much of that money was misspent - not his fault, he cannot do everything. A lot of that money was misdirected and had it been given to the racing industry it would have been spent ever so much better, but that is not the way it all happened.

I consider racing very much as a confident sport and business. From my point of view it is a business and a sport. What has happened since Mr Aird took over and misled us has destroyed one heck of a lot of confidence right throughout the industry from the breeders to the owners to the trainers and perhaps jockeys because we cannot get jockeys to stay in this State.

We are in a shocking situation where we are flying jockeys in every Sunday to ride horses, then on a Monday we go looking for people to train our horses for the other six days of the week. People are not here and they won't come and stay here because our industry is a little bit too small. We have asked for more racing to make it more viable for all of us but this has not happened, the money was not available.

We were pretty comfortable with TOTE and our spin-off from TOTE to keep the industry in a reasonably sound situation. We thought we knew where we were going. We were promised by Paul Lennon that we would be looked after and that all the legislation was in place to maintain the racing industry and when the word came out that the racing industry and TOTE were to be split we were pretty quick to work out why. I was in the room when we put the question to Mr Aird as to whether that was going to be the case, no less than three times in one session. He denied it thrice, and there was no cock there to crow after he said it.

Mr GUTWEIN - When was that?

Mr McSHANE - I cannot tell you the date. It was in his rooms in the Executive Building.

Mr GUTWEIN - Can you give an indication of which month?

Mr McSHANE - I have a shocking memory. I have had a lot of falls off horses and my short-term memory is non-existent. Someone else that you will possibly have in this room today could tell you; it was in the spring.

Mr BOOTH - Well before the racing restructure bill went before the House.

Mr McSHANE - Yes it was. The writing was on the wall and when we put it to him directly he denied it three times at least so we thought maybe it was not going to happen. We read in the press that he said it was not happening, it was not happening until he signed the sale, or the whatever it was - the bill for the future sale of it. And that is when it happened, he said.

But it happened nine months before that when took the racing administration out of the hands of TOTE, or he put it in train. Confidence went and, as we have seen in the yearling sales a couple of weeks ago, it was not the economic recession that caused the fall in prices, it was not that, because Tasmania is rather a small industry but we need x number of horses to run our racing industry.

It seemed that we had too many horses because we did not have enough races for the horses that we had bred here so when it came to the sales we were expecting a little bit of a downturn but not to the extent that it happened. Now we have a glut of horses, we have service fees and studs that are going to feel a huge impact and it has been caused by indecision and by lack of confidence. The confidence has gone because we do not know where our funding is coming from.

We are told by the man that denied it thrice, to believe him, he will make sure that we are funded. We cannot believe that, nobody in their right mind could believe that anymore. Whether we are going to be correctly funded or not we do not know.

We already have the problem in the industry that we do not have enough racing, and we have a shortage of personnel. I have 15 horses in work at the moment. On Monday morning I had no riders. A couple did not turn up and the rider that I had been using is back in Melbourne riding track work over there for somebody who won't give him rides during the week.

They want to live in Melbourne, they want to live in the big smoke; they will not come and live in Tasmania because we are a backwater to them but they do not mind coming on Sunday and taking our money and going back to Melbourne, but we do not have a big enough industry here for them to want to be here.

With the lack of confidence we have with the sale of TOTE, should it happen, we feel in a very precarious situation.

CHAIR - Even prior to this mooted sale of TOTE these issues existed under the existing regime, then? There were not enough race meetings and there was a lack of personnel in terms of jockeys and everything else even before this?

Mr McSHANE - These were pre-existing issues. We were hoping for an improvement. We have been fighting to get the two big cups put back where they should be.

CHAIR - To reduce the prize money and then spread that more equitably.

Mr McSHANE - Spread it throughout the industry, put on more race meetings. We have worked out that by bringing the two cups back to $300 000 and $250 000 instead of $400 000 and $300 000, we could put on another four race meetings. That would help quite a bit.

CHAIR - Would they still attract quality fields even if you reduced both of them?

Mr McSHANE - Oh, yes. We have a meeting next Tuesday and one on Wednesday. We have 213 horses nominated, and that's in two days. Then there's another race meeting the following Sunday which will attract probably another 110 or 120 nominations. Quite a few of those horses will be balloted out because some of them are concentrated too much in the maiden and the lower grades. There is quite a big number of horses here, but if we are not on Sky Channel they don't want us. Our local administration are not keen to spread money around midweek if we're not on Sky Channel. That's where we're left, with a huge glut of horses to be balloted out, a breeding industry that's hit the wall. A lot of horses went home to the studs after the sale, and they'll be more or less given away; people will be trying to give them away to trainers so that they cut their own costs back because it's costing them to take them home when they expected to sell them.

CHAIR - So there is not a shortage of horses, that's not an issue?

Mr McSHANE - No, it's the personnel. We're not training our own personnel here anymore. They're going to Melbourne.

CHAIR - Are you concerned in terms of future funding and capex for the courses, capital works? Is that another issue? We know Launceston has been done.

Mr McSHANE - There was a lot of money spent at Elwick, in one silly place: the grandstand that's used once a year. Yet our tracks that people all over Australia see on Sky Channel every week are in a shocking condition and they are quite stupid because one of them is so narrow that you can only have 10 horses running on it. A spit of rain and you have all sorts of problems and biases where horses tear up the outside fence, or into the inside fence or somewhere, and people over Australia look at it and say, 'What the ... are you doing out there, why are they out there, and why are they in there, why are they all crowding in there?' It's because the track is just not good enough. All the money was spent on the grandstand which is empty on race day, and nothing was spent where it should have been spent on the tracks, where the horses are and where the betting was done that gives the TOTE its funding.

CHAIR - Could you argue that perhaps a new privatised entity might have done that better than what's been done in the past?

Mr McSHANE - Yes - if only they'd listened, but I am afraid they would not listen. TOTE was given a job that they had no expertise in whatsoever. None. They spent the money exactly how they felt like spending it.

CHAIR - That's turning the argument around a bit, isn't it, if you had the devil's advocate and the funding was secure? I know Mr Booth raised the issues of competing against health, and all those sorts of issues, and that is a real problem as well.

Mr McSHANE - That was a problem at the time, no doubt, but the funding was there. The way it was spent was another issue.

Mr BOOTH - To clarify this, are you saying that you hold the current minister responsible to a large degree for the collapse of the yearling sales?

Mr McSHANE - To quite a big extent, yes. The confidence of the industry went straight down when he said that he was not selling TOTE and then he did a backflip and said, yes, he was. Then he told us to believe him. No-one could or would believe him after that and so where the funding was coming from has been a question in everyone's mind ever since. Confidence has gone rock bottom again.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think the industry would like a new minister in that regard to restore some sort of confidence?

Mr McSHANE - If TOTE was left as our benefactor, I am quite sure that confidence would be restored.

Mr BOOTH - If TOTE remained in public hands?

Mr McSHANE - If it remained in the hands of -

Mr BOOTH - As a GBE, yes, under the Government.

Mr McSHANE - Yes.

Mr BOOTH - To get this straight, with regard to the long-term future of the industry, your view is that you prefer TOTE not to be sold but to be managed, setting aside the management issues with TOTE, but you would prefer the TOTE to remain in Government ownership rather than being sold.

Mr McSHANE - Correct. The change in administration will possibly be quite okay. That will not be a big issue. It is just about in place and ready to work but the funding is the problem that everybody feels is dangerous. We are in a precarious position with no-one telling us where funding is coming from.

Mr BOOTH - If the TOTE was sold and the Treasurer says - and you have said that you cannot believe him, but setting that aside - a funding model was set up with some capital expenditure and so forth, would you still be concerned that you were competing with health, education and so forth every year in a budget rather than it coming straight across from TOTE? Is that fair to say?

Mr McSHANE - That is quite fair to say, yes. I do not know that Treasury is all that rapt in the racing industry, even though they should be. I do not know that they are all that keen because there are a heck of a lot of votes coming from other directions.

Mr BOOTH - Do you see the danger you spoke about in terms of funding as being that it would then become a political issue rather than it just being within the industry?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, and a lot of those politics would not be conducive to the person in racing because there is a lot more weight thrown to education and health. People perceive racing to be a sport of the rich but it is not. It is an industry for people across the board and it employs one heck of a lot of people.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, it is a huge engine-driver of the economy, there is no doubt about that.

Mr McSHANE - Yes, I am in all its areas; the feed business, the breeding business and the training business. I know how many people are dependent on it.

Mr BEST - If you had a good funding model and, say, there was some arrangement and whatever the outcome was that there was a move towards more events, an expanded amount of money being invested and some surety with some agreement as to what the funding model would be, what would your thoughts be about that? Would you not be interested in that, rather than have it stay as it is?

Mr McSHANE - At this point we have had no funding model put to us. We have no idea what is in Mr Aird's mind except that there will be an amount of money coming from Treasury. We have had Mr Challen look at us before and he is not all that keen on racing. Should it be Treasury's decision as to what sort of money would be given to racing, we would be very scared of that situation. But if a model, as you say, was put to us with some surety -

Mr BEST - Yes, I think that is probably a bit of a reserve aim in a sense that if you had an organisation that was keen and very dependent on having a successful racing industry in Tasmania, you would have to have a good funding agreement, otherwise people are just not going to put horses into races and things like that. We will see the things that you are talking about continue while this hiatus exists. So there would have to be some common interest at some stage.

Mr McSHANE - Yes, if we could see it -

Mr BEST - That is right; it needs to be seen.

Mr McSHANE - and we could restore some confidence then we would sit a little bit more comfortably, but at the moment there is no comfort at all. There are people who would have gone to those yearling sales and bought another yearling who did not go - and refused to go - because there is not enough racing and their horses were being balloted out. We have Mr Aird's - well, we will not call it a lie but there is no other word for it; you cannot say one thing and then completely reverse it. It is just not on.

Mr HARRISS - Walter, I think a common thread coming from most industry participants is that, as Brenton has just visited, if there was the notion of a guaranteed funding model, then the industry might be relaxed about things. I hear what you are saying about lack of trust and so on in the current Racing minister, but it occurs to me - and I have discussed it with Kim and Peter as the day has gone on - that if the racing minister was to produce a model which had a perpetual fund flowing to the industry, and I am thinking particularly of when the Trust Bank was sold and there was an amount of money hived off, untouched by

Treasury, which generates interest every year, and the interest from that capital fund goes to community funding untampered with by the Government of the day - you would not be subject to the whims of the Government of the day - it occurs to me that if they get a sufficiently high price for TOTE the Government could say that they are immediately going to put a capital fund into a special account which generates a perpetual revenue stream straight to the industry, with no politics involved in it, how would that appeal to you?

Mr McSHANE - That appeals to me no end.

Mr BEST - But you need to see that, don't you? And that is the problem you have at the moment.

Mr McSHANE - Yes, that is right.

Mr BEST - You are saying there is nothing to see, is there?

Mr McSHANE - It has to be more than written.

Mr BEST - You have to see that. I do appreciate that.

Mr HARRISS - It could be, as the Trust Bank sale process was, built into the legislation. Once it is in there no governments in the future can do anything about it unless they come back to the Parliament to tamper with it. So if the Racing minister is not keen to build in such a process to this legislation when he introduces it to the Parliament, and if the sale of TOTE is a reasonable proposition, but if the guaranteed revenues for him is what is necessary to the industry and the Parliament amends the Treasurer's legislation, too bad for him if he does not accept it.

Mr McSHANE - That is the sort of thing we need put before the racing industry right now - without question.

Mr HARRISS - That is the clear common thread that is coming from the majority of people who presented to us, that the funding stream needs to be guaranteed and you need to be able to trust what you are being told.

CHAIR - Clearly that is something that, as representatives of yourselves, the Parliament will have to make a decision on one way or the other, given certain information we may get from the Treasury.

Mr HARRISS - We might ask the Treasurer this afternoon why he has not produced a model such as that. Is it too simple? We will ask him this afternoon.

Mr McSHANE - To be in racing you must realise that everybody trusts everybody to a degree, until it comes to race day, when tactics and competition are very, very strong. When we walk away from the racecourse we still all trust one another. Owners trust the trainers and trainers try to trust the jockeys as much as they possibly can -

Laughter

Mr McSHANE - and we go home and lick our wounds or count our few bucks, whatever we can do, and get ready for the next week.

CHAIR - It is a bit like farming, isn't it?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, exactly the same.

Mr BOOTH - Put a jockey on your cow.

Mr McSHANE - I reckon farmers are the best owners any trainer can have because they are used to relying on rainfall and markets and everything else to survive, and that is what we do in racing. We have to rely on the whole game for our dollar, so confidence is what we need and if we can have confidence in our funding structure I am sure we can pick ourselves up and go ahead.

Mr BOOTH - Had it not occurred that the Treasurer suddenly woke up one morning and announced it was going to be sold, did you have confidence prior to that that the TOTE model was delivering reasonable returns, apart from the way it was being run internally, with the income stream coming back in terms of stake money and so on?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, we felt pretty confident. We felt that TOTE was ours. We know it isn't but we felt that TOTE was ours and we were supplying the product and were getting some of that return back to the industry. It was a good union.

Mr BOOTH - So there is no way that you could say that the decision to sell TOTE had anything to do with the industry deciding it should be sold?

Mr McSHANE - No, none whatsoever.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Mr McShane, thank you for your honest and frank assessment. I am interested to know what would be your view - and I appreciate what Mr Harriss has said about a secure funding model - but do you feel that a secure funding model would assist you and the industry in the infrastructure requirements that are obviously required, because the tracks are not up to complete standard. Launceston is fine but I hear that Devonport needs upgrading and there were some issues with Tattersalls Park as well out at Elwick, so do you feel that that secure funding model would be enough to secure your support for the sale of TOTE without some sort of firm commitment from the government of the day about future funding for infrastructure?

Mr McSHANE - Well, I would feel that would have to be written into the agreement because it is integral that there must be capital works taken on every year to keep all the courses and training tracks et cetera up to standard. That would need to be built in as well.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - So there would need to be some consultation and discussion with industry stakeholders about what they see would be required into the future. Would that be a fair assessment?

Mr McSHANE - That is fair, and I think the new racing board that has been set up would be quite capable of producing those sorts of figures to go along with stake money.

Mr BEST - It was put to us that Country Racing Victoria has a formula based on funding and that we were at 100 per cent same formula for funding here?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, we were.

Mr BEST - Do you agree with that model?

Mr McSHANE - Yes, I think that is our standard for Tasmania. I will just put one little thing to you. The southern club wanted the Hobart Cup to be $500 000 - that is what they want next - which is quite stupid. At $400 000 the Hobart Cup was a group 3 race, yet at $300 000 the Adelaide Cup is group 2. Can you work that out? I can't.

Mr BEST - No. Why do you think?

McSHANE - Why are we $400 000 for a start? We shouldn't be because we are just - there is a term but I won't use it.

Mr BEST - But you do not have a theory on that?

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Too few are getting too much.

Mr McSHANE - No, we are above ourselves; we are above our own population and our standard, so we are inviting Melbourne to come over here and take it and I realise we need Melbourne horses to come here and lift our cup profile, and they do, but it has become a little bit too much that they come and take all the prize money out of the State. How can we as an industry benefit from that? When all that money is gone, what are we going to spend on getting better horses; where do we get them from? There is no money here, it has all gone, the big money is gone, and we are left to buy cheap horse because we cannot afford dear ones. We are told to go out and get better horses so we can compete, but what are we going to buy them with? If we do not have a vibrant industry here, where does the money come from?

CHAIR - Thank you very much, Walter, that was very good. We appreciate your coming. You obvious have had a diverse range of interests within the industry over a long time so we appreciate the benefit of your knowledge. Thank you very much.

Mr McSHANE - Thank you.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

Mr TONY JEFFRIES WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Thank you very much for coming down, Tony. Are you aware of privileges and restrictions on reporting, and all that sort of stuff?

Mr JEFFRIES - Yes. I shouldn't open my mouth outside the inquiry if there's anything of controversy.

CHAIR - Yes; basically you're covered by privilege here, but outside you're not. So the bottom line is don't refer specifically to anyone about the evidence you give to the committee until the report has been published.

Mr JEFFRIES - No, I'm pretty calm, pretty cool.

CHAIR - Thanks, Tony. What I would invite you to do is to make a statement if you would like, particularly related to our terms of reference on the sale of TOTE.

Mr JEFFRIES - I have a written submission which I will read, and if there are questions as we go, fine; if not, I can answer the questions after. I will just give a bit of background to myself. My name is Tony Jeffries, and I have been involved in the harness racing industry for over 40 years as a breeder and owner. I have held the following positions in the administration of harness racing at different times. I have been the secretary-treasurer of the North West Light Harness Association; I have been president of the Ulverstone Pacing Club; secretary, treasurer and president of the Burnie Harness Racing Club; and a member of the Tasmanian Harness Racing Council, which was recently disbanded after the TRB was brought to bear. I also currently am a member of the North West Light Harness Association, a member of the Devonport Harness Racing Club, a member of the Burnie Harness Racing Club, a member of the Tasmanian Breeders, Owners, Trainers and Reinspersons Association and also a member of the Launceston Pacing Club.

CHAIR - Is that it?

Laughter.

Mr JEFFRIES - And I have recently retired from Westpac Banking Corporation after 40 years' service, with the past 25 years involved in commercial and business banking as a manager.

I now want to talk about the sale of TOTE Tasmania. As I understand it, TOTE was originally set up some 40 or 50 years ago for the benefit of racing in Tasmania. Some gentlemen by the name of Bruce Freeland, Dick Bertram and Doug Martin were the early committee members who lobbied the industry to convince them that TOTE would be a long-term winner for the whole industry, which it has been. Last year, TOTE contributed some $30 million or thereabouts to cover stakes and infrastructure for all codes.

TOTE Tasmania is a company whose shares are held by the Treasurer and the Minister for Racing in trust for the Crown - and, hopefully, the racing industry. The constitution of the company is a schedule to the TOTE Tasmania Act and can only be amended by a special resolution passed by both Houses of Parliament. TOTE Tasmania is operating as a successful business and is charged with promoting the development of the racing and breeding industry, and promoting Tasmanian racing and wagering on it.

Why would you sell an asset that generates $30 million for the racing industry? I would suggest that last May, when Treasury became aware of the global financial crisis about to arrive, Mr Don Challen looked in the cupboard to see what would generate substantial cash to help balance the Budget, and there was TOTE Tasmania. Challen, who is a numbers man, has given no thought to the industry participants or their families, or the 2 700 people directly employed and the many others indirectly employed. He has gone to the minister and said, 'The TOTE has to go', and the minister and his advisers have misled the industry on the pending sale and also actually misled the Parliament of Tasmania, especially the upper House.

I go back to the question: why would you sell a major asset which generates $30 million per year, funding the racing industry without any call on consolidated revenue? At the moment TOTE covers the cost. Why would you sell it when we are experiencing the biggest global financial crisis in the past 50 years? Why would you sell anything that is worth a lot of money at this stage? Why would you sell when the expected price - and there have been many mentioned or bandied about - is virtually a fire sale price, from the figures that I have heard. At this time, would we not be better to hold onto TOTE Tasmania until the markets settle down and we have better times?

The minister has failed to produce a business plan for the sale of TOTE. How will the industry be funded going forward? Will the Minister for Racing have to go to Treasury along with Health, Housing and Education for funding? Where will racing fit in those priorities? Where will racing be next year when the recession sets in and the money is tight and hospital patients are in the streets? They are having a few problems in Launceston.

What long-term guarantees will the racing industry have? There is talk of a 20-year funding program being set up; I think the minister mentioned that. What happens when money is tight; what happens with a change of government? How can the industry and its participants plan for the future if something is not set in concrete? What will happen to participants' families, who are looking to set up their children for a future in the racing industry? Do they stay in Tasmania or do they go somewhere else?

Barry Rattray is a prime example. He has four young fellows, one of them representing the Australian harness racing industry driving in Onslow, I think - it is overseas - but what will those kids of participants now do in the future? Why would you sell a business that generates $30 million per year to cover the costs of racing to then have to take your cap in hand to Treasury for your funding in the future? Where are the guarantees? Who will cover the costs of upgrades and maintenance of all tracks, facilities, grandstands et cetera? We have a current situation today where the following facilities are in need of upgrade or maintenance basically now. One of them, Brenton, is Spreyton racecourse's thoroughbred track, where major works are required to bring it up to date.

Mr BEST - Yes, $12 million to $15 million.

Mr JEFFRIES - At the Devonport harness racing track the lights are 30 years old now, unreliable and need to be replaced. Light towers are under investigation as to safety, and the grandstand needs a major upgrade. I understand the Brighton training complex is in urgent need of upgrade and maintenance. I am also aware that part of the complex is constructed on land not even owned by TOTE Tasmania, so I am pretty sure there are a few problems there. As to the Hobart harness racing track, even though we spent $16 million there recently or even more, I understand that the top and bottom corners are in need of major works due to the camber being out of kilter.

These four items need many millions to bring them up to date or up to standard. Who will pay for this? I understand the Tasmanian Racing Board, in the legislation, can borrow money. That is very handy, but if they have to borrow money, who is going to pay it back or how are we going to pay it back?

I think you may have this. A recent article in the Examiner newspaper dated 17 March by one of Australia's most experienced racing administrators has urged that we look at what has happened upon the sale of TOTEs in other States.

CHAIR - Yes, we have that.

Mr JEFFRIES - We need to do some research to ensure Tasmania does not end up like South Australia after their foray into selling their TOTE. They are on the bones of their knees and selling assets to try to maintain their industry. If we finish up dependent on the Government of the day to cover our annual operating revenue we could be going back to the 1970s and racing for $1 000 per race, the breeding industry could be devastated and 2 700 employees looking elsewhere for jobs. Why would you sell a business that generated $30 million per year without touching consolidated revenue and put us in a position where we rely on Treasury at each budget to fund the racing industry? I would implore this committee to look very closely at this sale; short-term gain for long-term pain.

This industry employs 2 700 people directly and many others indirectly. I suggest that the TOTE be left alone and allowed to get on with its charter promoting the development of the racing and breeding industry, and promoting Tasmanian racing. I am sorry I have repeated myself several times throughout this, but remember this industry employs 2 700 people directly, and many indirectly, is funded by TOTE Tasmania and generates $30 million per annum. Why sell and then rely on funding from consolidated revenue which is under pressure, the most pressure it has seen in 50 years.

I also have - and I think Mr Gutwein might have a copy of this - the racing industry representation. This was to the Legislative Council on 27 February. The greyhound racing industry, thoroughbred racing industry, harness racing industry, and so on all signed this particular piece of paper suggesting that we totally oppose the sale of TOTE. If that's not officially in, I would like to present it. I think that you have a copy of this, an appropriate reference from Ms Whishaw.

CHAIR - Yes, we have that one as well.

Mr JEFFRIES - I suppose that is my concern. The minister does not have or has not mentioned a business plan, he hasn't mentioned a funding plan. I think from May last year they've said, 'TOTE is about the best thing we have to sell, we have no debt on it. Let's put it to the market and let's see how we go'. I have heard figures bandied about, and you guys would have heard most likely from $100 million to -

CHAIR - Yes, I think that's something we'll leave alone.

Mr JEFFRIES - I am seriously saying that we really should not sell the TOTE unless we have complete guarantees. I don't know what guarantees we can put in place. In the last 20 years we have had an election every four years, I think, there's going to be one soon. Various different things are happening, we need to build some hospitals, and all sorts of things. How can the minister guarantee the same funding we've been getting with annual increments, and so forth?

CHAIR - Thanks very much for that presentation, Tony. Obviously you asked us a lot of questions that we can't answer; we don't know because we're not the Government. If the Treasurer or the racing minister came up with a set of guarantees, if you like, that might persuade this committee or the Parliament, and we think it's in the best interests of the industry, how would you feel about that?

Mr JEFFRIES - I think that the industry and the guys I have been speaking to, and the people I am involved with, and so on, are fearful. If we are given a guarantee and gets rid of the TOTE, there are also other areas that rely on consolidated revenue for funding and where may racing sit in the pecking order? I know Don Challen doesn't think about racing, in fact I am led to believe that he is suggesting no more racing in Tasmania, we'll just bet on Melbourne and Sydney and elsewhere.

I just fear that even if they do give us guarantees and so on, how will they ensure that for the next four or five elections that will be $50 million which will increase by CPI each year, and so on, and all the way through, when a change of government can throw it out? I don't know. Obviously we need to obtain from Treasury, from the minister, an idea of what his plans are. What is he going to do?

Mr GUTWEIN - Tony, I do not want to put words in your mouth but is the first step that needs to be taken in all this that information needs to be provided? Is it as simple as that? The sense that I get is that you are in exactly the same situation as I am and other members on this committee are to a large degree. That is, currently there is no detail in the public arena in regards to what was being proposed and how the racing industry may benefit. It is obviously very difficult for the racing industry to say, 'Yes, that will be very good for us' or 'No, it would be very bad for us'.

Mr JEFFRIES - That would be a start. I think the minister and the Treasury have to come clean and put us in the picture. It could well be that TOTE Tasmania have discovered that Sky Channel is going to abandon them and that their foray into South-East Asia and other things that were sold to us at the original TRB set-up may have fallen in a hole. It may well be that we have to get as much money for the TOTE as quickly as possible. I do not know, but no-one is coming forward to tell us why.

Mr GUTWEIN - Following that through, has there been any approach to any of the clubs - you are involved in a multitude of them - or organisations by anyone from government or anyone in a position to provide some information on this situation?

Mr JEFFRIES - As far as I understand, no. Back when the TRB was being instigated and so forth the legislation went to the upper House first on Christmas Eve, I think. People like myself were grasping to get a hold of the legislation to have a look at it, we were trying to interrupt members of the Legislative Council when they were debating it. That was brought on very quickly. We said, 'This has all been set up for the sale of TOTE'. 'No, definitely not'. Since the announcement of the sale of TOTE, that has been it. If it were not for, I suppose, people contacting other people and so forth this committee may not have existed. There might not have been the opportunity here to put our case or to try to understand or find out why we are selling the TOTE. What is the benefit for the racing industry?

Mr BOOTH - Are you saying, Tony, that you were informed that TOTE was not going to be sold?

Mr JEFFRIES - That was put, I think, in the first few days after it came out, that the board was going to be rehashed. I know in Harness Racing we had problems where, I think at one stage the minister appointed a member for the council without even going to the people to get a vote and so forth. That may be part of our fault because we did not nominate anyone. There were a few things going on there. The whole idea in having the Tasmanian Racing Board was to clean that up. Lo and behold, when you think back it was to set the TOTE up for sale.

Mr BOOTH - Do you think that you were misled?

Mr JEFFRIES - I am very sure that we were misled. Why? It was asked in the Parliament and the minister denied that the TOTE was for sale. He told the Parliament - or his representative did; I think it may have been Mr Cox.

Mr BOOTH - Now that the councils no longer exist, how would you get a plebiscite if the members of the industry - as we have heard evidence from yourself - have not been involved in any consultation, there has been no information released, there is no business plan but you would have to look at it if it were provided? How would you, in your view, be able to make a satisfactory response to the industry if such information was provided? Or is that not possible?

Mr JEFFRIES - When the TRB was set up we had forums and so forth. I am very sure that, if something was put on the table and we could see where we were going and so forth, the industry would consult and talk with one another - all three codes - and go forth from there. The minister would need to put a very good case to the industry based on the fact that we are in a global financial crisis. I do not know but I assume that the Government is suffering fairly substantially from a lack of money, GST receipts et cetera are all going to be down the drain and next year TOTE might be sold and we would have to go to the Government and ask for money to maintain our industry. South Australia, New South Wales and Victoria are currently having major discussions about where their future funding will be coming from, and I have already mentioned that South Australia is in diabolical strife. If we sell the TOTE we are going to rely on consolidated revenue and then we are going to be saying we need hospitals, we have an ageing community and we need to look after education and so on and so forth. It is a big fear.

Mr BOOTH - With your experience in the commercial banking field that you spoke of, and the Treasurer has said that they are talking about a 20-year model, what sort of dollars would this involve? Thirty million dollars today in 20 years' time would be what? What do you anticipate you would be wanting?

Mr JEFFRIES - I'm not positively sure about $30 million, but I think that there was $27 million in stake money, there was a lot of infrastructure and they covered the cost of that. Say, $30 million plus. What is inflation now - 4 per cent? Over a 20-year period you would be talking $40 million times 20, which equals $800 million.

Mr BOOTH - But if you got $30 million support in 20 years' time that would be -

Mr JEFFRIES - TOTE are currently trading very well. We have been led to believe that they are branching off into South-East Asia, that they have all these markets that may be coming on line. TOTE could be generating for the racing industry $100 million to $200 million. We are talking billions of gambling dollars in South-East Asia where they are looking at the moment.

It would be marvellous. If someone can buy the TOTE for a fire-sale price and they continue to go down the track that they are it would be a great windfall for someone.

Mr BOOTH - Irrespective of what TOTE can generate and if someone is going to buy it, they are not going to buy it to lose money, they are going to buy it to generate money and income. We have heard in evidence that it is going to penetrate the Asian market and generate more returns et cetera, but in terms of the support today, is it fair to say the industry at the moment is fairly happy with TOTE providing the support for the industry for the stakes and so forth?

Mr JEFFRIES - At this stage stake money is good. Mind you, the other States are catching up on us pretty quickly so there is definitely a need for some minor adjustments to stake money, I think some increases. But at the moment it is going along fairly well.

Mr BOOTH - So if TOTE's business model improved over the years you would expect more money would flow to the industry and so it would be a symbiotic sort of relationship.

Mr JEFFRIES - Absolutely.

Mr BOOTH - Were there to be a sale of TOTE then the support package that would have to replace that, looking 20 years down the track, you would not be looking at $30 million in 20 years' time, you would be looking at more like $200 million?

Mr JEFFRIES - Definitely not. Ball park figures. You can throw as many figures around as you like but $100million would not be unrealistic.

Mr BOOTH - In other words, if it was a funding model that locked you into an annual thing of $30 million for the next 20 years, in 20 years' time you would just be bankrupt.

Mr JEFFRIES - There would definitely have to be the rises and falls and so on. You talk about CPI and those things; you all know about that and they would have to be put in there. I do not know how you can predict 20 years out but if you are only going to be in government for the next 12 months we can bandy around as many figures as you like.

Mr BOOTH - Setting aside the fortunes of governments and the fact then that you would have political pressure every year on the budget to get your funding, if there was a model put in place that in fact took it away from the political pressure, and I am not entirely sure how you would do that, but were you able to set up a structure that was exempt from political machinations every budget, that model would have to guarantee -

Mr JEFFRIES - It would be preferable and you have to use your commonsense a bit here also. Down the track what is going to be more important? We have an ageing population, we have pressures on our hospitals already, we have different aspects of education being brought along now which are going to cost money, all these things affect the budget situation. Racing it depends entirely on -

Mr BOOTH - To keep it level pegging now there would have to be a substantial increase in dollar terms.

Mr JEFFRIES - If they come up with a 20-year plan that can be put in concrete that cannot be affected by a change of government, that cannot be affected by the fact that we need a new hospital here and we need to do something with the LGH and so on and so forth, then definitely industry, I would consider, would be keen to look at it.

Mr BOOTH - It would have to meet at least today's level of support in 20 years' time..

Mr JEFFRIES - We are talking about infrastructure as well. I mean, in 20 years' time the infrastructure could be falling down. You need to continually upgrade your infrastructure and you continually need to maintain it as well.

The facilities at Hobart need to be upgraded to a certain degree, and I mentioned the harness racing track. I don't know about Spreyton and Devonport harness racing. There is some talk of a try situation there. Who knows? It could cost $50 million to build something like that so there are plenty of things that need to be addressed now as well as in the future.

Mr BOOTH - If the codes were able to have more interaction with TOTE in terms of the outcomes to the industry, is the TOTE model the preferred one over the years?

Mr JEFFRIES - TOTE has been good to racing. Every relationship has its ups and downs and so forth but at this stage I think we are on a winner.

Mr BOOTH - Are there other more ephemeral things than just stake money that are important to maintain TOTE, to maintain the culture of racing, for example?

Mr JEFFRIES - Exactly. Some people might say it only employs 2 700, we could do without it, but the community involved in racing in the country areas and those sorts of places is a sort of folklore. You have families who have been involved in the racing industry for years, be it all three codes and so forth, and some of those are looking to the future to establish a future in racing and so forth.

If we do not have a solid, concrete model going forward there are a lot of people that would be affected. The older people who are involved can manage but the youngsters coming through - trainers, owners, drivers, jockeys, and we have a shortage of jockeys - would want to ensure that they have a future.

Mr BOOTH - A TOTE model with some change. I am not saying it is perfect as it is but basically a TOTE model.

Mr JEFFRIES - TOTE has been supporting racing for the last number of years and they have been able to improve the product. They have different things coming on board now - first four and first six, there are different betting entities and betting types coming on board that will help keep them solvent. I go back to the fact that the possibilities with South-East Asia and those places are phenomenal.

One thing I have not mentioned in the whole of this is Betfair. Betfair have come into the racing game as well and they have put some funds in so the relationship there should be fostered as well.

CHAIR - I am just being the Devil's advocate here. I think you mentioned before that whilst TOTE have done a very good job they are in a very competitive environment.

Mr JEFFRIES - Absolutely.

CHAIR - There may be some issues out there that you and I do not know about and -

Mr JEFFRIES - Absolutely. Wouldn't it be lovely to know, Greg, that we have hit a great big bump, we have a problem or this has not worked out or this won't work out or our computer systems are out of date and we have to spend millions and millions of dollars. If that were the case, fine, but no-one has come forward with any of this information. They may well have done a good job. We had the equine influenza last year and they were able to get through that, recover, increase their turnover and increase their income so I think TOTE is not doing too bad.

CHAIR - Are there any further questions from the committee?

Mr BEST - I think Tony has put it pretty well. Obviously there are some matters we are going to have to follow up later this afternoon.

Mr JEFFRIES - There is so much concern out in the community and I know the racing industry involves gambling and can be construed by many of the do-gooders as an evil thing. It is not evil - it employs 2 700 people and the industry needs to know from the Government what they are at.

CHAIR - Thank you very much, Tony.

Mr JEFFRIES - Thank you very much for the time.

CHAIR - It's a pleasure; you have a long and broad interest in the industry.

Mr JEFFRIES - Exactly, and I think we need to know that if this is for a short-term gain because there's a big black hole and so on, why sell it at a bad time? Keep it for 12 months and see where we go.

Mr BOOTH - So in your view, the decision that has been announced isn't necessarily for the good of the industry.

Mr JEFFRIES - As we understand it, definitely not but, as I said, there may be a massive statement this afternoon from Treasury that may put us in the picture.

Mr BOOTH - Do you know anyone who's been consulted in the industry about the sale of TOTE?

Mr JEFFRIES - Not as far as I know, but, as I said, I don't know about thoroughbreds or greyhounds. I'm pretty sure from the greyhound man that there hasn't been much consultation there. I mean, TOTE was originally set up for the benefit of racing, but the bean counters have said, 'Gee whiz, look at this! We've got no debt on this business, it's going well, things are looking good. What can we get for this?'

Mr BOOTH - Do you think that depoliticises the whole deal as well, the fact that TOTE's there generating its own income? Is that valuable for the racing industry?

Mr JEFFRIES - As I said, don't throw the baby out with the bathwater because we will go from an industry or an asset that's generating income to service that particular industry. If we sell that, okay, we might get $1 billion or $2 billion, who knows, but that will be gone into consolidated revenue, and then we'll be going cap in hand to Treasury saying, 'We're the racing industry and we need our money this year. How are we going to go?'. They will say, 'Oh, look mate, we've got hospitals, we've got education, we've got all sort of things that need money. You fellows are sort of down here, so we can only do so much'. Why sell an asset at this very stage, when the global financial crisis is still coming? I'd say Mr Challen is an intelligent man, and he has picked it up back in May and said, 'We need to be prepared to cover the shortfall and so forth'. Why sell something at a fire sale price that can generate this sort of income going forward, when maybe in 12 or 18 months or two years it could be worth twice as much?

CHAIR - Okay, thanks very much, Tony. Have a safe trip.

Mr JEFFRIES - Thanks a lot. I'll have my ear to the ABC news at about five o'clock tonight.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

MR ROBERT BIFFIN AND MR NEIL HERBERT WERE CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WERE EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - Welcome, Mr Biffin and Mr Herbert and thank you for coming along. You both understand the rules of parliamentary privilege and are au fait with all that. I do not know how you are going to do your presentation but if you would like to make an opening statement with particular reference to the sale of TOTE and then we will allow the committee members to ask questions. We have only a 30-minute time slot so it must be fairly short.

Mr HERBERT - We were advised TOTE Tasmania was not on the market and therefore there was no provision in the new Tasmanian Racing Board legislation dealing with any future sale, hypothetically or otherwise. We want to know whether there was any stakeholder input. On 8 January we received a letter from the Treasurer, the Honourable Michael Aird, advising of the Government's intention to sell TOTE. The letter stated, 'This will improve TOTE's competitiveness'. We cannot see how that can be when it has had a negative impact on all the other States.

Under the new proposal of the Tasmanian Racing Board, the Director of Racing, the Racing Appeals Board and the Integrity Assurance Board will all be funded from the State Budget. It also stated, and I quote, 'I can guarantee that the Tasmanian racing industry will not be worse off with these arrangements'. Shouldn't the guarantee state that we would be better off? The letter also states that the proceeds of the sale will be reinvested into other State assets. I point out that the privatisation of the TAB in South Australia has been a disaster and that State now has unfunded capital works and low prize money. It beggars belief how the minister can guarantee future funding arrangements from future governments. With changes to social and economic circumstances we would be competing with all other submissions to Treasury including health, hospitals, schools, housing et cetera.

May I remind the committee that the TRB legislation was passed with no business plan, no cost-benefit study, no funding formulas for prize money or maintenance, and at the moment I think the new Tasmanian Racing Board is in negotiation with the Government for funding. To me, you have sold the farm and now you are trying to negotiate some cattle back onto it.

There are questions that I believe should be answered. There has been no study on the impact of racing. Will the new owner want input into the time slots in allocating Sky Channel when product goes overseas? Will the current number of TOTE outlets remain? Will Tasmania benefit in racing funding tied to growth in turnover globally? New owners may not care, as 94 per cent of turnover is generated from products outside the State now; their interest may only be in obtaining a licence. Also, the Betfair agreement is due for renewal in 2011. Will they still be in Tasmania? As it is half-owned by the Packer Group, they may wish to move it to Sydney or overseas, and they are not liable to put in $5 million a year if that happens. Also the current Sky Channel arrangements end in 2012. At this stage, we pay them to take our products.

So in summary, if a sale is pursued then the industry needs concrete arrangement, specific clarification, transparency, integrity protection for stake money tied to growth and capital expenditure with long-term sustainability, not words, which is all these things are at the moment.

Mr BIFFIN - I know under the present model that levels of funding are not guaranteed, but I thought I read somewhere that this would provide surety of income. I am not quite sure what that means, but that is a concern. I guess with the minister's commitment or statement that the racing industry will not be worse off, we need to make sure that that actually is carried out and the racing industry is not worse off. I am not sure how we do that. What does the term 'worse off' mean? Does 'worse off' allow for reasonable growth? Who decides what 'worse off' is? These are things I do not understand. The statement was also made that the sale of TOTE would provide opportunities to increase funding to the Tasmanian racing industry. I would like to see what those opportunities are, how significant they are and the time lines for when they would be introduced. The funding model would have been mentioned by everybody who has come in and we would like to see a funding model which details how we will not be worse off, how we will grow and how we will maintain confidence in the industry.

There are a lot of participants in the industry who have put a huge amount of money into infrastructure, just to mention one Alwyn Shaw. How do we guarantee these people that they can have a five or 10-year plan and continue to spend the millions of dollars they are currently investing? That relates to a lot of the participants. There is a huge amount of money tied up. At the moment there is a lot of concern about future funding and whether it is worthwhile staying in the industry and they should continue to commit funds. This all seems to be taking place during the latest restructure transition period for the Tasmanian Racing Board, although I am not sure that they even know what they are doing at this stage.

It seems to me there is unreasonable rush to get this through. The timing to me is very surprising. I would have thought that the Tasmanian Racing Board would have been giving advice to the industry but I do not know whether they can or cannot. But they certainly are not in a position to do that at the moment and there is no-one advising the racing industry on the ramifications of this whole thing. There are a lot of questions being asked. There is a lot of negativity. A lot of people are frightened. They are worried about their future and they want to see more concrete information.

CHAIR - Thank you very much.

Mr GUTWEIN - You raised a number of issues. We heard from a witness earlier today that the current concern in the industry had contributed to the very poor result at the yearling sales. Would that be your view as well? I think it was suggested that nationally sales were down 15-25 per cent but in Tasmania we took a 41 per cent fall. I am wondering whether or not that negativity in the industry played any part in that and what your view might be on that.

Mr BIFFIN - I think that it may be one of many things that may have formed a part. I do not think that it was necessarily the biggest part. It would depend on who you were speaking to and which part of the industry they belong to. Certainly that would have been in the mix of things as it was a national trend. We are linked to the national economy and apparently a planeload of buyers never made it to Tasmania. There were quite a few different things and that could have been part of it.

Mr GUTWEIN - Following on from that in regard to time frame, there is legislation to go before Parliament and the Government has to provide information on a range of matters. How critical is it of the industry or the bodies that you represent that the Government provides information in a timely fashion and how long would the industry stand for the current status quo to remain that is no information before it before it starts to have a very detrimental effect on the industry? How soon do you need to know what is going on?

Mr HERBERT - Obviously as soon as possible. With the introduction of legislation we need the information as quickly as we can possibly get it. As you say, the negativity at the moment is because of unknown quantities which I stress from everything that we have seen you could say are words. There is nothing that is concrete evidence about whatever will happen, or may happen, with the exception of the minister saying that we will not be disadvantaged. Unfortunately I do not think it is good enough to evaluate anything in that light.

As far as we were concerned, the TOTE was established to provide funding to this industry. If you sell it without any of this information, we do not know and nobody knows where that could end up in three years' time. We could be sitting around this table and going to turn the key in the front door and then we all go home. You cannot expect the studs to look at investing when they do not know where they are going and the industry in general. It has probably been said that the industry employs around 3 000 people. You take that on board. There is a lot of negativity in the industry full stop. I do not know where you would want to invest. I just made reference to a new owner hypothetically with the board room in Sydney or Hong Kong or wherever. They are obligated as directors to make as much profit for their new organisation so they may decide in two years' time to close all the TOTE outlets as a business risk. There are a lot of people - I do not know how many outlets there are, probably 70 or 80 in Tasmania - and those people would be unemployed.

Mr BIFFIN - We are not saying that the sale of TOTE is a bad thing. We do not have the information to have an opinion, I think. Is one of the reasons the fact that the Government is looking for money to pay off other debts or to source other projects? What came first?

CHAIR - We cannot answer some of those questions because we are not the Government.

Mr HERBERT - They are the questions being asked of us.

CHAIR - Of course, yes. I realised that.

Mr BOOTH - From an industry point of view, can either of you give us a single reason it would be a good thing to sell TOTE? Given that you did not know it was going to happen, was it something that you were thinking in your own minds, 'Gee, they should sell TOTE. That would be good for the industry.'?

Mr BIFFIN - From my personal opinion, I think TOTE has been motoring along beautifully in the last couple of years. Turnover has been increasing. I must give credit to the new CEO, Craig Coleman. Everything was positive and it seemed that turnover was up, they were on top of things and competing very well against the other States and TOTE companies. From my personal point of view I was surprised. But I do not have the information. I do not know whether it is good or bad. We just desperately want information.

Mr BOOTH - Does it sound satisfactory for a racing minister to be so disengaged from the industry that it appears that there is no trust in what they are saying?

Mr HERBERT - Because of the boutique nature of Tasmania, as I said earlier, TOTE was established as a funding stream for that situation. It is an obvious situation that if that goes offshore or to anywhere, there are board rooms which have to be satisfied. It is as I mentioned with Betfair. The contract that they had here for five years to put in $5 million a year will be finished in 2011. They could pick that up and put it in England. They have their licence now so they could put it in any State of Australia. When they could not they used Tasmania to get the licence.

Mr BOOTH - I want to drill down a bit on that because it is something that has been troubling me but you are the first person who has raised it in the committee. The problem is that it may be that somebody may purchase TOTE simply to get the licence. What implications do you think that may have in terms of the future of all racing codes in Tasmania were somebody to purchase it for the licence? Where do you see that could lead potentially?

Mr HERBERT - I am flying a kite at the moment but by the same token if they have a licence to operate TABs or TOTE or whatever they wish to call it, the thing that I am nervous about, because of our boutique nature, is do they have then the effort of putting our product globally and saying to Sky Channel and to this industry here, 'For us to make money and everything else we want you to race on Monday from 6 o'clock until 10 o'clock in the morning.'? That is a hypothetical, I know. But where is our control? We have absolutely no control over it whatsoever.

Mr BOOTH - Could it lead potentially to a sort of teletrack-type situation or maybe them buying product off others around the world?

Mr HERBERT - I think, being realistic, that will probably halfway happen anyway, because to go global you have to race at certain times. We actually support our industry going global to generate income.

Mr BOOTH - I do not know the answer to this so I am in the dark with regards to what one could do with that licence, but is it possible hypothetically for a person, a company or an organisation to purchase TOTE, therefore purchase a licence and then simply decide to take the product from wherever they want?

Mr HERBERT - They could go to the Northern Territory and set up to bet on racing as such everywhere but they would make commercial decision on whether it was worth it.

Mr BOOTH - So what you are saying then in answer to that - and it is hypothetical - is that potentially they could have no Tasmanian product if they wanted to?

Mr HERBERT - At a board level they could make that decision quite easily.

Mr BOOTH - They would make those decisions in the interests of the company.

Mr HERBERT - Of their shareholders, that's right.

Mr BOOTH - So there would no longer be any imperative for a new owner to do anything in terms of making sure there were plenty of races happening in Tasmania then? That is your view?

Mr HERBERT - Yes, as I said earlier, I find it very difficult to know how a government of the day can guarantee what will happen to a government in 10 year's time.

Mr BOOTH - Absolutely. You cannot rule from the grave, so to speak, if you are not the government.

Mr HERBERT - That is right.

Mr BOOTH - My concern is that apart from the effect on the culture of racing it actually puts the funding of racing into a political domain so that each year you have to go with your begging bowl.

Mr BIFFIN - Exactly, and that is one of our big concerns.

Mr HERBERT - That is our big concern.

Mr BOOTH - Further to that, from what you have said and if the licence was sold and somebody decided that they could make more money out of camel racing than running races here, it could ultimately mean that the industry could collapse in terms of the racing industry because the people who provide the product would be here but they no longer have anywhere to put their product. Is that a reasonable assumption?

Mr BIFFIN - Well, that should not happen because isn't the minister guaranteeing that the industry won't be worse off?

Mr BOOTH - But do you believe him?

Mr BIFFIN - Well, we do not want to say we disbelieve him but we want to see the cold, hard facts. If the purchaser is successful in operating what he has purchased or if he is not, my understanding is that it will not affect the money that will go to the racing industry because we will be negotiating separately from that, so we will not know whether it is successful or not so really it shouldn't have any effect on the funding of the Tasmanian racing industry, but that is where I have trouble understanding that too.

Mr HERBERT - I have trouble in understanding exactly what you said. If we get into that situation the industry would be with everybody else in negotiating State budgets and all sorts of situations.

Mr BOOTH - And even if the money went into the industry, if the people who owned the licence decided not to put it through SuperTAB or some other system, where would your stakes come from?

Mr BIFFIN - The minister.

Mr BOOTH - He would just provide the -

Mr BIFFIN - Well, that is all we can understand at this stage.

Mr BOOTH - So were a sale to be considered by the industry it would be something you would need to see in the legislation that said that an owner of that licence would have to support product provided by the Tasmanian racing industry to the level it is now at least or presumably growing. Would that be a reasonable summation?

Mr HERBERT - We would want that, and growing. The fact is that if you stand still you go backwards in any situation, so we are looking at a growth where we may accept some of our races going tele-track, hypothetically, to generate income as we have to move to that thing.

The only reason I raised the licence situation was that there could be corporations that are looking at a licence, and I don't want to go back to Betfair but they came here so they could get a licence and they have got into Australia now, so they could move that offshore here tomorrow morning and we'd get nothing, so that is why I raised the licence. If an international company in Europe sought the licence and then after three or four years' time looked at the returns sitting around the boardroom, they could say, 'We don't need this'.

Mr BOOTH - To support the industry that you are talking about in terms of racing, even if it were tele-track, you would want that to be here, not camel racing in the Northern Territory.

Mr HERBERT - Oh yes, of course.

Mr GUTWEIN - On one hand a 20-year deed in regard to providing surety of funding for the racing industry moving forward has been talked about, so that is obviously something that you guys would definitely require information on, but then in regard to any new purchaser, as part of one of the conditions of sale would it be important that a certain amount of Tasmanian racing product was always going to be a part of what they were doing?

Mr HERBERT - Yes.

Mr GUTWEIN - You would be looking for that sort of guarantee.

Mr HERBERT - We would be looking for something in that light, and I don't know how you tie that in because the more conditions, for want of a better word, that you put into the contracts, hypothetically I would suggest that the more it would bring the price down.

Mr GUTWEIN - Well, it normally would.

Mr HERBERT - Yes, and if you try to tie into all these guarantees that they have to take Tasmanian product and they have to do this and that, one would assume that the price would come down. That might still suit them if they just want the licence.

Mr GUTWEIN - You gentleman obviously know a lot more about racing than I do - and hesitate to say it, but a number of other people on this committee as well. Are there any threats that you can see on the horizon to TOTE as it currently operates at the moment? You have both said that TOTE has been doing wonderfully well the last couple of years and that has certainly been echoed by other participants in the industry. Are there any threats that you can see to TOTE and its current operations as it currently stands, whether on an interstate or an international basis from your understanding of the industry?

Mr HERBERT - Without looking at the international thing, as Robert and I and the industry have said, we have been very happy with the progress and where TOTE has been heading. We had really been looking forward to going international, globally and so forth, until it raised its ugly head that we might be selling it. We were really looking forward to moving forward the industry and TOTE, to be quite truthful.

Mr BIFFIN - I would have thought the product would have been something that would have concerned them.

Mr GUTWEIN - Is that Sky Channel?

Mr BIFFIN - Yes, it is. The Sky Channel coverage would have been the main problem on their minds but they seem to be reasonably confident that they could come out the other side of that pretty positively.

Mr GUTWEIN - How much sway does Sky Channel have in regard to the timing of your race day events? How much of the dog do they wag, so to speak?

Mr HERBERT - Well, it is a large slice at the moment; that is why TVN, which was New South Wales and Victoria, started their own. The fact is that we all need to get our product locally, interstate and overseas, so we need Sky Channel. Obviously they have a very big input into it and they are looking for 24-hour, seven-day-a-week operations so they can put it around the world. So, yes.

Mr BIFFIN - At the moment we have a binding contract but that only has a few years to go and then they will be -

Mr HERBERT - To 2012.

Mr BIFFIN - looking at us very closely because it is a commercial decision on their behalf so they will be looking where best to position us to maximise their turnover.

Mr GUTWEIN - I am trying to get an understanding. Post-2012, how realistic or unrealistic is it that Sky Channel might put a proposition to Tasmanian racing? You said before that it might be a 6 a.m. Monday morning start because you need to meet the needs of some other international market. What sort of chance is there of that actually occurring?

Mr BIFFIN - There'd be a fair chance, I would think.

Mr HERBERT - I reckon there'd be a very good chance.

Mr BIFFIN - They would want us to go off Sunday racing to some sort of mid-week racing.

Mr GUTWEIN - And even sometimes during the night, to fall in line with the time frames?

Mr HERBERT - It could be, which is probably not a bad time frame if at night we are to go to places like Singapore and into Asia, and maybe even to North America on those time frames. But what we were saying there was that it would depend on who acquired it and whether they had the clout to go to Sky and say, 'We can make millions more if we race in the 6 to 10 a.m. time slot on a Monday morning'. I do not know where we stand to negotiate in that situation.

Mr BOOTH - Even if you were to consider a 20-year deal, setting aside that I am not entirely sure how you would even do that or if you would get a plebiscite of your industry, but hypothetically, if this deal came down the line, what then? Does it concern you that if a 20-year deal were made, what happens in year 21?

Mr BIFFIN - Twenty years is not a lot of time.

Mr HERBERT - Twenty years is not a lot of time. Betfair was great - five years - but that is up and there is nothing stopping them taking their bat and ball and going anywhere in the world now they have their licence.

Mr BIFFIN - Personally, I find 20 years a disappointing period.

Mr HERBERT - Because we are trying to build.

Mr BIFFIN - We are talking about a massive industry and you are giving them 20 years, so the panic will start to set in after seven or eight years and then you have 10 years of people losing confidence and getting out of the industry because they need surety.

CHAIR - Thank you, gentlemen, for your input. I wish you a safe journey back up the highway.

THE WITNESSES WITHDREW.

Mr GEOFFREY ALLAN HARPER WAS CALLED, MADE THE STATUTORY DECLARATION AND WAS EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - I invite you to make a statement to the committee on where you see things with regard to our term of reference - that is the sale of TOTE - and then members will ask you some questions.

Mr HARPER - I am Chairman of the Tasmanian Racing Club. I have also acted for and owned a company which made a bid to buy TOTE Tasmania some two years' ago. I am also a part of the consortium, which includes the Tasmanian Racing Club, which is putting forward that it would like to make an offer to buy TOTE Tasmania, if it is for sale. There is a number of issues which I am across but I believe I can give a fairly broadbased and informed opinion as to why I think that TOTE Tasmania, under the current circumstances, should not be sold.

CHAIR - As long as we do not get into figures concerning commercial confidentiality.

Mr HARPER - I will quote figures which have been gleaned out of TOTE annual reports and one out of a Merrill Lynch annual report which probably does not carry much weight since they have just had a $10 billion bailout and $15 billion loss in three months. If these are the people that have been quoted around the place there is probably not a lot of credibility floating around. The consultation with respect to dividing TOTE in the industry was an absolute sham. We arrived with Global Value Management at Bellerive. I talked to the minister's representative at the time who said, 'The legislation has already been drafted. This is just window-dressing'. I left about three-quarters of the way through. It was an absolute waste of time. If this is what it is about it -

Mr HARRISS - When was that, Geoff?

Mr HARPER - On 26 September, with Global Value Management. I sat next to the representative of the minister at the table and said, 'Do you have the legislation prepared?' He was very reticent about saying it. I persevered with the point and he said, 'The draft legislation has been prepared'.

Mr GUTWEIN - That was for the restructuring of the industry?

Mr HARPER - That is for the restructured industry and the separation of TOTE Tasmania from the racing industry. In real terms was there consultation? In my opinion, no. The confusing issues for all in the racing industry are, what are the terms and conditions of the sale? Does the TOTE merely manage the industry on behalf of the Government? I would like to put forward in the papers which I will leave today the statutory declaration from the Honourable Michael Hodgman which makes the point that Totalisator started it all in about 1890 and has historically been there over a number of years. The Government was approached to manage the totalisator industry on behalf of the Government. They were never given ownership of it, never indeed contributed any capital to start off the industry. There is an argument to ask, who owns TOTE Tasmania?

CHAIR - Are you saying you would like to table that statutory declaration?

Mr HARPER - Yes, I would. Thank you. The confusing issue for the industry is, what are the terms of sale? Second, what level of licence fee does the Government propose to charge, if any? The minister's statement to this committee in the first instance is known to the Tasmanian Racing Club. What is currently for sale? The current date to provide this is totally insufficient to allow any decision on what is for sale, the revenue to be charged and what is required. Their contact point was Mr David Willingly, a partner at Deloitte Corporate Finance and I requested information on the sale. I rang him, e-mailed and got an immediate response. The close of expressions of interest was for the 16 January. When I contacted him since then, apart from the fact that he does not return his e-mails or his phone calls now, I was told that there would be no information available until the end of March; the Government did not know whether it was selling.

Mr BOOTH - Can I just clarify that. Are you saying that you received information by 16 January and that was the close of expressions of interest?

Mr HARPER - In the Merrill Lynch papers here there is a description of Tattersalls and Tabcorp wishing to buy TOTE and it says expressions of interest close on 19 January 2009.

Mr BOOTH - Was the announcement to sell was made publicly on 6 January?

Mr HARPER - Yes, on 6 January. Through the racing club, having contacted Deloitte to ask what was for sale I was told they would not know what was for sale until the end of March, as the Government had not decided.

Mr BOOTH - That is extraordinary.

Mr HARPER - It is unbelievable.

Mr BOOTH - So you had two weeks and you had to read an ad in the paper and technically that would have been the only means to find out. It was only because you sought out Deloitte that you knew when they were closing, or was there an ad in the paper?

Mr HARPER - This popped up on a Merrill Lynch web site and that is when we were told the expressions of interest were closing. According to this, 'the Government of Tasmania has announced their intention to sell TT in a competitive bidding process by 30 June 2009 and expressions of interest are due on Friday 16 January.'

Mr BOOTH - What date was that? Is there a publication date?

Mr HARPER - It's dated 22 January 2009.

Mr GUTWEIN - Just for clarification, what document is that?

Mr HARPER - It is a Merrill Lynch proposal which relates to TOTE Tassie being for sale and it goes through the likely buyers for TOTE Tasmania and what their current interests would be judging by the current level of capital purchases within the industry, for example Tabcorp is involved in the redevelopment of the casino in Brisbane, so they might not have the capital to bid for it.

I want to make the point that clearly it said, there are two logical options to sell TOTE Tasmania. I would say that the Tasmanian Racing Club and the entities it is dealing with would be the third, but it really boils down to there being really only one entity in the market place that would be interested, Tattersalls. That is the conclusion that they come back with.

CHAIR - Would you be able to table that document, Geoff?

Mr HARPER - I am certainly happy to leave a copy and table that document, yes. I do not need to quote from that so I will leave that with you now.

In the divesting by TOTE of the racing assets and its assets within the balance sheet which would be the leases on the Tasmanian Racing Club and others, it has now put itself in the situation of being a trading company. It does not particularly own any assets apart from intellectual property, leasing and some property which it has no asset holding on. It may hold other small parcels but then you go to the balance sheet and there is nothing significant there. Anyone buying it is buying a trading company based on the licences which it currently has. I think it is important to understand that.

What has not been accounted for is if it is sold to an interstate company, what would they be looking for? If you sell TOTE on its 2006 turnover figures and you are only selling it based on turnover with no asset input, it is worth somewhere between $800 000 and $1.3 million. We have a certified valuation from a licensed valuer. As I said, we looked to buy the company at that stage. If you are buying TOTE licences only, without any capital infrastructure that goes with it, that is about the price.

Mr BOOTH - What date is that?

Mr HARPER - That is the 2006 valuation and it was valued on 22 December 2006 by Horton International accountants. Unfortunately because of the information within that I am not prepared to divulge it but I am happy to discuss any access to figures.

Mr BOOTH - What prompted you to get a valuation in 2006? Was it to put in a bid to buy it or was there some process happening there?

Mr HARPER - We had excellent relationships with Racing Victoria at the time and it was about the Belfair time as well. Racing Victoria had come back and said that if TOTE Tasmania was for sale they recognised that Tabcorp in Victoria's licence was coming up in 2011. What they did not have was a vehicle to run a TAB wagering business out of. The integration of Racing Victoria and Racing Tasmania and having the TOTE licence that they could utilise to begin with would be advantageous to the Victorian industry and the Tasmanian industry. With that they linked to us a certain number of guarantees, which have been made public previously, that it would be advantageous to go down that path as far as prize money, capital investment and continuity were concerned.

They have certainly continued on since then with apprentice training and others while giving those things FOC back to the Tasmanian racing industry as well. The potential of having only a retail company to asset strip the services on the ground and just leave Tasmania bare of any TAB is an absolute realism.

The lower the tax regime the more the economic value of TOTE Tasmania is, but then industry becomes reliant on State budget allocation. The value and determination of the economic net worth of TOTE is dependent upon the customer mix. These are not old figures but they are fairly close to the mark.

Twenty people provide approximately 40 per cent of TOTE turnover and 60 per cent of that is electronic in nature and will ultimately stay with current TAB pool destination.

When you look at the balance of dividends paid throughout Australia, the market is so sophisticated and so computerised that people are able to transfer money around on each race they want to bet on to get the best results on punting throughout Australia. You may find a horse in, say, Queensland paying $6 on the TOTE and it is paying $3 in Victoria. You will find by the end of the jump of the race it is still paying $3 in Victoria but it is paying $4, $3.50. These people know how much money to put on and what is required to get it down and still make a commensurate return on where it is.

You are talking about a very sophisticated market. If we are looking at potential purchasers of TOTE you have to be able to punt into a new pool. As an example, if Tattersalls were interested in buying it they still have to be able to punt in the Victorian pool but the Victorian pool is not going to let them punt into that and not let them have that outlet.

You have to be in a position to ensure that the current levels of turnover, the percentages of money coming out of Tasmania, are allocated evenly across the distribution pools. You will not get that by getting any other purchaser apart from Tabcorp.

The problem with Tabcorp is sitting back there knowing that if it does nothing in 2011 it is going to get all that money anyway. Forty per cent of the local turnover, which is bulk punters, has to go into that pool because it is the only way they get a dividend. You have 60 per cent of punters sitting out there who contribute very little to the bottom line and yet if the professional punter moves out and punts in Victoria, 60 per cent of the punters are going to be carrying 100 per cent of the overheads.

There is real concern there for the genuine buyers in the marketplace for TOTE. When you sit back and listen to the history of what has been said, there are clearly only two players in the Australian marketplace capable of fitting TOTE into their pool. One is Tabcorp and the other is UNiTAB.

Why would Tabcorp do anything? And they have tried it before and the information is provided, they tried to move Tasmania out of their pool, which automatically gives them 40 per cent of TOTE's major turnover having to be punted into their pool because they are the only ones that hold enough money to do anything with, So Tabcorp can sit back and do nothing - they will get 40 per cent of Tasmania's business in 2011 and they will get that on the bulk users' benefit. When you are servicing 20 to 30 people and providing 40 per cent of the turnover it has to be a great business acumen. If Tabcorp happen to want to buy here they would, in my opinion, buy, take the 40 per cent and cut the other 60 per cent loose. The other 60 per cent is either going to make phone calls to them to get into their business or they are going to drop off the punting market. That is the problem I see with the current marketplace situation at the moment.

The contracts with Tasmania come up, I believe, in about the year 2011, whether the contract for TOTE is to remain with Tabcorp comes up at that stage. That is, incidentally, about the time that the Sky contracts and the product supply agreements with the Tasmanian racing industry come into negotiation again. So there is some real sort of note there to be had whether or not these things are going to be fulfilled.

Tabcorp have already made it known - they said they did not want Tasmania in the pool and fortunately for Tasmania we have a contract which allows us to stay - I think it is to 2011, which has certainly been a real advantage. Otherwise we would finish up like other TABs of South Australia, Northern Territory and Western Australia, having to move off into a smaller market.

Tasmania is the victim by TOTE of its own success. Tasmania has done particularly well in getting professional punters here and working the system legally really well and I think they are to be commended for that. Where does the Tasmanian racing industry go in its value? If you sell TOTE off you have to lose intrinsically half its value or half its net worth. If the figures being quoted around, figures that are quoted in that report - maybe $115 million, maybe it is worth $120 million - if you have to pay a royalty back to the Tasmanian racing industry commensurate with its current needs it is probably about $1 million - $1.5 million.

But in relation to the payments required by the racing industry, you are looking to sell a $300 million to $400 million investment to get the returns that TOTE is currently getting out of that. When you look through the numbers of what TOTE's efficiency is - and these are numbers which were provided by our accountants on the basis of a valuation we have had done - TOTE Tasmania's collection of revenue is 10 times less efficient than the Victorian industry's.

I have raised the issue previously at the meeting in Campbell Town about the need for TOTE to go through the self-examination process with external people to make sure that we are getting the best value for dollar. That has never been looked at and never been followed through but you can't get away from the numbers that are in the paperwork. The numbers say that TOTE is inefficient and should be looked at and whether it is a new management structure - I think some of the people on the management team are outstanding but there are inherent systems in place which may not be in the best interests of racing.

The idea of offering a 20-year deed back to industry on funding, when you look at that in depth the first four years' funding is guaranteed, the next four years you are in the mix with health and all the other industries within the State. But again, if TOTE is paying industry in excess of $20 million a year in output, for a 10 per cent return on asset you are talking $200 million, so TOTE has to be valued at $350 million to $400 million and if they get $350 million to $400 million there is some sort of relativity to say - and I would be one saying it - sell.

But to look at amounts less than $250 million it is just laughable, it really is in the light of return on investment. Commercially it would not be a good proposition to sell TOTE unless you are in the $300 million to $450 million range. With only one potential bidder in the marketplace that is all you have to go on because if TOTE Tasmania goes the way it is currently going and is sold to, let us say, UNiTAB, then the turnover or the money that UNiTAB is getting to punt back into Victorian Tabcorp is not going to exist so they are not going to have the same sized pools around for local punters to invest in to get similar returns, so automatically those punters have to get out of the UNiTAB pool and get into the Victorian pool and that is where the strength and the weight of the money is. That is where we really sit with it.

In my opinion, there is not a lot to be offered by the sale. Also too, and I think this is really important, the minister made a statement to the committee that he believes he can negotiate a satisfactory outcome on capital and prize money with the new Tasmanian Racing Board. This is the board that he recommended to Cabinet; he signed the appointment papers for it. Isn't that the ultimate conflict of interest? He is asking a board that he has appointed himself to tick off a 20-year funding deal for the racing industry, which in real terms is only four years because after four years you go back to renegotiating what is the current budget structure within Tasmania.

I think if you do the numbers on TOTE it clearly demonstrates that the worst position we could be in is to sell to TOTE for less than $350 million-$400 million. If you sell it for that there is some relativity of saying it is a good purchase, but to do anything else, the income that is currently being derived from TOTE does not warrant selling it for less, and I believe when you only have one player in the marketplace capable of wanting to buy it, that is it. Paul said it would be nice to get an overseas person in to buy it, but to me there is no reality there. There is no Asian company, no British company, there is no-one out there - or North American companies as well - that would be interested in buying it. The marketplace, according to the documentation which I tendered, clearly says that that is an Australian-based marketplace with either Tattersalls or Tabcorp.

Mr BOOTH - Setting aside its value, in terms of the best interests of the racing industry in Tasmania for all codes, do you think it is in the best interests of the industry to sell TOTE and therefore fall victim to your own current funding arguments and accept whatever deal they try to stitch up for 20 years, or is it in the best interests in the industry to keep TOTE as a funding stream going sideways back into the industry?

Mr HARPER - I think there is only clearly one answer to that. It would be absolute lunacy to sell TOTE Tasmania when you have a negotiation coming up with a major corporation such as Tabcorp in the year 2011. Tabcorp have already indicated that they want Tasmania out of the pool. That would be absolutely catastrophic for the Tasmanian racing industry. The Tasmanian Government, through TOTE, is the only body that can negotiate with Tabcorp on a level playing field. I would not want any other entity in Australia, whether it be UNiTAB in New South Wales or whatever, trying to negotiate Tasmanian racing staying in a large pool such as Tabcorp, which is the only pool to be in. It has the best racing, the best quality of money flying in and out of there, and the best-managed dollar - a dollar spent is a dollar rewarded. It is by far the best way to go.

There is no reason to want to go anywhere but the Tasmanian Government and TOTE Tasmania, in my opinion, are the only ones who can guarantee that we will stay in. I would rather be sitting in front of the High Court with the Tasmania Government and TOTE Tasmania in front of a united racing industry arguing that we should be back in the pool and that it is a State rights issue of discrimination against a smaller State, than selling the place off, because if you sell it off you walk away from it.

Mr BEST - Mr Harper, you mentioned that you had some discussions about your interest in purchasing TOTE.

Mr HARPER - Yes, that is right.

Mr BEST - When would that have been? When did you first become interested, so to speak?

Mr HARPER - In 2006. We then approached Michael Aird and we also approached the Premier, Paul Lennon, at the time about our interest in it and were told categorically that TOTE was not for sale.

Mr BEST - Can I just ask or is it commercial-in-confidence - I do not want to put you in a bad position and we can go in camera if you like - what has been your interest in purchasing TOTE? It is okay if you do not want to answer.

Mr HARPER - No, no, I am more than happy to say. I have been involved in the racing industry for 40 years. I have done very well in my own business interests and I have had so much enjoyment out of racing that I believe there is a lot more that business and the business community can give back. The contacts I have made through racing have been excellent, both in my business and others. The interest in buying TOTE Tasmania was purely on behalf of the industry, because at the end of the day, you have a locked-in supply of money at 4 per cent and you have the ability to take out the Tabcorps and the UNiTABs of the world, who are 10 per cent returners to their shareholders; they have a large 'other expenses'. Tasmanian racing, managed under an efficient TOTE structure, should be able to return 10 per cent to 15 per cent more money to the racing industry and possibly 5 per cent to 10 per cent into government revenue than any industry owned by UNiTAB, Tabcorp or any private enterprise.

Mr BEST - Yes. We did hear from some witnesses about other key matters that they thought would be important in the overall context of some sort of a funding agreement, if one were to exist. We heard also that the formula being used in Country Racing Victoria has been a funding formula. I am just interested in your views about that. Do you see that as a good funding model to base something upon? Would you like to make other comments about what could be constituted as good funding models that we could consider?

Mr HARPER - I do not think Tasmania has the maturity and I do not know why they have not because the question has been asked several times. Tasmania has a unique business model and that business around Saturday and Sunday racing and other feature race days tying into a national and an international grid.

We have never done a business plan which is for the betterment of the racing industry. We know that certain races have better prize money and TAB turnover is better on some race meetings than others, it is better at different times. There is an array of things that should be put in place. It will never be done if TOTE Tasmania sits out there - this is not a criticism of TOTE - and the new racing board sits here. The new racing board is trying to program races that can be contrary to the best interests of the TAB. The TAB structure with the racing industry under it was the best, most efficient corporate entity that Tasmania has had in my 25 years managing racing. That is not to say it was perfect -

Mr BEST - No.

Mr HARPER - There is a lot of improvements on both sides, the racing industry and others.

Mr BEST - What do you think the best structure would be? You could say that one, or do you have a better one in mind?

Mr HARPER - The best structure I believe we could go to is one where TOTE took control of the racing industry again but there was greater representation and maturity on the racing board that represented racing Tasmania interests, not the sectionalised clubs or anything like that. The corporate law in Australia has now changed so much and I am sure we have all served on certain boards where people say, 'Directors on the other board I sit on have told me to vote for this'. That has been illegal in Australia for the last 10 or 15 years, and yet it still goes on in every lower board you sit on. TOTE Tasmania's board should be able to rise above that level and introduce a system of punting and turnover, feature races and governance within the Tasmanian racing industry which would be an absolute role model and advantage.

Why would it be? First, because it would be efficient. People at the club level give their time free of charge so there is a saving there. Second, TOTE Tasmania would not be paying 10 to 15 per cent, other taxes to shareholders and living or dying on the stock exchange. At the end of the day, TOTE was established to provide the racing industry with funding; it was not to provide the Government with the whim of being able to sell it when they felt like it. It was a revenue stream. What is the problem here? The revenue stream has become too good and people are looking at us and saying we are short of money for here, we are short of money for there. We are not attuned to paying out a direct share of taxes on where we are going, but we have a business where - these figures might not be accurate - about $20 million a year roughly gets paid out in the way of stake money and prize money, and $10 million or $15 million is being taken out in capital investment within the industry.

Based on the current TOTE turnover, and that turnover has improved exponentially from where it was, this is a great business giving a great return both to the State and to the racing industry. If someone comes up and says, 'We are able to get a return on that and sell it off so we are going to finish up with a yield of 15 to 20 per cent so therefore it makes sense out of - let's say - selling it for $100 million, we can pay the racing industry $20 million a year and another $15 million in capital investment'. What you are saying is the first year, as I read these papers, we are looking to pay $35 million out of the $100 million the Government collects and four years down the track the racing industry is going to be negotiating with the new racing board and the racing board with the Government saying, 'We need more funds'. They are saying they have decided to build the new hospital on a greenfields site and they need the funds for that. It is going to be a drip-fed industry.

At the end of the day, if you want Tasmania to prosper there have to be businesses that do well and employ people. I think if you look at the racing industry it is the best employer of the unemployable people within Tasmania and it is a real grassroots movement which interlinks society, from corporates right down to stable hands and others. I think a successful racing industry, as they have anywhere else, is a real underpinning of society and where it is going.

Mr BOOTH - Do you see the sale of TOTE being detrimental to the long-term interests of the racing industry?

Mr HARPER - If the sale of TOTE achieves the $400 million to $500 million being mooted, I would seriously say it is probably not a bad deal.

Mr BOOTH - But how would you see that supporting the industry in the future?

Mr HARPER - If TOTE were to be sold, and there is an argument about who actually owns TOTE anyway, for $500 million I would want to be sitting down with government saying, 'We do not have a deed for 20 years, we actually have a contract or a contractual deed for 20 years which details the funding and the progression of funding out of the $500 million grant which we have given back to government'. TOTE can generate around $35 million to $40 million on the $450 million turnover, which was the last turnover I saw, so they have to be generating somewhere about $35 million to $40 million.

I want to go back because you raise a good point there. I asked the honourable Michael Hodgman to ask the question in Parliament two years ago along the line of how much the State Government raised out the TAB in the 1990s by way of revenue to go to consolidated revenue. In the years, I think 1992-98, the State Government collected $92 million in funding out of TOTE and out of the racing industry that went directly to consolidated revenue.

The point I ask and raised before is, there needs to be an inquiry into the running of TOTE and the cost in how it is managed to ensure that what we are selling is actually what we believe is in the balance sheet. As I said earlier if the ratio was 10 times less efficient than Tabcorp, and there is certainly a scale of economy there, then we are possibly selling something whose economic value we really don't know.

Mr BOOTH - It could be worth a lot more than it appears at the moment.

Mr HARPER - Absolutely. To round it up, if $30 million is coming out of TOTE to go to the racing industry, a $300 million investment at 10 per cent is a great return in the market place at the moment. To buy an investment that returns $30 million, what is it really worth? To sell it for anything less than $450 million to $500 million is just throwing money away.

Mr BOOTH - Moving on from that, the question is, what in 20 years' time? If you have a deal, and we have talked about the vagaries of different political machinations as to funding streams even in the last 20 years, but even if you have a watertight contract, what then?

Mr HARPER - From what I understand of the ministers statement to the committee, it is not that. He has clearly stated that the funding will be locked in place for four or six years and at the end of the fourth year we are going to sit down and renegotiate or negotiate what the level of funding would be. From the industry's position in the first six years you know where you are. At the end of the fourth year you will be told in the seventh year what you will get. That puts you back into the level of where the State Government is and what its budgetary requirements are.

Mr GUTWEIN - We will need to get that clarified and we have Mr Aird coming in. I must admit my understanding was that rolling five-year contracts would be negotiated on an annual basis so that you would have surety moving forward on a five-year basis. I would need to look at that but that was my understanding of it to be fair to him. That would mean that in your second year you were actually negotiating out to your sixth year and then third year and so on.

Mr HARPER - The seventh - continually.

Mr GUTWEIN - But by doing it that way you roll across election periods.

Mr HARPER - To me it does not matter if it rolls over election periods or not, it is only as good as the contract that is actually put in place and quite frankly I think we have no confidence. If you look back at the abalone industry and see how the deeds changed from what the original deed was, it is alright to talk about short-term contracts, but when you are talking about things in the long term society changes, everything changes so much, you would not want to be locked into something like that.

CHAIR - Geoff, unfortunately we have gone over time. Thank you very much for your valuable input today.

THE WITNESS WITHDREW.

THE HONOURABLE MICHAEL AIRD, MINISTER FOR RACING, WAS RECALLED AND FURTHER EXAMINED.

CHAIR (Mr Hall) - We will start this last segment. It has been a long day and we have the most important player of the lot, the honourable Treasurer. Welcome, Treasurer. We will have a short session in open committee, and then we'll move into closed, if that's okay with you. Is there anything you'd like to say just to start off with?

Mr AIRD - Mr Chairman, there appear to be three threshold questions that the committee is considering, but you may correct me. The questions appear to be: do you believe there is good reason to divest TOTE from public ownership; do you believe the processes that were undertaken to achieve that decision which I took, along with the Government, were appropriate in the circumstances; and does this allow for security of funding, a sustainable funding model of some sort into the future?

Obviously, I have answered the first question; that's why I am here. In answer to the second question, I am satisfied, given all the circumstances, all the stakeholders including the employees, principally, that I've handled the process appropriately and have engaged in proper process, but the committee may make a different judgment because I understand there has been some evidence put forward in committee which has been a bit critical, surprise, surprise.

CHAIR - You got off pretty lightly today.

Mr AIRD - No-one defamed me? I am not going to defame myself, but I just hope there's some restraint amongst members here.

Then you get to the other question of how you satisfy the racing industry's funding model. I put forward a model before. I have a slight variation to that model in that I would proceed with the deed whether or not we had a sale of TOTE. The advantage of a deed is that it does give security. There is no funding model in Australia now that actually provides security to the racing industry; there are models that have provided a level of assistance to the racing industry over a period of time but there is no guarantee per se. A deed overcomes some of the concerns about the vagaries of political interference and, depending on the terms and conditions of the deed, would get to, I think, a reasonable position of security for the racing industry and allow for proper management of the racing industry that I think is essential.

That is the proposition that I would bring to the table. A deed would be signed with the Tasmanian Racing Board which would secure funding for the racing industry. I have indicated before the committee and publicly that the industry should not be worse off or disadvantaged from the present funding arrangements, therefore there would be some level of indexation. The only part of the deed which would have a condition precedent would be the capital injection into the racing industry, but that would have to be subject to the sale.

Other than that, in terms of what exists now, we could ensure that the deed could be sustained whether or not there was a sale of TOTE. That is a variation really to the proposition I put before; I remember having a discussion with the committee in terms of linking the sale to a deed. I believe under any particular situation you'd be able to have a deed which would sustain the long-term interests of the racing industry.

CHAIR - Thank you. Are there any questions of the Treasurer on those points he has made?

Mr GUTWEIN - I was wondering how far down we can drill or whether we wait until we go in camera. Just in regard to a couple of things I think you said last time and certainly clarified something that was discussed this afternoon, still on the rolling five-year basis?

Mr AIRD - That was the initial proposition, and if there was a variation of that which led to a similar outcome but didn't lead to a huge distortion. I think we have to understand that the racing industry actually contributes to a turnover of about 6.5 per cent. That is understood in terms of the wagering industry. The racing industry has some claim to the benefits of the sale of TOTE probably beyond that 6.5 per cent, but nonetheless I think we can work out a model that is a long-term sustainable guarantee model of the deed. That is not subject to any political interference once it's signed. A deed can be varied by a consent of parties, of course, and I think that would be the most secure.

To be quite frank with the committee, I have looked for a way where I could provide the greatest level of security under the provisions, and the most secure model in terms of the legal position of a deed is, I think, the most secure way and legal way of supplying security and sustainability to the racing industry.

Mr BOOTH - Minister, you said that you've engaged in proper process in regard to this. Who did you consult with in the industry before you decided to announce the sale of TOTE?

Mr AIRD - As I explained before, my position is that while they are the beneficiaries of a wagering industry and their interests need to be satisfied with the process, if I had gone through that process I would have caused a lot of instability within TOTE and there are about 300 employees to be considered. I had to satisfy myself that we could get value out of the sale of TOTE and ask whether it was necessary for it to be in State hands, and whether we could provide some security back to the racing industry. I believe I can do those things and I am satisfied in terms of my decision making that I have engaged in a proper process.

Mr BOOTH - Who did you consult with then? We have not had a single person from the industry who has expressed any confidence in you whatsoever, and none of them had been consulted. You are talking about an industry, but I cannot quite reconcile proper process with not consulting with anyone. But setting that aside

-

Mr AIRD - Let us not set it aside. What we are selling is a wagering industry. We are selling a wagering business, not a racing business. The interest of the racing industry is to secure funding - bottom line. I understand that. I think that we will be able to do that and satisfy the industry. Those who have been critical of the process are concerned about their future. I understand that.

Mr BOOTH - Who did you consult with?

Mr AIRD - We went through this last time. I am not going to do that again.

Mr BOOTH - With respect, I am asking you a question. It is not up to you to say you are not going to deal with anything in here if somebody wants to ask a question.

Mr AIRD - I do not want to waste the committee's time.

CHAIR - We went through those questions last time. The Treasurer gave the answers with regard to stakeholders. A lot of them have criticised the process, others have said it depends on what the Treasurer comes up with.

Mr BOOTH - In regard then to the deed, you said that you will prepare a deed whether you sell TOTE or not. When did you decide that you will prepare a deed?

Mr AIRD - I had discussed with the committee before that I thought a deed would be an estimate of securing funding for the industry.

Mr BOOTH - Yes, but when did you decided that you would do that? You discussed it with the committee before that you would prepare a deed to guarantee the future of the industry on the sale of TOTE.

Mr AIRD - I do not have a date in my head so I cannot answer that.

Mr BOOTH - It is just that you said that you think you should have a deed whether we sell TOTE or not.

Mr AIRD - That is right. Before I was saying that it would be a condition precedent in terms of the sale. I reflected upon the conversation I had with the committee. I said to the committee then that I would go away and think of the attitudes put forward by the committee. I have done that and I think by creating the opportunity for a deed to be signed, whether TOTE is sold or not, handles the issue of security or whatever.

Mr BOOTH - Is that something on which you have come to a conclusion since you appeared before the committee the first time?

Mr AIRD - I have firmed in my view that that is the best way of securing a long-term, sustainable funding model for the industry. That was following on from the committee's deliberations.

Mr GUTWEIN - On another matter, although there are a number of issues I want to drill down on the deed so I do not want to get away from that, but we will do that in camera. Today we heard an interesting criticism of the way that you and the Government have handled it and that the recent yearling sales, which I understand around the country were down by between 18 and 25 per cent but in Tasmania took a 41 per cent hit. Criticism has been raised today that the uncertainty in regards to the TOTE sale had an impact and exacerbated the situation, making it worse in Tasmania than it was in the other States. Would you accept that as a valid criticism? Importantly it appears from every witness that we have heard today that everybody is concerned about the lack of information that is available to them. What process will you be undertaking to ensure that the industry is informed to remove any perception of uncertainty in regards to going forward?

Mr AIRD - There are a couple of questions. One, I could be held responsible for a lot of things but I do not think the downturn in yearling sales can be directly attributable to that. It is more to do with the broader economic climate that we are in rather than any decision made by the Government. That is my observation. No-one has ever raised that issue with me before other than -

Mr GUTWEIN - As I say, it was raised in a couple of -

Mr AIRD - If it was raised here, that is fine but I think it is stretching things to attribute this to me or the Government's decision. There has been a drop in sales around the country. Everyone knows about that in terms of the returns that people are getting from their stock. I think the variation is more to do with the market than any influence that we brought to bear by this decision on the market. In answer to the other part of the question, what I would tend to do is to produce two pieces of legislation, one to amend the Gaming Control Act and the other a TOTE sale act and, at the same time, I would table the deed.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Minister, you indicated that you thought that the process was appropriate leading up to the announcement of the sale and you highlighted the fact that you were concerned about unrest with the 300 TOTE employees. Can I put it to you that the 2 700 people within the racing industry are probably as concerned about their future? Do you acknowledge that they are just as important?

Mr AIRD - In terms of legitimate stakeholders to this they are a legitimate stakeholder in the racing industry. What we are divesting here is a wagering industry and my interest is to ensure that the general community can benefit from the assets that are held, not just the racing industry, this is a broader view. This is a view that I have about the community not just the racing industry. This sale has the potential to benefit every Tasmanian not just the racing industry. The racing industry is not the only stakeholder in terms of the value that we could extract from the sale of TOTE. I expect that we would be able to invest in other assets which will benefit the whole community.

No-one has been more supportive of the industry than I have and this Government. In fact, when we came into government the industry was on its knees and we have managed to build and sustain it. You think of the resistance we had with Betfair.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Praise has been given today to the former Premier.

Mr AIRD - That is fine. I do not mind where it goes but it has to be acknowledged that we have built up the industry. We do not intend to do anything that is going to negatively affect it.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Moving on, and I am probably fortunate that I am not making the decisions that you are making I had not thought about the process I would take but I think that I would probably have engaged some more consultative means. That is my view. We have heard an opinion today that any conditions attached to the sale of TOTE to secure funding for the industry, may diminish the value of TOTE. Do you agree that that could be the case?

Mr AIRD - It depends what the conditions are. I do not know. Most sales have conditions on them and some of those conditions can affect the sale depending on the nature of the conditions. There could be a range of conditions, and some of them may affect the value.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Have you thought about what some of those conditions may be?

Mr AIRD - Yes, I have thought about some of them but I have not concluded any of them yet.

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - But they may diminish the price or they may not.

Mr AIRD - Some of them may be worthwhile in terms of the overall benefit to the Tasmanian community and the industry generally. We will be making a judgment about that in terms of what we say will be conditions precedent if we get Parliamentary approval to sell. Obviously we will go through other stages to work out what other conditions we want to impose.

Mr BEST - I have some key feedback from some things put to the committee in relation to any funding model you might be thinking about being to continue to attract new people into the industry, the pool of horses coming through. They wanted to go from 68 to 78 races a year. I do not know how achievable some of that is. There is also a view that I think they want to canvass and that is how the stakes might eventuate between the two larger cups of the year and how that could be shared across with more race meetings? I do not know how achievable that is, but that is some of the feedback. From what I have gauged in evidence here, people seem fairly comfortable with the formula that has been used from the Country Racing Victoria but there could be some special circumstances with those two cups et cetera.

One of the big issues has been what might be included in some arrangement regarding infrastructure. I am from Devonport and I have heard of some upgrading needs in the Devonport area of $12 million to $15 million.

Mr AIRD - That is true, I acknowledge that.

I have views about the capital expenditure that needs to be invested into various racetracks around Tasmania. I think Spreyton does need to be upgraded. Whether it needs to be an all-weather track or a synthetic track I do not know; that is why we have a racing board to deal with that.

I am not here to micro-manage, in fact this highlights the issue that we have put a Tasmanian racing board in place. The intention is that it will become a State-owned company, that it will determine the outcomes of the racing industry and that racing people will take control of racing. They will be determining the level of capital that they wish to put into various racetracks around Tasmania.

My responsibility is to ensure that there is a level of capex available to the board, that there will be an injection of an amount that needs to go to the board and I am prepared to do that at the conclusion of the sale. I cannot find the amount of capital to invest in that from the circumstance we are in at the moment so, in answer to your question, those decisions will be made.

In terms of race meetings, already we have announced with TOTE that there are lights going in at the TOTE racing centre and Launceston will create more meetings, probably around about 11 more, which will open up another part of the market for us. There are other aspects that I think can create avenues for us to fill niche markets in terms of racing but a simple answer to your question is that most of those decisions should be made by the Tasmanian Racing Board. The discussion here is about how we put the resources to the Tasmanian Racing Board so it can make those decisions.

Mr BEST - Just finally on that, from what I have picked up there have been people who have been pretty aggressive and heated about the situation -

Mrs RATTRAY-WAGNER - Did you find that?

Mr BEST - Just slightly.

When you start drilling down with this in discussion, mostly it is around the context of what the funding agreement might be, I suspect, and how that works out.

Mr AIRD - I think that is right.

Mr BEST - I realise there are two separate issues at stake.

Mr AIRD - I understand that and I am keen to address that issue.

Mr BOOTH - Just to be clear for the committee, Treasurer, you are not selling the racing business, you are selling the wagering business -

Mr AIRD - That is correct.

Mr BOOTH - and you are doing it for the benefit of the whole of the State, not just the racing industry?

Mr AIRD - That is correct.

Mr BOOTH - Implicit in that then is that the racing industry would be better off retaining TOTE?

Mr AIRD - No.

Mr BOOTH - How can it be that this is better for the Tasmanian population?

Mr AIRD - One does not negate the other.

Mr BOOTH - How is that?

Mr AIRD - It does not negate it. I am putting forward a model that guarantees them a future in terms of funding. In terms of long-term sustainability they will be out of the political hurly-burly, they will not have to do any lobbying, they will not have to anything other than get about their business running the racing industry the way they want to do it.

Mr BOOTH - So they will be better off?

Mr AIRD - In my view they will be a lot better off. They will be better off than any other funding model anywhere else in Australia.

Mr BOOTH - How will the Tasmanian community be better off than any other? You cannot have it both ways.

Mr AIRD - Of course you can, because the amount we will get from the sale will be able to benefit Tasmania so we can invest in other assets.

Mr BOOTH - The overall sale price will give you enough money to do both you say? So the wagering business in itself will be worth a lot of money?

Mr AIRD - I am not going to be drawn into price or -

Mr BOOTH - No, I am not asking for the price.

Mr AIRD - Obviously if I did not think I could do all that I would not be putting it on the market, would I?

Mr BOOTH - So why didn't you tender out the pokie licence? I mean, if it is a wagering -

Mr BEST - Mr Chairman, relevance.

Mr BOOTH - No, that is a reasonable question. If the pokie licence in fact was not for the benefit of the community, and that money was got by selling the licence, why is it that this wagering business has to be sold off but the pokie licence was given away?

Mr AIRD - It is two totally different -

Mr BOOTH - They are both wagering businesses, aren't they?

Mr AIRD - They are different types of businesses. There are a lot of reasons for renewing a deed - I don't know if you want me to keep on going with this but I am happy to - there are a lot of advantages in having a deed. In fact there is another committee investigating this matter so I don't know if it is entirely reasonable to go into this. The Public Accounts Committee is looking at this, isn't it?

Mr BOOTH - I do not know.

Mr AIRD - As far as I know they are.

Mr BOOTH - You do not want to answer this.

Mr AIRD - No, in any event there can be real advantages in ensuring that you have a strong industry. The fact that you do not have competitive pressure in terms of a deed can lead to advantages to the operator and to the community generally. We are addressing that issue and I will make a further announcement about that tomorrow.

Mr BOOTH - Could you not then extrapolate that to say that the racing industry would have been better off maintaining the TOTE for what it was set up for in the first place, which was to support the racing industry and therefore be able to not have to go to that auction every year for funding through consolidated revenue?

Mr AIRD - The TOTE's business is a wagering business. It has changed dramatically as a business. Only 6.5 per cent of its revenue is generated out of Tasmanian racetrack activity. TOTE has been built up as a large business by virtue of the activities of TOTE as a wagering business, not as a racing services business.

Mr BOOTH - Are you saying TOTE was not set up to look after the racing industry?

Mr AIRD - What I am saying is the nature of the business has changed dramatically and the benefits to the industry have changed dramatically. Under the model we are putting forward they will still have access to sponsorship money at racefields. There was no such thing as racefields before, no such thing; there is a new stream of resources going to the racing board that they would never have had before. We now have Betfair, and they get the benefit of that, so the whole nature of wagering has changed in Tasmania and indeed in Australia.

Mr BOOTH - How would you propose they would be funded beyond the 20 years then?

Mr AIRD - Twenty years seems to me a reasonable threshold. You can put aspects into the deed if you wanted to work out renegotiation renewal clauses. There are ways of doing that if you wanted to.

Mr BOOTH - Is that contemplated?

Mr AIRD - I think there has to be some provision, and I think 20 years is reasonable. Whether you have a renewal period at, say, year 15 or year 10 and then beyond that, the next 10 years, I do not know, but we will certainly be addressing that issue.

CHAIR - If there are no further questions, thank you very much for your attendance. We will move to camera, Treasurer.

Tatts buys Tote Tasmania

Source: Australian
Publication Date: December 2, 2011
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

12/2/11 Australian (Newspaper) 21

News

Copyright © 2011 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Section: Finance

ACQUISITIONS: Tatts Group has agreed to buy the Tasmanian TAB (Tote Tasmania) for $103 million as the company seeks to expand into the state

The acquisition would be funded from existing loan facilities and cash, Melbourne-based Tatts said

Tote Tasmania provides Tatts Group's wagering subsidiary, TattsBet, with access to the Tasmanian racing and sports wagering market

The business would become part of the TattsBet pooling and fixed price wagering systems in Queensland, Northern Territory and South Australia

The transaction is subject to various regulatory approvals, including ACCC approval

Premier Lara Giddings said the transaction was fair and reasonable given the significant commercial risks associated with the business

"This sale is a great outcome for the people of Tasmania and will mean the state will no longer be directly exposed to the significant risks associated with ownership of a betting agency in an increasingly competitive wagering market," Ms Giddings said

The state will also continue to receive the annual wagering levy from Tote of more than $6.5m per annum (indexed to the Hobart CPI)

The Tasmanian Racing Industry funding arrangements will be unaffected by the sale of Tote as there are no direct funding links between the Tote and the Tasmanian Racing Industry. However, as part of the transaction, the state has negotiated an agreement with Tatts to maintain certain service obligations, including the provision of ongoing access to the TattsBet pool, wagering on Tasmanian racing and a free-to-air racing radio service

Ms Giddings said Tatts had a strong track record as a leading wagering and lotteries operator. The transaction is expected to complete by the end of March.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

COMPANY: TATTS GROUP LTD; TATTSBET LTD

INDUSTRY: Entertainment (1EN08); Sports (1SP75); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Telecom Services (1TE09); Casinos (1CA80); Auto Racing (1AU97); Telecom Service Pricing (1TE06); Horse Racing (1HO27); Telecom (1TE27)

REGION: Tasmania (1TA12); Australasia (1AU56); Oceania (1OC40); Australia (1AU55)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Lara Giddings)

EDITION: 1 - All-round Country

WORD COUNT: 274

The West Australian

- Video
- Business
- Sport
- Lifestyle
- Entertainment
- Travel
- Regional
- Announcements
- More

- Latest
- WA
- National
- World
- Full Coverage
- Opinion
- The Digital Edition
- Health
- Festivals
- Place an Ad
- The Game

Trainer warns of TAB sale

Steve Butler - The West Australian on May 22, 2014, 5:25 am

Picture: Hollands Graphics

- SHARE
- TWEET
- WHATSAPP
- EMAIL
- ...

Veteran South Australian racehorse trainer Leon Macdonald has sent warnings of dire consequences to the WA Government if it decides to sell the TAB.

As WA racing officials forged a united front yesterday at Belmont Park, calling on the Government to include them in negotiations on any proposed sale of the valuable utility, Mr Macdonald painted a bleak picture of the fallout from a similar sell-off in the State where he has plied his trade for the past 45 years.

"I'd be saying, 'Just don't do it,'" the Caulfield Cup and Victoria Derby-winning trainer said.

Mr Macdonald said the 2001 sale of the SA TAB for $43.5 million to what was then known as TAB Queensland, had been devastating for the SA industry. TAB sales in Queensland and Tasmania have also caused industry heartache.

"It was detrimental to SA racing, all the profits went to Queensland and it stagnated our prize money," he said.

Rose Bay
3 bedrooms
For Sale View now

---

Cressy
8 bedrooms
For Sale View now

OUR PICKS

Sublaco on its way back from hospo Siberia?

Labor plans 20 per cent cull of high-paid bureaucrats

Fastest Methods to Top-Up Your Qantas Points

finder.com.au Sponsored

Helping kids grow up - not chunk up

Fremantle Woolstores given new lease of life

Peel premiership forces limit on number of AFL players in WAFL finals

WA gas crisis risk in two years

ATO sought early advice on Bell Act

12/8/2016

Trainer warns of TAB sale - The West Australian

"I said to my accountant the other day that I thought there would only be a handful of trainers making a living out of the game here now and he said I was wrong - it was only four."

Branson Speechless: Perth Man Gets Rich In 2 Weeks

True Money Mastery Sponsored

WA Racehorse Trainers Association president Michael Grant told yesterday's meeting that the WA industry was geographically the world's biggest racing jurisdiction and contributed more than $590 million a year to the local economy.

Perth Racing chairman Ted van Heemst said he supported an investigation into selling the TAB but said there was a current information gap which had left the industry "dealing in the dark".

He accused the Government of ignoring a strong contributor to its annual coffers.

Shadow racing and gaming minister Mick Murray said selling the TAB would be akin to killing the goose that is laying the WA racing industry's golden eggs.

The West Australian

SHARE TWEET WHATSAPP EMAIL

Amazing small bathroom designs to inspire

Caroma Anstra... Sponsored

Court rant halts Rod Culleton's bid to stay in Senate

WHAT'S ON IN YOUR AREA

Anyone know a JP?

Garage sale this weekend

Pop-up restaurant this weekend

Clothing charity bin

Big garage sale next weekend

Enter your suburb Find

powered by nabo

FOLLOW US

MORE FROM THE WEST

The Game

Airline Rati...

RECOMMENDED

Woman allegedly 'sexually violated' on Air...

Brilliant new health insurance site sweeping Aus

SPONSORED

Wife rewrites cheating hubby's Tinder profile

Home loans have never been this easy.

AD

End of Life Insurance in Australia

SPONSORED

Impending political outbreak in Italy?

AD

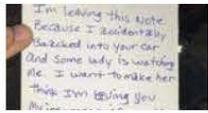

Grandma reunited with long-lost sister who steals...

Get visibility. Automate everything.

AD

Sorry not sorry: Man finds 'savage' note on...

Mortgage Broker Secrets - 4 Things They Will Never...

SPONSORED

powered by plista

AdChoices

Book now from AUD$100/nt!
Use promo code: CITIZEN

BEACH REPUBLIC
KOH SAMUI - THAILAND

Give Feedback

Advertising

Corporate

Subscribe Now

The Game

Contact

FAQs

Editorial Policy

Complaints

Digital Edition

Syndication

Work For Us

Newsletters

BACK TO TOP

LATEST NEWS FROM THE WEST

MP Murray Cowper attacked in car by man with star picket

Liberal MP and ex-cop stunned after man tries to get at him through windscreen.

The new Xbox One S.

The ultimate games and 4K entertainment system is now available to buy for $365RRP for a limited time. 500GB RRP. Actual price set by the retailer.

Xbox One Sponsored

Introducing the new Xbox One S
4K Ultra HD Blu-ray • 4K Video Streaming • HDR

$365 RRP
for a limited time

XBOXONE

Labor plans 20 per cent cull of high-paid bureaucrats

Mark McGowan will today reveal plans to save tens of millions of dollars from the State Budget by culling WA's best-paid bureaucrats.

Peel premiership forces limit on number of AFL players in WAFL finals

Peel Thunder and East Perth have been capped at fielding a maximum 15 AFL-listed players in any WAFL final from next season.

WA gas crisis risk in two years

WA could be hit with a domestic gas supply crunch within two years if there are delays to a processing plant at Chevron's $45 billion Wheatstone LNG project near Onslow.

12/8/2016

Trainer warns of TAB sale - The West Australian

Light plane crashes south of Perth

A light plane with one man on board has crashed at Serpentine Aerodrome in Hopeland after an engine failure, authorities say.

The best eye make-up for your eye colour

Discover the ultimate shades for blue, brown or green eyes.

Ivy College Sponsored

AdChoices

At last, some good news for the Wildcats

The Perth Wildcats have finally received good news on the injury front with Jameel McKay and Matt Knight cleared to play in tomorrow night's clash with Melbourne at Perth Arena.

SHOW ME MORE

Book now from
AUD$100/nt!
Use promo code:
CITIZEN

BEACH REPUBLIC™
KOH SAMUI - THAILAND

POPULAR VIDEOS

British hostage appears in latest Islamic State propaganda video

Vigilante "paedophile hunter" marches man into Taree police station in NSW

Woman falls from second storey while waving goodbye

|                 |                      |                   |                   |                 |                      |                   |  |
|-----------------|----------------------|-------------------|-------------------|-----------------|----------------------|-------------------|--|
| Sydney For Sale | Whitsund... For Sale | Bangalow For Sale | Rose Bay For Sale | Sydney For Sale | Hamilton... For Sale | Richmond For Sale |  |
|-----------------|----------------------|-------------------|-------------------|-----------------|----------------------|-------------------|--|

11

📷 Trainers and breeders fear the racing industry will not survive if indexation of stakes is stopped.

Local sport

Racing reeling after stakes setback

SIMEON THOMAS-WILSON, Mercury

July 11, 2015 12:00am

CUTBACKS to stakes money risk leaving the Tasmanian racing industry on the brink of collapse, leading figures say.

The industry has been rocked by news Racing Minister Jeremy Rockliff will ignore their pleas to continue the indexation of stakes money.

One of the state's top thoroughbred trainers David Brunton said racing could not afford for stakes money to no longer rise in line with CPI.

"If they do that they will kill racing," Mr Brunton said.

Fellow trainer and prominent thoroughbred breeder Graeme McCulloch said there had to be another way savings could be found.

12/12/2018

Racing reeling after stakes setback | The Mercury

"We can't survive on any less than what we've had at the moment ... the industry cannot afford to go backwards," Mr McCulloch said.

Mr Rockliff has reconvened a meeting of the Racing Industry Working Group, which prepared a report into the sustainability of the Tasmanian racing industry, later this month.

Industry sources said he had called the meeting to tell them stakes would not continue to rise with CPI.

The Government has refused to release the report, which is understood to recommend indexation continues.

Mr Rockliff would not directly address the industry's concerns yesterday.

"As I've made clear on numerous occasions, we will not provide additional funding for the industry given the Budget circumstances we inherited and our commitment to reinvesting in health, education and public safety," he said.

"The Government will make an announcement about our response to the well-known challenge the industry is facing later this month."

Mike Jones, treasurer of the Tasmanian Pacing Club and secretary of Light Harness Tasmania, said stakes needed to be increased so the industry could keep up with the yearly rise in costs.

"The industry needs stakes to survive, how can you keep up with your costs?" he said.

Stakes are the lifeblood of racing, an industry that returns $104 million to the Tasmanian economy each year and provides 1000 full-time equivalent jobs.

The former Labor government devised a funding model for racing after its sale of TOTE Tasmania in 2011. The industry had been largely self-funded by TOTE revenues previously.

The central plank of this model is a 20-year funding deed that is indexed annually at a rate of CPI less 1 per cent and is now close to $30 million, and includes a stakes allocation of more than $22 million.

📷 Racing Minister Jeremy Rockliff.

12/12/2016

Racing reeling after stakes setback | The Mercury

But there has been strong evidence to suggest this funding and Tasracing's other revenues are not enough to sustain the industry.

Opposition racing spokesman Scott Bacon said if stakes weren't increased it would be a broken promise by the Government.

"A February 26 press release said 'boosting stakes across all three racing codes will be a priority for a majority Liberal Government, as this is the key to driving growth in the industry'," he said.

"Presumably the Liberals' announcement this month will be an increase in stakes money. Anything else would amount to another broken promise."

A 2013 Tasracing discussion paper identified saving strategies that included not increasing stakes by CPI, reducing feature race stakes and reducing base stakes.

Racing Queensland facing 'financial disaster'

Amy Remeikis

19 comments

SHARE

TWEET

MORE

The state's racing body is standing on the precipice of financial disaster, with Racing Minister Bill Byrne pointing to an "overly optimistic" and even "naive" culture which has left Racing Queensland on track for a $28 million loss.

Mr Byrne said he was not interested in playing "the blame game" and was instead looking at how the industry can move forward.

Racing Minister Bill Byrne and interim Racing Queensland chief executive Ian Hall Photo: Amy Remeikis

The issues were not uncovered until the MacSporran report, which was ordered in the wake of the live-baiting greyhound scandal.

Mr Byrne, who was sworn in as Racing Minister the same day the ABC aired its investigation into live-baiting in the greyhound industry, said he had "no inkling" of any issues until KPMG was sent in.

"And that is one of the reasons perhaps why I am not so inclined to be accusing the previous government of lack of attention here," he said.

MOST POPULAR

- 1 Fire tears through Elanora home
- 2 Boy told friend 'everyone wants me dead' day before suicide
- 3 Koala joeys learn to wrestle at Currumbin Wildlife Sanctuary
- 4 Speed cameras just the ticket for police to ignore the law
- 5 Bunnings shoplifter cops the fine, but gets the girl

12/7/2016

Racing Queensland facing 'financial disaster'

---

PROPERTY NEWS

---

Reservoir: has this up-and-coming ...

Melbourne property: what buyers can get ...

---

FOLLOW WA TODAY

---

"Right up to the point of when Ian [Hall] went into Racing Queensland, I was completely unaware of the financial issues facing Racing Queensland.

"So if there is any upside to the greyhound inquiry, it has revealed these matters to me, which I was completely unaware of."

Opposition spokeswoman on racing Jann Stuckey said the government should be ashamed of the way it had treated Racing Queensland and its former board members.

"Today we hear of a consultation process to get racing back on track, but this is too little too late," Ms Stuckey said.

"... In Parliament today the Minister broadcast a range of accusations about the management practices of RQ yet former members of the board were denied any opportunity to consult the Government on these matters.

"Stakeholders have echoed these sentiments, reading about industry developments in the media because Labor is focussed on tearing down and shaming an entire industry rather than fostering a co-operative environment."

The Crime and Corruption Commission has also been called in to investigate four people over matters involving Racing Queensland.

Mr Byrne would not expand on who was involved or what the investigation was in relation to.

"By process of deduction, people might draw the wrong conclusions," he said.

"Let's just say they are not being referred to CCC for matters associated with tiddly winks. We are talking about substantive serious issues and that is the way they are being treated.

"But it is entirely counter-productive to the interests of the individuals or the interests of anybody else to start naming them or speculating on what the substance [of the allegations are]."

Betting trends moving away from corporate agencies and not planning for wet weather were among the issues which has left Racing Queensland in the red for five successive years, with the majority of its revenue sourced from wagering.

Interim Racing Queensland chief executive Ian Hall said 61 per cent of the body's revenue was spent on prize money.

It would now begin consultation with the industry on how it addressed the issue.

"The plan is over the next three months, we'll have consultation with the industry, get ideas, see what we can do better as an industry," he said.

"To bring the industry together. That seems to be one of the messages I am getting from talking to people, is that the industry hasn't before all got together to work together, they have all had their own particular points of view.

"My intention is to bring the industry together to work through 12/7/2016

Racing Queensland facing 'financial disaster'

this to come up with a solution together.

"The government plans on having its new way forward in place by early next year."

For independent news coverage, be sure to follow our Facebook feed.

EVERY JOB. EVERYWHERE. FOR YOU

Duct Installer
Perth, Perth Region

Seeking Experienced...
Perth, Perth Region

e.g., job, company, title

Please select region

Search jobs on Adzuna

Recommended

|  |  |  |
|--|--|--|
|  Revenge of the poor: for the first time in India, the rich beg the poor to help... WORLD |  This solar plan is smart, flexible and costs nothing upfront. AGL                      |  A Look at What Might Be Driving the ASX for the Rest of the Year AMP CAPITAL            |
|  It took less than two weeks to find a buyer on the Stefanovic-Thorburn... DOMAIN        |  Lawyer stole from plane crash victims' estate QUEENSLAND                             |  Life Insurance for Over-40s: Cheaper than you might think... LIFE INSURANCE COMPARISON |
|  Blue cheese madeleines GOOD FOOD   |  Aussies Born Between 1941 and 1981 Are Eligible for High Paid Surveys SURVEY COMPARE |  Unliveable Box Hill house sells for $4.5 million at auction on super Saturday DOMAIN  |
|  |  |  Mick Gatto selling his palatial house in Melbourne's north east DOMAIN                 |

Recommended by

19 comments

LOG IN TO COMMENT

New User? Sign up

Sort comments by Oldest

12/7/2016

Racing Queensland facing 'financial disaster'

COMPARE & SAVE

Get a better home loan deal
& you could WIN $10,000*

ENTER NOW

Need a Credit Card?
Access exclusive Credit Card offers

COMPARE NOW

Property Investment
Join our property investment hub today

ACCESS NOW

Calculate your borrowing power!
Compare 25+ lenders & find out how much you can afford to borrow

GET STARTED

MOST VIEWED TODAY

QUEENSLAND

Boy told friend 'everyone wants me dead' day before suicide

Fire tears through Elanora home

Speed cameras just the ticket for police to ignore the law

Bunnings shoplifter cops the fine, but gets the girl

The car which led Brisbane detectives to the Ether Man

WA fisheries seize top dollar fishing boat for lobster pot...

Former AFL star Ben Cousins bail delayed for court to hear ex-...

WA's new point-to-point speed cameras could prove pointless on...

'Kangaroo puncher' zookeeper to keep his job

Massive cruise ship docks in Fremantle

'Everywhere I go I have seen the effects of violence': Natasha Stot...

Horror end to Bali trip as Newcastle couple are mowed do...

US tourist killed in lightning strike was on year-long Australian...

NAB's former star's demise now complete

Fresh charges laid against Mosman CEO with double-life

PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

AM Edition
PM Edition
Good Food Guide
Newsletters

WA TODAY

Sitemap
About Us
Contact Us
Advertise With Us
Text Version
Site Accessibility Guide

CLASSIFIEDS

Classifieds & Notices
Cars
Dating
Jobs
Real Estate
Commercial Real Estate
Oneflare
Nabo

OUR SITES

SMH
The Age
AFR.com
Adzuna
Domain
Drive
RSVP
Essential Baby
Home Price Guide
Weatherzone

WEBSITE FEEDBACK

Member Centre News Store Archive Fairfax Syndication Careers Events Press Council

Copyright © 2016

MARK McGOWAN

MARK McGOWAN

WA LABOR LEADER

Home \(/\)

Racing Queensland 'haemorrhaging funds' under privatised TAB

Wednesday 22 Jul 2015

Fast facts:

- False pre-privatisation funding assumptions have left Racing Queensland in crisis
- Queensland Government has had to intervene to save loss-making racing authority
- Colin Barnett and Treasurer Mike Nahan announced in the 2015-16 State Budget that they will pursue privatisation of WA's TAB

[\(/images/blog/Mick Murray.jpg?zc=2\)](/images/blog/Mick Murray.jpg?zc=2)

The Barnett Government must heed warnings from Queensland about the dire condition of its racing industry under a privatised TAB.

Racing Queensland announced last week it was burdened with "mounting and unsustainable losses" which the Queensland Government blamed on false assumptions about racing funding made pre-privatisation.

Queensland Racing and Gaming Minister Bill Byrne told his state's racing industry last week that pre-privatisation "revenue assumptions from the past were wrong" and "built on rivers of gold that didn't exist".

Racing Queensland, said by Mr Byrne to be "haemorrhaging funds", posted a $12 million loss for 2014-15 and will register a $28 million deficit for 2015-16. Queensland's TAB was privatised in 1999.

Shadow Minister for Racing and Gaming Mick Murray said the Queensland case should act as a stark warning to the Barnett Liberal-National Government that WA's TAB must remain in public hands.

Comments from Shadow Minister for Racing and Gaming Mick Murray:

"I can't imagine a more clear warning about where WA racing may be in 10 or 15 years if Colin Barnett decides to sell the TAB.

"The numbers don't lie and Queensland's Racing and Gaming Minister has now had to intervene to try and restore some sort of workable future for their industry.

"Colin Barnett will be out of public life in 10 or 15 years' time so similarly it would be left to a future minister to clean up any mess he makes of the TAB.

"Former Victorian Premier Jeff Kennett said last year that Victoria had about five years before their industry became completely unsustainable and now we have an even more blunt warning from Queensland.

"This development will make it very difficult for the WA racing industry and race followers to have any faith in any assurances the Barnett Government makes about industry funding under privatisation,

"The WA racing industry is universally opposed to privatising the TAB and it is only because of the Barnett Government's disastrous, self-inflicted financial situation that we are seeing the TAB put up for sale."

Newsletter Signup

Full Name

Email Address

General Updates  Regional Newsletter

SIGNUP

Latest Video (<http://youtu.be/S3wu0W92aMk>)

Only Labor will build METRONET

Instagram

---

Search this site

Fears Tasmanian racing professionals will leave state after Government delivers blow to prize money

By Ellen Coulter

Updated Sun 26 Jul 2015, 2:43pm

There are concerns racing industry professionals will leave Tasmania after a decision by the State Government that will result in reduced prize money for the industry.

Under a 20-year funding deed, Tasracing is required to maintain industry prize money in real terms each year.

But the State Government is now removing that indexation requirement, saying the industry needed more flexibility to become sustainable.

Tasracing has proposed spreading the reduction across the three codes, with thoroughbreds losing $1.6 million, harness racing $791,000 and greyhounds $564,000.

The body plans to implement the changes from October but will endeavour to provide a CPI increase to prize money from 2016-17.

Racing Minister Jeremy Rockliff said the industry needed to grow and prosper.

"Unfortunately, the model set up under the previous government was simply not sustainable," he said.

"So we've had to make some difficult decisions to get this racing industry up on a sustainable footing.

"We want a self-sustaining racing industry without having to take money from health and education in order to prop up that industry."

Government has broken its promise, says Opposition

Opposition racing spokesman Scott Bacon said the Liberals promised to increase stakes money before the election.

"And now they've effectively done exactly the opposite," he said.

Mr Rockliff said the previous government relied on band-aid measures to address Tasracing's funding gap, which was $3-5 million.

"I won't wear any criticism at all from the Labor party, who were warned back in 2009 - so, six years ago - that the model that they set up was simply not sustainable," he said.

Light Harness Tasmania secretary Mike Jones said the decision was disappointing.

"This is another blow that's going to really make people sit down and think now, 'Am I getting a fair return for my effort?'" he said.

"I would suspect that people will start to walk away.

"We've only got maybe a dozen professional trainers and they're going to seriously sit down and think, 'How can I survive on this?'"

Topics: government-and-politics, horse-racing, tas

First posted Wed 22 Jul 2015, 9:09pm

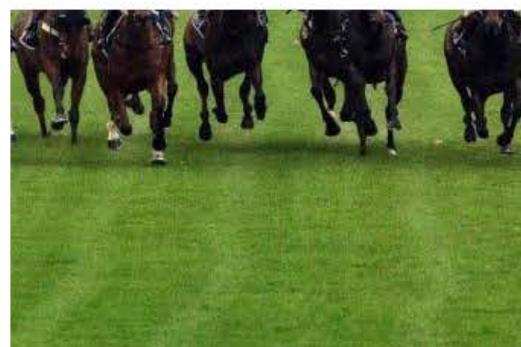

PHOTO: There are fears new rules will prompt racing professionals to quit Tasmania. (Getty Images: Robert Cianflone, file photo)

MAP: TAS

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON
THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA
ACTS

INQUIRY INTO THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA
ACTS

Report No. 2
in the 38th Parliament

2010

---

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

---

Published by the Legislative Assembly, Parliament of Western Australia, Perth, October 2010.

Printed by the Government Printer, State Law Publisher, Western Australia.

Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts

Inquiry into the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts

ISBN: 978-1-921355-99-8

(Series: Western Australia. Parliament. Legislative Assembly. Committees.

Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts. Report 2)

328.365

99-0

Copies available from:

State Law Publisher
10 William Street
PERTH WA 6000

Telephone:

(08) 9321 7688

Facsimile:

(08) 9321 7536

Email:

sales@dpc.wa.gov.au

Copies available on-line:

www.parliament.wa.gov.au

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON
THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA
ACTS

INQUIRY INTO THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA
ACTS

Report No. 2

Presented by:

Mr J.E. McGrath, MLA and Hon A.K. Hayden, MLC

Laid on the Table of the Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council on 14 October 2010

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

|                        |  |
|------------------------|--|
| Chairman        | Mr J.E. McGrath, MLAMember for South Perth                 |
| Deputy Chairman | Hon M.W. Trenorden, MLCMember for Agricultural Region      |
| Members         | Hon M.F. Benson-Lidholm, MLCMember for Agricultural Region |
|                        | Mr J.J.M. Bowler, MLAMember for Kalgoorlie                 |
|                        | Hon A.K. Hayden, MLCMember for East Metropolitan Region    |
|                        | Mr P.B. Watson, MLAMember for Albany                       |

COMMITTEE STAFF

|                                   |                                    |
|-----------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| Principal Research Officer | Ms Dawn Dickinson, BSc (Hons) MURP |
| Research Officer           | Ms Renée Gould, BA GradDipA        |

COMMITTEE ADDRESS

|  |   |
|--|---|
| Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts |   |
| Legislative Assembly   | Tel: (08) 9222 7494   |
| Parliament House   | Fax: (08) 9222 7804   |
| Harvest Terrace  | Email: ddickinson@parliament.wa.gov.au |
| PERTH WA 6000  | Website: www.parliament.wa.gov.au             |

TABLE OF CONTENTS

|   |          |
|---|----------|
| COMMITTEE MEMBERS .....   | i        |
| COMMITTEE STAFF.....  | i        |
| COMMITTEE ADDRESS .....   | i        |
| COMMITTEE’S FUNCTIONS AND POWERS .....  | v        |
| INQUIRY TERMS OF REFERENCE .....  | vii      |
| CHAIRMAN’S FOREWORD.....  | ix       |
| ABBREVIATIONS AND ACRONYMS .....  | xi       |
| GLOSSARY .....  | xiii     |
| EXECUTIVE SUMMARY .....   | xvii     |
| FINDINGS.....   | xxv      |
| RECOMMENDATIONS.....  | xliii    |
| MINISTERIAL RESPONSE.....   | lix      |
| CHAPTER 1 INTRODUCTION.....  | 1 |
| 1.1 BACKGROUND.....   | 1        |
| 1.2 HOW THE INQUIRY WAS CONDUCTED.....  | 3        |
| 1.3 SIGNIFICANCE OF THE INQUIRY.....  | 4        |
| CHAPTER 2 EVALUATING THE NEED FOR THE CONTINUATION OF THE OPERATIONS OF RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA..... | 7 |
| 2.1 INTRODUCTION.....   | 7        |
| 2.2 GOVERNANCE.....   | 7        |
| (a) About governance .....  | 7        |
| (b) Pre-RWWA: A brief history of racing and wagering governance .....   | 11       |
| (c) RWWA governance .....   | 12       |
| (d) Stakeholder views on the current governance of RWWA.....  | 16       |
| (e) Future Considerations: the changing governance landscape of RWWA.....   | 38       |
| 2.3 OBJECTIVES OF RWWA.....   | 42       |
| (a) Background .....  | 42       |
| (b) Establishment of RWWA’s objectives.....   | 42       |
| (c) RWWA’s views on its objectives.....   | 44       |
| (d) Industry views on RWWA’s objectives .....   | 45       |
| (e) Clarifying RWWA’s objectives - why it is important.....   | 49       |
| 2.4 ACCOUNTABILITY.....   | 52       |
| (a) Accountability functions of RWWA.....   | 52       |
| (b) Views on the accountability of RWWA and mechanisms to improve accountability.....                                     | 56       |
| (c) The need for a Statement of Corporate Intent and other accountability mechanisms .....                                | 61       |
| 2.5 APPEALING DECISIONS BY RWWA.....  | 65       |
| (a) Issues.....   | 66       |
| (b) Mechanisms to enhance the appeals process.....  | 70       |
| 2.6 CONSULTATION .....  | 75       |
| (a) Industry views on consultation.....   | 76       |
| (b) Mechanisms to enhance consultation with the industry .....  | 81       |
| 2.7 THE DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS BY RWWA.....  | 86       |
| (a) The effectiveness of RWWA’s funding distribution .....  | 88       |
| (b) Improving the effectiveness of funding distribution - the funding distribution model.....                             | 95       |
| (c) Improving the effectiveness of funding distribution - funding of infrastructure .....                                 | 106      |
| 2.8 TAXATION .....  | 113      |
| (a) Views on taxation.....  | 115      |
| (b) Analysis of taxation matters.....   | 115      |
| 2.9 WAGERING REVENUES.....  | 131      |
| (a) Challenges.....   | 131      |
| (b) Mechanisms to enhance revenues .....  | 134      |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

|                       |  |            |
|-----------------------|--|------------|
| 2.10                  | STRUCTURE AND OWNERSHIP OF RWWA.....   | 144        |
|                       | (a) Views on the structure and ownership of RWWA.....                                    | 144        |
|                       | (b) The structure and ownership of RWWA going forward.....                               | 146        |
| 2.11                  | CONCLUSIONS.....   | 149        |
| CHAPTER 3      | OTHER MATTERS RELEVANT TO THE OPERATION AND EFFECTIVENESS OFTHE ACTS .....   | 151 |
| 3.1                   | INTRODUCTION.....  | 151        |
| 3.2                   | RATINGS/HANDICAPPING SYSTEM FOR HORSE RACING CODES .....                                 | 151        |
|                       | (a) Stakeholder views on ratings/handicapping.....                                       | 151        |
|                       | (b) Mechanisms to improve handicapping in WA.....  | 152        |
| 3.3                   | LIQUOR LICENSING.....  | 154        |
| 3.4                   | THE POWER TO DIRECT RACE CLUBS AND CONDUCT RACING IN EXTRAORDINARYCIRCUMSTANCES..... | 159        |
| 3.5                   | MEETING ALLOCATIONS, RACE PROGRAMMING AND VISION .....                                   | 164        |
| 3.6                   | RESOLVING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST WITH RESPECT TO WAGERING.....                            | 172        |
| 3.7                   | MISCELLANEOUS ADMINISTRATIVE AMENDMENTS TO THE RWWA ACT.....                             | 175        |
| 3.8                   | FUTURE DIRECTIONS FOR THE INDUSTRY .....   | 179        |
|                       | (a) Matters raised by industry participants and stakeholders.....                        | 179        |
|                       | (b) Committee observations.....  | 194        |
| CHAPTER 4      | SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDED LEGISLATIVE AMENDMENTS.....                                | 201 |
| APPENDIX ONE   | .....   | 209 |
|                       | SUBMISSIONS RECEIVED .....   | 209        |
| APPENDIX TWO   | .....   | 213 |
|                       | HEARINGS.....  | 213        |
| APPENDIX THREE | .....   | 219 |
|                       | BRIEFINGS HELD.....  | 219        |
| APPENDIX FOUR  | .....   | 221 |
|                       | LEGISLATION .....  | 221        |
| APPENDIX FIVE  | .....   | 223 |
|                       | INTEGRITY ASSURANCE FRAMEWORK FOR RACING AND WAGERING INWESTERN AUSTRALIA.....       | 223        |
| APPENDIX SIX   | .....   | 225 |
|                       | COMPARISON OF WAGERING TAXATION RATES BY JURISDICTION.....                               | 225        |

COMMITTEE'S FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

Section 122 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 requires a review of the operation and effectiveness of the Act by a Joint Standing Committee of both Houses of Parliament as soon as practicable after 5 years from the Act's commencement. A Joint Standing Committee was established on 24 September 2009 pursuant to Section 122, but also taking into consideration the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003. The Committee's functions and powers were agreed to between the Houses and are reflected in the Terms of Reference that follow.

INQUIRY TERMS OF REFERENCE

- (1) Pursuant to section 122 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003, and also taking into consideration the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 (“the Acts”), a joint standing committee be appointed by the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council.
- (2) The joint standing committee will review the operation and effectiveness of the Acts and is to consider and have regard to -
  - (a) the effectiveness of the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWVA);
  - (b) the need for the continuation of the operations of RWVA; and
  - (c) any other matters that appear to the joint standing committee to be relevant to the operation and effectiveness of these Acts.
- (3) The joint standing committee will consist of three members appointed by the Legislative Assembly and three members appointed by the Legislative Council.
- (4) The standing orders of the Legislative Assembly relating to standing and select committees will be followed as far as they can be applied.
- (5) The committee shall report by 30 June 2010.<sup>1</sup>

---

<sup>1</sup> On 20 May 2010 the Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council agreed to extend the Committee’s reporting date to 15 October 2010.

CHAIRMAN'S FOREWORD

The Racing Industry, in one form or another, has been a part of Western Australia's diverse culture for more than 150 years. From the glitz and glamour of Perth Cup Day, a night at the trots at Gloucester Park, a visit to the greyhounds at Cannington, a day out at a country cup meeting or simply having a bet at the TAB, the excitement of a close finish has always been an attraction to those who participate.

This experience would not be possible without the backing of an industry that contributes significant economic and social benefits to the State. It is an extremely complex industry that requires a huge workforce and input from a diverse range of stakeholders.

Without the effort of trainers, jockeys, drivers, handlers, stewards, tote staff, float drivers, barrier attendants, ambulance officers, veterinarians and a host of other workers, the race-day experience would not be available. The links in the chain extend ever further back, to breeders, primary producers and suppliers of stockfeed, and to those involved in the manufacture of all kinds of racing and wagering equipment.

The racing industry has huge potential, with largely untapped benefits to Western Australian tourism through the promotion of major Perth racing carnivals and country cup meetings that are held across the length and breadth of the State.

For this to happen the industry requires sound administration, the highest integrity and a proper funding model. It also requires a funding source that will enable it to carry out an array of necessary infrastructure projects at racetracks across the State. The recommendations of this report are geared to help the industry achieve these outcomes.

The significance of this Parliamentary Inquiry, of which I am privileged to be chair, is discussed at length in the main body of the report. However, it is fair to say that it has come at a time when the industry is facing challenges that were not foreshadowed when the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 and Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 passed through Parliament.

Since the inception of the Totalisator Agency Board (operated by Racing and Wagering Western Australia since 2003), most of the racing industry's funding has been derived from on and off-course wagering. While in RWWA's early years wagering revenue in this State soared on the back of the mining boom, those increases were soon eroded by the impact of the Global Financial Crisis and an unexpected outbreak of Equine Influenza in the Eastern States of Australia that drastically reduced the number of race meetings.

Other factors to impact on RWWA's revenue stream have been the increased cost of participating in a pool-sharing arrangement with Tabcorp and the introduction of product fees, under which wagering operators are required to pay a fee to race clubs. While this has helped ensure that the integrity of WA's wagering industry remains intact, it is still cost negative to RWWA given that WA is a net importer of "product" from the more populated racing states.

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

---

Meanwhile, corporate bookmakers, having negotiated licenses with the Northern Territory Government at a lower rate of taxation than all other states, continue to substantially increase their share of the wagering/sports betting market. Other forms of internet gambling have also become more popular.

These challenges for RWWA, and others facing the racing industry in general, are all discussed at length in the main body of the report.

The Committee has made a number of recommendations based on evidence and feedback provided by industry stakeholders at hearings and briefings held around the State. The Committee also held briefings in Victoria and Queensland, where information was sought from industry stakeholders and administrators from those states.

On behalf of the Committee I would like to thank all stakeholders for their input to the Inquiry especially members of race clubs across the State, many of whom are volunteers so their time was particularly appreciated.

The board of RWWA and the executive are to be commended for the frank and open way in which they responded to questioning from the Committee and the timely manner in which written information was provided. This enabled the Committee to have a more thorough understanding of the operations of RWWA.

I would like to thank the members of the Committee for the time and effort that they put into the Inquiry. Finally, I would like to thank Ms Dawn Dickinson, Principal Research Officer, and Ms Renée Gould, Research Officer, for their professionalism and commitment to producing this report.

Of course, this report will be judged by the effectiveness with which the State Government responds to the recommendations.

MR J.E. McGRATH, MLA
CHAIRMAN

ABBREVIATIONS AND ACRONYMS

|           |   |
|-----------|---|
| “ACCC”    | Australian Competition and Consumer Commission                  |
| “AGM”     | Annual General Meeting  |
| “AHA”     | Australian Hotels Association                                   |
| “ANAO”    | Australian National Audit Office                                |
| “ASX”     | Australian Securities Exchange                                  |
| “AVGRA”   | Avon Valley Greyhound Racing Association                        |
| “BOTRA”   | Breeders Owners Trainers and Reinspersons Association of WA Inc |
| “CEO”     | Chief Executive Officer   |
| “COAG”    | Council of Australian Governments                               |
| “CRA”     | Country Racing Association                                      |
| “DPMC”    | Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet                    |
| “DRGL”    | Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor                         |
| “DSR”     | Department of Sport and Recreation                              |
| “DTF”     | Department of Treasury and Finance                              |
| “EAC”     | Economic Audit Committee  |
| “EI”      | Equine Influenza  |
| “FOI”     | Freedom of Information  |
| “FOI Act” | Freedom of Information Act 1992                          |
| “FTE”     | Full Time Employee  |
| “GRCG”    | Greyhound Racing Consultative group                             |
| “GTE”     | Government Trading Enterprise                                   |
| “HRCG”    | Harness Racing Consultative Group                               |
| “HROAWA”  | Harness Racing Owners Association of WA Inc                     |
| “IAC”     | Integrity Assurance Committee                                   |
| “OIP”     | Owners Incentive Payment  |
| “RAWG”    | RWWA Animal Welfare Group                                       |

---

 JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

---

|                  |  |
|------------------|--|
| “RBH”            | Ratings Based Handicapping   |
| “RPAT”           | Racing Penalties Appeal Tribunal   |
| “RDT”            | Racecourse Development Trust   |
| “RWWA Act”       | Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003  |
| “RWWA Tax Act”   | Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003  |
| “RWWA”           | Racing and Wagering Western Australia  |
| “SCI”            | Statement of Corporate Intent  |
| “SDP”            | Strategic Development Plan   |
| “SWA”            | Sports Wagering Account  |
| “TAB”            | Totalisator Agency Board   |
| “the Act”        | Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003  |
| “the Acts”       | Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 and the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 |
| “the Committee”  | Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts                         |
| “the Commission” | The Gaming and Wagering Commission   |
| “TRCG”           | Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group   |
| “WABBA”          | West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders Association  |
| “WACHRA”         | Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association  |
| “WAEIIG”         | The Western Australian Equine Influenza Industry Group   |
| “WAGBOTA”        | Western Australian Greyhound Breeders, Owners and Trainers Association   |
| “WAGRA”          | Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association  |
| “WAPTRA”         | Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association  |
| “WAROA”          | Western Australian Racehorse Owners Association  |
| “WARTA”          | Western Australian Racing Trainers Association   |
| “WASBA”          | Western Australian Standard Breeders Association   |
| “WATA”           | Western Australian Trotting Association  |
| “WATC”           | Western Australian Turf Club   |

GLOSSARY

|                                 |  |
|---------------------------------|--|
| “betting exchange”              | means by which parties stake money on opposing outcomes of a future event like a horse race. They differ from traditional forms of wagering in Australia (with bookmakers or totalisators) because customers are able to bet that a particular outcome will or will not occur. That is, a customer can back something to lose. |
| “board”                         | the board of directors of RWWA.  |
| “bookmaker”                     | a person licensed by RWWA to conduct betting on-course; that is, being present at a race meeting.  |
| “CEO”                           | means the person holding the office of chief executive officer of RWWA created under section 20 of the RWWA Act 2003.  |
| “committee”                     | in relation to a racing club, includes the governing body of the club or a body constituted by the club to make determinations on behalf of the club.  |
| “Director”                      | means a director appointed, nominated or selected under section 8 of the RWWA Act 2003.  |
| “eligible person”               | means a person who is eligible to be appointed, nominated or selected as a director of RWWA.   |
| “field”                         | the horses or greyhounds in a race.  |
| “fixed odds wager”              | means a wager where a fixed amount that will be won if the wager is successful is determined before the wager is accepted.   |
| “gambling”                      | means wagering or gaming [definitions below].  |
| “gambling operations”           | the business of RWWA referred to in section 50(1)(b) of the RWWA Act 2003.   |
| “gaming”                        | the playing of a game of chance for winnings, whether any person playing the game is at risk of losing any money or not.   |
| “greyhound racing”              | the racing, in competitive pursuit of an artificial lure, of greyhounds registered with the Australian Stud Book maintained by Greyhounds Australasia or with a registration authority approved by RWWA.   |
| “Government Trading Enterprise” | distinguished from other parts of the public sector by the fact that GTEs charge for the goods and services they provide and are in most cases self-financing.   |
| “Handicapping”                  | where varying amounts of weight are added to an animal prior to a race in an attempt to even out the competition for that race.  |
| “harness racing”                | the racing of horses registered with Harness Racing Australia, or otherwise eligible to race, under the Australian Rules of Harness Racing, and includes pacing and trotting.  |

---

 JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

---

|                         |   |
|-------------------------|---|
| “industry participants” | includes RWWA board members, executive and general employees, breeders, trainers, jockeys, reinspersons, on-course bookmakers, TAB franchisees, PubTAB and ClubTAB licensees, racing clubs and any wagering customer (see punter).  |
| “off-course wager”      | a wager made on a horse or greyhound race; and included in an off-course totalisator, that is made through or with RWWA under the RWWA Act 2003.  |
| “on-course wager”       | wagering through totalisators on racecourses and bookmakers licensed under the Betting Control Act 1954 .  |
| “pari-mutuel”           | see totalisator(tote) wagering.   |
| “principal club”        | Or Principal Racing Authority, is a body, statutory or otherwise, that has the control and general supervision of racing for a code within a State or Territory of Australia.   |
| ‘punter’                | someone who places a bet.   |
| “race”                  | a thoroughbred race, a harness race or a greyhound race.  |
| “racecourse”            | a venue used for races.   |
| “race meeting”          | a meeting at which races are held.  |
| “racing club”           | means a body of persons that promotes or holds, or is formed to promote or hold, a race meeting.  |
| “racing industry”       | the thoroughbred racing industry, the harness racing industry and the greyhound racing industry, associated industries, or any of those industries.   |
| “racing codes”          | Refers to thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing.   |
| “rules of racing”       | rules made under section 45 of the RWWA Act 2003.   |
| “rules of wagering”     | rules made under section 120 of the RWWA Act 2003.  |
| "stewards"              | the persons appointed as such by RWWA who ensure that the Rules of Racing (under section 45 of the RWWA Act 2003) are adhered to. Stewards are responsible for the conduct of race meetings throughout the State in addition to the conduct of all persons registered in varying capacities in the various racing codes.  |
| “the Turner Report”     | In late 2000, the state government initiated a review into the racing industry in Western Australia. The review was conducted by an independent committee chaired by Mr Ray Turner AM and tabled a final report in October 2001. The establishment of RWWA as the governing body for each racing code and the TAB reflected the recommendations of this report. |
| “the Uhrig Report”      | the Review of the Corporate Governance of Statutory Authorities and Office Holder , authored by Mr John Uhrig, AC, was released by the Federal Government on 12 August 2004, and has led to an   |

---

 JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

---

|                               |  |
|-------------------------------|--|
|                               | intensive review process of the governance of approximately 170 statutory authorities and agencies.  |
| “thoroughbred racing”         | means the racing of horses registered with the Registrar of Racehorses, or otherwise eligible to race, under the Australian Rules of Racing.   |
| “totalisator (tote) wagering” | comprises any totalisator pool scheme conducted by RWWA. Bets placed on the Tote form the "pool" so the odds fluctuate as bets are placed (the more a horse is bet on, the lower the dividend). All the money that is wagered is divided up among those who have winning tickets, after taxes and other deductions are made by RWWA. |
| "Warned off" "Warning off"    | A person warned off a racecourse is one who is not permitted to enter a racecourse under the control of RWWA.  |
| “wagering activities”         | Comprises off-course (TAB) wagering in Western Australia; on-course totalisator wagering and fixed odds wagers in relation to races and certain sporting and other events. <sup>2</sup>  |

---

<sup>2</sup> For consistency, wherever possible these definitions are based either on Section 3 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA), Section 3 of the Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987, or from information contained on the RWWA website.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 established Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA) as a statutory authority with roles of governance for the thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing codes and ownership of the principal off-course wagering operator in Western Australia. Until RWWA was established, each racing code was governed by its respective principal club with wagering the responsibility of the Totalisator Agency Board (TAB). Competition for limited funds between codes and the TAB was undermining the viability of the industry thereby prompting the state government in 2000 to initiate a review, eventually leading to the establishment of RWWA in 2003. At the time, the creation of a single controlling body for the three codes was seen to be crucial for overcoming vested interests within the industry. Absorbing the functions of the TAB into RWWA was also viewed as an essential mechanism for achieving greater overall cohesion and a means of enabling the industry to be more self-regulating and capable of achieving long-term viability.

Seven years on from the establishment of RWWA, the Western Australian racing industry's totalisator wagering arm turns over approximately $1.6 billion and continues to support an extensive network of participants directly engaged in the industry (including owners, breeders, trainers, jockeys and bookmakers among others) and in various support services (including veterinary services, farriers, stock feed providers). Each year RWWA has distributed wagering profits to the racing industry in the form of stake money, capital grants, subsidies and participant payments. While annual distributions increased in the years following RWWA's establishment, this has not been the case in the last two years. RWWA, and by extension the industry, is facing a number of challenges including a net increase in wagering product fees and pooling costs, and increased competition for wagering services as a consequence of tax rate disparities between states and the entrance of corporate bookmakers and betting exchanges onto the wagering market.

As required by the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (RWWA Act), the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts ('the Committee') was established on 24 September 2009 to review the operation and effectiveness of the Act. Also included in the scope of the Inquiry was the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 (RWWA Tax Act) which defines the rate of tax payable by RWWA on moneys received by it in respect of wagers made. Although a requirement of legislation, the statutory review is timely given the current challenges confronting the racing industry as it provides a means of ensuring that the Western Australian industry is equipped to address current pressures and is in a strong position going forward. The Committee's Inquiry process involved detailed consideration of submissions made by industry participants and stakeholders, and extensive consultation in the form of public hearings across Western Australia and briefings with racing industry stakeholders in Queensland and Victoria.

Evaluating the need for the continuation of the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia

The main body of this report (Chapter 2) examines the effectiveness of the operations of RWWA and the need for the continuation of the operations of RWWA. The report finds that overall the establishment of RWWA has benefited the industry and RWWA's operations have largely achieved the intended outcomes and have therefore been 'effective'. Further, it is essential for the Western Australian racing industry that the operations of RWWA continue, however, mechanisms are identified throughout the report which are required for RWWA to achieve greater operational effectiveness. The discussion of these mechanisms is structured into a number of major themes which were repeatedly highlighted in evidence to the Inquiry:

Governance (Chapter 2.2)

Governance concerns how an organisation performs its activities within the context of its management, corporate and administration structures, and the policies and strategies used to assist an organisation to achieve probity, openness and accountability. Governance constitutes a significant theme throughout the report since it underpins the success or otherwise of an organisation's activities and is therefore critical to any discussion on operational effectiveness. While there is not a universal model of governance which can be applied to RWWA, the governance functions and powers prescribed by the RWWA Act are assessed against a number of best practice principles which characterise 'good governance'.

The report shows that the majority of industry participants support the whole-of-industry governance approach embodied by RWWA, however operational and structural changes within some components of RWWA's governance structure are necessary. The existing composition of the RWWA board comprising the Chairman appointed by the Minister for Racing and Gaming, three code nominees and four non-code directors is appropriate and should remain. Although some stakeholders argued the contrary, the retention of code representation on the board is justified as it enables the board to understand and effectively respond to the complex needs of the racing industry.

A number of amendments are recommended to the RWWA Act to improve country and wagering representation. In the first instance, it is recommended that Section 8(2) of the RWWA Act is amended to more appropriately capture the requirement for the board to reflect knowledge of, and experience in, country racing. In relation to the latter, a recommendation is made to increase wagering input into the nomination and selection of board members. Additional mechanisms are explored to encourage board renewal over time and ensure that nomination and selection processes continue to capture a high calibre of candidates. Changes to the RWWA Act are recommended to enable a more open, structured and broad selection and nomination process for the board. A more regular renewal of membership on the panel responsible for selecting board members will also contribute to a more robust board nomination and selection process.

A number of mechanisms are also suggested to improve transparency, including amendments to the RWWA Act to delineate the roles of the RWWA board and executive, and require greater disclosure of written delegations by RWWA. A change to the structure of RWWA board committees is recommended to establish a separate risk committee and audit committee which might assist RWWA to become more responsive to changing market conditions. The report also briefly reviews the recommendations of the WA Government's recent Economic Audit Committee Final Report which will be relevant to the future governance of RWWA.

Objectives of RWWA (Chapter 2.3)

Diverse views from industry participants demonstrate that there is ambiguity within the industry surrounding what it is RWWA should be trying to achieve. In the absence of a statement of objectives within the RWWA Act, there is a lack of agreement on RWWA's role although an overriding objective can be inferred by Section 35. An explicit statement of objectives will provide a clear framework within which RWWA can operate and make decisions. An objectives statement should be separate from the administrative day to day functions detailed in Section 35 and it is recommended that a stand alone objective be established within the RWWA Act which builds upon the wording of Section 35(1)(b).

Accountability (Chapter 2.4)

As part of overall governance the examination of accountability focuses on the requirement for RWWA to prepare a Strategic Development Plan and a Statement of Corporate Intent. It is evident that industry participants perceive a lack of transparency with respect to RWWA's decision making processes, which will risk undermining its operational effectiveness unless rectified. Changes to RWWA's practices would assist in this regard, including disclosure by RWWA of its overarching decision making procedures, and facilitation of race clubs' awareness of relative financial performance. Industry participants support RWWA remaining accountable to government and in this regard, it is appropriate for the current level of Ministerial involvement in RWWA's accountability framework to continue. The Strategic Development Plan and Statement of Corporate Intent are critical accountability measures and in order to increase their effectiveness, it is recommended that the RWWA Act be amended to allow the Treasurer to have greater say in the preparation of the draft Strategic Development Plan and that content requirements of both documents be reviewed to ensure that both remain useful to industry, to RWWA, and to the government.

Appealing decisions by RWWA (Chapter 2.5)

While RWWA has primary responsibility for the control, supervision and regulation of the three racing codes as well as prescribed wagering functions in WA, other bodies also play an integrity assurance role with respect to racing and gambling operations in the state and have a bearing on appeals. Greater clarification is required on the part of RWWA and the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor with respect to external appeal pathways available to industry participants since there seems to be a lack of awareness in this regard.

With the exception of matters that are covered by external appeal bodies, RWWA's decisions are otherwise subject to internal review. Small clubs in particular have indicated a sense of powerlessness at not being able to appeal to a body other than RWWA in relation to decisions by RWWA which significantly impact on the viability of a club. This is particularly evident in relation to RWWA's decisions to close the Geraldton Harness Racing Club and reduce meetings at the Mt Barker Turf Club. In terms of enhancing the appeals process, it would not be appropriate to introduce an avenue of appeal to the Minister as this would compromise RWWA's operational independence. More broadly, it is essential that RWWA engages in a more consultative and transparent approach regarding any decisions that will impact significantly on a racing club or code. In relation to the specific instance of RWWA's decisions to close a club or significantly reduce meetings that will affect a club's long-term viability, it is recommended that the RWWA Act is amended to enable clubs to make representation to the RWWA board.

Consultation (Chapter 2.6)

The report reproduces substantial evidence suggesting inadequacies in RWWA's consultation practices. Comments point mainly to a feeling among industry participants of a lack of meaningful input into RWWA's decision making process and that information is provided to industry consultative groups as a fait accompli. RWWA is already making changes to its consultation procedures including the introduction of an outreach program to regional areas and proposals for an AGM-style meeting coupled with an industry-wide conference, which are intended to facilitate greater stakeholder input. These initiatives should be developed and implemented as a priority to raise the standard of consultation, transparency and accountability within the industry. Other mechanisms identified for improving consultation include amending the RWWA Act to enable RWWA to consult more widely, and for representative industry groups to meet prior to consultative group meetings to widely canvass industry issues.

Distribution of Funds (Chapter 2.7)

Sections 105 and 106 of the RWWA Act detail how RWWA is to allocate wagering profits to each of the three racing codes. Until 31 July 2005, Section 105 of the RWWA Act required RWWA to distribute wagering profits to thoroughbred, harness, and greyhound racing in proportions defined in the Act with any profits exceeding $50 million to be distributed at the discretion of RWWA. From 1 August 2006, Section 106 took effect providing RWWA with the discretion to distribute wagering profits among the three codes.

Extensive industry comment is cited in the report highlighting various deficiencies in RWWA's funding model including: meeting fee and stake money discrepancies between metropolitan and non-metropolitan areas; RWWA's suspension of the Owners' Incentive Payment; and distributions that do not reflect contributions to turnover. In relation to RWWA's distribution of capital grants, there is extensive evidence of critical need across the industry for infrastructure funding, a specific subset of which relates to training facilities. While RWWA is in the process of refining its funding distribution model to address certain matters such as meeting fee discrepancies and funding of training facilities, other matters such as differences in basic and feature stake funding remain contentious.

Notwithstanding evidence from certain sectors of the industry suggesting a return to set percentage code distributions, the distribution of funding to the racing codes should not be determined by set percentages prescribed in the RWWA Act. Actual distributions to the codes more closely reflect wagering performance than historical formulae but even so, radical departures have not been made from historical percentages. In keeping with the original intent of the legislation it is important that the Western Australian racing industry has the means to continue to develop and this can best be achieved if RWWA retains the discretion to distribute funds as provided for under Section 106 of the RWWA Act.

RWWA is required to fund infrastructure under the RWWA Act but has largely directed revenues towards increases in race stakes in order to achieve adequate returns to industry participants.

Ageing club infrastructure and a large gap between required and actual infrastructure expenditure means that approximately $70 million is required over the next five years to meet critical infrastructure needs across the racing industry. Government grants alone will not be sufficient to meet all the infrastructure needs and RWWA's capacity to fund infrastructure will continue to be exceeded under current returns from wagering. It is not desirable to reduce stake money levels as this will compromise the ongoing development of the industry and as such, it is essential that the industry receives a guaranteed stream of infrastructure funding. A long-term infrastructure fund to be administered by RWWA is the most suitable mechanism to achieve a sustained funding stream for infrastructure and would be in keeping with RWWA's statutory obligation to fund infrastructure.

Taxation (Chapter 2.8)

Section 102 of the RWWA Act requires RWWA to pay tax on moneys it receives in respect of wagers made in accordance with the RWWA Tax Act. Sections 4 and 5 of the RWWA Tax Act establish the rate of tax for totalisator and fixed odds wagers respectively. The report incorporates evidence from RWWA and industry participants in favour of taxation relief to bring Western Australia in line with other states and to assist RWWA to be more competitive. The report establishes that: it is appropriate for wagering activities to be taxed; that a review of the rates of taxation for totalisator and fixed odds betting is warranted; and that in the long-term, a cooperative national approach to wagering taxation would help to address destructive tax competition between the states. Given that other states around Australia have already committed to reducing rates of taxation on wagering, the Western Australian racing industry cannot remain competitive without a similar reduction. It is recommended that the Minister for Racing and Gaming in conjunction with the Treasurer reviews the rates of tax for totalisator and fixed odds betting in the RWWA Tax Act with a view to enabling RWWA to compete more effectively in the wagering market. It is also recommended that the Minister for Racing and Gaming pursues a coordinated national approach to the taxation of wagering through the appropriate national forum.

The report examines a number of other tax related issues with a view to improving RWWA's operational effectiveness. While scope is identified for a more equitable rate of taxation for on-course totalisator and fixed odds wagering conducted by racing clubs, elsewhere it is appropriate to maintain the status quo, for example, in relation to arrangements for administering the Sports Wagering Account.

Continuing the discussion on a RWWA-administered infrastructure fund, the report establishes that a special purpose account for racing industry infrastructure should be put in place. The infrastructure fund should be funded through a percentage of RWWA's profit margin at a rate sufficient to address critical infrastructure needs. Based on RWWA's estimates for 2009-10, a mandated figure of between 8% and 9% of the profit margin would yield between $13 million and $15 million a year. For this method not to impact adversely on RWWA's distribution to the codes (and stakes in particular), the infrastructure fund could only be established following a reduction in wagering tax, the scale of which would need to be determined as part of the taxation review. The anticipated benefits to the industry of such an infrastructure fund justify this approach especially if sufficient transparency measures can be instituted at the same time. In this regard, it would be appropriate for a forward looking infrastructure plan to be backed up by a legislative requirement to incorporate proposed infrastructure spending in RWWA's Statement of Corporate Intent.

Wagering Revenues (Chapter 2.9)

The importance of RWWA's wagering operations stem from the application of profits to the industry in the form of distributions. The report notes evidence suggesting that RWWA needs to increase its revenues but accepts that programming more race meetings is not the answer from an industry profitability perspective. As well as establishing that taxation rates should be reviewed to ensure that RWWA can compete more effectively with the providers of wagering services in other jurisdictions, the report evaluates stakeholder suggestions for RWWA to broaden its product range and/or expand the wagering distribution network in order to increase revenues. Notwithstanding evidence received to the contrary, it is recommended that virtual racing and Keno should not be expanded into TABs and licensed premises. Further, RWWA would need to prepare a strong case for government to support expansion of its wagering sales network into alternative locations. This report does not investigate the merits of RWWA providing credit to clients. Given the potential risks associated with credit betting however, it is appropriate for this issue to be progressed through the Council of Australian Governments and in the interim, credit betting should not be offered by RWWA.

Structure of RWWA (Chapter 2.10)

The RWWA model of a whole-of-industry governing body with ownership of the TAB is unique in Australia. While privatisation of the TAB has occurred in most other states, there is no long-term benefit for the industry if it happens in Western Australia. Although the governance and ownership of RWWA may be examined as part of a broader state government review in the future, the weight of evidence supports the existing structure and ownership of RWWA under which the one body operates both the wagering arm and racing administration and it is recommended that this continues.

Other matters relevant to the operation and effectiveness of the Acts

Chapter 3 of the report examines other matters relevant to the operation and effectiveness of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts. In relation to racing matters, stakeholder views regarding ratings/handicapping systems for the horseracing codes are briefly examined (Chapter 3.2) with the general consensus being that these systems require review. It is recommended that RWWA reviews ratings/handicapping systems with a view to producing balanced and competitive race fields and to remedy the inequities between city, provincial and country racing for thoroughbred and harness codes.

Liquor licensing requirements are examined (Chapter 3.3) due to extensive evidence from industry participants that this issue is impacting on the functioning and viability of race clubs. The report establishes that past enforcement practices have impacted severely on the viability of major race days in country centres and there is still some evidence of unnecessary compliance demands being placed on race clubs in relation to security at race meetings. It is disappointing also that family events such as the New Year's Eve race meeting at Gloucester Park no longer operate. A more common-sense approach to liquor enforcement activities would be beneficial to race clubs and country communities and it is recommended that the Minister for Racing and Gaming reviews liquor licensing and enforcement requirements for major race meetings.

The report examines a number of RWWA's powers in relation to: directing clubs; racing in extraordinary circumstances (Chapter 3.4); and disciplinary powers (Chapter 3.8(i)). It would improve RWWA's operational effectiveness if the RWWA Act is amended to enable RWWA to direct clubs and allied bodies where there is a severe threat to the welfare of racing, provided clubs may make representation to RWWA in the event of any sanctions being applied for non-compliance. Existing powers under the RWWA Act are sufficient to cover most contingencies from the perspective of ensuring race continuity. It is also important that RWWA, wherever possible, supports the management efforts of all race clubs. Thus an expansion of powers is unnecessary with respect to dissolving club committees, appointing administrators and conducting race meetings in extraordinary circumstances. With respect to disciplinary powers, there is no case for amending Section 34 of the RWWA Act to expand the definition of a person associated with racing. Scope is identified however for amending Section 44 of the RWWA Act and Regulation 72 of the RWWA Regulations in order to clarify RWWA's warning off powers.

Meeting allocation, race programming, and Sky Vision coverage are examined in the context of ensuring the long-term viability of country racing clubs (Chapter 3.5). Country and community race clubs are essential in terms of the social benefits they deliver to their communities and importance for the grass-roots of the industry. Evidence suggests that clubs currently lack sufficient input into the race programming process and receive insufficient notice of race date allocations. While improved consultation processes may address the former, it is recommended that in order to assist clubs with planning for future seasons, RWWA provides them with a more informative programming outline. While it is acknowledged that elements of securing vision coverage are beyond RWWA's control, RWWA should wherever possible assist race clubs to secure Sky Vision access and coverage.

In relation to wagering issues, the report establishes that a conflict of interest exists in RWWA's role as currently legislated since RWWA has prescribed functions which affect the activities of direct competitors in the wagering market (Chapter 3.6). In this respect it is appropriate for any regulatory functions prescribed under Sections 50 and 120 of the RWWA Act which may limit RWWA's ability to conduct a wagering business to be removed and vested with the Gaming and Wagering Commission. The Minister for Racing and Gaming will need to review the most appropriate manner in which this should occur. The report identifies other wagering related matters that RWWA needs to address in order to sustain its retail TAB network including the issue of territorial rights for full retail TAB agents (Chapter 3.8(ii)), and commission rates for full retail TAB agents and ClubTABS/PubTABS (Chapter 3.8(iii)).

The final section of Chapter 3 lists a number of challenges confronting the industry which RWWA will need to monitor and/or address over the coming years to ensure the ongoing prosperity of the industry. Further to stakeholders' concerns already mentioned above in relation to racing and wagering matters, another issue which RWWA will need to give due consideration to is Racing Radio (Chapter 3.8(iv)), which is inadequate and a cause of frustration for industry participants. Animal welfare issues (Chapter 3.8(v)) and breeding incentives (Chapter 3.8(vi)) are also briefly discussed. Committee observations are presented in Chapter 3.8(b) in the context of future directions for the industry. The report presents a brief discussion of the importance of RWWA remaining competitive in a challenging wagering market, racing/training facilities into the future (including the issues of thoroughbred racing/training facilities, metropolitan racetracks, and synthetic tracks), and the benefits of a national totalisator pool.

---

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

---

Reflecting that the primary purpose of this report is to review the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts, Chapter 4 of the report collates all recommended amendments to the RWWA Act and the RWWA Tax Act identified in Chapters 2 and 3 as well as various miscellaneous administrative amendments.

FINDINGS

Page 9

Finding 1

Examining the governance structure of Racing and Wagering Western Australia will help to establish the effectiveness of its operations.

Page 10

Finding 2

There is no single model of good corporate governance that can be applied to Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 14

Finding 3

The Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 prescribes appropriate financial controls upon the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 19

Finding 4

The majority of industry participants support a whole-of-industry governance approach for the racing and wagering industry.

Page 19

Finding 5

There is scope for operational and structural change within some components of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's governance structure.

Page 22

Finding 6

Country racing is integral to the viability of the industry in Western Australia.

Page 23

Finding 7

There is little evidence to show that members of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board are directly engaged with regional and country based stakeholders.

Page 25

Finding 8

There is insufficient country representation at Racing and Wagering Western Australia board level.

Page 25

Finding 9

Section 8(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 does not capture the requisite skills for country and community racing needs to be adequately represented to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board.

Page 27

Finding 10

There is insufficient representation of wagering in the selection of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board.

Page 30

Finding 11

The Committee supports retention of code representation on the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board.

Page 32

Finding 12

The Racing and Wagering Western Australia board should develop an appropriate governance framework to encourage board renewal.

Page 34

Finding 13

It is necessary for the selection and nomination process of board members to be open, structured and appropriately broad to attract a strong calibre of candidates.

Page 36

Finding 14

The role of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board and executive should be clearly delineated and publicly disclosed.

Page 36

Finding 15

Any written delegations pursuant to Section 33(3) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 should be publicly disclosed.

Page 37

Finding 16

The disclosure and explanation of governance principles to stakeholders is essential for good governance to be achieved.

Page 40

Finding 17

There is merit in the establishment of a board Risk Committee separate from the Audit Committee and as board committees in their own right.

Page 42

Finding 18

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should consider the potential or real impact of recommendations in the Western Australian Government's Economic Audit Committee Final Report on its current and future governance arrangements.

Page 50

Finding 19

Industry participants have varied opinions as to what priorities or objectives Racing and Wagering Western Australia should be trying to achieve, which has the potential to impact on the effectiveness of its operations.

Page 50

Finding 20

An explicit statement of objectives for Racing and Wagering Western Australia defined in legislation would provide an effective framework within which it can make decisions to best achieve its long term goals.

Page 56

Finding 21

Racing and Wagering Western Australia is subject to external accountability requirements which involve considerable reporting and administrative demands.

Page 58

Finding 22

Industry participants perceive a lack of transparency with respect to Racing and Wagering Western Australia's decision making processes, which if not addressed as a matter of priority will risk undermining its operational effectiveness.

Page 59

Finding 23

Evidence suggests that in terms of forward planning it would be advantageous if race clubs are made aware of their financial performance compared with other clubs.

Page 61

Finding 24

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should be accountable to government and it is appropriate for the Minister for Racing and Gaming to retain the current level of involvement in the accountability framework.

Page 63

Finding 25

The preparation of a Strategic Development Plan and subsequent tabling of a Statement of Corporate Intent is a necessary accountability measure for Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 68

Finding 26

There is significant industry concern regarding Racing and Wagering Western Australia's decision to close the Geraldton Harness Racing Club, particularly with regard to a perceived lack of consultation, support, and consideration of other pertinent factors.

Page 68

Finding 27

Racing and Wagering Western Australia's failure to negotiate for Sky Vision coverage gave the Geraldton Harness Racing Club no chance to improve its immediate viability.

Page 70

Finding 28

It is critical that Racing and Wagering Western Australia adopts a more consultative and transparent approach regarding any decisions that will impact significantly on a racing club or code.

Page 70

Finding 29

Many small clubs feel powerless at not being able to appeal to a body other than Racing and Wagering Western Australia against a decision by Racing and Wagering Western Australia to reduce a club's meetings or to close a club. This was particularly evident in the cases of the Mt Barker Turf Club and the Geraldton Harness Racing Club.

Page 72

Finding 30

With some exceptions including club closure and reduction in meetings, there are other appeal pathways available for industry participants through bodies including the Racing Penalties Appeals Tribunal and the Gaming and Wagering Commission.

Page 74

Finding 31

Introducing a mechanism of appeal to the Minister would compromise the operational independence of Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 75

Finding 32

Race clubs should have the opportunity to make representations to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board in instances of club closure or a significant reduction in meetings that will affect that club's long-term viability.

Page 81

Finding 33

Racing and Wagering Western Australia presents information to industry consultative groups as a fait accompli.

Page 81

Finding 34

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should provide stakeholders with the opportunity to have input into major decisions that may affect them.

Page 83

Finding 35

There is a need for representative industry groups to meet prior to consultative group meetings so that all major issues concerning the industry can be raised.

Page 93

Finding 36

There is extensive evidence of critical infrastructure need across the racing industry in Western Australia.

Page 98

Finding 37

The disparity in basic and feature stake funding by Racing and Wagering Western Australia of metropolitan, provincial and country race clubs remains contentious.

Page 99

Finding 38

Meeting fee discrepancies between midweek metropolitan race meetings and provincial/country areas remain an issue for Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 100

Finding 39

The Owners' Incentive Payment is important to the sustainability of country racing and should be considered by Racing and Wagering Western Australia in its funding distribution model.

Page 105

Finding 40

The distribution of funding to the racing codes should not be determined by set percentages prescribed in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Page 105

Finding 41

Despite evidence from certain sectors of the industry suggesting a return to set percentage code distributions, the Committee supports continuation of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's discretionary funding model with a view to maintaining the viability of the codes.

Page 110

Finding 42

Government grants alone will not be sufficient to meet all the infrastructure needs of the Western Australian racing industry. A mechanism is required that will enable a more flexible and sustained approach to infrastructure funding.

Page 112

Finding 43

There is overwhelming support for a dedicated racing industry infrastructure fund.

Page 120

Finding 44

The rate of tax applicable to fixed odds betting should be reviewed.

Page 120

Finding 45

Any review of wagering tax should examine rates applicable to both totalisator and fixed odds betting.

Page 120

Finding 46

Given that other states have already committed to reducing rates of taxation on wagering, the Western Australian racing industry cannot remain competitive without a similar reduction.

Page 121

Finding 47

A cooperative national approach by the states and territories to wagering taxation would be beneficial.

Page 122

Finding 48

The basis and rates of wagering taxation cannot be imposed in regulation and must remain within the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003.

Page 123

Finding 49

The principle of equitable taxation rates for on-course totalisator and fixed odds wagering conducted by racing clubs is supported.

Page 125

Finding 50

Administration of the Sports Wagering Account should continue to be the responsibility of the Gaming and Wagering Commission as per Section 110A of the Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987.

Page 125

Finding 51

It would not be appropriate for Racing and Wagering Western Australia's payments of wagering tax on sporting events and payments to the Sports Wagering Account to be combined into a single payment.

Page 130

Finding 52

Provided the rate of wagering tax is reduced, a special purpose account for racing industry infrastructure should be put in place.

Page 130

Finding 53

The infrastructure fund should be funded through a percentage of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's profit margin at a rate sufficient to address critical infrastructure needs. Based on Racing and Wagering Western Australia estimates for 2009-10, a mandated figure of between 8% and 9% of the profit margin would yield between $13 million and $15 million a year.

Page 130

Finding 54

Accountability and reporting requirements need to be put in place by Racing and Wagering Western Australia to ensure that funds from the special purpose account are used only for infrastructure.

Page 139

Finding 55

Notwithstanding evidence received by the Committee (including Racing and Wagering Western Australia) supporting the expansion of virtual racing and/or Keno into TABs and licensed premises, the Committee finds no case for expansion.

Page 139

Finding 56

Racing and Wagering Western Australia would need to prepare a strong case for government to support expansion of its wagering sales network into alternative locations such as newsagencies and popular retail areas. Any expansion would impact on existing TAB outlets.

Page 140

Finding 57

The principle of allowing Racing and Wagering Western Australia to offer wagering services through electronic agents is supported.

Page 142

Finding 58

The Committee received evidence that Racing and Wagering Western Australia should offer credit betting facilities. Credit betting is to be considered by the Council of Australian Governments.

Page 143

Finding 59

The use of debit and/or credit cards for wagering transactions cannot be supported.

Page 148

Finding 60

While privatisation of the TAB has occurred in most other states, there is no long-term benefit for the industry in Western Australia. There is extensive industry support for the existing structure and wagering ownership arrangements under Racing and Wagering Western Australia to continue.

Page 150

Finding 61

Overall, the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia have been effective but the mechanisms identified here will contribute to greater effectiveness.

Page 150

Finding 62

It is essential for the Western Australian racing industry that the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia continue.

Page 150

Finding 63

Another review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 may be required in the future with any such timing to be determined by the responsible Minister.

Page 157

Finding 64

Past practices with regard to liquor licensing enforcement have impacted severely on the viability of major race days in country centres.

Page 157

Finding 65

It is extremely disappointing that family events such as the New Year's Eve meeting at Gloucester Park no longer operate.

Page 157

Finding 66

A more common-sense approach to liquor enforcement activities would be beneficial to race clubs and country communities.

Page 157

Finding 67

Evidence suggested that where clubs have been able to negotiate satisfactorily with local police, more appropriate outcomes were achieved.

Page 161

Finding 68

Racing and Wagering Western Australia currently has limited powers in situations where a race club is unable to conduct its affairs.

Page 162

Finding 69

It is imperative that Racing and Wagering Western Australia supports the management efforts of race clubs to sustain their own ability to effectively exercise their functions.

Page 163

Finding 70

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should not conduct race meetings on its own behalf.

Page 164

Finding 71

It would not be appropriate for Racing and Wagering Western Australia to have powers to dissolve a club committee, appoint administrators or conduct race meetings in extraordinary circumstances.

Page 166

Finding 72

The long-term continuity of country racing clubs is essential for the industry, hence race programming and Sky Vision coverage are important factors for these clubs to remain viable.

Page 168

Finding 73

Evidence from racing industry participants suggests that clubs currently lack sufficient input into the race programming process.

Page 168

Finding 74

Improvements to Racing and Wagering Western Australia's overall consultation processes will assist in relation to race programming issues.

Page 169

Finding 75

More timely notice from Racing and Wagering Western Australia of race date allocations would assist clubs with their planning for race meetings, including the securing of sponsorship.

Page 171

Finding 76

It is important that Sky Vision coverage is maximised to as many country race clubs as possible.

Page 173

Finding 77

There is a conflict of interest in Racing and Wagering Western Australia's role in regard to wagering as it is currently prescribed in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Page 174

Finding 78

Any regulatory function prescribed under Section 50 or Section 120 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 that may limit Racing and Wagering Western Australia's ability to carry on a wagering business should be removed from the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Page 174

Finding 79

It is appropriate that the Gaming and Wagering Commission, with the approval of the Minister for Racing and Gaming, assumes responsibility for performing any regulatory functions in relation to wagering that are removed from Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 176

Finding 80

Existing Freedom of Information provisions are appropriate and additional protections for Racing and Wagering Western Australia are not warranted.

Page 177

Finding 81

It is important that the legal implications of repealing Racing and Wagering Western Australia's requirement for a common seal under Section 118 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 are understood before the matter is progressed.

Page 180

Finding 82

Maintaining the integrity of racing activities is crucial for the ongoing viability of the industry.

Page 181

Finding 83

Amending Section 34 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 to include individuals 'with influence on racing activities' is too broad for a determination to be made on its merit. If Racing and Wagering Western Australia wishes to pursue this matter it should present a case to the Minister in regard to the application of this proposed amendment prior to any change being considered.

Page 183

Finding 84

Racing and Wagering Western Australia's disciplinary powers in relation to warning-off should be clarified in legislation and should be reinforced with greater transparency measures.

Page 186

Finding 85

The consultation and communication between Racing and Wagering Western Australia and its (SL1) full retail TAB agents should identify potential opportunities and incentives for the continued business development of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia retail TAB network.

Page 188

Finding 86

Racing Radio coverage is a very important service to industry participants throughout the state and evidence suggested that current coverage is inadequate and a cause of frustration for industry participants.

Page 190

Finding 87

Racing and Wagering Western Australia must make every effort to broadcast local racing product on the racing radio network.

Page 194

Finding 88

It is important that Racing and Wagering Western Australia supports a vibrant and sustainable breeding industry across all racing codes.

Page 197

Finding 89

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should take a long-term approach to the provision of training facilities for the metropolitan area.

Page 198

Finding 90

The current level of racing within the metropolitan area warrants the continuation of two thoroughbred racetracks.

Page 198

Finding 91

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should work with the Western Australian Trotting Association to ensure that the harness racing industry has the best possible facility for metropolitan racing.

Page 199

Finding 92

The introduction of a national totalisator pool would be beneficial for Western Australia.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Page 25

Recommendation 1

That Section 8(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to replace 'regional development' with 'country racing' to more appropriately capture the requirement for knowledge of, and experience in, country racing.

Page 25

Recommendation 2

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia implements a structure under which regional and country clubs will have formal access to the administration through existing or new regional and industry groupings.

Page 27

Recommendation 3

That the Western Australian TAB Agents' Association be represented in the nomination and selection of board members with respect to Section 8(1)(e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Page 33

Recommendation 4

That Section 12 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to stipulate that the process by which eligible bodies are to be determined, and the publication of eligible bodies be specified in regulation.

Page 34

Recommendation 5

That pursuant to Section 9 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 the Minister for Racing and Gaming clarifies the nomination and selection procedures for directors to include:

- that any pending board vacancy be advertised widely; and
- that all clubs and industry associations be given notice through appropriate mediums of pending board vacancies to be distributed to their members; and
- that individual candidates are able to nominate themselves for consideration for the position of director under section 8(1)(b), (c) or (d) or section 8(1)(e) of the Act.

Page 34

Recommendation 6

That any member of the selection panel nominated under section 11(2)(c), (d) or (e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 should not be eligible to stand for consecutive terms under section 11(8) of the Act.

Page 36

Recommendation 7

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia should delineate and publicly disclose the role of the board and executive and disclose any written delegations pursuant to Section 33(3) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Page 36

Recommendation 8

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to insert a clause explicitly preventing the same individual from holding the positions of Chief Executive Officer and Chair of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board concurrently.

Page 38

Recommendation 9

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia clarifies and publicly discloses any governance procedures that it has in place.

Page 40

Recommendation 10

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia, pursuant to Section 16 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003, reviews the committee framework of the board to establish whether a board risk committee separate from the audit committee would be beneficial to its operations.

Page 51

Recommendation 11

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to insert the following specific statement of objective for Racing and Wagering Western Australia in relation to racing in general:

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia is to foster the development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred racing, harness racing and greyhound racing. In undertaking these objectives, Racing and Wagering Western Australia is to recognise the unique characteristics of each racing code so as to maximise the sustainability of racing in Western Australia.

Page 59

Recommendation 12

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia publicly discloses its overarching decision making procedures to provide greater transparency to the industry.

Page 59

Recommendation 13

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia introduces transparency measures to facilitate greater awareness among race clubs of relative financial performance.

Page 64

Recommendation 14

That, in order to expedite the approval process of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's Strategic Development Plan, Section 74 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to allow the Treasurer to impose some direction on the draft Strategic Development Plan.

Page 65

Recommendation 15

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming reviews the content requirements of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's Strategic Development Plan and Statement of Corporate Intent.

Page 65

Recommendation 16

That content requirements of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's Strategic Development Plan and Statement of Corporate Intent be specified in regulation.

Page 65

Recommendation 17

That section 85 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a reasonable timeframe within which notice of financial difficulty must be given by Racing and Wagering Western Australia to the Minister.

Page 72

Recommendation 18

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia, in conjunction with the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, publishes guidance material for racing industry stakeholders and participants on how to lodge complaints and/or appeals.

Page 75

Recommendation 19

That appeals to the Minister against Racing and Wagering Western Australia board decisions should not be established.

Page 75

Recommendation 20

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a new provision for a club to make representations to the board in instances of club closure or a significant reduction in meetings that will affect a club's long-term viability.

Page 84

Recommendation 21

That Section 82 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the statement that nothing in Section 82(2) precludes Racing and Wagering Western Australia from consulting outside of the prescribed bodies in relation to the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia or a subsidiary.

Page 85

Recommendation 22

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia makes its consultation procedures widely known throughout the industry.

Page 86

Recommendation 23

That as a priority, Racing and Wagering Western Australia continues to develop and implement the following changes to the way it consults with stakeholders:

1. an outreach program to regional areas;
2. the convening of an Annual General Meeting; combined with
3. the establishment of an industry wide conference.

Page 99

Recommendation 24

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia resolves meeting fee discrepancies within its funding distribution model as a matter of priority.

Page 106

Recommendation 25

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to delete Section 105 and that consequential amendments be made to remove references to Section 105.

Page 112

Recommendation 26

That a dedicated racing industry infrastructure fund, to be administered by Racing and Wagering Western Australia, is established.

Page 121

Recommendation 27

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming in conjunction with the Treasurer reviews the rates of tax for totalisator wagers and fixed odds wagers in sections 4 and 5 respectively of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 with a view to enabling Racing and Wagering Western Australia to compete more effectively.

Page 121

Recommendation 28

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming pursues a coordinated national approach to wagering taxation through the appropriate Council of Australian Governments forum.

Page 130

Recommendation 29

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to establish a special purpose account for the infrastructure fund.

Page 130

Recommendation 30

That the percentage of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's profits, fixed by regulation at a rate sufficient to address critical infrastructure needs is quarantined annually into the infrastructure fund.

Page 131

Recommendation 31

That Section 77(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to require the inclusion of proposed infrastructure spending in the Statement of Corporate Intent for Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 139

Recommendation 32

That virtual racing and Keno should not be expanded to TABs and licensed premises.

Page 140

Recommendation 33

That Section 63 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to enable Racing and Wagering Western Australia to offer wagering services through electronic agents.

Page 149

Recommendation 34

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia continues to operate as a statutory authority with roles of governance for all three racing codes and ownership of the principal off-course TAB business in Western Australia.

Page 153

Recommendation 35

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia reviews, in consultation with the Thoroughbred and Harness Racing Consultative Groups, the ratings/handicapping systems for each code, with a view to producing balanced and competitive race fields; and to address the perceived handicapping inequities between city, provincial and country racing.

Page 159

Recommendation 36

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming urgently reviews liquor licensing and enforcement requirements for major race meetings.

Page 161

Recommendation 37

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the power for Racing and Wagering Western Australia to direct clubs and allied bodies where there is a severe threat to the welfare of racing.

Page 161

Recommendation 38

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to ensure Racing and Wagering Western Australia cannot impose sanctions for not complying with a direction without those clubs and allied bodies first making representation.

Page 169

Recommendation 39

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia prepares a more extensive forward looking plan with indicative race dates in order to assist clubs with planning and provide greater surety to clubs with respect to ongoing survival.

Page 171

Recommendation 40

That wherever possible Racing and Wagering Western Australia should assist race clubs to secure Sky Vision access and coverage.

Page 171

Recommendation 41

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming initiates communications with the Commonwealth Government to expedite the roll-out of the National Broadband Network to race clubs in country Western Australia.

Page 175

Recommendation 42

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming reviews the most appropriate manner in which any prescribed function of Racing and Wagering Western Australia that conflicts with its prescribed functions to carry out its wagering business under Sections 50 and 120 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be removed and subsequently vested with the Gaming and Wagering Commission.

Page 177

Recommendation 43

That Section 118 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove the requirement for a common seal provided alternative document execution requirements can be applied.

Page 178

Recommendation 44

That Section 63 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove references to wagers and payments by letter sent through the post, and that consequential amendments in this regard are made to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003.

Page 178

Recommendation 45

That Section 86 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove any provisions which duplicate the State Records Act 2000.

Page 179

Recommendation 46

That Section 22(3)(a) and (b) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to reflect applicable legislative requirements defining the minimum remuneration and other terms of conditions of employment of staff.

Page 179

Recommendation 47

That Section 3(1) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to replace:

- ‘Australian and New Zealand Greyhound Association’ with ‘Greyhounds Australasia’; and
- ‘Australian Harness Racing Council’ with ‘Harness Racing Australia’.

Page 183

Recommendation 48

That Section 44 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the explicit function to allow Racing and Wagering Western Australia to warn-off, and lift a warning-off, and that this function be carried out in accordance with Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003.

Page 183

Recommendation 49

That consequential amendments be made to Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 including:

- that any warning-off notice must have a prescribed time limit;
- the conditions by which Racing and Wagering Western Australia can impose additional notices; and
- the process by which the recipient can apply to Racing and Wagering Western Australia to have a warning-off notice lifted.

Page 183

Recommendation 50

That section 44(1)(e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a maximum time limit and:

- Any requirement that this section be enacted in accordance with Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 be repealed; and
- New procedures be set out in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 that prescribe the ‘short term’ incidences to which this section should apply.

Page 188

Recommendation 51

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia reviews the commission rates payable to operators of SL1 and SL2 TAB Licences to help ensure the maintenance and potential growth of the retail wagering sales network.

Page 199

Recommendation 52

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia continues to investigate the viability of synthetic tracks for training purposes.

Page 199

Recommendation 53

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming and Racing and Wagering Western Australia pursue any avenue available to achieve a national totalisator pool.

MINISTERIAL RESPONSE

In accordance with Standing Order 277(1) of the Standing Orders of the Legislative Assembly, the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts directs that the Minister for Racing and Gaming and the Treasurer reports to the Assembly as to the action, if any, proposed to be taken by the Government with respect to the recommendations of the Committee.

CHAPTER 1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background

In late 2000, the state government initiated a review into the racing industry in Western Australia. The review was conducted by an independent committee chaired by Mr Ray Turner AM and tabled a final report in October 2001. Included in the recommendations were calls for a whole-of-industry governing body to be established by statute, and for the Totalisator Agency Board (TAB) of Western Australia to be abolished and its functions absorbed by the new governing body.<sup>3</sup> The rationale given for this recommended restructure was as follows:

The framework of governance recommended by the Review Committee is designed to provide the racing industry in Western Australia with greater cohesion and the capability to develop strategic directions. It is also designed to make the industry less directly reliant on Government and more self-regulating. It is hoped that with such a re-orientation it will be better positioned to address issues relating to its long-term viability.<sup>4</sup>

In May 2002, the state government committed to restructuring the governance arrangements of the racing industry. Reflecting the recommendations of the Turner Report, the restructure involved establishing a new body with control of the three racing codes<sup>5</sup> in Western Australia and incorporating the functions of the Western Australian TAB.<sup>6</sup> The Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 ('RWWA Act') commenced operation in the following year. The RWWA Act establishes Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWWA)<sup>7</sup> and defines its functions with respect to racing and gambling.

RWWA's specialised functions in relation to racing are largely defined within Part 4 of the RWWA Act. In summary, these racing related functions can be described as follows:

- Control, supervise and regulate the conduct of thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing in Western Australia, including the responsibility for steward and drug testing activities;
- In conjunction with national rule making authorities, make rules for the conduct of racing in WA and, in all respects, perform the role of principal club;
- Register racing clubs and racing animals and license race meetings, race venues and participants;

<sup>3</sup> Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry. A Report to the Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, October 2001, ppi, 1. Available at: www.rgl.wa.gov.au/ResourceFiles/Publications/Reports/2001/warir-october-2001.pdf Accessed on 25 June 2010.

<sup>4</sup> Ibid., pi.

<sup>5</sup> This refers to thoroughbred, harness, and greyhound racing codes.

<sup>6</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC, Minister for Racing and Gaming, State Government announces reform of WA's racing industry, Media statement, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 21 May 2002.

<sup>7</sup> Section 4 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

- Foster the development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing in the interests of the long term viability of the racing industry in WA;
- Undertake and manage industry strategic planning, promotion, marketing, sponsorship and administration. (Racing clubs will undertake these roles where it is club specific.);
- Supervise racing clubs and their affairs;
- Make loans or grants to racing clubs and allied bodies (for racecourse development purposes);
- Set race dates and determine the race meetings on which RWWA will conduct off-course wagering;
- Undertake handicapping;
- Establish policies for, and manage the provision of, programs for apprenticeship jockey, trainee driver and other industry training requirements (such as stake money levels and race conditions and programs);
- Endeavour to ensure that racing industry issues such as insurance, broadcasting of race meetings and the establishment and maintenance of training facilities are carried out in an appropriate and adequate manner; and
- Liaise with government and other authorities, whether in or out of Western Australia, with respect to, and represent the interests of, the racing industry in WA.<sup>8</sup>

Specialised functions in relation to gambling are defined by Part 5 of the RWWA Act. In summary, these functions include:

- conducting off-course (TAB) wagering in Western Australia;
- conducting on-course totalisator wagering on behalf of racing clubs where engaged to do so;
- ensuring compliance of on-course wagering by bookmakers and racing club totalisators with the Betting Control Act 1954 and rules of wagering;
- setting, accepting and making fixed odds wagers in relation to races and certain sporting and other events;
- making rules relating to on-course totalisator wagering, off-course wagering and fixed odds wagering (with the approval of the Gaming and Wagering Commission); and
- developing and implementing a scheme for the distribution of net profits and negotiating funding arrangements with individual racing clubs.<sup>9</sup>

---

<sup>8</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Responsibilities', 2007. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/responsibilities.html Accessed on 25 June 2010.

<sup>9</sup> Section 50 and Section 120 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA) and Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Legislation and Rules', 2007. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/legislation-and-rules.html Accessed on 25 June 2010.

Section 122 of the RWWA Act requires ‘a review of the operation and effectiveness of [the] Act ... by a Joint Standing Committee of both Houses of Parliament appointed for the purposes of this section as soon as is practicable after the expiration of 5 years from its commencement...’<sup>10</sup> Pursuant to Section 122 of the RWWA Act, the Joint Standing Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts (‘the Committee’) was duly established on 24 September 2009. It should be noted that the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 (‘RWWA Tax Act’) is included in the scope of the Inquiry. This Act defines the rate of tax payable by RWWA on moneys received by it in respect of wagers made.

Although the Committee was required under its terms of reference to report to Parliament by 30 June 2010, the Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council agreed to extend the reporting deadline until mid-October 2010. The extension was granted in May 2010 to allow the Committee extra time to undertake travel for the purpose of consulting with regional stakeholders.

1.2 How the Inquiry was conducted

Advertisements inviting submissions to the Inquiry were placed in The West Australian and The Countryman newspapers on Saturday 24 October 2009 and Thursday 29 October 2009 respectively. Submissions were also invited from RWWA, metropolitan and non-metropolitan thoroughbred, harness, and greyhound racing clubs, racing and wagering industry associations, and other relevant stakeholders.

In total, the Committee received 48 submissions. These are listed in Appendix One. A total of 48 public hearings were conducted in Perth and around the state between 19 February 2010 and 20 August 2010 taking evidence from 111 witnesses. Witnesses who gave evidence at public hearings are detailed in Appendix Two. In addition to public hearings the Committee received 14 briefings. A list of briefings is provided at Appendix Three.

The Committee undertook investigative travel to Queensland and Victoria in April 2010 in order to observe the models of racing administration in these states. Victoria was selected due to its reputation as the leading racing industry in the country. Queensland was nominated due to parallels with the Western Australian industry in terms of geographical spread of clubs and also because governance arrangements for the three racing codes in that state were in the process of reform.<sup>11</sup> Meetings were held with racing industry stakeholders including relevant state government departments and control bodies for the three racing codes. The trip was beneficial as it afforded the Committee an insight into alternative governance models, highlighted valuable initiatives in other states to foster the racing industry, and also restated a number of universal challenges confronting the industry going forward.

The Committee also conducted extensive regional travel around Western Australia between 12 March 2010 and 16 May 2010 for the purpose of conducting public hearings with country and provincial race clubs and industry associations. Hearings were held in: Mt Barker; Albany; Kalgoorlie; York; Northam; Geraldton; Bunbury; Pinjarra; Wagin; Narrogin; and Carnarvon.

---

<sup>10</sup> Section 122(1) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

<sup>11</sup> It should be noted that the three code control bodies in Queensland amalgamated into a single entity, Racing Queensland Limited on 1 July 2010.

It should be noted that the Committee received a number of individual grievances during the course of the Inquiry however these matters have not been pursued except where these have been indicative of a more general issue affecting the industry.

1.3 Significance of the Inquiry

The Inquiry is important not only because it fulfils a requirement of the legislation for a statutory review, but because it presents an opportunity to take stock of the vigour of the racing industry in Western Australia. The recommendations in this Report aim to strengthen the RWWA Act and ensure it is sufficiently well equipped to sustain the industry into the future.

The Western Australian racing industry involves not only direct participants such as owners, breeders, trainers, jockeys, reinspersons, bookmakers and operators of TAB agencies (among others) but an extensive network including: farriers and stock feed providers in the agricultural sector; professional services like land rental and agistment providers in the business sector; track and facilities maintenance providers from within construction and building sectors; equine dental and veterinary services within the community sector and medical doctors and ambulance staff within local health service sectors. The extensive reach of the industry was acknowledged during debate on the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Bill 2003:

It is probably worth reflecting on the number of people and commercial interests involved in the racing industry. I refer to those who breed and maintain gallopers, trotters and dogs, the owners of studs that provide them, and the people who work on studs fencing them and building dog cages. The staff associated with all three codes [are also users of] veterinary services, stockfeed suppliers, freight and transport. The industry employs trainers, strappers, grooms, dog handlers, builders of horse floats, stewards, jockeys, drivers, attendants, ticket sellers and so on.<sup>12</sup>

It was also recognised that ‘the racing industry is worth in excess of $1 billion to the Australian economy’.<sup>13</sup> From a Western Australian perspective, a study completed in 2004<sup>14</sup> estimated that the net income generated by the racing industry in WA was $124 million for the 2002-2003 financial year. This figure increased to approximately $175 million if indirect taxes were included in the estimation, representing 0.21 per cent of Gross State Product.<sup>15</sup> The most recent estimates

<sup>12</sup> Mr J.P.D. Edwards, MLA (Member for Greenough), Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 8 April 2003, p6361.

<sup>13</sup> Ibid.

<sup>14</sup> The Allen Consulting Group and IER Pty. Ltd, Size and Scope of the Western Australian Racing Industry, Perth, July 2004.

<sup>15</sup> The Allen Consulting Group and IER Pty. Ltd, Size and Scope of the Western Australian Racing Industry, Perth, July 2004, p4.

from RWWA indicate that total annual totalisator wagering turnover in Western Australia is approximately $1.6 billion for the 2009/10 financial year.<sup>16</sup>

RWWA has identified a number of significant issues and trends that are placing pressure on the Western Australian industry including a net increase in wagering product fees and pooling costs and increased market pressure as a result of greater interstate competition and the entrance of corporate bookmakers and betting exchanges onto the market.<sup>17</sup> Although the latter are common across Australian jurisdictions, it again reinforces the importance of the Inquiry in terms of ensuring the Western Australian industry has the means to meet current and future challenges.

---

<sup>16</sup> Mr J. Hilton-Barber, General Manager Finance and Business, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Email, 1 October 2010.

<sup>17</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp61-62.

CHAPTER 2 EVALUATING THE NEED FOR THE CONTINUATION OF THE OPERATIONS OF RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA

2.1 Introduction

Evidence received by the Committee in the form of submissions and hearings often linked discussion of the effectiveness of the operations of RWWA and the need for the continuation of the operations of RWWA. Reflecting this interrelationship, this Chapter similarly groups both terms of reference together. In examining the effectiveness of the operations of RWWA, the Committee has adopted the common usage definition of ‘effectiveness’ that is, to ‘produce a desired or intended result’.<sup>18</sup> As such, this Chapter firstly examines whether RWWA’s operations are achieving the intended outcomes. Secondly, the continuing operations of RWWA are evaluated and where it has been identified that operations are suboptimal, mechanisms are suggested to improve effectiveness. This Chapter is structured around a number of major themes which were repeatedly highlighted in evidence to the Inquiry.

2.2 Governance

(a) About governance

(i) Definition

The concept of governance is very broad. There is no universally accepted definition for governance, nor do universal rules and procedures that apply to governance exist. Governance entails what an organisation is trying to achieve and how it attempts to achieve it. It can be seen in how an organisation is managed, its corporate and administration structures, its policies and strategies and the way it deals with its various stakeholders.

The Australian National Audit Office (ANAO) defines governance as ‘the set of responsibilities and practices, policies and procedures, exercised by [an organisation] to provide strategic direction, ensure objectives are achieved, manage risks and use resources responsibly and with accountability’.<sup>19</sup>

---

<sup>18</sup> Oxford Pocket Dictionary of Current English, 1999.

<sup>19</sup> Australian National Audit Office, Implementation of Programme and Policy Initiatives, Better Practice Guide, October 2006, p13. Available at: www.anao.gov.au/uploads/documents/Implementation\_of\_Programme\_and\_Policy\_Initiatives.pdf. Accessed on 30 August 2010.

The Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet (DPMC) defines governance as ‘...the process by which agencies are directed and controlled. It is generally understood to encompass authority, accountability, stewardship, leadership, direction and control’.<sup>20</sup>

Governance also includes concepts of performance—on outcome delivery; and conformance—on meeting legislative and published requirements and community expectations of probity, accountability and openness.<sup>21</sup>

(ii) Why is it important?

The reason governance is important is that good governance helps an organisation achieve its objectives. On the other hand, poor governance can bring about the decline or even demise of an organisation.<sup>22</sup>

Clearly, achieving ‘good governance’ is crucial to an organisation striving to be successful. In turn, good governance is achieved when an organisation’s governance arrangements ensure the success of its activities. To achieve good governance, an organisation must ‘clearly understand what it is required to achieve, will be organised to achieve it through the success of its executive management and will focus on ensuring it achieves its goals’.<sup>23</sup>

The benefits of achieving good governance have received increased focus in the last decade from both private and public organisations seeking better management practices. Governance—and the attainment of good governance, has been at the heart of public sector reform at federal and state levels and is widely recognised as being a key challenge for public sector organisations seeking improvements in the efficiency and capability of their organisation and in affecting public confidence about the integrity of their organisation’s operation.<sup>24</sup>

At the centre of this review is the Committee’s focus on the operational effectiveness of RWWA as the body responsible for the governance of racing and wagering activities in Western Australia. For the Committee to examine if the operational aspects of RWWA are effective, it must consider what it is that RWWA is trying to achieve and how well it is achieving it. This will be established in the following sections by examining the needs and expectations of the industry alongside the governance functions and powers prescribed to RWWA under the RWWA Act; then assessing if the two are suitably compatible to achieve operational effectiveness—or in other words, by assessing if the governance arrangements of RWWA allow good governance to be achieved.

<sup>20</sup> Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet, Requirements for Annual Reports, 23 June 2010, p18. Available at: www.dPMC.gov.au/guidelines/docs/annual\_report\_requirements.pdf. Accessed on 17 August 2010.

<sup>21</sup> Australian National Audit Office, Volumes 1 & 2: Better Practice Guide, 2003, p6. Available at: www.anao.gov.au/uploads/documents/Public\_Sector\_Governance. Accessed on 27 August 2010.

<sup>22</sup> Australian Public Service Commission, Building Better Governance, 2007, p2. Available at: www.apsc.gov.au/publications07/bettergovernance.pdf. Accessed on 4 September 2010.

<sup>23</sup> Department of Communications, Information Technology and the Arts, Review of Corporate Governance of Statutory Authorities and Office Holders, Commonwealth of Australia, Canberra, June 2003, p17.

<sup>24</sup> Australian Public Service Commission, Building Better Governance, 2007. Available at: www.apsc.gov.au/publications07/bettergovernance.pdf. Accessed on 4 September 2010.

Finding 1

Examining the governance structure of Racing and Wagering Western Australia will help to establish the effectiveness of its operations.

(iii) Principles of governance

The Australian Securities Exchange (ASX) convened the ASX Corporate Governance Council in August 2002 and regularly releases updates within their Corporate Governance Principles and Recommendations publication.<sup>25</sup> It is this publication that the ANAO, the DPMC and the WA Public Sector Commission have all used as a key starting point for the developments of their own public sector governance frameworks.

The ASX Principles advocate that there is no one size fits all approach to governance procedures, stating that ‘governance is a dynamic force that keeps evolving’.<sup>26</sup> This is because of the inherent relationship between the specific activities of an organisation and that organisation’s governance procedures. Clearly then, it can be seen that as the activities of an organisation change so then should the governance arrangements that facilitate them. It then also stands that any governance arrangements of an organisation need to be reviewed within a timeframe that adequately reflects the changing environment within which an organisation is operating in. The OECD Principles of Corporate Governance emphasise the evolutionary nature of governance principles and highlight that any principles should ‘be reviewed in light of significant changes in circumstances’.<sup>27</sup> Likewise, in Western Australia, the Public Sector Commission states that, ‘there is an ongoing obligation on [organisations] to monitor and review their systems, practices, and governance framework to ensure that those systems and practices remain relevant and current to the organisation’s situation’.<sup>28</sup>

As such, whilst this review is examining the governance arrangements of RWWA the Committee notes that there is no one best practice model of governance that can be recommended to RWWA. Many of the governance arrangements of RWWA are legislated and therefore fall outside the

<sup>25</sup> The ASX framework comprises 8 core principles of governance—each of equal importance. The ASX clearly articulate that these are ‘best practice’ recommendations only and are not mandatory—encouraging companies to adopt an ‘if not why not’ approach to adopting these principles into existing governance strategies. As these principles relate on the whole to ASX listed companies they will not be discussed in detail here other than as they apply to public sector bodies or as recommendations for further review. For the list and full detail about these 8 Principles please see the ASX Corporate Governance Council website at www.asx.com.au/about/pdf/cg\_principles\_recommendations\_with\_2010\_amendments.pdf

<sup>26</sup> ASX, ‘Corporate Governance Principles and Recommendations with 2010 Amendments, 2nd Edition’, 2007. Available at: www.asx.com.au/about/pdf/cg\_principles\_recommendations\_with\_2010\_amendments.pdf. Accessed on 31 August 2010.

<sup>27</sup> OECD, ‘Principles of Corporate Governance’, 2004. Available at: www.oecd.org/dataoecd/32/18/31557724.pdf Accessed on 2 September 2010.

<sup>28</sup> Public Sector Commission, Principles of Good Corporate Governance for Western Australian Public Sector Boards and Committees, 26 May 2010. Available at: www.publicsector.wa.gov.au/boardsandcommittees/StartHere/Pages/PublicSectorBoardsandGovernance.aspx Accessed on 22 June 2010.

sphere of activity that RWWA can reasonably control on a daily operational basis. Nonetheless, the obligation to review the governance arrangements of RWWA in those areas it can reasonably effect—such as how it is managed, much of its corporate and administration structures, its internal policies and strategies and the way it deals with its various stakeholders—is an ongoing obligation for RWWA in striving to achieve good governance.

Finding 2

There is no single model of good corporate governance that can be applied to Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Whilst specific governance frameworks vary depending on what an organisation is trying to achieve, a few key principles can be found in many ‘good governance’ strategies and utilised to establish a sound governance framework. The following principles are those that the Committee considered during this review based on principles developed by the ANAO<sup>29</sup> and the Public Sector Commission of WA.<sup>30</sup>

- Leadership of the board and executive in achieving an organisation-wide commitment to good governance.
  - This is in part dependent on the control framework prescribed within the legislative framework of RWWA—which for this review entails the RWWA Act 2003 and any other relevant legislation as indicated throughout the report; and
  - the decision making procedures of the board and the financial controls and performance reporting in place.
- Accountability whereby RWWA is responsible for their decisions and actions and submit themselves to the legislated and appropriate ministerial, departmental and public scrutinies.
- Consultation and Transparency with industry participants to ensure:
  - there is confidence in the decision-making processes and actions of RWWA; and
  - that communication is comprehensive, accurate and contains clear information, and
  - any consultation leads to effective and timely action based on transparent procedures.

<sup>29</sup> Australian National Audit Office, Volumes 1 & 2: Better Practice Guide, 2003, p8. Available at: www.apsc.gov.au/publications07/bettergovernance.pdf. Accessed on 4 September 2010.

<sup>30</sup> Public Sector Commission, Principles of Good Corporate Governance for Western Australian Public Sector Boards and Committees, 26 May 2010. Available at: www.publicsector.wa.gov.au/boardsandcommittees/Pages/Default.aspx. Accessed on 22 June 2010.

The accountability and consultation practices of RWWA as an organisation will be examined in detail in subsequent sections of this report.<sup>31</sup> The leadership of the RWWA board is discussed here. In the first instance, the circumstances that led to the formation of RWWA as a single governing body for the racing and wagering industry will be discussed, followed by an examination of RWWA's current governance arrangements—particularly as these are legislated under the RWWA Act. Feedback received by the Committee from industry participants is then examined in relation to the establishment of RWWA as a whole of industry governing body and the operational role of the RWWA board. Mechanisms to improve the governance of RWWA are discussed throughout. It should be noted that the Final Report of the Economic Audit Committee contains a number of recommendations that will capture the overarching governance arrangements of RWWA. These are also briefly examined below.

(b) Pre-RWWA: A brief history of racing and wagering governance

The inception of RWWA in 2003 was a defining point in the governance of the racing and wagering industry in this state. Prior to the establishment of RWWA, racing and wagering did not operate as a coordinated entity. Instead, four separate controlling bodies comprising the three individual racing codes and the TAB each competed for the limited wagering dollar and related funding distributions against the other. The governance of each code resided with the principal club of each racing code<sup>32</sup> and that of wagering activities with the Totalisator Agency Board.

As mentioned briefly above, in 2001 a major review of the industry was conducted by Mr Ray Turner<sup>33</sup> who was recently asked by the Committee to recall his observations of the industry at the time of his review. He noted that:

The principal problem with the industry in Western Australia at the time was the fragmentation of it. It appeared that thoroughbred racing, harness racing and greyhound racing did not get on with each other terribly well. That included the TAB, which [was] seen to be operating in competition with the racing clubs at the time.<sup>34</sup>

The Turner Report determined that the governance arrangements of racing and wagering activities in the state were not effective. According to Mr Turner, 'there was a general feeling that there was disharmony and that no particular authority was supervising [code and TAB] activities'.<sup>35</sup> The review proceeded to recommend that the principal club and controlling authority responsibilities of the three codes and the TAB be formed into one coordinated body—later to become RWWA. Mr Turner informed the Committee that a vital component of this <sup>31</sup> Reference should be made to Chapter 2.4 on Accountability and Chapter 2.6 on Consultation.

<sup>32</sup> The Western Australian Turf Club (WATC), the Western Australian Trotting Association (WATA) and the Western Australian Greyhound Racing Authority (WAGRA) were the three principal clubs for the Thoroughbred, Harness and Greyhound codes respectively.

<sup>33</sup> Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry, report prepared for the Minister of Racing and Gaming by R Turner, A Di Francesco, M Nadebaum, Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, WA, October 2001. This report later became referred to as the Turner Report.

<sup>34</sup> Mr Raymond Turner AM, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p2.

<sup>35</sup> Ibid.

recommendation was to establish the wagering activities of the TAB as part of a single organisation with the racing codes:

It was crucial. The role of the TAB was probably dysfunctional in terms of the interests of industry at the time.<sup>36</sup>

The impetus from this recommendation became the basis of what was to become the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003—the corner stone of which was the governance arrangements of racing and wagering activities in the state:

The intention of establishing Racing and Wagering Western Australia is to move away from vested interests' representation so that RWWA can work at developing a single racing industry on a cooperative rather than a competitive basis with a common goal of developing the racing industry as one.<sup>37</sup>

(c) RWWA governance

As previously noted, governance concerns how an organisation performs activities; the management, corporate and administration structures—and the policies and strategies utilised to assist an organisation to achieve probity, openness and accountability. To be effective, governance must be able to evolve and respond to challenges and must also contribute to stakeholder confidence in an organisation. Consequently, many governance functions cannot be legislated or prescribed. This discussion will therefore largely frame the associated feedback the Committee received from industry stakeholders about the governance arrangements of RWWA. Even so, the overarching structure that allows governance functions to operate within RWWA is examined so that together, the governance structure and the views on the current governance performance of RWWA can be evaluated.

(i) Prescribed governance functions of RWWA

The seminal Uhrig Report<sup>38</sup> into the governance of statutory authorities in Australia argues that the principles of governance concern the ‘arrangements by which owners, or their representatives, delegate and limit power to enhance the entity’s prospects for long-term success’.<sup>39</sup> By this definition, the governance principles surrounding RWWA define how the ‘owners’ of RWWA - the WA Government - delegate and limit the power that RWWA is able to utilise to achieve their objectives. This is a brief examination of the power RWWA is prescribed under the RWWA Act and any other legislation.<sup>40</sup>

<sup>36</sup> Ibid., p6.

<sup>37</sup> Hon. John Kobelke, MLA, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 6 May 2003, p7074.

<sup>38</sup> Refer to the Glossary for information on this report.

<sup>39</sup> Department of Communications, Information Technology and the Arts, Review of Corporate Governance of Statutory Authorities and Office Holders, Commonwealth of Australia, Canberra, June 2003, p21.

<sup>40</sup> A discussion on the objectives of RWWA—which are vital to the good governance of RWWA, are discussed in Chapter 2.3.

(ii) Establishment of RWWA

Statutory authorities are established to undertake functions of government or provide services to the community on behalf of government. Statutory authorities are often established when a degree of operating independence is seen to provide either objectivity or to promote efficiency depending on the nature of the task.<sup>41</sup>

The above quote underpins the rationale behind RWWA being established as a statutory authority. The WA Government has a monopoly on the state's off-course wagering activities, an arrangement that is largely historical—reflecting the policy need to fund the racing industry across Western Australia. At the time of RWWA's establishment, the market conditions allowed for the industry to be maintained if the TAB funding model continued to sustain the industry development policy of the government.<sup>42</sup> In order to achieve this, it was considered that RWWA would need a certain degree of commercial flexibility and independence whilst remaining within the auspices of government.<sup>43</sup>

As such, Part 2, Division 1 of the RWWA Act 2003 establishes RWWA as a:

- body corporate with perpetual succession.<sup>44</sup>

Sections 5 and Section 6 of this Part prescribe that RWWA is not a:

- crown agency; nor a
- public sector body under the Public Sector Management Act 1994.<sup>45</sup>

The reason RWWA was not established as an agent of the crown was to allow for as much competitive neutrality as possible. This is because agents of the crown can be afforded certain exemptions (from land tax for example) that may give a commercial advantage over privately owned bodies. As wagering bodies in other states are privately owned, the legislation was aimed at ensuring that RWWA did not have such a commercial advantage and would operate on a more commercial basis with greater commercial flexibility.<sup>46</sup> It does not however diminish or alter in any way the public nature of RWWA's funds.<sup>47</sup>

<sup>41</sup> Department of Communications, Information Technology and the Arts, Review of Corporate Governance of Statutory Authorities and Office Holders, Commonwealth of Australia, Canberra, June 2003, p30.

<sup>42</sup> Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 2009, p121.

<sup>43</sup> Hon. John Kobelke, MLA, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 6 May 2003, p7075.

<sup>44</sup> Section 4 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>45</sup> Section 5 and Section 6 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>46</sup> Hon. John Kobelke, MLA, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 6 May 2003, p7075.

<sup>47</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010. Refer to Chapter 2.8 (Taxation) for a further discussion on the public nature of funds raised by RWWA.

As such, Section 108 of the RWWA Act prescribes financial controls<sup>48</sup> on RWWA's public funds by determining that RWWA is subject to the provisions of the:

- Financial Management Act 2006; and
- Auditor General Act 2006.

One other determination that places some financial control onto the governance arrangements of RWWA is RWWA's classification as a Government Trading Enterprise (GTE).<sup>49</sup> A GTE is distinguished from other parts of the public sector by the fact that GTEs charge for the goods and services they provide and are in most cases self-financing.<sup>50</sup> RWWA's classification as a GTE has a broad impact on the overall governance arrangements of RWWA and is discussed later in this section.

Finding 3

The Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 prescribes appropriate financial controls upon the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

(iii) Board of Directors

Part 2 Division 2 of the RWWA Act divests primary responsibility for the governance functions of RWWA with the board. At the time RWWA was established, the make up and composition of the board was heavily debated. The resulting structure was considered to be the best structure to enable the board to move away from the separate code and wagering interests that existed prior to establishment.

The board of directors comprises eight members as follows:

- the chairperson of the board who is appointed by the Minister for Racing and Gaming;
- four persons selected for their expertise in management, finance, business, commerce or information technology and at least one of whom must have knowledge of, and experience in, regional development;<sup>51</sup> and
- three persons, one nominated by each of the three racing codes (thoroughbred racing, harness racing, and greyhound racing).<sup>52</sup>

<sup>48</sup> Financial controls impact on good governance and is one of the governance principles under Leadership considered by the Committee and was noted earlier in part (a)(iii) of this Chapter.

<sup>49</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010.

<sup>50</sup> Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 2009, p110.

<sup>51</sup> Section 11 of the Act provides for a selection panel, which is responsible for selecting these four board members.

<sup>52</sup> Section 8 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

RWWA board members hold office for up to three years after which they are eligible for reappointment, renomination or reselection.<sup>53</sup> Since RWWA's establishment, there has been only one change of board membership.<sup>54</sup>

Section 16 of the RWWA Act empowers the board to appoint Committees which may comprise directors of the board or other persons. RWWA has three committees which have 'delegated authority to perform certain functions and exercise powers of the Board',<sup>55</sup> namely the:

- Integrity Assurance Committee (IAC);
- Racing Operations Committee; and
- Executive Committee.

The IAC oversees stewards, drug testing and control, licensing and registration, handicapping, and racing appeals,<sup>56</sup> and also has responsibility for audit and compliance matters including legislative compliance.<sup>57</sup> The Racing Operations Committee oversees the racing functions of RWWA including 'consulting with industry bodies, programming and racing dates, loans, grants and distributions'.<sup>58</sup> The Executive Committee assists with day to day management of RWWA including the implementation of annual Strategic Development Plans.<sup>59</sup>

(iv) Staff

In relation to staff:

- A Chief Executive Officer, appointed by the board, is responsible for the day to day operations of RWWA.<sup>60</sup>
- The board also has responsibility for the engagement and management of staff; including the power to remove, suspend, discipline and terminate the employment of staff.<sup>61</sup>

<sup>53</sup> Schedule 1 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>54</sup> This is discussed in part (d)(iii) of this Chapter (Transparency of board procedures on governance).

<sup>55</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, 12 October 2009, p13. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/rwwa-annual-report-2009.pdf Accessed on 25 June 2010.

<sup>56</sup> Section 49 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>57</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, 12 October 2009, p13. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/rwwa-annual-report-2009.pdf Accessed on 25 June 2010.

<sup>58</sup> Ibid.

<sup>59</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'RWWA's Corporate Governance Disclosure', 2007. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/governance-disclosure.html Accessed on 25 June 2010.

<sup>60</sup> Section 20 and Section 21 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>61</sup> Section 22 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003. The ramifications of this section is discussed in part (d)(iii) of this Chapter (Transparency of board procedures on governance).

(d) Stakeholder views on the current governance of RWWA*(i) Establishment of RWWA as a whole of industry governance body

A number of stakeholders within the racing and wagering industry expressed the opinion that overall the establishment of RWWA as a single governance body was a positive step for the industry.<sup>62</sup> This comment, submitted to the Committee by the Community and Public Sector Union is indicative of some of these stakeholder views:

Having a single governing body enables a coordinated and cohesive approach to the future direction of the racing industry in WA, and facilitates efficiencies that aren't possible by spreading responsibilities across multiple bodies.<sup>63</sup>

WAGRA supported this view, commenting in a hearing that RWWA is a good form of governance, particularly given that the 'task of RWWA is a huge one' because it had to superimpose itself on a structure that ultimately took power from the principal clubs.<sup>64</sup> WAGRA further submitted that it considers RWWA the 'best equipped to administer the future requirements of the racing and wagering industries'.<sup>65</sup>

Mr Colin Bellchambers of the Pinjarra Race Club agreed that RWWA has a difficult task given that interests within the racing industry can often be split. He asserted that the establishment of RWWA as the governing body is probably the equal of, if not superior to many in the nation:

...there is no doubt in my mind that RWWA is as good a controlling body as one could hope for in an industry such as the racing industry, which is divided in many ways. Certainly the structure of RWWA and the way it operates in general, I would say, is superior to controlling bodies that I have dealt with in Tasmania, Victoria or Queensland, for example.<sup>66</sup>

In a joint submission, HROAWA, WASBA and BOTRA noted that although it took some time to transition from the principal club governance model, RWWA is now running the industry effectively.<sup>67</sup>

<sup>62</sup> Submission No. 32 from Bunbury Turf Club, 18 December 2009, p1; Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, 24 December 2009, p1; Submission No. 13 from Mt Barker Turf Club, 30 November 2009, p2; Submission No. 18 from WA Bloodhorse Breeders Association Inc, 8 December 2009, p2.

<sup>63</sup> Submission No. 10 from Community and Public Sector Union/ Civil Service Association of WA, 30 November 2009, p2.

<sup>64</sup> Mr David Simonette, Chief Executive Officer, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p10.

<sup>65</sup> Submission No. 14 from Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, 30 November 2009, p4.

<sup>66</sup> Mr Colin Bellchambers, General Manager, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p5.

<sup>67</sup> Submission No. 29 from Harness Racing Owners Association of WA Inc (HROAWA), the Breeders Owners Trainers and Reinspersons Association of WA Inc (BOTRA), Western Australian Standardbred Breeders Association (WASBA), 15 January 2010, p2.

Mr Steven McGuire of the Kojonup Race Club noted that the independence of RWWA from that of the former principal club model is beneficial for both the integrity and broad operation of the industry.<sup>68</sup> This view was substantiated by the WA Bookmakers' Association, which stated of RWWA that 'their independence from the principal club is and has been of paramount importance to the industry'.<sup>69</sup> The WA Racing Trainers Association agreed that it is the independence of RWWA that has increased veracity of negotiations between clubs and improved the overall standard of racing in the state.<sup>70</sup>

RWWA commented that the whole of industry governance approach established by the RWWA Act has realised four significant improvements in the governance of racing and wagering in Western Australia through the operations of RWWA:

Firstly, the placement of racing industry governance functions with RWWA has resolved the conflicts of interest that arose when the principal racing clubs (WATA, WATC) has responsibility for governance functions... Secondly, The larger scale and resources of RWWA has allowed strategic planning and research to be undertaken at an industry level unattainable by any individual code... Thirdly, the operation of RWWA as the single principal racing authority in Western Australia has enabled a coordinated response to whole-of-industry issues... Fourthly, the critical mass obtained through the combination of the codes has given RWWA increased negotiating power with Sky Channel Pty Ltd (Sky) and increased purchasing power.<sup>71</sup>

A number of stakeholders agreed that the establishment of RWWA as the overarching governing body had been good for the industry with tangible benefits being realised from its formation—but cautioned that with the passing of time a need now exists for some structural or operational changes. Mr John Burt, WATA said, 'the concept and practice [of RWWA] is a perfect model; we just need the edges taken off'.<sup>72</sup>

The Western Australian Country Harness Association (WACHRA) stated that overall, there had been significant improvement in the industry since the formation of RWWA, notably seen through the increases in economic prosperity of clubs, stake money and participants and improved standards of integrity, marketing and promotion. Nonetheless, WACHRA strongly believe RWWA could now deliver better results for all clubs, participants and communities.<sup>73</sup> This view was supported by the Broome Turf Club which suggested that RWWA has now lost direction,<sup>74</sup>

<sup>68</sup> Mr Steven McGuire, Tote Manager, Kojonup Race club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p4.

<sup>69</sup> Submission No. 37 from WA Bookmakers Association, 8 March 2010, p1.

<sup>70</sup> Submission No. 22 from WA Racing Trainers Association, 17 December 2009, pp1-2.

<sup>71</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p34.

<sup>72</sup> Mr John Burt, President, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p7.

<sup>73</sup> Submission No. 32 from Western Australian Country Harness Association, 19 January 2010, p4.

<sup>74</sup> Submission No. 21 from Broome Turf Club, 14 December 2009, p2.

and Mr John Biggs, North Eastern Goldfields Racing Clubs, who contended that whilst the current structure is essentially good—there exists a need for operational change.<sup>75</sup>

Mr David Prance of the Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club posed that the establishment of RWWA as a single governing body was ‘the biggest single improvement in thoroughbred racing and wagering overall’; noting that if the thoroughbred industry had remained under the governance of the WATC the industry would ‘probably be on its knees’. Nonetheless, he noted that despite RWWA being the best possible structure at the time of its formation, a number of years have now passed and it is time for those structures to be reviewed:

I think the overall structure of RWWA, the governing board and the make-up of the board was probably the best starting point at the point of inception. But having moved five to six years on now, that probably is in need of review.<sup>76</sup>

Not all stakeholders agreed that the establishment of RWWA as a whole of industry governance body had been beneficial for the racing and wagering industry—either now or in the past. Narrogin Racing submitted that many governance practices of RWWA have fallen short in achieving a whole of industry approach to governance with regard to addressing the needs and contributions of provincial and country racing to the industry overall:

The industry is in need of a strong, proactive and most importantly unbiased governing body. In its present form, RWWA lacks these qualities...Any governing body must be there for the entire industry (and) RWWA has fallen short in many areas.<sup>77</sup>

The York Racing Club stated that in regard to thoroughbred racing, RWWA have simply imported the procedures of the principal racing club they were meant to replace and have continued to allow that principal club to have considerable influence.<sup>78</sup> The Geraldton Turf Club submitted that, despite being optimistic about the advent of RWWA and actively supporting its establishment at the time, in some cases the industry is worse off in the key areas of governance—accountability, consultation and transparency, than under the WATC.<sup>79</sup>

On balance, most participants in the industry felt the formation of RWWA as a whole-of industry governing body had been beneficial for the industry overall. Nonetheless, evidence has been received by the Committee suggesting that despite the benefits realised by the industry as a direct result of the formation of RWWA, there is scope for operational and structural change within some components of RWWA’s governance structure.

<sup>75</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, North East Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p5.

<sup>76</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past President, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p2.

<sup>77</sup> Submission No. 12 from Narrogin Racing, 30 November 2009, pp8-9.

<sup>78</sup> Submission No. 5 from York Racing (Inc), 26 November 2009, p4.

<sup>79</sup> Submission No. 25 from Geraldton Turf Club, 24 December 2009, p2.

Finding 4

The majority of industry participants support a whole-of-industry governance approach for the racing and wagering industry.

Finding 5

There is scope for operational and structural change within some components of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's governance structure.

The main issues raised with the Committee include: the leadership of the board; industry consultation and transparency of RWWA's operating procedures; and the accountability requirements of RWWA—and are examined in greater detail below.

(ii) Board of Directors

As indicated under the prescribed governance functions of RWWA, the board of directors has the final responsibility for the governance functions of RWWA on behalf of the racing and wagering industry—subsequently the role of the board in relation to governance received significant attention during debate on the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Bill 2003.<sup>80</sup> Likewise, the Committee received feedback on these issues during the course of its review as summarised below.

Board Representation

Of the areas raised by stakeholders expressing concern about the governance of the RWWA board, the issue of representation of the board received the most attention—revolving around the following three issues:

- country representation;
- wagering representation; and
- code representation.

Country representation

The importance of country racing has been a key point raised with the Committee during this Inquiry. The Country Racing Association (CRA) states that 'the grassroots of racing starts in the bush';<sup>81</sup> a view highlighted by Mr John Cowcher, Williams Harness Racing Club, who stated that country racing is essential and without it ‘...the industry is shot. If you keep chipping away at that bottom level, the top level is going to fall down’.<sup>82</sup> The Committee heard evidence that country racing is essential to allow young trainers to enter the industry,<sup>83</sup> and to attract new people into the industry who may later become industry participants in one form or the other:

<sup>80</sup> This primarily concerned the number of code representatives, country representation and the specific skills required for non-code directors and the selection and nomination of directors on the board.

<sup>81</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p2.

When you have racing or trotting within a local community, the community gets behind these horses because they are putting money into the TAB and I think this is what a lot of people do not recognise; not all the good horses—trotters or gallopers—come from the metropolitan area; many of the best horses in this state have come from country areas. When a good horse comes from a country area, the whole of the country is on that horse; it just gives that lift and keeps people involved.<sup>84</sup>

The Committee received evidence to suggest that country racing is not only important to the racing industry but has key social and economic benefits for local communities. The Golden Mile Trotting Club did an independent study and established that the club has a substantial dollar impact on the local community.<sup>85</sup> Ms Lynn Heppell, Mt Barker Turf Club agreed and highlighted the flow-on effect that their race days have on local businesses.<sup>86</sup> Ms Heppell also illustrated the impact race days have on the local charity groups who gain valuable access to fundraising opportunities that they would not otherwise have:

...we also involve other community groups as well such as Sacred Heart Church, which is a Catholic Church. They run the kiosk. It is their fundraising opportunity for the whole year. What they make is their profit. They put that back into the community to help underprivileged people and what other tasks they do. We have Lions operating a train that raises funds for their organisation. Rotary sells ice-creams and drinks. There are other service groups that benefit from the operation of the races as well.<sup>87</sup>

The Pingrup Race Club asserted that their single race day is something they want to retain as it ‘...provides a lot of funds for the community’.<sup>88</sup> The importance of country racing to local communities was summarised well by WACHRA to the effect that RWWA needs to recognise that country clubs operate with minimal financial drawings on the industry; have the capacity and willingness to return sponsorship and surplus funds to participants; consist mostly of volunteers; and that family groups attend country meets as much for the social aspect as for the racing.<sup>89</sup>

<sup>82</sup> Mr John Cowcher, Committee Member, Williams Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p6.

<sup>83</sup> Ibid.

<sup>84</sup> Mrs Rosanne Pimm, Secretary, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p6.

<sup>85</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p5.

<sup>86</sup> Ms Lynn Heppell, Vice President, Mt Barker Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p10.

<sup>87</sup> Ibid.

<sup>88</sup> Mr Alan Smith, Secretary/Treasurer, Pingrup Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p2.

<sup>89</sup> Submission No. 32 from Western Australian Country Harness Association, 19 January 2010, p2.

Mr Matthew Spurr, Wagin Trotting Club said simply, ‘without the trots left in this town, this town will have nothing left; absolutely nothing’.<sup>90</sup>

Representation of country racing is currently encapsulated under Section 8(2) of the RWWA Act which requires that at least one of the non-code directors needs to ‘have knowledge of, and expertise in, regional development’.<sup>91</sup> The ambiguity surrounding the phraseology of ‘regional development’—and if this has adequately captured the level of expertise required for the concerns and needs of country stakeholders to be represented at board level, has been examined by the Committee.

In the first instance, the Committee enquired of Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General of the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor<sup>92</sup> what—if anything—he would change in the RWWA Act. Mr Sargeant highlighted the wording around experience and knowledge in regional development because it was not effective at achieving its purpose.<sup>93</sup> The evidence supports this conclusion as many stakeholders in the country feel they do not have adequate representation at the board level.

Mr David Wrensted of the Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association (WAPTRA) asserted that he felt there was no identifiable country representation on the RWWA board:

...there should be a directly elected country representative. I do think that country clubs and regional clubs need an ear, and I do not think that we have got one at the moment. I think there needs to be a distinctly identifiable regional or country member on the board.<sup>94</sup>

Mr John Biggs, North East Goldfields Racing Clubs had equally strong views about the lack of country representation on the RWWA board. He suggested that this lack of country representation disadvantages country stakeholders:

We are not getting the results that we should be getting and that we deserve, no. I think it comes down to board level where there needs to be more country representation on the board to ensure that country racing gets a proper and decent hearing.<sup>95</sup>

Mr David Prance, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club suggested that there has been an imbalance in country representation from the initial establishment of RWWA and it is time for redress:

---

<sup>90</sup> Mr Matthew Spurr, President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p6.

<sup>91</sup> Section 8(2) Racing and Wagering Act 2003.

<sup>92</sup> It should be noted that the Department had carriage for drafting the original legislation.

<sup>93</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p2.

<sup>94</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Vice Chairman, Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p3.

<sup>95</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, North East Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p7.

I have got a term for it—it is called “metrocentricity”...the focus is on the two metropolitan tracks and the two or three inner provincial tracks. Interest wanes very quickly once you get across the top of the scarp and a bit further south or north to the Geraldtons and Albanys. It is like the old bomb blast and the circles as they go out—the colours just change. You get less impact as you go out.<sup>96</sup>

Mr Prance made the observation that because there are 10 provincial and 41 country thoroughbred tracks, compared to the two tracks run by the single metropolitan club—and given country and provincial tracks outperform either of the Perth tracks singularly in relative terms, it is a reasonable assumption to make that the provincial and country tracks ‘deserve that same level of recognition and representation’ as Perth thoroughbred racing.<sup>97</sup>

Mrs Lesley Solly, Albany Racing concurred with this view by stating that it would help country clubs trying to communicate with RWWA if there was a country person on the board who could communicate the specific needs and requirements of country stakeholders to city based directors:

One of the things that could help with communication would be to have someone on the board who represents provincial country racing...because it is quite different from that of the city. The person could represent the trots, the gallops, the dogs and whatever. It needs someone actually sitting on the board itself so that that person is there to have a say.<sup>98</sup>

It is noteworthy that the representatives of the Albany Racing Club were unaware, until informed by the Committee, that there existed a person representing country interests on the board. They contended that they had never been approached by anyone on the RWWA board suggesting that it was their role to look after the needs of country stakeholders.<sup>99</sup>

This view is expressed by harness racing stakeholders as well, who commented that they have seen very little evidence of any RWWA board members in country areas.<sup>100</sup> Mr Mark Roberts of WACHRA noted that the presence of any RWWA board members in the country was rare—and in conversations with board members on behalf of his members it is clear they ‘do not really understand what the situation is out in the country’.<sup>101</sup>

Finding 6

Country racing is integral to the viability of the industry in Western Australia.

<sup>96</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past President, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p2.

<sup>97</sup> Ibid. p3.

<sup>98</sup> Mrs Lesley Solly, President, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p5.

<sup>99</sup> Ibid.

<sup>100</sup> Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p9.

<sup>101</sup> Mr Mark Roberts, President, Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p3.

Finding 7

There is little evidence to show that members of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board are directly engaged with regional and country based stakeholders.

Mechanisms to Improve Country Representation of the RWWA Board

Mr Brendon Gardiner, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, noted that country harness racing clubs have less say now than they did under the principal club system where country clubs were equitably represented under three district councils of relatively equal meeting size and ‘political clout’. As such, even the smallest clubs had a voice that could potentially be presented to the then governing body, WATA. Due to the break up of the councils and transition to the new club classifications of metropolitan, provincial, country and community, small clubs had lost their voice and as such, Mr Gardiner supported a reintroduction of the district council system.<sup>102</sup>

Mr David Prance, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, suggested an expanded version of these district councils by proposing that a regionalisation model could be applied—across all codes—across country WA. He propounded that the state could be divided up into three regional bodies that would become part of the overall administration of RWWA whereby each regional hub manages the ‘regional’ operations of RWWA for that area—yet would report to and be managed by the overall RWWA executive. This would have the advantage of having someone in the region looking after the region.<sup>103</sup>

A comparable view put to the Committee was the concept of establishing a ‘country liaison position’, again within the administrative auspices of RWWA, whereby the role becomes the main contact conduit for country participants, with the responsibility of ensuring the needs and requirements of country participants become known at a board level. WACHRA submitted that the creation of such a position would provide a vital link between RWWA and registered country clubs and is a model that has been adopted by Harness Racing Victoria.<sup>104</sup>

Yet another variation that has been raised to combat the lack of input country clubs feel they have into the decision making process of the RWWA board is the establishment of an advisory committee that could offer advice directly to the board about matters relating to county racing. Mr David Wrensted, Geraldton Turf Club, suggested that RWWA could utilise the experience of a number of highly focused people within the industry and allow them to have input into the decision making process at RWWA by talking to the board about ‘how they see the industry going forward’.<sup>105</sup>

<sup>102</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary/Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, pp9-10.

<sup>103</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past President, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p10.

<sup>104</sup> Submission No 32 from Western Australian Country Harness Association, 19 January 2010, p3.

Mr Evan Spencer, Golden Mile Trotting Club, recommended that any model adopted to drive regional representation must have the notion of regional unity at its core. He suggested that this could either be based on a regional council model, or be provided by an advisory body to RWWA that supports a regional approach—contending that either approach will work depending on the ‘quality and contribution of those groups and their abilities to listen [to each other]’.<sup>106</sup>

As a result of the evidence received, the Committee acknowledges the lack of representation of provincial and country racing on the RWWA board. It further acknowledges that Section 8(2) of the RWWA Act does not adequately reflect the skills required for the requirements of country and community racing to be represented to the RWWA board.

Whilst the Committee is of the opinion that it is important to have the requirements of country and provincial racing considered at a board level, in the absence of a detailed investigation the Committee cannot recommend amendment to Section 8(1) to include another nomination to the board in the form of a dedicated country representative.<sup>107</sup>

The Committee does recommend however that Section 8(2) be amended to more appropriately capture the skills required for a board nominee to possess knowledge of, and experience in, country racing. Because many of the issues associated with country racing are inherently distinct from those of the major provincial and metropolitan clubs, and many of these issues are non-code specific, the Committee is of the opinion that it is appropriate to insert the word ‘country racing’ instead of regional development as the Act currently prescribes.

During the course of its Inquiry the Committee witnessed sizeable variation between the needs and requirements of individual country and community racing clubs.<sup>108</sup> It has also witnessed certain commonalities between country and community clubs within a particular region or group—and heard about particular governance strategies that may address these issues. The Committee acknowledges that RWWA is overcoming significant challenges in effectively administering such a diverse group of racing clubs. Nonetheless, the Committee finds that the issues surrounding the effective governance of country and community racing clubs should be reviewed to take into account the issues surrounding the regionalisation of some of RWWA’s administrative functions as they apply to country and community racing clubs.

<sup>105</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Vice Chairman, Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p10.

<sup>106</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p5.

<sup>107</sup> The Committee has not examined what effect this crucial change in governance would have on the operations of the broader industry.

<sup>108</sup> Some of the reasons for this distinction may be geographical considerations, local population, access to services, prevalence of volunteerism or degree of local community support for a racing club—to name just a few. These issues were observed or discussed during the Committee visits to Country and Community Racing Clubs around the State and were seen to vary from club to club. They are not appropriate for individual review of comment in this report. They did nonetheless inform the Committee and enable it to capture as many of the common issues as is practicable throughout the body of this review.

Finding 8

There is insufficient country representation at Racing and Wagering Western Australia board level.

Finding 9

Section 8(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 does not capture the requisite skills for country and community racing needs to be adequately represented to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board.

Recommendation 1

That Section 8(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to replace 'regional development' with 'country racing' to more appropriately capture the requirement for knowledge of, and experience in, country racing.

Recommendation 2

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia implements a structure under which regional and country clubs will have formal access to the administration through existing or new regional and industry groupings.

Wagering representation

The Committee received feedback from a number of off-course wagering operators concerned about the current lack of wagering representation at board level. The RWWA Act does not provide for an eligible wagering body to directly nominate a member to the board;<sup>109</sup> nor is there any requirement for board members to possess knowledge or experience in off-course wagering.<sup>110</sup> Further, eligible wagering bodies do not have any prescribed operation in regard to the direct nomination of members that will comprise the selection panel for the purposes of Section 8(1)(e).<sup>111</sup> There is some indirect opportunity for wagering interests to be involved in this process by virtue of the WA Bookmakers' Association being named an eligible thoroughbred racing body. As such, it will contribute to the nomination of one person onto the five person selection panel.<sup>112</sup> In practice, this currently enables the WA Bookmakers' Association, as the only wagering body, to have one vote in eight—of a simple majority vote—to nominate this representative onto the selection panel.

<sup>109</sup> Whereas each code is able to nominate a representative directly onto the board.

<sup>110</sup> This is in the context as that similarly prescribed under Section 8(2) for country representation.

<sup>111</sup> Each code is able to nominate a representative directly onto the selection panel.

The argument posed by the off-course wagering stakeholders rests on the following simple tenets:

- The retail wagering component contributes substantially to the operations of RWWA; Retail off-course wagering accounts for 84% of RWWA turnover; the retail network comprises 92 dedicated full time shops, 188 PubTABs and 31 self-service outlets; wagering turnover has been steadily increasing and was up 5.7% in the 2008/09 financial year.<sup>113</sup>
- Retail wagering is structurally hampered from having influence over any decisions, strategies or future planning of RWWA and must rely on the goodwill of the board to exert any influence over the industry that they are a major contributor too.

The WA TAB Agents' Association submitted the following to the Committee, summing up the major concerns put forward by wagering stakeholders.

The current structure in the Act gives emphasis to racing and reserves three positions for other expertise relevant to the Board's functions. Agents believe that with the current challenges from competitors in the retail component of the business, the argument for a greater dedicated recognition of wagering at Board level is strong. Experience has shown that Agents are completely reliant on the good will of RWWA management to put their case on issues to the Board...Agents argue that the turnover figures ...are a substantial component of RWWA's operations. Their representation on (and [lack of] access to) the ultimate decision making entity does not reflect their role in the business and ought to be addressed. The appropriate measure would be for representation at Board level.<sup>114</sup>

When asked to elaborate on this, Mr Ken Trainer of the WA TAB Agents' Association reiterated that the wagering retail component is structurally removed from any decision making process within RWWA. The only access is through the TAB Agents advisory board—which as the name suggests is advisory 'and nothing more' and comprises four elected people. He noted that the experience of this advisory board has been that it is extremely difficult to raise issues to a senior executive or board level. Furthermore, any view put forward by the advisory board to RWWA must be a cooperative one and 'there is no independent capacity in that regard'.<sup>115</sup>

Mr Timothy Barnes of the Morley TAB stated that whilst he recognised that large boards are not always preferable, it would be good if the wagering interests of the industry were represented at a

<sup>112</sup> Specific eligible racing bodies are not prescribed under the RWWA Act but are determined by RWWA.

<sup>113</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, RWWA, p27.

<sup>114</sup> Submission No. 8 from the WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p11.

<sup>115</sup> Mr Kenneth Trainer, WA TAB Agents' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, pp14-15.

board level.<sup>116</sup> Mr Wayne Barnes, also of Morley TAB, stated that given so much of the money for the industry flows through the TAB agencies, it would be reasonable for the agencies to have a voice on the board.<sup>117</sup>

Mechanisms to Improve Wagering Representation of the RWWA Board

At present, the only wagering representation involved in the selection and nomination of a RWWA director comprises the WA Bookmakers Association. As an eligible thoroughbred racing body, WABA has a vote with respect to the thoroughbred nominee on the board, and also in relation to the nomination of one person to the selection panel to choose the four ‘non code’ directors of RWWA.<sup>118</sup> The Committee acknowledges that this representation is diluted and does not constitute representation of off-course wagering interests. The Committee finds that the significant contribution that retail wagering outlets make to the racing and wagering industry is under represented at the RWWA board level. The Committee also acknowledges that strategic knowledge of the wagering landscape may be beneficial as RWWA attempts to maintain and increase its current wagering market share. Whilst the Committee is of this opinion, there is insufficient evidence to prompt a change to the constitution of the board to include one person nominated by eligible wagering bodies.<sup>119</sup> It is the Committee’s opinion however that there should be off-course wagering representation insofar as the nomination and selection of board members is concerned.

Finding 10

There is insufficient representation of wagering in the selection of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board.

Recommendation 3

That the Western Australian TAB Agents’ Association be represented in the nomination and selection of board members with respect to Section 8(1)(e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>116</sup> Mr Timothy Barnes, Morley TAB, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p9

<sup>117</sup> Mr Wayne Barnes, Morley TAB, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p14.

<sup>118</sup> Section 8(1)(e) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>119</sup> The Committee has not conducted an examination into the possible governance ramifications that may arise by an increase in the representative directors (to that of a majority) on the RWWA board.

Code representation

One area of extensive Parliamentary debate concerned the manner in which the codes were to be represented on the board—particularly about the number of code nominees for the thoroughbred and harness codes—or if indeed codes should be specifically represented at all. The Turner Report recommended that there should be no code representation at the board level so a whole-of industry approach to governance could more readily emerge.<sup>120</sup> This theme was picked up during the debates:

The concept in the Turner report was that the new board members would represent the racing, pacing and chasing industry as a whole, rather than coming from a vested-interest position from either of the three codes.<sup>121</sup>

The Turner Report envisaged that ‘code bodies’, existing immediately below board level, would capture the needs of the individual codes by negotiating funding and product agreements for each code. The criteria for selection on a code body would be ‘an in depth understanding of’ that particular code—together with ‘...successful general and specific experience in a commercial environment’.<sup>122</sup> This was the same criteria that the Turner Report set for half of the overarching board—the remaining members of which were to have successful business expertise in a specific area and a general understanding of the racing industry. Whilst there was a view that knowledge of the racing industry was important, the review established a clear imperative for there to be a commercial focus on the skills and experience of the board (and code) members. This concept did not gain favour and it was finally agreed that each code should have one representative at a board level.

During the course of this Inquiry, the Committee received feedback that code representation on the board should be revisited—particularly with regard to the consideration of the appropriateness of code representation. Perth Racing submitted that the RWWA board ‘should be apolitical and not code representative’ which if achieved will enable RWWA to act on an increased commercial platform and be more appropriately placed to respond to new market challenges the industry is facing.<sup>123</sup> When asked to elaborate on this view in a hearing, Mr Ted van Heemst, Chair of Perth Racing responded that in theory it is beyond doubt that what is required for the WA industry to survive is a more commercial approach to operations:

<sup>120</sup> Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry, report prepared for the Minister of Racing and Gaming by R Turner, A Di Francesco, M Nadebaum, Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, WA, October 2001, p27.

<sup>121</sup> Mr Matt Birney, MLA, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 6 May 2003, p7078.

<sup>122</sup> Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry, report prepared for the Minister of Racing and Gaming by R Turner, A Di Francesco, M Nadebaum, Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, WA, October 2001, p30.

<sup>123</sup> Primarily increased competition from corporate bookmakers, the inception of product fess and increased pooling fees are putting considerable pressure on the viability of RWWA’s operations. Refer to Chapter 2.9(a) for a further discussion on the impact of these market pressures.

...there is absolutely no doubt in my mind that in a perfect world you would not have code representation on that board at all; you would have half a dozen professional people who understood your product and made commercial decisions.<sup>124</sup>

It was further contended that in practice this may be detrimental to the industry as it is inherently complicated and currently the board benefits from the knowledge and expertise that the code representative directors bring. This is because of their past experience and knowledge of and within the industry—benefits that may be lost to the industry if code representation was removed from the decision making processes of the board.

WACHRA submitted that a change to the RWWA Act may be necessary to enable RWWA to pursue a more 'business type, model' and maximise the dividend to government and the codes, but cautioned that this would need to be augmented with increased input from industry stakeholders about the strategic direction of the harness Industry.<sup>125</sup>

The WATA similarly asserted that the board should be kept independent from the codes—with substantial consultation with code based expertise when required. In addition, functions currently taken up by the board in regard to the day to day running of the clubs should be returned to the clubs.<sup>126</sup> Mr John Burt of WATA contended there are two main benefits to this approach—firstly, without code representation the board can more accurately focus on increasing the whole-of industry product. In addition, it would have the added benefit of guarding against any future circumstance whereby a particularly persuasive code representative is able to exert undue influence over other non-code directors to the detriment of the remaining two codes.<sup>127</sup>

The Committee is of the opinion that the concept of independent board members, as raised by the above stakeholders, could be a valuable asset to the racing and wagering industry in trying to combat emerging market challenges. Nonetheless, the Committee strongly propounds the benefits of retaining code representation at a board level as it enables the board to understand and effectively respond to the complex needs of the racing industry. In addition, the Committee contends that independent knowledge and expertise can be more readily accessed through external means than can knowledge and expertise in racing. Lastly, Principle 2.2 of the ASX Corporate Governance Principles and Recommendations recommends that for a board to add most value to an organisation it should have a majority of independent directors. RWWA as it is currently constituted has a majority of independent directors so reflects a preferred governance model. The Committee therefore finds that the number of independent directors should not be increased.

<sup>124</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p7.

<sup>125</sup> Submission No. 32 from WA Country Harness Racing Association, 14 January 2010, p3.

<sup>126</sup> Mr John Burt, President, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p10.

<sup>127</sup> Ibid., p12.

Finding 11

The Committee supports retention of code representation on the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board.

(iii) Transparency of board procedures on governance

Schedule 1 of the RWWA Act outlines the provisions concerning the constitution and proceedings of RWWA's board of directors. Issues of transparency and consultation are examined in a subsequent section of this report.<sup>128</sup> Nonetheless a number of stakeholders have noted specific issues concerning the awareness of—or transparency of—board procedures that are appropriate to raise here.

Selection and Nomination of Board Members

Clause 1 of Schedule 1 of the RWWA Act specifically relates to the term of office of directors. It states that a director can hold office for three years and is eligible for reappointment. There is no provision in the Act that limits the amount of times a person can be re-elected. Stakeholders have noted that there has only been one change of directorship since the inception of RWWA.<sup>129</sup>

Mr Ray Turner asserted that it is acceptable governance practice to not limit the times a person can be re-elected to a board as it prevents the risk of good people being lost to the industry:

I know of instances where very valuable people have been lost to various areas because of that restriction. I have never, ever agreed that there should be a limited period, as distinct from the need to stand for re-election at a given period...<sup>130</sup>

Mr Barry Sargeant of the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor warned against change purely for the sake of change and explained that the selection panel for the board<sup>131</sup> has actively sought nominations but has not yet found anyone 'actually outstanding enough' to replace an existing member.<sup>132</sup> Mr Robert Pearson of RWWA, remarked that the process for his initial appointment as a code nominated director was 'exhaustive in interviews' and when the time came for his reappointment the position was advertised but '...for some unknown reason, no-one wanted to take it over'.<sup>133</sup>

<sup>128</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.6 (Consultation).

<sup>129</sup> Mr Gino Monaco, President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p7.

<sup>130</sup> Mr Raymond Turner, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p4.

<sup>131</sup> Section 11 of the RWWA Act (2003) establishes a 'selection panel' for the purposes of nominating Directors under Section 8(1)(e).

<sup>132</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p4.

<sup>133</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p32.

It appears then that the reason there has only been one change in directorship since the inception of RWWA is because no suitable candidates have been identified to replace the existing board members. This is in part underpinned by the quality of the incumbent RWWA board members.<sup>134</sup>

The process for selecting and nominating board members is briefly explained here.<sup>135</sup> Under Section 8 of the RWWA Act, the board comprises:

- the chair, nominated by the Minister;
- three code representatives, nominated directly by the code eligible bodies; and
- four non-code representatives, selected by a selection panel.

The selection panel is prescribed under Section 11, which determines that the selection panel will comprise five people; one nominated by the Minister; one nominated by the board; and three 'code' appointments nominated by each of the corresponding code eligible bodies. The selection panel is to appoint its own chair<sup>136</sup> and is to determine its own procedures.<sup>137</sup> Members of the selection panel remain for a period of three years but are eligible for reappointment or renomination.<sup>138</sup>

Section 12 of the RWWA Act determines that RWWA is to declare who the eligible bodies are. Eligible bodies are responsible for nominating the three code representatives to the board and the three code representatives on the selection panel. It is clear that in this process the eligible code racing bodies exert considerable influence over the selection and nomination of board members.

Notwithstanding this, considerable ambiguity exists as to how these eligible bodies are chosen. There is no prescribed procedure for either the selection or publication of eligible code racing bodies by RWWA. Nor is there a prescribed method by which the eligible bodies must call for nominations of candidates who wish to be considered for the position of Director on the RWWA board. Clearly nominations will be impacted if there is a general lack of awareness within the industry and the broader community that board nominations are occurring. Mr Tony Marwick of the Northam Race Club noted that whilst nominations for board members are no doubt advertised in the newspaper, there is no notification through industry channels.<sup>139</sup> The Albany Racing Club admitted that they are not aware of the nomination process of the RWWA board.<sup>140</sup>

---

<sup>134</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p3.

<sup>135</sup> This process is also described earlier in this section under prescribed governance functions of RWWA.

<sup>136</sup> Section 11(7) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>137</sup> Section 11(11) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>138</sup> Section 11(8) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

<sup>139</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p7.

<sup>140</sup> Mrs Lesley Solly, President, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p15.

Despite this, Mr Richard Burt of RWWA stated that whilst ‘entrenched non-replacement’ of board members would be bad for the industry, he did not think that RWWA was at that stage.<sup>141</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant noted that there might be changes to the board in the near future.<sup>142</sup> If this was to happen, the Committee asserts that the current procedures will have to be amended prior to any new selection, in order to ensure that suitable candidates of an appropriately high standard are encouraged to nominate. Subsequently, some mechanisms to improve the selection and nomination of board members to facilitate a more effective nomination process are discussed here.

Mechanisms to Improve Selection and Nomination of Board Members

In order to attract the continued placement of appropriate people onto the board of RWWA the Committee finds that the board nomination processes of RWWA must be examined so that, as an organisation, it can more effectively engage in succession planning strategies to recruit appropriate people onto the RWWA board. Ensuring appropriate board renewal will facilitate the ability of the current board to align the future board configuration with the strategic direction of the organisation.

The Committee acknowledges that Section 8(1) of the RWWA Act delegates the selection procedure of board members to bodies outside of the RWWA board and that the current RWWA board feel that succession planning for the board is out of their hands.<sup>143</sup> However, as part of the board’s leadership role in the pursuit of good governance, the Committee finds that the RWWA board should plan and disclose preferred succession strategies to eligible industry bodies and the selection panel responsible for nominating the board for their consideration prior to any such process being instigated.

Finding 12

The Racing and Wagering Western Australia board should develop an appropriate governance framework to encourage board renewal.

Given the critical role eligible racing bodies play in the nomination and selection process of directors, and given that RWWA is required to determine who these bodies are under Section 12 of the RWWA Act, the Committee queried the procedures in place to achieve this function. When RWWA was asked how it determines what bodies are to become eligible racing bodies there was uncertainty as to the process for establishing eligible bodies.<sup>144</sup>

<sup>141</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p31.

<sup>142</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p4.

<sup>143</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p29.

<sup>144</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2010, pers. comm., 21 September 2010.

This response may indicate that no new eligible racing bodies have been appointed since initial establishment. Irrespective of this, the Committee is concerned that the establishment of the eligible bodies is currently unclear. The manner in which new bodies may apply to become an eligible racing body and the manner in which an eligible racing body can be removed must be established by RWWA and should be detailed in regulation. The publication of eligible bodies should also occur in regulation. As such, the Committee recommends that Section 12 of the RWWA Act be amended to include a clear instruction as to the establishment of eligible racing bodies.

Recommendation 4

That Section 12 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to stipulate that the process by which eligible bodies are to be determined, and the publication of eligible bodies be specified in regulation.

Section 9 of the RWWA Act prescribes that the Minister may determine: the manner and criteria on which persons are nominated and selected; and the procedures that are to be followed for making nominations, for all directors of RWWA. Despite this provision, only one determination has been made and that occurred at the time RWWA was established. This determination provided that any decision of eligible bodies with respect to the nomination of a ‘code’ director, and any decision made by the selection panel in nominating a ‘non code’ director, was to be made by a simple majority of votes.<sup>145</sup> No determination has been made as to what procedures should be followed in calling for nominations in the first instance.

Consequently, the Committee is concerned that the current nomination procedures being used to select directors of the RWWA board are not open and transparent.<sup>146</sup> The Committee strongly believes that the nomination procedures should be open, structured and appropriately broad to attract a strong calibre of candidates for nomination and selection. As such, the Committee recommends that pursuant to Section 9 of the RWWA Act, the Minister clarifies the nomination and selection procedures to include the following:

- any pending board vacancy be advertised widely; and
- all clubs and industry associations be given notice through appropriate mediums of pending board vacancies to be distributed to their members; and
- individual candidates are able to nominate themselves for consideration for the position of director under section 8(1)(b), (c) or (d) or section 8(1)(e) of the Act.

<sup>145</sup> Hon. Nicholas Griffiths, Government Gazette, No 114, 4 July 2003, p2691.

<sup>146</sup> The Committee also asked RWWA about the various procedures for nominating possible candidates for a directorship on the RWWA board—to which there was again uncertainty regarding exact procedures (as indicated by Mr Richard Burt, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2010, pers. comm., 21 September 2010).

Finding 13

It is necessary for the selection and nomination process of board members to be open, structured and appropriately broad to attract a strong calibre of candidates.

Recommendation 5

That pursuant to Section 9 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 the Minister for Racing and Gaming clarifies the nomination and selection procedures for directors to include:

- that any pending board vacancy be advertised widely; and
- that all clubs and industry associations be given notice through appropriate mediums of pending board vacancies to be distributed to their members; and
- that individual candidates are able to nominate themselves for consideration for the position of director under section 8(1)(b), (c) or (d) or section 8(1)(e) of the Act.

In addition, it is the Committee's view that the provision allowing selection panel members to serve long terms may have a negative impact upon the already small turnover of the RWWA board, and may increase the potential for 'entrenched non replacement' of the board. The Committee is aware that some continuity of the selection panel is appropriate for the strategic planning of subsequent board appointments in line with Finding 12 of this report. As such, it finds that it is appropriate for members of the selection panel who are appointed under section 11(2)(a) and (b) of the Act to serve terms longer than three years, pursuant to section 11(8) of the Act. In order to introduce some renewal into the process, the Committee recommends that any member of the selection panel nominated under section 11(2)(c), (d) or (e) should not be eligible to stand for consecutive terms under section 11(8) of the Act.

Recommendation 6

That any member of the selection panel nominated under section 11(2)(c), (d) or (e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 should not be eligible to stand for consecutive terms under section 11(8) of the Act.

Relationship between the Board and the CEO

The Committee has received some evidence that there exists a lack of clarity about the roles and responsibilities of the board as distinguished from those of senior management of RWWA.<sup>147</sup>

As mentioned, Schedule 1 of the RWWA Act delineates the provisions and proceedings of the RWWA board of directors. Likewise Schedule 2 does the same for the CEO and staff. Clause 1 of Schedule 2 states that the CEO is to have the same fiduciary relationship and duty to act with loyalty and in good faith to RWWA as a director of a company incorporated under the Corporations Act has to a company. Whilst this is prescriptive it is not descriptive.

Section 21 of the RWWA Act prescribes that the CEO has all the responsibility of—and the powers required, to administer the day to day operations of RWWA; yet the management of the staff of RWWA (including the CEO) is vested with the board. The board can nonetheless delegate any matter to the CEO under Section 33 of the RWWA Act.

The Committee acknowledges that it is essential for the effective running of RWWA for the board and the CEO to have an effective operating relationship as ‘the board’s relationship to management is critical to healthy governance’.<sup>148</sup> The Committee is of view that the role of the board and RWWA executive should be clearly delineated. Nonetheless, this does not mean that the relationship between a board and a CEO should be overly prescribed in legislation.<sup>149</sup>

RWWA has submitted that the prescribed arrangement is atypical of the division of powers between the CEO and board and recommends that:

- Section 22 of the RWWA Act should be amended to vest the power to engage and manage staff in the CEO;<sup>150</sup> and
- A clause should be inserted into the RWWA Act explicitly preventing the same individual from holding the positions of CEO and Chair of the RWWA board concurrently.<sup>151</sup>

Mechanisms to Improve transparency on the delineated roles of the board and the CEO

The Committee acknowledges that the arrangement prescribed by the RWWA Act between the CEO and the RWWA board may be atypical of many privately owned companies—nonetheless as

<sup>147</sup> Mr John Burt, President, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p13; Mr Steven McGuire, Tote Manager, Kojonup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010 p10; Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010,p6; Mr Kenneth Godley, President, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p2.

<sup>148</sup> Australian National Audit Office, Achieving Better Practice Corporate Governance in the Public Sector, June 2002, p13. Available at: www.anao.gov.au/uploads/documents/Achieving\_Better\_Practice\_Corporate\_Governance\_in\_the\_Public\_Sector1.pdf Accessed on 8 September 2010.

<sup>149</sup> Having such an interrelationship prescribed in the Act could introduce inherent inflexibility into governance procedures and decrease RWWA’s ability to adapt their governance to changing operating conditions.

<sup>150</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p83.

<sup>151</sup> Ibid.

RWWA is a statutory authority and the Chair of the RWWA board is appointed by the Minister, the Committee does not feel it can recommend that Section 22 of the Act be amended to vest all power to engage and manage staff in the CEO.

The Committee acknowledges that Section 33 provides for the board to delegate any and all powers to the CEO. There is no prescribed limit to this delegation in either function or time. Consequently, the Committee considers that it is an appropriately flexible delegation to enable the CEO to perform all duties as prescribed under Section 21. In addition, the Committee finds that any written delegation pursuant to Section 33(3) should be publicly disclosed.

In relation to the second matter, the Committee supports the principle of a clause in the RWWA Act that explicitly prevents the same individual from holding the positions of CEO and Chair of the RWWA board concurrently.

Finding 14

The role of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board and executive should be clearly delineated and publicly disclosed.

Finding 15

Any written delegations pursuant to Section 33(3) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 should be publicly disclosed.

Recommendation 7

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia should delineate and publicly disclose the role of the board and executive and disclose any written delegations pursuant to Section 33(3) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Recommendation 8

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to insert a clause explicitly preventing the same individual from holding the positions of Chief Executive Officer and Chair of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board concurrently.

Charter of the board and management

Whilst RWWA publish information on their governance guidelines and enabling legislation on their website, it contains only a small amount of descriptive content beyond the naming of what practices are in place. There is little to no information on the processes behind the practice or how a stakeholder may become aware of, or engage in, any appropriate governance process.

Allowing stakeholders to see and understand many of the procedures of the board is increasingly considered good governance practice. A key principle that the ASX emphasises is the public disclosure and explanation of any governance procedures that an organisation may have in place because governance is about ‘preserving stakeholder confidence’.<sup>152</sup> To this end, the ASX corporate governance council has recently incorporated a change to their governance principles by recommending that the disclosure by an organisation when reporting on their governance practices should include the specific policies that govern these practices; rather than simply allowing a company to report it has certain practices in place. The Australian Auditor General recently indicated support for this concept in a speech presented to the Australian Institute of Company Directors Public Sector Governance Conference.<sup>153</sup>

Mechanisms to Improve Transparency of procedures of the RWWA Board

The Committee acknowledges that an essential part of good governance is being open and transparent about the board’s operating procedures and practices. The Committee notes that RWWA states that the roles and delegated authorities of the board, board committees, Chairperson, CEO and Executive Members, ‘are clearly defined and understood within RWWA’.<sup>154</sup> The Committee recommends however that these be publicly disclosed and updated as required, inclusive of such items as the board minutes (where appropriate), code of conduct for board members and the performance management measures of the board and senior management, so that a greater understanding of the goals, objectives, accomplishments and efficacy of the board may be gained by all racing and wagering industry participants.

Finding 16

The disclosure and explanation of governance principles to stakeholders is essential for good governance to be achieved.

<sup>152</sup> ASX, ‘Corporate Governance Principles and Recommendations with 2010 Amendments, 2nd Edition’, 2007. Available at: www.asx.com.au/about/pdf/cg\_principles\_recommendations\_with\_2010\_amendments.pdf. Accessed on 31 August 2010.

<sup>153</sup> Australian National Audit Office, Different Perspectives of Public Sector Governance Asia and Australia, October 2009, p5. Available at: http://anao.gov.au/uploads/documents/AICD\_speech\_October09.pdf. Accessed on 7 September 2010.

<sup>154</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, RWWA, p73.

Recommendation 9

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia clarifies and publicly discloses any governance procedures that it has in place.

(e) Future Considerations: the changing governance landscape of RWWA*(i) Market Challenges

Earlier in this section it was noted that good governance principles are evolutionary in their nature. The ongoing obligation for RWWA to ensure their governance practices are reviewed in light of significant changes in circumstances has been emphasised.<sup>155</sup> This is particularly relevant to RWWA at the present time. During the course of this Inquiry the Committee has heard about the advent of a number of external circumstances that have deeply impacted the operational environment of RWWA in recent years. The external nature of these conditions has placed pressure on the internal operating procedures of RWWA as the organisation attempts to manage and adapt to changing market conditions. Notwithstanding that the board and management have been able to combat many of these pressures effectively, market pressures continue to create an imperative for RWWA to adapt their governance strategies to successfully manage them. This imperative has been raised by RWWA, and the means by which to responsibly counteract these market pressures form the corner stone of their recommendations to the Committee.<sup>156</sup>

While these external challenges are examined in greater detail later in the report, in summary these are as follows:

- The advent of corporate bookmakers and other providers of wagering product have injected a considerable amount of competition into the racing and wagering market;<sup>157</sup>
- Current and planned reductions in interstate taxation rates have rendered the RWWA wagering product less attractive in the market—resulting in substantial reductions in revenue;
- The increased cost of providing core wagering services due to product and pooling fees, which currently amount to $4 million and $11 million per annum, respectively; and
- The rising costs associated with infrastructure maintenance<sup>158</sup> and infrastructure and facility upgrades.

<sup>155</sup> Refer to the part (a)(iii) of this Chapter.

<sup>156</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010.

<sup>157</sup> Constitutional constraints prevent the state from protecting its wagering monopoly and industry funding model. Refer to Chapter 2.9 (Wagering Revenues) for detail on the impact increased competition in the supply of wagering product has had on RWWA.

<sup>158</sup> Maintenance costs include the rising costs associated with additional regulatory and environmental requirements for racing grounds.

Mechanisms to alleviate the strain these market challenges are placing on the industry are discussed in detail throughout this review in acknowledgment of the negative impact they are having on the operational effectiveness of RWWA.

The Committee is mindful of the impact these market challenges are placing on the overall governance of RWWA, particularly at this juncture with respect to the imperative that exists for the RWWA board to most appropriately value add to the activities of RWWA.

The Economic Audit Committee Report notes that the market pressures RWWA currently face may have serious consequences for the future sustainability of the racing and wagering industry. The report argues that if the market share of the TAB continues to erode, then the current industry funding model will be undermined—in which case, alternative models of funding for the industry will have to be explored.<sup>159</sup>

The Committee requested clarification on what alternative funding models might be considered and received the following response from the Department of Treasury and Finance:

If the market share continues to be eroded steps could be taken to narrow the scope of Totalisator Agency Board operations to the things that they are most efficient at to provide a return. Ultimately, alternative models may need to be examined in the future, in consultation with the agency and stakeholders, in order to identify a sustainable model that will best, satisfy the requirements of the State Government and other stakeholders.<sup>160</sup>

(ii) Committee structure of RWWA board in response to market challenges

It is clear that RWWA must become increasingly strategic in their governance in an effort to ensure the long term sustainability of the industry. The committee structure of the RWWA board provides a mechanism for focusing on specific strategic issues. To this end, the Committee is of the opinion that the committee structure of the RWWA board should be reviewed to determine if a more appropriate framework can respond to the market challenges RWWA is now facing.

As stated above, Section 16 of the RWWA Act empowers the board to appoint committees of which three currently exist, specifically the IAC, Racing Operations Committee, and Executive Committee. The IAC is established under Section 47 of the RWWA Act and has functions relating to overseeing stewards, drug testing and control, licensing and registration, handicapping, and racing appeals.<sup>161</sup> In addition, the IAC has the extra responsibility of performing the role of RWWA's Audit Committee—which includes oversight for internal Risk Management strategies.

An approach considered by the Committee is one recommended in a UK government commissioned review on the governance procedures of financial institutions in response to the critical failure these institutions faced during the global financial crisis.<sup>162</sup> The Committee finds that there may be some relevancy in examining a similar framework for RWWA in light of the serious threat market challenges are placing on the future sustainability of the racing and wagering industry in Western Australia.

<sup>159</sup> Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 2009, p122.

<sup>160</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, Committee Correspondence, 2 August 2010.

<sup>161</sup> Section 48 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

In brief, it recommends for the establishment of a clearly distinguished Audit Committee and the establishment of a separate Risk Committee. The approach outlines that in practice, Audit Committees have clear responsibilities for oversight and reporting to the board on the financial accounts and adoption of appropriate accounting policies, internal control, compliance and other matters. This is a vital role but is in many ways backward looking whereas, Risk Management, whilst obviously closely related to functions associated with an Audit Committee, could be vested with a largely forward-looking focus if it is given oversight for the board's consideration of both current and future risk exposure.<sup>163</sup> This could include future infrastructure planning (as discussed in Chapter 2.7(c)).

It may be that such a framework would enable the RWWA board to become increasingly responsive to dynamic market conditions that are placing pressure on RWWA's operations. Section 16 provides the legislative ability for RWWA to review and implement changes to their committee framework. As such, the Committee recommends that such a review be carried out.

Finding 17

There is merit in the establishment of a board Risk Committee separate from the Audit Committee and as board committees in their own right.

Recommendation 10

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia, pursuant to Section 16 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003, reviews the committee framework of the board to establish whether a board risk committee separate from the audit committee would be beneficial to its operations.

<sup>162</sup> David Walker, 'A review of corporate governance in UK banks and other financial industry entities', 16 July 2009. Available at: www.audit-committee-institute.be/dbfetch/52616e646f6d4956f9ed6cb8ae5277dbec35c233bab54a5b/walker\_review\_consultation\_160709.pdf Accessed on 13 September 2010.

<sup>163</sup> Ibid, p81.

(iii) The Economic Audit Committee (EAC)

The Economic Audit Committee's final report listed a number of recommendations that will be relevant to the future governance of RWWA.<sup>164</sup>

The report is aimed at providing recommendations for immediate and ongoing improvement in the outcomes achieved by the Western Australian public sector—and largely focuses on appropriateness of the governance arrangements of entities within the public sector. RWWA is classified as a Government Trading Enterprise (GTE) and as such will be subject to any of the recommendations made in the report that apply to GTEs.<sup>165</sup>

The two overarching aims of the EAC report were to recommend that a transparent and consistent governance policy be developed, alongside enhanced general government sector support for the key stakeholders in each GTE. These are reflected in recommendations 28 to 30 of the report which are summarised here:

Recommendation 28: Introduce umbrella legislation to standardise, strengthen and clarify governance arrangements for all GTEs.

Recommendation 29: Establish a GTE advisory and monitoring unit.

Recommendation 30: Review GTEs to ensure that the governance and ownership of each business is appropriate for delivering Government's policy objectives. The review should address the following issues:

- a) Does Government need to be an active participant in the market (due to market failure) or is it simply replicating something the private sector can do (with appropriate regulation)?
- b) Can the GTE operate independently of Government? What policy outcomes is Government seeking from the GTE (for example, fully commercial provider of specific outputs, a source of revenue, industry and/or social policy)?
- c) What is Government's broader policy for the market in which the GTE operates and does the policy have implications for the appropriate ownership and governance of a GTE participating in the market?
- d) The relative merits of outsourcing, rationalising or decorporatising.<sup>166</sup>

If implemented, these recommendations will impact on the overarching governance arrangements of RWWA. How much will largely be determined by:

- what provisions RWWA would be subject to under the umbrella legislation;

<sup>164</sup> Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 2009.

<sup>165</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010.

<sup>166</sup> Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 2009, pp x-xi.

- what support RWWA would be able to access from the GTE advisory unit; and
- the findings of the governance and ownership review of RWWA as a GTE.

The Committee finds it is incumbent on RWWA to consider the potential or real impact of these recommendations on any of its current or future governance arrangements.

Finding 18

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should consider the potential or real impact of recommendations in the Western Australian Government's Economic Audit Committee Final Report on its current and future governance arrangements.

2.3 Objectives of RWWA

(a) Background

An objective is something that is sought or aimed at.<sup>167</sup> For the purposes of reviewing the operational effectiveness of RWWA, the Committee attempted to gauge what the aims of RWWA are—what RWWA is seeking to achieve, so that an opinion can be formed as to whether RWWA has achieved these aims. The Committee examined the aims behind the establishment of RWWA in 2003 and what objectives or aims were prescribed in the Act; as well as examining feedback on what the industry felt RWWA should be achieving on its behalf and what RWWA considered its main objectives to be.

Whilst the latter views were comprehensively gathered from industry participants and RWWA, the process in its entirety is only briefly summarised here. The Committee discovered considerable ambiguity surrounding the role of RWWA and therefore did not form an opinion on the appropriateness of that role. Instead, stakeholder views are summarised here to highlight the confusion that is present within the racing and wagering industry on this matter, and the importance of RWWA clarifying its objectives will be discussed.

(b) Establishment of RWWA's objectives

The RWWA Act established RWWA as the single controlling body for thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing in WA. When considering the rationale behind 'the most significant change to the racing industry in its long history',<sup>168</sup> the responsible Minister at the time, Hon. Nick

<sup>167</sup> The Australian Oxford Dictionary, Second Edition, Oxford University Press, 2004.

<sup>168</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC, Minister for Racing and Gaming, WA, Legislative Council, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 9 May 2003, p7416.

Griffiths, MLC offered the following observations made in the Turner Report<sup>169</sup> as a primary driver for the establishment of RWWA:

...the present governance structure of the racing industry in Western Australia lacks cohesion and strategic direction...Each of the code governing bodies manages its own affairs in isolation. The Minister for Racing and Gaming is [the] last resort...because, in the absence of any strategic directions agreed to for the industry as a whole, or any body responsible for the development of the whole of the industry, there is no other avenue through which individuals or stakeholder groups can represent their concerns or needs and seek action.<sup>170</sup>

From this statement it could be suggested that the founding objectives of RWWA were to offer strategic direction and development of the whole industry—and to provide a means by which stakeholder groups or individuals could raise their concerns and seek action; thus removing the responsible Minister from the role of ‘last resort’. Whilst RWWA may have succeeded in achieving some of these aims, particularly in regard to relieving the Minister from acting on a last resort basis for the industry,<sup>171</sup> these aims are not prescribed in the Act.

During the same second reading speech on the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Bill 2003, the Minister indicated that Section 35 of the Bill outlined the governance functions of RWWA with regard to racing.<sup>172</sup> Whilst there was some minor change during the passage of the Bill through Parliament, the governance functions referred to were accepted as the functions of RWWA in relation to racing in general and now constitute Section 35 of the RWWA Act. This section includes that it is a function of RWWA to:<sup>173</sup>

- control, supervise and regulate racing in the State;<sup>174</sup>
- to foster the development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred racing, harness racing and greyhound racing, in the interests of the long term viability of the racing industry in Western Australia;<sup>175</sup>
- to undertake and manage racing industry strategic planning, promotion, marketing, sponsorship and administration;<sup>176</sup>

<sup>169</sup> Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry. A Report to the Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, October 2001.

<sup>170</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC, Minister for Racing and Gaming, WA, Legislative Council, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 9 May 2003, p7412.

<sup>171</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.4 (a) for information of the Minister’s current role in directing the operations of the racing and wagering industry.

<sup>172</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC, Minister for Racing and Gaming, WA, Legislative Council, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 9 May 2003, p7413.

<sup>173</sup> Refer to the section 35 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 for a full list of the prescribed functions.

<sup>174</sup> Section 35(1)(a) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>175</sup> Section 35(1)(b) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>176</sup> Section 35(1)(c) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

- to supervise racing clubs and their affairs;<sup>177</sup>
- to determine the race meetings on which RWWA will conduct off-course wagering;<sup>178</sup>
- in consultation with racing clubs, to establish policies for stake money levels and race conditions and programs;<sup>179</sup>
- to establish policies for, and manage the provision of, programs for apprentice jockey, trainee driver and other racing industry training requirements,<sup>180</sup> and
- to liaise with government and other authorities, whether in or out of Western Australia, with respect to, and to represent the interests of, the racing industry in Western Australia.<sup>181</sup>

The Committee notes that it is a comprehensive list of functions, but it fails to attach any priorities to these functions, and its focus concerns many day to day operations of RWWA that offer no guidance as to what the government's long term objectives for RWWA—or the racing industry—are. As such, Section 35, whilst very useful in prescribing the governance functions of RWWA on an operational level, is not a statement of objectives for RWWA. The RWWA Act, when passed, contained no prescribed objectives for RWWA.

(c) RWWA's views on its objectives

The omission from the RWWA Act of any prescribed objectives was a significant issue raised by RWWA in its submission to the Committee. In it, RWWA stated that there are no 'explicit statements of objectives other than the administrative objectives of establishing RWWA as the governing body for the racing industry'.<sup>182</sup> As the body subject to review, RWWA attempted to define a scope of issues by which the Committee could review its performance. As such, RWWA recognised that the lack of any objectives was clearly an impediment for the Committee in exercising this function.

In the absence of any explicit objectives, RWWA suggested that an overriding objective could be inferred from Section 35,<sup>183</sup> that is, that the objective of the legislation is to 'ensure the long term welfare and sustainability of racing in Western Australia'.<sup>184</sup> While the Committee agrees this

<sup>177</sup> Section 35(1)(d) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>178</sup> Section 35(1)(f) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>179</sup> Section 35(1)(g) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>180</sup> Section 35(1)(h) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>181</sup> Section 35(1)(j) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>182</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p1. The 'administrative objectives' RWWA mentioned in this statement has been inferred to mean the prescribed functions under section 35.

<sup>183</sup> Specifically Section 35(1)(b), noted earlier, which provides that RWWA is to foster the development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred racing, harness racing and greyhound racing, in the interests of the long term viability of the racing industry in Western Australia.

<sup>184</sup> Submission No. 7C from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 9 May 2010, p1.

objective is sound, it is of the opinion that the objectives of RWWA, or any statutory body, should not need to be inferred.

(d) Industry views on RWWA's objectives

Evidence received by the Committee demonstrated that industry participants, whilst not in agreement about what the objectives of RWWA should be, nonetheless focus on the functions prescribed in Section 35. Opposing stakeholder views surrounding the issue of RWWA's objectives are briefly summarised here. Views centre on the main issues of country and provincial racing and racing club activities. RWWA's role in regard to education and industry lobbying are also raised here.<sup>185</sup>

(i) Views on RWWA's role in regard to country and provincial racing

There is a perception that RWWA has an obligation to foster country racing as much as it does any other area of the industry; yet its focus on wagering activities and generating turnover is undermining the ability of country clubs to survive.<sup>186</sup> Other comments received by the Committee in this regard can be summarised as follows:

- Small clubs which generate very little wagering turnover are vulnerable to being shut down and RWWA should be trying to protect them;<sup>187</sup>
- It should be the role of RWWA to ensure that country clubs are 'not allowed (just) to continue, but actually helped to prosper';<sup>188</sup>
- A conflict exists between the betting side of the industry and the running of racing, which needs to be resolved through a clear statement of objectives so that clubs, and country and provincial racing, will know if they have protection for existence beyond the good will of the board;<sup>189</sup>
- Some country clubs resent being labelled as a liability on the industry and believe it should be the role of RWWA to promote them as an important asset;<sup>190</sup> and
- RWWA puts too much emphasis on wagering and revenue generation at the risk of losing sight of the sustainability of the racing industry, particularly small clubs. This may be due to conflict of interests and/or a lack of resources by the board.<sup>191</sup>

<sup>185</sup> It should be noted that industry views on RWWA's role with respect to consultation, accountability, funding distribution and infrastructure funding have been discussed in detail in other sections of this report and are therefore not repeated here.

<sup>186</sup> Submission No. 14 from Western Australian Greyhounds Association, 30 November 2009, p5; Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p5; Submission No. 46 from Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, 6 April 2010, p4; Mr Matthew Spurr, President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p2.

<sup>187</sup> Mr Alfred Paganoni, Past President, Western Australian Country Harness Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p15.

<sup>188</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary/Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p2.

<sup>189</sup> Mr Steven McGuire, Tote Manager, Kojonup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p10.

<sup>190</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p12; Submission No. 21 from Broome Turf Club, 17 December 2009 p2.

According to some stakeholders, RWWA must foster regional and remote racing communities in conjunction with metropolitan races, because it will benefit the entire racing industry.<sup>192</sup> Mr Geoff Fahl of the Carnarvon Race Club indicated that maintaining country racing should be the role of RWWA because ‘if you have got strong country racing, eventually you are going to have strong city racing.’<sup>193</sup> Mr John Biggs, on behalf of NE Goldfields Racing Clubs stated it should be an objective of RWWA to promote country racing, because loss of country racing would have severe ramifications for the industry:

If those country race meetings were lost, a lot of people would lose interest in the racing industry as a whole. They would not go into the TAB shop and they would not invest money in the TAB; therefore, the turnover will go down. It is very important that we ensure that none of these clubs is allowed to close under any circumstances whatsoever.<sup>194</sup>

Similarly, many stakeholders argued that RWWA has an obligation to foster the needs of all racing throughout the state, regardless of whether it is metropolitan, provincial, country or outer country. It was suggested that RWWA is failing in this obligation by supporting metro-centric policies.<sup>195</sup> WACHRA noted that ‘there is a growing trend to “offload” smaller to medium sized Clubs to fend for themselves’.<sup>196</sup> Mr Mathew Spurr of the Wagin Trotting Club suggested that RWWA is favouring metropolitan clubs and larger provincial clubs, yet is stripping races and stake money from smaller clubs to the point that they are at risk of failing:

The Great Southern has been severely impacted since the introduction of RWWA, with a stripping of meetings and a lack of stake money to the point where the clubs are still viable...[RWWA] have created scenarios where some clubs will achieve and some will not. This was pretty evident right from the start.<sup>197</sup>

Some stakeholders argued that RWWA has an obligation to grow the industry by retaining industry participants and attracting new people to it. It was proposed that this could only be achieved by RWWA having a clear aim to increase races in country communities—rather than to minimise those races which is RWWA’s current policy. Increasing country races will assist those

<sup>191</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p4.

<sup>192</sup> Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p10; Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, pp2, 9.

<sup>193</sup> Mr Geoff Fahl, Chairman/Treasurer, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p8.

<sup>194</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, NE Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p3.

<sup>195</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, Chief Executive officer, Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, pp6-7; Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, 19 March 2010, p2; Submission No 5 from York Racing, 26 November 2009, p4; Submission No. 9 from Mr Frank Peczka, 30 November 2009, p2.

<sup>196</sup> Submission No. 33 from Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association, 19 January 2010, p3.

<sup>197</sup> Mr Matthew Spurr, President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p2.

owners and trainers that have been required to move out to country areas in order to obtain more affordable land and facilities.<sup>198</sup>

Mr Evan Spencer, President of the Golden Mile Trotting Club, asserted that the function of RWWA is to distribute TAB monies to the community—for the benefit of the community. Therefore it is incumbent on RWWA to support country racing as a part of this, because country clubs drive the community focus of RWWA:

The role of the Golden Mile Trotting Club and the strength of harness racing—all industries like harness racing and gallops—is that it has a regional focus...[they] are community features. RWWA is there to distribute gambling moneys or TAB moneys to the community for the benefit of the community. While it has to be commercial, they certainly are community funds driven from the community, and they should be put back into the community.<sup>199</sup>

(ii) Views on RWWA’s role in regard to managing and organising club activities

A number of stakeholders held the firm view that RWWA’s charter requires RWWA to engage in activities much broader than just facilitating race meetings, summarised as follows:

- A number of stakeholders asserted that it is the objective of RWWA to assist clubs in the marketing and promotion of their events and their product;<sup>200</sup>
- RWWA’s role should be broader than just facilitating race meetings, they should also be offering professional advice to club secretaries, particularly in regard to the administration of club financial records;<sup>201</sup> and
- RWWA needs to promote on-course turnover for the long term viability of racing clubs by investing in on-course facilities to encourage people to attend race meetings.<sup>202</sup>

It was suggested by a number of industry participants that an objective of RWWA is to promote local racing product but that it has allowed national and international product to take precedence. It was argued that it is essential that RWWA addresses this.<sup>203</sup> The Fremantle Harness Racing

<sup>198</sup> Mr Barry Mahood, Chairman, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, pp7-8; Mr Patrick Flynn, Vice President, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p7; Mrs Patricia Abbott, Secretary/Treasurer, Busselton Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p4.

<sup>199</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p13.

<sup>200</sup> Submission No. 33 from West Australian Country Harness Racing Association, 19 January 2010, p3; Submission No. 9 from Mr Frank Peczkka, 30 November 2009, p2.

<sup>201</sup> Ms Julie Caldwell, Manager, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p9; Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p13; Mr Bruce Brown, Treasurer and Committee member, Geraldton Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p15; Submission No. 23 from Bunbury Turf Club, 18 December 2009, p1.

<sup>202</sup> Mr Robert Howat, President, Western Australian Bookmakers Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p4; Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary/Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p7; Mr Kenneth Godley, President, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p4.

<sup>203</sup> Mr Peter Hemsley, Secretary, Collie Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p2; Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p15.

Club asserted that RWWA has not been strong on promotion and has a role to become more of a corporate citizen and help racing clubs promote their product:

I believe that RWWA has an obligation to the industry to explore every opportunity that there is to help a club to foster it in the environment that it is in.<sup>204</sup>

It was suggested that RWWA should also be building the national and international profile of local racing product by helping clubs build their reputation and by providing some continuity in a club's programming.<sup>205 206</sup>

Conversely, some stakeholders suggested that it was never the intent for RWWA to have such a say over the day to day operational activities of individual clubs. These stakeholders argued that RWWA should be focusing only on the broader industry issues concerning overall strategy of the industry going forward. The WATA contended that RWWA has too much control over clubs and subsequently limit a club's ability to grow its own local product:

I think there is a responsibility for RWWA to a certain degree to market the betting engine of racing. But as we mentioned earlier...the fact is that we are a business. Every club is a business. We need to be in a situation where we can stock our own shelves.<sup>207</sup>

Perth Racing similarly contended that RWWA's role is to focus on the overall promotion of the industry and to hand back the event management of race meetings to the clubs:

...RWWA's role...obviously needs to be focused on generic advertising; that is, advertising the product, the betting product, through its agency network and in totality its marketing network... There is a greater level of knowledge within the racing clubs that have become, in effect, the event managers regarding the racing product. It would benefit the industry if some of those functions...came back to the clubs.<sup>208</sup>

It is not just metropolitan clubs that have the view that RWWA's role has become too focused on operational activities of clubs. Mr Brett Smith of the Junction Race Club believed that RWWA's purpose should be to keep the allocations going and to help clubs achieve infrastructure upgrades—without being totally dictatorial about what the club can and cannot do.<sup>209</sup>

<sup>204</sup> Mr Geoffrey Warwick, Vice President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p8.

<sup>205</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p15.

<sup>206</sup> Race programming is discussed further at Chapter 3.5 of this report.

<sup>207</sup> Mr Robert Bovell, Chief Executive, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, pp9-10.

<sup>208</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p2.

<sup>209</sup> Mr Brett Smith, Committee Member, Junction Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p10.

(iii) Other views on RWWA's role in regard to the racing and wagering industry

Some stakeholders believe that RWWA has an essential role as the controlling body for the industry to lobby the government on issues concerning the industry. WAPTRA submitted that it is the role of RWWA to lobby the government on issues like taxation relief:

It is incumbent on RWWA to actively and vigorously explore every avenue of political lobbying of all persuasions.<sup>210</sup>

Mr Evan Spencer of the Golden Mile Trotting Club considered it a core function of RWWA to lobby on behalf of clubs on issues surrounding the stabling of horses and other animal welfare issues:

Horse stabling is core business to RWWA. RWWA should have a say in legislation for housing and cost effective health issues for horses.. I do not think that RWWA has lobbied hard with health requirements for stabling of horses. No-one else has a better knowledge, control and ability to drive, purchase power, common design, commonality and approach than RWWA, and I believe that should be a core function of RWWA.<sup>211</sup>

From yet another angle, some stakeholders considered it of vital importance that RWWA promotes and develops education courses for the industry. WACHRA highlighted that there may be a skills shortage looming with respect to farriers:

There is a really urgent need for something to be done there...The farrier is more important in harness racing than in the thoroughbred industry, but there is really nothing happening there... Something could be done through TAFE to train farriers.<sup>212</sup>

The Pinjarra Harness Racing Club suggested that some forward planning needs to be implemented so that courses are developed before a skills shortage occurs.<sup>213</sup>

(e) Clarifying RWWA's objectives - why it is important

The Committee notes that throughout the Inquiry stakeholders have offered differing views on a number of issues. The significance of this as it relates to the aims of RWWA is that if stakeholders, at the most primary level, do not agree on what RWWA is meant to be doing, considerable operational pressure may be put on RWWA in its role as the controlling body for the many and varied interests within the racing and wagering industry. Many industry stakeholders have a strong view as to what the function of RWWA is, which will sometimes be in direct opposition to another stakeholder's view.

<sup>210</sup> Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, 24 December 2009, p2.

<sup>211</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p15;

<sup>212</sup> Mr Kerry Clarke, President, Western Australian Standardbred Breeders Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p23.

<sup>213</sup> Mr Kimberley Tuckey, President, Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p7.

This phenomenon is only exacerbated by the current economic pressure that RWWA is experiencing. Currently, RWWA is without any protection from industry frustration in the event that it makes an unpopular decision that appears to be contrary to Section 35. The failing of Section 35, as previously noted, is that it does not place any priority onto any given function. Hence, in an environment of limited resources, some of these functions may necessarily compete with other functions. From the evidence it can be seen that stakeholders are of the view that RWWA is giving priority to some areas of the industry at the detriment of others. The Committee argues that this has created confusion and opposition amongst stakeholders as to what priorities, or objectives, RWWA should be trying to achieve through its operations.

It is also problematic for RWWA in trying to manage industry expectations about what it can effectively achieve in the coming years. If RWWA's objectives are clarified, that is, if it was provided with an objective or 'mission statement' explicitly stated within the Act—set by the government—in light of what the government wants RWWA to achieve in the long term, it would provide a framework within which RWWA can operate and make decisions in the short term to best achieve its long term objectives.

It is not the function of an overarching objective to determine day to day functions of RWWA; as RWWA must be able to perform its operations in an environment that is responsive to market conditions. Nonetheless, it is the Committee's opinion that if the broader industry is aware of the long term explicit objectives of RWWA—and has the confidence that, through legislation, RWWA must work towards trying to achieve these objectives, stakeholder frustration about day to day decisions made by RWWA will diminish. The Committee finds therefore that the RWWA Act should be amended to include an explicit statement of objectives for RWWA.

Finding 19

Industry participants have varied opinions as to what priorities or objectives Racing and Wagering Western Australia should be trying to achieve, which has the potential to impact on the effectiveness of its operations.

Finding 20

An explicit statement of objectives for Racing and Wagering Western Australia defined in legislation would provide an effective framework within which it can make decisions to best achieve its long term goals.

When asked to comment about the absence of any explicit statement of objectives in the legislation, RWWA agreed it was problematic because some of the functions listed in Section 35 could lead to conflicting outcomes.<sup>214</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA highlighted that the key word that would need to be included in a statement of objectives for RWWA is the word ‘sustainability’.<sup>215</sup> Expanding on this theme, RWWA was asked to provide the Committee a further elaboration on the wording associated with Section 35. RWWA’s response to the Committee was as follows:

<sup>214</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p11.

...to foster the development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred racing, harness racing and greyhound racing. In undertaking these objectives, RWWA is to recognise the unique characteristics of each racing code so as to maximise the sustainability of racing in Western Australia.<sup>216</sup>

Elaborating on this wording, RWWA advised that:

...the mission statement of RWWA should include words to the effect [that]...In undertaking these objectives—this is new—RWWA is to recognise the unique characteristics of each racing code so as to maximise the sustainability of racing in Western Australia. This is the key.<sup>217</sup>

The Committee agrees with the mission statement put forward by RWWA. It is of the view that it will assist both RWWA and stakeholders define what it is that RWWA is trying to achieve.

In order for the statement to satisfy this purpose, it should not be given the same practical designation as any other function listed in Section 35. As such, it would be appropriate for the statement to be inserted into the RWWA Act as a stand alone statement of RWWA’s objectives with respect to racing.

Recommendation 11

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to insert the following specific statement of objective for Racing and Wagering Western Australia in relation to racing in general:

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia is to foster the development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred racing, harness racing and greyhound racing. In undertaking these objectives, Racing and Wagering Western Australia is to recognise the unique characteristics of each racing code so as to maximise the sustainability of racing in Western Australia.

<sup>215</sup> Ibid., p12.

<sup>216</sup> Submission No. 7C from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 31 May 2010, p4.

<sup>217</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p46.

2.4 Accountability

(a) Accountability functions of RWWA

As part of the governance framework of an organisation, accountability is generally considered to be an indispensable check on how power is exercised. It is a measure that those exercising public power are answerable, responsive and transparent.<sup>218</sup> This section presents a summary of stakeholder views on accountability. An examination is also provided of the prescribed framework within Part 6 of the RWWA Act and other operational procedures that constitute the accountability system for RWWA, and whether these facilitate RWWA being an answerable, responsive and transparent organisation.

Part 6 of the RWWA Act 2003 requires RWWA to comply with two basic accountability mechanisms:

- A Strategic Development Plan (SDP); and
- A Statement of Corporate Intent (SCI).

The processes by which these two mechanisms are prescribed accountability measures of RWWA are explained below.

(i) Strategic Development Plan (SDP)

Section 66 of the RWWA Act requires the RWWA board to prepare a draft SDP each year and submit it to the Minister for Racing and Gaming for the Minister's agreement. The RWWA Act specifies matters to be considered when preparing a plan, specifically:

- 1 competitive strategies, pricing of products, productivity levels, financial requirements, capital expenditure and personnel requirements;
- 2 how funds are to be distributed to racing clubs across the various codes and between metropolitan and regional areas; and
- 3 any other matters as agreed between the Minister and the board.<sup>219</sup>

The plan must cover a forecast period of 5 years unless otherwise agreed with the Minister and is to 'set out economic and financial objectives and operational targets and how those objectives and targets will be achieved'.<sup>220</sup>

<sup>218</sup> Commonwealth Ombudsman, 'Accountability of Government', 12 May 2007. Available at: www.ombudsman.gov.au/pages/publications-and-media/speeches-and-presentations/speech-2007-may-12.php Accessed on 19 February 2010.

<sup>219</sup> Section 68(2) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>220</sup> Sections 66, 67, 68(1) and 72 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Minister's power in relation to the Strategic Development Plan (SDP)

Upon receipt of the draft SDP from the RWWA board, Section 70 allows the Minister to return the draft to the RWWA board requesting that any matter be considered further should the Minister not agree with some section of the plan. The board must comply with this request as soon as it is practicable—or, if agreement is not reached,<sup>221</sup> the Minister can direct the board to take specific steps or make specific modifications to the draft plan. Once RWWA and the Minister agree on a draft plan, it then becomes the SDP for the relevant financial year (or remainder of the year if the time taken for the Minister and board to reach agreement was prolonged).<sup>222</sup>

Subsequent modifications may be made to the SDP. The RWWA board can modify it with the agreement of the Minister; or after consultation with the board, the Minister can direct the board to modify the SDP which it must comply with.<sup>223</sup> Notably, Section 74 prescribes that the Minister is not to agree to any draft plan, or direct any modifications to a plan without the concurrence of the Treasurer.<sup>224</sup>

(ii) Statement of Corporate Intent (SCI)

Every year, RWWA is also required to prepare and submit to the Minister a Statement of Corporate Intent (SCI). The SCI must be consistent with the Strategic Development Plan for that financial year and must include the following considerations:

- 1 an outline of objectives;
- 2 an outline of main undertakings during the relevant financial year;
- 3 how funds are to be apportioned to racing clubs across the various codes and between metropolitan and regional areas;
- 4 an outline of the nature and scope of functions RWWA propose to perform in the relevant financial year;
- 5 accounting policies;
- 6 information of the type given to the Minister in annual reports; and
- 7 performance targets and other matters that the board consider relevant to include.<sup>225</sup>

Section 77(3) allows the Minister to exempt RWWA from including any matter listed above.

<sup>221</sup> That is, that the Minister and the RWWA board do not reach an agreement on the draft SDP.

<sup>222</sup> Section 72 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>223</sup> Section 73(2) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>224</sup> The significance of this is discussed later in this section.

<sup>225</sup> Section 77 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Minister's power in relation to the Statement of Corporate Intent (SCI)

The Minister may request that the board considers any matter and revises the Statement of Corporate Intent accordingly. The board must comply with this request as soon as practicable. The SCI must be tabled in Parliament within 14 days of receipt by the Minister.<sup>226</sup> RWWA may request—and the Minister can comply, that a commercially sensitive matter be deleted from the tabled SCI. If this is the case, the tabled SCI must contain a statement detailing the reasons for the deletion in its place—together with an opinion on the commercial sensitivity of the deleted portion from the Auditor General.<sup>227</sup>

It is interesting to note that whilst the Minister does not have any provision to alter the SCI once it has been tabled, Section 80 prescribes that the Statement of Corporate Intent can be modified by the RWWA board.

(iii) Other prescribed roles with respect to accountability

Other than the Minister's role in the development and approval of SDPs and SCIs, the Minister for Racing and Gaming has limited involvement in the accountability operations of RWWA:

- Section 83 prescribes that the Minister is entitled to access, copy and retain information and documents from RWWA and any subsidiary and that RWWA is to comply with this request and make staff and facilities available for this process to be carried out;
- RWWA is also required to keep the Minister reasonably informed of its operations, financial performance and financial position of RWWA and its subsidiaries, including information such as 'assets and liabilities, profits and losses and prospects of RWWA and its subsidiaries.'<sup>228</sup> This includes notifying the Minister if any matter arises that will significantly impact on RWWA's ability to either achieve the targets contained in its Strategic Development Plan or the objectives outlined in its Statement of Corporate Intent.<sup>229</sup>
- If RWWA or a subsidiary becomes unable to fulfil, or is likely to be unable to fulfil—any financial obligation of RWWA or a subsidiary, notice must be given to the Minister in writing and include the reasons for the board's opinion and any information determined by the board to be relevant. There is no prescribed time frame within which this notice to the Minister must be carried out;<sup>230</sup>
- RWWA's accounts and managements records must be kept in a place approved by the Gaming and Wagering Commission ('the Commission'), which also has access to those records.<sup>231</sup>

<sup>226</sup> Section 79 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>227</sup> Sections 79(2) and 79(3) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>228</sup> Section 84(a) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>229</sup> Sections 83 and 84 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>230</sup> Section 85 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>231</sup> Section 8 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

No prescribed role exists under the RWWA Act for the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor. Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General of DRGL noted that the Department has reduced involvement in the racing and wagering industry compared to the previous system of governance under the principal clubs and the Totalisator Agency Board. He summed up the role of the Department in the following way:

I still control the correspondence and complaints that come through about RWWA and other matters. I get involved in some of the broad government policy but a lot of it is generated through RWWA. My agency does not have that involvement. I still regulate the TAB through the Gaming and Wagering Commission. We still regulate the bookmakers through the Gaming and Wagering Commission.<sup>232</sup>

Significantly, Section 81 of the RWWA Act states that RWWA is not subject to direction from government and—except as provided by the Act, RWWA is not required to comply with any direction or administrative request made by or on behalf of government. It is also important to note that RWWA has a duty under Section 28 of the RWWA Act to perform its functions in accordance with its SDP and SCI and while RWWA also has a duty to act on commercial principles, where there is a conflict the SDP and SCI prevail.<sup>233</sup>

Other legislated accountability requirements are as follows:

- RWWA is subject to the provisions of the Financial Management Act 2006; and the Auditor General Act 2006;<sup>234</sup>
- The Minister may (with the concurrence of the Treasurer) impose monetary limits on what RWWA can borrow/obtain in the form of credit;<sup>235</sup>
- RWWA is subject to regulation by the Gaming and Wagering Commission for many of its prescribed functions, including the licensing of its Directors and Key Employees;<sup>236</sup>
- The Commissioner of State Revenue has the power to access and inspect RWWA premises, including totalisators, totalisator agencies and other premises of RWWA and to perform other duties as required;<sup>237</sup> and
- A police officer, RWWA director, steward or authorised person can enter any of RWWA's premises to audit, inspect and determine that the requirements of the RWWA Act 2003 are being met;<sup>238</sup>

<sup>232</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, pp8-9.

<sup>233</sup> Section 29 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>234</sup> Section 108 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>235</sup> Section 98 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>236</sup> Sections 14 and 24 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>237</sup> Section 114 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

The Committee notes that whilst there is obviously a suite of legislation to which RWWA must comply and that will, in practice, contribute to the overall accountability framework,<sup>239</sup> they are nonetheless outside the scope of this Inquiry. The Committee will therefore not examine the impact of these—other than to acknowledge that RWWA is subject to external accountability requirements which involve considerable reporting and administrative demands.

Finding 21

Racing and Wagering Western Australia is subject to external accountability requirements which involve considerable reporting and administrative demands.

(b) Views on the accountability of RWWA and mechanisms to improve accountability

The Committee received evidence highlighting concerns regarding the exercise of RWWA's accountability functions. In this regard the majority of stakeholders felt that RWWA has a broad obligation to industry participants to be accountable for its financial operations and its strategic decision making processes. Correspondingly, industry participants were generally of the view that RWWA should be accountable to government, either directly or through the development and tabling of the Statement of Corporate Intent. Lastly, racing clubs in particular noted that there was no external accountability mechanism that allowed clubs the ability to appeal decisions by RWWA which would impact significantly on a club. Feedback surrounding these points are summarised briefly here along with suggested mechanisms for improvement.

(i) RWWA's accountability for financial operations and transparency regarding its strategic decision making processes

A number of stakeholders expressed the opinion that there is a lack of accountability with respect to general decision making processes within RWWA. The main comments put to the Committee can be summarised as follows:

- Some very big decisions have been made by RWWA that affect a lot of people in the industry but there is no accountability about who makes those decisions;<sup>240</sup>

<sup>238</sup> Section 113 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003. This right to enter includes premises of totalisators, totalisator agencies and other premises of RWWA or any racecourse; race club or other sporting venue where wagering takes place; or any premises where a racing horse or greyhound is kept, trained or raced.

<sup>239</sup> Examples of other legislation that contribute to the accountability framework of RWWA are: Racing Restriction Act 2003; Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987; Betting Control Act 1954; and the Statutory Corporations (Liabilities of Directors) Act 1996; Equal Opportunity Act 1984. In addition, there are clearly a vast number of general legislation requirements such as Corruption and Crime Commission Act 2003; the Freedom of Information Act 1992; Public Interest Disclosure Act 2003; Occupational Safety and Health Act 1984; Equal Opportunity Act 1984; Criminal Code Act 1913 (WA) and Criminal Code Act 1995 (Commonwealth) and the Trade Practice Act 1974.

<sup>240</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Vice Chair, Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p12.

- The [Northam Race Club] is totally unaware of the decision-making process within RWWA and what their priorities are;<sup>241</sup>
- RWWA does not seem answerable to the industry and is not open about its decision making processes;<sup>242</sup>
- RWWA needs to become more accountable, particularly in regard to its responsibility to administer the racing industry because if unchecked, RWWA will simply focus on growing its wagering interests;<sup>243</sup> and
- RWWA appears to have no accountability in many areas and seems intent to grow metropolitan racing to the detriment of regional WA.<sup>244</sup>

There was concern expressed over the lack of accountability with respect to RWWA's financial operations. Both wagering and racing stakeholders claimed that there is a lack of accountability surrounding the manner in which RWWA spends money before it is distributed to the codes—particularly in regard to the operating costs of RWWA.<sup>245</sup>

Mr Tony Marwick, Northam Race Club, noted that there is a lack of explanation concerning the rationale behind RWWA's funding decisions. He said of RWWA that whilst he understood RWWA needs to make decisions as the governing body, it is not transparent and many clubs are in the dark regarding why a funding model has been presented, what the logic is behind it, and where RWWA has gathered its information on which to base its decisions.<sup>246</sup> Mr Robert Tomlinson, BOTRA, said that the harness industry would benefit greatly if there was more transparency about where funding distributions were going—whether it is into infrastructure; racing, or stakes, as it would help participants plan for the future.<sup>247</sup>

Evidence was also received by the Committee suggesting a lack of information put to clubs regarding the financial performance of clubs relative to each other. It was noted that prior to the advent of RWWA, each club was able to see how well another club was performing—which in turn would assist the club to gauge its performance, and would allow clubs to have a complete understanding of how and where club funding was being distributed.<sup>248</sup> Mrs Margaret Skinner, Mt

<sup>241</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p2.

<sup>242</sup> Mr Kenneth Godley, President, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p2.

<sup>243</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary/Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p8.

<sup>244</sup> Submission No. 12 from Narrogin Racing, 30 November 2009, p6.

<sup>245</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p3; Mr Dino Di Cianno, Director, Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p14; Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p10.

<sup>246</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p2.

<sup>247</sup> Mr Robert Tomlinson, President, Breeders, Owners, Trainers, Reinspersons Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p5.

<sup>248</sup> Mr Kenneth Nottle, President, Harvey District Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p12; Submission No. 13 from Mt Barker Turf Club, 30 November 2009, p2.

Barker Turf Club, noted that the previous system would contribute to the overall accountability on club funding, as every aspect of it was open:

Everybody in the provincial association knew exactly where every club was and what their stake money was. Every aspect of each club's finances was clear.<sup>249</sup>

Mrs Skinner continued that because these figures are no longer shared, clubs have to rely on each other to share this information in order to gauge how they are faring compared to their competitors; how clubs in particular areas are performing overall and to establish where the money is going.<sup>250</sup> When asked if it would be useful to know what competing clubs are doing and how much turnover they are producing, Mr Paul Rossiter of the Bunbury Turf Club noted that it would be hugely beneficial to clubs.<sup>251</sup>

In summary therefore, the feedback received by the Committee shows that there is a perceived lack of transparency about decision making processes within RWWA. It is apparent that this issue is having a negative impact on the industry. This is evidenced by the CRA's view that there is a sense of deficiency about the accountability of RWWA board decisions which has led to 'a feeling of distrust and concern between parties'.<sup>252</sup> It is the Committee's opinion that if this issue is allowed to continue, it will have an increasingly negative impact on the effectiveness of the operations of RWWA. As such, the Committee finds that this issue should be explored further and remedied by RWWA as a priority.

Finding 22

Industry participants perceive a lack of transparency with respect to Racing and Wagering Western Australia's decision making processes, which if not addressed as a matter of priority will risk undermining its operational effectiveness.

As noted in Chapter 2.2, a basic principle of good governance—of which accountability is an integral part—is preserving stakeholder confidence.<sup>253</sup> It is not unreasonable that a stakeholder may therefore feel a lack of confidence about decisions if they are unable to determine the quality of information being factored into—or have any knowledge of, any decision making process. Conversely, if RWWA was to be more accountable about its decision making processes, stakeholder confidence in these decisions may increase which could—in turn, increase the overall operational effectiveness of RWWA. The Committee therefore recommends that RWWA

<sup>249</sup> Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2009, p8.

<sup>250</sup> Ibid.

<sup>251</sup> Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, pp7-9.

<sup>252</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, pp3-4.

<sup>253</sup> ASX, 'Corporate Governance Principles and Recommendations with 2010 Amendments, 2nd Edition', 2007. Available at: www.asx.com.au/about/pdf/cg\_principles\_recommendations\_with\_2010\_amendments.pdf Accessed on 31 August 2010.

discloses its decision making procedures as this would facilitate a greater understanding among industry stakeholders of how long-term planning decisions are made.

Recommendation 12

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia publicly discloses its overarching decision making procedures to provide greater transparency to the industry.

The Committee received extensive feedback about the lack of open and up to date sharing of individual club financial information. It was asserted that this is becoming a barrier to stakeholder confidence. The Committee finds that, given this evidence, there is merit in clubs being made aware of their relative financial performance so that there is clear and open accountability in regard to club financing. While the Committee acknowledges that RWWA currently publishes annual Racing Industry Status Reports, which compare racing statistics and turnover for the season just gone, the criticism seems to relate primarily to openness surrounding the allocation of funds to clubs for the season to come. As such, the Committee finds that greater transparency measures should be introduced to enable one club to see another club's finances in the context of RWWA's distribution of funds.

Finding 23

Evidence suggests that in terms of forward planning it would be advantageous if race clubs are made aware of their financial performance compared with other clubs.

Recommendation 13

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia introduces transparency measures to facilitate greater awareness among race clubs of relative financial performance.

(ii) Accountability to government

The former Minister for Racing and Gaming, Hon. Nick Griffiths contends that the RWWA Act, when passed, went 'a long way in getting rid of government from the racing industry, and the job should be completed'.<sup>254</sup> Mr Griffiths is of the view that the industry should be left to run the industry—that the Minister should not appoint the chair of the board, indeed that there is no need to have a racing minister or the Department of Racing Gaming and Liquor.<sup>255</sup> Mr Griffiths' rationale is that 'there is no benefit at all in having government involved in these activities'.<sup>256</sup> Interestingly, the Committee sought the broad opinion of industry participants on the view put forward by the former Minister, and it became clear that widespread support is lacking for RWWA to become completely independent of government, a matter discussed further in the context of the structure of RWWA in Chapter 2.10.

<sup>254</sup> Hon. Nicholas Griffiths, Former Minister for Racing and Gaming, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p9.

Stakeholders held the view that some governmental oversight within RWWA's accountability framework was beneficial for the racing and wagering industry.<sup>257</sup> Mr Robert Bovell, WATA, went so far as to say that allowing RWWA to be completely independent of government could be a dangerous thing because it would give RWWA absolute power and remove the ability of any club or any government to have a say.<sup>258</sup>

Evidence to the Inquiry suggested that government oversight is necessary, and because RWWA currently requires the assistance of government to meet its burgeoning capital infrastructure requirements, it is appropriate that RWWA is held accountable to the government for the funding it receives.<sup>259</sup> Similarly, Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman of RWWA, noted that because RWWA will need to call on the government in extraordinary circumstances<sup>260</sup> it is not reasonable to expect that RWWA can be independent of government and that, if it did occur, the implications would be felt across the industry.

It is unrealistic to expect that we can be totally removed from some sort of government oversight. That would have social and community implications across the state. I am inclined to think that the present model is the preferable one.<sup>261</sup>

Mr Kevin Jeavons of BOTRA asserted that RWWA is dependent on government for funding and given that this will continue to happen in one form or another, the government should know how these funds are spent.<sup>262</sup>

---

<sup>255</sup> Ibid., pp8-9.

<sup>256</sup> Ibid., p9. By proposing that the racing and wagering industry should be completely independent from government, the former racing minister assumes that there is no public money involved in funding the industry—which is a fact not supported by the views above nor the findings of this Inquiry. Refer to Chapter 2.2 Governance) and 2.8 (Taxation) for a discussion on the public nature of RWWA's funds.

<sup>257</sup> Mr Brian Paddock, Secretary, Western Australian Racing Trainers Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p11; Mr Rodney O'Bree, Chairman, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p12; Mr Harvey Crossman, President, Western Australian Racehorse Owners Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p2.

<sup>258</sup> Mr Robert Bovell, Chief Executive, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p8.

<sup>259</sup> The implications of this view are discussed in Chapter 2.8 (Taxation) of this Report.

<sup>260</sup> Such as the current financial pressures that RWWA is facing - refer to Chapter 2.9 (Wagering revenues) for detail.

<sup>261</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p19.

<sup>262</sup> Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, Harness Racing Owners Association of Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p18.

Another argument for RWWA to remain accountable to government relates to the fact that the industry encompasses community and country aspects of racing that are not necessarily commercially profitable. The evidence from stakeholders suggests that because RWWA is largely focused on increasing wagering turnover, this could potentially occur at the expense of community and country clubs which have limited opportunity to profitably compete. As such, country and community clubs require the oversight and protection of the government to ensure their continued existence.<sup>263</sup> The Geraldton Turf Club stated that country clubs would be wary if there was less government involvement.<sup>264</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, Northam Race Club, suggested that Ministerial oversight as it currently exists is necessary; otherwise, if RWWA was to become completely independent, the community aspects of racing will be surrendered because they are not profitable enough:

It is not all about financial decisions; it is about communities, the industry and industry participants all through the state. If [RWWA] are allowed to be totally independent, you may well find...that you have a lot of these small community clubs fall off the cliff.<sup>265</sup>

Evidence therefore suggests that the majority of stakeholders would prefer that the Minister retains the current involvement in the racing and wagering industry for accountability purposes.

Finding 24

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should be accountable to government and it is appropriate for the Minister for Racing and Gaming to retain the current level of involvement in the accountability framework.

(iii) External accountability mechanisms

The third major component of evidence to the Committee concerned external accountability mechanisms that would enable clubs to appeal decisions by RWWA. This matter is discussed in greater detail in Chapter 2.5.

(c) The need for a Statement of Corporate Intent and other accountability mechanisms

In 2009, the Auditor General noted that RWWA had not tabled an SCI for the 2008 or 2009 financial years.<sup>266</sup> The CRA highlighted the fact that RWWA has not posted a Statement of <sup>263</sup> Ministerial oversight has also been propounded by clubs in the context of an external accountability measure for clubs appealing decisions made by RWWA. Appeals are discussed in Chapter 2.5.

<sup>264</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p12.

<sup>265</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, pp7-8.

<sup>266</sup> Western Australian Auditor General, Audit Results Report 2008-09 Assurance Audits, November 2009, p27. Available at: www.audit.wa.gov.au/reports/pdfreports/report2009\_13.pdf Accessed on 1 July 2010.

Corporate Intent on its website for some years and that it is ‘unclear that these vital documents even exist’.<sup>267</sup>

It could be argued therefore that the Statement of Corporate Intent is not really effective as an accountability mechanism and could be removed as a requirement that RWWA has to satisfy. The former Racing and Wagering Minister, Hon. Nick Griffiths, was very strong in his opposition to the requirement for RWWA to submit an SDP or an SCI. He argued that these mechanisms were put in place merely to help the passage of the bill through Parliament and should not continue as they place an unnecessary burden by government on the industry:

Why should there be a need for this industry...to prepare and submit for approval an annual strategic development plan? This uses up resources, and it is not done in a timely way anyway. Why should it be required to prepare and submit for tabling in Parliament an annual statement of corporate intent? These provisions for the most part are there because I had to get the job done...so I put in place these bells and whistles... But I do not think they should exist.<sup>268</sup>

This view was put to Mr Barry Sargeant of DRGL who responded that both the SCI and the Strategic Development Plan were appropriate accountability mechanisms for RWWA as long as it remains a statutory body.<sup>269</sup> He summed up the process as follows:

The requirement is that [RWWA] have to submit only their strategic development plan to the minister and it is approved by the Treasurer. The statement of corporate intent is the only one that is tabled. The other remains a confidential document. That comes back to the philosophy of whether you want it within government or not... If you expect the public purse to support it, it is fair enough for the public purse to look at what the liabilities are and what is happening. It is a philosophical position...The government basically still has responsibility for much of it; therefore, it is only appropriate that the government of the day sees what is going on.<sup>270</sup>

Given therefore, that the Committee has found it appropriate that RWWA should remain within the auspices of the government,<sup>271</sup> Mr Sargeant’s argument suggests that RWWA should continue to comply with Sections 66 and 75 of the RWWA Act. It is important to note that the powers of the Minister in relation to the drafting and approval of any draft strategic plan are arguably the most prescriptive in the context of directing any operational aspect of RWWA. This is primarily because Section 81 states that unless specifically prescribed under the RWWA Act, RWWA is not otherwise subject to direction from government. The Committee’s view is that it is appropriate for RWWA to provide information to the Minister on the strategic direction of RWWA—and that the

<sup>267</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p4.

<sup>268</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, Former Minister for Racing and Gaming, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, pp8-9.

<sup>269</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.2 (c)(ii) on Governance for detail on the establishment of RWWA as a statutory body.

<sup>270</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p6.

<sup>271</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.10 (Structure of RWWA) for a discussion on the Committee’s findings.

Minister, as the representative of the government of the day, can in turn provide input into the future direction of the racing and wagering industry.

A further aspect to consider when examining the need for RWWA to table an SCI is the needs of stakeholders. Industry stakeholders and the broader community are of the view that RWWA has an obligation to the industry to be more accountable—which supports the tabling of an SCI. Industry participants have strong regard for the direction RWWA is proposing for the industry. Determining a particular direction must necessarily involve strategic decisions—many of which may financially impact on industry participants with vested interests. It is therefore fitting that these stakeholders are able to have access to what RWWA intends to achieve. Whilst the SDP is confidential, the SCI is a public document which, if tabled, can be accessed by all industry participants. Significant too is that RWWA is obligated to perform its functions in accordance with its SCI.<sup>272</sup> As such, this accountability mechanism is critical for ensuring that RWWA is a more responsive and transparent organisation.

Finding 25

The preparation of a Strategic Development Plan and subsequent tabling of a Statement of Corporate Intent is a necessary accountability measure for Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

(i) Mechanisms to improve the SCI

Given the relative importance of the SDP and SCI, the Committee was concerned that RWWA had not tabled a SCI since the 2007 financial year. When asked to explain, RWWA stated that it had in fact submitted a draft SDP to the Minister for approval in the two years since 2007 but the Treasurer did not concur with either of them.<sup>273</sup> As such, RWWA was unable to prepare an SCI based on an approved SDP.<sup>274</sup> It is clear that being unable to table an SCI is currently limiting RWWA's accountability efforts. The state government's Economic Audit Committee Final Report made note of this problem as it generally applies to Government Trading Enterprises (GTEs),<sup>275</sup> stating that:

<sup>272</sup> This relates to RWWA's duty under Section 28 of the RWWA Act to perform its functions in accordance with its SDP and SCI.

<sup>273</sup> Submission No. 7D from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2 August 2010, p17.

<sup>274</sup> Sections 72 and 74 provide that the Minister cannot agree to a draft strategic development plan (thus becoming the strategic development plan for the relevant financial year) except with the Treasurer's concurrence; and Section 75 prescribes that the SCI must be based on the relevant strategic plan for the financial year to which the SCI relates.

<sup>275</sup> Page 110 of the Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009 (Government of Western Australia, Perth) distinguishes a GTE from other parts of the public sector by the fact that GTE's charge for the goods and services they provide and are in most cases self-financing.

The State Solicitor's Office has recently advised the term concur prevents the Treasurer from being able to impose any conditions or restrictions on the operation of the SCI and SDP. This is inconsistent with the intent of the wording, which seeks to recognise the role of the Treasurer and the impact of the operation of GTEs on the government's finances more generally.<sup>276</sup>

As such, the Committee recommends that Section 74 of the RWWA Act be amended to include the ability of the Treasurer to offer some direction on the operation of the SDP and SCI. In so doing it is hoped that the impediment can be removed thereby allowing for an SCI to be tabled.

Recommendation 14

That, in order to expedite the approval process of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's Strategic Development Plan, Section 74 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to allow the Treasurer to impose some direction on the draft Strategic Development Plan.

Despite the Committee finding that the SDP and SCI are effective accountability tools, there is room for improvement—particularly in regard to the sort of information that is included in the SCI. As noted earlier, Sections 68 and 77 of the RWWA Act require the SDP and the SCI to contain specific information. These provisions are in some cases generic performance measures that may not necessarily apply to the 'mixed bowl of lollies'<sup>277</sup> that comprise the racing and wagering industry—and may in fact, hinder the efforts of RWWA to be accountable.

The challenge for RWWA with some of these provisions is how it can produce measures across all codes and wagering that will be meaningful to stakeholders. Further exacerbating the effectiveness of these mechanisms is that because the requirements are set in legislation, the capacity of RWWA to include matters that more appropriately reflect changing operational environments are limited.<sup>278</sup> The Committee proposes that in order for the SDP and SCI to be effective accountability measures, the information contained therein must be useful to the industry, to RWWA, and to the government. The Committee therefore finds that the content requirements for the SDP and the SCI should more appropriately be specified in regulation to allow for greater flexibility in the face of changing market conditions. Further, that the current requirements be reviewed to ensure that the information contained within the SDP and the SCI is meaningful and relevant to the current operations of RWWA.

<sup>276</sup> Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 2009, p118.

<sup>277</sup> Mr David Simonette, CEO, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p10.

<sup>278</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.9(a) for a discussion on the market challenges that are impacting on RWWA's current operational environment.

Recommendation 15

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming reviews the content requirements of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's Strategic Development Plan and Statement of Corporate Intent.

Recommendation 16

That content requirements of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's Strategic Development Plan and Statement of Corporate Intent be specified in regulation.

One final aspect of RWWA's accountability provisions is outlined in Sections 84 and 85 of the RWWA Act. As detailed earlier, RWWA must keep the Minister informed of any operational or financial aspects of RWWA operations that may significantly impinge on its effectiveness. RWWA must provide notice to the Minister if it or a subsidiary becomes unable to fulfil, or is likely to be unable to fulfil—any financial obligation. Given the serious market challenges that RWWA currently faces, the Committee recommends that Section 85 of the RWWA Act be amended to include a timeframe within which this notice to the Minister must be carried out.

Recommendation 17

That section 85 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a reasonable timeframe within which notice of financial difficulty must be given by Racing and Wagering Western Australia to the Minister.

2.5 Appealing decisions by RWWA

During the course of the Inquiry, the Committee heard various grievances from industry participants regarding decisions made by RWWA. While it is not the purpose of this Inquiry to investigate individual complaints, the Committee has examined points raised in evidence only so far as it highlights more generic concerns. Issues largely relate to RWWA's decision making processes and/or avenues available for industry participants to appeal decisions made by RWWA.

While RWWA has primary responsibility for the control, supervision and regulation of the three racing codes as well as prescribed wagering functions in WA, other bodies also play an integrity assurance role with respect to racing and gambling operations in this state and have a bearing on appeals. Among them is the Gaming and Wagering Commission which is responsible for administering gaming and wagering law in Western Australia and has certain responsibilities under the RWWA Act.<sup>279</sup> These include licensing RWWA directors and key employees and regulating the conduct of wagering operations by RWWA. The Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor (DRGL) facilitates and provides executive support to the Commission and also the Racing Penalties Appeal Tribunal (RPAT).<sup>280</sup> The latter is an independent judicial body established under the Racing Penalties (Appeals) Act 1990 which is tasked with ‘hearing and determining appeals against penalties imposed in disciplinary proceedings arising from, or in relation to, the conduct of greyhound racing, horse racing and harness racing’.<sup>281</sup> Parties aggrieved by a decision made by RWWA or a determination of a steward or committee of a racing club may lodge an appeal to RPAT within 14 days of the decision being handed down.<sup>282</sup> A visual representation of how the integrity assurance framework in WA is structured<sup>283</sup> is reproduced at Appendix Five.

(a) Issues

Evidence suggests that existing mechanisms to appeal RWWA’s decisions are ineffective. Some of the points raised by industry participants can be summarised as follows:

- There is no formal appeal body for TAB agents;<sup>284</sup>
- Appeals against RWWA’s decisions are reviewed by RWWA which is itself the decision maker;<sup>285</sup>
- There is no clear avenue of appeal for decisions made by RWWA;<sup>286</sup>
- The Committee also received several specific complaints which commented on individual cases and highlighted the unsatisfactory handling of issues/appeals by RWWA,<sup>287</sup> the Gaming and Wagering Commission,<sup>288</sup> or RPAT.<sup>289</sup>

<sup>279</sup> Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, ‘The Role of the Gaming and Wagering Commission of Western Australia’, January 2010. Available at: www.rgl.wa.gov.au/Default.aspx?NodeId=68&DocId=128 Accessed on 25 June 2010.

<sup>280</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p2.

<sup>281</sup> Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, ‘The role of Racing Penalties Appeal Tribunal’, 24 September 2007. Available at: www.rgl.wa.gov.au/Default.aspx?NodeId=68&DocId=130 Accessed on 18 September 2010.

<sup>282</sup> Section 13 Racing Penalties (Appeals) Act 1990.

<sup>283</sup> Diagram taken from Judge G.D. Lewis, AM, A Report on Integrity Assurance in the Victorian Racing Industry, 1 August 2008, p94. Available at: www.justice.vic.gov.au/wps/wcm/connect/e2d0aa80404a6ff3a2befbf5f2791d4a/Lewis+Report+-+Integrity+Assurance+-+Vic+Racing+Industry+Aug+08.pdf?MOD=AJPERES Accessed on 18 September 2010.

<sup>284</sup> Submission No. 16 from Morley TAB Agents, 27 November 2009, p3.

<sup>285</sup> Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents’ Association, 30 November 2009, p8.

<sup>286</sup> Submission No. 13 from Mt Barker Turf Club, 30 November 2009, p2; Mrs Lesley Solly, President, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p13.

<sup>287</sup> Submission No. 4 from Mr N.A. Harman, 19 November 2009, pp1-13.

<sup>288</sup> Submission No. 11 from Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd, 30 November 2009, p7.

<sup>289</sup> Submission No. 27 from Mr L. Harper, 21 December 2009, p3.

As alluded to in Chapter 2.4 (Accountability), a particular subset of stakeholder concerns pertained to RWWA's decisions to close race clubs or reduce a club's meetings. Comments were largely influenced by RWWA's decisions affecting two race clubs, namely the Mt Barker Turf Club, and Geraldton Harness Racing Club. In April 2010 immediately prior to the launch of RWWA's vision statements for the thoroughbred and harness racing codes, the Mt Barker Turf Club was advised that two of its eight meetings would be reallocated to Albany from the 2010-11 season, and the Geraldton Harness Racing Club was advised that it would not receive any race dates for 2010-11, effectively closing the club.<sup>290</sup> The latter caused significant industry concern,<sup>291</sup> particularly with regard to the manner in which Geraldton Harness Racing Club was closed. Concerns put to the Committee by industry participants reflected perceptions that:

- RWWA had not consulted adequately;<sup>292</sup> and
- RWWA had not given due consideration to all pertinent factors when making the decision.<sup>293</sup>

The Geraldton Harness Racing Club stressed that there was no prior indication from RWWA that the club would not receive further meeting allocations until the decision had already been made, highlighting RWWA's poor communication with the club. The club also indicated that it had always performed well financially,<sup>294</sup> questioning factors considered by RWWA in its decision making. RWWA cited the lack of locally based horses and trainers as the primary reason for its decision but indicated that other factors, including wider regional implications, were taken into account.<sup>295</sup>

A contrary view was held by Hon. Grant Woodhams, MLA, Member for Moore and patron of the Geraldton Harness Racing Club. It was suggested that RWWA's decision making was flawed since the club could clearly demonstrate it had met three key criteria, specifically: its location in a major growth region of the state; access to Sky Vision which had been secured by the club; and infrastructure needs that were already in place courtesy of the club's co-location with the Geraldton Turf Club.<sup>296</sup> The Committee is particularly concerned that RWWA did not negotiate

<sup>290</sup> The proposals for the Mt Barker Turf Club and Geraldton Harness Racing Club are reflected in RWWA's documents, Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Racing Industry (p13); and Protecting our Product: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Harness Industry (p12) respectively.

<sup>291</sup> Rooney, J., 'Trots legend Kersley angry over Geraldton axe', The West Australian (online edition), 5 August 2010; 'Woodhams slams harness club closure', Geraldton Guardian, 23 August 2010, p25.

<sup>292</sup> Mr Peter Dempster, President, Northam Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p3; Mr Kerry Clarke, President, WASBA, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p19; Mr Robert Tomlinson, President, BOTRA, 7 May 2010, Transcript of Evidence, p19.

<sup>293</sup> Mr Rob Deadman, Secretary, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p4; Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, HROAWA, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p11; Mr Gino Monaco, President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p8.

<sup>294</sup> Mr Graham Cox, President, Geraldton Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p2.

<sup>295</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p19.

<sup>296</sup> Submission No. 48 from Hon. Grant Woodhams, MLA, 13 September 2010, pp1-2.

for Sky Vision coverage on behalf of the club and therefore it had no chance to improve its immediate viability.

Finding 26

There is significant industry concern regarding Racing and Wagering Western Australia's decision to close the Geraldton Harness Racing Club, particularly with regard to a perceived lack of consultation, support, and consideration of other pertinent factors.

Finding 27

Racing and Wagering Western Australia's failure to negotiate for Sky Vision coverage gave the Geraldton Harness Racing Club no chance to improve its immediate viability.

Other evidence received by the Committee revealed a general sense of uncertainty among clubs and, in many cases, a desire to be able to contest RWWA's decisions particularly those relating to club closure. The uncertainty among small clubs, especially country/community clubs, at the threat of being closed down by RWWA is encapsulated in the following statement by Mr Brett Taylor of the Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club:

It is always a worry for a small club. Are we going to be here next year? ... A lot of us do it because we love the sport. If we lost our club a lot of us would leave. That will not do the industry any good whatsoever ... We just do not know how long we have or how we stand in the grand scheme of things.<sup>297</sup>

A similar concern was articulated by Mr Brendon Gardiner of the Bridgetown Harness Racing Club:

But what we do not have is any guarantees for the future. Each year you have got your fingers crossed, waiting for the race dates to come out to see if you have been wiped off the map or not. Financially, at the moment, the club is pretty sound, but ... as a club gets chopped off the bottom of the ladder, you are one closer to the chopping block.<sup>298</sup>

Other issues conveyed to the Committee in this regard can be summarised as follows:

- Small clubs lack leverage with RWWA from a wagering point of view and are easy targets for closure;<sup>299</sup>

<sup>297</sup> Mr Brett Taylor, President, Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p15.

<sup>298</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary/Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p3.

<sup>299</sup> Mr Alf Paganoni, Past President, WA Country Harness Racing Association, 26 February 2010, p9; Mr Kevin Spurr, Vice President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p15.

- Based on RWWA's policies, looking ahead there is little prospect for small clubs except the threat of closure;<sup>300</sup>
- RWWA's processes for reducing meetings in outer country areas are not understood by industry participants and seem counterintuitive when clubs are told their meetings have been removed because the industry is struggling and yet these same meetings appear to be awarded to other clubs;<sup>301</sup>
- Sufficient community support should protect community clubs from closure;<sup>302</sup>
- The only recourse available to a club facing closure is to try appealing to the Minister but the Minister lacks power under the RWWA Act to reverse the board's decision;<sup>303</sup>
- RWWA is quick to make a decision that will adversely affect a club without first providing a club with assistance so it can improve its performance;<sup>304</sup>
- While closing a club may contain costs, it has significant impacts from the perspective of people lost to the industry;<sup>305</sup>
- It is uncertain where the cost savings achieved from club closure actually go;<sup>306</sup>
- The closure of a racing club should be the last resort and RWWA should assist the club in the first instance.<sup>307</sup>

From the evidence, it is clear to the Committee that race clubs experience uncertainty with respect to race programming and the effects this may have on long-term survival. Further, there appears to be a lack of clarity among industry participants as to the factors which RWWA considers when making its decisions and where the purported cost savings (from closing a club for example) actually go. These matters largely speak to inadequacies in RWWA's consultation and reporting processes which are explored further in Chapter 2.6.

In the present context of decisions which adversely affect a club or code, the Committee believes that it is critical for RWWA to adopt a more consultative and transparent approach.

---

<sup>300</sup> Mr Kevin Spurr, Vice President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p15.

<sup>301</sup> Mr Brett Snell, Past President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p12.

<sup>302</sup> Mr Peter Hemsley, Secretary, Collie Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p6.

<sup>303</sup> Mr Kevin Spurr, Vice President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p15; Mr John Biggs, Representative, NE Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p8.

<sup>304</sup> Mr Rob Deadman, Secretary, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, pp2-3; Mr Graham Cox, President, Geraldton Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p2.

<sup>305</sup> Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, WA Harness Racing Owners' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p10.

<sup>306</sup> Mr Robert Tomlinson, President, Breeders Owners Trainers and Reinspersons Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p11.

<sup>307</sup> Mr Geoffrey Warwick, Vice President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p8.

Finding 28

It is critical that Racing and Wagering Western Australia adopts a more consultative and transparent approach regarding any decisions that will impact significantly on a racing club or code.

Adding to the uncertainty experienced by clubs is a pervading sense of powerlessness at not being able to appeal a decision by RWWA to reduce a club's meetings or to close a club. The only avenue available at present is for clubs to appeal to the board of RWWA.

Finding 29

Many small clubs feel powerless at not being able to appeal to a body other than Racing and Wagering Western Australia against a decision by Racing and Wagering Western Australia to reduce a club's meetings or to close a club. This was particularly evident in the cases of the Mt Barker Turf Club and the Geraldton Harness Racing Club.

(b) Mechanisms to enhance the appeals process

The RWWA Act does not define a dedicated appeal body or conflict resolution process. This is largely due to multiple external bodies having responsibility for investigating and/or adjudicating on different aspects of racing and wagering. As mentioned above, racing penalties come under the jurisdiction of the RPAT. By virtue of racing related matters being dealt with by a dedicated independent judicial panel, RWWA is excluded from the jurisdiction of the Ombudsman under Schedule 1 of the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1971.<sup>308</sup> For the same reason, RWWA is outside the jurisdiction of the State Administrative Tribunal.<sup>309</sup>

The Gaming and Wagering Commission has significant investigatory powers with respect to RWWA's gambling operations. Section 109I of the Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987 enables it to investigate and deal with complaints from members of the public 'with respect to any aspect of the gambling operations of RWWA, and advise the complainant of the result of the complaint'. Mr Barry Sargeant of DRGL indicated that no formal complaints had been lodged with the Commission since RWWA's establishment although acknowledged that this could be <sup>308</sup> The Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1971 was amended to exclude RWWA as per Section 22 of the Racing and Gambling Legislation Amendment and Repeal Act 2003. The Ombudsman generally cannot investigate complaints which can be taken to a court or tribunal (as indicated by Ombudsman Western Australia, 'What you can complain about', nd. Available at: www.ombudsman.wa.gov.au/Complaints/What.htm Accessed on 24 September 2010).

<sup>309</sup> State Administrative Tribunal, 'Outside SAT's Scope', nd. Available at: www.sat.justice.wa.gov.au/M/mattersNotCovered.aspx?uid=3280-1879-1680-3393 Accessed on 27 September 2010.

because the Commission had not actively promoted this aspect of the legislation and people could be unaware of this function.<sup>310</sup>

Under Section 109J of the Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987, the Commission may (at its own instigation) report to the Minister and make recommendations as to any actions the Minister should take in relation to RWWA.<sup>311</sup> The Minister may also direct the Commission to inquire into the affairs of RWWA including but not limited to: RWWA's gambling operations; compliance with the RWWA Act and any other written laws; or suspected corruption.<sup>312</sup> Although this power has never been exercised, Mr Barry Sargeant of DRGL indicated that it is appropriate for an independent body like the Commission to have the power to investigate RWWA should this ever be required.<sup>313</sup> Mr Sargeant also emphasised that the Commission's investigatory powers are restricted to gambling related matters only:

It has got to be about gambling. We have not got a carte blanche authority to relate to other aspects of RWWA's operations.<sup>314</sup>

More broadly, the Corruption and Crime Commission has jurisdiction to investigate claims relating to misconduct by public officers,<sup>315</sup> the definition of which would include RWWA and its officers.<sup>316</sup>

With the exception of the abovementioned external investigatory and/or appeal mechanisms, RWWA is otherwise responsible for hearing and adjudicating on complaints that it receives.<sup>317</sup> The existence of multiple complaints/appeals pathways has highlighted two major issues to the Committee: firstly, the lack of information available for industry participants on where to go with a complaint or issue; and secondly, how issues that fall outside of existing appeal pathways should be dealt with effectively.

<sup>310</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, pp4-5.

<sup>311</sup> Under Section 109K of the Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987 actions the Minister could take in relation to RWWA include serving a letter of censure on RWWA, revoking the license of a director or ordering RWWA to pay a monetary penalty.

<sup>312</sup> Section 109J(3) Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987.

<sup>313</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p9.

<sup>314</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p5.

<sup>315</sup> Section 4 and Section 18 Corruption and Crime Commission Act 2003.

<sup>316</sup> Section 3 of the Corruption and Crime Commission Act 2003 gives the same definition of 'public officer' as Section 1 of the Criminal Code. The definition of 'public officer' under the Criminal Code includes 'a person exercising authority under a written law' (s1(ad)) and 'a member, officer or employee of any authority, board, corporation, commission, ..., established under a written law' (s1(d)).

<sup>317</sup> This would include wagering-related issues raised by TAB agents; and racing-related issues outside of racing penalties such as club closure and reductions in meetings.

(i) Greater definition of the appeals process

In the first instance, the Country Racing Association suggested that an appeal process should be defined and included in the RWWA Act in order to avoid confusion and protect the rights of individuals and associations.<sup>318</sup> The Committee concurs that complaint and appeals processes in relation to racing and wagering require clarification, however, the fact that multiple agencies play a role precludes definition in the RWWA Act. The Committee believes that clarification would best be achieved through better communication on the part of RWWA and other agencies, specifically DRGL on behalf of the RPAT and the Commission.

Finding 30

With some exceptions including club closure and reduction in meetings, there are other appeal pathways available for industry participants through bodies including the Racing Penalties Appeals Tribunal and the Gaming and Wagering Commission.

Recommendation 18

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia, in conjunction with the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, publishes guidance material for racing industry stakeholders and participants on how to lodge complaints and/or appeals.

(ii) Addressing issues that fall outside of existing appeal pathways

It is clear that external appeal mechanisms cover racing penalties and gambling related matters. The issue of club closure appears to fall between the gaps however as it is clearly not related to racing penalties or wagering. In this respect, RWWA is responsible for hearing appeals.

RWWA's procedure involves escalating complaints and disputes through a complaints handling system through the hierarchy. RWWA advised that its staff and managers are accessible by industry participants who may raise issues at any time without prejudice and in confidence. For racing related issues, matters may be escalated from racing code managers ultimately to the relevant board committee (in this case the Racing Operation Committee) and the board itself. Similarly, issues in relation to stewards may be brought to the attention of the IAC and ultimately the board itself.<sup>319</sup>

The right of a club to make representations to the RWWA board is provided for in Section 96 of the RWWA Act but only so far as it relates to loans and grants. Nonetheless RWWA has demonstrated that its internal dispute resolution process allows clubs to make representation to the board on more extensive grounds than those defined in the Act. In both the instances of the Mt Barker Turf Club and Geraldton Harness Racing Club, clubs presented their cases directly to the RWWA board. In the case of Mt Barker, RWWA revised its initial decision by agreeing to provide an extra race for every allocated meeting:

<sup>318</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p7.

<sup>319</sup> Submission No. 7D from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2 August 2010, p18.

They walked away, from where I sit, relatively contented in the fact that they knew they were going to have a future and that they had been listened to, on an appeal, by the board. I just thought it is important to demonstrate that there are areas where the board has made changes when compelling evidence has been put to us.<sup>320</sup>

Although a similar compromise could not be reached in relation to the Geraldton Harness Racing Club and RWWA's original decision stood, an avenue of appeal was made available to the club. Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA stressed that the decision of the board was made independently of Management's position and that the board took into consideration not only the club's perspective but written submissions from various sources including trainers, Geraldton stakeholders and the Mid West Development Commission:

All their submissions were put to the board independently. Their views were read by the board independently of management's view. The president of the Geraldton harness club...physically presented to the board. It was not like management receiving the input, changing it and presenting it.<sup>321</sup>

Some industry participants argued in favour of a right of appeal to either an independent body<sup>322</sup> or to the Minister for Racing and Gaming.<sup>323</sup> The Country Racing Association believes there should be a right of appeal to the Minister, although qualified this by stating that it should only exist in exceptional circumstances (such as closure of a race club):

We are of the opinion—this would only be in exceptional circumstances—that in the event that we wanted to appeal against any decision—“we” being any sector of the industry—who do we go to? RWWA is judge, jury and executioner. It is no good going to the people who have already made the decision. We would like to see incorporated in the act a right of appeal to the minister of the day so that in exceptional circumstances there is a preferred umpire.<sup>324</sup>

<sup>320</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p28.

<sup>321</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p20.

<sup>322</sup> Submission No. 5 from York Racing, 18 November 2009, p5.

<sup>323</sup> Submission No. 25 from Geraldton Turf Club, 25 November 2009, p4; Mr Gino Monaco, President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p7.

<sup>324</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p7.

The Wagin Trotting Club similarly supported greater Ministerial involvement whereby RWWA would not be able to take any action resulting in closure of a club without the approval of the Minister.<sup>325</sup>

Other industry participants acknowledged that RWWA had to make difficult decisions and provided this occurred with sufficient consultation beforehand, a third party appeals body or appealing to the Minister should not be necessary:

We do not want to go back to the days where everybody just rang their local parliamentarian or the minister and things got reversed for, sometimes, the wrong reasons. It is a very dangerous area in my view. Whilst you need them to run it—let us be honest, they are dependent on government anyway; for instance, some of these decisions they make are made on flexibility and turnover so it gets back to the government anyway. But if you put a middle person in to oversee them, I wonder if it will get too complicated in terms of an appeal process and people will be appealing all the time over everything.<sup>326</sup>

In a similar vein, RWWA reinforced the importance of staying at arm's length from government:

If this business was at the direction of the minister, you would have a situation in which you would not be able to pursue your strategic direction because whatever we do ruffles feathers because of these black and white attitudes. You would constantly have people going to the minister and the minister saying, "Don't do that" and the business would die; it would decline rapidly because you cannot bring innovation and change to the business. ... I think a good and very wise process was put in place with the RWWA Act that you did not have the ability of a group to be able to say that this is the way the industry is going to run. You are better off letting the industry run itself.<sup>327</sup>

The Committee believes that RWWA should retain the responsibility for hearing appeals in relation to matters not otherwise covered by external appeal bodies. It was established earlier<sup>328</sup> that the Minister's existing role in RWWA's accountability framework should remain. While existing levels of Ministerial involvement are warranted, the Committee finds it would be inappropriate to expand the Minister's role any further without compromising RWWA's operational independence.

Finding 31

Introducing a mechanism of appeal to the Minister would compromise the operational independence of Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

<sup>325</sup> Submission No. 42 from Wagin Trotting Club, 26 May 2010, p1.

<sup>326</sup> Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, WA Harness Racing Owners' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, pp14, 18.

<sup>327</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p19.

<sup>328</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.4(b) of this report.

Recommendation 19

That appeals to the Minister against Racing and Wagering Western Australia board decisions should not be established.

While the Committee acknowledges that RWWA's internal processes give clubs the opportunity to make direct representation to the board in instances where decisions will severely impact on a club's operations (such as meeting reduction or closure), this is currently not provided for in the Act. Section 96 only provides for a club to make representations in very limited circumstances of a financial nature. It would be appropriate for grounds to include any instance where a club's operations will be severely impacted as a consequence of RWWA's decisions.

Finding 32

Race clubs should have the opportunity to make representations to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board in instances of club closure or a significant reduction in meetings that will affect that club's long-term viability.

Recommendation 20

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a new provision for a club to make representations to the board in instances of club closure or a significant reduction in meetings that will affect a club's long-term viability.

2.6 Consultation

The RWWA Act requires RWWA to establish procedures for consulting with prescribed racing bodies and other prescribed bodies with an interest in the racing industry in relation to RWWA's operations.<sup>329</sup> Prescribed bodies are defined in the RWWA Regulations.<sup>330</sup> In accordance with this provision of the Act, RWWA established three code specific racing industry consultative groups which meet with RWWA representatives on a quarterly basis to provide industry feedback on racing operational policy and issues. The consultative groups, one each for thoroughbred racing, harness racing, and greyhound racing, comprise nominated representatives of racing clubs, industry associations and industry participant groups.<sup>331 332</sup>

<sup>329</sup> Section 82(2) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>330</sup> Regulation 71 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003.

Despite the procedures RWWA has developed pursuant to Section 82 of the RWWA Act, the Committee received substantial feedback criticising the consultative capacity of RWWA. Stakeholders felt that RWWA has failed to consult with the industry in any meaningful way. The specific matters relating to consultation practice which industry participants have concern reflect the main issues the Committee has identified and discussed throughout this report.<sup>333</sup> As such, individual concerns will not be raised further here. That the lack of consultation has been a disappointment to many industry participants is clear and will be discussed, together with some mechanisms to improve the consultation practices of RWWA.

(a) Industry views on consultation

The main issues raised are summarised here:

- RWWA has demonstrated a significant lack of consultation with industry participants across a variety of issues;<sup>334</sup>
- RWWA dictates to the industry rather than consults—club and consultative groups alike are presented with decisions as a fait accompli;<sup>335</sup>
- The current process provides little to no opportunity for stakeholders to have input into any major decision making processes—irrespective of the impacts these decisions may have on stakeholders;<sup>336</sup>

<sup>331</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Consultative Groups', 2007. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/consultative-groups.html Accessed on 25 June 2010.

<sup>332</sup> A contractual arrangement between RWWA and the WA TAB Agents Association is in place whereby the TAB agents' advisory group meets regularly with RWWA. The Committee received feedback that the consultation within this arrangement is limited. As this arrangement is contractual, refer to Chapter 3.8 (a)(ii) for further information.

<sup>333</sup> For example, industry participants have raised concerns about RWWA's ability to consult on issues of industry and club funding, race programming, and infrastructure funding; to name a few. Many of the concerns raised have consequently been captured within the examinations of these issues as they appear in this report.

<sup>334</sup> Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, received 24 December 2009, p7; Submission No. 26 from Northam Race Club, received 24 December 2009, pp1, 3; Submission No. 16 from Morley TAB Agents, received 30 November 2009, p5; Submission No. 9 from Frank Peczka, received 30 November 2009, p2; Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p6.

<sup>335</sup> Submission No. 6 from Geraldton Harness Racing Club, received on 29 September 2009, p2; Mr Graham Cox, President, Geraldton Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, pp6-7; Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf Club Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p8; Mr Tony Marwick, President, Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p3; Mr Kevin O'Brien, Treasurer, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p4; Mr Robin Deadman, Secretary, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p11; Mr Mark Roberts, President, Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p9; Mr Allen Kinnish, Committee Member, Western Australian Greyhound Breeders, Owners and Trainers Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April, 2010, p8.

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS
CHAPTER 2

- The manner of consultation has reduced the capacity of industry bodies, together with the clubs and industry participants they represent—particularly those in provincial and country areas, to have a say in the future direction of the industry.<sup>337</sup>

Expanding on the evidence above, the Committee received a number of comments about the general lack of consultation by RWWA. Mr Colin Bellchambers, Pinjarra Race Club, indicated that RWWA has fallen down as far as consultation is concerned, both with their club and the industry overall.<sup>338</sup> Mr Allen Kinnish, WAGBOTA made the following comment which is indicative of many industry concerns:

We tend to be told what is taking place rather than having meaningful discussions and consultation.<sup>339</sup>

The consultative groups also received criticism. Mr John Burt of WATA said the following about the Harness Racing Consultative Group (HRCG):

The harness racing consultative group is lip-service to the industry... decisions have already previously been made, and it is basically a forum for our being advised what is going to happen before industries know.<sup>340</sup>

Mr Ted van Heemst of Perth Racing stated that the Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group (TRCG) was very light weight and only played ‘lip service to the industry’.<sup>341</sup> Mr David Prance, appearing for the Kalgoorlie Boulder Racing Club, noted that the thoroughbred consultative group was consultative in name only, and cautioned that the lack of consultation was having a negative impact on the effectiveness of RWWA:

It is a misnomer: there is no consultation and things are handed down from the executive and, at times, from the board through the executive...It is basically, “This is what we have decided. This is how it is going to be.” I do believe that it is clearly stated in the act that there needs to be a consultative process. Just creating a thoroughbred consultative group,

<sup>336</sup> Submission No. 12 from Narrogin Racing, received 30 November 2009, pp3-4; Mr Kenneth Nottle, President, Harvey District Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p13; Mr Alan Smith, Secretary/Treasurer, Pingrup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p13; Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p7; Mr Peter Hemsley, Secretary, Collie Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p11; Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p8; Mr Donald Davies, Vice President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, pp7-8.

<sup>337</sup> Mr Barry Mahood, President, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p2; Mr Victor Jury, Trainer, Albany Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p12; Submission No. 13, Mt Barker Turf Club, received 30 November 2009, p2 Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p13; Submission No. 24, Geraldton Turf Club, received 24 December 2009, p2; Mr John Biggs, representative, North Eastern Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p5; Mr Brett Taylor, President, Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p5.

<sup>338</sup> Mr Colin Bellchambers, General Manager, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p5.

<sup>339</sup> Mr Allen Kinnish, Committee Member, WA Greyhound Breeders, Owners, Trainers’ Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p8.

<sup>340</sup> Mr John Burt, President, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p6.

<sup>341</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p10.

by name, and bringing in bookmakers, owners and breeders, and the various different groups to be sat around the table and just delivering the result is not consultative.<sup>342</sup>

Lack of consultation with individual clubs was reported by the Wagin Trotting Club.<sup>343</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, asserted that clubs being excluded from the consultation process was unhelpful for the industry and was cause for disappointment:

I think we are being let down. We are being neglected. We know that our role in the industry is a small one; nonetheless, it is an important one...more open and free communication would be very helpful.<sup>344</sup>

Mr Kenneth Godley, Bunbury Trotting Club stated that if RWWA could consult more with clubs about what it is doing, all clubs would have a better idea of where they are going:

At the moment, we are just a club treading water, wondering what [RWWA] is going to do to us next time.<sup>345</sup>

The lack of input stakeholders have in the decision making process was stressed by Mr Jonathan Menzel of Narrogin Racing, who stated that RWWA tended to ‘dictate what is going to happen in the industry, without calling for submissions beforehand’.<sup>346</sup> Mr Revell Douglas, General Manager, Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, was of the opinion that if RWWA was to ask industry bodies or individual clubs about issues, it would uncover ideas that would assist it with strategic planning.<sup>347</sup> Mr Rob Deadman, York Harness Racing Club, suggested that if RWWA had consulted with the industry, the industry would be in better shape now:

I am very critical of a lot of desk decisions that are made by RWWA where people have not gone to the extent of coming to the industry to find out more.<sup>348</sup>

Geraldton Turf Club submitted that since the formation of RWWA there has been even less consultation with clubs than under the previous principal club system—despite the best hopes of many industry participants:

...unfortunately little changed, it can be argued it has been significantly worse with no consultation and again decisions made by a few with little or no input from industry participants.<sup>349</sup>

<sup>342</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p13.

<sup>343</sup> Mr Donald Davies, Vice President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, pp7-8.

<sup>344</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p7.

<sup>345</sup> Mr Kenneth Godly, President, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p12.

<sup>346</sup> Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p8.

<sup>347</sup> Mr Revell Douglas, General Manager, Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p10.

<sup>348</sup> Mr Robin Deadman, Secretary, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p11.

<sup>349</sup> Submission No. 25 from Geraldton Turf Club, 24 December 2009, p1.

The decline of industry bodies to represent the needs of participants was noted by a number of stakeholders. The Albany Harness Racing Club indicated that RWWA makes decisions that impact on the club without any consultation or right of appeal and that their main representative body, WACHRA is ‘toothless’.<sup>350</sup> The Mt Barker Turf Club noted that the establishment of RWWA had led to the decline of WAPTRA.<sup>351</sup> York Racing concurred that provincial bodies have lost their power.<sup>352</sup>

Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, indicated that the provincial bodies like WAPTRA were powerless and had no say:

All provincial clubs find it difficult and frustrating because we simply do not have the avenue to have discussion. We nearly withdrew from the Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, because ...it does nothing ... RWWA does not really recognise it. You have to beat your drum pretty hard. RWWA would prefer to deal with individual clubs, and it is a great frustration.<sup>353</sup>

The Geraldton Turf Club further stated that RWWA’s ‘divide and conquer’ approach of dealing individually with clubs has not benefited the clubs and has made industry groups and associations irrelevant.<sup>354</sup>

Smaller country clubs expressed that they have less of a consultative voice with RWWA. Mr Kenneth Nottle, Harvey District Trotting Club, stated that more consultation is needed with country clubs.<sup>355</sup> Mr John Biggs, speaking on behalf of North East Goldfields Racing Clubs, asserted that small clubs do not get enough say in any decision making processes:

I do not think the country clubs get enough say as to what they want to do and how they want to conduct their race meetings; the types of races they can run and the classes of races. They are being told and are being dictated to by the administration too much.<sup>356</sup>

Some country clubs suggested the demise of a country voice in decision making procedures is creating the need for a contact person within the auspices of RWWA to whom they can go to for representation or information.<sup>357</sup> The York Harness Racing Club believed that a go-to person for country clubs would be beneficial and has raised the matter with RWWA:

<sup>350</sup> Mr Victor Jury, Trainer, Albany Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p12.

<sup>351</sup> Submission No. 13 from Mt Barker Turf Club, received 30 November 2009, p2.

<sup>352</sup> Mr Barry Mahood, President, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p2.

<sup>353</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p13.

<sup>354</sup> Submission No. 24, Geraldton Turf Club, received 24 December 2009, p2.

<sup>355</sup> Mr Kenneth Nottle, President, Harvey District Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p13

<sup>356</sup> Mr John Biggs, representative, North Eastern Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p5.

<sup>357</sup> This view is not limited to small clubs. Mr Paul Rossiter of the Bunbury Turf Club intimated that clubs needed a point of call in RWWA via a go-to person (Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p13).

The proposal we put to RWWA was: give us a country liaison officer...it has been on the table now with RWWA for some time.<sup>358</sup>

The Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club indicated frustration at locating the appropriate person within RWWA to speak to.<sup>359</sup> The importance of a 'middle person' was further reinforced by Mr Patrick Flynn, York Harness Racing Club:

...my own perception is that at the moment RWWA and the board in general is made up of policy makers and managers. There has got to be someone in the middle who actually can speak to both parties because it is very hard for clubs in general...to actually talk to people in the policy region or the management region.<sup>360</sup>

Not every comment received by the Committee was critical about RWWA's consultative process. Western Australian Racehorse Owners Association submitted that consultation is adequate and RWWA's Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group is effective.<sup>361</sup> This view was later confirmed by Mr Harvey Crossman, WAROA President, who made the following statement:

We have a very solid relationship with RWWA. We do not always agree with where it is going, and we certainly voice our opinions. Sometimes we sway its opinion a little. We have some wins and losses. In general, I am happy with the performance of RWWA.<sup>362</sup>

When asked if the Mingenew Race Club had good communication with RWWA, Mr Robert Newton, Vice President of the club, replied that as far as he is aware, RWWA has a good rapport with them.<sup>363</sup>

Mr Bob Howat, WA Bookmakers' Association, was asked if there is a good enough process in place for consultation within the industry, to which he answered that there is certainly a forum for it, and that whilst he is new to the process, the CEO for RWWA 'has thrown open the doors to talk about everything in relation to betting'.<sup>364</sup>

Mr Ted van Heemst of Perth Racing commented that the relationship Perth Racing has with RWWA is 'quite a good relationship', indicating that the CEO was very approachable and that the thoroughbred board member has been 'doing a very good job for us'.<sup>365</sup>

<sup>358</sup> Mr Robin Deadman, Secretary, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p11.

<sup>359</sup> Mr Brett Taylor, President, Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p5.

<sup>360</sup> Mr Patrick Flynn, Vice President, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p12.

<sup>361</sup> Submission No. 28 from Western Australian Racehorse Owners Association received 6 January 2010, p1.

<sup>362</sup> Mr Harvey Crossman, President, Western Australian Racehorse Owners Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p3.

<sup>363</sup> Mr Robert Newton, Vice President, Mingenew, Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p5.

<sup>364</sup> Mr Robert Howat, President, WA Bookmakers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p11.

<sup>365</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p10.

Despite these positive comments, a clear majority of stakeholders expressed negative views to the Committee on the effectiveness of RWWA's consultation practice. It is an issue that has caused frustration within the industry, particularly in regard to information being presented to stakeholders as a fait accompli; and the lack of opportunity stakeholders, be it industry bodies, individual clubs or participants, have to input into major decisions that may affect them.

Finding 33

Racing and Wagering Western Australia presents information to industry consultative groups as a fait accompli.

Notwithstanding the imperative on RWWA to consult with industry participants under the RWWA Act, the Committee finds that RWWA must seek strategies to improve its consultation with stakeholders as a part of its governance framework. If stakeholders have the ability to add their knowledge, views and industry experience into the decision making processes of RWWA, industry confidence in RWWA's decision making processes will increase—which in turn will increase the operational effectiveness of RWWA.

Finding 34

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should provide stakeholders with the opportunity to have input into major decisions that may affect them.

(b) Mechanisms to enhance consultation with the industry

RWWA is entirely cognisant of the criticism it has received about its consultation techniques during the course of this Inquiry. On first meeting with the Committee, RWWA acknowledged and accepted that a major criticism of RWWA was that it does not consult adequately. Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA, stated that there were certainly areas where improvements were warranted—particularly regarding race programming, meeting numbers and consultation in general. It was put forward that with the advent of the strategic vision papers providing indicative leadership for the industry, RWWA will be able to put in place a greater certainty of meetings.<sup>366</sup>

Nonetheless, RWWA suggested that it does 'incredible amounts of consulting, particularly in the past couple of years. Right the way back there has been a structured process of consulting'.<sup>367</sup> In a subsequent hearing, RWWA again noted that it has been very consultative in the last couple of years. Mr Robert Pearson, Chair of the Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group (TRCG), said that he knows of incidences when RWWA has raised issues with the consultative groups, whereby these groups tell RWWA ‘why it would not work, or should not work, or should not be done, and [RWWA] have gone back and make adjustments accordingly’.<sup>368</sup> He further pointed out that these consultative groups are given the opportunity to place items on the agenda for discussion, but this does not generally occur in the TRCG:

<sup>366</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p46.

<sup>367</sup> Ibid.

I would say that the average we would have at any meeting would be one or two things that are put to the groups, but in the main we have no items that are presented to us from those representative groups.<sup>369</sup>

In comparison, with the Harness Racing Consultative Group, there seemed to be ‘a lot more meat on the table from the various representatives’.<sup>370</sup>

Mr Dixie Solly of the CRA offered a possible reason for the apparent lack of items being put up for discussion by the representative groups in thoroughbred racing. He noted that not all the issues faced by some stakeholders at these groups are relevant to all the stakeholders and it is therefore inappropriate for them to be raised at the quarterly meetings. He also suggested that the groups themselves have been a little ‘derelict’ whereas prior to RWWA’s establishment, the old industry councils would meet and discuss all the issues they wanted to raise prior to meeting with the then principal club, the WATC.<sup>371</sup>

Mr John Burt, WATA, further highlighted the benefits of convening a meeting of industry group representatives prior to code consultative group meetings. He argued that this could be a democratic approach whereby the industry could vote on what issues they felt should be raised—or what position should be taken, at the consultative groups. If there was a unanimous vote, that documented position could be presented to RWWA as an accurate view of that particular group’s thoughts. If one particular body was strongly opposed, they would also have the opportunity to present their views at the consultative group for RWWA’s consideration. In this way, Mr Burt argued, RWWA would be presented with an accurate snapshot of the industry’s views before decisions are made.<sup>372</sup>

In the Committee’s opinion, the convening of representative industry groups prior to the consultative groups has merit. While this may already occur on an ad hoc basis, a more structured process where groups commit to meeting prior to quarterly consultative groups could provide RWWA with an ongoing, current and useful insight into the thoughts and feelings of the broader racing and wagering industry—which will only help to positively inform RWWA’s decision making process on behalf of the industry. Overall, this approach may help to address some of the frustration felt by industry participants as a result of the demise of the old industry councils. In addition, it may lend more of a voice to smaller clubs which feel they have less representation at

<sup>368</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p6.

<sup>369</sup> Ibid., p5.

<sup>370</sup> Ibid.

<sup>371</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p6.

<sup>372</sup> Mr John Burt, President, WA Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p6.

the consultative group level; or where clubs are conscious about the appropriateness of items to be discussed at the quarterly consultative group meetings. RWWA's procedures for the consultative groups do not preclude this from occurring.<sup>373</sup>

Finding 35

There is a need for representative industry groups to meet prior to consultative group meetings so that all major issues concerning the industry can be raised.

Section 82 of the RWWA Act only makes provision for RWWA to establish procedures for consulting with prescribed bodies, which are listed in the RWWA Regulations. Section 35(1)(g) of the Act also allows RWWA to consult with individual racing clubs in relation to matters such as stake money levels and programs. As it stands RWWA can either talk to the prescribed bodies—or to the thousands of individual participants, and it currently attempts to do both, in so doing creating 'an absolute nightmare'<sup>374</sup> for itself. Returning to the original rationale for prescribed bodies, the Turner Report - which informed the restructure of the racing industry and establishment of RWWA - had identified a need for structured consultation between the governing body and associations representing stakeholders.<sup>375</sup> The Committee agrees that structured consultation is necessary and therefore supports the continuation of the system of consulting with prescribed bodies, however also acknowledges that, as suggested by one industry participant, there is a lot of expertise available across the industry which RWWA is not necessarily accessing before making decisions.<sup>376</sup> The current procedures and terms of reference for consultative groups permits RWWA to 'at any time, co-opt a person/s to attend meetings of a specific Consultative Group'.<sup>377</sup> The Committee considers that this provision is sufficient to allow RWWA to capture the views of individuals or groups outside of the defined prescribed bodies if and when necessary. Even though RWWA's consultation procedures indicate that RWWA can consult outside of the consultative groups, the Committee considers it worthwhile reinforcing this point in the RWWA Act.

<sup>373</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group', January 2010. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/thoroughbreds-consultative-group.html Accessed on 29 September 2010. It should be noted that the same provisions apply to the harness, and greyhound racing consultative groups.

<sup>374</sup> Mr Robert Tomlinson President, BOTRA, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p19.

<sup>375</sup> Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry. A Report to the Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, October 2001, p23.

<sup>376</sup> Mr Kerry Clarke, President, WASBA, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p19.

<sup>377</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group', January 2010. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/thoroughbreds-consultative-group.html Accessed on 29 September 2010. It should be noted that the same provisions apply to the harness, and greyhound racing consultative groups.

Recommendation 21

That Section 82 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the statement that nothing in Section 82(2) precludes Racing and Wagering Western Australia from consulting outside of the prescribed bodies in relation to the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia or a subsidiary.

In terms of attempting to consult with industry groups as well as individuals, this is a matter of RWWA striking the appropriate balance. The Committee notes that RWWA has instituted a change as of 2010 to its consultative group meeting format that may assist in this regard. RWWA has indicated that in relation to consultative group meetings for all three racing codes:

...from 2010 onwards, three Head Office meetings would be held annually, with the fourth meeting to be a regional visit by Racing Operations Directors and Senior Racing Management. These regional meetings will allow for the dissemination of operational and strategic racing issues to the wider racing industry. This will usually take place around February-April each year and will coincide with the release of racing fixtures and distribution of funds to the racing clubs and participants.<sup>378</sup>

The Committee cautions however that these meetings should not simply present information to regional industry participants but allow input into decisions on racing fixtures and distribution of funds.

By far the greatest criticism concerning RWWA's consultation is the widespread feeling among industry participants that they lack a meaningful input into RWWA's decision making process. The overarching issues raised with the Committee concerned decisions that had already been made and matters that had been presented to the industry as a fait accompli. Mr Dixie Solly, CRA, said of RWWA that industry stakeholders do not 'get to know about lots of the things that they have in their tray until a decision has been made'.<sup>379</sup> This suggests that despite RWWA's structured consultation process, many industry stakeholders are unaware of what issues are being considered at any given time. Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA noted that the difficulty involved in consulting with industry stakeholders within the racing and wagering industry is the existence of very divergent views. He contends that this is a well known fact within the industry and the industry wants RWWA to make a decision—even if RWWA receives complaints when it does so:

So they want decisiveness, but the moment you act decisively you get labelled as autocratic. So it is a balance.<sup>380</sup>

<sup>378</sup> Ibid.

<sup>379</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p6.

<sup>380</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p6.

Mr Burt noted that because of this, RWWA does not try to please all parties—yet RWWA also does not want to upset people and they want people to accept what has to happen.<sup>381</sup> The Committee fully concurs with this as an outcome of good consultation, but suggests that for stakeholders to accept the sometimes difficult decisions that RWWA has to make they must first be made aware of any issues that inform the decision making process—and be given some opportunity to contribute to the process, prior to the decision actually being made.<sup>382</sup> As such, the Committee strongly recommends that RWWA makes its consultation procedures widely known.

Recommendation 22

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia makes its consultation procedures widely known throughout the industry.

Improving the consultation process is essential to helping industry participants feel part of the decision making process. That said, the Committee is mindful that during the consultation process for this Inquiry, RWWA announced some significant changes to the way they intend to consult with industry stakeholders. If RWWA continues developing these innovations through to implementation, the Committee is satisfied that many of the stakeholder criticisms about RWWA's lack of consultation will be addressed.

The proposed changes include the following:

- (As indicated above) an 'outreach' program whereby the executive management, directors and other staff travel to regional areas, presenting information and discussing 'the year we have had, the year ahead, our financial situation, how we do the programming and how we do distributions';<sup>383</sup>
- An AGM style of meeting whereby the agenda is 'the chairman and full board giving a report on the year-end results and what is happening';<sup>384</sup> and
- The above to be combined with an industry wide conference whereby the information is not just presented but workshopped and the benefits of bringing people together to share and develop ideas is realised.

Mr Richard Burt expanded on the idea of the AGM and conference with the following comment:

<sup>381</sup> Ibid.

<sup>382</sup> Evidence suggests stakeholders would like to be able to submit information prior to any decision being made final, so that if relevant, the information might have a bearing on that process. (As indicated by Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p8; Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p2).

<sup>383</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p4.

<sup>384</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p4.

Typically you would come together like an AGM, and then you would go off into these sort of workshops to talk about programming, sponsorship and things, where they can get ideas from others. Because there is a lot of best practice going on in one but not in another so you share that.<sup>385</sup>

The Committee considers RWWA's proposed initiatives to be essential. If RWWA implements these changes it will raise the standard of consultation, transparency and accountability within the industry; increase the profile of the industry to external stakeholders and potential sponsors; allow industry knowledge to be maintained and improved; assist all industry participants in becoming more productive, and will ultimately allow the industry to become more competitive and responsive to challenging market conditions.

Recommendation 23

That as a priority, Racing and Wagering Western Australia continues to develop and implement the following changes to the way it consults with stakeholders:

4. an outreach program to regional areas;
5. the convening of an Annual General Meeting; combined with
6. the establishment of an industry wide conference.

2.7 The distribution of funds by RWWA

RWWA sources the majority of its income from off-course and on-course wagering, with a smaller proportion of revenue derived from non-wagering income. The latter includes unclaimed dividends<sup>386</sup> and grants and subsidies from the state government.<sup>387</sup>

Sections 105 and 106 of the RWWA Act detail how RWWA is to allocate wagering profits to each of the three racing codes. Until 31 July 2006, Section 105 of the Act required RWWA to distribute profits after taxes and expenses or $50 million, whichever is the lesser amount,<sup>388</sup> to

<sup>385</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p5.

<sup>386</sup> Section 104 of the RWWA Act states that dividends, fixed odds winnings or refunds in respect of wagers unclaimed after 7 months are turned over to income.

<sup>387</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, 12 October 2009, p41. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/rwwa-annual-report-2009.pdf Accessed on 25 June 2010. It should be noted that the state government provides reimbursement for GST paid on the operators' margin and for accounting purposes this is considered a 'grant' from the state government.

<sup>388</sup> Section 105 maintained arrangements that already existed within the Totalisator Agency Board Betting (Modification of Operation) Act 2000 whereby the first $50 million of wagering profits after taxes and expenses would be distributed to the codes in accordance with set percentages (Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC, Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, Legislative Council, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 9 May 2003, p7416).

thoroughbred, harness, and greyhound racing in the proportions defined in Section 105(2). Profits in excess of $50 million were then to be distributed at the discretion of RWWA.<sup>389</sup> From 1 August 2006,<sup>390</sup> section 106 took effect stating that after expenses RWWA is to distribute wagering profits among the three racing codes in such amounts as it determines. Notwithstanding RWWA's discretion:

RWWA is to use its best endeavours to ensure that the amount paid or credited to any racing club...in any racing year is not less than the revenue, after taxes and expenses are deducted, generated from wagering conducted by RWWA on races conducted by that racing club during that year.<sup>391</sup>

In early 2010 the RWWA Act was amended as a consequence of the Racing and Wagering Legislation Amendment Act 2009. The new Section 107A establishes a racing bets levy account and requires RWWA to also distribute moneys received from the Gaming and Wagering Commission (in relation to product fees) to each of the three racing codes.<sup>392</sup> Funds in the racing bets levy account are to be distributed to the three codes by RWWA in such amounts as it determines.<sup>393</sup>

Funds distributed to the three codes are in the form of stakes, capital grants, subsidies and participant payments.<sup>394</sup> Thoroughbred and harness racing distributions are made directly to clubs whereas greyhound distributions go to the Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association.<sup>395</sup> WAGRA manages three venues (Cannington, Mandurah, and Northam) and is responsible for allocating the funds it receives to the volunteer committees (such as AVGRA) which perform race day functions at the venues.<sup>396</sup>

When broken down further, the distributions made to racing clubs by RWWA comprise participant funding and club funding. The former underwrites stakes and also includes among other things, breeding incentives and driver/rider fees. The latter returns a contribution to clubs for operating race meetings, providing training infrastructure and usage and product fees (arising from wagering turnover at meetings conducted by the club).<sup>397</sup>

<sup>389</sup> Section 105(5) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>390</sup> This date was subject to extensive debate in the Legislative Council during consideration of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Bill 2003. The bill was amended from a cut off of 31 July 2005 to that of 31 July 2006 to provide a suitable period of transition for RWWA while ensuring fair returns for stakeholders in the racing industry.

<sup>391</sup> Section 106(2) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

<sup>392</sup> Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA, Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 23 September 2009, pp7556-7557.

<sup>393</sup> Section 107A Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

<sup>394</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2008, 13 October 2008, p6. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/annual-report-2008.pdf Accessed on 31 August 2010.

<sup>395</sup> WAGRA is a statutory authority established under the Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association Act 1981 (WA).

<sup>396</sup> Mr David Simonette, Chief Executive Officer, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p3.

<sup>397</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p42.

In terms of funds distributed to the racing industry since RWWA's establishment in 2003, annual distributions increased until 2008-09.<sup>398</sup> The distribution to the racing industry in 2009-10 was less than for 2008-09 as a consequence of downward pressures on revenues (detailed in Chapter 2.9). In 2009-10, RWWA provided $103.2 million to the three racing codes in the form of club and participant distributions. An additional $2.1 million was provided as industry infrastructure and development grants. RWWA announced a $104.9 million distribution to the codes for 2010-11 thereby maintaining stake money levels; however no similar commitment was made for infrastructure.<sup>399</sup>

According to RWWA, $24.5 million has been distributed to the industry in direct capital grants between 2003-04 and 2008-09.<sup>400</sup> The emphasis of RWWA's distribution however has been on maintaining stake money levels in order to deliver adequate returns to industry participants and maintain an industry incentive.<sup>401</sup>

(a) The effectiveness of RWWA's funding distribution

The Committee received extensive feedback on the topic of funding distribution. In relation to the effectiveness of RWWA's distribution model, the main criticisms are summarised here with further analysis below:

- The distribution model favours the thoroughbred racing code at the expense of harness racing<sup>402</sup> and greyhound racing;<sup>403</sup>
- RWWA's distribution model fails to recognise performance as distributions are not truly reflective of contribution to turnover<sup>404</sup> and a more adequate performance based model is required;<sup>405</sup>
- The distribution of funds to the thoroughbred racing code suggests that provincial racing is subsidising country racing to a greater extent compared with metropolitan racing;<sup>406</sup>

<sup>398</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p37.

<sup>399</sup> Edwards, R., 'No cutbacks in stakes', The West Australian, 4 June 2010, p72.

<sup>400</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p19. It should be noted that this figure excludes the $20 million Regional Racing Infrastructure Grants Program introduced by the state government in 2005.

<sup>401</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp34, 70.

<sup>402</sup> Submission No. 30 from Western Australian Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, pp1-15.

<sup>403</sup> Submission No. 14 from Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, 30 November 2009, pp3-4.

<sup>404</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Vice Chairman, WA Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p7.

<sup>405</sup> Submission No. 26 from Northam Race Club Inc, 23 December 2009, p2.

<sup>406</sup> This issue was raised in Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association (Inc), 29 December 2009, pp4-5; Mr Keith Jeffreys, Committee Member, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, pp3-4; Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p6; and Submission No. 13 from Mt Barker Turf Club, 30 November 2009, p2.

- Stakes distribution favours metropolitan racing at the expense of provincial and country racing;<sup>407</sup>
- The funding distribution fails to recognise the significant volunteer effort of country/community clubs;<sup>408</sup>
- The funding model differs from year to year and there is no surety for clubs about club or stake money funding;<sup>409</sup>
- RWWA's administrative costs have reduced the pool of funds available for distribution to the codes;<sup>410</sup>
- There is a discrepancy in venue fees between metropolitan and regional areas;<sup>411</sup>
- RWWA's suspension of the Owners' Incentive Payment (OIP) has adversely affected country clubs;<sup>412</sup>
- There has been insufficient expenditure by RWWA on new and/or existing race related and TAB infrastructure:
  - The impost on country racing clubs has been particularly severe;<sup>413</sup> and
  - There is an urgent need for infrastructure funding across the industry, including training facilities.<sup>414</sup>

Expanding on some of the comments above, the Committee received evidence from various provincial thoroughbred racing clubs to the effect that RWWA's funding distribution model is not sufficiently reflective of performance and places an unfair burden on provincial clubs. WAPTRA indicated that provincial racing clubs had received a substantially smaller percentage of distribution when compared to turnover generated while Perth Racing had received a higher percentage distribution than its turnover contribution.<sup>415</sup> According to WAPTRA this represents a 'leakage' of funds generated by provincial clubs to fund country racing.<sup>416</sup> This view was shared

<sup>407</sup> This issue was raised in Submission No. 25 from Geraldton Turf Club, 24 December 2009, p2; Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association (Inc), 29 December 2009, p4; Submission No. 26 from Northam Race Club (Inc), 24 December 2009, p2; Submission No. 5 from York Racing (Inc), 26 November, p4; and Submission No. 12, 30 November 2009, p3.

<sup>408</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p5.

<sup>409</sup> Submission No. 30 from Western Australian Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, pp1-15.

<sup>410</sup> Submission No. 28 from Western Australian Racehorse Owners' Association, 30 December 2009, p2.

<sup>411</sup> Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p6.

<sup>412</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, NE Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p4.

<sup>413</sup> Mrs Rosanne Pimm, Treasurer, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p4.

<sup>414</sup> Due to the volume of evidence received with respect to infrastructure, this issue is expanded on in subsequent pages.

<sup>415</sup> Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, 29 December 2009, p6.

<sup>416</sup> Ibid.

by the Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club<sup>417</sup> and the Pinjarra Race Club,<sup>418</sup> and was reinforced by the Geraldton Turf Club:

At the moment the percentages are such that the provincial clubs have less of what they turn over as to what they have generated. That money seems to be drifting to the country racing clubs. The provincial clubs would say that they have a responsibility to support country racing because a lot of us benefit indirectly and directly by country race clubs but the burden should be on the industry as a whole.<sup>419</sup>

A number of country/community race clubs highlighted the substantial volunteer effort that goes into their operations.<sup>420</sup> It was put to the Committee that RWWA's funding distribution model fails to reflect the significant contribution of volunteers to these clubs. Given the cost savings to the industry that volunteers represent<sup>421</sup> and the fact that many of these clubs top up their stakes, this contribution should be accounted for:

Because of their low overheads, the smaller clubs are pretty low cost maintenance clubs. Everything is pretty well done on a voluntary basis. They survive on the smell of an oily rag...As a whole, country racing clubs contribute around 30 per cent more in actual stakes distribution than they receive. They top their stakes up ... While they are deemed to be not that significant in their financial contribution to the industry, they still receive less than anyone else and put in 30 per cent more than they get. It is a huge contribution in terms of stakes to financial contribution.<sup>422</sup>

Another issue raised with the Committee pertained to differences in levels of stake money between metropolitan and non-metropolitan areas. This is significant given that basic stakes are funded through RWWA's distribution. Mr David Wrensted, Geraldton Turf Club indicated that the gap between metropolitan and provincial stakes is widening in real terms.<sup>423</sup> The Pingrup Race Club believed that metropolitan stakes were unnecessarily high and limited funds available for the rest of the industry.<sup>424</sup> Mr Terry Zambonetti, Albany Racing Club highlighted that the gaps between metropolitan, provincial and country stakes distributions have become more pronounced over time.<sup>425</sup> Further, Mr Jonathan Menzel, Narrogin Racing indicated that this disparity was not getting any better:

<sup>417</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, pp3-5.

<sup>418</sup> Mr Colin Bellchambers, General Manager, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p5.

<sup>419</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p6.

<sup>420</sup> Mr Bill Pearce, Mt Barker Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p7; Mr Tony Crowhurst, Chairman, Dongara-Irwin Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p2.

<sup>421</sup> Submission No. 32 from Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association, 14 January 2010, p3.

<sup>422</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p5.

<sup>423</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p5.

<sup>424</sup> Mr Alan Smith, Secretary/Treasurer, Pingrup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p14.

<sup>425</sup> Mr Terence Zambonetti, Vice President, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p16.

It is a huge difference between the stake money of country clubs and the stake money in Perth. It is something that has grown exponentially in Perth, but it has not changed essentially in the country; if anything, it has gone down.<sup>426</sup>

There were suggestions also from provincial thoroughbred racing clubs that RWWA's contribution to metropolitan feature stakes in particular was unnecessarily high. According to the Northam Race Club, provincial clubs are forced to reduce maiden stakes in order to top up their feature races while Perth Racing receives full funding from RWWA for its feature races.<sup>427</sup> Narrogin Racing<sup>428</sup> and the Bunbury Turf Club<sup>429</sup> also highlighted the disproportionately higher feature race stakes in the metropolitan area. The Geraldton Turf Club also drew attention to the scale of metropolitan feature stakes such as the Railway Stakes and while acknowledging that it was important for a premier event such as this to be funded significantly by RWWA, this funding should not occur at the expense of other clubs.<sup>430</sup>

In relation to RWWA's distribution of capital grants, the Committee received extensive comment suggesting critical need across the industry for infrastructure funding. The main issues can be summarised as follows:

- Race clubs have not received adequate development funding and/or require additional funds to upgrade facilities;<sup>431</sup>
- There is a need for a dedicated horse sales and/or quarantine facility in Western Australia;<sup>432</sup>
- It is critical to retain a dedicated metropolitan facility for greyhound racing. A new racing facility constructed at Cannington would cost approximately $19.2 million and is beyond the capacity of WAGRA to fund;<sup>433</sup>
- Compared to other states, there has been insufficient infrastructure investment in the harness industry in WA;<sup>434</sup>

<sup>426</sup> Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p14.

<sup>427</sup> Submission No. 26 from Northam Race Club Inc, 23 December 2009, p2.

<sup>428</sup> Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p10.

<sup>429</sup> Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p7.

<sup>430</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p5.

<sup>431</sup> The Committee received evidence of infrastructure need from numerous clubs, a sample of which is cited here: Submission No. 13 from Mt Barker Turf Club, 30 November 2009, p2; Submission No. 5 from York Racing Inc, 26 November 2009, p4; Submission No. 12 from Narrogin Racing, 30 November 2009, p3; Submission No. 23 from Bunbury Turf Club, 18 December 2009, p1; and Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary/Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p2.

<sup>432</sup> Submission No. 18 from West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders Association Inc, 3 December 2009, p3.

<sup>433</sup> Mr David Simonette, Chief Executive Officer, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p4.

<sup>434</sup> Submission No. 46 from Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, 6 April 2010, p3.

- Safety upgrades to race tracks as required by RWWA have been a particular financial impost on country race clubs<sup>435</sup> although RWWA has provided some limited funding assistance in this regard;<sup>436</sup>
- Country clubs in particular struggle to fund infrastructure and/or lack funding support from RWWA in this regard;<sup>437</sup> and
- Infrastructure needs are not confined to racing with a lack of capital expenditure on TAB retail agencies also brought to the Committee's attention.<sup>438</sup>

A specific subset of infrastructure concerns related to training facilities and the Committee heard extensive evidence suggesting that more funding is required in this regard. The main points can be summarised as follows:

- Thoroughbred training facilities in the metropolitan area (Ascot, Belmont and Lark Hill) are under significant pressure<sup>439</sup> and/or better facilities are required;<sup>440</sup>
- The metropolitan/near metropolitan area is one track short of requirements for training (and racing);<sup>441</sup>
- Clubs receive some financial compensation from RWWA for the provision of training facilities but this only partially covers costs and clubs are left to meet significant shortfalls,<sup>442</sup> for example Perth Racing ($750,000),<sup>443</sup> Geraldton Turf Club (up to $50,000 per year),<sup>444</sup> and Albany Racing Club (RWWA covers less than half of the $250,000 annual cost);<sup>445</sup>

<sup>435</sup> Mr Steven McGuire, Tote Manager, Kojonup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p4; Mr Alan Smith, Secretary/Treasurer, Pingrup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, pp6-7; Mr Brett Smith, Committee Member, Junction Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p6.

<sup>436</sup> Mr Robert Newton, Vice President, Mingenew Turf Club and Mr Tony Crowhurst, Chairman, Dongara-Irwin Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p4; Mrs Rosanne Pimm, Treasurer, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p9; Mr Geoff Fahl, Chairman/Treasurer, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p5.

<sup>437</sup> Submission No. 9 from Mr F Peczka, 30 November 2009, p2; Mrs Rosanne Pimm, Treasurer, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p4.

<sup>438</sup> Submission No. 16 from Morley TAB Agents, 2 December 2009, p5; Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p7.

<sup>439</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, pp4,6; Mr Keith Jeffreys, Committee Member, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p11.

<sup>440</sup> Mr Bruce Hyde, President, WA Racing Trainers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p8;

<sup>441</sup> Submission No. 22B from WA Racing Trainers' Association, 6 August 2010, p2.

<sup>442</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p10.

<sup>443</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p4

<sup>444</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p4.

<sup>445</sup> Mr Shane O'Loughlin, Committee Member, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p9.

- RWWA's funding model needs to give greater recognition to clubs that provide training facilities;<sup>446</sup>
- The harness industry requires training facilities;<sup>447</sup>
- The greyhound code lacks dedicated training facilities<sup>448</sup> and without training facilities and a metropolitan race track, the code cannot survive;<sup>449</sup> and
- There is some acknowledgement within the industry that RWWA has limited finances to support training facilities.<sup>450</sup>

Finding 36

There is extensive evidence of critical infrastructure need across the racing industry in Western Australia.

In relation to other club funding, various stakeholders cited the loss of the OIP<sup>451</sup> as a particular issue. It should be noted that RWWA suspended the OIP for the 2009-10 racing season as a consequence of escalating financial pressures and as a means of preserving the level of stakes funding. The Committee was told that the loss of the OIP had been particularly difficult for country clubs<sup>452</sup> and should be reinstated.<sup>453</sup> While the Committee heard that people involved in the industry would continue regardless,<sup>454</sup> the OIP definitely assisted industry participants to recover costs<sup>455</sup> and stay in the industry:

<sup>446</sup> Submission No. 25 from Geraldton Turf Club, 24 December 2009, p3; Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p9; Mr Craig Chadwick, Chairman, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, pp2-4.

<sup>447</sup> Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, Western Australian Harness Racing Owners' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p22; Mr Mark Roberts, Vice President, Northam Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p14; Mr Rob Deadman, Secretary, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p2.

<sup>448</sup> Mr David Simonette, Chief Executive Officer, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p12.

<sup>449</sup> Mr Sam Celenza, President, Western Australian Greyhound Breeders, Owners and Trainers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p2.

<sup>450</sup> Mr Barry Mahood, Chairman, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p8; Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, Western Australian Harness Racing Owners' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p22.

<sup>451</sup> The OIP comprised a $125 payment to owners of non-stakes earners which would subsidise owners somewhat for the feeding and transportation of horses to regional race meetings.

<sup>452</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, NE Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p4.

<sup>453</sup> Submission No. 12 from Narrogin Racing, 30 November 2009, p4; Mr Geoff Fahl, Chairman/Treasurer, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p15.

<sup>454</sup> Mr Brett Taylor, President, Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p10.

<sup>455</sup> Mr Kerry Clarke, President, Western Australian Standardbred Breeders' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p6.

It does help for people to stay in the industry. I think that is another point: that you really need to be looking after them. You need to encourage people to come into the industry. We do not want too many stumbling blocks to stop people.<sup>456</sup>

Also relevant to club funding, a number of clubs raised the issue of meeting fees, which refers to the financial contribution made by RWWA to clubs to operate their race meetings. The Albany Harness Racing Club indicated that meeting fees did not fully take into account clubs which owned their own premises and therefore had to shoulder a higher financial burden.<sup>457</sup> Various harness racing clubs highlighted the significantly lower meeting fee secured by country clubs compared to Gloucester Park.<sup>458</sup> With respect to thoroughbreds, the Bunbury Turf Club highlighted meeting fee discrepancies between metropolitan and regional areas:

With the venue fees, I find it very hard to gauge why it would cost Belmont or Ascot $15 000 to conduct a race meeting and we get paid a $5 000 venue fee...Our crowds are very similar. We have the same expenses as their midweek race meetings.<sup>459</sup>

Summary

Although many comments put to the Committee suggested deficiencies in RWWA's funding distribution and the need for additional funds, it must also be acknowledged that many (mainly country and community) clubs prided their ability to raise their own funds and avoid being a financial burden on the industry. Although by no means an exhaustive list, this included Busselton Trotting Club (responsible for topping up stakes and providing petrol vouchers),<sup>460</sup> Wagin Trotting Club (upgraded its own track at a cost of $20,000),<sup>461</sup> and Albany Harness Racing Club (petrol vouchers).<sup>462</sup> A number of clubs cited local government support including York Racing Inc,<sup>463</sup> Mt Barker Turf Club,<sup>464</sup> and Williams Harness Racing Club.<sup>465</sup> Many clubs also

<sup>456</sup> Mr Peter Dempster, President, Northam Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p10.

<sup>457</sup> Submission No. 36 from Albany Harness Racing Club, 2 February 2010, p2.

<sup>458</sup> Mr Peter Dempster, President, Northam Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p9; Mr Bruce Jones, Vice President, Harvey Districts Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p8; Mr Revell Douglas, General Manager, Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p4.

<sup>459</sup> Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p6.

<sup>460</sup> Mrs Patricia Abbott, Secretary/Treasurer, Busselton Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p5.

<sup>461</sup> Mr Kevin Spurr, Vice President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p5.

<sup>462</sup> Mr Colin Park, General Manager, Albany Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p6.

<sup>463</sup> Mr Anthony Boyle, Committee Member, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p9.

<sup>464</sup> Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p2.

<sup>465</sup> Ms Helen Bunch, Secretary-Treasurer, Williams Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, pp2-3.

asserted that they operated as financially self-sufficiently as possible including WAGRA,<sup>466</sup> Geraldton Harness Racing Club<sup>467</sup> and Dongara-Irwin Race Club.<sup>468</sup>

The arguments heard by the Committee in relation to RWWA's distribution to the three racing codes and to clubs within the codes are fundamentally linked to RWWA's discretionary funding model and whether industry participants feel they are receiving their fair share. Prescribed intercode and intracode allocations under Section 105 of the RWWA Act ceased to operate as at 1 August 2006. The Committee's analysis of the discretionary funding model and whether or not greater prescription is required in the Act is discussed below at Chapter 2.7(b). Infrastructure funding is discussed separately below at Chapter 2.7(c).

(b) Improving the effectiveness of funding distribution - the funding distribution model

RWWA has defended its distribution, stating that it has 'consistently delivered a higher proportion of wagering turnover to industry than the totalisator businesses of any other Australian jurisdiction other than Victoria, for which distributions to racing clubs are supplemented by profits from gaming machines'.<sup>469</sup> Figures provided by RWWA demonstrate that 8.3% of totalisator turnover in 2008-09 was distributed to the industry, second only to Victoria.<sup>470</sup>

In terms of how RWWA exercises its discretion under Section 106 of the RWWA Act to distribute funds to the industry, Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA advised:

We, in our distribution model, have many categories of allocation of funds. The largest category goes to basic feature stakes. There is money that goes to training, there is money that goes to club funding, there is money that goes to jockey payments and driver payments.<sup>471</sup>

RWWA has continually emphasised the pre-eminence of stakes in its funding distribution,<sup>472</sup> an emphasis which many stakeholders consider justified since it has preserved the status of the Western Australian industry nationally.<sup>473</sup> Conversely, any reduction in stakes could lead to a loss of confidence in the industry.<sup>474</sup> Various stakeholders indicated that the level of RWWA's stakes

<sup>466</sup> Mr David Simonette, Chief Executive Officer, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, pp5-6.

<sup>467</sup> Mr Graham Cox, President, Geraldton Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p9.

<sup>468</sup> Mr Tony Crowhurst, Chairman, Dongara-Irwin Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p4.

<sup>469</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, piv.

<sup>470</sup> Ibid., p36.

<sup>471</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p51.

<sup>472</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, piv.

<sup>473</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, NE Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p6; Submission No. 46 from Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, 6 April 2010, p2.

<sup>474</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p11.

funding was not an issue compared to capital funding which was.<sup>475</sup> That said, there was some argument that an indefinite increase in stakes would not continue to achieve such a significant outcome. WAGRA made the point that stake money is already at a good level and suggested that there was a point at which further increases would be ‘like tipping water into a bucket. There is the right level, and the rest just goes into nothingness’.<sup>476</sup>

As outlined above, evidence to the Committee has suggested that certain aspects of RWWA’s model are ineffective thereby creating perceived inequities ranging from stakes allocations to metropolitan and country clubs, to meeting fees and the loss of incentive payments. In determining the distribution to the industry, RWWA undertakes an annual budgeting process, which involves evaluating future growth and anticipated income from various sources against anticipated expenses, fees (such as pooling fees and product fees) and costs (such as administration). According to RWWA, it is ‘a very businesslike approach in that income less expenses leaves, in theory, a profit’,<sup>477</sup> which is then distributed to the industry. RWWA is required to consult with racing clubs to establish policies for stake money levels and race conditions and programs.<sup>478</sup> As such, RWWA’s Racing Operations Committee takes on board ‘comment from the consultative groups, discussions with various race clubs and with industry people such as owners, trainers, drivers and jockeys’ and has a bearing on the distribution.<sup>479</sup>

The funding model itself works by integrating the racing calendar for all three racing codes with the funding allocation to each race, meeting, club and code based on a classification of club, meetings and races. The model coordinates payment of all distribution-related funding including club fees, breeding incentives, stakes, rider and driver fees.<sup>480</sup>

The strength of RWWA’s funding model is that it works forward in anticipation of the coming season. According to Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA, the benefit of this approach is that unlike privatised models that say, “‘This is what we have made and this is all that is available”, and the industry goes up and goes down’, the RWWA model is able to protect the racing product going forward.<sup>481</sup> The major failing is that the budget can come out with an amount of money that is far greater than the amount available for distribution thereby forcing RWWA to make up the difference using its cash reserves. According to the Chairman of the RWWA board:

Ideally we do not want to go into deficit for any particular year, but there may be occasions when we feel that, in order to keep distributions at a reasonable level in hard

<sup>475</sup> Mr Craig Chadwick, Chairman, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p12; Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p10.

<sup>476</sup> Mr David Simonette, Chief Executive Officer, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p6.

<sup>477</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p31.

<sup>478</sup> Section 35(g) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

<sup>479</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, pp31-32.

<sup>480</sup> Submission No. 7D from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2 August 2010, pp3-4.

<sup>481</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p31.

commercial times, it might be appropriate, as it has been over the last two years, to run a deficit and draw down our reserves by a small amount. But it cannot continue to do that. That is a short-term fix while we look at other revenue opportunities or cost-cutting measures that we can introduce in order to bring the books into balance.<sup>482</sup>

Aspects of RWWA's funding model that have drawn criticism include perceived expenditure on administration (including staffing and marketing<sup>483</sup>) although concerns largely relate to the period following RWWA's establishment. RWWA advised that it had streamlined its operations through abolition of 30 positions and has a current staffing of 320 FTE.<sup>484</sup> This streamlining has helped to allay some stakeholder concerns.<sup>485</sup> The perception that RWWA is administratively burdensome may also be due to insufficient transparency regarding its administrative costs.<sup>486</sup> This perception could be addressed through greater transparency by RWWA and therefore highlights again the importance of accountability (which is discussed in Chapter 2.4)

A significant issue raised with the Committee pertains to perceived inequities in stake money allocations between codes and within codes (i.e. between metropolitan, provincial and/or country areas). Regarding the latter, there was some acknowledgement among industry participants that metropolitan stake levels should be higher to preserve their flagship status,<sup>487</sup> and that maintaining the strength of metropolitan racing would benefit country racing in the long run due to the interconnected nature of metropolitan and country racing.<sup>488</sup>

RWWA put forward a base-stakes model for the thoroughbred racing code which looked to address the significant disparity between metropolitan, provincial, and country stake levels. The model proposed fixing base stakes for metropolitan and provincial meetings which would then be fully funded by RWWA at sustainable levels. RWWA proposed making a contribution towards feature stakes but leaving clubs to top up feature stakes using their own means.<sup>489</sup> RWWA has since advised the Committee that this initiative will not be progressed and that while a number of provincial clubs supported the idea of set base stakes, widespread support was lacking from industry regarding RWWA's original recommendation to restrict club top ups so that clubs would instead focus on feature race meetings.<sup>490</sup>

<sup>482</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p32.

<sup>483</sup> Ms Julie Caldwell, Manager, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, pp8-9.

<sup>484</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p16.

<sup>485</sup> Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p10.

<sup>486</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p3.

<sup>487</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p12.

<sup>488</sup> Mr Geoff Fahl, Chairman/Treasurer, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p11.

<sup>489</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Industry, RWWA, March 2010, p12.

<sup>490</sup> Submission No. 7D from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2 August 2010, p7.

The Committee acknowledges that stakes are a critical element for sustaining the industry and can appreciate the value of maintaining higher metropolitan stakes to preserve the ‘flagship’ status of metropolitan racing. The Committee is aware however that the disparity in basic and feature stakes between metropolitan, provincial, and country areas remains unresolved and is therefore still an issue of contention.

Finding 37

The disparity in basic and feature stake funding by Racing and Wagering Western Australia of metropolitan, provincial and country race clubs remains contentious.

Insofar as meeting fee discrepancies are concerned, RWWA has proposed a mechanism to address this issue although it is specific only to the thoroughbred code. Moving away from its traditional formula for club funding which is based on a set meeting fee according to club classification (metropolitan, provincial, country), RWWA’s Transition Club Funding Model proposes to allocate funds based on the wagering performance of relative ‘fixture’ meetings as opposed to ‘event’ meetings. Event meetings are defined as meetings with strong customer and community participation with optimal on-course wagering capacity. Fixture meetings are defined as meetings with a capacity for optimal returns to the industry in the provision of wagering related revenue and strong off-course revenue capacity. ‘Event’ meetings will attract lower funding in recognition of a club’s ability to generate increased on-course turnover. In applying the new model, RWWA has committed to working with clubs to develop performance requirements to ensure a fair and competitive allocation of meetings.<sup>491</sup> RWWA has advised that classification and funding will occur on a meeting by meeting basis not the overall nature of a club’s meetings and that pending consultation with the industry, this initiative will be implemented in the 2011-12 season.<sup>492</sup>

With respect to harness racing, RWWA makes the point that Gloucester Park maintains its flagship status through volume of meetings so even though it might be less costly to run mid-week meetings at provincial tracks, the industry would be at a greater disadvantage if it lost its prime metropolitan venue:

The point is: running at a very expensive quality venue for the promotion of the product, running of elite racing, the drawcard for people in harness racing—all those reasons—like the Subiaco football ground costs more than the local Collie football ground, the benefit of running at Gloucester Park I will not go into, but should be understood. The way in which Gloucester Park is sustained is that it is sustained through scale. It has 108 race meetings,

<sup>491</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Industry, RWWA, March 2010, p15.

<sup>492</sup> Submission No. 7D from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2 August 2010, p6.

just over half of which are country front meetings. They could be run at Pinjarra or Harvey. The meeting fees are now the same as Harvey or Pinjarra.<sup>493</sup>

RWWA indicated further that the matter is being addressed and that in this year's distribution model, the meeting fee that Gloucester Park will get is the same as what country front meetings will get.<sup>494</sup> Nonetheless, until the matter is fully resolved, meeting fee discrepancies remain a serious issue for provincial and country race clubs.

Finding 38

Meeting fee discrepancies between midweek metropolitan race meetings and provincial/country areas remain an issue for Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Recommendation 24

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia resolves meeting fee discrepancies within its funding distribution model as a matter of priority.

With respect to other club funding, the OIP obviously makes a difference to country race clubs and assists participants to stay in the industry. The Country Racing Association suggested that to make it more economically viable, RWWA could limit the payment to outer country clubs where travel is associated and where the payment is particularly critical.<sup>495</sup> In early 2010, the Minister for Racing and Gaming indicated that RWWA's consideration of the funding model for the 2010-11 racing season would include 'a travel subsidy policy for country and regional race clubs'.<sup>496</sup> In May 2010, RWWA established a subcommittee to address certain matters raised by the Harness Racing Consultative Group, among them the reintroduction of the OIP however there have been no recent statements in this regard.<sup>497</sup>

The Committee considers the OIP to be important to the sustainability of country racing and should be considered in RWWA's funding distribution model.

<sup>493</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, pp41-42.

<sup>494</sup> Ibid., p41.

<sup>495</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p5.

<sup>496</sup> Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA, Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 17 March 2010, p858.

<sup>497</sup> Harness Racing Consultative Group, Minutes, 5 May 2010, p4. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/HRCG\_Minutes\_05\_05\_10.pdf Accessed on 3 September 2010.

Finding 39

The Owners' Incentive Payment is important to the sustainability of country racing and should be considered by Racing and Wagering Western Australia in its funding distribution model.

Another claimed deficiency of RWWA's funding distribution model relates to the contribution made by volunteers. The Committee acknowledges that substantial volunteer effort goes into the operations of many racing clubs, particularly country clubs, and that this undoubtedly reduces the costs for many clubs. RWWA advised that its financial modelling does not incorporate volunteerism and clubs are not asked to provide records of these contributions. RWWA cites the absence of an accurate and reliable way of weighting or attaching a value to the financial savings (and therefore contribution in real terms) that volunteers make to a club's financial performance. RWWA recognises, and the Committee accepts, the important role that volunteers play in ensuring community based clubs can support a sustainable number of meetings, which would be lost if these clubs sought additional meetings thus leading to greater funding growth but also a greater reliance on paid staff.<sup>498</sup>

By far the greatest criticism of RWWA's existing funding model relates to relative share of funding within codes and between codes. The Committee observed that the harness racing code in particular was concerned about a declining share of distribution relative to the other codes.<sup>499</sup> The main issues raised in this regard can be summarised as follows:

- The harness industry is faced with uncertainty due to RWWA's absolute control of funding and how that funding is applied;<sup>500</sup>
- Uncertainty regarding funding compromises the ability of clubs to plan for the future;<sup>501</sup>
- To protect the harness industry's share and prevent further erosion, the harness code should be assured of receiving a set minimum percentage of the distribution, to be prescribed in the RWWA Act;<sup>502</sup>
- There should be set intercode and intracode entitlements in the RWWA Act to safeguard the interests of codes and clubs;<sup>503</sup>
- The harness industry requires sufficient funding, and stakes in particular, in order to keep people in the industry and reverse the decline in quality trainers, owners and reinsmen.<sup>504</sup>

<sup>498</sup> Submission No. 7D from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2 August 2010, p8.

<sup>499</sup> Submission No. 29 from WAROA/BOTRA/WASBA, 15 January 2010, p2; Mr Ross Pyke, Secretary/Manager, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p13.

<sup>500</sup> Mr Robert Bovell, Chief Executive, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p3.

<sup>501</sup> Mr John Burt, President, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p10.

<sup>502</sup> Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, Harness Racing Owners Association of Western Australia, 7 May 2010, pp3-4; Mr Gino Monaco, President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p12; Mr Robert Bovell, Chief Executive, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p4.

<sup>503</sup> Submission No. 30 from Western Australian Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, pp1-15.

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS
CHAPTER 2

---

In terms of the quantum of the distribution percentage to be set in the Act, some harness stakeholders indicated that this should be no less than 29.7% (this being the percentage that applied under Section 105 of the RWWA Act).<sup>505</sup> Another suggestion is for an average of percentages which applied over the previous three financial years coupled with a set percentage of funding to metropolitan and country based clubs.<sup>506</sup>

From within the thoroughbred racing code, arguments for greater prescription of funding distributions in the RWWA Act reflect the need to correct the perceived imbalance between metropolitan and non-metropolitan racing clubs.<sup>507</sup> It should be noted that prior to 2006, Section 105 of the RWWA Act prescribed a minimum percentage of funds to be paid to thoroughbred and harness racing clubs conducting races outside the metropolitan region.<sup>508</sup>

The other side of the argument relates to retaining RWWA's discretion to distribute funds in such amounts as it determines as per Section 106 of the RWWA Act. Perth Racing supports the discretionary funding model,<sup>509</sup> as does the Country Racing Association, for the same reason that it rewards the clubs that do well.<sup>510</sup>

The Turner Report, which prompted the restructuring of governance arrangements for the WA racing industry and the eventual establishment of RWWA, was firm about the need to move away from a set distribution formula:

As long as the basis of distribution of the off-course wagering profits to the codes is set by statute, there will be no incentive to grow the quality or range of the local product. Without such an incentive, the prospects of strengthening the local industry are bleak... The distribution formula should not be set by statute, but determined by negotiation between the whole-of-industry body and the code bodies.<sup>511</sup>

When the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Bill 2003 was before the Parliament, the argument against the retention of set percentages was put by Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC (then

---

<sup>504</sup> Mr Robert Tomlinson, President, Breeders' Owners' Trainer's and Reinspersons' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, pp11-12; Mr Kerry Clarke, President, Western Australian Standardbred Breeders' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p13; Mr Gino Monaco, President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p8; Mr Geoffrey Warwick, Vice President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, pp8-9.

<sup>505</sup> Submission No. 29 from WAROA/BOTRA/WASBA, 15 January 2010, p2.

<sup>506</sup> Submission No. 31 from Fremantle Harness Racing Club, 15 January 2010, p4; Submission No. 30 from Western Australian Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, p15.

<sup>507</sup> Submission No. 25 from Geraldton Turf Club, 24 December 2009, p3; Mr John Biggs, Representative, NE Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p6.

<sup>508</sup> Section 105(3)(a) and Section 105(4)(a) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

<sup>509</sup> Submission No. 35 from Perth Racing, 22 December 2010, p3.

<sup>510</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p10.

<sup>511</sup> Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry. A Report to the Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, October 2001, p24.

Minister for Racing and Gaming),<sup>512</sup> who recently reinforced this position citing the discretionary model as being one of the original reasons for establishing RWWA as it provided the means for the industry to grow effectively:

This is racing. You reward success. You do not featherbed failure by protectionist measures... I do not believe in formulae. I think the method of doing it now is the right way.<sup>513</sup>

RWWA concurred that the fixed percentage distribution system failed to provide incentives for individual racing codes or clubs to increase off-course wagering revenue when 'any increase would be distributed across all codes according to the fixed percentage formula'.<sup>514</sup> Further, the importance of flexibility that the discretionary model affords has been alluded to by RWWA given the new uncharted territory of product fees and the need for WA racing to remain relevant in a shifting national market:

As the industry moves into an era of 'payment for product' with the national application of product fees, there is a need to reassess distributions based on quality of product for wagering income at a state, national and international level. All principal racing authorities (PRAs) are now unofficially competing for maximum income generation respective to their state/territory in a national market.<sup>515</sup>

Regarding distributions to the codes, RWWA advised that actual distributions have not departed significantly from historical percentages. In relation to the harness code in particular, Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA indicated that historically the harness industry received 29.74% of the distribution and when everything was added up, the harness industry would be getting close to 29% now. RWWA was not purposely trying to follow the historical percentages but the reality was that actual distributions did not differ much and that any changes to distributions had to occur slowly.<sup>516</sup> The funding distribution model is obviously still evolving since, for example, in relation to the greyhound code RWWA is currently in discussions with WAGRA to try and achieve a fairer funding balance within the distribution model.<sup>517</sup>

RWWA advised that the percentages currently distributed to the codes better reflect wagering turnover shares than those set by legislation until 2006. However, they are still not truly representative of the share of wagering turnover generated.<sup>518</sup> As detailed above, RWWA's

<sup>512</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC, Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, Legislative Council, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 12 June 2003, p8665.

<sup>513</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p7.

<sup>514</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p42.

<sup>515</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Industry, RWWA, March 2010, p1.

<sup>516</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p12.

<sup>517</sup> Greyhound Racing Consultative Group, Minutes, 18 August 2010, p2. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/GRCG\_Minutes\_20100818.pdf Accessed on 10 September 2010.

<sup>518</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p38.

funding distribution model was criticised for not being sufficiently performance based, resulting in certain sectors of the industry having to subsidise others. RWWA acknowledges that subsidisation is occurring across the industry. This includes the subsidisation of one code by another, specifically subsidisation of the harness industry (which receives more in distributions than it generates in turnover).<sup>519</sup> At a broader level, there is also subsidisation to some extent of wagering operations by racing (i.e. through investment in Racing Radio and the form guide).<sup>520</sup>

RWWA's funding distribution model is not completely performance based nor can it be by virtue of its charter under Section 35 of the RWWA Act. RWWA's statutory obligation to promote the welfare of the racing industry entails 'regular operational contributions to racing that does not generate a return for the racing industry'.<sup>521</sup> Due to the requirements of Section 35, RWWA is particularly conscious of the need 'to balance the competing interests of the codes [and] the issue of subsidisation'.<sup>522</sup> The Committee considers that RWWA's overall approach to the distribution of funds to the codes is sound although the matter of 'balance' may need further fine tuning to address claims such as those from provincial thoroughbred racing clubs regarding the need for a fairer sharing of subsidisation burdens.<sup>523</sup>

The Committee is mindful that RWWA's discretion to distribute funds has certain intrinsic responsibilities. Significantly, while the Turner Report recommended discretionary funding, it also stated that distributions should be determined by negotiation between the governing body and the code bodies.<sup>524</sup> A number of stakeholders have favoured a return to an earlier system of distribution whereby funds are distributed by the provincial racing association,<sup>525</sup> claiming that this allows more effective benchmarking as clubs are aware of what all other clubs receive in stake money etc.<sup>526</sup> Inserting another funding body between RWWA and clubs would add to layers of bureaucracy and would not be desirable given that there has already been criticism of too much bureaucracy.<sup>527</sup>

A more fundamental issue that this raises is that of negotiation and input into RWWA's funding distribution. The Committee heard evidence to suggest that clubs are 'in the dark' regarding the

<sup>519</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p21.

<sup>520</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p26.

<sup>521</sup> According to RWWA, approximately $9 million per annum of distributions and other meeting support costs (including stakes, participant funding, and overheads) are directed to racing clubs considered non-commercial or community clubs. Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p73.

<sup>522</sup> Mr James Freemantle, Deputy Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p56.

<sup>523</sup> Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, 29 December 2009, p4.

<sup>524</sup> Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry. A Report to the Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, October 2001, p24.

<sup>525</sup> Mr Barry Mahood, Chairman, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p3; Mr Alf Paganoni, Past President, WA Country Harness Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p7.

<sup>526</sup> Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p8.

<sup>527</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, pp6-7.

logic behind the funding model and what RWWA's decision making process involves.<sup>528</sup> This has even prompted the suggestion that there should be an independent arbiter to determine whether RWWA is doing the right thing.<sup>529</sup> The uncertainty regarding the operation of RWWA's funding distribution model speaks to the need for greater transparency via improved consultation with clubs and greater accountability<sup>530</sup> (as discussed in Chapters 2.4 and 2.6).

Good governance is also critical to the effectiveness of the discretionary funding model as highlighted during debate on the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Bill 2003:

If we have any faith at all in what we are doing, we must have faith that the people who are appointed to these position will make decisions that will enable the industry to grow and improve its opportunities.<sup>531</sup>

A sound governance structure coupled with strong accountability would help to address stakeholder fears that discretionary funding is sensitive to board changes.<sup>532</sup> Governance is discussed in detail in Chapter 2.2.

In terms of what a discretionary funding distribution model should seek to achieve, the Country Racing Association stressed that the allocation of funds should ensure participation in country racing remains affordable and worthwhile for participants.<sup>533</sup> The sustainability objective was also highlighted by Mr David Simonette of WAGRA and again speaks to the importance of the model finding the right 'balance':

My belief is that there has never been a distribution model created, or one likely to be created, which meets the needs of the codes, of individual clubs, or metro versus country versus provincial—you name it. There will never be one that is ideal. In our situation, all we are saying is that we would like sufficient money not just to live on a day-to-day basis; we need to be able to grow our business. That means that we need to look after our industry with facilities, we need to make sure that the facilities are attractive to patrons to come on course, and that we can look after our own future.<sup>534</sup>

Summary

To summarise the main points considered by the Committee in relation to the effectiveness of RWWA's funding distribution model:

<sup>528</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p2.

<sup>529</sup> Mr Kevin O'Brien, Treasurer, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, pp5-6.

<sup>530</sup> This reinforces the importance of Section 77 of the RWWA Act which requires RWWA to table a Statement of Corporate Intent annually. This must set out the proportion in which funds will be distributed across codes and to metropolitan and non-metropolitan clubs.

<sup>531</sup> Hon. Murray Criddle, MLC, Western Australia, Legislative Council, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 12 June 2003, p8665.

<sup>532</sup> Submission No. 30 from Western Australian Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, p12.

<sup>533</sup> Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p11.

<sup>534</sup> Mr David Simonette, Chief Executive Officer, Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p7.

- RWWA has demonstrated sound financial performance since establishment and has delivered consistent distributions to the industry;
- Stake levels have been maintained across all codes but evidence suggests that infrastructure has not been sustained to the same degree (discussed further below);
- RWWA is addressing certain disparities in its funding distribution model including that of meeting fees although some issues, such as the disparity between basic and feature stake funding remain unresolved;
- A discretionary funding approach provides incentives for the industry in line with the rationale underpinning the formation of RWWA, as well as sufficient flexibility for distributions to respond to shifts in the national racing industry;
- While it is recognised that the set percentage distribution model established under Section 105 was a stabilising influence for the industry, RWWA's focus should be on fostering the overall industry rather than adjudicating between the codes;
- While actual distributions to the codes more closely reflect wagering performance than historical formulae, radical departures have not been made from historical percentages;
- The funding distribution model cannot be fully performance based due to RWWA's statutory obligations under Section 35 of the RWWA Act which necessitate some degree of cross-subsidisation however it is important to strike the correct 'balance'; and
- For a discretionary funding distribution model to be completely effective, RWWA must have strong accountability, good governance, and consult with the industry.

Following consideration of the above factors, the Committee considers that a return to set percentage distributions in the RWW Act would be a retrograde step. In keeping with the original intent of the legislation it is important that the Western Australian industry has the means to continue to develop. This can best be achieved if RWWA retains the discretion to distribute funds as provided under Section 106.

Finding 40

The distribution of funding to the racing codes should not be determined by set percentages prescribed in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Finding 41

Despite evidence from certain sectors of the industry suggesting a return to set percentage code distributions, the Committee supports continuation of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's discretionary funding model with a view to maintaining the viability of the codes.

Recommendation 25

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to delete Section 105 and that consequential amendments be made to remove references to Section 105.

(c) Improving the effectiveness of funding distribution - funding of infrastructure

RWWA is required to fund infrastructure (including training facilities) under Section 35(1)(e) and Section 92 of the RWWA Act. Nonetheless, RWWA has largely directed revenues towards increases in race stakes in order to achieve adequate returns to industry participants. RWWA is now faced with ageing club infrastructure and a large gap between required and actual infrastructure expenditure.<sup>535</sup> RWWA estimates the infrastructure spend required across the industry over the next five years will be in the order of $70 million. This estimate factors in a new metropolitan venue for the greyhound industry<sup>536</sup> and other large-scale projects including redevelopment of the Bunbury Turf Club racing and training facilities.<sup>537</sup> This estimate also relates solely to race related infrastructure<sup>538</sup> and infrastructure needs relating to TAB agencies would be in addition to this. While some believe that a reduction in stake money might be acceptable to the industry in order to fund immediate infrastructure needs,<sup>539</sup> RWWA's view is that this would not be popular among industry participants and that stake levels must be maintained.<sup>540</sup>

As detailed above, evidence suggests there is extensive need across the industry for infrastructure funding. Training facilities in particular were raised with the Committee and in this regard, RWWA has plans to address deficiencies.<sup>541</sup> In its strategic vision for the thoroughbred code, RWWA identifies training investment priorities for the purpose of targeting spending in metropolitan and provincial areas. The strategy also proposes a revised approach to funding training facilities including encouraging clubs to consider a user-pays system into the future.<sup>542</sup>

<sup>535</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p70.

<sup>536</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p37.

<sup>537</sup> Submission No. 7C from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 31 May 2010, Appendix D; Mr Craig Chadwick, Chairman, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p2.

<sup>538</sup> Submission No. 7C from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 31 May 2010, Appendix D.

<sup>539</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p4.

<sup>540</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p44.

<sup>541</sup> Ibid., p42.

<sup>542</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Industry, RWWA, March 2010, p14.

The concept of user-pays has some support from industry participants,<sup>543</sup> although there are also some concerns from thoroughbred trainers about financial implications.<sup>544</sup> RWWA recently advised code consultative groups that it is reviewing training costs at major training centres across all three codes with a view to moving towards a system of apportioning costs in an 80:20 ratio. The model, which RWWA aims to introduce over a 2 to 3 year timeframe, will fund 80% of costs and recover the remaining 20% from industry participants.<sup>545</sup> Besides major training centres and areas of critical need it would appear that funding of training facilities will remain subject to the same competing demands as other capital expenditure requirements.

With regard to improving the effectiveness of RWWA's funding of infrastructure, possible mechanisms include public funding (comprising either sports funding and/or capital grants), or funds administered by RWWA from a dedicated infrastructure fund.

(i) Public funding

RWWA refers to past public funding of race related infrastructure and suggests that the Western Australian Government 'should provide funding to enable ongoing investment in racing infrastructure to ensure the welfare and sustainability of racing as a sport in Western Australia'.<sup>546</sup> In this regard, RWWA has suggested that the state government should provide public funding for investment in the infrastructure of racing clubs in a manner similar to the provision of public funds for infrastructure of other major sports.<sup>547</sup> The requirements for the public funding of sports infrastructure are often not aligned with the nature of racing<sup>548</sup> so it is the Committee's belief that this would generally not be a suitable funding source.

Further to the matter of public funding, RWWA also refers to the Regional Racing Infrastructure Grants Program, which was introduced by the state government in 2005. The program initially committed $20 million of government funding over two years to be spent on upgrading regional racetrack infrastructure in priority regional areas. RWWA contributed an additional $5 million to the program enabling it to be extended for another year.<sup>549</sup> The Department of Racing, Gaming

<sup>543</sup> Mr Colin Bellchambers, General Manager, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, pp10-11.

<sup>544</sup> Submission No. 22B from WA Racing Trainers' Association, 6 August 2010, p1.

<sup>545</sup> Greyhound Racing Consultative Group, Minutes, 18 August 2010, p2. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/GRCG\_Minutes\_20100818.pdf and Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group, Minutes, 31 August 2010, p2. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/TRCG\_Minutes\_20100831.pdf Accessed on 10 September 2010.

<sup>546</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p81.

<sup>547</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p81.

<sup>548</sup> Public funding of sports infrastructure aims to provide facilities that provide community benefit but a large emphasis is also placed on facilities that encourage physical activity, for example, the Community Sporting and Recreation Facilities Fund and State Sporting Facilities Plan (Department of Sport and Recreation, 'Funding Facilities', December 2009. Available at: www.dsr.wa.gov.au/facilitiesfunding Accessed on 8 February 2010).

<sup>549</sup> Hon. M. McGowan, MLA, Minister for Racing and Gaming, 'Racing industry to share in additional infrastructure funding', Media Statement, 1 September 2005.

and Liquor administered the grants, which were targeted at racing infrastructure renewal in Geraldton, Northam, Kalgoorlie, Peel, Pinjarra, Bunbury and Albany.<sup>550 551</sup>

In February 2009 the Minister for Racing and Gaming, Hon. Terry Waldron, MLA announced that the economic climate precluded the state government from establishing a dedicated grants program for regional racecourse infrastructure, however regional clubs would be eligible for Regional Development Commission funding. The latter comprised $40 million of Royalties for Regions funding made available as contestable grants.<sup>552</sup>

Evidence to the Committee indicates that RWWA has referred non-metropolitan clubs to Royalties for Regions in the first instance and will not consider requests for infrastructure funding unless clubs have tried Royalties for Regions first.<sup>553</sup> The Committee heard from various clubs which had made application for Royalties for Regions funding including but not limited to: Golden Mile Trotting Club;<sup>554</sup> Bunbury Trotting Club;<sup>555</sup> Mt Barker Turf Club;<sup>556</sup> Collie Race Club;<sup>557</sup> and Narrogin Racing.<sup>558</sup> Six country thoroughbred, harness, and greyhound racing clubs received a total of $830,000 of Royalties for Regions grants for infrastructure in the latest round of funding. To the end of June 2010, nine clubs had received funding through Royalties for Regions since the program began.<sup>559</sup>

Although it was acknowledged that Royalties for Regions had enabled smaller clubs to access funding for infrastructure which might not otherwise have been available to them,<sup>560</sup> a commonly held view was that Royalties for Regions is not the most suitable means of funding the industry.<sup>561</sup>

<sup>550</sup> Hon. E.S. Ripper, MLA, Treasurer, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 20 May 2008, p42.

<sup>551</sup> A record of how the grant money was distributed and what projects were funded is contained within the RWWA document, Making Tracks 2005-2008, (2008) pp1-60.

<sup>552</sup> Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA, Minister for Racing and Gaming, 'Regional racing clubs eligible for Regional Development Commission funding', Media Statement, 12 February 2009.

<sup>553</sup> Ms Julie Caldwell, Manager, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p6.

<sup>554</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p13.

<sup>555</sup> Mr Kenneth Godley, President, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, pp5-6.

<sup>556</sup> Ms Lynn Heppell, Vice President, Mt Barker Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p4.

<sup>557</sup> Mrs Rosanne Pimm, Treasurer, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, pp4-5.

<sup>558</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p12.

<sup>559</sup> Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA, (Minister for Racing and Gaming) and Hon. B.J. Grylls, MLA, (Minister for Regional Development), Regional race clubs win with Royalties for Regions funding, Media Statement, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 28 June 2010.

<sup>560</sup> Mr Barry Mahood, Chairman, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p12.

<sup>561</sup> Mr Geoff Fahl, Chairman/Treasurer, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p9; Mr Mark Roberts, President, WA Country Harness Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p13.

A number of clubs felt disadvantaged at having to compete against other community organisations for limited grant money.<sup>562</sup>

Significantly, the state government recently announced a funding package to benefit racecourse infrastructure across the state. In July 2010, the state government gave in-principle support for a $350 million extension of the Burswood Entertainment Complex including an expansion of the Casino's gaming capacity.<sup>563</sup> While the application is still subject to approval by the Gaming and Wagering Commission,<sup>564</sup> the state government has committed to applying some of the proceeds from its agreement with Burswood for the proposed expansion to funding racecourse infrastructure. The racecourse infrastructure grants fund will comprise an initial $5 million in the first year followed by $2 million per year subject to review at the end of four years.<sup>565</sup> RWWA understands that clubs will be invited by the Minister for Racing and Gaming to put forward various projects in writing to RWWA, which will then be responsible for prioritising bids consistent with its strategic planning and forwarding recommendations to the Minister who will approve the funds. Grants provided under the program will be expected to leverage funding from other sources including Royalties for Regions, local government and RWWA so that there will be a multiplier on the $13 million.<sup>566 567</sup>

Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA advised that although the ideal situation would be for RWWA to have full discretion to allocate the infrastructure grants (rather than the Minister having the final say), the funding was welcome and RWWA would gladly work within the process. RWWA also advised that although the grants program would help to address some of the $70 million infrastructure deficit, large infrastructure requirements such as redevelopment of the metropolitan greyhound racing venue were immediately precluded by scale<sup>568</sup> and as such, the grants would most likely be applied to smaller projects of less than $1 million in value.<sup>569</sup> Acute infrastructure

<sup>562</sup> Mr Neville Sly, Committee Member, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p14; Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p3.

<sup>563</sup> Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA, (Minister for Racing and Gaming), Burswood Entertainment Complex set to expand, Media Statement, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 19 July 2010.

<sup>564</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, pp10-11.

<sup>565</sup> Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA, (Minister for Racing and Gaming), State Government's boost to WA racing, Media Statement, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 19 July 2010.

<sup>566</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p42.

<sup>567</sup> The state government has given in-principle support to an upgrade of the Pinjarra Race Club facilities to enable winter racing. Under the grants program, in-principle funding will be provided on a partnership basis with RWWA contributing approximately $182,000, the club $149,000 and the government $331,000 (Hon. T.K.Waldron, MLA (Minister for Racing and Gaming), Infrastructure upgrade to enable winter racing at Pinjarra, Media Statement, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 17 September 2010).

<sup>568</sup> This category would also include the Bunbury Turf Club redevelopment with an estimated total cost approaching $14 million (Rooney, J., 'Bunbury unveils idea for synthetic tracks', The West Australian, 8 September 2010, p96).

<sup>569</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p43.

needs would also continue unresolved in the immediate term since public funding from the grants fund and the latest round of Royalties for Regions would likely not be available until mid-2011.<sup>570</sup>

Summary

With regard to public funding of racecourse infrastructure, the Committee considered the following points:

- Public funding for the infrastructure of racing clubs in a manner similar to the public funding of other major sports is generally not appropriate given that the requirements for sports funding do not align with the nature of racing;
- While Royalties for Regions funding helps to address infrastructure need among non-metropolitan clubs, it is insufficient for funding race-related infrastructure over the long-term;
- The state government's recent announcement of a $13 million racecourse infrastructure grants fund will help to address some of the industry's estimated $70 million requirement for infrastructure funding; and
- Government grants alone will not be sufficient to meet all the infrastructure needs of the racing industry. A mechanism is therefore required that will enable a more flexible and sustained approach to infrastructure funding.

Finding 42

Government grants alone will not be sufficient to meet all the infrastructure needs of the Western Australian racing industry. A mechanism is required that will enable a more flexible and sustained approach to infrastructure funding.

(ii) Infrastructure fund

Evidence to the Committee emphasised the importance of racecourse infrastructure and supported the idea of RWWA setting aside a dedicated amount for infrastructure every year<sup>571</sup> and/or a dedicated infrastructure fund to be established for all three codes.<sup>572 573</sup> One particular criticism of RWWA's funding distribution model is that infrastructure funding is now less clearly defined:

<sup>570</sup> Ibid.

<sup>571</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p3.

<sup>572</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p13.

<sup>573</sup> It should be noted that further evidence received by the Committee in support of an infrastructure fund is cited in Chapter 2.7(c) in the context of methods to resource such a fund.

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS
CHAPTER 2

We used to have unclaimed dividends put aside for facilities and services and whatever in the Racecourse Development Fund, but where has it gone? Obviously, it is running the industry but we do not know where it has gone.<sup>574</sup>

Various stakeholders suggested that the (now defunct) Racecourse Development Trust (RDT) was a superior model<sup>575</sup> and that an infrastructure fund should be administered along similar lines.<sup>576</sup> Stakeholders such as the Geraldton Turf Club believed that although the Racecourse Development Trust lacked substantial funds at least it guaranteed a set amount was put towards infrastructure every year.<sup>577</sup>

The RDT was abolished and its funds transferred to RWWA in 2003. The RDT was a statutory body which provided grants and loans to thoroughbred and harness racing clubs for the purpose of establishing or maintaining facilities. Funding was predominantly derived from unclaimed dividends.<sup>578</sup> According to Hon. Tom McNeil, past Chairman of the RDT, funding was distributed on a priority basis to clubs and even then, there were many more applications than funds available.<sup>579</sup> RWWA advised that it derived approximately $7 million in unclaimed dividends in 2008-09<sup>580</sup> and that since inception RWWA had collected $34.34 million in unclaimed dividends. Unclaimed dividends now go into RWWA's general revenue and are distributed to the industry in the form of stakes, club funding, participant payments and direct capital grants.<sup>581</sup>

RWWA confirmed that it would not be a viable proposition to quarantine unclaimed dividends solely for the purpose of funding infrastructure as it would impact on stakes.<sup>582</sup> The same would apply for revenues derived from fractions<sup>583</sup> and even if revenues derived annually from unclaimed dividends and fractions were combined, if this was to be applied solely to infrastructure it would impact significantly on stake money levels as this money is currently distributed.<sup>584</sup>

<sup>574</sup> Mrs Lesley Solly, President, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p5.

<sup>575</sup> Mr Rob Deadman, Secretary, York Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, pp10-11.

<sup>576</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie Boulder Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p12.

<sup>577</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p3.

<sup>578</sup> Western Australian Racing Industry Review Committee, Future Governance of the Western Australian Racing Industry. A Report to the Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, October 2001, pp8-9.

<sup>579</sup> Hon. Tom McNeil, Past Chairman, Racecourse Development Trust, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p2.

<sup>580</sup> Under Section 104 of the RWWA Act, any moneys payable by way of dividends, fixed odds winnings or refunds in respect of wagers that are unclaimed for 7 months, become part of the funds of RWWA.

<sup>581</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p19.

<sup>582</sup> Ibid., p20.

<sup>583</sup> Under Regulation 30 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 RWWA may round dividends down to the nearest five cents. Revenues derived from these roundings or 'fractions' go into general revenue and are returned to the industry via distributions (as per Submission No. 7D from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 2 August 2010, p22).

<sup>584</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p43.

Summary

In summary, the Committee considered the following factors in relation to the effectiveness of RWWA's funding distribution for infrastructure:

- There is evidently an acute need across the industry for infrastructure funding including but not limited to a critical need to provide new facilities and/or upgrade ageing racecourse infrastructure, and to provide adequate training facilities for all codes;
- The Committee acknowledges that RWWA is taking steps to address funding of training infrastructure. However, it appears that RWWA's capacity to fund training infrastructure will continue to be exceeded under current returns from wagering;
- It is unlikely that a method such as that employed by the RDT could meet the present day infrastructure needs of the industry, not least because of the difference between unclaimed dividends available and the magnitude of infrastructure expenditure required across the industry;
- It is not desirable to reduce stake money levels as this will compromise the ongoing development of the industry;
- It is critical that the industry receives a guaranteed stream of infrastructure funding, however as stated above, government grants alone will not be sufficient to cover immediate, let alone long-term infrastructure needs.

In relation to the final point, there is support among industry participants for a dedicated source of infrastructure funding. The Committee supports the principle of a long-term infrastructure fund as this is the most suitable mechanism to achieve a sustained funding stream for infrastructure rather than the ad-hoc nature of government funding to date. A fund administered by RWWA would also be in keeping with RWWA's statutory obligation to fund infrastructure. Mechanisms for resourcing an infrastructure fund are explored further in the next section.

Finding 43

There is overwhelming support for a dedicated racing industry infrastructure fund.

Recommendation 26

That a dedicated racing industry infrastructure fund, to be administered by Racing and Wagering Western Australia, is established.

2.8 Taxation

Section 102 of the RWWA Act requires RWWA to pay tax on moneys it receives in respect of wagers made in accordance with the RWWA Tax Act. The rate of tax for totalisator wagers is defined by Section 4 of the RWWA Tax Act as follows:<sup>585</sup>

| Off-course totalisator tax rate - racing        | Off-course totalisator tax rate - sport   | On-course totalisator tax rate |
|---|---|--------------------------------|
| 11.91% of gross revenue <sup>586</sup> plus GST | 5% of gross revenue <sup>587</sup> plus GST25% of gross revenue (after tax) to Sports Wagering Account <sup>588</sup> | Zero plus GST                  |

The rate of tax for fixed odds wagers is defined by Section 5 of the RWWA Tax Act as follows:<sup>589</sup>

| Racing  | Sport   |
|---|---|
| TAB: 2% of turnover <sup>590</sup> , equating to 20% of gross revenue (GST reimbursed)Bookmakers: zero (GST reimbursed) | TAB: 0.5% of turnover <sup>591</sup> , equating to 5% of gross revenue (GST reimbursed); 25% of gross revenue (after tax) to Sports Wagering Account <sup>592</sup>Bookmakers: racing club levy of 0.5% or 1.5% of turnover <sup>593</sup> equating to approximately 30% of gross revenue (GST reimbursed) <sup>594</sup> |

<sup>585</sup> Extract (modified) from Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p65.

<sup>586</sup> Section 4(2) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003.

<sup>587</sup> Section 4(1) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003.

<sup>588</sup> Section 107(1)(b) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>589</sup> Extract (modified) from Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p67.

<sup>590</sup> Section 5(a) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003.

<sup>591</sup> Section 5(b) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003.

<sup>592</sup> Section 107(1)(b) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>593</sup> Bookmakers are subject to a levy as per Section 2(1) of the Bookmakers Betting Levy Act 1954.

<sup>594</sup> All collections from the Bookmakers' Betting Levy are retained by the industry except for sports betting, where the state government receives 50% of the collections (DTF Overview of State Taxes 2009-10 p45).

The Australian Government charges Goods and Services Tax (GST) across all forms of gambling at the rate equivalent to other goods and services.<sup>595</sup> According to the Department of Treasury and Finance (DTF), as a consequence of the intergovernmental agreement on the GST, states agreed to adjust gambling taxes to accommodate the GST. Until 2006-07 GST was separately reimbursed by the state. From 1 July 2007, the method of taxation for off-course racing totalisator wagering was changed.<sup>596</sup> The purpose was firstly to bring taxation methodology in line with that of Burswood Casino such that off-course racing totalisator wagering would be taxed on the basis of gross profit rather than turnover. Secondly, setting the rate of taxation at 11.91% net of GST (which represented an equivalent rate reduction from 5% of turnover (as it was immediately prior to the change) to 3.5%) would remove the need to rebate GST paid on wagering revenue.<sup>597</sup>

GST is also payable on bookmakers' margins being the difference between the amount of bets received and the amount of winnings paid to punters. GST in this regard is reimbursed by the state government.<sup>598</sup>

In terms of revenues derived from 'betting taxes' (defined by DTF as comprising RWWA wagering tax and the Bookmakers' Betting Levy), the state government collected $32m in 2008-09 and $33.9m (estimate) in 2009-10.<sup>599</sup> The estimated state government betting tax revenue for 2010-11 is approximately $36 million.<sup>600</sup> According to RWWA the betting tax revenue figure is not representative of the true tax burden as it does not take into account the GST:

...the government withholds our GST—a minor matter of $25 million a year. The amount of tax we pay is $56 million, not $31 million.<sup>601</sup>

RWWA claims that in real terms, its taxation contribution has increased marginally since its establishment in 2003 despite the reduction in the tax rate in 2007.<sup>602</sup>

It should be noted that RWWA separately deducts a commission from the off-course wagers it receives.<sup>603 604</sup> Whereas the commission for a bet is deducted by RWWA and goes into RWWA's

<sup>595</sup> Government of Australia, Australia's Future Tax System Final Report Part 2, 2 May 2010, p460.

<sup>596</sup> Department of Treasury and Finance, Overview of State Taxes Western Australia 2009-10, Government of Western Australia, Perth, December 2009, p46.

<sup>597</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Amendment Bill 2006 Explanatory Memorandum and Hon. M. McGowan, MLA, Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 18 October 2006, p7207.

<sup>598</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p26.

<sup>599</sup> Department of Treasury and Finance, Overview of State Taxes Western Australia 2009-10, Government of Western Australia, Perth, December 2009, p2.

<sup>600</sup> Government of Western Australia, 2010-11 Budget - Budget Paper No. 2, 20 May 2010, p144. Available at: www.dtf.wa.gov.au/cms/uploadedFiles/State\_Budget/Budget\_2010\_11/bp2\_vol1.pdf. Accessed on 6 September 2010.

<sup>601</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p22.

<sup>602</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p30.

<sup>603</sup> Section 17E(1) Betting Control Act 1954.

general funds, wagering tax is deducted by the state government and goes into consolidated revenue.

(a) Views on taxation

In its submission, RWWA makes a number of recommendations regarding wagering tax, as follows:

- Rates of wagering tax under the RWWA Tax Act should be reviewed to ensure that total taxation burdens on totalisator and fixed odds betting are maintained at levels comparable to RWWA's major competitors;
- The Western Australian government should pursue a nationally coordinated approach to taxation of wagering in Australia;
- The RWWA Tax Act should be amended to allow the basis and rates for wagering taxation to be set in regulation;
- The RWWA Tax Act should be amended to place fixed odds betting conducted on-course by clubs as agents of RWWA on the same taxation basis as totalisator betting. Section 17F of the Betting Control Act should be amended to allow for the fixed odds betting on-course margin to be retained by the race club; and
- The RWWA Act and RWWA Tax Act should be amended to combine RWWA's payments of wagering tax on sporting events and the payments to the Sports Wagering Account into a single payment to Western Australian sporting organisations.<sup>605</sup>

The critical need for infrastructure across the industry and potential for an ongoing RWWA administered infrastructure fund have already been discussed in some detail in the previous section. Means of resourcing an infrastructure fund are also explored here in the broader context of taxation and its impacts.

(b) Analysis of taxation matters

The following analysis has been structured to reflect the main issues listed above.

(i) Rates of taxation should be maintained at levels comparable to RWWA's major competitors

To avoid losing market share to interstate totalisator competitors or operate at unfeasible margins as part of pooling arrangements, RWWA has argued that taxation on totalisator products should be at rates no greater than its major competitors.<sup>606</sup> RWWA supports this argument as follows:

<sup>604</sup> The rates of commission that apply to RWWA on different types of bet are defined by Regulation 17C of the Betting Control Regulations 1978.

<sup>605</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp81, 85-87.

<sup>606</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p80.

- The totalisator tax rate in WA is higher than states such as Victoria (which will reduce its rate in 2010) and South Australia (no taxation from 2013)<sup>607</sup> - RWWA's comparison of totalisator taxation rates by jurisdiction is reproduced at Appendix Six;
- It is inappropriate for the tax rate to be tied to that of Burswood Casino since RWWA is not a public company and does not fund shareholders;<sup>608</sup>
- The rate of tax for fixed odds wagers on racing is significantly higher than that applied to fixed odds products of totalisator businesses in all other jurisdictions except Queensland<sup>609</sup> - RWWA's comparison of fixed odds betting taxation rates by jurisdiction is reproduced at Appendix Six;
- Further to the last point, parimutuel betting is fairly mature whereas fixed odds betting is a growth product. The comparatively high tax rate in WA means that RWWA is disadvantaged with respect to its fixed odds racing product;<sup>610</sup> and
- Laws pertaining to fixed odds were not considered at the time of RWWA's establishment and rates are historical.<sup>611</sup>

Similarly, there was support from other industry participants for a lowering of taxation rates.<sup>612</sup> A number of stakeholders identified taxation relief as necessary to bring Western Australia in line with other states,<sup>613</sup> and/or as a means of providing more money for RWWA to fund the industry.<sup>614</sup> Wagering operators emphasised that all betting agents should be subject to the same rate of tax and WA needed to remain competitive with other jurisdictions.<sup>615</sup> While Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd considered that a tax reduction might reduce the incentive for RWWA to maximise returns to the industry,<sup>616</sup> this was a minority view. The Committee also heard that the industry

---

<sup>607</sup> Ibid.

<sup>608</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p30.

<sup>609</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p80.

<sup>610</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p31.

<sup>611</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p12.

<sup>612</sup> Mr Alan Smith, Secretary/Treasurer, Pingrup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p14.

<sup>613</sup> Submission No. 30 from Western Australian Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, p18; Submission No. 31 from Fremantle Harness Racing Club, 15 January 2010, p3.

<sup>614</sup> Mr Brett Smith, Committee Member, Junction Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p10; Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p4; Submission No. 24 from WA Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, 24 December 2009, p2; Submission No. 23 from Bunbury Turf Club, 18 December 2009, p2.

<sup>615</sup> Submission No. 8 from Western Australian TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p2; Submission No. 16 from Morley TAB Agents, 27 November 2009, p6.

<sup>616</sup> Mr Dino Di Cianno, Director, Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p8.

should not be ‘taxed at the same rate as the Burswood Casino’<sup>617</sup> and there was a clear case for the tax to be lowered given the GST.<sup>618</sup>

The Committee considered each of these arguments in turn, firstly the question of whether the racing industry should be taxed at all. The Committee acknowledges that both the Henry Tax Review and Productivity Commission Report on Gambling identify that the growth of internet wagering will reduce the capacity of states to raise tax revenues as gambling markets become more competitive and mobile providers have the option of simply migrating to jurisdictions with lower tax rates.<sup>619</sup> Even so, to the extent that it is possible the Committee considers taxation to be warranted. In 1994 the Public Accounts and Expenditure Review Committee of the WA Parliament found that monies raised by the (then) TAB were public funds as these could only be raised under the legislative mandate of the TAB even if they were the result of the racing industry’s ‘product’.<sup>620</sup> RWWA, like its predecessor the TAB, effectively holds money in trust for the industry and has inherited the legislative mandate to raise a significant amount of money. In effect, as stated by Mr Barry Sargeant, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, RWWA has a ‘permanent appropriation to use those moneys, so it makes a contribution back’.<sup>621</sup> The Committee concurs with this view.

Claims that the rate of wagering tax is tied to casino tax are incorrect. While the methodology used to calculate the off-course totalisator tax rate (based on gross revenue) is comparable to that of Burswood Casino, there is no direct relationship between the rate or basis for charging casino taxes and wagering taxes.<sup>622</sup> The scale of contribution is also very different with the casino tax constituting 1.5% of overall state tax revenue in 2009-10 while betting tax constituted 0.6%.<sup>623</sup> Otherwise, DTF advised that there is a conceptual similarity between wagering tax and casino tax in relation to a recently introduced wagering tax rebate for professional punters, which is similar to an existing casino tax concession for interstate and international premium players (‘junket’ business).<sup>624</sup> A rebate to RWWA on gross margin will apply from 2010-11 (for an initial three year period) with respect to professional punters on contract with RWWA with an annual betting

<sup>617</sup> Submission No. 24 from WAPTRA, 29 December 2009, p2.

<sup>618</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p12.

<sup>619</sup> Government of Australia, Australia’s Future Tax System - Final Report Part 2 Detailed Analysis, 2 May 2010, p463 and Productivity Commission, Gambling, Report No. 50, Commonwealth of Australia, Canberra, 26 February 2010, p16.50.

<sup>620</sup> Public Accounts and Expenditure Review Committee, Report on the Totalisator Agency Board (Report No. 28), Legislative Assembly, Western Australia, 15 June 1994, p52.

<sup>621</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, p6.

<sup>622</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p2.

<sup>623</sup> Department of Treasury and Finance, Overview of State Taxes Western Australia 2009-10, Government of Western Australia, Perth, December 2009, p2.

<sup>624</sup> Ibid.

outlay of at least $500,000.<sup>625</sup> According to DTF, the rebate for this category of betting will be equivalent to a reduction in the betting tax rate from 11.91% to 1.91%.<sup>626</sup>

Other than the reduction in the rate of tax afforded to professional punters, the rates of totalisator and fixed odds betting remain unchanged. In its consideration more broadly of whether rates of wagering tax require revision, the Committee considered a number of issues. RWWA's argument that fixed odds wagering rates are largely historical is correct. The TAB was only authorised to conduct fixed odds betting with the passage of the Acts Amendment (Fixed Odds Betting) Act 1999. The rate of tax payable on fixed odds betting was established by the Totalisator Agency Board Betting Tax Amendment Act 1999 at the rate of 2% on horse and greyhound racing and 0.5% on all other bets including sports betting.<sup>627</sup> This rate was carried through without review in 2003 when RWWA was established. The wagering landscape has undoubtedly changed since 1999 with respect to fixed odds wagering, which RWWA indicates is a growth area.<sup>628</sup>

In relation to the argument that Western Australian tax rates should be reduced to levels comparable to other states, it is important to note the context in which interstate jurisdictions are lowering taxation rates. Victoria for instance is reducing its tax rate to offset the loss of gaming revenues when the gaming and wagering licence in that state expires in 2012. This is to ensure that funding to the racing industry is 'no less favourable' under new funding arrangements.<sup>629</sup>

Even so, the recent Henry Tax Review acknowledged that tax competition between the states can be unproductive, however also found that 'diversity can result in healthy tax competition between the states, in which the states face competitive pressure to adopt best practice in the design of their tax systems'. The Review also states that 'if tax policies are driven by a desire to match other states, rather than the need to raise revenue, this may compromise the sustainability of the states' own source tax revenues'.<sup>630</sup> The Committee concurs that it is poor policy for change to occur purely on the basis of matching taxes in other states. That said, the Committee also recognises that unless taxation rates in Western Australia are more comparable to those in other states, RWWA will not be able to compete effectively with its major wagering competitors. A more comprehensive solution is required and ideally one that adopts a nationally coordinated approach.

RWWA has argued for a nationally coordinated approach to the taxation of wagering in order to address the competitive imbalance between jurisdictions.<sup>631</sup> According to RWWA, the federal

<sup>625</sup> Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA, (Minister for Racing and Gaming), Media response - RWWA tax rebate, Media Statement, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 19 December 2009.

<sup>626</sup> Department of Treasury and Finance, Overview of State Taxes Western Australia 2009-10, Government of Western Australia, Perth, December 2009, p46.

<sup>627</sup> Hon. H.J. Cowan, MLA, Deputy Premier, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 19 August 1999, p505.

<sup>628</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p31.

<sup>629</sup> Ms Kerri Hereward, Principal Policy Officer, Department of Justice, Office of Gaming and Racing, Briefing, 16 April 2010.

<sup>630</sup> Government of Australia, Australia's Future Tax System - Final Report (Overview), 2 May 2010, section 10.3.

<sup>631</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p81.

government needs to get involved with regard to a common wagering tax.<sup>632</sup> The concept of a national approach to taxation accords with a finding of the Productivity Commission Report on Gambling, which states that ‘there are grounds for state and territory governments to cooperate when setting taxes on wagering revenue, in order to avoid destructive tax competition’. The Report suggests a binding agreement between all jurisdictions for a harmonised tax regime.<sup>633</sup> DTF highlights the difficulties that would be involved in reaching consensus on a national approach to wagering taxation given the disparity between tax rates across the country and the way in which taxes are applied. Wagering tax also could not be considered in isolation as it underpins critical issues such as the competitiveness and ongoing sustainability of state racing industries. As such, DTF suggests that taxation might best be considered as part of a broader discussion of racing industry issues and that the Ministerial Council of Racing Ministers<sup>634</sup> would be the most appropriate forum for this.<sup>635</sup>

In terms of a more immediate solution, the Henry Tax Review provides some guidance with respect to how an appropriate fixed odds (and/or totalisator) wagering rate should be calculated. The Review recommends that gambling taxes (including wagering taxes) should be reviewed to ensure they are focused on recouping economic rent. Gambling providers earn economic rent because state government restrictions on the supply of gambling services in Australia allow the limited number of providers to make more profit than they would in a competitive market. As such, the Review suggests that capturing economic rent is the most compelling reason for imposing taxes on gambling services.<sup>636</sup> DTF advised that betting taxes are currently based on either the turnover or gross margin of a wagering operator (net of GST) and are not specifically designed to capture economic rent. Detailed analysis has not been undertaken but would be required in order to determine the extent of economic rent being earned by gambling service providers in WA.<sup>637</sup>

Another factor that requires consideration in setting an appropriate rate of taxation concerns the need for infrastructure across the industry and whether a reduction in the taxation rate could assist RWWA to offset some of the costs. This matter is discussed in greater detail below.

DTF advised that there is always scope to review the rates of tax applicable to fixed odds and totalisator betting as part of the State Budget process and that ‘any such review would normally have regard to many factors, including the tax rates in other States and their impact on the

<sup>632</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p8.

<sup>633</sup> Productivity Commission, Gambling, Report No. 50, Commonwealth of Australia, Canberra, 26 February 2010, p16.50.

<sup>634</sup> This presumably refers to the Ministerial Council on Gambling, membership of which includes the WA Minister for Racing and Gaming. Commonwealth-state Ministerial Councils are forums for sharing information between Australian jurisdictions and develop policy reforms for consideration by the Council of Australian Governments (COAG, ‘Ministerial Councils’, 21 July 2010. Available at: www.coag.gov.au/ministerial\_councils/index.cfm Accessed on 7 September 2010).

<sup>635</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p2.

<sup>636</sup> Government of Australia, Australia’s Future Tax System - Final Report Part 2 Detailed Analysis, 2 May 2010, pp457-467.

<sup>637</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p2.

interstate competitiveness of the Western Australian racing industry'. In this regard, the government would have to decide whether it chooses to review tax rates.<sup>638</sup>

Summary

In summary, the conclusions reached by the Committee in its consideration of wagering taxation are as follows:

- It is appropriate for wagering activities to be taxed;
- When determining appropriate rates of wagering taxation the state government must consider RWWA's ability to meet its operational costs and funding obligations to the industry;
- The Henry Tax Review suggests that taxation rates should not be formulated simply on the basis of matching other jurisdictions. That said, the Committee believes that the rate of wagering tax should be struck at a level to enable RWWA to remain viable against increasing competition in the wagering market;
- The rate of fixed odds and totalisator taxation could be reviewed as part of the State Budget process, which would take into account various factors;
- A review of the rates of fixed odds taxation is warranted due to the lapse of time and change in wagering conditions since the rate was initially set however such a review would need to occur in the context of overall rates of wagering tax (i.e. including totalisator tax); and
- In the long-term, a cooperative national approach to wagering taxation would help to address destructive tax competition between the states and is supported.

Finding 44

The rate of tax applicable to fixed odds betting should be reviewed.

Finding 45

Any review of wagering tax should examine rates applicable to both totalisator and fixed odds betting.

Finding 46

Given that other states have already committed to reducing rates of taxation on wagering, the Western Australian racing industry cannot remain competitive without a similar reduction.

<sup>638</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p2.

Recommendation 27

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming in conjunction with the Treasurer reviews the rates of tax for totalisator wagers and fixed odds wagers in sections 4 and 5 respectively of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 with a view to enabling Racing and Wagering Western Australia to compete more effectively.

Finding 47

A cooperative national approach by the states and territories to wagering taxation would be beneficial.

Recommendation 28

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming pursues a coordinated national approach to wagering taxation through the appropriate Council of Australian Governments forum.

(ii) Basis and rates for wagering taxation to be set in regulation

RWWA has recommended that rates of taxation for totalisator and fixed odds betting should be set in regulation rather than legislation for greater flexibility and administrative ease. Due to the length of time required to amend legislation, RWWA has suggested that the state government currently has limited ability to respond to changes in taxation rates by competing jurisdictions or other changes in the market. RWWA cites recent product fee legislation as an example (and its preferred scenario) whereby the Minister may set product fees by regulation.<sup>639 640</sup>

Broadly defined, a tax exists when there is no direct link between the payment of the tax and benefits to the taxpayer. Funds raised through taxes may be used by the government to provide benefits to the community overall. Fees on the other hand exist when an agency recovers the costs of supplying a particular product or service.<sup>641</sup> By this definition, the revenues to state government arising from totalisator and fixed odds wagering are undoubtedly taxes as these sums go towards consolidated revenue.

<sup>639</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p85.

<sup>640</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p8.

<sup>641</sup> Government of Australia, Australia's Future Tax System - Final Report (Overview), 2 May 2010, section 8.5.

In its 32nd Report (May 2009), the WA Delegated Legislation Committee notes significant evidence to reinforce the point that taxes must be imposed by an Act of Parliament and cannot lawfully be imposed via regulation. The Report also cites a comment by the Auditor General from the Second Public Sector Report 2006, which states:

Legislative authority conferred on agencies to raise fees and charges does not permit the imposition of a tax. A tax must be specifically imposed under an Act of Parliament.<sup>642</sup>

The Office of the Auditor General further qualified this statement by advising that the statement was based on advice received from the State Solicitor in July 2004 to the effect that:

...legislative powers conferred on government agencies to impose “fees” or “charges” do not permit the imposition, either in whole or in part, of a tax. Agencies should be referred to s.45 and 45A of the Interpretation Act 1984 in particular. If a tax is to be levied by an agency, then it must be specifically imposed under an Act of Parliament as a tax.<sup>643</sup>

The Committee recognises that imposing rates of wagering taxation by regulation rather than through the RWWA Tax Act would provide RWWA with more flexibility to remain competitive in a changing wagering market. However, under current state law all taxes must be imposed by an Act of Parliament.

Finding 48

The basis and rates of wagering taxation cannot be imposed in regulation and must remain within the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003.

(iii) Fixed odds betting conducted on-course should be taxed the same as totalisator betting

Racing clubs do not have the ability under legislation to conduct fixed odds betting on-course and may do so only as an agent of RWWA. RWWA argues that while clubs are not required to pay tax on on-course totalisator wagering, tax still applies to fixed odds betting and is a disincentive to clubs wishing to pursue this option. Given that demand for fixed odds betting is increasing, this is disadvantageous for clubs.<sup>644</sup> RWWA indicates that there is no clear case for the differential taxation of on-course totalisator and fixed odds betting and suggests that clubs acting as agents of <sup>642</sup> As cited within Parliament of Western Australia, Joint Standing Committee on Delegated Legislation, Supreme Court (Fees) Amendment Regulations (No.2) 2008, Children’s Court (Fees) Amendment Regulations (No. 2) 2008, District Court (Fees) Amendment Regulations 2008, Magistrates Court (Fees) Amendment Regulations (No. 2) 2008, Fines, Penalties and Infringement Notices Enforcement Amendment Regulations (No. 2) 2007 and other court fee instruments - Report 32, May 2009, p33.

<sup>643</sup> Mr Glen Clarke, Acting Auditor General, letter, 9 July 2010, p2.

<sup>644</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, pp12-13.

RWWA should receive a similar exemption for fixed odds betting conducted on-course.<sup>645</sup> The Committee concurs that there is no clear rationale for the differential rate of taxation for on-course totalisator and fixed odds betting and supports in principle the idea of a more equitable rate of taxation for on-course wagering conducted by clubs.

Finding 49

The principle of equitable taxation rates for on-course totalisator and fixed odds wagering conducted by racing clubs is supported.

Significantly, DTF highlighted that increased on-course fixed odds betting by clubs could have consequences for the ongoing viability of licensed bookmakers. As such, it would be appropriate for licensed bookmakers and racing clubs to receive equitable taxation treatment.<sup>646</sup> This is a pertinent point and while the Committee supports a more equitable approach to tax rates for on-course wagering conducted by racing clubs, the Committee also recognises that this cannot be considered in isolation. In the previous section the Committee identified that a review of the taxation rate applicable to fixed odds betting is warranted. It would be appropriate for such a review to also take into account the appropriate rate of taxation for on-course fixed odds betting with a view to reducing the tax burden on clubs without impacting on bookmakers.

(iv) *RWWA's payments of wagering tax on sporting events and the payments to the Sports Wagering Account should be combined into a single payment

Payments to the Sports Wagering Account (SWA) by RWWA are required for unclaimed dividends in respect of wagers made on sporting events.<sup>647</sup> Following payment of dividends and tax on totalisator and fixed odds wagering in relation to sporting events, RWWA is also required to pay 25% of the remaining balance into the SWA.<sup>648</sup> The SWA is administered by the Gaming and Wagering Commission for the purpose of distribution to sporting organisations at the direction of the Minister for Sport and Recreation.<sup>649</sup> The Gaming and Wagering Commission also deposits monies into the SWA in relation to payments of the bookmakers' betting levy made under Section 15 of the Betting Control Act 1954. In 2008-09, payments totalling $2.7m were made from the SWA leaving a balance of approximately $2.5m.<sup>650</sup>

<sup>645</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p85.

<sup>646</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p3.

<sup>647</sup> Section 104 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>648</sup> Section 107(1)(b) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>649</sup> Section 110A Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987.

<sup>650</sup> Gaming and Wagering Commission of Western Australia, 2008-2009 Annual Report, p49, 2009. Available at: www.rgl.wa.gov.au/ResourceFiles/Publications/Reports/2009/GWCWA.pdf. Accessed on 30 June 2010.

RWWA has suggested that its system of payments should be simplified by rolling the payments to the SWA and payments of wagering tax on sporting events<sup>651</sup> into a single payment to sporting organisations.<sup>652</sup> RWWA claims that this would be for administrative ease and did not have a position on whether tax should still be payable on this combined amount.<sup>653</sup>

In its submission to the Inquiry, the Department of Sport and Recreation (DSR) also raised the issue of the SWA and how it is currently administratively cumbersome. DSR has undertaken preliminary consultation with the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor (DRGL) (on behalf of the Gaming and Wagering Commission) and RWWA with respect to streamlining the process and has obtained in principle support from these parties. Under the DSR streamlining proposal, the requirements for RWWA to pay moneys into the SWA would be unchanged<sup>654</sup> but the Gaming and Wagering Commission would be removed from the administration process to be replaced by DSR. If streamlining proceeded, minor amendments would be required to the wording of Sections 104 and 107 of the RWWA Act to reflect changes in the administration of the account from the Gaming and Wagering Commission to DSR.<sup>655</sup>

In its analysis, the Committee recognised that there are two parts to the SWA argument: the first concerns streamlining the SWA process, which is administratively cumbersome; and the second involves combining RWWA's payments into the SWA. With regard to the first issue, the Committee recognises that the current administrative arrangements are cumbersome as multiple agencies are involved. It appears that the rationale behind the Gaming and Wagering Commission's involvement in the administration of the SWA was largely historical due to its responsibility for levying bookmakers prior to the TAB (and then RWWA) having the ability to conduct sports betting. It was then logical for sports betting payments, when these came into being, to operate through the existing account structures of the Commission.<sup>656</sup> While the same community sporting benefits would be realised regardless of whether DSR or the Gaming and Wagering Commission administered the SWA,<sup>657</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General of the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor raised an important point:

From the view of the Department of Sport and Recreation, as I understand, there is a bureaucracy they have to go through. But I repeat the point that we are actually more involved now in moneys that Racing and Wagering Western Australia is generating, and

<sup>651</sup> As previously stated, this equates to 0.5% of turnover for wagers on sporting events.

<sup>652</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p86.

<sup>653</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 14 June 2010, p14.

<sup>654</sup> The Gaming and Wagering Commission would still remit the betting levy payable on sporting events under the Bookmakers Betting Levy Act 1954 to the SWA (as advised by Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p4).

<sup>655</sup> Submission No. 43 from Department of Sport and Recreation, 1 June 2010, pp1-6.

<sup>656</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p5.

<sup>657</sup> DRGL's comment as cited by Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p4.

the clubs are generating through betting et cetera through the product fee, than we were before.<sup>658</sup>

Following the passage of racefields legislation in 2009, the Gaming and Wagering Commission assumed responsibility for administering the racing bets levy account, which involves the collection and disbursement of product fees (the latter being to RWWA or directly to racing clubs).<sup>659</sup> The Commission's involvement with RWWA has therefore increased via the product fee regime and according to DRGL, the Gaming and Wagering Commission will likely remain the mechanism for the collection of product fees for the foreseeable future unless national product fee legislation is introduced.<sup>660</sup> The Committee considers it is a valid argument to maintain the status quo given the Commission's history and ongoing involvement in the administration of payments relating to RWWA. No amendment to the RWWA Act is therefore required with respect to administration of the SWA.

Finding 50

Administration of the Sports Wagering Account should continue to be the responsibility of the Gaming and Wagering Commission as per Section 110A of the Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987.

The second aspect of the argument regarding RWWA combining its wagering tax and 25% payment into the SWA has much more significant ramifications. Moneys in the SWA are distributed to sports organisations whereas wagering tax goes towards the state government's consolidated revenue. Assuming that all sports wagering monies directed into the SWA by RWWA would go towards sporting organisations, combining the two payments would in effect be hypothecating the tax. For reasons elaborated below this is not supported.

Finding 51

It would not be appropriate for Racing and Wagering Western Australia's payments of wagering tax on sporting events and payments to the Sports Wagering Account to be combined into a single payment.

<sup>658</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p6.

<sup>659</sup> Section 110B Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987.

<sup>660</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p6.

(v) Wagering taxes and the funding of infrastructure

In Chapter 2.7, the Committee identified a critical need for infrastructure across the industry. The Committee found that government grants alone are insufficient to meet the infrastructure shortfall and that an additional mechanism is required that will provide a more flexible and sustained approach to the funding of infrastructure. In supporting the establishment of a RWWA-administered infrastructure fund, the Committee has ascertained that RWWA currently lacks the means to meet these needs without negatively impacting on stake money distributions.

In acknowledging its difficulty in funding infrastructure, RWWA has suggested taxation as a possible method of addressing this situation:

We also have a very large stakeholder base of ageing assets. To maintain those assets—we do not have the financial capacity to do that—we are recommending that there should be some recognition of that from the public purse either through reduced taxation on a sustainable basis, or through grants.<sup>661</sup>

Evidence to the Inquiry highlighted the potential for a reduction in wagering taxation to be applied to infrastructure funding. The main argument from industry can be summarised as follows:

- A reduction in wagering tax will provide RWWA with more funding for the industry;<sup>662</sup>
- The rate of wagering tax should be lowered and the resulting money should be directed towards the funding of race related infrastructure;<sup>663</sup>
- The rate of wagering tax should be reduced and the resulting funds used by RWWA to fund infrastructure;<sup>664</sup>
- A future fund/ capital fund should be established by setting aside a fixed percentage of taxes annually which can then only be applied to infrastructure projects;<sup>665</sup>
- Infrastructure funding arising from a reduction in wagering tax should be directed towards infrastructure for country and regional race clubs;<sup>666</sup> and
- Funding set aside for infrastructure would need to make specific reference to country racing.<sup>667</sup>

<sup>661</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p37.

<sup>662</sup> Mr Colin Bellchambers, General Manager, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p7.

<sup>663</sup> Submission No. 29 from HROAWA, BOTRA and WASBA, 15 January 2010, p3; Submission No. 23 from Bunbury Turf Club, 18 December 2009, p2; Submission No. 24 from Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, 24 December 2009, p2; Submission No. 22 from WA Racing Trainers' Association, 14 December 2009, pp3-4; Mr Alan Smith, Secretary/Treasurer, Pingrup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p14; Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p3.

<sup>664</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p12; Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie Boulder Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p5.

<sup>665</sup> Submission No. 28 from Western Australian Racehorse Owners' Association, 30 December 2009, p4; Mr Geoff Fahl, Chairman/Treasurer, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p9.

<sup>666</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, North Eastern Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p3.

<sup>667</sup> Submission No. 21 from Broome Turf Club (Inc), 14 December 2009, p4.

On the basis of comments received, the Committee identified two possible methods for establishing an infrastructure fund.

Method 1: A set percentage of wagering taxes is put towards an infrastructure fund

The first option pertains to hypothecating<sup>668</sup> wagering tax for the purpose of funding infrastructure. In the past DTF has not supported the hypothecation of revenues for the purposes of building infrastructure for the reason that:

...it reduces the flexibility of the Government to respond to changes in its environment and narrows the revenue base for other expenditures (which may provide more benefits than economic infrastructure). It also gives these projects a privileged position in a State budget context by removing them from the scrutiny of the annual budget process, potentially distorting priorities and misallocating public sector resources.<sup>669</sup>

DTF continues to recommend against the hypothecation of revenues for specific expenditure programs ‘on the basis that it circumvents the Government’s decision making processes that determine the relative priority that should be given to competing expenditure programs’.<sup>670</sup>

Method 2: The rate of wagering tax is reduced thus assisting RWWA to provide for infrastructure

Earlier in this report the Committee recommended that the rate of wagering tax should be lowered to enable RWWA to compete more effectively against wagering operators in other jurisdictions. Reducing the rate of wagering tax would ultimately be reflected in RWWA having more funds available for distribution to the industry. The second method for establishing an infrastructure fund, and the Committee’s preferred option, utilises RWWA’s existing funding distribution framework, however is contingent on a reduction in the rate of wagering tax.

As identified previously by the Committee, a RWWA administered fund is preferable given RWWA’s existing charter under the RWWA Act, and would also allow for capital to be allocated on a needs basis in accordance with strategic plans for the industry.<sup>671</sup> A fund to be administered by RWWA needs protections in place however to ensure that monies are specifically allocated to infrastructure. The Committee considers this necessary given that RWWA’s funding distribution model is heavily weighted towards stakes.

The Committee is of the view that, provided there is a reduction in wagering tax, a percentage of RWWA’s wagering profits after taxes and expenses should be set aside annually in a fund for <sup>668</sup> Hypothecation is where money obtained, or part of the money obtained through tax is used for a particular purpose, rather than spent on a number of things (as defined by Financial Times Ltd, ‘Financial Times Lexicon’, 2009. Available at: <http://lexicon.ft.com/term.asp?t=hypothecated-tax> Accessed on 18 June 2010).

<sup>669</sup> Department of Treasury and Finance, Framework for the State Infrastructure Strategy: Green Paper, September 2006, p45. Available at: www.dtf.wa.gov.au/cms/uploadedFiles/sis\_greenpaper\_sept2006.pdf Accessed on 18 June 2010.

<sup>670</sup> Mr Timothy Marney, Under Treasurer, Department of Treasury and Finance, letter, 26 August 2010, p1.

<sup>671</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman and Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p39.

infrastructure projects. Evidence to the Committee demonstrated that a funding stream of at least $15 million a year<sup>672</sup> for the next 5 years would be required to meet urgent infrastructure needs.<sup>673</sup> By mandating that a percentage of RWWA's profit margin<sup>674</sup> (at a rate sufficient to address critical infrastructure needs) is set aside each year for infrastructure, this would ensure a regular funding stream. On current estimates based on RWWA's approximate margin figures for 2009-10,<sup>675</sup> a mandated figure of between 8% and 9% would yield between $13 million and $15 million a year. As already established however, it is important to reinforce that for this method not to impact adversely on RWWA's distribution to the codes (and stakes in particular), the infrastructure fund could only be established following a reduction in wagering tax.

In terms of the quantum of change that would be needed to the taxation rate, it was suggested by some industry participants that the tax should be reduced initially by one per cent.<sup>676</sup> The Committee recognises that a detailed economic analysis is required to identify an actual figure and as indicated earlier in this Report, has recommended that tax rates should be reviewed by the state government. Factors that would need to be considered include:

- how taxation might best be modified to achieve the desired outcomes for the racing industry i.e. whether this should be spread across rates of taxation for totalisator and/or fixed odds betting;
- how taxation relief will enable RWWA to compete more effectively in the wagering market (as discussed in Chapter 2.9);
- in relation to equipping RWWA to meet infrastructure funding challenges:
  - the extent to which state government funding under the recently announced racecourse infrastructure grants program will address infrastructure shortfalls;
  - the extent to which other committed funds such as Royalties for Regions will address infrastructure shortfalls; and
  - the extent to which RWWA might contribute to addressing infrastructure shortfalls.

In terms of how an infrastructure fund could actually be established, Section 88 of the RWWA Act provides for RWWA to maintain one or more special purpose accounts as defined under the Financial Management Act 2006. A special purpose account administered by RWWA could be used to ensure that funds sourced from wagering profits are applied to infrastructure. DTF has advised that with appropriate changes to the RWWA Act and RWWA Tax Act this would be possible. The Committee believes that the potential benefits to the industry to be derived from a source of dedicated infrastructure funding justify the establishment of a special purpose account

<sup>672</sup> This is also supported by Submission No. 21 from Broome Turf Club, 14 December 2009, p4.

<sup>673</sup> Mr Richard Burt, (Racing and Wagering Western Australia), 2010, pers. comm., 21 September 2010.

<sup>674</sup> This refers to the margin after paying pooling fees, product fees, rebates and tax.

<sup>675</sup> Mr Richard Burt, (Racing and Wagering Western Australia), 2010, pers. comm., 21 September 2010.

<sup>676</sup> Mr John Biggs, Representative, North Eastern Goldfields Racing Clubs, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p3; Submission No. 21 from Broome Turf Club, 14 December 2009, p4. This presumably referred to a reduction in the rate of off-course totalisator tax equivalent to 1% of turnover as calculated using the previously applied method.

for infrastructure, not least the potential to address priority infrastructure needs including those in country and regional areas. In terms of mandating for a set percentage of RWWA's distribution to be put towards infrastructure, it is important to understand that the allocation to the fund may need to be revised as infrastructure needs change. The mandated percentage should therefore be specified in regulations in order to provide this flexibility.

The Committee also recognises the need for transparency (in addition to normal annual reporting requirements) and considers that an infrastructure plan and increased reporting requirements would be appropriate in the context of an infrastructure fund. The Committee is aware that in May 2009, Racing Victoria Limited in conjunction with Country Racing Victoria released a five-year Racecourse and Training Facilities Infrastructure Plan. The plan provides all country clubs in the state with a five-year plan which includes but is not limited to: race dates; capital funding strategy; optimum wagering schedule; and training track maintenance funding. The result of extensive industry consultation, the plan will be updated annually following a review of club performance and is intended to provide direction to clubs and assistance to achieve greater sustainability.<sup>677</sup>

Should a RWWA administered infrastructure fund be established, it must be reinforced by a forward looking infrastructure plan which clearly identifies infrastructure priorities and the proposed schedule and quantity of funding allocations across the state. Although current accountability provisions in the RWWA Act require capital expenditure to be included in RWWA's Strategic Development Plan,<sup>678</sup> a similar requirement is lacking in the Statement of Corporate Intent which once tabled in Parliament becomes a public document. A requirement to report infrastructure expenditure for the coming financial year in an SCI would strengthen accountability and legislatively reinforce the need for RWWA to undertake sound planning for the allocation of infrastructure funds. The task of preparing such documentation could be the responsibility of a risk management board committee (as discussed in Chapter 2.2(e)).

Summary

The main conclusions reached by the Committee in relation to funding infrastructure can be summarised as follows:

- A RWWA administered infrastructure fund has already been identified to be a suitable mechanism for providing more flexible and sustained infrastructure funding to the industry;
- For RWWA to compete on more favourable terms with its wagering competitors and in order to fund major infrastructure, the preferred mechanism is for the wagering tax rate to be reduced and for a percentage of RWWA's wagering profits to be set aside each year for infrastructure;
- The magnitude of tax reduction needs to be subject to a detailed analysis; and

<sup>677</sup> Racing Victoria Limited, 'Victorian Racecourse and Training Facilities Infrastructure Plan Overview', May 2009. Available at: <https://admin.racingvictoria.net.au/asset/cms/Race%20Programs%20PDF/Infrastructure%20Plan%20Summary.pdf> Accessed on 1 February 2010.

<sup>678</sup> Section 68(2) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

- The anticipated benefits to the industry justify this approach, especially if sufficient transparency measures can simultaneously be put in place. In this regard, a forward looking infrastructure plan to be backed up by a legislative requirement to incorporate proposed infrastructure spending in RWWA's Statement of Corporate Intent will be necessary.

Finding 52

Provided the rate of wagering tax is reduced, a special purpose account for racing industry infrastructure should be put in place.

Finding 53

The infrastructure fund should be funded through a percentage of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's profit margin at a rate sufficient to address critical infrastructure needs. Based on Racing and Wagering Western Australia estimates for 2009-10, a mandated figure of between 8% and 9% of the profit margin would yield between $13 million and $15 million a year.

Finding 54

Accountability and reporting requirements need to be put in place by Racing and Wagering Western Australia to ensure that funds from the special purpose account are used only for infrastructure.

Recommendation 29

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to establish a special purpose account for the infrastructure fund.

Recommendation 30

That the percentage of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's profits, fixed by regulation at a rate sufficient to address critical infrastructure needs is quarantined annually into the infrastructure fund.

Recommendation 31

That Section 77(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to require the inclusion of proposed infrastructure spending in the Statement of Corporate Intent for Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

2.9 Wagering revenues*(a) Challenges

Section 50 of the RWWA Act authorises RWWA to carry on a wagering business.<sup>679</sup> Wagering services in WA are also provided by on-course parimutuel totalisators operated by racing clubs at race courses (or by RWWA on behalf of a racing club where contracted to do so<sup>680</sup>), and on-course bookmakers.<sup>681</sup> Only RWWA may conduct off-course wagering as there is no provision under the Betting Control Act 1954 for additional providers of off-course wagering services to be licensed by the Gaming and Wagering Commission.<sup>682</sup>

The importance of RWWA's wagering operations stem from the application of profits to the industry in the form of distributions (as detailed in Chapter 2.7). RWWA continues to emphasise the importance of wagering revenues in terms of its purpose:

Our singular focus is to run the TAB to make a profit for distributable funds for the racing industry.<sup>683</sup> and ongoing significance:

I would like the committee to note that the three codes in Western Australia are ridden on the back of the wagering dollar, and they will continue to do so...<sup>684</sup>

RWWA has provided figures to indicate that between establishment in 2003 and 2008-2009, wagering income and distributions to clubs increased annually.<sup>685</sup> That said, a reversal in the total

<sup>679</sup> For a definition of 'wagering' refer to the Glossary.

<sup>680</sup> Section 50(1)(b)(ii) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 (WA).

<sup>681</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p18.

<sup>682</sup> Ibid., p24.

<sup>683</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p13.

<sup>684</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p3.

<sup>685</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p37.

annual distribution by RWWA has become apparent in recent times. As at February 2010, RWWA noted that financial performance to date in 2009-10 was below expectations as a result of a significant reduction in totalisator betting. Further, the distribution to the racing industry in 2009-10 was $4.19 million less than for 2008-09.

RWWA has highlighted a number of factors that are placing downward pressure on wagering revenues. These can be summarised as follows:

- Increasing competition for wagering services - in particular from corporate bookmakers, betting exchanges, and eastern states wagering businesses. The development of internet based wagering is transforming the wagering landscape. Increased competition in the broader gambling market as a result of: the expansion of Burswood Casino; growing popularity of sports betting; and interstate and international gaming and wagering are all contributing to a decline in racing wagering as a proportion of the wagering market, and of wagering in the overall gambling market;
- Changes in rates of wagering taxation in other Australian jurisdictions - more competitive rates of taxation in other jurisdictions risk possible migration of Western Australian customers to interstate wagering operators and further diminution of WA product; and
- Increasing costs associated with providing RWWA's core wagering services - a significant increase to pooling fees<sup>686</sup> has resulted in an $11 million annual increase in costs required for Western Australia to stay within the SuperTAB betting pool. The introduction of product fees<sup>687</sup> has resulted in a recurring $4 million increase in costs to RWWA.<sup>688</sup>

The Committee received extensive comments from industry stakeholders regarding the challenges confronting RWWA. Many industry participants highlighted that RWWA had been established during an economic 'boom' time and the industry had benefited from this. The coming years however would present particular challenges given the rise of corporate bookmakers, betting exchanges and product fees, and this would be a real test of the RWWA model.<sup>689</sup> The Committee heard that competition from corporate bookmakers had been particularly damaging for RWWA's

<sup>686</sup> Until 2009, RWWA operated totalisator and fixed odds wagering on sports and racing events through an agreement with Tabcorp (Victoria's privatised TAB operator). RWWA was required to negotiate a new pooling agreement with Tabcorp so that Western Australian customers could continue accessing a combined betting pool with Victoria, Tasmania and the ACT (SuperTAB) but the agreement came at a higher cost. RWWA negotiated a new agreement with a different wagering partner (Centrebet) with respect to fixed odds betting resulting in the re-branding of the fixed odds betting business to 'Player'.

<sup>687</sup> More Western Australians bet on eastern states' racing than interstate customers bet on WA events to the extent that 75% of RWWA's wagering turnover is derived from interstate racing events. The introduction of product fees in other states has meant that fees paid by RWWA to eastern states racing bodies exceed the value of product fees paid by eastern states wagering businesses to the WA racing industry. Although the state government passed racefields legislation in 2009 to enable the WA racing industry to recover product fees, as a net 'importer' of racing product RWWA is still left with a shortfall.

<sup>688</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp61-70.

<sup>689</sup> Submission No. 26 from Northam Race Club, 23 December 2009, p3; Submission No. 25 from Geraldton Turf Club, 25 November 2009, p4; Submission No.14 from WA Greyhound Racing Association, 30 November 2009, p5; Mr Bruce Jones, Vice President, Harvey District Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p4; Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p3; Mr Robert Bovell, Chief Executive, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p11.

wagering revenues and this pressure would continue to intensify.<sup>690</sup> That said, Mr Robert Howat of the WA Bookmakers' Association sees corporate bookmakers as just another part of the economic chain in which money circulates and therefore downplayed their perceived threat to Western Australian wagering revenues.<sup>691</sup>

Other views concerning factors impacting negatively on RWWA's wagering revenues include poor odds being offered to WA punters which works to the advantage of RWWA's interstate wagering competitors,<sup>692</sup> and the ability of big punters to bet on credit with corporate bookmakers but not with RWWA which again takes business away from WA.<sup>693</sup> The Committee also heard that the expanding wagering market is a particular challenge and that limiting the scope of wagering to a statewide focus is no longer appropriate.<sup>694</sup>

The main consequence for the industry if RWWA fails to address these challenges was best summarised by Mr Colin Bellchambers, Pinjarra Race Club:

There is a limit to how far RWWA is able to prune its operating costs. I guess they have done nearly as much as they can now. Ultimately, if things continue to go on a downward track rather than upwards, there will be only one place from which it can come, and that is distribution to clubs.<sup>695</sup>

If diminishing distributions led to a reduction in stake levels, this would drive people out of the industry and continue the downward spiral.<sup>696</sup>

In recognition of these consequences, evidence to the Inquiry suggested that RWWA needs to increase its revenues.<sup>697</sup> The Western Australian Racehorse Owners' Association suggested that while RWWA needs to generate more revenue, holding more races is not the answer as the horse population has remained relatively constant over the last five years and more meetings would mean smaller fields and lower wagering returns.<sup>698</sup> Other stakeholders emphasised that increasing the race program would need to be supported by sufficient stake money to stay competitive.<sup>699</sup> This is a self-defeating argument if an expanded race program is needed to increase wagering

<sup>690</sup> Submission No. 7A from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 30 November 2009, p3; Submission No. 28 from WA Racehorse Owners' Association, 30 December 2009, p3.

<sup>691</sup> Mr Robert Howat, President, WA Bookmakers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p5.

<sup>692</sup> Submission No. 16 from Morley TAB Agents, 27 November 2009, p6.

<sup>693</sup> Mr Geoffrey Warwick, Vice President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p14.

<sup>694</sup> Mr Dino Di Cianno, President, Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p7.

<sup>695</sup> Mr Colin Bellchambers, General Manager, Pinjarra Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p6.

<sup>696</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p5.

<sup>697</sup> Mr Allen Kinnish, Committee Member, Western Australian Greyhound Breeders Owners and Trainers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p5; Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p11; Submission No. 38 from Mr J Spasich, 23 March 2010, p1.

<sup>698</sup> Submission No. 28 from Western Australian Racehorse Owners' Association, 30 December 2009, p3.

<sup>699</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p7.

revenues but is itself dependent on an increase in stakes (and therefore wagering revenues). RWWA also confirmed that conducting more racing is not the answer:

Meetings held in the country, provincial and metropolitan areas, across all three codes, are largely loss making. When you allocate the cost of running this industry from distributions, the direct costs of stewards, race meeting costs, nominations et cetera, the numbers that we have been communicating to the industry extensively over the past couple of months through the rollout of the strategic plans is that for every dollar we invest in harness racing, we lose 94c; for every dollar we invest in thoroughbreds, across the range, from country to metropolitan, we lose 65c; and we lose 85c for the greyhounds. To hold more meetings, be they at Lark Hill or Pemberton, would be a loss-making venture.<sup>700</sup>

RWWA qualified this statement by indicating that it did not mean abandoning local product. Although racing is not profitable from a business venture perspective, RWWA acknowledged that profitability alone does not determine race programming. Other factors taken into consideration include: venues that can sustain more racing from the perspective of existing track and other infrastructure; vision coverage; and presence of a local horse population to minimise fuel/transport costs. Even so, RWWA indicated that current levels of local racing are adequate.<sup>701</sup> It is therefore clear that an expanded race program is not the answer for boosting RWWA's wagering revenues.

Alternative mechanisms suggested in evidence to the Committee to assist RWWA to increase revenues are explored in greater detail below.

(b) Mechanisms to enhance revenues

(i) Taxation

Various submissions to the Inquiry argued for a review of wagering taxation to enhance RWWA's ability to compete more effectively with the providers of wagering services in other jurisdictions and therefore maximise returns to the industry. This matter has been discussed separately in Chapter 2.8.

(ii) Increasing product range and accessibility

RWWA has made a number of suggestions to enhance its wagering revenues as follows:

- RWWA should be allowed to expand the range of wagering and gambling products to include products already available to competing wagering businesses;
- The RWWA Act should be amended to expand the ability of RWWA to offer wagering services through electronic agents without RWWA having the direct relationship with the end-customer;

<sup>700</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p40.

<sup>701</sup> Ibid.

- RWWA should be allowed to expand the range of outlets through which RWWA may distribute wagering products.<sup>702</sup>

Numerous other submissions to the Inquiry have supported the concept of RWWA broadening its product range in order to increase wagering income.<sup>703</sup> This includes support for the introduction of alternative forms of wagering<sup>704</sup> like Keno<sup>705</sup> and Trakside (virtual racing),<sup>706</sup> and/or an expansion of outlets for conducting wagering.<sup>707</sup>

In support RWWA reasoned that the product range offered by the TAB had not changed in 10 years and this limited the capacity of the wagering business to grow. RWWA has specifically identified Trakside (a fixed odds simulated racing product) and Keno (a bingo-style product) as being suitable components of an expanded product offering through the TAB. Both are currently restricted to Burswood Casino.<sup>708</sup> According to RWWA, simulated virtual racing is by its nature closely aligned to racing so there are obvious synergies whereas Keno is attractive due to its revenue generating capacity.<sup>709</sup>

With regard to virtual racing, RWWA cited recent plans by the New South Wales government to establish a racing development fund.<sup>710</sup> The fund will deliver an estimated $150 million to the racing industry in that state at the rate of $12 million a year. Funding is dependent on a merger of Sydney's two main racing clubs and will be derived from the introduction of Trakside into TABs.<sup>711</sup> In Western Australia, RWWA sees Trakside as being a suitable product for TAB retail agencies and licensed premises and to a limited extent clubs, whereas Keno if available would predominantly be a club and pub product.<sup>712</sup> RWWA stressed however that if introduced, these

<sup>702</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp78-79.

<sup>703</sup> Submission No. 22 from WA Racing Trainers' Association, 14 December 2009, p3; Submission No. 16 from Western Australian TAB Agents' Association, 27 November 2009, p2; Submission No. 42 from Wagin Trotting Club, 26 May 2010, p1; Mr Gino Monaco, President, Fremantle Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p12; Submission No. 37 from Western Australian Bookmakers' Association (Inc), 25 February 2010, p2; Mr Robert Tomlinson, President, Breeders', Owners', Trainers and Reinspersons' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p9; Submission No. 35 from Perth Racing, 22 December 2009, p1; Submission No. 29 from HROAWA/WASBA/BOTRA, 15 January 2010, p2.

<sup>704</sup> Submission No. 28 from Western Australian Racehorse Owners' Association, 30 December 2009, p3.

<sup>705</sup> Submission No. 16 from Morley TAB Agents, 27 November 2009, p4.

<sup>706</sup> Mr Kenneth Trainer, Advisor, WA TAB Agents' Association, and Mr Robert Morgan, President, WA TAB Agents' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, pp1, 11; Submission No. 31 from Fremantle Harness Racing Club, 15 January 2010, p4.

<sup>707</sup> Mr Robert Bovell, Chief Executive, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p11; Submission No. 31 from Fremantle Harness Racing Club, 15 January 2010, p5.

<sup>708</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 30 April 2010, pp22-23.

<sup>709</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 20 August 2010, p46.

<sup>710</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 20 August 2010, p46.

<sup>711</sup> AAP, 'Racing club merger delivers windfall', Australian Financial Review, 23 July 2010, p8.

<sup>712</sup> Ibid., p23.

products should go no further than licensed TAB venues, which comprises retail TAB agencies, PubTABs and ClubTABs.<sup>713</sup>

The Australian Hotels Association (AHA)<sup>714</sup> cites other jurisdictions (Victoria and New South Wales) where Trackside is classified as a wagering product and states that there is evidence to suggest that it 'should be offered as a wagering product in TAB locations as a supplement to wagering on real life animals'.<sup>715</sup> The AHA recognises however that state government policy to date has considered Trackside a casino game and as such, urges 'an appropriate mechanism to independently review and consider the determination of Trackside as a wagering product and for it to be available in hotels [sic] TAB venues'.<sup>716</sup>

RWWA considers that it already has the legislative capacity to allow for the introduction of Trackside and in order to progress the proposal, it would require Ministerial approval and the concurrence of Burswood Casino to introduce the product.<sup>717</sup> From a regulatory perspective, Mr Barry Sargeant of DRGL confirmed that the RWWA Act had sufficient flexibility built-in to accommodate some form of gambling in TAB outlets, however he stressed that:

Fundamentally ... it has to have government approval. No agreement has been struck on tax rates et cetera, and then there is just the fundamental approval of a government, as a matter of policy, on whether it wants that. The technical side is not the issue; it is a matter of government policy, and the government policy to date has been that there be no development of gambling per se outside the current structures.<sup>718</sup>

The Casino (Burswood Island) Agreement Act 1985 gives Burswood Casino exclusive rights to certain games.<sup>719</sup> Mr Sargeant explained that Burswood currently has exclusive rights to Trackside and that if there was a proposal to expand the product beyond the casino, under the terms of the agreement it could only be done with the agreement of Burswood. Any proposal to introduce Trackside to TABs therefore would require the state government to firstly agree to a change in policy<sup>720</sup> and secondly it would be necessary to secure the agreement of Burswood.<sup>721</sup>

<sup>713</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 20 August 2010, p46.

<sup>714</sup> The Australian Hotels Association Western Australia represents members which operate PubTABs (SL2) or self-service kiosks (SL3).

<sup>715</sup> Submission No. 45 from Australian Hotels Association Western Australia, 3 August 2010, p4.

<sup>716</sup> Ibid.

<sup>717</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p23.

<sup>718</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p12.

<sup>719</sup> Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, 'The Western Australian Gaming Legislation', June 2008. Available at: www.rgl.wa.gov.au/ResourceFiles/Gaming/wa\_gaming\_bground.pdf. Accessed on 10 August 2010.

<sup>720</sup> Recent indications are that the state government remains opposed to electronic gaming machines outside of the casino. Hon. T.K. Waldron, MLA (Minister for Racing and Gaming) was quoted in the media as stating that while the government gave in principle support to the proposed expansion of Burswood Casino, gaming machines are restricted to the casino and there is no intention for machines to be approved in pubs or clubs (Emerson, D., 'State to get bigger take as Burswood raises stake', The West Australian, 20 July 2010, p9).

Mr Sargeant raised a further point that any proposal to introduce Trackside would need to be supported by a strong business case:

I would question whether it is going to be viable. I cannot release figures and I do not know what the network is, but do not forget, we have got a pretty big network in Australia. On the one hand it is quite easy to say we would like it, but you have to question whether it is financially viable.<sup>722</sup>

With respect to Keno, similar restrictions apply in terms of Burswood's current exclusivity. ClubsWA, which represents some racing clubs, has made a submission to the Minister for Racing and Gaming with respect to extending Keno to clubs as a means of increasing club revenues and boosting social exchange. ClubsWA had previously negotiated with Burswood in this regard and received favourable indications at the time that Burswood supported the concept. While the proposal progressed no further at the time, ClubsWA has no reason to believe that Burswood's position has changed.<sup>723</sup>

RWWA's other suggestions are mechanisms for increasing accessibility to its wagering network. In the first instance, RWWA has suggested that the RWWA Act should be amended to allow wagering services to be offered through electronic agents. Currently the RWWA Act prohibits wagers from being accepted unless the customer's account is held by RWWA.<sup>724</sup> An internet agent, possibly based in another state and with a large customer base, could potentially offer RWWA's wagering products to its customers while retaining its customers' accounts.<sup>725</sup> According to RWWA, this will assist the TAB to compete more effectively in a national gambling market.<sup>726</sup> RWWA recognises that retail TAB agents have some concerns about competition from internet wagering and in this respect alluded to a new agreement currently under development which will be offered to existing agents.<sup>727</sup> With respect to the overall concept of electronic agents, the Committee acknowledges that online wagering is an established part of the national gambling landscape<sup>728</sup> and that removing restrictions from the RWWA Act to allow for electronic agents would enable RWWA to compete more effectively in a national market.

<sup>721</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, pp12-13.

<sup>722</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p13.

<sup>723</sup> Submission No. 44B from Clubs WA, 7 September 2010, p1.

<sup>724</sup> Section 63 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>725</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p25.

<sup>726</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p78.

<sup>727</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, pp15-16.

<sup>728</sup> Government of Australia, Australia's Future Tax System - Final Report Part 2 Detailed Analysis, 2 May 2010, p463 and Productivity Commission, Gambling, Report No. 50, Commonwealth of Australia, Canberra, 26 February 2010, Overview p35.

RWWA's remaining suggestion pertains to expanding the range of outlets through which it may distribute wagering products. Currently RWWA may establish totalisator agencies<sup>729</sup> and the Gaming and Wagering Commission may direct RWWA to close or not establish an agency where in the opinion of the Commission, this may be 'detrimental to the public interest'.<sup>730</sup> Betting kiosks are currently limited to TAB outlets and licensed premises however RWWA argues that a broader range of outlets will provide for a more convenient and attractive wagering product.<sup>731</sup> RWWA has identified newsagencies and service stations as potential locations however stressed that only a limited range of products might be offered and would only be made available under supervision in a limited way to consumers.<sup>732</sup> As stated previously, RWWA excludes virtual racing and Keno from consideration in this context.

While there is some support for RWWA to expand its sales network into alternative locations such as newsagencies and popular retail areas,<sup>733</sup> the WA TAB Agents' Association considers that access to products should remain restricted to TAB agencies and licensed premises.<sup>734</sup> Similarly, the Director of the Morley TAB agency supports a greater product offering at TAB agencies.<sup>735</sup> The Committee notes that TAB agents already feel under pressure by the expansion of the SL3<sup>736</sup> network in licensed premises (this matter is discussed in more detail in Chapter 3.8) and that expansion of wagering products into alternative locations would compound this issue.

Summary

The Committee reached the following conclusions following analysis of RWWA's suggestions to increase product range and accessibility:

- The Committee acknowledges that RWWA's wagering revenues are coming under increasing pressure and that an expanded product range and/or greater accessibility to wagering products are potential mechanisms for addressing the decline;
- The Committee has already identified that a review of wagering taxation rates is warranted to enable RWWA to compete more effectively with wagering competitors in other states (see Chapter 2.8). The Committee is also mindful of statements made by RWWA to the effect that an expanded product range would be part of the suite of possible options to assist it to meet

<sup>729</sup> Section 51 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>730</sup> Section 52(3) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>731</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p79.

<sup>732</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p26.

<sup>733</sup> Submission No. 30 from Western Australian Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, p19; Submission No. 31 from Fremantle Harness Racing Club, 15 January 2010, p5.

<sup>734</sup> Mr Robert Morgan, President, WA TAB Agents' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p15.

<sup>735</sup> Mr Timothy Barnes, Director, Morley TAB Agency, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p15.

<sup>736</sup> This refers to wagering Service Level as follows: SL1 (full service agency); SL2 (PubTAB/ClubTAB); and SL3 (self-service). As defined in RWWA Annual Report 2008, p32. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/annual-report-2008.pdf Accessed on 14 September 2010.

industry funding shortfalls and should not be considered in addition to other mechanisms if these are granted;<sup>737</sup>

- After careful consideration, the Committee has found no case for the expansion of virtual racing and/or Keno into TAB venues.

Finding 55

Notwithstanding evidence received by the Committee (including Racing and Wagering Western Australia) supporting the expansion of virtual racing and/or Keno into TABs and licensed premises, the Committee finds no case for expansion.

Recommendation 32

That virtual racing and Keno should not be expanded to TABs and licensed premises.

- With respect to expanding the wagering sales network the Committee considers that a sufficiently compelling business argument would be needed to inform a review of government policy in this regard. Of particular concern is the impact that such an expansion might have on the viability of existing TAB agencies. As such it would be appropriate for RWWA to mount a business case in this respect for consideration by government.

Finding 56

Racing and Wagering Western Australia would need to prepare a strong case for government to support expansion of its wagering sales network into alternative locations such as newsagencies and popular retail areas. Any expansion would impact on existing TAB outlets.

- The Committee has not undertaken any investigation into the matter of electronic agents however agrees in principle with the notion of RWWA being able to offer its wagering services through this means. The Committee recognises that online wagering is an established part of the national gambling landscape and that removing restrictions from the RWWA Act to allow for electronic agents would certainly enable RWWA to compete more effectively in a national market.

<sup>737</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p38.

Finding 57

The principle of allowing Racing and Wagering Western Australia to offer wagering services through electronic agents is supported.

Recommendation 33

That Section 63 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to enable Racing and Wagering Western Australia to offer wagering services through electronic agents.

(iii) Betting Exchange

In 2008, the betting agency Betfair won a High Court challenge against the state of Western Australia. The state government had earlier amended the Betting Control Act 1954 (WA) to prohibit the establishment and operation of a betting exchange<sup>738</sup> in WA and also prohibit any person in WA from making a bet through a betting exchange.<sup>739</sup> Betfair successfully challenged this position on the basis that it was unconstitutional. The High Court found that the WA legislation did indeed contravene s92 of the Constitution because it discriminated against interstate trade in a protectionist sense.<sup>740</sup> In 2009, the state government duly repealed provisions prohibiting betting through betting exchanges.<sup>741</sup>

In July 2010, Victoria's Gaming Minister announced that the successful licensee for the Victorian wagering licence (to be awarded in late 2010) will be permitted to establish and operate the only betting exchange based in Victoria.<sup>742</sup> Given that the legislative barrier to establishing a betting exchange in Western Australia has now been removed, RWWA has a similar option to establish a betting exchange should it wish to do so.<sup>743</sup> The sole existing betting exchange operator saw the possibility for a betting exchange and parimutuel betting to coexist and identified a need for <sup>738</sup> A betting exchange (which Betfair operates from its base in Tasmania) allows customers to bet on opposing outcomes of racing or other events. In other words, unlike traditional forms of wagering (totalisator or bookmaker) it permits customers to 'back the loser'.

<sup>739</sup> Hon. M. McGowan, MLA, Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 21 June 2006, p4066.

<sup>740</sup> Betfair Pty Limited v Western Australia [2008] HCA 11 (27 March 2008).

<sup>741</sup> Racing and Wagering Legislation Amendment Act 2009.

<sup>742</sup> Hon. T. Robinson, MP, (Minister for Gaming (Victoria)), Successful applicants invited to apply for wagering licence, Media Statement, Government of Victoria, Melbourne, 29 July 2010.

<sup>743</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p15.

RWWA to diversify its wagering income.<sup>744</sup> Even so, RWWA identified only marginal benefit in having a licence for a betting exchange in the foreseeable future given that it requires great scale and the market for betting exchanges is still ‘niche’. According to RWWA, the totalisator market is dominant although there is increasing growth in the area of fixed odds betting. While RWWA considered that betting exchanges might become more relevant in the future, it is not currently a priority.<sup>745</sup>

(iv) Credit betting

RWWA has suggested that the RWWA Act<sup>746</sup> and Betting Control Act 1954 should be amended to give RWWA the discretion to extend credit to account customers in the form of allowing settlement of wagering accounts for bets after the relevant racing or sporting events are finalised. RWWA argues that it should be given the same opportunity to match the level of service already offered by its competitors including corporate bookmakers.<sup>747</sup> RWWA makes the point however that credit betting would only be available on strict terms, for example for large and established clients who hold an account with RWWA. Further, RWWA would put in place the necessary due diligence and assume the commercial risk if bets are not repaid.<sup>748</sup>

Evidence received by the Committee was mixed with regard to whether credit betting should be permitted in Western Australia. Industry stakeholders such as WAROA supported the concept.<sup>749</sup> Similarly, HROAWA indicated that Western Australia is at a disadvantage because credit betting is not permitted.<sup>750</sup> The President of the WA TAB Agents’ Association was not personally in favour of introducing credit betting, and while he did not see a problem with very low amounts of credit, he considered credit betting too great a business risk for large sums as punters could easily move onto another agency without paying.<sup>751</sup> That said, as the operator of a TAB agency, Mr Timothy Barnes of the Morley TAB considered credit betting to be a risk that each individual TAB business operator should bear.<sup>752</sup> This view was shared by his co-proprietor who believed that having built a rapport with customers over many years, TAB agents would be in a good position to assess the risks and extend credit where appropriate.<sup>753</sup>

<sup>744</sup> Mr Greg Nichols, Managing Director Sporting Affairs, Betfair, Briefing, 16 April 2010.

<sup>745</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p46.

<sup>746</sup> Section 63(2)(b)(ii) of the RWWA Act currently prohibits the provision of credit by RWWA when accepting a wager.

<sup>747</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp79-80.

<sup>748</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, pp26-27.

<sup>749</sup> Submission No. 28 from Western Australian Racehorse Owners’ Association, 30 December 2009, p3.

<sup>750</sup> Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, Western Australian Harness Racing Owners’ Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p21.

<sup>751</sup> Mr Robert Morgan, President, WA TAB Agents’ Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p13.

<sup>752</sup> Mr Timothy Barnes, Director, Morley TAB Agency, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p7.

<sup>753</sup> Mr Wayne Barnes, TAB Assistant, Morley TAB Agency, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p7.

The Productivity Commission recently found that despite the commercial benefits associated with credit betting, the potential harms involved (specifically the ability for problem gamblers to inflict financial stress on themselves and their families) warranted strict regulation and monitoring. The Commission had particular concerns regarding the off-course provision of credit betting as benefits were less clearly defined than for on-course credit betting. While the Commission did not consider that the evidence of harm was great enough to require immediate prohibition, it recommended further investigation at a national level of the risks associated with credit betting and that:

In the interim, advertising credit betting facilities should be prohibited, and credit betting should not be extended to TABs.<sup>754</sup>

In response, the Commonwealth Government recognised that national leadership is required and has undertaken to work with State and Territory governments through the new Select Council on Gambling Reform to consider the Productivity Commission's final report.<sup>755</sup>

The Committee has not investigated the merits of credit betting in Western Australia but given the potential risks associated with credit betting, it believes that it is appropriate for this issue to be progressed through COAG and that in the interim, credit betting should not be offered by RWWA.

Finding 58

The Committee received evidence that Racing and Wagering Western Australia should offer credit betting facilities. Credit betting is to be considered by the Council of Australian Governments.

Further to the credit argument, RWWA has also suggested that the RWWA Act be amended to permit the use of debit and credit cards. Currently customers can only 'top-up' wagering accounts using credit cards but cannot use cards to transact. RWWA again advised that it would assume the commercial risk and responsible wagering measures would apply. The latter refers to RWWA's self-regulatory mechanisms for managing problem gambling across its business.<sup>756</sup>

With respect to credit card gambling, the Productivity Commission report notes that the restrictions that exist on the use of credit cards or access to credit accounts through EFTPOS in gambling venues for gambling are deliberate. While most gamblers do not use credit to gamble, this is not true of problem gamblers.<sup>757</sup> As such, the Committee recognises the potential implications that allowing the use of credit cards for wagering may have for problem gambling in

<sup>754</sup> Productivity Commission, Gambling, Report No. 50, Australian Government, Canberra, 26 February 2010, pp16.54-16.58.

<sup>755</sup> Senator the Hon. N. Sherry, (Assistant Treasurer), Productivity Commission Report into Gambling, Media Statement, Government of Australia, Canberra, 23 June 2010.

<sup>756</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, pp27-28.

<sup>757</sup> Productivity Commission, Gambling, Report No. 50, Australian Government, Canberra, 26 February 2010, ppG.23-G.24.

WA. While RWWA has developed and implements a Responsible Wagering Code of Practice,<sup>758</sup> the Committee has not evaluated the strength of this device in relation to proposed credit card gambling. At a time when tougher measures are being advocated nationally to minimise the harm caused by problem gambling, the Committee is not convinced that existing mechanisms are sufficiently capable of mitigating the potential risks of credit card gambling.

Finding 59

The use of debit and/or credit cards for wagering transactions cannot be supported.

(v) Other mechanisms

In terms of other mechanisms that might be available to RWWA to boost its wagering revenues, Mr Robert Howat of the WA Bookmakers' Association highlighted the important contribution made by bookmakers:

A huge amount of the money they get is, obviously, from the TAB business. We are very conscious of that and supportive of the TAB, because on course we are their biggest client. We trap money coming from everywhere, but we are limited to what we can do so we repatriate a lot of that money onto on-course tote. The more money that can come through us gets back onto the on-course tote.<sup>759</sup>

Although only a minor component of RWWA's revenues, the interrelationship between bookmakers and the on-course tote<sup>760</sup> led Mr Howat to emphasise the importance of fostering on-course wagering. In this regard, it was suggested that facilities for on-course customers need to be improved<sup>761</sup> as without on-course patrons, 'the gambling cycle that makes the entire industry exist would falter'.<sup>762</sup>

From a racing club's perspective, the Bunbury Trotting Club also recognised the importance of improving the on-course experience since the club also benefits from returns.<sup>763</sup> The club indicated however that financial assistance from RWWA to improve on-course facilities was not forthcoming due to financial constraints.<sup>764</sup> The Committee acknowledges the important contribution made to overall wagering revenues by on-course activities and believes it is

<sup>758</sup> Submission No. 7C from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 31 May 2010, p2.

<sup>759</sup> Mr Robert Howat, President, WA Bookmakers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p3.

<sup>760</sup> According to RWWA, most racing clubs partner with the TAB to provide on-course betting services and in return for using betting services and pools, clubs pay a fee to the TAB which is determined by commercial negotiation between the club and the TAB (Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p25).

<sup>761</sup> Mr Robert Howat, President, WA Bookmakers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, pp3-4.

<sup>762</sup> Submission No. 37 from Western Australian Bookmakers' Association (Inc), 25 February 2010, p2.

<sup>763</sup> Mr Kenneth Godley, President, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p5.

<sup>764</sup> Ms Julie Caldwell, Manager, Bunbury Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p6.

appropriate for this sector to be fostered. Investment in on-course facilities speaks to the larger issue of infrastructure funding however, which has been examined in detail in Chapter 2.7(c).

Another factor critical to maintaining and growing wagering revenues relates to the existing wagering sales network. As at 31 July 2009 RWWA's retail TAB network comprised 92 dedicated full-time shops, 188 PubTABs and 31 self-service outlets.<sup>765</sup> Mechanisms for optimising the effectiveness of the retail wagering network are explored separately in Chapter 3.8.

2.10 Structure and ownership of RWWA

RWWA was established as an integrated statutory authority. Its formation in 2003 represented a restructuring of the racing industry to merge the principal club functions of the WA Turf Club, WATA and WAGRA with the off-course betting activities of the TAB to create a single controlling entity.<sup>766</sup> The structure of RWWA is unique in Australia and while states like Queensland have recently adopted a single control body for all three racing codes,<sup>767</sup> most states have privatised their TAB businesses. Tasmania and WA remain the only jurisdictions in Australia where the major totalisator operator is government owned.<sup>768</sup>

(a) Views on the structure and ownership of RWWA

The Committee received opposing views from industry participants regarding the structure of RWWA. Several stakeholders supported splitting RWWA into its racing and wagering components, with some going further to suggest that the TAB should be privatised. The main comments received by the Committee in this regard can be summarised as follows:

- RWWA's wagering operation should be established as a separate entity;<sup>769</sup>
- RWWA's focus is skewed towards wagering at the expense of racing and a study should be done to see if there is any benefit to be derived from separating racing and wagering;<sup>770</sup>
- RWWA could be disbanded and the TAB sold in order to raise funds for the industry;<sup>771</sup> and

<sup>765</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, 12 October 2009, p25. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/rwwa-annual-report-2009.pdf Accessed on 16 September 2010.

<sup>766</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, MLC, Minister for Racing and Gaming, Western Australia, Legislative Council, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 9 May 2003, p7412.

<sup>767</sup> Racing Queensland Limited commenced on 1 July 2010 (Racing Queensland Limited, 'About RQL', 2010. Available at: www.racingqueensland.com.au/about-rql.aspx Accessed on 28 September 2010.

<sup>768</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p99.

<sup>769</sup> Submission No. 11 from Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd, 30 November 2009, p11.

<sup>770</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p10.

<sup>771</sup> Submission No. 16 from Morley TAB Agents, 27 November 2009, p5.

- It would be appropriate for the industry to be restructured to remove government involvement.<sup>772</sup>

The majority view however supported the retention of wagering operations by RWWA as summarised in the following comments put to the Committee:

- The TAB should remain a part of RWWA and should not be privatised.<sup>773</sup> In South Australia privatisation has not been successful;<sup>774</sup>
- To safeguard the source of racing industry funding, it is essential that the TAB is not privatised;<sup>775</sup>
- The continuation of RWWA's retail licence exclusivity is critical to retail TAB agents. A vibrant retail wagering business underpins the prosperity of the racing industry;<sup>776</sup>
- Having the state government involved brings accountability back to RWWA. This accountability will be lost with privatisation;<sup>777</sup>
- The Western Australian model where RWWA has responsibility for administering the three racing codes and the TAB is the envy of other states;<sup>778</sup>
- The Western Australia model which has maintained ownership of the wagering arm has kept the racing industry quite strong and set WA apart from the other states;<sup>779</sup>
- For RWWA to retain ownership of the off-course wagering vehicle is even more fundamental to the future of the industry today than it was before;<sup>780</sup>
- The racing industry is funded by returns from the TAB. If the TAB is ever privatised it will be responsible to shareholders and the racing industry will no longer get the same returns from RWWA.<sup>781</sup>

A number of other comments reinforced the notion that privatisation of the TAB would not benefit the racing industry. Mr Barry Sargeant of DRGL supported retention of the current model:

The other thing is, once you introduce a private sector model—if I were a CEO or a managing director of a company, I would know full well where my loyalties lie; that is,

<sup>772</sup> Hon. Nick Griffiths, Former Minister for Racing and Gaming, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, pp10-11.

<sup>773</sup> Submission No. 14 from WA Greyhound Racing Association, 30 November 2009, p5.

<sup>774</sup> Submission No. 10 from Community and Public Sector Union Civil Service Association of WA, 30 November 2009, p3.

<sup>775</sup> Submission No. 30 from WA Trotting Association, 15 January 2010, p26.

<sup>776</sup> Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p2.

<sup>777</sup> Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p13.

<sup>778</sup> Submission No. 28 from Western Australian Racehorse Owners' Association, 30 December 2009, p2.

<sup>779</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p2.

<sup>780</sup> Submission No. 35 from Perth Racing, 22 December 2010, p2.

<sup>781</sup> Mr Bruce Hyde, President, WA Racing Trainers' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p6.

with the shareholders. I think that is what creates some of the tension. I believe that model has served us well.<sup>782</sup>

Mr Gray Williamson of WABBA conveyed an industry perspective:

At the end of the day, in the concept of RWWA and the TAB as an integrated body, I would hate to see the TAB privatised. I think that would be the start of the death knell of racing for us. I think the way it is structured now is really good.<sup>783</sup>

RWWA's own view is that it should continue operating under its current model,<sup>784</sup> that of a statutory authority with roles of governance for all three racing codes and ownership of the principal off-course TAB business in Western Australia.<sup>785</sup>

(b) The structure and ownership of RWWA going forward

From the Committee's observations of systems of racing administration in Queensland and Victoria, it was evident that industry stakeholders in these states had equally divergent views concerning the merits of privatising the TAB.

In 1994 the Victorian state government privatised the TAB via a public float and granted a wagering licence and gaming licence to Tabcorp for a period of 18 years.<sup>786</sup> The public float yielded approximately $700m for consolidated revenue.<sup>787</sup> In order to meet the condition for the licences, Tabcorp formed an unincorporated joint venture with the Victorian racing industry. The funding arrangement agreed at the time requires allocation of joint venture profits, marketing fees and 25 per cent of the product supply fees to the three racing codes based on off-course wagering market share; and racing program fees and 75 per cent of the product supply fees allocated on a fixed percentage basis to the racing codes.<sup>788</sup> The Queensland TAB was privatised in 1999 and in a similar situation to Victoria, UniTAB as the holder of the wagering licences entered into an agreement with the Queensland racing industry setting out the allocation of profits to the racing codes.

<sup>782</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 19 February 2010, pp3-4.

<sup>783</sup> Mr Gray Williamson, President, WA Bloodhorse Breeders' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p12.

<sup>784</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p2.

<sup>785</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p56.

<sup>786</sup> Victoria Department of Justice, Office of Gaming and Racing, Wagering Licence Arrangements Post-2012 Issues Paper, March 2006, p7 and Funding Arrangements for the Racing Industry Post-2012 Issues Paper, March 2006, p7. Available at: www.gamblinglicences.vic.gov.au/gambling-licences-review/discussion-papers-and-submissions/2006-Gambling-Licences-Review-Issues-Papers.html Accessed on 28 January 2010.

<sup>787</sup> Ms Kerri Hereward, Principal Policy Officer, Victoria Department of Justice, Office of Gaming and Racing, Briefing, 16 April 2010.

<sup>788</sup> Victoria Department of Justice, Office of Gaming and Racing, Funding Arrangements for the Racing Industry Post-2012 Issues Paper, March 2006, p8. Available at: www.gamblinglicences.vic.gov.au/gambling-licences-review/discussion-papers-and-submissions/2006-Gambling-Licences-Review-Issues-Papers.html Accessed on 28 January 2010.

Interstate stakeholders pointed to independence from government as the major advantage of privatising the TAB. Some of the main themes raised during briefings were as follows:

- Privatisation has worked well for Victoria and it is better for governments not to be involved in wagering operations;<sup>789</sup> and
- It is appropriate for the government and wagering operator to operate at arm's length as it enables the wagering operator to get on with its business.<sup>790</sup>

Conversely, critics of privatisation highlighted the commercial interests of the privatised wagering operator as being unfavourable for the racing industry as reflected in these general discussions:

- A privatised model means that the wagering operator needs to take care of its shareholders so perhaps a government owned model is better where there is greater responsibility for the industry;<sup>791</sup>
- Overall, privatisation of the Victorian TAB has not benefited the industry. Under the joint venture agreement, 75% of revenues goes into private hands (Tabcorp shareholders) and not enough is going back to owners to sustain the industry;<sup>792</sup> and
- Privatisation of the TAB was inevitable in Victoria<sup>793</sup> and occurred because the state government needed the funds.<sup>794</sup>

An interesting point was raised by (then) Queensland Racing Limited, which suggested that when the Queensland TAB was privatised there was not much competition in the wagering market. The situation has obviously changed and it is unlikely that a new exclusive wagering license would cost as much now as it did in 1998.<sup>795</sup>

The Committee recognises that the integrated structure of RWWA (in terms of a single control body for the three codes and ownership of the TAB) is largely supported by industry participants. Most comments however relate to ownership of the TAB and whether this should remain government owned or whether wagering operations should be privatised. A compelling argument, either among industry participants in WA or interstate, is generally absent with respect to the benefits of privatisation. Furthermore, the Committee has already established the public nature of

---

<sup>789</sup> Mr John Anderson, Chief Executive, Harness Racing Victoria, Briefing, 14 April 2010.

<sup>790</sup> Mr David Ford, Deputy Director General, Department of Employment, Economic Development and Innovation Queensland, Briefing, 12 April 2010.

<sup>791</sup> Mr Darren Beavis, General Manager, Greyhounds Queensland Limited, Briefing, 13 April 2010.

<sup>792</sup> Mr Rob Hines, Chief Executive Officer, Racing Victoria Limited, Briefing, 16 April 2010.

<sup>793</sup> Mr Roger Joseph, Manager Racing Administration, Australian Trainers' Association (Victoria), Briefing, 14 April 2010.

<sup>794</sup> Mr John Stephens, Chief Executive Officer, Greyhound Racing Victoria, Briefing, 14 April 2010.

<sup>795</sup> Mr Bob Bentley, Chairman, and Mr Malcolm Tuttle, Chief Operations Manager, Queensland Racing Limited, Briefing, 21 June 2010.

funds raised by RWWA<sup>796</sup> and consequently, the widespread support among industry participants for the government to retain an involvement for accountability purposes.<sup>797</sup>

Finding 60

While privatisation of the TAB has occurred in most other states, there is no long-term benefit for the industry in Western Australia. There is extensive industry support for the existing structure and wagering ownership arrangements under Racing and Wagering Western Australia to continue.

In terms of different ownership models, RWWA commissioned a study in 2009 which benchmarked its performance against various alternative models. The study examined various structure and ownership scenarios including:

- maintaining the status quo;
- an alternative industry ownership model which would involve transferring the wagering business and ownership of racing governance functions to the racing industry with wagering governance functions transferred to the state government; and
- an alternative private ownership model which would involve selling the wagering business, transferring racing governance functions to the racing industry and wagering governance functions to the state government.

The study also considered variations of the private ownership scenario comprising different taxation arrangements and funding arrangements for the racing industry. Significantly, the study concluded that the current structure of RWWA as an integrated statutory authority performed at least as well as the other models. Financial outcomes for the racing industry and the state government under the existing RWWA structure were found to be ‘comparable with the outcomes that might be expected under industry ownership or private ownership’.<sup>798</sup> RWWA went further to demonstrate that under the existing structure and ownership model, the Western Australian racing industry has outperformed other jurisdictions with privatised wagering businesses in the context of racing activity and rates of increase in stake monies.<sup>799</sup>

The Committee is mindful that the structure and ownership of RWWA may be examined as part of a broader review into governance arrangements of GTEs. As indicated in Chapter 2.2, the state government’s Economic Audit Committee Final Report recommended a review of GTEs to ensure that the governance and ownership of each business is appropriate for the delivery of

<sup>796</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.8 (Taxation).

<sup>797</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.4 (Accountability).

<sup>798</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp56-57.

<sup>799</sup> Ibid., pp58-59.

government's policy objectives.<sup>800</sup> This is particularly significant for RWWA given that the EAC identified that the existing model arose from a historical policy need to fund the development of the state's racing industry but challenges to wagering operations (i.e. corporate bookmakers and the expansion of online wagering) impact on the commercial viability of the business in the long term. The EAC report states that a change in the 'extent and nature of competition in markets over time, and to Government policy objectives, can alter the capacity or need for a business to operate independently' thus making it important for government to revisit the issue as to whether its ownership of an entity and associated governance model is still appropriate.<sup>801</sup>

Although the governance and ownership of RWWA may be examined as part of a broader state government review in the future, the Committee is persuaded by the weight of evidence supporting the existing structure and ownership of RWWA under which the one body operates both the wagering arm and racing administration. As such the Committee recommends that RWWA continues to operate in its present form.

Recommendation 34

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia continues to operate as a statutory authority with roles of governance for all three racing codes and ownership of the principal off-course TAB business in Western Australia.

2.11 Conclusions

This chapter has examined the effectiveness of various operations of RWWA. As detailed above, it is evident that the majority of industry participants support the whole-of-industry governance model that RWWA represents and believe that RWWA's establishment has overall benefited the industry and is an improvement on the principal clubs model that existed before 2003. In terms of the question posed at the start of this chapter as to whether RWWA has achieved the desired outcomes, overall it is fair to say that it has. While industry participants consider the continuation of the operations of RWWA to be necessary, many highlighted the need for refinements as encapsulated in the following statement:

In assessing the achievements of RWWA to date, one would have to say that whilst there have been some disappointments there is an overwhelming argument to suggest that the model is superior to our eastern states counterparts and from a broad industry perspective it needs fine tuning not surgery.<sup>802</sup>

<sup>800</sup> Refer to Recommendation 30 of the Economic Audit Committee Final Report.

<sup>801</sup> Economic Audit Committee, Final Report October 2009, Government of Western Australia, Perth, 2009, pp119,121-122.

<sup>802</sup> Submission No. 35 from Perth Racing, 28 January 2010, p2.

From its investigations, the Committee identified mechanisms to improve the effectiveness of RWWA's operations including: changes to governance practices; accountability and transparency; consultation and appeals practices; a recommended reduction in the rates of wagering tax to assist RWWA to compete more effectively; and the establishment of a RWWA-administered racing industry infrastructure fund. The Committee notes a number of positive developments that commenced during the course of this Inquiry, which will also contribute to the greater effectiveness of RWWA's operations in the form of government grant funding to assist with racing industry infrastructure provision, and commitments by RWWA to improve consultation processes.

Finding 61

Overall, the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia have been effective but the mechanisms identified here will contribute to greater effectiveness.

Finding 62

It is essential for the Western Australian racing industry that the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia continue.

The Committee is mindful that some industry participants suggested another review of the RWWA Act in the future.<sup>803</sup> Section 122 of the RWWA Act provides only for the present review of the Act by a Parliamentary Joint Standing Committee appointed for that purpose. The Committee considers that the timing of any future review should be determined by the Minister.

Finding 63

Another review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 may be required in the future with any such timing to be determined by the responsible Minister.

<sup>803</sup> Submission No. 33 from Albany Racing Club, 18 January 2010, p4 (suggested a review after 3 years); Submission No. 21 from Broome Turf Club, 14 December 2009, p4 (suggested a review after 5 years); Submission No. 41 from Country Racing Association, 16 April 2010, p11 (suggested a review after 5 years).

CHAPTER 3 OTHER MATTERS RELEVANT TO THE OPERATION AND EFFECTIVENESS OF THE ACTS

3.1 Introduction

This Chapter focuses on the Inquiry's third term of reference and examines miscellaneous issues and suggested mechanisms for enhancing the operation and effectiveness of the Acts.

3.2 Ratings/handicapping system for horse racing codes

The prescribed responsibility within RWWA for handicapping rests with the Integrity Assurance Committee.<sup>804</sup> Through various hearings and submissions, the Committee has become aware that a number of industry participants have concerns over the ratings/handicapping systems being used in Western Australia by both the thoroughbred and harness racing codes. These views are summarised here.

(a) Stakeholder views on ratings/handicapping

It is noteworthy that despite the variance of concerns, and the different issues experienced by each horse racing code, a general consensus exists amongst industry participants that the ratings/handicapping systems should be reviewed.<sup>805</sup>

The main criticisms in relation to the thoroughbred code can be summarised as follows:

1. The national template adopted by RWWA does not serve Western Australia well. It reduces the size of the fields and requires an unnecessary handicapping department to run it. WA should have a stand alone system that is a pure ratings-based system. It would suit the state better and would only require one person to run it.<sup>806</sup>
2. The system discriminates against country races:
  - a. It does not account for the differences in the grade of a field between country and metropolitan races of the same class. A class x race in Perth is invariably going to be of a higher grade than the same class race in the country—yet a win in the country can be given the same rating penalty as a win in the city despite the lower grade field. As such, a provincial win can essentially become a penalty if that horse next races in the city and is given top weight.<sup>807</sup>

<sup>804</sup> Section 49 Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>805</sup> Mr Geoffrey Fahl, Chairman, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p12.

<sup>806</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p3.

<sup>807</sup> Mr David Wrensted, Manager, Geraldton Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p9.

- b. The lack of high rating races in the country forces horses of a certain quality to race in Perth, which (unless it is a major race) is a heavy financial impost on owners and is detrimental to fostering a racing industry because local spectators and future participants never get to see the best local horses race.<sup>808</sup>
  - c. The Ratings Based Handicapping (RBH) system is being misused between different geographical regions without adequate recognition from RWWA as to why this is occurring.<sup>809</sup>
3. The system is too complicated—and only benefits those who understand it properly.<sup>810</sup>

The main criticisms with respect to the harness racing code can be summarised as follows:

1. Country races are disadvantaged because the stake money varies dramatically regardless of the penalty received to the owner and the trainer of the horse—in some cases a horse can be racing for more than double the stake money for the same penalty in the city compared to the country. Stakeholders argue that the only fair solution is to make it even across the board, where, regardless of where the horse is racing, if it is going to lose a penalty worth  $x$  amount, the reward from losing that penalty by winning the race is the same amount.<sup>811</sup>
2. Currently, a horse does not have to qualify to run in some races—reducing the overall quality of the fields. If a system was introduced whereby a horse had to qualify before it was able to race at Gloucester Park, the quality of the fields would become more consistent, more competitive and would produce a better quality racing product.<sup>812</sup>
3. The handicapping system allows higher class horses to be able to drop back into lower class fields, which, because there is not necessarily any hierarchical stake money, there is no incentive for horses to go into a better class race.<sup>813</sup>

(b) Mechanisms to improve ratings/handicapping in WA

RWWA contends that handicapping is a very complex issue and different approaches have pluses and minuses.<sup>814</sup> With regard to thoroughbred handicapping, RWWA agreed that there is a disparity in how the handicapping system applies to a country race versus a city race. Mr Robert Pearson of RWWA noted that it is currently investigating the possibility of a separate system for the country whereby a horse will receive an outer metropolitan rating for those races in the country—and a metropolitan rating for when that same horse races in the city. RWWA has

<sup>808</sup> Ibid.

<sup>809</sup> Mr David Prance, Immediate Past Chairman, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p13.

<sup>810</sup> Mr Bruce Hyde, Trainer, Western Australian Racing Trainers Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p10.

<sup>811</sup> Mr Brett Snell, Owner-Breeder-Trainer-Reinsman, Golden Mile Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p2; Mr Victor Jury, Trainer, Albany Harness Racing Club, 12 March 2010, p2.

<sup>812</sup> Mr Mark Roberts, Vice President, Northam Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p12.

<sup>813</sup> Ibid., p12.

<sup>814</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p40.

suggested that it will raise the issue with the Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group (TRGC) for comment and to explore what improvements can be made.

The Committee concurs that RWWA should engage in consultation about ratings/handicapping with both the TRCG and the Harness Racing Consultative Group (HRCG) but acknowledges that this is a multifaceted issue and one that falls largely outside the scope of this Inquiry.<sup>815</sup> Nonetheless it notes that the perceived inequities between city and country racing, and the difficulties that some clubs like Perth Racing experience in filling competitive fields, is indicative of failings within the handicapping systems in use and as such, these systems should be reviewed.

The Committee is satisfied with RWWA's recognition of the handicapping issues that exist in the industry—and its current efforts to examine means by which some of these issues may be resolved. The Committee recommends that further review into these handicapping systems is carried out in consultation with the Thoroughbred and Harness Racing Consultative Groups, with a view to producing balanced and competitive race fields and to remedy the inequities between city, provincial and country racing for thoroughbred and harness codes.

Recommendation 35

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia reviews, in consultation with the Thoroughbred and Harness Racing Consultative Groups, the ratings/handicapping systems for each code, with a view to producing balanced and competitive race fields; and to address the perceived handicapping inequities between city, provincial and country racing.

<sup>815</sup> During the course of this Inquiry the Committee reviewed the system that is currently being used in NSW as an example of a stand alone thoroughbred handicapping model that emerged as a result of an intensive industry review conducted by the Board of Racing NSW. The model, called the Benchmark Programming and Handicapping (BPaH) system, was launched in 2009. The Committee has since learned that this system is presently under review by the Board of Racing NSW and, as a consequence, acknowledges that it would be inappropriate to make a finding on the suitability of the NSW system.

3.3 Liquor licensing

Although liquor licensing is outside the operations of the RWWA Act, the Committee received evidence of the impact that it is having on the racing industry. Indirectly therefore, the matter is impacting on the functioning and viability of race clubs, with the major issues summarised as follows:

- Most race clubs believed they had been subjected to unreasonable and in most cases, unnecessary requirements for security;<sup>816</sup>
- Employing security personnel represents a major cost impost on clubs<sup>817</sup> and uses up limited funds that could be better applied to funding infrastructure and/or stakes;<sup>818</sup>
- Clubs must sometimes reduce the number of patrons attending events or turn people away at the gate;<sup>819</sup>
- Enforcement of liquor licensing needs to be improved as there is anecdotal evidence of on-course staff feeling intimidated or the victims of perceived entrapment;<sup>820</sup>
- Relationships with regional police are generally positive<sup>821</sup> and clubs receive support with regard to liquor licensing applications and/or attendance of police officers on race days;<sup>822</sup> and
- Metropolitan clubs reported that liquor licensing restrictions had impacted significantly on events such as the Perth Cup and New Year's Eve at Gloucester Park.<sup>823</sup>

<sup>816</sup> Mr Tony Crowhurst, Chairman, Dongara-Irwin Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, pp8-9; Mr Alan Smith, Secretary/Treasurer, Pingrup Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p7; Mr Geoff Fahl, Chairman/Treasurer, Carnarvon Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p3; Mr Robert Pimm, Committee Member, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p10; Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, pp17-18.

<sup>817</sup> Mrs Jan Glasson, Racing Manager, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p7; Mr Tony Crowhurst, Chairman, Dongara-Irwin Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p9 (the club spends $15,000-$20,000 on security); Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p2 (Port Hedland Turf Club paid $60,000 for security in 2009); Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p9 (Bunbury Turf Club paid $60,000 for security for the 2010 Bunbury Cup); Mr Brett Smith, Committee Member, Junction Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p8 ($4,800 security costs in 2009).

<sup>818</sup> Mr Robert Pimm, Committee Member, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p10.

<sup>819</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p18; Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p11.

<sup>820</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p18; Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p3; Mr Brett Smith, Committee Member, Junction Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 16 May 2010, p9.

<sup>821</sup> Although it should be noted that the WA Trotting Association and Kalgoorlie Boulder Racing Club indicated that it was police from the liquor enforcement unit who were unnecessarily strict (Mr Rob Bovell, Chief Executive, WA Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p17; Mrs Jan Glasson, Racing Manager, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p8).

<sup>822</sup> Mr Robert Pimm, Committee Member, Collie Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p9; Mr Tony Crowhurst, Chairman, Dongara-Irwin Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p9; Mr Robert Newton, Vice President, Mingenew Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 29 March 2010, p9; Mr Paul Rossiter, Manager, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p11.

The cost impost on clubs with respect to the provision of security is not the only issue as evidenced by media reports which indicate that liquor infringements also constitute a significant spend for clubs:

- WA Trotting Association fined $46,000 in 2007 and $26,000 in 2008;<sup>824</sup>
- Port Hedland Turf Club fined $30,000 following the Port Hedland Cup 2009;
- Broome Turf Club required to pay 4 x $2,000 fines following the Broome Cup 2009;<sup>825</sup>
- Kalgoorlie Boulder Race Club required to pay 5 x $1,000 fines in 2009 for underage drinking at event.<sup>826</sup>

The sale, supply and consumption of alcohol in Western Australia is regulated by the Liquor Control Act 1988 and administered by the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor (DRGL). Under the Act, a licence must be sought with respect to the sale and supply of liquor, the terms of which must be followed<sup>827</sup> or penalties apply. The Act provides discretion to the 'licensing authority' (DRGL) to impose conditions in relation to any licence or permit, including conditions 'which it considers to be in the public interest or which it considers desirable' in order to, for example, 'ensure public order and safety, particularly where circumstances or events are expected to attract large numbers of persons to the premises or to an area adjacent to the premises'.<sup>828</sup>

DRGL has issued a number of policies to provide information on liquor licensing, including matters considered as part of the licensing process. In evidence received by the Committee, numerous clubs cited a ratio, specifically that two security personnel are required for the first 100 patrons with a further requirement for one security guard for each additional 100 patrons. This ratio does indeed appear in a DRGL policy,<sup>829</sup> however, according to Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General of DRGL, the ratio is incorrectly cited:

Under the act, the police, health department et cetera have the right to intervene and comment on liquor licence applications. Frankly, for any event that involves a big number of people, I am guided very much by the police ... In relation to late night trading venues in Northbridge we have a policy saying that for the first 100 we need two security people and we need one per 100 after that. We did have some referencing some time ago to the ratio, saying you might want two per 100 for casual licences. But I took that out because the police were saying, "That's it; that's law." It is not law. The issue is: a policy is a policy; it is not in the Liquor Control Act; it is not in a regulation ... There is no carte

<sup>823</sup> Mr John Burt, President, Western Australian Trotting Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p17; Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p18.

<sup>824</sup> B. Thomas, 'Costs, liquor curbs snuff out Gloucester Park year-end fireworks', The West Australian, 24 February 2009, p9.

<sup>825</sup> B. Spencer, 'Liquor fines threaten to topple bush racing clubs', The West Australian, 21 November 2009, p9.

<sup>826</sup> Mrs Jan Glasson, Racing Manager, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p9.

<sup>827</sup> Section 31(3) Liquor Control Act 1988.

<sup>828</sup> Section 64(1) and Section 64(3)(d) Liquor Control Act 1988.

<sup>829</sup> Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Policy: Security at licensed premises, as amended 28 July 2009, p1. Available at: www.rgl.wa.gov.au/ResourceFiles/Policies/Security\_At\_Licensed\_Premises.pdf Accessed on 27 May 2010.

blanche policy among security policies that are to be involved. The police come in and negotiate with individuals. It is a matter of the relationship those clubs have with their police office.<sup>830</sup>

Mr Sargeant acknowledged that confusion exists in the racing industry regarding security requirements and undertook to issue a notice to clarify the situation.<sup>831</sup> A notice was indeed sent to race clubs in August 2010 confirming that the DRGL occasional licence policy<sup>832</sup> does not specify a set requirement for numbers of security personnel and that each occasional licence application is considered on its merits. Events considered high risk will generally be required to provide greater security and the WA Police will ‘generally determine the level of security it believes is necessary to effectively manage events’. As such, clubs were reminded to consult with local police and local government prior to lodging an application for a liquor licence in order to negotiate security requirements.<sup>833</sup> The Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club is an example of a successfully negotiated outcome whereby the club (although in a different licensing category to country/community clubs) successfully negotiated a reduction in the number of required security personnel in 2009.<sup>834</sup>

It is the Committee’s opinion that while race courses are considered to be licensed premises, they do not function in the same way as licensed premises such as nightclubs or hotels and therefore should not be subject to the same policy requirements. Most clubs promote their race days as social/family events and for many of the people attending race courses this does not involve alcohol consumption. For this reason it is not appropriate for DRGL to have a fixed policy on numbers of security personnel in relation to requirements for race days and the Committee is satisfied that the Department has sought to clarify this issue with race clubs. It is clear however that the WA Police need to disseminate the same information to its officers. It is also important for race clubs to negotiate with local police regarding security requirements prior to lodging a liquor licensing application for events.

In another positive development, the Committee understands that Clubs WA has approached RWWA with a view to assisting race clubs with their preparation of plans by using an Events Management Template Plan, which has been approved in principle by the WA Police and DRGL.<sup>835</sup> This is a worthwhile initiative and is supported.

<sup>830</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p16.

<sup>831</sup> Ibid., p17.

<sup>832</sup> This category of licence would in the most part apply to country and community racing clubs.

<sup>833</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, letter, 24 August 2010.

<sup>834</sup> According to the Kalgoorlie Boulder Racing Club, the ratio of security personnel to patrons was increased from 1 per 100 to 1 per 120 for the tentland area in 2009 (Mrs Jan Glasson, Racing Manager, Kalgoorlie-Boulder Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p8).

<sup>835</sup> Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group, Minutes, 31 August 2010, p4. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/TRCG\_Minutes\_20100831.pdf Accessed on 10 September 2010.

Finding 64

Past practices with regard to liquor licensing enforcement have impacted severely on the viability of major race days in country centres.

Finding 65

It is extremely disappointing that family events such as the New Year's Eve meeting at Gloucester Park no longer operate.

While the Committee recognises the importance of clubs negotiating with local authorities with respect to licence conditions, a more common-sense approach to liquor enforcement activities is also supported. This is critical given the significant economic and social benefits that race days, particularly in country areas, generate for their communities.

Finding 66

A more common-sense approach to liquor enforcement activities would be beneficial to race clubs and country communities.

Finding 67

Evidence suggested that where clubs have been able to negotiate satisfactorily with local police, more appropriate outcomes were achieved.

The other major issue that arose in evidence to the Committee concerned enforcement of liquor licences. Under the Liquor Control Act 1988, 'authorised officers' have significant powers including the power at any reasonable time to enter and inspect licensed premises, and require the licensee to provide any information and/or records.<sup>836</sup> According to legislation, 'authorised officers' include DRGL inspectors, a person specifically authorised by the Director General under a delegated authority, or a member of the police force.<sup>837</sup> With regard to the latter, WA Police have a liquor enforcement unit tasked with managing compliance and enforcement of the Liquor Control Act 1988 as well as developing statewide strategies to address alcohol consumption in licensed premises.<sup>838</sup> Comments to the Committee from various racing clubs indicate some confusion as to whether enforcement officers at race meetings were from DRGL or the police.

<sup>836</sup> Section 154 Liquor Control Act 1988.

<sup>837</sup> Section 3(1) Liquor Control Act 1988.

With respect to DRGL inspectors, Mr Barry Sargeant indicated that the Department issued permits and it was the responsibility of inspectors to enforce the conditions of the licence:

Ultimately, my department issues the permits...whenever there is an application it goes to the local authority and it goes to the police to find out what their concerns are. The local authority quite often gives us the advice on numbers and so forth. Once you have put them on a licence condition, then they are in force. I cannot control every minute of the day how my officers deal with it. We train them and tell them and try to have some understanding, but that is something which I just cannot control.<sup>839</sup>

Mr Sargeant emphasised the need for clubs to negotiate with local authorities regarding licensing conditions as it underpins later enforcement. Although comment from the WA Police was not sought during this Inquiry, in a public hearing with the Education and Health Standing Committee of the WA Parliament, the Commissioner of Police referred to the challenges faced by the liquor enforcement unit with respect to large-scale race events. The Commissioner also highlighted that a more common-sense approach would be trialled during the coming race season:

I think what we saw was the licensing enforcement division going out and trying to recover something that has probably got out of control in the past few years. One of our most significant events for drunkenness, disorderly conduct and assaults is the Perth Cup every year, for argument's sake. It is a huge problem for us, but it had been going under the radar for so long. I have spoken to the assistant commissioner for regional Western Australia about this, and he thinks probably we do not need to go in so hard on that; we can warn them a couple of times, and if they then do not comply, we can move to issue infringements. I understand that the infringements that were issued to some of the race meets last year were quite substantial and actually eroded most of the profits they wanted to make. So I have asked him to have a look at that to see whether there is a more consultative approach we could take in that regard. Certainly, with the next round of race meets, as they come up this year, we will trial that and see what sort of response we get from those groups.<sup>840</sup>

The Committee is encouraged by the comments of the Commissioner but believes there is still evidence of unnecessary compliance demands being placed on race clubs in relation to security at race meetings. It is the Committee's view that the level of security required is best established by discussions with local police giving due regard to historical requirements.

<sup>838</sup> Western Australia Police, 'About the Licensing Enforcement Division', nd. Available at: www.police.wa.gov.au/Crime/Licensingenforcement/tabid/1593/Default.aspx Accessed on 31 May 2010.

<sup>839</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p19.

<sup>840</sup> Dr Karl O'Callaghan, Commissioner of Police, WA Police, Transcript of Evidence, 26 May 2010, p7, Education and Health Standing Committee, Inquiry into the adequacy and appropriateness of prevention and treatment services for alcohol and illicit drug problems in Western Australia.

Recommendation 36

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming urgently reviews liquor licensing and enforcement requirements for major race meetings.

3.4 The power to direct race clubs and conduct racing in extraordinary circumstances

RWWA has suggested amendments to the RWWA Act so that it may:

- direct clubs and allied bodies where there is a severe threat to the welfare of racing. This power should include the power to dissolve a committee and appoint an administrator or to remove a licence to operate; and
- conduct race meetings in extraordinary circumstances.<sup>841</sup>

In relation to the first point, under Section 35(1) of the Act, RWWA can currently ‘supervise racing’ but has limited ability to direct a club. Under Section 43 of the RWWA Act, directions to a racing club are limited to works to improve safety at a racecourse or training track. Otherwise, Section 46 of the RWWA Act provides for RWWA to direct clubs to produce club records. RWWA has argued that while existing provisions enable it to, for example, provide staff to assist a club in financial difficulty, RWWA cannot require resolution of underlying problems. RWWA indicated that the ability to direct racing clubs is held by all other principal racing authorities in Australia and was also a power held by the principal clubs in WA prior to the establishment of RWWA.<sup>842</sup> The reason this power was not carried over to RWWA at the time of its establishment was perceived by RWWA to be a ‘hangover from the old...days’ when stakeholders did not want RWWA to become like the old principal clubs so it was forced to remain at arm’s length.<sup>843</sup>

RWWA clarified its existing powers in terms of what it can do now if a club is unable to conduct its affairs (e.g. due to mismanagement or financial duress) thereby posing a threat to the sustainability of racing:

- RWWA may licence an alternative venue to carry race meetings to ‘ensure the continuity of racing’;<sup>844</sup> and

<sup>841</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p84.

<sup>842</sup> Ibid.

<sup>843</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p10.

<sup>844</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p3.

- RWWA may provide a grant or a loan to assist a club, although loans are not considered ideal as clubs are then encumbered.<sup>845</sup>

A recent example of where a grant has been used by RWWA relates to the provision of a non-refundable grant to the Golden Mile Trotting Club. The club was experiencing severe financial difficulty but the new president and committee of the club approached RWWA with a business plan for taking the club forward. RWWA indicated that the grant was an effective means in that circumstance as it provided the club with ‘working capital to be able to run the club, convince sponsors and other providers of services—breweries and other people—to provide services to them, and they got back up and running, and now they are a very functioning group. So that injection of capital allowed a fairly creative group of people to be able to run their business’.<sup>846</sup> The Golden Mile Trotting Club reported that it had received definite support from within RWWA for its approach<sup>847</sup> although qualified this by suggesting that RWWA could have done more to prevent the club’s financial management situation from deteriorating to such a severe extent.<sup>848</sup>

Mr Evan Spencer of the Golden Mile Trotting Club supported ‘a greater role [for] RWWA in managing and organising clubs in general’.<sup>849</sup> Rather than endorsing additional powers for RWWA however, the implication was more that fostering effective club management might prevent RWWA from having to actively take control at a later stage if things go wrong. Recognising that volunteer-run clubs struggle with complex management requirements such as accounts and insurances and trying to navigate the complexity of RWWA’s funding distribution, Mr Spencer saw potential for RWWA to play a greater role in assisting clubs with their management functions.<sup>850</sup>

In terms of steps that RWWA can take to prevent a club from reaching the stage where it cannot conduct racing, RWWA currently has the power to audit club records. If a problem is detected, RWWA will work with the club to address the issues and will ask the club to ‘show cause how they are able to run a proper, functioning club, and [...] ask them to rectify the issues’.<sup>851</sup>

The Committee recognises that RWWA is limited to requesting that a club rectifies any issues and to providing support in this regard. In other jurisdictions such as South Australia and Queensland, racing control bodies have the legislative power to issue directions to a club in relation to that club’s operations and also require some form of action from a club to rectify issues.<sup>852</sup> Directions

---

<sup>845</sup> Ibid., p4.

<sup>846</sup> Ibid.

<sup>847</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p3.

<sup>848</sup> Mr Neville Sly, Committee Member, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p3.

<sup>849</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p4.

<sup>850</sup> Ibid.

<sup>851</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p4.

<sup>852</sup> Section 34(2) and 34(3) Racing Act 2002 (Qld) and Section 106 Racing (Proprietary Business Licensing) Act 2000 (SA).

issued to clubs are reinforced with sanctions for non-compliance ranging from public admonishment<sup>853</sup> to cancellation of a licence.

Finding 68

Racing and Wagering Western Australia currently has limited powers in situations where a race club is unable to conduct its affairs.

To overcome current legislative restrictions, the Committee supports an amendment to the RWWA Act to allow RWWA to direct the operations and management of a racing club where there is a severe threat to the welfare of racing. RWWA makes the point, and the Committee concurs, that the power should apply also to ‘allied bodies’ since the operation of training facilities is equally important to racing operations.<sup>854</sup> That said, it is important for clubs and allied bodies to have some form of recourse should sanctions apply in instances of non-compliance with a direction. In NSW for example, a sanction cannot be imposed on a club without first giving the club written notice of the proposed sanction and reasonable opportunity to make submissions about the matter.<sup>855</sup> Given the previous discussion on Appeals (Chapter 2.5) and the fact that this matter would be subject to RWWA’s internal conflict resolution processes, a similar requirement should apply to any sanctions imposed on clubs with respect to non-compliance with RWWA’s directions.

Recommendation 37

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the power for Racing and Wagering Western Australia to direct clubs and allied bodies where there is a severe threat to the welfare of racing.

Recommendation 38

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to ensure Racing and Wagering Western Australia cannot impose sanctions for not complying with a direction without those clubs and allied bodies first making representation.

<sup>853</sup> Section 29C(2) Thoroughbred Racing Act 1996 (NSW).

<sup>854</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p84.

<sup>855</sup> Section 29C(3) Thoroughbred Racing Act 1996 (NSW).

The Committee believes that RWWA should continue its current practice where club audits indicate potential problems at a club. In these instances it is imperative that, wherever possible, RWWA supports the management efforts of race clubs to sustain their own ability to effectively exercise their functions.

Finding 69

It is imperative that Racing and Wagering Western Australia supports the management efforts of race clubs to sustain their own ability to effectively exercise their functions.

RWWA suggested that its powers under the RWWA Act should be extended to enable it to dissolve a committee and appoint an administrator or to remove a club's licence to operate. Regarding the latter, RWWA already has the power under Section 40 of the RWWA Act to refuse to register a racing club, or, in accordance with the rules of racing and the regulations, suspend or cancel the registration of a racing club.<sup>856</sup> With respect to dissolving a committee and appointing an administrator, RWWA explained its rationale as follows:

RWWA would have the ability to come in, appoint an administrator, run the club and get the club back on its feet, and then find volunteers to come back in; not to assume the responsibility of running the club on a permanent basis.<sup>857</sup>

RWWA indicated that it is not always practicable to licence an alternative venue for a race meeting should a club be unable to conduct its functions. This might be because of the distances involved between the club and its nearest neighbour, or for continuity reasons. Staying at the advertised venue has greater benefits for the continuity of Sky coverage, sponsors and spectators. In these instances, an administrator appointed by RWWA could run the race meeting however sufficient powers would need to be introduced into the Act to enable RWWA to enter onto a club's premises, hold a meeting and 'carry out all of the functions of a club for the purpose of that race meeting'.<sup>858</sup>

If RWWA is given the power to intervene in the operation of a club to appoint an administrator, Section 35(2) of the RWWA Act would require amendment to allow RWWA to conduct race meetings. RWWA is currently precluded under Section 35(2) from conducting race meetings on its own behalf. Similarly an amendment would be required to realise RWWA's suggestion for it to be able to conduct race meetings in 'extraordinary circumstances'. RWWA cited a Queensland example whereby during the 2007 equine influenza outbreak, the racing control body in that state conducted a race meeting at a training facility. RWWA would be precluded from doing the same in WA in a similar circumstance.<sup>859</sup>

<sup>856</sup> Section 40(1) and Section 40(4) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>857</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p10.

<sup>858</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p6.

While the Committee acknowledges that there would be advantages to expanding RWWA's powers in relation to conducting race meetings, enabling it to dissolve club committees and appoint administrators and conduct meetings on its own behalf represents a significant expansion of powers. RWWA advised that it is not the intent for these powers to be applied in the long-term or in anything other than extraordinary circumstances:

...we are talking about in extreme circumstances simply wanting to be able to continue racing, not at any stage getting involved in the running of a club. The very nature of RWWA from 2003 was that it was to address that conflict of interest of the PRA being the club. I can assure you from a personal point of view and from what I have learned from this board and operations committees et cetera that the last thing we want to do is run clubs.<sup>860</sup>

RWWA also considered it appropriate for a head of power to be established in the RWWA Act but for conditions under which RWWA may exercise these additional powers to be stipulated through regulations.<sup>861</sup>

The Committee is cognisant however of the intent underpinning the introduction of Section 35(2) of the RWWA Act, that of overcoming the conflicts of interest characteristic of the principal club model where principal clubs could both control, and yet also be participants in, the industry. It is critical that the separation instituted under Section 35(2) is maintained. RWWA has a clear control function in relation to racing, which will be enhanced should it acquire additional powers to direct clubs (see above). This control function will be compromised if RWWA is able to conduct race meetings on its own behalf. As such the Committee considers it appropriate for the existing provisions of Section 35(2) to remain. Evidence to date has indicated that the existing powers under the RWWA Act are sufficient to cover most contingencies and from a race continuity perspective, new powers enabling RWWA to direct a race club will help to avoid a situation where a club reaches the stage where it cannot conduct race meetings. An expansion of powers to enable RWWA to dissolve club committees, appoint administrators, and conduct race meetings in extraordinary circumstances is therefore not supported.

Finding 70

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should not conduct race meetings on its own behalf.

<sup>859</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p84.

<sup>860</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p5.

<sup>861</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p5.

Finding 71

It would not be appropriate for Racing and Wagering Western Australia to have powers to dissolve a club committee, appoint administrators or conduct race meetings in extraordinary circumstances.

3.5 Meeting allocations, race programming and Vision

Extensive industry comment was received by the Committee in relation to meeting allocations, race programming and Sky Vision, a sample of which is reproduced below. The interrelated nature of meeting allocation, programming and Vision coverage is conveyed in many of the comments. For clubs with Vision coverage, programming is dictated to a large degree by Sky Channel demands and the need to generate off-course wagering revenue:

A lot of the programming is dictated by Sky Racing, and Sky Racing is Australia-wide, as you know, so we cannot all race on our preferred days, and they try to program it so that Sky Racing has a book of product throughout the week. That is really where it is driven from, so we have midweek racing because the offcourse, which really drives the industry, relies on Sky Racing, and Sky Racing together with RWWA set the program. So I guess that is a factor in relation to why we have midweek racing.<sup>862</sup>

RWWA does not own any vision rights and is responsible for negotiating vision rights agreements with Sky<sup>863</sup> on behalf of the majority of clubs. With the exception of Perth Racing which has its own agreement with Sky, RWWA has ‘in-principle support...from the other clubs that are on Sky to delegate their authority to us to negotiate, and those agreements—it depends on which code—are largely expiring around 2014’.<sup>864</sup>

(i) Long-term continuity of country race clubs

A common theme conveyed to the Committee by race clubs was the need for RWWA to allocate more race meetings.<sup>865</sup> The Committee heard that while RWWA might be fairly accommodating when it came to swapping race dates around, this was certainly not the case where clubs believed

<sup>862</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p4.

<sup>863</sup> Sky Racing is owned by Tabcorp and is responsible for transmitting live thoroughbred, harness and greyhound racing coverage around Australia and internationally via satellite, cable, mobile TV and the internet. A new channel, Sky Racing 2 was launched in 2010 to complement the existing Sky Racing 1 (Sky Racing, ‘About Sky Racing’, nd. Available at: www.skychannel.com.au/company/company\_profile.php Accessed on 7 October 2010).

<sup>864</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p37.

<sup>865</sup> Including comments from: Mr Craig Chadwick, Chairman, Bunbury Turf Club, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p2; Mr Colin Park, General Manager, Albany Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p3; Mrs Lesley Solly, President, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p3.

they should get more dates.<sup>866</sup> RWWA's reasons for not expanding its racing product were discussed previously.<sup>867</sup>

Nonetheless, the Committee received evidence to suggest that smaller clubs struggle to get ahead without sufficient meeting allocations as there are insufficient resources to fund advancement.<sup>868</sup> The Williams Harness Racing Club highlighted the implications of a low meeting allocation:

...as a matter of fact, most of the fill to do the track is already in place; we just need the green light. But it is very hard to justify doing that track if we are going to have only two meetings a year or one meeting a year; it is just not worth it.<sup>869</sup>

The uncertainty experienced by country clubs at the prospect of having meeting allocations reduced by RWWA to the point of club closure has been discussed earlier in this Report.<sup>870</sup> This uncertainty is perhaps most acute among harness racing clubs, particularly in the wake of RWWA's decision not to award any meetings to the Geraldton Harness Racing Club and that club's closure. The Bridgetown Harness Racing Club indicated that they 'do not have...any guarantees for the future. Each year you have got your fingers crossed, waiting for the race dates to come out to see if you have been wiped off the map or not'<sup>871</sup>. The Northam Harness Racing Club suggested that country harness clubs are losing out to the city in terms of meeting allocations:

The thing that worries me again is the three meetings a week at Gloucester Park where we are devastated. We are left at the end of the line and our fields are down; there is not the quality in the fields; our turnover goes down. It is very good for people who live in the metropolitan area but in the long term it will be very, very detrimental to harness racing.<sup>872</sup>

The Golden Mile Trotting Club also drew attention to the consequences of fewer meetings:

Our turnover is purely driven by the amount of Sky access that you have in the first place, so if you keep taking races away from me and my Sky Channel and my turnover decreases, and that is just the functionality of race programming and scheduling.<sup>873</sup>

A number of harness racing stakeholders emphasised the importance of Sky coverage to the future of the code. Mr Kevin Jeavons of HROAWA indicated that poor programming combined with

<sup>866</sup> Mr Jonathan Menzel, Manager, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p2.

<sup>867</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.9 (Wagering Revenues).

<sup>868</sup> Mr Shane O'Loughlin, Committee Member, Albany Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p16.

<sup>869</sup> Mr John Cowcher, Committee Member, Williams Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p2.

<sup>870</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.5 (Appealing decisions by RWWA).

<sup>871</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Secretary/Treasurer, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p3

<sup>872</sup> Mr Peter Dempster, President, Northam Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p3.

<sup>873</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p8.

bad times on Sky would have an adverse impact on turnover.<sup>874</sup> WACHRA similarly emphasised the importance of Sky coverage to the future of the harness code:

For the Harness Racing Industry to grow, RWWA needs to extend the Sky Vision service more widely. Increased promotion is vital and the opportunity to have a Sky Channel Race Program at all Clubs (for major race programmes) will grow the industry.<sup>875</sup>

The Wagin Trotting Club stated that RWWA was not doing enough to assist the club to secure Sky coverage and more meeting dates within its existing location.<sup>876</sup> The Albany Harness Racing Club suggested that meeting allocations<sup>877</sup> and Sky coverage<sup>878</sup> should be offered by RWWA as incentives for clubs which perform well.

Earlier in this Report,<sup>879</sup> the Committee established the important role that country racing plays in local communities. While country harness racing clubs in particular emphasised the need for greater surety of long-term survival in the form of meeting allocations and securing Sky coverage, it is fair to say that the same principle applies to country and outer country thoroughbred racing clubs also. The Committee believes it is essential for country racing to survive and recognises that meeting allocations, race programming and Sky Vision coverage all have a bearing on the long-term continuity of country race clubs.

Finding 72

The long-term continuity of country racing clubs is essential for the industry, hence race programming and Sky Vision coverage are important factors for these clubs to remain viable.

RWWA indicated that it is not possible for all clubs to be on Sky so in some respects industry participants need to adjust their expectations:

What is happening is that people in recent years have cottoned on to the idea if they are not on Sky Channel and they do not have X number of meetings then they are doomed. We are not saying that. We are saying that there is a role for the economic-generating clubs and a role for the social community clubs. But not everyone can be on Sky because of

<sup>874</sup> Mr Kevin Jeavons, President, Western Australian Harness Racing Owners' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p4.

<sup>875</sup> Submission No. 32 from Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association, 14 January 2010, p3.

<sup>876</sup> Mr Matthew Spurr, President, Wagin Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, pp3-4.

<sup>877</sup> Mr Colin Park, General Manager, Albany Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p7.

<sup>878</sup> Submission No. 36 from Albany Harness Racing Club, 2 February 2010, p1.

<sup>879</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.2 (Governance).

availability of time slots, and the infrastructure or the quality of the tracks cannot be the same ... This is where we are having problems with expectations.<sup>880</sup>

Even so, RWWA indicated its commitment to community and regional racing,<sup>881</sup> and (addressing the concerns raised here) to the continuity of country harness racing. RWWA alludes to its strategy for the harness code<sup>882</sup> in terms of contracting harness racing to the south west and stabilising the volume of product:

...we see that the country base of harness is very much secure going forward. We see that provided it gets onto Sky and generates an acceptable return, the country roots of harness are good, because that is where the product is best; that is where the horse population is ... Our long-term strategy in terms of number of meetings is to bring down slightly—not completely—the volume of harness racing in some of these regional areas where we race at the moment, because they are relatively inexpensive to run; they do not need turf maintenance and things, and the committees draw funds typically from the local areas. Yes, we would like to see a bit more utilisation of the venues in a concentrated way, but to keep the harness product alive and well, we want to centre it in the south west and keep its current base ... We are centring racing in the south west; we are going to put a bit of pressure on the number of meetings; and we are very much seeing it keep its country base, because that is what harness grew from—the country base.<sup>883</sup>

In relation to Vision in particular, RWWA advised:

The harness product is sustainable at a level and we have to bring change to it, whether it is on Vision or not. There is more that can go onto Vision that can help make it more sustainable. We, as a business, need to put forward subtle change to our programming that generates more income so that we can spread it across the three codes as we see fit.<sup>884</sup>

While RWWA has indicated scope for greater Vision coverage and subtle changes to programming, a number of concerns were raised in this regard in evidence to the Committee.

(ii) Impediments to race programming and Vision access

Some of the comments received by the Committee in relation to race programming were as follows:

- If race programming is done well and supported by the correct stake money, outer country clubs can attract good fields. Over the past four or five years, many clubs have had meetings

<sup>880</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p13.

<sup>881</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p54.

<sup>882</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Protecting our Product: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Harness Industry, 2010.

<sup>883</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p23.

<sup>884</sup> Ibid., p22.

scheduled at the same time creating more competition and resulting in fewer nominations and meetings;<sup>885</sup>

- RWWA's race programming appears arbitrary and does not take into account local conditions however there is a fear that pursuing the issue with RWWA will result in the club having dates withdrawn;<sup>886</sup>
- RWWA's programming needs to capitalise on areas of growth, for example, the north of the state where there is economic and financial growth.<sup>887</sup>

Comments appear to point to clubs not having sufficient input into the race programming process. This was reinforced by Narrogin Racing, which stated that 'scheduling carried out as an open and transparent process with provision for input, feedback and questions from the race clubs is essential'.<sup>888</sup> This relates more broadly to deficiencies in RWWA's consultation process, which was explored in Chapter 2.6 (Consultation). The mechanisms identified to improve consultation outcomes and give clubs a more meaningful input into RWWA's decision-making encapsulated within Recommendation 22 will also assist in relation to race programming issues.

Finding 73

Evidence from racing industry participants suggests that clubs currently lack sufficient input into the race programming process.

Finding 74

Improvements to Racing and Wagering Western Australia's overall consultation processes will assist in relation to race programming issues.

One particular criticism relating to programming is the lack of notice that clubs receive from RWWA with regard to the coming season's race dates. Mrs Nicole Bell of the Northam Race Club indicated in March that the club had only just received its dates for the racing period August to October and was heading into its race season in May. The short notice made it 'difficult programming sponsorship events, and you really do just sort of start heading forward, programming the days you think you are going to get and hope that you get them'.<sup>889</sup> The Golden

<sup>885</sup> Mr Brett Snell, Past President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p12.

<sup>886</sup> Mr Brett Taylor, President, Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p6.

<sup>887</sup> Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly, President, Country Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 7 May 2010, p8.

<sup>888</sup> Submission No. 12 from Narrogin Racing, 30 November 2009, p5.

<sup>889</sup> Mrs Nicole Bell, Manager, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p5.

Mile Trotting Club similarly indicated that not enough notice of dates was given by RWWA and that ideally clubs should be informed six or nine months in advance of the race program.<sup>890</sup>

Finding 75

More timely notice from Racing and Wagering Western Australia of race date allocations would assist clubs with their planning for race meetings, including the securing of sponsorship.

Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask of Narrogin Racing indicated that something similar to Victoria's rolling five-year plan would be helpful.<sup>891</sup> As described in Chapter 2.8 (Taxation), Victoria's five-year Racecourse and Training Facilities Infrastructure Plan provides all country clubs in the state with a five-year plan which includes race dates. RWWA indicated, and the Committee accepts, that 'in fairness, Racing Victoria and others do not work five years in advance to the meeting on a day. They give out broad indications'.<sup>892</sup> Nonetheless, Racing Victoria Limited and Country Racing Victoria undertake a yearly review of clubs which provides the basis for future race date allocation and funding. The five year plans are guaranteed subject to clubs meeting certain financial and development benchmarks.<sup>893</sup> Country Racing Victoria indicated that clubs can have some surety of ongoing survival provided they can demonstrate that they are financial and that their local communities support those race dates.<sup>894</sup> The Committee believes that a similar forward looking document which provides some indication of meeting allocations and race dates would have two major benefits for the WA racing industry: firstly, it would assist clubs with their planning, and secondly, it would provide some surety to country racing clubs regarding their long-term continuity.

Recommendation 39

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia prepares a more extensive forward looking plan with indicative race dates in order to assist clubs with planning and provide greater surety to clubs with respect to ongoing survival.

<sup>890</sup> Mr Evan Spencer, President, Golden Mile Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 19 March 2010, p11.

<sup>891</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p9.

<sup>892</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p7.

<sup>893</sup> Racing Victoria Limited, 'Victorian Racecourse and Training Facilities Infrastructure Plan', May 2009. Available at: <https://admin.racingvictoria.net.au/asset/cms/Race%20Programs%20PDF/Infrastructure%20Plan%20Summary.pdf>. Accessed on 7 October 2010.

<sup>894</sup> Mr Michael Caveny, Chairman, Country Racing Victoria Limited, Briefing, 16 April 2010.

With regard to securing greater Vision access, the Committee acknowledges that RWWA has committed to increasing Sky coverage across all codes and puts forward various strategies for doing so in its code vision statements:

It is clear that the introduction of product fees results in the Western Australian racing industry being worse off by $5m per annum. A key strategy to mitigate this new cost is to position more WA racing product on SKY, making the product visible to interstate wagering customers and reducing the product fee imbalance.<sup>895</sup>

The Committee notes however that there are certain impediments to increasing Sky coverage, most of which are beyond RWWA's control. The most fundamental is that (as noted above) RWWA does not own vision rights and must negotiate with Sky. This has pitfalls as evidenced recently when RWWA was not provided with the opportunity to lock in race dates prior to the launch of Sky Channel 2 in April 2010.<sup>896</sup>

The actual infrastructure required to enable Vision coverage is also a factor beyond RWWA's control and presents a major impediment to many clubs. For clubs without permanent Vision, this requires the use of a mobile unit. RWWA covers the cost however this is still subject to availability:

...for any Sky meeting to take place here, GlobeCast have to bring their SNG—satellite news gathering—equipment in here...and there is often only one van to go around, that is a part of it, so the access is restricted there ...<sup>897</sup>

Securing permanent Vision for a club is more economical for RWWA in the long-term however it is costly to install the necessary infrastructure and maintain coverage:

The technology firstly,..., is as simple as it gets. It is a piece of fibre going into a race club connected into their comms board, so it is nothing more or less than that in essence. The Globecast, who are the providers, SNG satellite dish arrives as the alternative to the fibre option. The cost of the SNG is about $7 000 a trip. So if you go to Narrogin, where we do not have fibre, it is about $7 000 to drive down, stay there for five hours, drive back. The benefit we have in putting fibre in is we drop a lot of the variable cost. But even though the fixed cost is $150 000 up-front, there is still a variable cost of about $30 000 a year for the broadband use, if you like, of the current broadband.<sup>898</sup>

<sup>895</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Protecting our Product: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Harness Industry, 2010, p4; Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Industry, p5; Towards Sustainability: A Vision for the WA Greyhound Industry (the latter refers to optimising Sky coverage).

<sup>896</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p8.

<sup>897</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p3.

<sup>898</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p34.

RWWA contributes to funding but the cost of having permanent Vision installed can simply be cost prohibitive for smaller clubs with only a few meetings a year.<sup>899</sup> RWWA acknowledged that there is trade-off but in the long-term is encouraging clubs to seek Royalties for Regions funding to assist with fibre installation:

If you have got four meetings, five meetings, you are in the break-even sort of place. If you are greater than that, you are better off having fibre. Our intention is to work with royalties for regions through the local clubs to get the fixed costs of the fibre funded through royalties.<sup>900</sup>

The Committee acknowledges that various factors relating to Sky Vision are beyond RWWA's control. These include the ownership of Sky Channel by a competitor in the wagering market (Tabcorp), the fierce competition for time slots and the cost of installing the necessary infrastructure required to broadcast race meetings. It is the Committee's opinion that the latter could be addressed to some extent by the roll-out of the federal government's National Broadband Network. Notwithstanding this, it is important for the racing industry in Western Australia, particularly in regional areas, that Sky Vision coverage is maximised. Wherever possible, RWWA should assist clubs to secure access to vision.

Finding 76

It is important that Sky Vision coverage is maximised to as many country race clubs as possible.

Recommendation 40

That wherever possible Racing and Wagering Western Australia should assist race clubs to secure Sky Vision access and coverage.

Recommendation 41

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming initiates communications with the Commonwealth Government to expedite the roll-out of the National Broadband Network to race clubs in country Western Australia.

<sup>899</sup> Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask, Acting Chair, Narrogin Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p4.

<sup>900</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p35.

3.6 Resolving conflicts of interest with respect to wagering

Some stakeholders have mentioned that there exists a conflict of interest in RWWA's role in relation to wagering.<sup>901</sup> This is a consequence of the following prescribed functions in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003:

- Section 120 determines RWWA may make rules of wagering in respect to on-course wagering; off-course wagering and fixed odds wagering;
- Section 50(1) provides that RWWA must ensure that on-course wagering is conducted in accordance with the Betting Control Act 1954 and the rules of wagering; yet
- Section 50(b) of the RWWA Act allows RWWA to carry on a wagering business.

In summary, the above functions result in RWWA being a rule maker in respect to some of the rules of wagering,<sup>902</sup> a rule regulator, and a competitor subject to rules it has set for itself. In contrast, other competitors in the wagering market are subject to the rules of wagering, yet have no input into the establishment or regulation of these rules.

Some stakeholder views have been critical of this circumstance. The Morley TAB Agency captured these views with the following comment:

RWWA has an untenable position as being both our "Arbiter" and at the same time our "Competitor".<sup>903</sup>

Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd submitted that RWWA's considerable influence in the establishment of the rules of wagering provide it with the very rare circumstance whereby it is able to dictate the operating conditions for its competitors.<sup>904</sup>

Mr Kenneth Trainer of the WA TAB Agents' Association noted that these prescribed functions of RWWA put it in a unique position as a competitor in the wagering market. He suggested that the situation could 'potentially have a significant impact on the capacity of the agents to achieve the objectives set by RWWA, which is to increase growth'.<sup>905</sup>

RWWA recognises this conflict of interest and clearly stated a desire for the situation to be remedied, as detailed in the following passage submitted to the Committee:

Sections 50 and 120 of the RWWA Act provide for RWWA to have functions that affect the activities of direct competitors of RWWA in the wagering market. This is an obvious

<sup>901</sup> Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p7; Mr Timothy Barnes, Director, Morley TAB Agents, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p13; Mr Robert Howat, President, WA Bookmakers Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p6; Submission No. 11 from Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd, 30 November 2009, p5.

<sup>902</sup> With the approval of the Gaming and Wagering Commission.

<sup>903</sup> Submission No. 8 from Morley TAB Agency, 30 November 2009, p2.

<sup>904</sup> Submission No. 11 from Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd, 30 November 2009, p5.

<sup>905</sup> Mr Kenneth Trainer, Advisor, WA TAB Agents' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p2.

conflict of interest for RWWA. These functions should be vested in an independent body such as the Gaming and Wagering Commission, with RWWA having equivalent powers to seek changes to the rules of wagering as its competitors.<sup>906</sup>

As a result, RWWA suggested the following two amendments to the RWWA Act:

- 1 Section 50 of the RWWA Act should be amended to remove RWWA's supervisory powers over its competitors; and
- 2 Section 120 of the RWWA Act should remove RWWA's ability to make rules for wagering that apply to other providers of wagering services.

The Committee acknowledges the views received from racing industry stakeholders and RWWA, and concurs with the view that a conflict of interest resides within the prescribed wagering functions of RWWA in the Racing and Wagering Act 2003.

Finding 77

There is a conflict of interest in Racing and Wagering Western Australia's role in regard to wagering as it is currently prescribed in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

The Committee asked Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General of the Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor<sup>907</sup> to respond to the conflict of interest contained within the RWWA Act. He indicated that the reason these supervisory and rule making powers were originally vested with RWWA was largely historical—RWWA took them on from the relevant principal clubs for each code. He stated that this circumstance diminished the need for the functions to be placed with the government:

Rather than taking that one step further across to the government, it stayed with Racing and Wagering Western Australia as an independent body.<sup>908</sup>

When asked if RWWA should continue with these functions, or if it would now be appropriate for the Gaming and Wagering Commission to assume them, Mr Sargeant noted that as an issue it had not been raised by RWWA itself; further, to his knowledge, RWWA had been performing the role well. Nonetheless, he asserted if RWWA would prefer the role be transferred to the Commission, then, with government approval, it would be a suitable arrangement:

Fundamentally, what RWWA has done since 2003 is no reason to justify moving it. But if they prefer to move it and the government is agreeable to it moving and with the appropriate funding arrangements sorted out, it is quite appropriate for my agency to take that on board—quite appropriate!<sup>909</sup>

<sup>906</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p89.

<sup>907</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant is also the Chairperson of the Gaming and Wagering Commission.

<sup>908</sup> Mr Barry Sargeant, Director General, Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor, Transcript of Evidence, 13 August 2010, p7.

<sup>909</sup> Ibid., p10.

Based on Mr Sargeant's comments, there is no evidence that RWWA has used any prescribed functions to furnish a commercial advantage for itself in its provision of wagering services.<sup>910</sup> Notwithstanding this fact, RWWA is of the view that these functions should be transferred to the Gaming and Wagering Commission. The Committee concurs with this view, as even a perceived conflict of interest may be harmful to the operational effectiveness of RWWA.<sup>911</sup> The Committee has previously noted that it is essential to the industry that RWWA carries on a profitable wagering business.<sup>912</sup> As such, it should not continue to operate with prescribed wagering functions that may impact on the long term viability of its wagering business. The Committee therefore finds that any function prescribed under Sections 50 or 120 of the RWWA Act that may jeopardise the ability of RWWA to effectively carry on a wagering business should be removed as a function of RWWA under the Act. Accordingly, the Committee finds that it is appropriate, with the approval of the Minister, that the Gaming and Wagering Commission assumes responsibility for performing these functions.

Finding 78

Any regulatory function prescribed under Section 50 or Section 120 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 that may limit Racing and Wagering Western Australia's ability to carry on a wagering business should be removed from the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

Finding 79

It is appropriate that the Gaming and Wagering Commission, with the approval of the Minister for Racing and Gaming, assumes responsibility for performing any regulatory functions in relation to wagering that are removed from Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Due to the limited evidence received, the Committee is unable to recommend in any prescriptive manner which parts of Section 50 and Section 120 of the Racing and Wagering Act 2003 should be repealed. The Committee acknowledges it is a complex matter and requires examination that is beyond the scope of this Inquiry.

This is in part because Section 120 prescribes a number of functions dealing with operational aspects of wagering that seem appropriate to remain a function of RWWA—and too cumbersome to become a function of the Commission. Therefore, a detailed examination will be necessary to determine what rule making scope RWWA should retain. An issue that may require negotiation is the matter of funding for the operation of these functions, as raised earlier in this section by Mr Barry Sargeant. The funding arrangements should be examined as to how they would operate should the functions be assumed by the Commission, and what impact the arrangements might have on the financial operations of RWWA. The Committee would suggest that any operational change must at a minimum be revenue neutral for RWWA.

<sup>910</sup> Ibid., p8.

<sup>911</sup> The importance of commercial neutrality was a primary goal behind RWWA being established under its current governance structure. Refer to Chapter 2.2 for more information.

<sup>912</sup> Chapter 2.7 on distribution of funds and Chapter 2.9 on wagering revenue both highlight the importance that RWWA's wagering business and the distribution of its profits have to the industry.

The Committee asserts that in these considerations, a balance must be struck between the operational effectiveness of RWWA and the appearance of commercial neutrality. It recommends that the Minister reviews and negotiates between RWWA and the Gaming and Wagering Commission as to which functions RWWA should retain, and which should be assumed by the Commission to most effectively promote the ability of RWWA to carry on a wagering business.

Recommendation 42

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming reviews the most appropriate manner in which any prescribed function of Racing and Wagering Western Australia that conflicts with its prescribed functions to carry out its wagering business under Sections 50 and 120 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be removed and subsequently vested with the Gaming and Wagering Commission.

3.7 Miscellaneous administrative amendments to the RWWA Act

RWWA has made several other suggestions regarding legislative amendments which it describes as being administrative.

(i) Freedom of Information

RWWA has sought additional protection from the requirement to reveal strategic and commercially sensitive documents under Freedom of Information (FOI) applications. While not suggesting that it should be afforded the position of an exempt agency under the Freedom of Information Act 1992 (FOI Act), RWWA has argued for protection ‘so that commercial deliberations, even where apparently complete, are protected from FOI applications’.<sup>913</sup> In its argument, RWWA made reference to a particular incident where it had to release a document revealing board deliberations in relation to betting exchanges:

The possibility of release of strategic considerations by the RWWA board to competitors places RWWA at a clear competitive disadvantage. It curtails the ability of the board to plan and places market strategies in the hands of competitors.<sup>914</sup>

<sup>913</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p90.

<sup>914</sup> Ibid.

In this particular case, the Western Australian Information Commissioner found that ‘the accountability and transparency objectives of the FOI Act apply to the agency’ and that sufficient public interest existed for ‘the public being able to scrutinize the operations of the agency and make its own judgement as to whether it is discharging its functions effectively and according to its constituent legislation and published policies’.<sup>915</sup>

The Committee is aware that certain protections already exist under the FOI Act, specifically Schedule 1, Clause 4 provides for exemptions on the grounds of commercial or business sensitivity. The Committee also understands that provision exists for internal review by the agency or external review by the Information Commissioner where an agency’s decision to refuse access to documents under FOI is appealed.<sup>916</sup>

RWWA does not dispute the accountability intent underpinning FOI and the Committee acknowledges that RWWA ‘just do[es] not want it to be on commercially sensitive material and no different from a normal trading enterprise’.<sup>917</sup> The Committee believes however that sufficient protections already exist under FOI legislation in relation to commercially sensitive matters and where RWWA’s decision to grant access to documentation is appealed, provision exists for scrutiny on a case by case basis. Further to the discussion in Chapter 2.4 (Accountability), in the interests of promoting greater accountability, the Committee considers that existing FOI provisions are appropriate and that no additional protections are warranted.

Finding 80

Existing Freedom of Information provisions are appropriate and additional protections for Racing and Wagering Western Australia are not warranted.

(ii) Redundant sections of the RWWA Act

RWWA has made several suggestions for the RWWA Act to be amended in order to remove references to redundant provisions, specifically:

- Section 118 should be amended to remove the requirement for a common seal with alternative document execution the RWWA Act should be amended to remove references to wagers and payments by letter sent through the post (consequential amendments would also be required to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003);
- Section 86 (pertaining to records) should be repealed;

<sup>915</sup> Addisons v Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Re [2008] WAICmr 3 (1 February 2008) para 27, 38.

<sup>916</sup> Office of the Information Commissioner, ‘About FOI’, nd. Available at: www.foi.wa.gov.au/dnn/AboutFOI/FAQs.aspx Accessed on 5 October 2010.

<sup>917</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p17.

- Section 22(3) should be amended to read ‘the remuneration of and other terms and conditions of employment of staff are not to be less favourable than is provided for in an applicable award, order or agreement’;
- Section 3 should be amended by replacing the words, ‘Australian and New Zealand Greyhound Association’ with ‘Greyhounds Australasia’; and
- Section 3 should be amended by replacing the words, ‘Australian Harness Racing Council’ with ‘Harness Racing Australia’.<sup>918</sup>

In relation to requirements for a common seal, RWWA refers to Section 123 of the Corporations Act 2001 (Cth) which makes such a seal optional.<sup>919</sup> The legal implications of repealing this requirement have not been examined but would need to be explored to ensure that alternative document execution methods can be applied to RWWA. The Committee supports the recommendation in principle provided it is legally valid for the common seal to be replaced by an alternative method for executing documents.

Finding 81

It is important that the legal implications of repealing Racing and Wagering Western Australia’s requirement for a common seal under Section 118 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 are understood before the matter is progressed.

Recommendation 43

That Section 118 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove the requirement for a common seal provided alternative document execution requirements can be applied.

The Committee supports removal of references in the RWWA Act to wagers and payments by letter sent through the post as it accepts RWWA’s rationale that this method of wagering and payment is no longer used.<sup>920</sup>

<sup>918</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp90-92.

<sup>919</sup> Ibid., pp90-91.

<sup>920</sup> Ibid., p91.

Recommendation 44

That Section 63 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove references to wagers and payments by letter sent through the post, and that consequential amendments in this regard are made to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003.

Section 86 of the RWWA Act makes provision for record keeping. All records relating to the accounts and management of RWWA must be kept by RWWA in a place approved by the Gaming and Wagering Commission and RWWA must give the Commission access to these records on the provision of written notice.<sup>921</sup> Section 86 also makes provisions for the retention or destruction of records.<sup>922</sup> RWWA has recommended the repeal of Section 86 since it is already required to comply with the State Records Act 2000 and there is duplication. RWWA confirmed that only the subsections of Section 86 which duplicate provisions of the State Records Act 2000 (and not those relating to access to records by the Gaming and Wagering Commission) should be repealed.<sup>923</sup> The Committee supports amendment of Section 86 along these lines.

Recommendation 45

That Section 86 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove any provisions which duplicate the State Records Act 2000.

Section 22(3) of the RWWA Act refers to the remuneration and other terms and conditions of employment of staff. RWWA has suggested that this section requires amendment since the relevant Western Australian legislation cited has changed and remuneration and conditions of employment of staff are now subject to the applicable federal industrial legislation.<sup>924</sup> RWWA advised that its intention is for 'minimum standards to be made clear, and [RWWA] will pay people no less favourably than what the base rate is'.<sup>925</sup> The Committee supports amendment of Section 22(3)(a) and (b) of the RWWA Act to reflect applicable legislative requirements defining the minimum remuneration and other terms and conditions of employment of staff.

<sup>921</sup> Section 86(1) and 86(2) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>922</sup> Section 86(d) Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003.

<sup>923</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p18.

<sup>924</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p91.

<sup>925</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p18.

Recommendation 46

That Section 22(3)(a) and (b) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to reflect applicable legislative requirements defining the minimum remuneration and other terms of conditions of employment of staff.

Section 3(1) of the RWWA Act lists terms used in the Act. RWWA identified a number of references which require updating, specifically: changing ‘Australian and New Zealand Greyhound Association’ to ‘Greyhounds Australasia’; and changing ‘Australian Harness Racing Council’ to ‘Harness Racing Australia’.<sup>926</sup> The Committee supports these amendments.

Recommendation 47

That Section 3(1) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to replace:

- ‘Australian and New Zealand Greyhound Association’ with ‘Greyhounds Australasia’; and
- ‘Australian Harness Racing Council’ with ‘Harness Racing Australia’.

3.8 Future directions for the industry

The Committee became aware of a number of miscellaneous matters during the course of this Inquiry which have a bearing on the future of racing and wagering in this state. This section presents a summary of the issues raised in this regard by industry participants and stakeholders as well as matters the Committee wishes to highlight. Issues have been listed with minimal analysis since points tended to be raised in isolation and no further evidence could be obtained. By and large, the issues listed below are challenges confronting the industry which RWWA will need to monitor and/or address over the coming years to ensure the ongoing prosperity of the industry.

(a) Matters raised by industry participants and stakeholders

The following have been highlighted by industry participants and stakeholders as matters which will have a bearing on the future of the industry:

<sup>926</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp90-92.

(i) RWWA disciplinary powers

RWWA has made a number of recommendations to the Committee in regard to disciplinary powers prescribed under Part 4 of the RWWA Act that determine RWWA's specialised functions in relation to racing.<sup>927</sup> In summary RWWA's main concerns comprise the following issues:

Section 34 of the RWWA Act provides a definition of 'a person associated with racing' to whom RWWA's disciplinary powers under Part 4 apply. RWWA argues that the definition is too narrow. It does not include family members or others that may not be directly related to racing, as prescribed in Section 34, but who may still render considerable influence over racing activities.<sup>928</sup> As a result, RWWA stewards cannot apply any disciplinary action to these people—so they can continue to adversely affect racing activities. RWWA submitted therefore that the definition of 'a person associated with racing' be amended to include any person 'with influence on racing activities.'<sup>929</sup>

The Committee notes the logic behind RWWA's argument and contends that the ability of RWWA to maintain the integrity of racing activities is crucial for the ongoing viability of the industry.

Finding 82

Maintaining the integrity of racing activities is crucial for the ongoing viability of the industry.

Nonetheless, the Committee is of the view that the proposed amendment is too broad. In the interests of probity, the Committee considers it would be incumbent on RWWA to prove that a person has an influence on racing before any such definition can be applied. This may impose such an impost on the RWWA stewards as to make the amended definition ineffective.

The Committee is of the view that RWWA should develop a case for the Minister's consideration to demonstrate how the application of this proposed amendment by RWWA stewards would work. The Committee suggests that the plans of Racing Victoria to pursue legislative change to allow 'people who earn a living from racing to come under the rules of racing'<sup>930</sup> might be an appropriate avenue for RWWA to explore when establishing its case for the Minister.

<sup>927</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, pp87-89.

<sup>928</sup> Mr James Freemantle, Deputy Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p14.

<sup>929</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p87.

<sup>930</sup> Mr Evan Nunn, Manager Corporate Strategy, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, email, 31 August 2010.

Finding 83

Amending Section 34 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 to include individuals ‘with influence on racing activities’ is too broad for a determination to be made on its merit. If Racing and Wagering Western Australia wishes to pursue this matter it should present a case to the Minister in regard to the application of this proposed amendment prior to any change being considered.

Another area of contention that exists for RWWA in relation to its disciplinary powers are those relating to Section 44(1)(e) of the RWWA Act. This section provides that RWWA is able to—in accordance with the rules of racing and the regulations, prohibit any person from attending or taking part in a race meeting, or entering or remaining on any licensed racecourse.

Subsequent to this Section being enacted, Regulation 72 of the RWWA Regulations was established to determine the procedures by which RWWA may exercise the powers conferred in Section 44(1)(e). Included in the Regulation are the following requirements:

1. RWWA must issue a ‘show cause notice’ in writing;
2. Any recipient has the right to be heard by RWWA as to why section 44(1)(e) should not be exercised against them; on condition they inform RWWA within 14 days of receiving the notice;
3. If a person requests it, RWWA must hear that person within 28 days of the request being made;
4. If RWWA still determines to exercise a power under section 44(1)(e); that person is issued a ‘warning off notice’, for a time determined by that notice; and
5. Failure to comply with a notice will result in a $1000.00 fine.

RWWA argued that Regulation 72 has resulted in a number of shortfalls to enforcing Section 44(1)(e), specifically:

- The regulation has limited the power stewards previously had under this section to respond to one-off incidents;
- The regulation does not include any procedure for RWWA to lift a warning-off at its discretion; and
- It is currently inconsistent with Section 45(3)(a)(ii) which allows the rules of racing to empower the stewards to prohibit any person from entering upon and remaining on a racecourse or a trial track.<sup>931</sup>

<sup>931</sup> Submission No. 7B from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 3 February 2010, p88.

RWWA asserts that the ‘warning-off’ procedures contained in Regulation 72 are only appropriate for long term bans, on the condition that the regulation includes a process by which a warning off can be lifted.

In addition, it states that the power exercised under section 44(1)(e) is appropriate for short term or one-off offences, on the condition that it is not subject to the types of provisions contained in Regulation 72. Instead, it notes that a maximum time limit should apply for any power exercised under this section.

In summary, RWWA finds that the following actions would be required to amend Section 44 and Regulation 72:

1. That Section 44 be amended to include a subsection prescribing RWWA’s explicit power to warn off, and lift a warning off; and
  - (a) that this new section be carried out in accordance with Regulation 72; and
  - (b) Regulation 72 be amended to reflect this change.
2. That Section 44(1)(e) be amended to include a maximum time limit for this section to apply; and
  - (a) any requirement that this section be enacted in accordance with regulation 72 be repealed.

The Committee agrees in principle with these changes, however it has concerns over the transparency of the proposed amendments. As such, the Committee finds that, in addition to RWWA’s proposed changes, the following additions, noted in italics, should be included:

1. That Section 44 be amended to include a subsection prescribing RWWA’s explicit power to warn off, and lift a warning off; and
  - (a) that this new section be carried out in accordance with Regulation 72; and
  - (b) regulation 72 be amended to reflect this change; and
  - (c) regulation 72 be amended to include:
    - (i) that any warning off notice must have a prescribed time limit;
    - (ii) the conditions by which RWWA can apply for an extension or impose additional notices; and
    - (iii) the process by which the recipient can apply to RWWA for the warning off notice to be lifted.
2. That Section 44(1)(e) be amended to include a maximum time limit for this section to apply; and
  - (a) any requirement that this section be enacted in accordance with Regulation 72 be repealed, and;
  - (b) new procedures be set out in RWWA’s regulations that transparently outline the ‘short term’ incidences to which this section should apply.

Finding 84

Racing and Wagering Western Australia's disciplinary powers in relation to warning-off should be clarified in legislation and should be reinforced with greater transparency measures.

Recommendation 48

That Section 44 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the explicit function to allow Racing and Wagering Western Australia to warn-off, and lift a warning-off, and that this function be carried out in accordance with Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003.

Recommendation 49

That consequential amendments be made to Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 including:

- that any warning-off notice must have a prescribed time limit;
- the conditions by which Racing and Wagering Western Australia can impose additional notices; and
- the process by which the recipient can apply to Racing and Wagering Western Australia to have a warning-off notice lifted.

Recommendation 50

That section 44(1)(e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a maximum time limit and:

- Any requirement that this section be enacted in accordance with Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 be repealed; and
- New procedures be set out in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 that prescribe the 'short term' incidences to which this section should apply.

(ii) TAB agency agreements/ territorial rights

In 2005 the ACCC authorised the WA TAB Agents' Association to represent its members (these comprise holders of full time/full service retail licences; known as SL1 licence holders or agents)<sup>932</sup> in collective bargaining with RWWA. Subsequently, the Association negotiated the 2006 round of Assignable Business Licence Agreements; due to expire in 31 August 2016,<sup>933</sup> and conducts operational and other contractual negotiations with RWWA on behalf of its members. The Association submitted that agents' rights under this License are limited—as is the general framework that SL1 agencies operate within.

Some of the issues raised by the Association are as follows:

- SL1 agents do not have rights over any designated geographical area. As such, RWWA can establish a competitor service within close proximity of an existing agency; thus jeopardising the short term viability, and long term investment opportunity, of agents. It is argued that this operates as a disincentive to SL1 License holders to develop and grow their businesses.<sup>934</sup>
- RWWA, as the Licensor and landlord, enjoys the additional advantage of being a direct competitor to the agents. It allows itself to offer wagering services that it does not make available at SL1 agencies—therefore RWWA could enjoy a commercial advantage over these retail outlets.<sup>935</sup> On this point, the Committee received supporting evidence from Mr Timothy Barnes, Morley TAB Agency, who notes that RWWA has, in some cases, offered special promotions to internet and phone account holders, which, by definition, precludes the customers of the TAB agencies. He argued that this makes it harder for the agencies to retain those customers. Mr Barnes submits that this sort of unequal marketing spend is unjust—and does not appear to be working for the overall best interests of the wagering market.<sup>936 937</sup>
- RWWA exercises such a powerful influence over agencies that licensees do not have any real way to develop their business. Agents maintain that they ought to be able to provide other services and products through their agencies that are not in conflict with, and do not derogate from, the primary purpose of the agency. Examples cited include the provision of dedicated facilities for important customers and the sale of sports memorabilia.<sup>938</sup>
- Other issues include the prescriptive nature of the License agreements whereby:
  - RWWA sets the hours of opening; the form and style of the displays and the products for sale;

<sup>932</sup> There are currently three categories of TAB outlets in RWWA's retail wagering operations. An SL1 is a full time / full service Agency; an SL2 is a PubTAB or a ClubTAB; and the SL3 is a self service site.

<sup>933</sup> Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p4.

<sup>934</sup> Ibid., pp6-7.

<sup>935</sup> Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p7.

<sup>936</sup> Mr Timothy Barnes, Director, Morley TAB Agents, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p13.

<sup>937</sup> Refer to Chapter 3.6 for a discussion on resolving the conflicts of interest of RWWA with respect to wagering.

<sup>938</sup> Submission No. 8 from WA Tab Agents Association, 30 November 2009, pp7-8.

- Agents are not able to operate more than one site at a time;
- Agents' long term capital investments are jeopardised because there is no guarantee of renewal at the expiry of an SL1 licence; this creates further disincentive to grow and develop the business.<sup>939</sup>

The main point put forward by WA TAB Agents' Association can be summarised by the following statement:

Agents consider that without the freeing up of the operation of their businesses, both the Agent and RWWA are unable to reach the potential of the Agencies.<sup>940</sup>

RWWA was asked to address many of these issues, to which it offered the following responses:

In regard to the lack of territorial rights of agents, RWWA stated that the licensees have never been offered a regional area and that placing an alternative TAB outlet close to a full retail SL1 TAB has proven to have minimal impact on the existing retail agencies. A PubTAB for example, will largely draw business from new customers who would not otherwise make use of a SL1 TAB. Nonetheless, RWWA noted that a form of voluntary compensation is in place should a retail TAB lose turnover as a result of a new TAB outlet being opened in close proximity.<sup>941</sup> It should be noted that the WA TAB Agents' Association stressed in their submission that this compensation is 'missing the point' as it does not address the long term impact an alternative TAB will have on the future resale of an existing TAB licence.<sup>942</sup>

To the criticism that it exercises too much control over the operating environment of full retail TABs, RWWA asserted that the wagering market is a highly regulated industry, so many of the operational and Licence requirements reflect these regulations, which the licensee is made aware of before they choose to enter into the business.<sup>943</sup>

In respect to the prescriptive nature in which RWWA determines each aspect of a TAB agency's operation, RWWA stipulated that it is simply trying to maintain professional standards, much like other retail 'chains', whereby the presentation and service offered at a full retail TAB agency is recognisable and consistent with any other SL1 agency.<sup>944</sup>

It is clear that some confusion exists between what RWWA and the licensee believe to be the role of a SL1 agency. RWWA argues that the SL1 agent should provide a full wagering service to customers, the provision of which must necessarily be prescribed by RWWA, because RWWA is

---

<sup>939</sup> Ibid., p8.

<sup>940</sup> Ibid., p9.

<sup>941</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p50.

<sup>942</sup> Submission No. 8 from WA Tab Agents Association, 30 November 2009, p7.

<sup>943</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p49.

<sup>944</sup> Ibid.

in turn regulated by the Gaming and Wagering Commission.<sup>945</sup> The WA TAB Agents' Association argued that it is appropriate for SL1 agents to be able to grow their businesses, and have some input into decisions that impact on the long term financial performance of their investment.<sup>946</sup>

In this regard, the TAB Agents' Advisory Committee<sup>947</sup> has received criticism from stakeholders who believe that, like many of the comments received about the consultative capacity of RWWA,<sup>948</sup> the process lacks any genuine attempt to negotiate or consult with the nominated TAB agents who attend these meetings. It has been suggested that decisions are only presented, not discussed. Mr Timothy Barnes, Morley TAB, noted that there is plenty of scope for consultation through the advisory committee but that:

...if there is any particular critical issue that we vehemently oppose, we just get railroaded; it does not matter.<sup>949</sup>

The Committee accepts the rationale asserted by the WA TAB Agents' Association that if full retail TAB agents are provided with long term incentives to develop and grow their businesses, both they and RWWA—and therefore the racing and wagering industry, will benefit. As such, RWWA should employ marketing and promotional opportunities that assist the entire retail wagering network—and avoid activities that promote one sector of the retail network to the detriment of another. To do otherwise could disguise or inhibit real growth in RWWA's wagering retail market.

As such, the Committee finds that the consultation and communication between RWWA and its TAB agents should be improved to clarify the operational role of a SL1 TAB retail agent and to explore more fully incentives and opportunities for business development.

Finding 85

The consultation and communication between Racing and Wagering Western Australia and its (SL1) full retail TAB agents should identify potential opportunities and incentives for the continued business development of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia retail TAB network.

<sup>945</sup> Ibid., p48.

<sup>946</sup> The WA TAB Agents' Association notes that the initial capital investment to purchase some full SLI Licences could exceed one million dollars: Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p2.

<sup>947</sup> The 2006 Assignable Business Licence provides for the election of four TAB Agents onto the TAB Agents Advisory Committee, to be joined by representatives of RWWA, and who meet on a regular basis. Submission No. 8 from WA TAB Agents' Association, 30 November 2009, p5.

<sup>948</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.6 (Consultation).

<sup>949</sup> Mr Timothy Barnes, Director, Morley TAB Agents, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p9.

(iii) Wagering commission rates

Both SL1 TAB Agencies and SL2 Pub and ClubTABs have noted that the current commission rates are of concern.<sup>950 951</sup>

The WA TAB Agents' Association, which represents SL1 TAB agencies, noted that the commission rates are virtually the same as they were under the 1996 contract. As such, agents are 'dependent on growth to get an increase in our income. Of course, if you do not get the growth, your income does not increase'.<sup>952</sup> This creates an imperative for every SLI agency to grow.<sup>953</sup>

The AHA, which represents nearly 200 PubTABs in their dealings with RWWA, stated that one of its chief concerns is that the current commission arrangements do little to provide an incentive for operators to grow the TAB element of their business:

PubTAB operators are not seeking to make massive profits from their wagering facilities but expect a reasonable return for the hard work, responsibility and effort that goes into running a punting agency for RWWA however [in some cases] the return on investment is negligible to the point of unviable.<sup>954</sup>

The AHA further submitted that there is a general view amongst operators that RWWA is seeking to reduce the existing commission rates. The AHA argued this would be harmful to the industry.<sup>955</sup>

The Committee has previously noted that a factor critical to maintaining and growing wagering revenues relates to maintaining the existing wagering sales network.<sup>956</sup> Subsequently, it cautions against a situation occurring whereby commission rates become a disincentive to full time TAB agents and PubTAB operators to grow, or even maintain, their TAB operations.

As such, the Committee finds that a review into the commission rates payable to operators of SL1 and SL2 licences should be conducted, taking into account associated business costs, to determine a rate payable to provide an incentive to operators to establish, maintain or grow their retail wagering operations.

<sup>950</sup> Submission No. 45 from Australian Hotels Association Western Australia, 3 August 2010, p6, Mr Robert Morgan, President, WA TAB Agents' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p12; Submission No. 44 from Clubs WA, 13 July 2010, p2.

<sup>951</sup> There are currently three categories of TAB outlets in RWWA's retail wagering operations. An SL1 is a full time / full service Agency; an SL2 is a PubTAB or a ClubTAB; and the SL3 is a self service site.

<sup>952</sup> Mr Robert Morgan, President, WA TAB Agents' Association, Transcript of Evidence, 8 March 2010, p12.

<sup>953</sup> Refer to the discussion raised earlier in this Chapter on issues concerning SL1 Tab Agency Agreements. It includes information about the perceived impediments that exist for SLI agents in regard to growing their own businesses.

<sup>954</sup> Submission No. 45 from Australian Hotels Association Western Australia, 3 August 2010, p6.

<sup>955</sup> Ibid.

<sup>956</sup> Refer to Chapter 2.9(b) for a discussion on mechanisms to enhance wagering revenues.

Recommendation 51

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia reviews the commission rates payable to operators of SL1 and SL2 TAB Licences to help ensure the maintenance and potential growth of the retail wagering sales network.

(iv) Racing Radio

Racing Radio is a service provided by RWWA to broadcast racing activity throughout the state. A number of stakeholders have noted the inadequacy of Racing Radio coverage in country areas. From the evidence received, it was generally stressed that racing radio is a very important tool to promote racing in country areas. As such, stakeholders were critical about the provision of racing radio with respect to the intermittent coverage in country areas and the lack of local product that is included in the programming.<sup>957</sup> An indicative comment of stakeholder sentiment was expressed to the Committee by Mrs Margaret Skinner of Mt Barker Turf Club, who stated:

Racing Radio is very inadequate. It has been a bugbear for years and years and years.<sup>958</sup>

Finding 86

Racing Radio coverage is a very important service to industry participants throughout the state and evidence suggested that current coverage is inadequate and a cause of frustration for industry participants.

In regard to the intermittent coverage, Mr Richard Burt, RWWA agreed that coverage in the country was not ideal and stressed that the poor coverage is a direct factor of RWWA not being in a commercial position to acquire radio licences with broad coverage:<sup>959</sup>

<sup>957</sup> Mr Tony Marwick, President, Northam Race Club, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p13; Mr Timothy Borgward, President, Pingrup Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p2; Mr David Wrensted, Vice President, Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p11; Mr Alfred Paganoni, Past President, Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p6; Mr Brendon Gardiner, Vice President, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p2; Mr David Abbott, Busselton Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p13; Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf Club Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p11 Mr Barry Mahood, Chairman, York Racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p11.

<sup>958</sup> Mrs Margaret Skinner, Secretary, Mt Barker Turf Club Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 12 March 2010, p11.

<sup>959</sup> RWWA stated that Racing Radio costs between $2-2.5million a year.

It is inadequate in regional areas. We would like it to be better. Unless we get an ABC-type licence whereby we can get state coverage and can commercially afford it, it just will not happen...we are running narrowcast AM signals...at the bottom end of the spectrum...<sup>960</sup>

RWWA indicated that the current cost of running racing radio is around $2 million per year, which includes the cost of running studio operations, announcers, the breakfast show and the 50 or so radio licenses that transmit across the state.<sup>961</sup> RWWA asserted it is in communication with the Australian Communications and Media Authority about seeking new licences. Mr Burt explained that it is a highly regulated industry, with many restrictions in place with regard to the transmission of radio signals to ensure that there is no interference with other radio stations or mobiles phones. He described the process as ‘a nightmare’ but nonetheless stressed that RWWA is very active in trying to find ways to improve the racing radio system:

We are taskmasters at being able to get into people and talk about how we can do this better and cheaper, putting transmitters on top of other people’s towers. It is a nightmare. If someone can help us in transmitting better, I welcome the opportunity.<sup>962</sup>

On the issue of the lack of local product being broadcast, Mr Alf Paganoni of WACHRA, asserted that it was essential for country clubs to have their local product broadcast on racing radio:

I believe that radio is probably the only way forward for country clubs—they cannot get their vision out, but they can get the voice out.<sup>963</sup>

Mr Brendon Gardiner, Bridgetown Harness Racing Club stated that the lack of reliability of local product in racing radio was impacting on their ability to survive as a club.<sup>964</sup> Mr David Abbott, Busselton Trotting Club noted that it is wrong that RWWA is not broadcasting local races:

We do not get preference in our state to our own business. RWWA is not giving preference to our own races.<sup>965</sup>

Mr Barry Mahood of York Racing stated that racing radio ‘is a joke in the bush’ and that it can have a considerable impact on country clubs and their ability to create turnover because ‘people like to have a bet but they do not bet if they cannot hear their race’.<sup>966</sup>

RWWA stated that local content only contributes about 5 per cent value to the product that it broadcasts on racing radio; the rest being composed of what is being covered on Sky.<sup>967</sup> It was

<sup>960</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010 p24.

<sup>961</sup> Ibid., p22.

<sup>962</sup> Ibid., pp23-24.

<sup>963</sup> Mr Alfred Paganoni, Past President, Western Australian Country Harness Racing Association, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p6.

<sup>964</sup> Mr Brendon Gardiner, Vice President, Bridgetown harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p2.

<sup>965</sup> Mr David Abbott, Busselton Trotting Club, Transcript of Evidence, 6 April 2010, p13.

<sup>966</sup> Mr Barry Mahood, Chairman, York racing Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 March 2010, p11.

not established by the Committee if this was a function of cost. Nonetheless, RWWA did concede that its ability to promote local wagering product is under pressure.<sup>968</sup>

We pay for everything, and without adequate funding, will either spend more on wagering and less on racing, or we will not have wagering services.<sup>969</sup>

On the future of Racing Radio, Mr Richard Burt, CEO of RWWA stated the following:

I can see a positive future as we move towards digital radio and the population of Western Australia takes up digital radio, and we can see an improvement in the quality of our coverage. Without adequate funding, I can see it going the other way.<sup>970</sup>

The Committee acknowledges that Racing Radio coverage is a very important service to industry participants throughout the state. As such, every effort should be made to maintain and improve the Racing Radio service. The Committee recognises that RWWA is not currently in a position to acquire a radio licence that is capable to broadcast statewide. The remedy may be found in new technologies like digital radio and the Committee understands that RWWA will continue to seek new ways to broadcast Racing Radio to country areas. In addition, despite the financial limitations that RWWA faces, the recent expansion of RWWA's radio network in the Kalgoorlie-Boulder and Kambalda regions<sup>971</sup> demonstrates that RWWA is in fact continuing to improve Racing Radio coverage in the short term.

With respect to the quantity of local product being broadcast on the system, the Committee concurs with stakeholder views that industry participants are more likely to have a bet on local product if they can either see or hear local races being broadcast. This will increase the potential ability of race clubs to generate turnover and subsequently help reduce the burden that product fees place on the Western Australian industry. As such, the Committee finds that it is incumbent on RWWA to broadcast and generally promote local product wherever possible.

Finding 87

Racing and Wagering Western Australia must make every effort to broadcast local racing product on the racing radio network.

<sup>967</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010 p23.

<sup>968</sup> This included RWWA's wagering spend on TABForm and its other wagering promotional material; of which Racing Radio is a part.

<sup>969</sup> Mr Richard Burt, CEO, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p23.

<sup>970</sup> Ibid.

<sup>971</sup> Dean Stacey, 'Coup for Punters', Kalgoorlie Miner, 2 October 2010, p58.

(v) Animal welfare issues

Although the topic of animal welfare was not raised extensively during the course of the Inquiry, the Committee considers it an issue of ongoing importance that should be taken into consideration by RWWA, and the industry overall, as it plans for the future. Some of the main themes conveyed to the Committee can be summarised as follows:

- Without the horse and its correct treatment and welfare, the racing industry would not be able to generate turnover. Greater research is required into the welfare of horses to guard against future outbreaks of diseases, like equine influenza.<sup>972</sup>
- RWWA has a duty of care to ensure that a horse is not being overworked. In relation to harness racing, the current method of liaising with trainers to ensure that a horse is 'fit' is inadequate as the horse is more than likely to be fit because it is traditional in harness racing to produce 'tough' horses. A policy should be introduced restricting the number of times a horse can start within a week, a month, a quarter, and any consecutive 12 month period. Some possible timeframes could be (respectively), no more than 3 times in a week; no more than 6 times in a month; no more than 10 times in a quarter; no more than 26 times in a year.<sup>973</sup>
- Animal welfare issues associated with thoroughbred, harness and greyhounds are not being appropriately recognised by the industry or by government. The Animal Welfare Act 2002 does not specifically offer any prescribed protection for racing animals.<sup>974</sup>

The Committee notes that RWWA and industry participants are subject to the Animal Welfare Act 2002 which does afford substantial protection to racing animals. In particular, Section 19 of the Animal Welfare Act 2002 prescribes offences against animals, of which Section 19(3) specifically states that it is an offence of cruelty against an animal if the animal is worked, driven, ridden or otherwise used when it is not fit, is overused or is used in a manner which is likely to cause harm.

RWWA has noted that animal welfare is a critical industry issue and threat if not managed properly. It actively promotes that there is a need to minimise any threat to the wellbeing of animals across all racing codes and to 'maintain active development of our animal welfare programmes'.<sup>975</sup> RWWA's current initiatives with respect to animal welfare issues include:

- A memorandum of understanding (MOU) between RWWA and the RSPCA on animal welfare breaches, agreeing to facilitate the successful investigation of alleged breaches of animal welfare in racing animals;<sup>976</sup>

<sup>972</sup> Ms Lisa Baker MLA, Western Australia, Legislative Assembly, Parliamentary Debates (Hansard), 21 October 2009, p8401.

<sup>973</sup> Submission No. 15, 30 November 2009, pp4-5.

<sup>974</sup> Submission No. 20 from A. Herlihy, 8 December 2009, pp1-2.

<sup>975</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Towards Sustainability, April 2009. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/towards-sustainability.pdf Accessed on 7 October 2010.

<sup>976</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Thoroughbred Racing Consultative Group (TRCG), Minutes of the meeting held on Tuesday 31 August 2010', Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/TRCG\_Minutes\_20100831.pdf. Accessed on 7 October 2010.

- The Animal Welfare Group (RAWG) established by RWWA stewards and veterinarians. The group's focus is to develop animal welfare policies and promote the importance of animal welfare issues across all three codes. In 2008-09, the RAWG produced the RAWG Manual containing formalised animal welfare policies; and undertook research relating to breeding and racing across all codes, to be made available for future strategic planning;<sup>977</sup> and
- The Western Australian Equine Influenza Industry Group (WAEIIG) established by RWWA following the equine influenza outbreak. The group was to provide strategic advice to protect the WA horse industry from EI, develop risk minimisation strategies consistent with the nationally agreed response and communicate effectively with all horse industry stakeholders, the general public and the state government.<sup>978</sup>

The Committee acknowledges that RWWA is taking steps to mitigate any risk of breaches to the welfare of animals in the racing industry. Nonetheless, the Committee makes the following observations as to how RWWA may further strengthen its approach to animal welfare:

1. Increase information on the RWWA website in regard to RWWA's animal welfare policies and guidelines, for example the RAWG Manual could be used to increase awareness among industry participants and the wider community regarding RWWA's animal welfare policies;
2. Expand animal welfare guidelines and policies, to more appropriately inform participants as to what constitutes an offence against animals under the Animal Welfare Act 2002;
3. Seek stakeholder input to assist development of future animal welfare policies and reinforce existing policies; and
4. Educate industry participants on animal welfare issues and continue research into animal welfare issues.

(vi) Breeding incentives

The West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders Association Inc (WABBA) submitted that the breeding industry for both thoroughbred and standardbred horses is essential to the racing and wagering industry:

It drives ownership of racehorses, which in turn drives the amount of racing product available for field size, therefore producing better turnover and, ultimately through TAB profits, the amount that can be delivered to the community for the state's economic, employment, community and social well being.<sup>979</sup>

WABBA contended that thoroughbred racing is developing strongly in WA with horses beginning to sell and perform well interstate and internationally. Further, given the benefits breeding brings to the industry, it is imperative that RWWA invests money into an appropriate sales venue for marketing Western Australian bred horses. WABBA noted that breeders in the state have been trying to sell horses in a substandard facility for a long time:

<sup>977</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, RWWA, Perth, 12 October 2009, p24.

<sup>978</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 'Western Australian Equine Influenza Industry Group, 2007, Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/waeiig.html. Accessed on 7 October 2010.

<sup>979</sup> Submission No. 18 from West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders Association Inc, 8 December 2009, p2.

...to be unable to show off our produce to people in a proper way is actually detrimental to the industry as a whole, because it flows on to whether we get people from overseas and the better trainers...from the eastern states.<sup>980</sup>

WABBA also stated that it is important that a quarantine facility be established in the state ‘to encourage the participation of overseas horses in any racing program or to accommodate shuttle stallions from the US and Europe’.<sup>981</sup> Without this, WABBA argued that the breeding industry would contract throughout the state—which will be detrimental to the entire industry. As such, it should be a matter of priority that RWWA examines a way to establish or finance a purpose built sales/quarantine facility in WA.<sup>982</sup>

With regard to harness racing, the Committee received feedback from stakeholders that the breeding stock in harness racing is in critical decline because there are no incentives for breeders.<sup>983</sup> This has often meant it has been easier to import race ready horses from interstate or overseas.<sup>984</sup> Mr Mark Roberts of WACHRA observed this is partly because the advent of artificial insemination has meant that mares are breeding more easily with eastern state sires and as such incentives like ‘sire stakes’ are required to encourage breeders. Mr Roberts also suggested that uncertainty in the industry, and particularly the tentative state of harness racing, had discouraged breeders:

In the past two or three years it [breeding] has dropped even more because people are struggling to see where the industry is heading. It is hard for someone to spend $5 000 or $10 000 on breeding a horse when they are unsure whether they will have a place to race it in two or three years when the horse is ready to race.<sup>985</sup>

The Committee believes that a strong breeding industry is critical to the ongoing and overall viability of the WA racing industry. It is therefore important for WA to have a vital local breeding industry across all racing codes.

<sup>980</sup> Mr Gray Williamson, President, West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders Association Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p4.

<sup>981</sup> Mr Gray Williamson, President, West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders Association Inc, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p3.

<sup>982</sup> Submission No. 18 from West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders Association Inc, 8 December 2009, pp 3-5.

<sup>983</sup> Mr Stephen Hyde, Williams Harness Racing Club, Transcript of Evidence, 3 May 2010, p6.

<sup>984</sup> Submission No. 46 from Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, 6 April 2010, p2; Submission No. 15, 30 November 2009, pp3-4.

<sup>985</sup> Mr Mark Roberts, President, WACHRA, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p13.

Finding 88

It is important that Racing and Wagering Western Australia supports a vibrant and sustainable breeding industry across all racing codes.

(b) Committee observations

The following list of challenges confronting RWWA and the racing industry has been informed by Members' own experiences as participants in the racing industry<sup>986</sup> and partly by observations during this Inquiry. These challenges are highlighted here due to their potential bearing on the future of racing and wagering in Western Australia:

(i) Remaining competitive in a challenging wagering market

It is critical that RWWA is able to remain competitive in an ever-changing and growing wagering market. The particular challenges confronting RWWA in this respect have already been examined in Chapter 2.9 (Wagering Revenues) where it was also noted that increasing racing in Western Australia is not the answer to generating increased revenues. The Committee analysed a number of alternative mechanisms to boost wagering revenues in Chapter 2.9 and also examined RWWA's ability to compete more effectively through a reduction in the rate of wagering tax (Chapter 2.8). RWWA itself has indicated that it is taking a more proactive approach to ensuring that in the lead up to the expiration of its pooling agreement with Tabcorp in August 2012,<sup>987</sup> it is not confronted again with significantly higher costs. RWWA has indicated in this regard that it is exploring all options specifically it 'can either pull back in Victoria or New South Wales...talk to the UniTAB operation or ... stand alone'.<sup>988</sup>

Another important element in remaining competitive in the wagering sector relates to ensuring that the TAB has the highest quality infrastructure. This too was alluded to in Chapter 2.9 (Wagering Revenues). In this regard, RWWA has recently undertaken significant capital works in the form of bet engine replacement.<sup>989</sup> The estimated total cost of the project as at the end of the 2008-09 financial year was approximately $31 million. Ticket terminal replacement has also occurred with a view to upgrading technology to adapt to changing wagering conditions at an estimated total cost of $17 million.<sup>990</sup>

<sup>986</sup> Members' private interests pertaining to racing and/or wagering were tabled in the Legislative Assembly on 24 November 2009.

<sup>987</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p7.

<sup>988</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, pp52-53.

<sup>989</sup> Mr James Freemantle, Deputy Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p33.

<sup>990</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Annual Report 2009, pp27, 70. Available at: www.rwwa.com.au/home/rwwa-annual-report-2009.pdf Accessed on 4 October 2010.

It is encouraging also that RWWA is actively investing in improvements to its retail wagering network:

Part of our plan is to upgrade the agencies. The board is dealing with a major infrastructure plan at the moment for agencies, which is about modernising; continuing the modernisation program of putting in toilets, making them more aesthetic with fixtures, fittings and services, and making them more secure.<sup>991</sup>

(ii) Infrastructure

As detailed in Chapters 2.7 (Distribution of Funds) and 2.8 (Taxation), it is essential that RWWA meets the urgent need for racing industry infrastructure. This relates to both the provision of new, and maintenance of existing, infrastructure with regard to racing and training facilities across the three codes. Government grants will only go part of the way to addressing the $70 million infrastructure shortfall identified by RWWA. As detailed in this report, the establishment of a dedicated infrastructure fund will ensure a secure funding stream for this purpose.

The implementation of some of the following findings/recommendations will only be possible with the establishment of the proposed infrastructure fund.

(iii) Racing/training facilities into the future

Thoroughbred racing/training facilities

Industry concerns regarding training facilities in the metropolitan area have been examined in Chapter 2.7 (Distribution of Funds). In relation to metropolitan thoroughbred training facilities, land at Ascot and Lark Hill is now priced out of the reach of most new trainers entering the industry. Perth Racing indicated that its subsidy from RWWA does not cover the cost of maintaining the facility for the large number of horses that work there.<sup>992</sup> In other major cities stables are being forced out of city suburbs like Ascot, with stables either relocated on-course or trainers moving to training centres outside the city area.

The WA Trainers' Association has also expressed concern about a lack of racing/training facilities in the metropolitan area and has suggested that 'there are sufficient horses in training to support three race meetings a week in the near metropolitan area now, let alone with the continued expansion of population in and around the city. Provincial tracks are barely adequate to meet industry needs with fields reduced to 10 starters in some cases....'<sup>993</sup> RWWA has indicated in relation to the latter point that it continues to work towards optimal field sizes (12-14 runners) and although field sizes have averaged fewer runners in metropolitan and provincial races, the emphasis has been on maintaining full fields in order to enhance wagering revenue.<sup>994</sup>

<sup>991</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 20 August 2010, p50.

<sup>992</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, pp4-5.

<sup>993</sup> Submission No. 22B from WA Racing Trainers' Association, 6 August 2010, p2.

As detailed in Chapter 2.7 (Distribution of Funds), RWWA has recognised the importance of training facilities in its strategic vision for the thoroughbred code:

...from a capital infrastructure investment perspective, it is imperative that we adequately sustain training tracks, particularly those that service our metropolitan and provincial starter numbers: Ascot, Lark Hill and Bunbury ... From a metropolitan perspective, it is recommended that an evaluation of long-term venue training and racing requirements is undertaken taking into account Ascot's capacity to accommodate long-term stabling along with horse population demands. From a provincial perspective, the six key venues - Bunbury, Pinjarra, Northam, Albany, Geraldton and Kalgoorlie - will continue to be the focus of track and training investment.<sup>995</sup>

Perth Racing indicated that it had suggested a potential site to RWWA for a dedicated training facility which would relieve the cost pressures on the club from having to provide training facilities at Ascot.<sup>996</sup> RWWA indicated however that it does not have the ability to fund a new training track and that 'the cost to acquire the land is one thing, but to build a new track and full training facilities would cost $15 million. That is not including the land purchase'.<sup>997</sup> As such, RWWA's approach to training facilities, as outlined in the thoroughbred vision statement is to leverage the existing tracks:

We need horses to be trained at Ascot. But we want to take pressure off Ascot. Between 400 and 600 horses train there on training mornings, which is an overcrowded environment. We have complete empathy for Ascot. We need to do two things. We need to put boxes and stalls at Lark Hill and have on-course stables. That is what people are asking for. They want to move out of the large blocks that are highly capitalised. They want to realise their cash and live in a different environment in which their horses live on-course. That will give new entrants who cannot afford the land the ability to lease the stalls at subsidised rates to enable them to be there... The plan is to continue training at Ascot, to develop 300 or 400 stalls at Lark Hill, and to continue to leverage inner and outer regional tracks as training tracks.<sup>998</sup>

<sup>994</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Industry, RWWA, March 2010, p12.

<sup>995</sup> Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Securing the Future: A Vision of Sustainability for the WA Thoroughbred Industry, RWWA, March 2010, p9.

<sup>996</sup> Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst, Chairman, Perth Racing, Transcript of Evidence, 26 February 2010, p5.

<sup>997</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p42.

<sup>998</sup> Ibid., pp42-43.

RWWA's proposal to upgrade the Lark Hill facility forms part of its $70 million requirement for infrastructure funding.<sup>999</sup> As stated above, this again highlights the importance of securing a dedicated funding stream for racing infrastructure.

It is the Committee's view that RWWA should take a long-term approach to the provision of training facilities for the metropolitan area.

Finding 89

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should take a long-term approach to the provision of training facilities for the metropolitan area.

Metropolitan racetracks

The Committee understands that there is a misconception within the wider community regarding the need for two metropolitan thoroughbred racetracks at Ascot and Belmont Park.

RWWA has indicated support<sup>1000</sup> for the continuation of two thoroughbred turf racing tracks in the metropolitan area:

As for thoroughbreds, while there is the need to race on a grassed surface, and that is the favoured surface of the thoroughbred industry worldwide, and certainly in Australia, there is a requirement to have two tracks. You cannot race the number of meetings that are conducted in the metropolitan and provincial areas without giving those turf tracks some respite.<sup>1001</sup>

With regard to the location of Perth's metropolitan racetracks, RWWA reinforced that this matter is out of its hands since both tracks (Ascot and Belmont) are club assets belonging to Perth Racing:

We do not control the industry's assets; the members do ... whatever the constitution says. We can do what we can do. We can apply commonsense and business rationale but on the big subject of major assets it is really up to the club to make wise decisions.<sup>1002</sup>

It is the Committee's view that the current level of racing within the metropolitan area warrants the continuation of two thoroughbred racetracks.

<sup>999</sup> Submission No. 7C from Racing and Wagering Western Australia, 31 May 2010, Appendix D.

<sup>1000</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p40.

<sup>1001</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p39.

<sup>1002</sup> Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p39.

Finding 90

The current level of racing within the metropolitan area warrants the continuation of two thoroughbred racetracks.

In relation to harness racing, there has been some conjecture regarding the future of the WATA-owned Gloucester Park given its asset value and whether the headquarters of harness racing should be moved to an outer metropolitan venue as has occurred in some other states.

When asked by the Committee, RWWA indicated that the jury is still out in NSW and Victoria which had moved racing from inner metropolitan sites to outer metropolitan venues and that if RWWA had reason to believe from the experience on the east coast that beneficial outcomes could be achieved for the industry, it would have reason to look at whether similar outcomes could be translated to a WA context. In the meantime, RWWA acknowledged that the harness industry favoured the continuation of racing at Gloucester Park:

The harness industry in Western Australia, and certainly the metropolitan area, seems very fixed on being able to stay at Gloucester Park. That is their right; and, if they have the ability to do so, so be it. If we were to find from the experiment in the other two states that we had reason to believe that we could influence the people involved with Gloucester Park by giving them reasons we think they should move, I am sure that in a proper and sane community it would be looked at.<sup>1003</sup>

It is the Committee's view that RWWA should work with the WATA to ensure that the harness racing industry has the best possible facility for metropolitan racing.

Finding 91

Racing and Wagering Western Australia should work with the Western Australian Trotting Association to ensure that the harness racing industry has the best possible facility for metropolitan racing.

Synthetic tracks

As highlighted in Chapter 2.7 (Distribution of Funds), the Bunbury Turf Club announced a plan to install a synthetic track inside its grass racetrack as part of its $14m - $15m redevelopment proposal. The synthetic track will be available for racing and training. This calls into question more broadly whether a synthetic track is needed in the metropolitan area to help meet the increasing demand for better training facilities and take some of the load off existing grass tracks, which are costly to maintain and also require heavy watering.

<sup>1003</sup> Mr Robert Pearson, Director, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p39.

RWWA does not support the use of synthetic tracks for racing, however, is more open to the potential for synthetic tracks to be used for training purposes.<sup>1004</sup> RWWA acknowledged that it had been criticised for being slow on the issue,<sup>1005</sup> although the inclusion of the Bunbury Turf Club proposal as part of RWWA's identified need for infrastructure spending is perhaps evidence that this is changing. Even so, given the real and immediate pressures relating to training facilities and water conservation, it would be appropriate for RWWA to thoroughly investigate the viability of synthetic tracks.

Recommendation 52

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia continues to investigate the viability of synthetic tracks for training purposes.

(iv) National totalisator pool

During the Committee's visit to Queensland and Victoria, there was widespread support across various sectors of the industry for a national totalisator pool as the best method for state TABs to compete with corporate bookmakers.<sup>1006</sup> Contributors to the Inquiry warned of the difficulties of achieving such a goal (for example anti-competitive reasons might be raised by the ACCC, and there are also the vested interests of the wagering operators in the larger states to compete with).<sup>1007</sup> There would also be difficulty coordinating such a process without a federal Minister for Racing. However, the Committee believes that RWWA and the Minister for Racing and Gaming should continue to pursue whatever avenues are available.

Finding 92

The introduction of a national totalisator pool would be beneficial for Western Australia.

Recommendation 53

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming and Racing and Wagering Western Australia pursue any avenue available to achieve a national totalisator pool.

<sup>1004</sup> Ibid.

<sup>1005</sup> Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 4 June 2010, p40.

<sup>1006</sup> The Committee heard comments in favour of the idea of larger and/or national pools and also the difficulties involved during briefings conducted with Harness Racing Queensland (13 April 2010); Greyhounds Queensland Limited (13 April 2010); Harness Racing Victoria (14 April 2010); Racing Victoria Limited (16 April 2010).

<sup>1007</sup> For example, Mr Ross Bowe, Chairman, and Mr Richard Burt, Chief Executive Officer, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, Transcript of Evidence, 30 April 2010, p7.

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS
CHAPTER 3

---

CHAPTER 4 SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDED LEGISLATIVE AMENDMENTS

As the purpose of the Committee's Inquiry is foremost to review the RWWA Acts, for ease of reference the recommendations pertaining to amending the Act are reproduced here.

Page 25

Recommendation 1

That Section 8(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to replace 'regional development' with 'country racing' to more appropriately capture the requirement for knowledge of, and experience in, country racing.

Page 33

Recommendation 4

That Section 12 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to stipulate that the process by which eligible bodies are to be determined, and the publication of eligible bodies be specified in regulation.

Page 34

Recommendation 6

That any member of the selection panel nominated under section 11(2)(c), (d) or (e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 should not be eligible to stand for consecutive terms under section 11(8) of the Act.

Page 36

Recommendation 8

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to insert a clause explicitly preventing the same individual from holding the positions of Chief Executive Officer and Chair of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia board concurrently.

Page 51

Recommendation 11

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to insert the following specific statement of objective for Racing and Wagering Western Australia in relation to racing in general:

That Racing and Wagering Western Australia is to foster the development, promote the welfare and ensure the integrity of metropolitan and country thoroughbred racing, harness racing and greyhound racing. In undertaking these objectives, Racing and Wagering Western Australia is to recognise the unique characteristics of each racing code so as to maximise the sustainability of racing in Western Australia.

Page 64

Recommendation 14

That, in order to expedite the approval process of Racing and Wagering Western Australia's Strategic Development Plan, Section 74 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to allow the Treasurer to impose some direction on the draft Strategic Development Plan.

Page 65

Recommendation 17

That section 85 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a reasonable timeframe within which notice of financial difficulty must be given by Racing and Wagering Western Australia to the Minister.

Page 75

Recommendation 20

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a new provision for a club to make representations to the board in instances of club closure or a significant reduction in meetings that will affect a club's long-term viability.

Page 84

Recommendation 21

That Section 82 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the statement that nothing in Section 82(2) precludes Racing and Wagering Western Australia from consulting outside of the prescribed bodies in relation to the operations of Racing and Wagering Western Australia or a subsidiary.

Page 106

Recommendation 25

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to delete Section 105 and that consequential amendments be made to remove references to Section 105.

Page 121

Recommendation 27

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming in conjunction with the Treasurer reviews the rates of tax for totalisator wagers and fixed odds wagers in sections 4 and 5 respectively of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003 with a view to enabling Racing and Wagering Western Australia to compete more effectively.

Page 130

Recommendation 29

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to establish a special purpose account for the infrastructure fund.

Page 131

Recommendation 31

That Section 77(2) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to require the inclusion of proposed infrastructure spending in the Statement of Corporate Intent for Racing and Wagering Western Australia.

Page 140

Recommendation 33

That Section 63 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to enable Racing and Wagering Western Australia to offer wagering services through electronic agents.

Page 161

Recommendation 37

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the power for Racing and Wagering Western Australia to direct clubs and allied bodies where there is a severe threat to the welfare of racing.

Page 161

Recommendation 38

That the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to ensure Racing and Wagering Western Australia cannot impose sanctions for not complying with a direction without those clubs and allied bodies first making representation.

Page 175

Recommendation 42

That the Minister for Racing and Gaming reviews the most appropriate manner in which any prescribed function of Racing and Wagering Western Australia that conflicts with its prescribed functions to carry out its wagering business under Sections 50 and 120 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be removed and subsequently vested with the Gaming and Wagering Commission.

Page 177

Recommendation 43

That Section 118 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove the requirement for a common seal provided alternative document execution requirements can be applied.

Page 178

Recommendation 44

That Section 63 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove references to wagers and payments by letter sent through the post, and that consequential amendments in this regard are made to the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003.

Page 178

Recommendation 45

That Section 86 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to remove any provisions which duplicate the State Records Act 2000.

Page 179

Recommendation 46

That Section 22(3)(a) and (b) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to reflect applicable legislative requirements defining the minimum remuneration and other terms of conditions of employment of staff.

Page 179

Recommendation 47

That Section 3(1) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to replace:

- ‘Australian and New Zealand Greyhound Association’ with ‘Greyhounds Australasia’; and
- ‘Australian Harness Racing Council’ with ‘Harness Racing Australia’.

Page 183

Recommendation 48

That Section 44 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include the explicit function to allow Racing and Wagering Western Australia to warn-off, and lift a warning-off, and that this function be carried out in accordance with Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003.

Page 183

Recommendation 49

That consequential amendments be made to Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 including:

- that any warning-off notice must have a prescribed time limit;
- the conditions by which Racing and Wagering Western Australia can impose additional notices; and
- the process by which the recipient can apply to Racing and Wagering Western Australia to have a warning-off notice lifted.

Page 183

Recommendation 50

That section 44(1)(e) of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003 be amended to include a maximum time limit and:

- Any requirement that this section be enacted in accordance with Regulation 72 of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 be repealed; and
- New procedures be set out in the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 that prescribe the 'short term' incidences to which this section should apply.

MR J.E. McGRATH, MLA
CHAIRMAN

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS
CHAPTER 4

---

APPENDIX ONE

SUBMISSIONS RECEIVED

The following submissions were received by the Committee for the Inquiry:

| Date      | Name                       | Position         | Organisation                             |
|------------------|-----------------------------------|-------------------------|---|
| 20 October 2009  | Mr George C Barber                | (Private submission)    |   |
| 4 November 2009  | Mr George W Pyett                 | (Private submission)    |   |
| 10 November 2009 | Mr R.E. Dowding                   | (Private submission)    |   |
| 19 November 2009 | Mr N.A. Harman                    | (Private submission)    |   |
| 18 November 2009 | Mr Barry Mahood                   | Chairman                | York Racing (Inc)                               |
| 29 November 2009 | Mr Bruce Brown                    | Secretary/Treasurer     | Geraldton Harness Racing Club (Inc)             |
| 30 November 2009 | Mr Richard Burt                   | Chief Executive Officer | Racing and Wagering Western Australia           |
| 30 November 2009 | Mr Robert Morgan                  | President               | WA TAB Agents' Association Inc.                 |
| 30 November 2009 | Mr Frank Peczka                   | (Private submission)    |   |
| 30 November 2009 | Ms Toni Walkington                | Branch Secretary        | CPSU/CSA  |
| 30 November 2009 | Mr Dino Di Cianno                 | Director                | Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd                      |
| 30 November 2009 | Mr Jon Menzel                     | Manager                 | Narrogin Race & Pace Inc                        |
| 30 November 2009 | Ms Margaret Skinner               | Secretary               | Mt Barker Turf Club Inc                         |
| 30 November 2009 | Mr David Simonette                | Chief Executive Officer | Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association |
| 27 November 2009 | Mr Wayne Barnes and Mr Tim Barnes | Morley TAB Agents       |   |
| 26 November 2009 | Mr Kevin O'Brien                  | (Private submission)    |   |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date      | Name        | Position         | Organisation   |
|------------------|--------------------|-------------------------|---|
| 27 November 2009 | Mr Les Coulson     | (Private submission)    |   |
| 27 November 2009 | Ms Astrid Herlihy  | (Private submission)    |   |
| 29 November 2009 | Ms Lorna Maund     | (Private submission)    |   |
| 4 December 2009  | Mr Gray Williamson | President               | West Australian Bloodhorse Breeders' Association Inc.               |
| 14 December 2009 | Mr Doug Milner     | Manager                 | Broome Turf Club (Inc)  |
| 14 December 2009 | Mr Brian Paddick   | Secretary               | WA Racing Trainers' Association                                     |
| 18 December 2009 | Mr Craig Chadwick  | Chairman                | Bunbury Turf Club   |
| 24 December 2009 | Mr David Prance    | Vice Chairperson        | Western Australian Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association (Inc) |
| 24 December 2009 | Mr David Wrensted  | Manager                 | Geraldton Turf Club Inc.  |
| 23 December 2009 | Ms Nicole Bell     | Manager                 | Northam Race Club Inc.  |
| 30 December 2009 | Mr Harvey Crossman | President               | Western Australian Racehorse Owners' Association                    |
| 15 January 2010  | Mr Kevin Jeavons   | President               | Harness Racing Owners Association of WA Inc                         |
| 15 January 2010  | Mr John Burt       | President               | Western Australian Trotting Association                             |
| 15 January 2010  | Mr Gino Monaco     | President               | Fremantle Harness Racing Club (Inc)                                 |
| 14 January 2010  | Mr Rob Deadman     | Secretary               | West Australian Country Harness Racing Association                  |
| 18 January 2010  | Mrs Lesley Solly   | President               | Albany Racing Club Inc  |
| 28 January 2010  | Mr Ted van Heemst  | Chairman                | Perth Racing  |
| 2 February 2010  | Mr Ken Davies      | President               | Albany Harness Racing Club  |
| 3 February 2010  | Mr Richard Burt    | Chief Executive Officer | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                               |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date       | Name               | Position   | Organisation                             |
|-------------------|---------------------------|---|---|
| 25 February 2010  | Mr Bob Howat              | President   | WA Bookmakers Association (Inc)                 |
| 8 March 2010      | Mr G.H. Adams             | (Private submission)  |   |
| 23 March 2010     | Mr James Spasich          | (Private submission)  |   |
| 6 April 2010      | Mr Brendon Gardiner       | Secretary/Treasurer   | Bridgetown Harness Racing Club Inc              |
| 6 April 2010      | Mr Revell Douglas         | General Manager   | Pinjarra Harness Racing Club (Inc)              |
| 16 April 2010     | Mr Arnold Carter          | Secretary   | Country Racing Association                      |
| 26 May 2010       | Mr Matthew Spurr          | President   | Wagin Trotting Club                             |
| 1 June 2010       | Mr Ron Alexander          | Director General  | Department of Sport and Recreation              |
| 13 July 2010      | Mr Peter Seaman           | Executive Director  | Clubs WA  |
| 3 August 2010     | Mr Bradley Woods          | Executive Director  | Australian Hotels Association Western Australia |
| 22 September 2010 | Hon Grant WoodhamsMLA | Member for Moore,Speaker of theLegislative Assembly |   |

APPENDIX TWO

HEARINGS

The following public hearings were undertaken by the Committee for the purpose of its Inquiry:

| Date             | Name                       | Position                                  | Organisation                                    |
|------------------|----------------------------|---|---|
| 19 February 2010 | Hon Nick Griffiths         | Former Minister for Racing and Gaming     |   |
| 19 February 2010 | Mr Ray Turner AM           | Former Chairman WA Racing Industry Review |   |
| 19 February 2010 | Mr Barry Sargeant          | Director General                          | Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor         |
| 26 February 2010 | Mr Edward (Ted) van Heemst | Chairman                                  | Perth Racing                                    |
|                  | Mr Lex Piper               | Vice Chairman                             | Perth Racing                                    |
| 26 February 2010 | Mr Tony Marwick            | Chief Executive Officer                   | WA Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association   |
|                  | Mr David Wrensted          | Vice Chairman                             | WA Provincial Thoroughbred Racing Association   |
| 26 February 2010 | Mr Gray Williamson         | President                                 | WA Bloodhorse Breeders Association              |
|                  | Mr Colin Brown             | Committee Member                          | WA Bloodhorse Breeders Association              |
|                  | Mr Harvey Crossman         | President                                 | Western Australian Racehorse Owners Association |
|                  | Mr Bruce Hyde              | President                                 | WA Racing Trainers Association                  |
|                  | Mr Brain Paddick           | Secretary                                 | WA Racing Trainers Association                  |
| 26 February 2010 | Mr Mark Roberts            | President                                 | WA Country Harness Racing Association           |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date      | Name           | Position                   | Organisation                   |
|------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
|                  | Mr Alfred Paganoni    | Past President                    | WA Country Harness Racing Association |
| 26 February 2010 | Mr John Burt          | President                         | WA Trotting Association               |
|                  | Mr Robert Bovell      | Chief Executive Officer           | WA Trotting Association               |
|                  | Ms Kerry Hanks        | Assistant Chief Executive Officer | WA Trotting Association               |
| 8 March 2010     | Mr Robert Morgan      | President                         | WA TAB Agents Association Inc         |
|                  | Ms Swee-Gaik Lim      | Secretary                         | WA TAB Agents Association Inc         |
|                  | Mr Kenneth Trainer    | Advisor                           | WA TAB Agents Association Inc         |
| 8 March 2010     | Mr Timothy Barnes     | Director                          | Morley TAB Agency                     |
|                  | Mr Wayne Barnes       | TAB Assistant                     | Morley TAB Agency                     |
| 8 March 2010     | Mr Robert Howat       | President                         | WA Bookmakers Association Inc         |
|                  | Mr Brian Brown        | Association Secretary             | WA Bookmakers Association Inc         |
| 8 March 2010     | Mr Dino Di Cianno     | Director                          | Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd            |
|                  | Mr Fabio Di Cianno    | Employee                          | Best Bookies Price Pty Ltd            |
| 12 March 2010    | Ms Vivienne Taylor    | President                         | Mount Barker Turf Club Inc            |
|                  | Mrs Margaret Skinner  | Secretary                         | Mount Barker Turf Club Inc            |
|                  | Ms Lynn Heppell       | Vice President                    | Mount Barker Turf Club Inc            |
|                  | Mr Bill Pearce        |                                   | Mount Barker Turf Club Inc            |
|                  | Mr Steve Caporn       |                                   | Mount Barker Turf Club Inc            |
| 12 March 2010    | Mrs Lesley Solly      | President                         | Albany Racing Club Inc                |
|                  | Mr Terence Zambonetti | Vice President                    | Albany Racing Club Inc                |
|                  | Mr Shane O'Loughlin   | Committee Member                  | Albany Racing Club Inc                |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date   | Name        | Position                   | Organisation                   |
|---------------|--------------------|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 12 March 2010 | Mr Colin Park      | General Manager                   | Albany Harness Racing Club            |
|               | Mr Victor Jury     | Trainer                           | Albany Harness Racing Club            |
| 19 March 2010 | Mr Evan Spencer    | President                         | Golden Mile Trotting Club             |
|               | Mr Phillip Virgin  | Junior Vice President             | Golden Mile Trotting Club             |
|               | Mr Brett Snell     | Past President                    | Golden Mile Trotting Club             |
|               | Mr Neville Sly     | Committee Member                  | Golden Mile Trotting Club             |
|               | Ms Julie Beccaria  | Committee Member                  | Golden Mile Trotting Club             |
| 19 March 2010 | Mr John Biggs      | Representative                    | North Eastern Goldfields Racing Clubs |
| 19 March 2010 | Mr Murray Percasky | Chairman                          | Kalgoorlie Boulder Racing Club        |
|               | Mr Trevor McManus  | Vice-Chairman                     | Kalgoorlie Boulder Racing Club        |
|               | Mr David Prance    | Immediate Past Chairman           | Kalgoorlie Boulder Racing Club        |
|               | Mrs Janice Glasson | Administration and Racing Manager | Kalgoorlie Boulder Racing Club        |
| 26 March 2010 | Mr Barry Mahood    | Chairman                          | York Racing Inc                       |
|               | Mr Kevin O'Brien   | Treasurer                         | York Racing Inc                       |
|               | Mr Anthony Boyle   | Committee Member                  | York Racing Inc                       |
| 26 March 2010 | Mr Mervyn Grey     | President                         | York Harness Racing Club              |
|               | Mr Patrick Flynn   | Vice President                    | York Harness Racing Club              |
|               | Mr Rob Deadman     | Secretary                         | York Harness Racing Club              |
| 26 March 2010 | Mr Tony Marwick    | President                         | Northam Race Club Inc                 |
|               | Mrs Nicole Bell    | Manager                           | Northam Race Club Inc                 |
| 26 March 2010 | Mr Peter Dempster  | President                         | Northam Harness Racing Club           |
|               | Mr Mark Roberts    | Vice President                    | Northam Harness Racing Club           |
|               | Mr Brett Taylor    | President                         | Central Wheatbelt Harness Racing Club |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date   | Name           | Position            | Organisation            |
|---------------|-----------------------|----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 29 March 2010 | Mr Rodney O'Bree      | Chairman                   | Geraldton Turf Club Inc        |
|               | Mr Donald Hammarquist | Vice Chairman              | Geraldton Turf Club Inc        |
|               | Mr David Wrensted     | Manager                    | Geraldton Turf Club Inc        |
| 29 March 2010 | Mr Graham Cox         | President                  | Geraldton Harness Racing Club  |
|               | Mr John Reynolds      | Vice President             | Geraldton Harness Racing Club  |
|               | Mr Bruce Brown        | Treasurer/Committee Member | Geraldton Harness Racing Club  |
| 29 March 2010 | Mr Robert Newton      | Vice President             | Mingenew Turf Club             |
|               | Mr Tony Crowhurst     | Chairman                   | Dongara Irwin Race Club        |
| 6 April 2010  | Mr Kenneth Godley     | President                  | Bunbury Trotting Club          |
|               | Ms Julie Caldwell     | Manager                    | Bunbury Trotting Club          |
| 6 April 2010  | Mr Kenneth Nottle     | President                  | Harvey District Trotting Club  |
|               | Mr Bruce Jones        | Vice President             | Harvey District Trotting Club  |
| 6 April 2010  | Mr Graeme Waters      | Vice President             | Bridgetown Harness Racing Club |
|               | Mr Brendon Gardiner   | Secretary/Treasurer        | Bridgetown Harness Racing Club |
|               | Mrs Patricia Abbott   | Secretary/Treasurer        | Busselton Trotting Club        |
|               | Mr David Abbott       | Vice President             | Busselton Trotting Club        |
| 6 April 2010  | Mrs Rosanne Pimm      | Treasurer                  | Collie Race Club               |
|               | Mr Robert Pimm        | Committee Member           | Collie Race Club               |
|               | Mr Peter Hemsley      | Secretary                  | Collie Harness Racing Club     |
| 6 April 2010  | Mr Kimberley Tuckey   | President                  | Pinjarra Harness Racing Club   |
|               | Mr Revell Douglas     | General Manager            | Pinjarra Harness Racing Club   |
| 6 April 2010  | Mr Phillip Ibbotson   | Acting Chairman            | Pinjarra Race Club             |
|               | Mr Keith Jeffreys     | Committee Member           | Pinjarra Race Club             |
|               | Mr Gregory Dixon      | Committee Member           | Pinjarra Race Club             |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date   | Name            | Position         | Organisation   |
|---------------|------------------------|-------------------------|---|
|               | Mr Colin Bellchambers  | General Manager         | Pinjarra Race Club  |
| 30 April 2010 | Mr David Simonette     | Chief Executive Officer | Western Australian Greyhound Racing Association                         |
| 30 April 2010 | Mr Ross Bowe           | Chairman                | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                                   |
|               | Mr James Freemantle    | Deputy Chairman         | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                                   |
|               | Mr Robert Pearson      | Director                | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                                   |
|               | Mr Richard Burt        | Chief Executive Officer | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                                   |
| 30 April 2010 | Mr Sam Celenza         | President               | Western Australian Greyhound Breeders, Owners and Trainers' Association |
|               | Mr Allen Kinnish       | Committee Member        | Western Australian Greyhound Breeders, Owners and Trainers' Association |
| 3 May 2010    | Mr Matthew Spurr       | President               | Wagin Trotting Club   |
|               | Mr Kevin Spurr         | Vice President          | Wagin Trotting Club   |
|               | Mr Donald Davies       | Vice President          | Wagin Trotting Club   |
| 3 May 2010    | Mr Steven McGuire      | Tote Manager            | Kojonup Turf Club   |
|               | Mr Timothy Borgward    | President               | Pingrup Turf Club   |
|               | Mr Alan Lewis          | Secretary/Treasurer     | Pingrup Turf Club   |
| 3 May 2010    | Mr Nicholas Bosly-Pask | Acting Chair            | Narrogin Racing   |
|               | Mr Jonathan Menzel     | Manager                 | Narrogin Racing   |
| 3 May 2010    | Mr John Cowcher        | Committee Member        | Williams Harness Racing Club  |
|               | Mrs Helen Bunch        | Secretary/Treasurer     | Williams Harness Racing Club  |
|               | Mr Stephen Hyde        | Life Member             | Williams Harness Racing Club  |
| 7 May 2010    | Mr Kevin Jeavons       | President               | Harness Racing Owners Association of WA Inc                             |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date           | Name                     | Position                | Organisation  |
|----------------|--------------------------|-------------------------|---|
|                | Mr Kerry Clarke          | President               | Western Australian Standardbred Breeders Association Inc        |
|                | Mr Robert Tomlinson      | President               | Breeders Owners Trainers and Reinspersons Association of WA Inc |
| 7 May 2010     | Mr Maxwell (Dixie) Solly | President               | Country Racing Association                                      |
| 7 May 2010     | Mr Craig Chadwick        | Chairman                | Bunbury Turf Club   |
|                | Mr Paul Rossiter         | Manager                 | Bunbury Turf Club   |
| 16 May 2010    | Mr Geoffrey Fahl         | Chairman/Treasurer      | Carnarvon Race Club   |
|                | Mr Laurie Simmons        | Committee Member        | Carnarvon Race Club   |
| 16 May 2010    | Mr Victor Barrett        | President               | Junction Race Club  |
|                | Mr Brett Smith           | Committee Member        | Junction Race Club  |
| 4 June 2010    | Mr Ross Bowe             | Chairman                | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                           |
|                | Mr James Freemantle      | Deputy Chairman         | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                           |
|                | Mr Robert Pearson        | Director                | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                           |
|                | Mr Richard Burt          | Chief Executive Officer | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                           |
| 4 June 2010    | Mr Gino Monaco           | President               | Fremantle Harness Racing Club                                   |
|                | Mr Geoffrey Warwick      | Vice President          | Fremantle Harness Racing Club                                   |
|                | Mr Ross Pyke             | Secretary/Manager       | Fremantle Harness Racing Club                                   |
| 13 August 2010 | Mr Barry Sargeant        | Director General        | Department of Racing, Gaming and Liquor                         |
| 13 August 2010 | Hon Tom McNeil           | Past Chairman           | Racecourse Development Trust                                    |
| 20 August 2010 | Mr Ross Bowe             | Chairman                | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                           |
|                | Mr James Freemantle      | Deputy Chairman         | Racing and Wagering Western Australia                           |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date | Name              | Position                | Organisation                          |
|------|-------------------|-------------------------|---------------------------------------|
|      | Mr Robert Pearson | Director                | Racing and Wagering Western Australia |
|      | Mr Richard Burt   | Chief Executive Officer | Racing and Wagering Western Australia |

APPENDIX THREE

BRIEFINGS HELD

The following briefings assisted the Committee with its Inquiry:

| Date   | Name        | Position               | Organisation   |
|---------------|--------------------|-------------------------------|---|
| 12 April 2010 | Mr Ian Fletcher    | Director General              | Department of Employment, Economic Development and Innovation (DEEDI) |
|               | Mr David Ford      | Deputy Director General       | Liquor, Gaming, Racing and Fair Trading (DEEDI)                       |
|               | Mr John Paterson   |                               | Office of Racing (DEEDI)  |
| 13 April 2010 | Mr Bob Lette       | Chairman                      | Harness Racing Queensland   |
|               | Mr Mike Godber     | Chief Executive               | Harness Racing Queensland   |
| 13 April 2010 | Mr Darren Beavis   | General Manager               | Greyhounds Queensland Limited   |
| 14 April 2010 | Mr Roger Joseph    | Manager Racing Administration | Australian Trainers Association (Victoria)                            |
| 14 April 2010 | Mr John Anderson   | Chief Executive Officer       | Harness Racing Victoria   |
| 14 April 2010 | Mr John Stephens   | Chief Executive Officer       | Greyhound Racing Victoria   |
| 15 April 2010 | Mr Andre Agterhuis | Chairman                      | Ballarat Turf Club  |
|               | Mr Shane Brennan   | Chief Executive               | Ballarat Turf Club  |
|               | Mr Ian Ford        | Treasurer                     | Ballarat Turf Club  |
| 15 April 2010 | Mr Paul James      | President                     | Ballarat and District Trotting Club Inc                               |
|               | Mr Paul Rowse      | Chief Executive               | Ballarat and District Trotting Club Inc                               |
|               | Ms Tamara Lane     | Racing Manager                | Ballarat and District Trotting Club Inc                               |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Date   | Name         | Position                       | Organisation   |
|---------------|---------------------|---------------------------------------|---|
| 15 April 2010 | Mr Joe Ivisic       | General Manager                       | Harness Racing Victoria Tabcorp Park  |
| 16 April 2010 | Ms Kerri Hereward   | Principal Policy Officer              | Department of Justice Office of Gaming and Racing   |
|               | Mr Anthony Ilot     | Policy Advisor                        | Department of Justice Gambling Licenses Review  |
|               | Mr David Ware       | Director                              | Department of Justice Wagering Licence Allocation and Gambling Licences Transition and Review |
| 16 April 2010 | Mr Michael Caveny   | Chairman                              | Country Racing Victoria Limited   |
|               | Mr Scott Whiteman   | Chief Executive Officer               | Country Racing Victoria Limited   |
|               | Mr Jamie McGuinness | Strategy and Business Manager         | Country Racing Victoria Limited   |
| 16 April 2010 | Mr Rob Hines        | Chief Executive Officer               | Racing Victoria Limited (RVL)   |
|               | Mr Mark Close       | Government Relations Manager          | Racing Victoria Limited (RVL)   |
| 16 April 2010 | Mr Greg Nichols     | Managing Director of Sporting Affairs | Betfair   |
| 21 June 2010  | Mr Bob Bentley      | Chairman                              | Queensland Racing Limited   |
|               | Mr Malcolm Tuttle   | Chief Operations Manager              | Queensland Racing Limited   |

APPENDIX FOUR

LEGISLATION

The following legislation was used in the Inquiry:

| Legislation  | State (or Country) |
|---|---------------------------|
| Acts Amendment (Fixed Odds Betting) Act 1999           | Western Australia         |
| Animal Welfare Act 2002                                | Western Australia         |
| Auditor General Act 2006                               | Western Australia         |
| Betting Control Act 1954                               | Western Australia         |
| Betting Control Regulations 1978                       | Western Australia         |
| Bookmakers Betting Levy Act 1954                       | Western Australia         |
| Casino (Burswood Island) Agreement Act 1985            | Western Australia         |
| Corporations Act 2001                                  | Commonwealth              |
| Financial Management Act 2006                          | Western Australia         |
| Freedom of Information Act 1992                        | Western Australia         |
| Gaming and Wagering Commission Act 1987                | Western Australia         |
| Liquor Control Act 1988                                | Western Australia         |
| Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1971                    | Western Australia         |
| Racing (Proprietary Business Licensing) Act 2000       | South Australia           |
| Racing Act 2002  | Queensland                |
| Racing and Wagering Western Australia Act 2003         | Western Australia         |
| Racing and Wagering Western Australia Regulations 2003 | Western Australia         |
| Racing and Wagering Western Australia Tax Act 2003     | Western Australia         |
| Racing Penalties (Appeals) Act 1990                    | Western Australia         |
| Racing Restriction Act 2003                            | Western Australia         |

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

| Legislation  | State (or Country) |
|---|---------------------------|
| State Records Act 2000                                     | Western Australia         |
| Statutory Corporations (Liabilities of Directors) Act 1996 | Western Australia         |
| Thoroughbred Racing Act 1996                               | New South Wales           |
| Totalisator Agency Board Betting Tax Amendment Act 1999    | Western Australia         |

APPENDIX FIVE

INTEGRITY ASSURANCE FRAMEWORK FOR RACING AND WAGERING IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA<sup>1008</sup>

<sup>1008</sup> Judge G.D. Lewis AM, A Report on Integrity Assurance in the Victorian Racing Industry, 1 August 2008, p94. Available at: www.justice.vic.gov.au/wps/wcm/connect/e2d0aa80404a6ff3a2befbf5f2791d4a/Lewis+Report+Integrity+Assurance++Vic+Racing+Industry+Aug+08.pdf?MOD=AJPERES Accessed on 12 October 2010.

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

APPENDIX SIX

COMPARISON OF WAGERING TAXATION RATES BY JURISDICTION<sup>1009</sup>

| TAB Tax Rate Comparison Table - Estimates   | Rate includes GST at 9.09% or 1/11th of Gross Revenue or Margin |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|---|---|--------|----------|-----------|--------|----------|-----------|-------|---------|--------|-------|
|   | Rate of Turnover / Gross Revenue                                |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   | WA  | NSW    | VIC      |           | QLD    | SA       |           | TAS   | Betfair | NT     | ACT   |
|   |   |        | Pre 2012 | Post 2012 |        | Pre 2012 | Post 2012 |       |         |        |       |
| Pari Racing Gross Wagering Tax   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| % of Gross Revenue  | 21.00%  | 28.20% | 28.20%   | 16.69%    | 20.00% | 11.19%   | 9.09%     | 9.09% |         | 40.00% | 9.09% |
| % of Turnover   | 3.57%   | 4.79%  | 4.79%    | 2.84%     | 3.40%  | 1.90%    | 1.55%     | 1.55% |         | 2.45%  | 1.55% |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Fixed Odds Betting Racing Gross Wagering Tax   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| % of Gross Revenue  | 18.18%  | 20.00% | 20.00%   | 13.47%    | 20.00% | 9.09%    | 9.09%     | 9.09% | 24.09%  | 19.09% | 9.09% |
| % of Turnover   | 2.00%   | 2.20%  | 2.20%    | 1.48%     | 2.10%  | 1.00%    | 1.00%     | 1.00% | 1.20%   | 1.24%  | 1.00% |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Pari Sports Gross Wagering Tax   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| % of Gross Revenue  | 20.00%  | 28.20% | 28.20%   | 16.69%    | 20.00% | 11.19%   | 9.09%     | 9.09% |         | 40.00% | 9.09% |
| % of Turnover   | 5.00%   | 4.79%  | 4.79%    | 2.84%     | 3.40%  | 1.90%    | 1.55%     | 1.55% |         | 2.45%  | 1.55% |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Fixed Odds Betting Sports Gross Wagering Tax   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| % of Gross Revenue  | 5.00%   | 20.00% | 20.00%   | 13.47%    | 20.00% | 9.09%    | 9.09%     | 9.09% | 24.09%  | 9.09%  | 9.09% |
| % of Turnover   | 0.50%   | 2.00%  | 2.00%    | 1.35%     | 2.00%  | 0.91%    | 0.91%     | 0.91% | 1.20%   | 0.91%  | 0.91% |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Notes:   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Pari Racing tax rates as a % of Turnover are based on a Retail take out rate of 17% for all TAB's (Equivalent to Gross Revenue)  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| FOB Racing tax rates as a % of Turnover are based on a Retail FOB book margin of 11% for all TAB's FOB books except in NT corporate setting where 6.5% has been used and 5% for Betfair (= Gross Revenue)  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Victorian estimates assume that the benefit of Gaming machine revenues already result in an offset tax (i.e. on the current tax or Economic rent paid)   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| GST in all circumstances is one eleventh of the Gross Revenue (where Gross Revenue = turnover less dividends paid to the customer)   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| NT Bookmakers' taxes are capped at 250K per annum - Individual enterprise and total rate of tax on bookmakers turnover unknown as volume and margin rates vary   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Betfair also pays sponsorship to Race Clubs directly   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| ToteTAS pays and annual wagering licence fee of approximately 6m per annum indexed, ACTTAB pays a annual fee of Licence fee monthly of 10% of capital In addition clubs receive 4% and RDF 0.5%.  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| In cases of GST Reimbursement , the GST is paid directly to the ATO and rebated back via WA Treasury and RGL   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| VIP tax rate for (contracted professional electronic customers) who receive a commission/rebate, i.e. we will receive a tax concession on pari margin Tax of 10% of gross Revenue )  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| ACT License Fee:   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| Pursuant to a deed of agreement with the ACT Government, ACTTAB has been granted a 20-year exclusive license to provide totalisator betting services to the public, commencing from 1 Jul 1996. An annual license fee is payable (in monthly instalments) to the ACT government, equal to 10% of the present value of the estimated profit after income tax equivalents expense of ACTAB for the 20-year period. ACT Treasury has advised that the value of the license was $35,661,434 as at 1 July 2002. |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| ACTTAB 2008-2009 Annual Report, pp.18-19  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
|   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| TAS Annual Wagering Levy   |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| The Totalizator Wagering Levy will commence in 2009-10 and is indexed in line with the Consumer Price Index.  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| The Levy will be paid by the holder of the Tasmanian Gaming Licence with a totalizator (parimutuel) endorsement.  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |
| During 2009-10, the regulation of TOTE Tasmania, and any subsequent holder of a Tasmanian Gaming Licence with a totalizator endorsement, will come under the jurisdiction of the Gaming Control Act 1993. A fixed annual totalizator wagering levy of $6.0 million (indexed) will apply in 2009-10 to the holder of such a licence.  |   |        |          |           |        |          |           |       |         |        |       |

<sup>1009</sup> Reproduced with the permission of Racing and Wagering Western Australia (Mr Evan Nunn, Manager Corporate Strategy, Racing and Wagering Western Australia, email, 28 September 2010).

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE ON THE REVIEW OF THE RACING AND WAGERING WESTERN AUSTRALIA ACTS

The West Australian SPORT

- Home Video Business Sport Lifestyle Entertainment Travel Regional Announcements More AFL WAFL Union League Cricket Soccer Basketball Tennis Golf Motorsport Racing More Sport TABform The Game

Racing chiefs oppose TAB sale

Steve Butler and Gareth Parker - The West Australian on May 21, 2014, 2:40 am

Worried: WA Racehorse Trainers Association president Michael Grant and trainer Fred Kersley at Belmont. Picture: Mogens Johansen/The West Australian

- SHARE TWEET WHATSAPP EMAIL

WA racing leaders have predicted a "scary" future for their industry over the potential sale of the TAB by the State Government.

As the industry prepares to hold an emergency meeting over the issue at Belmont Park today, legendary WA horseman Fred Kersley reflected the growing mood of his racing peers by expressing concern for a move they fear will run their financial lifeblood dry.

OUR PICKS

Geraldton mum fights for life after horrific stabbing attack

Top cop tells jail bosses: stop riots

How Much Do Dental Implants Cost?

Monstercrawler Sponsored

Sex isn't like it used to be

South Perth's 34-storey high rise tower to go ahead

12/2/2016

Racing chiefs oppose TAB sale - The West Australian

Kersley, who ignited the State's racing industry in the early 2000s with his turf superstar Northerly, said the disastrous results of TAB privatisation in South Australia, Tasmania and Queensland were worrying.

"I have fears for the future of racing if that happens," he said.

"It takes the control away from racing and you'll be just waiting on handouts from the private company. It's a scary thing being talked about and it's a huge worry for the industry."

Racing and Wagering WA yesterday confirmed revenue growth of 6.8 per cent for the past nine months and a profit boost of nearly 6 per cent. Since RWWA's inception in 2003, its annual distribution to the industry has more than doubled to a record $126.1 million this year, with a further $4 million to go to the Department of Sport and Recreation and $14 million in grants committed for infrastructure projects.

The State Government will get $43 million in tax from a betting turnover of $2.15 billion and the Federal Government will get $28 million in GST revenue.

WA's three racing codes - thoroughbred, harness and greyhounds - will this year get an extra $6.5 million.

WA Racing Trainers Association president Michael Grant said the increased distribution and turnover was proof the current model under RWWA was working for an industry that directly employed nearly 34,000 people. "In anyone's language, it's a good business and it's guaranteed," Mr Grant said.

Credit Cards Are Now Offering 0% p.a. Until 2018

finder.com.au Sponsored

"If the Government is going to look at selling the TAB, we need to be a part of the process and get assurances that the level of distribution would be guaranteed.

"Unless they can guarantee it, all they are doing, based on previous sales in other States, is guaranteeing the demise of the WA racing industry."

Leading WA racehorse owner Bob Peters said he wanted more information, but had initial concerns. "My thoughts are that is not a good idea, that we're running quite well as we are and we should stay as we are," he said.

Though Premier Colin Barnett and Treasurer Mike Nahan have indicated a level of willingness to sell by placing the TAB on their list of assets to be further investigated, opinion is divided in Cabinet. During a parliamentary Budget estimates hearing yesterday, Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron said that while no decision had

Drivers on notice after reveller caught five times the limit

TAFE fee rise reduced to spur training

Death knell for Bell tolled in February

Wicked wi-fi! Easy tips to improve your wi-fi

National Broa... Sponsored

Unions boss denies Western Power super fund conflict

FOLLOW US

MORE FROM THE WEST

The Game

Airline Ratr

RARE HISTORICAL PHOTOS FROM THE PAST THAT WILL LEAVE YOU SPEECHLESS!

Read More

- Advertising
- Corporate
- Subscribe Now
- The Game
- Contact
- FAQs
- Editorial Policy
- Complaints
- Digital Edition
- Syndication
- Work For Us
- Newsletters

BACK TO TOP

been made, he did not believe the sale would be in the best interests of the WA racing industry.

Dr Nahan has acknowledged that finding a sustainable funding solution for the industry was a necessary condition of any sale, but he and Mr Barnett have both made noises about whether it was "appropriate" for the Government to continue to own a betting business.

Mr Barnett said last night that the Government recognised the economic benefits of the TAB and its important relationship with the local racing industry. "We will be very mindful of these considerations when reviewing the available options," he said.

The West Australian

f SHARE    t TWEET    w WHATSAPP    e EMAIL    ...

RECOMMENDED

|   |  |   |  |
|---|--|---|--|
|   | China's first astronaut tells of mysterious...             |   | Cruise control in Singapore<small>SPONSORED</small>                      |
|  | Grinning thief steals bucket of gold worth $2.1m from...  |  | End of Life Insurance in Australia<small>SPONSORED</small>               |
|  | Home loans have never been this easy.<small>AD</small> |  | Do you have solar panels? Big bill shock 31 Dec<small>AD</small>         |
|  | Teen is selling virginity for $1.5m                       |  | Must Do Activities On The NSW North Coast.<small>SPONSORED</small>       |
|  | GoFundMe page started for woman after husband gives...     |  | Brilliant new health insurance site sweeping Aus<small>SPONSORED</small> |

powered by plista

LATEST NEWS FROM THE WEST

Steps to a new life

Kobi survived crash that killed his mum, now a community is fulfilling Chloe Rumble's dream for her son.

Born Between 1941 and 1981? Paid Surveys For You!

Those Born Between 1941 and 1981 Are Eligible for High Paid Surveys. This incredible deal won't last long because spots are limited.

Survey Compare Sponsored

12/2/2016

Racing chiefs oppose TAB sale - The West Australian

Geraldton mum fights for life after horrific stabbing attack

A young mother of three was last night fighting for life in hospital after her jugular vein was severed in what police are treating as an horrific case of domestic violence.

South Perth's 34-storey high rise tower to go ahead

Developer Edge Visionary Living says it is going ahead with its 34-storey South Perth Lumiere apartment development after losing a Supreme Court appeal to reinstate its 29-storey version.

Wildcats turmoil: Another loss and star player injured

The Perth Wildcats season is in danger of falling apart after they lost their second successive home game tonight and star Matt Knight suffered another serious injury.

Mum starved unwanted baby to death, court told

A Geraldton mother has been accused of starving her three-month-old daughter to death before wrapping her in cloth, putting her in a cooler bag and leaving her in her back shed.

How to avoid bank fees on your home loan

Are you paying for unnecessary bank fees? Save your money with UBank and discover the right home loan that you can actually afford!

UBank Sponsored

Top cop tells jail bosses: stop riots

WA's top cop has told prison bosses to "get their act together" and fix problems at the troubled Banksia Hill juvenile detention centre, claiming police wasted hundreds of hours each year ...

SHOW ME MORE

POPULAR VIDEOS

A Hobart school places an immediate ban on candy canes

Southbound lanes of the Sydney harbour tunnel blocked by over-height truck

Martin Shkreli responds to Sydney students cheaply replicating HIV drug

□

WA's racing chief says he can't comment on the potential privatisation of the TAB until the Barnett Government reaches its decision. Picture: File image

WA News

Racing and Wagering WA CEO Richard Burt quiet on TAB privatisation after ACT sell-off

PETER LAW, PerthNow

July 31, 2014 2:45pm

WA'S racing chief says he can't comment on the potential privatisation of the TAB until the Barnett Government reaches its decision.

WA this week became the last remaining government which still owns a gambling agency after the ACT Government sold its TAB for $105 million to Tabcorp.

WA's TAB is one of a number publicly-owned assets the Barnett Government is considering selling to the private sectors to help cut public sector debt.

12/1/2016

Racing and Wagering WA CEO Richard Burt quiet on TAB privatisation after ACT sell-off | Perth Now

Ports, wastewater facilities, the Market Authority and ex-hospital sites have also been identified as assets which could be sold off.

Racing and Wagering Western Australia CEO Richard Burt today said he had been given no indication as to when the Government would come to a decision on the future of the TAB.

Mr Burt said the Government was still considering its options and he had “no information to the contrary”.

“I really don’t want to talk about privatisation until the Government makes a decision. It’s all speculation at this stage, so let’s wait for the Government to make a decision,” he said.

“It’s speculative to be talking about what would happen or what the alternatives are.

“I’d be more inclined to get confirmation of views from the industry, but from RWWA’s point of view — which is a Government organisation — we can’t talk about something that we don’t know about.”

Concerns have previously been expressed about the impact of privatisation on the racing industry, which receives $126 million from the TAB each year.

The TAB was announced as being potentially up for sale at May’s State Budget, just months after Premier Colin Barnett ruled-out such a move.

At the time, Treasurer Mike Nahan said the TAB was an “easy saleable asset” and that he, as well as some Cabinet colleagues “find it uncomfortable for the state owning gambling outlets”.

The West Australian REGIONAL

- Home Video Business Sport Lifestyle Entertainment Travel Regional Announcements More

- South West Great Southern Mid West North West Goldfields Galleries Classifieds Contact Us

TAB sale could handicap Lark Hill training facility

Hayley Goddard - Sound Telegraph on August 13, 2014, 10:16 am

Warnbro MLA Paul Papalia and experienced racing horse trainers Grant Williams, David Harrison and Vernon Brockman are concerned the privatisation of TAB.

- SHARE TWEET WHATSAPP EMAIL

Lark Hill horse trainers fear the potential sale of the State-owned TAB could lead to the demise of the Government-funded training facility.

WA's three racing codes - thoroughbred, harness and greyhounds - have raised concerns about the future of their industry after the State Government placed the TAB

OUR PICKS

Horrific stabbing attack on mum

Top cop tells jail bosses: stop riots

Aussies Born in 1941-1981 Eligible for Paid Survey

Survey Compare Sponsored

Sex isn't like it used to be

Higher tower to go ahead

12/2/2016

TAB sale could handicap Lark Hill training facility - The West Australian on its list of assets that could be sold to cut WA's debt.

WA Racing and Training Association president Michael Grant said he did not oppose privatisation but feared it could handicap an industry which directly employed more than 33,000 people.

He said the State Government made $70 million in taxes a year from the industry and TAB profits enabled Racing and Wagering WA to distribute $126 million to facilities around WA, including more than $800,000 for the upkeep of Lark Hill.

Having seen the detrimental impact of TAB privatisation in Queensland, South Australia and Tasmania, Mr Grant formed a WA racing representative group with industry chiefs from racing, harness and dog racing.

"Hundreds of horses rely on Lark Hill for training - it is a vital link in the thoroughbred training schedule," Mr Grant said.

"Some trainers use it every day in preparation for meets at the weekend."

The group is hoping the Government will hold off any decisions until a review of the industry is undertaken by Ray Gunston, the Essendon Bombers' interim CEO who guided the club through the supplements scandal, is finalised in October.

Drivers on notice after reveller caught five times the limit

TAFE fee rise reduced to spur training

Death knell for Bell tolled in February

Tiny device turns old computer into new fast PC

XtraPC Sponsored

Unions boss denies Western Power super fund conflict

FOLLOW US

MORE FROM THE WEST

The Game

Airline Rati

Lark Hill trainer Vernon Brockman said he was an avid Liberal supporter but would vote elsewhere if the sale of the TAB went through.

Fellow trainer David Harrison said it would be disappointing to see the amount of money he and others had put into the industry fall by the wayside.

Warnbro MLA Paul Papalia said the proposed sale of the TAB was a betrayal of the WA community, not just racing.

"If the TAB is sold, I can't see how Lark Hill will stay open," he said.

Premier Colin Barnett said the sale of TAB was "unlikely to be looked at in the short-term because of the complexities surrounding it".

- Advertising
- Corporate
- Subscribe Now
- The Game
- Contact
- FAQs
- Editorial Policy
- Complaints
- Digital Edition
- Syndication
- Work For Us
- Newsletters

LATEST NEWS FROM THE WEST

Mum starved unwanted baby to death, court told

A Geraldton mother has been accused of starving her three-month-old daughter to death before wrapping her in cloth, putting her in a cooler bag and leaving her in her back shed.

70% Of Aussies Considering Dropping Health Cover

A staggering 70% of Aussies have considered ditching or downgrading their health insurance in the last year due to affordability concerns. Learn more.

iSelect Sponsored

Wildcats turmoil: Another loss and star player injured

The Perth Wildcats season is in danger of falling apart after they lost their second successive home game tonight and star Matt Knight suffered another serious injury.

Driver crashes 4WD after being stung in eye by bee

A bee has caused an unlikely incident after it stung a male driver in the eye and inadvertently caused a car crash.

Seaman died after desperate pleas for doctor ignored

An engineer on an iron ore carrier operating between WA and China repeatedly pleaded for a doctor before he was found unconscious in his cabin, an inquest has been told.

Buzz Aldrin rescued from South Pole

The National Science Foundation has agreed to provide medical evacuation from the South Pole for 86-year-old Buzz Aldrin, a former astronaut who in 1969 became one of the first people to walk on the ...

Fastest Methods to Top-Up Your Qantas Points

By taking up bonus point schemes, which have little or no cost, have proven to be one of the most economical ways to top-up your account balance.

finder.com.au Sponsored

Lead still in water at new Perth hospital

Lead levels in tap water at the $1.2 billion Perth Children's Hospital remain above Australian standards and the source is yet to be found.

SHOW ME MORE

WE RECOMMEND

Weed survey guides crop sprays
NEWS

Air worse than Beijing
REGIONAL

Christmas Festivities begin in the Ferguson
REGIONAL

Huge cruise ship heading to Fremantle
TRAVEL

Ursula Frayne Catholic College Ball
NEWS

AROUND THE WEB Recommended by

From Mode to Luxe: Christmas decorating for all THE MYER BLOG

Cycling fans won't want to miss the Santos Festival of Santos Tour Down

Novelty Kris Kringle gifts!
KMART

Your guide to a rich life from 50 to 100
PERPETUAL

In Melbourne, Santa's Magical Kingdom Offers
SANTAS MAGICAL

POPULAR VIDEOS

Three people taken into custody after attack on security guard

Motorcyclist suffers serious injuries after crashing into car in Adelaide

Mother fights for life after stabbing attack in Perth

COMPARE & SAVE

> Home Loans

|  |   |  |   |
|--|---|--|---|
| Basic Home Loancomp. rate p.a. 3.60% | Discount Variable Homecomp. rate p.a. 3.84% | Essential Home Loancomp. rate p.a. 4.00% | Great Rate Variable Homecomp. rate p.a. 4.09%                            |
|   |    |   |  |

Important Disclosures

Compare more >

12/2/2016

TAB sale could handicap Lark Hill training facility - The West Australian

---

> New Smartphone Deals

---

> Personal Loans

---

> Car Loans

---

> Credit Cards

---

> Savings Accounts

0

The West Australian SPORT

- Home Video Business Sport Lifestyle Entertainment Travel Regional Announcements More AFL WAFL Union League Cricket Soccer Basketball Tennis Golf Motorsport Racing More Sport TABform The Game

Close X

TAB sale 'threatens community sport'

Exclusive Phoebe Wearne - The West Australian on September 13, 2014, 2:40 am

At risk: Community sporting events. Picture: Mary Mills/The Kalgoorlie Miner

- SHARE TWEET WHATSAPP EMAIL

WA's peak independent sports body says selling off the TAB would rip the heart out of community sport and recreation by robbing it of about a third of its State funding.

The State Government has flagged a possible sale of the State-owned betting agency as part of its $6 billion asset sale considerations.

OUR PICKS

Horrific stabbing attack on mum

Top cop tells jail bosses: stop riots

How to avoid bank fees on your home loan

UBank Sponsored

Sex isn't like it used to be

Higher tower to go ahead

12/2/2016

TAB sale threatens community sport - The West Australian

WA Sports Federation chief executive Rob Thompson said funding made available through the sports wagering account, which is topped up using TAB profits, made up 32 per cent of the $14.3 million allocated to community sport and recreation organisations.

Mr Thompson said the account, which received $4.5 million in sports betting income and unclaimed money in 2013-14, had grown almost 15 per cent each year, helping to bolster WA's sport and recreation industry.

He said a privatisation of the TAB would almost certainly mean the sports wagering account would cease to exist - a "devastating" blow for junior and senior sport.

He was concerned that the significant threat to the sport and recreation industry was being left out of the debate.

"It could potentially have quite a devastating impact in that services and direct grants to sports could dry up," he said.

"It could take away things like the support for training of coaches, administrators and officials and certainly there are some support agencies for community-based sport that rely on this funding as well.

Drivers on notice after reveller caught five times the limit

TAFE fee rise reduced to spur training

Death knell for Bell tolled in February

Aussies Born in 1941-1981 Eligible for Paid Survey

Survey Compare Sponsored

Unions boss denies Western Power super fund conflict

FOLLOW US

MORE FROM THE WEST

The Game

Airline Rati

"At the moment the focus has been on the racing industry . . . we are concerned that going into the future people, if the sale goes ahead, won't even consider what aspects of sport are going to be impacted."

Parks and Leisure Australia WA president Mark Casserly said losing the sports wagering account could set recreation in WA back 10 years and decimate participation in physical activity.

Mr Casserly said he hoped the Government would find money from elsewhere to continue funding community sport and recreation should the sale go ahead.

Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron said he acknowledged Mr Thompson's concerns and that the sports wagering account provided substantial money for grassroots sport and recreation organisations.

Mr Waldron said a decision on whether the TAB would be sold was yet to be made.

Shadow racing and gaming minister Mick Murray said the Government needed to meet the racing industry and community groups that would be affected as soon as possible.

- Advertising
- Corporate
- Subscribe Now
- The Game
- Contact
- FAQs
- Editorial Policy
- Complaints
- Digital Edition
- Syndication
- Work For Us
- Newsletters

↑
BACK TO TOP

The West Australian

- SHARE
- TWEET
- WHATSAPP
- EMAIL
- ...

RECOMMENDED

|  |  |  |  |
|--|--|--|--|
|   | Police 'blindsided' by husband's...                                    |   | Cruise control in Singapore<small>SPONSORED</small>              |
|   | 'Blood bubbling on floor': Man beat...                                 |   | Home loans have never been this easy.<small>AD</small>           |
|   | Aussies over 50 Overpaying for Electricity<small>SPONSORED</small> |   | Do you have solar panels? Big bill shock 31 Dec<small>AD</small> |
|   | Teen is selling virginity for $1.5m                                   |   | Rules for investing through your super<small>SPONSORED</small>   |
|  | Perth couple sees missing Staffordshire terrier...                     |  | Sick Of your Old Pool Cleaner Falling Apart?<small>AD</small>    |

powered by plista

LATEST NEWS FROM THE WEST

Mum starved unwanted baby to death, court told

A Geraldton mother has been accused of starving her three-month-old daughter to death before wrapping her in cloth, putting her in a cooler bag and leaving her in her back shed.

70% Of Aussies Considering Dropping Health Cover

A staggering 70% of Aussies have considered ditching or downgrading their health insurance in the last year due to affordability concerns. Learn more.

iSelect Sponsored

Wildcats turmoil: Another loss and star player injured

The Perth Wildcats season is in danger of falling apart after they lost their second successive home game tonight and star Matt Knight suffered another serious injury.

Driver crashes 4WD after being stung in eye by bee

A bee has caused an unlikely incident after it stung a male driver in the eye and inadvertently

12/2/2016

TAB sale threatens community sport - The West Australian caused a car crash.

Seaman died after desperate pleas for doctor ignored

An engineer on an iron ore carrier operating between WA and China repeatedly pleaded for a doctor before he was found unconscious in his cabin, an inquest has been told.

Buzz Aldrin rescued from South Pole

The National Science Foundation has agreed to provide medical evacuation from the South Pole for 86-year-old Buzz Aldrin, a former astronaut who in 1969 became one of the first people to walk on the ...

Fastest Methods to Top-Up Your Qantas Points

By taking up bonus point schemes, which have little or no cost, have proven to be one of the most economical ways to top-up your account balance.

finder.com.au Sponsored

Lead still in water at new Perth hospital

Lead levels in tap water at the $1.2 billion Perth Children's Hospital remain above Australian standards and the source is yet to be found.

SHOW ME MORE

POPULAR VIDEOS

Motorcyclist suffers serious injuries after crashing into car in Adelaide

Mother fights for life after stabbing attack in Perth

Woman suffers critical burns after setting herself on fire

One-third of WA community sport funding threatened by TAB privatisation

GRAND SLAM

September 18, 2014

Grand Slam Sports Equipment » Grand Slam Sports Information Hub » Community Sports News » One-third of WA community sport funding threatened by TAB privatisation

Quick summary:

The WA government's plans to privatise the TAB would threaten valuable community sport funding, according to the WA Sports Federation. Approximately 32% of current community sports funding is provided through TAB profits, funds that could be wiped-out if the state Government goes through with their planned sale of the betting agency.

12/1/2016

One-third of WA community sport funding threatened by TAB privatisation | Grand Slam Sports Equipment

Although a final decision has yet to be made, community and other affected groups have been voicing their disapproval, including Parks and Leisure Australia WA president Mark Casserly, who stated that privatising TAB 'could set recreation in WA back 10 years and decimate participation in physical activity'.

Article extract:

The State Government has flagged a possible sale of the State-owned betting agency as part of its $6 billion asset sale considerations.

WA Sports Federation chief executive Rob Thompson said funding made available through the sports wagering account, which is topped up using TAB profits, made up 32 per cent of the $14.3 million allocated to community sport and recreation organisations.

Read More:

<https://au.news.yahoo.com/thewest/sport/a/24983035/tab-sale-threatens-community-sport/>

Little Athletics...Mary Mills
Photos... Boys high jump...
Jacob Donaldson.
081012kalathsmm10

Community Sports News, Sports News &

Home

About Us

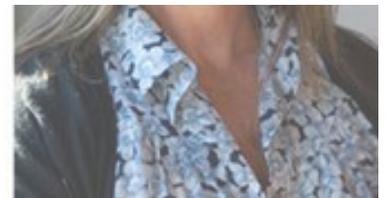

Sports

Equipment

Sports News & Resources

Specifiers

Contact Us

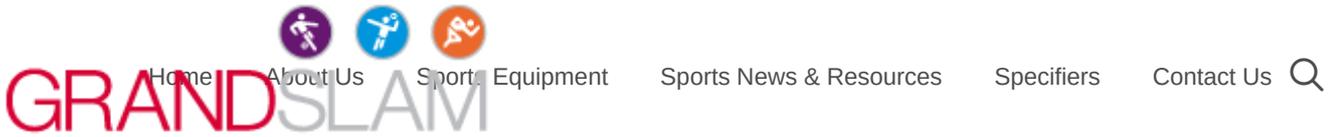

Author

Grand Slam

MORE POSTS BY GRAND SLAM

---

Leave a Reply

Email *

Website

SUBMIT COMMENT

BROWSE THE COMPLETE GRAND SLAM SPORTS EQUIPMENT CATALOGUE HERE

FEATURED PRODUCT

Portable Aluminium Soccer Goals

Light-weight, or durable steel goals for your school or club.

Home
About Us
Sports Equipment
Sports News & Resources
Specifiers
Contact Us

View our soccer goals

SPORTS NEWS & RESOURCES

Sports Construction Hub

For court builders & architects

Sports Education Hub

For PE teachers and coaches

Community Sports Hub

The West Australian

- Home
- Video
- Business
- Sport
- Lifestyle
- Entertainment
- Travel
- Regional
- Announcements
- More

- Latest
- WA
- National
- World
- Full Coverage
- Opinion
- The Digital Edition
- Health
- Festivals
- Place an Ad
- The Game

MP breaks ranks on TAB sale

Steve Butler - The West Australian on June 3, 2015, 12:36 am

- SHARE
- TWEET
- WHATSAPP
- EMAIL
- More

A Liberal backbencher has broken ranks to slam the potentially "devastating consequences" of the State Government's plan to sell the TAB, demanding an independent study of the economic impact of the decision.

Murray-Wellington MLA Murray Cowper claimed yesterday to have the backing of up to eight colleagues and said there was widespread state of confusion across the party because of the "shadow boxing" over issues such as the TAB's sale price and plans for the long-term funding of the industry.

He has called on Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt to commission the research because he believes the sale will have a huge negative impact, particularly in regional areas.

Belmont MLA Glenys Godfrey, whose electorate takes in Ascot racecourse and the surrounding area where many of the industry's leading city participants run their operations, has also been outspoken in her opposition to the sale of the TAB.

Mr Cowper said the full measure of damage had to be identified before the Government "sold the goose laying the golden eggs".

OUR PICKS

Fremantle to cancel Australia Day citizenship ceremony

Doctors angry at lack of beds

70% Of Aussies Considering Dropping Health Cover

iSelect Sponsored

Best home remedies for warts

Petrol set to soar over Christmas as Australian dollar weakens

Wheels fall off Perth's economic growth

City mulls tallest hotel

Sting snares bikie in meth deal

work at home and make 3235 USD now

trader Sponsored

A tale of two harvests for WA grain growers

12/6/2016

MP breaks ranks on TAB sale - The West Australian

He said the TAB had provided a "unique stability" to the industry since being introduced by the Brand government in 1961, replacing 206 licensed off-course bookmakers.

"We therefore need to know the real cost and likely disadvantages of disposing of a business that has successfully underwritten an entire industry for more than 50 years, as well as generating hundreds of millions of dollars for its owners - the taxpayers of WA," Mr Cowper said.

Nothing Beats A Summer Classic
Coca-Cola Sponsored

"The State Government must now determine if it is prepared to sacrifice TAB-funded standards that are the envy of other Australian States by bowing to a Federal directive to sell the TAB."

Mr Cowper accused Mr Holt and his Nationals WA colleagues of shifting stance to support the sale of the TAB, while also warning that his Liberal counterparts in South Australia had claimed that selling off that State's TAB had destroyed country racing and seriously eroded the breeding and training industries.

Racing and Wagering WA's new racing general manager John Yovich made a call at the weekend for the Government to consider the financial benefits of allowing the TAB to better compete with corporate bookmakers before progressing any sale.

RWWA last week announced a record distribution of $136 million to the industry from TAB profits, with a further $50 million going to the State Government in taxes.

Mr Holt would not be drawn on the review but said a thorough sale process would address Mr Cowper's concerns.

The West Australian

- SHARE TWEET WHATSAPP EMAIL

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN YOUR AREA

Best restaurant nearby?

Any JPs in the area?

Looking for a cleaner

Help! Furniture needed

Mechanic needed

Enter your suburb Find

powered by nabo

FOLLOW US

MORE FROM THE WEST

- Advertising Corporate Subscribe Now The Game Contact FAQs Editorial Policy Complaints Digital Edition Syndication Work For Us Newsletters

RECOMMENDED

Daniel Johns' fall from grace

Walk the talk! Unusual Singapore guided tours

SPONSORED

Woman's powerful response to 'pathetic'...

Aussies over 50: Save on your Electric Bills

SPONSORED

Home loans have never been this easy.

AD

End of Life Insurance in Australia

SPONSORED

Perth student sent home for having 'boy's haircut'

Ex-CSIRO Engineer Writes 'Solar 101' Guide

SPONSORED

Breakthrough in cold case mystery of little girl who...

A jam-packed trip to Canberra? Easy.

SPONSORED

powered by plista

LATEST NEWS FROM THE WEST

Massive cruise ship gets huge Fremantle Ovation

The arrival of the $1 billion Ovation of the Seas has drawn scores of spectators to Fremantle this morning.

Branson Speechless: Perth Man Gets Rich In 2 Weeks

Andrew Chambers knew nothing about stocks, but by using this simple idea, he's made over 20,000 AUD. Click to see how...

True Money Mastery Sponsored

Wheels fall off Perth's economic growth

The Perth economy has endured one of its toughest years on record, with only the health sector preventing the city from going backwards.

Fremantle to cancel Australia Day citizenship ceremony

The City of Fremantle is poised to abandon holding a citizenship ceremony as part of its alternative national celebrations on January 28 – but still refuses to hold it on the real Australia Day.

Sting snares bikie in meth deal

One of the most senior Rebels bikies in Perth is facing the prospect of prison for high-level drug dealing after being caught in a police sting similar to the one that captured Daniel Morcombe's ...

12/6/2016

MP breaks ranks on TAB sale - The West Australian

Watch police chase Hawthorn player's stolen Porsche

Brendan Whitecross' luxury car dumped at a Melbourne shopping centre

The best eye make-up for your eye colour

Discover the ultimate shades for blue, brown or green eyes.

Ivy College Sponsored

A tale of two harvests for WA grain growers

It was shaping as the harvest to smash all records.

SHOW ME MORE

POPULAR VIDEOS

Three arrested after police chase in AFL player's stolen car

Family escapes after lightning strike sparks house fire

Man dies after struck by lightning

Liberal backbencher Murray Cowper voices opposition to sale of WA TAB

Bob Maumill

2 comments

SHARE

TWEET

MORE

- Fremantle Port, TAB to be sold
- WA's \$5 billion fire sale

Liberal Party backbencher Murray Cowper is the latest government member to criticise the decision to sell the WA TAB.

There's huge interest in buying the country's last state-owned tote. Photo: Jenny Evans

Mr Cowper has issued a strongly worded press release emphasising the importance of the TAB to the Western Australian racing codes.

He has called on Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt to "commission an independent economic impact study to determine all of the consequences to the racing industry in WA if the TAB is sold".

Mr Cowper joins fellow backbencher Glenys Godfrey in criticising Barnett government plans to sell the home grown wagering operator.

In criticising the proposed sale, Mr Cowper predicts that if the TAB is sold there will be "devastating consequences for the racing, training,

MOST POPULAR

- 1 All trained up with nowhere to go: WA's hundreds of unemployed nurses
- 2 Butler dad brutally bashed metres from his home
- 3 Man, 36, charged over death of man whose body was found in Morley driveway
- 4 Forklift rampage on Thevanard Island - vehicles flipped, solar panels smashed
- 5 'Only in Australia': Kids' cricket match in Mandurah held up by dugite

12/12/2016

Liberal backbencher Murray Cowper voices opposition to sale of WA TAB and breeding industries in the state, particularly in country areas ".

"These sections of the industry have enjoyed a unique stability since the TAB was introduced by the Liberal government of Sir David Brand in 1961," he said

The WA TAB was originally created to arrest the flow of funds away from the racing codes and into the hands of the 206 privately operated betting agencies that were "bleeding racing dry".

In pushing for an independent commission to examine the impact of any sale on racing, Mr Cowper warned the government that "country race clubs, trainers, and breeders and owners share my concern".

His assertion of deep concerns within the thoroughbred and racing industries is supported by news that two petitions are circulating in thoroughbred and harness circles demanding the Barnett government backs away from a sale.

Mr Cowper believes the federal government is pushing strongly for the TAB to be sold.

"The state government must determine whether it is prepared to sacrifice TAB-funded standards that are the envy of other Australian states by bowing to a federal directive to sell the TAB," he said.

Before the TAB can be sold the Barnett government must gain the approval of State Parliament.

The Labor opposition has emphasised it will oppose a sale, believing selling the TAB would direct vital funds away from the racing industries and put thousands of jobs at risk.

"To get a sale through parliament Mr Barnett will need the support of the National Party," Mr Cowper said.

"Lots of country breeders, trainers, and owners share my concern that Minister Colin Holt and his National colleagues have shifted their stance on the issue from opposition to a sale to supporting the sale".

Mr. Cowper has been in close contact with a group of Liberal members of the South Australian parliament who he said had warned that "a South Australian decision to sell of the State's TAB had virtually destroyed country racing, and seriously eroded the breeding and training industries".

Some proponents of the sale believe now is the time to do it.

One backbencher told Fairfax Media: "Now is the time to sell. The TAB is doing well, now is the time to cash in".

But that suggestion was scoffed at by a number of owners and trainers.

Trainers Bob McPherson and Vern Brockman were among a group of owners and trainers who met with Glenys Godfrey to present their views and offer support in her opposition to the sale.

"I have voted Liberal all of my life," Mr McPherson said.

"But to suggest you sell something that has benefited the racing codes and generated millions of dollars for the broader community through taxes paid to the state government is just plain stupid. And

PROPERTY NEWS

Reservoir: has this up-and-coming ...

Melbourne property: what buyers can get ...

FOLLOW WA TODAY

NEWSLETTERS

12/12/2016

Liberal backbencher Murray Cowper voices opposition to sale of WA TAB

through taxes paid to the state government, is just plain stupid. And to say that one of the reasons to sell the business is because it is doing well is rubbish."

"What is the matter with these people? The TAB is doing the job it was created to do, that is, bring stability to the industry and protect the jobs of thousands of Western Australians.

"This is crazy politics, why on earth would Colin Barnett start this bunfight and cause all of this uncertainty? The TAB is a WA success story, Colin Barnett should leave it alone."

Maumill on Sunday runs on Radio 6PR from 9am to 12noon.

- Follow WAtoday on Twitter

EVERY JOB. EVERYWHERE. FOR YOU

VR GP's Needed In Perth
Perth, Perth Region

Locum GP/ED DMO - WA
Perth, Perth Region

Recommended

Google's new Trusted Contacts shares your location with loved ones...
TECHNOLOGY

Take the English History Quiz: Do You Know More than the Average...
HOWSTUFFWORKS

Australia-first deal brings nonstop flights from Perth to London
WA NEWS

Victoria's poor quality houses could become solar ovens 'cooking' people...
DOMAIN

How a 28-year-old investor used Uber to help him buy six properties
DOMAIN

This Hair Transformation will leave you in awe.
ORGANICHEALTHDAILY.COM

We're So Glad These Companies Decided To Change Their Names
THE HUFFINGTON POST

Don't Get Stuck With a Lemon: 15 Cars Not to Buy
FORBES » FORBES

The ultimate list of awesome Asian experiences
TRAVELLER

Built to keep the Americans out of Canada - bet they wish it still did...
INTERNATIONAL TRAVELLER

Recommended by

2 comments

LOG IN TO COMMENT    New User? Sign up

Sort comments by Oldest

Is it gone yet? Jun 3 2015 at 7:35pm

12/12/2016

Liberal backbencher Murray Cowper voices opposition to sale of WA TAB

The TAB should be sold for the benefit of punters as it is them, the customers who should come first.

The WA TAB is too small, inefficient, has no idea and has no future.

Those who oppose the sale are still think they are in the 90's... when the TAB was a viable business.

Under Tatts or Tabcorp they will be able to deliver the WA punters some meaningful products which can compete with the plethora of online bookies.

WA punters deserve better.

maltanh@bigpond.com.au Jun 5 2015 at 1:45am

Interesting first comment, obviously another stooge from Tatts or TABCORP trying to instil some form of credibility into a decision that quite obviously will have devastating effects on the sustainability of a huge industry in this state. I would suggest that the way of life of West Australians is being put at risk by the unbelievably inept management of this State by the Barnett Government. Their decision to threaten the entire long term future of an industry that provides so much to our community for the sole purpose of retiring some of the debt they created is a disgrace.

The conflict of interest between top end business and our politicians in this matter is of serious concern and further investigation in my opinion would be warranted.

COMPARE & SAVE

|  |  |   |   |
|--|--|---|---|
|  WIN $10,000* <small>See website for terms &amp; conditions.</small> Get a better home loan deal&amp; you could WIN $10,000 ENTER NOW |  Need a Credit Card? Access exclusive Credit Card offers COMPARE NOW |  Property Investment Join our property Investment hub today ACCESS NOW |  Calculate your borrowing power! Compare 25+ lenders &amp; find out how much you can afford to borrow GET STARTED |
|--|--|---|---|

MOST VIEWED TODAY

---

WA NEWS

All trained up with nowhere to go: WA's hundreds of unemployed...

Australia-first deal brings nonstop flights from Perth to London

Man missing after leap into Kimberley's Ord River

Forklift rampage on Thevanard Island - vehicles flipped, solar...

Police investigate after man dies following fight in Forrestfield

Daily Mail criticises Samantha Armytage ... for wearing...

Making a mint from sending products from the Big Apple

All trained up with nowhere to go: WA's hundreds of unemployed...

Australia-first deal brings nonstop flights from Perth to London

The $8000 battle over a surname

Making a mint from sending products from the Big Apple

'Scorcher' on the way and don't expect any seaside respite

How Samantha Armytage left the experts for dead

Almost 350k premises to be disconnected if they don't join...

Massive 3.2-metre great white snarled in new nets in Ballina

DREAM HOMES

Connolly

5 4 2

DREAM HOMES

Lane Cove, NSW

QUARTET LANE COVE

DREAM HOMES

Sippy Downs, Qld

5 3 2

PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

AM Edition
PM Edition
Good Food Guide
Newsletters

WA TODAY

Sitemap
About Us
Contact Us
Advertise With Us
Text Version
Site Accessibility Guide

CLASSIFIEDS

Classifieds & Notices
Cars
Dating
Jobs
Real Estate
Commercial Real Estate
Oneflare
Nabo

OUR SITES

SMH
The Age
AFR.com
Adzuna
Domain
Drive
RSVP
Essential Baby
Home Price Guide
Weatherzone

WEBSITE FEEDBACK

Home / News / WA News

JUNE 7 2015

SAVE PRINT LICENSE ARTICLE

WA TAB sale a dud bet for Colin Barnett

Bob Maumill

7 comments

COMMENT:

It is no secret that Colin Barnett now wants to sell the WA Tab.

Colin Barnett has caused dirt to fly over his plans to sell the WA TAB. Photo: Jenny Evans

Which is a contradiction of public statements he made back a year or so. Then, when asked on radio if he intended to sell the wagering fathom.

SHARETWEETMORELOGIN / SIGN-UP

For a start, why is the Premier talking down the performance of the TAB? If he is keen to sell it, why weaken its value by saying publicly "it is losing business", when in fact the TAB is performing strongly.

At the 2015 WA Racing Symposium at the Crown Convention Centre last week, figures produced by Racing and Wagering WA (RWWA) – the body that operates the TAB – clearly showed the betting agency was generating profits and funnelling millions of dollars to the WA Government and three racing codes.

And the business is growing, not contracting.

The Premier and others who support the sale of the WA TAB like to

MOST POPULAR

- 1 Perth mum forced to show 'barber's note' after son kicked out of school
- 2 Perth diver 'stares into the eyes' of great white shark near Esperance
- 3 Mystery video of man fighting kangaroo to save pet dog goes viral
- 4 Heartfelt story behind 'kangaroo punching' video revealed
- 5 Gas leak in Kwinana brought under control

12/6/2016

WA TAB sale a dud bet for Colin Barnett

The premier and others who support the sale of the WA TAB like to say it cannot compete with the big corporate wagering operators. That one was debunked when the RWWA produced figures showing the WA TAB is doing better than most corporate rivals.

So, if the TAB is a thriving business, why not sell it, and use the money to reduce state debt?

The problem is that, despite spokespersons from the Tatts organisation saying they are interested in buying, the Barnett government has not yet put an official FOR SALE sign on the business.

And there is the widespread grassroots opposition to the sale of the TAB... driven by the uncertainty of how their industries will be funded if the business is bought by a private operator.

Maurice Grubisa, a committee member of the WA Trotting Association, told Fairfax Media he was resolutely opposed to the TAB being sold.

"The three codes are the major beneficiaries of a profitable TAB," he said.

"The government gets its share and the codes get a guaranteed funding stream.

"There is no way a cash-strapped State Government or a privately-owned wagering corporation seeking profits for shareholders can match what we already have.

"Anyone who thinks otherwise is dreaming."

These issues have created a political problem for Mr Barnett.

It became clear at the Racing Symposium there is much opposition within the harness, greyhound and thoroughbred codes to a sale.

But a group of leading figures from the thoroughbred racing industry who were at the symposium opted for a wait-and-see policy, arguing any offer should be examined and discussed.

As the symposium progressed, a split emerged between the three codes, with those involved in harness and greyhound codes saying RWWA should handle any negotiations involving a sale of the TAB on

SHARE
TWEET
MORE
LOGIN / SIGN-UP

participants that a group representing the three codes, headed by thoroughbred trainer Michael Grant, had been formed to deal with government on issues associated with any firm offer for the wagering business.

Supporting Mr Sayers, Mr Grant said his group had commissioned and published an issues report and were waiting for the Barnett government to declare its intentions.

The final session became acrimonious when Perth Racing committee member Peter Gangemi accused RWWA CEO Richard Burt of organising dissent and fostering opposition to the sale of the TAB.

Mr Burt described the accusation as "offensive and wrong".

PROPERTY NEWS

Unliveable Box Hill house sells for ...

Mysterious houseboat washes up on Irish ...

FOLLOW WA TODAY

NEWSLETTERS

12/6/2016

WA TAB sale a dud bet for Colin Barnett

Meanwhile, in another room, Pinjarra Harness Racing president Barry Warwick was insisting the TAB should not be sold. He was supported by Golden Mile Trotting Club secretary/manager Esso Delaney, who said his club was "absolutely against selling."

Both said that "RWWA is the best organisation to deal with government if an offer comes for the TAB. RWWA represents all of our interests... they are doing a great job".

All of this creates a major political problem for Colin Barnett, a problem he has created by sending mixed signals.

Mr Grubisa said: "There are thousands of voters across the state who are involved in the three racing codes. Many resent the instability that talk of a sale has caused, and fear for the long-term funding of their industries if the TAB is sold."

Mr Barnett already has to deal with a group of his parliamentary colleagues opposed to the sale. Two of them, Murray Cowper and Glenys Godfrey, have publicly defied the Premier over the issue.

Which raises questions about Colin Barnett's political judgement.

Why pick a fight over this?

A sale will not raise a lot of money for his government, and will make no difference to the level of state debt.

But the issue will bring heat on those members of his team who hold seats in areas where racing clubs and communities rely on funding generated by the TAB.

It has created a split in the ranks of his parliamentary colleagues and has given the Labor opposition a chance to harvest votes in seats across the state that have large racing communities.

In opposing a sale of the TAB, Labor is presenting itself to the racing codes as the saviour and protector of the thousands of jobs the industries generate.

If the Barnett government decides to sell the TAB, it can expect to be involved in a bruising political bunfight.

- Follow WAtoday on Twitter

SHARE

TWEET

MORE

LOGIN / SIGN-UP

---

7 comments

Sort comments by Oldest

---

MOST VIEWED TODAY

---

WA NEWS

Perth mum forced to show
'barber's note' after son kicked o...

Mystery video of man fighting
kangaroo to save pet dog goes viral

Perth diver 'stares into the eyes' of great white shark near Esperance

Heartfelt story behind 'kangaroo
punching' video revealed

He was an 'awesome boy': Family of Tyreez Mundroina's...

Perth mum forced to show
'barber's note' after son kicked o...

Mystery video of man fighting
kangaroo to save pet dog goes viral

Perth diver 'stares into the eyes' of great white shark near Esperance

Heartfelt story behind 'kangaroo
punching' video revealed

Australia's top 50 highest paying
jobs

Australia's top 50 highest paying
jobs

Last Tango director admits butter rape scene was non-consensual

'A beep, then a crunching noise':
Cyclist recalls horror crash

New Zealand Prime Minister John
Key to resign

The $32,200 bonus for Sydneyiders

SHARE

TWEET

MORE

LOGIN / SIGN-UP

12/6/2016

WA TAB sale a dud bet for Colin Barnett

PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

AM Edition
PM Edition
Good Food Guide
Newsletters

WA TODAY

Sitemap
About Us
Contact Us
Advertise With Us
Text Version
Site Accessibility Guide

CLASSIFIEDS

Classifieds & Notices
Cars
Dating
Jobs
Real Estate
Commercial Real Estate
Oneflare
Nabo

OUR SITES

SMH
The Age
AFR.com
Adzuna
Domain
Drive
RSVP
Essential Baby
Home Price Guide
Weatherzone

WEBSITE FEEDBACK

Member Centre News Store Archive Fairfax Syndication Careers Events Press Council

Copyright © 2016

SHARE

TWEET

MORE

LOGIN / SIGN-UP

TAB sale could "cripple" country racing

Source: Bunbury Mail (Australia)
Publication Date: June 24, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

6/24/15 Bunbury Mail (Austl.) (Pg. Unavail. Online)

News

Copyright © 2015 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.
JUSTIN RAKE

THE future of the WA country racing industry hangs in the balance after the state government announced it is committed to the sale of the TAB.

The plan was confirmed in the May state budget with the government stating it would continue to search for a buyer while also trying to protect the racing industry.

A number of stakeholders in the racing industry expressed their opposition towards the sale at a forum held at the Bunbury Trotting Club last Friday.

Club general manager Julie Caldwell said the sale could easily force the closure of the facility along with a number of other regional racing venues.

???The money we receive from the TAB helps us to employ track staff and without it people would likely lose their jobs,??? she said.

???We run a tight ship and only turn a small profit as it is.???

Bunbury Turf Club committee member Louie Tuia said the government???'s plan to sell the TAB had left him ???utterly disappointed.???

"It makes no sense to sell it and put country racing clubs at risk,"-he said.-

Racing and gaming minister Colin Holt said the sale was simply a proposal and that he would consult the country racing industry throughout the process.

"The State Government???'s focus is ensuring an open and consultative due diligence process with the industry to make sure all the relevant information is understood," he said.

Mr Tuia said the sale could mirror South Australia where the local government offloaded the state???'s betting agency to a private buyer.

???In South Australia, around 30 race clubs have closed and their industry is a post-sale shambles,??? he said.

???An informal vote was held at last week???'s meeting that asked who would be open to the TAB being sold and not one person put their hand up ??? this could cripple our industry.???

Shadow racing and gaming minister Mick Murray labelled the plan ridiculous.-

???The TAB injects more than $126 million worth of funding, and a further $14 million in infrastructure grants, to WA racing each year,??? he said.

???There has been talk of selling the TAB for as little as $150 million, which is a ludicrously small one-off amount when you look at how much money the TAB makes.???

Mr Murray said the sale would diminish the morale of the Bunbury racing community.

???The value Bunbury???'s race clubs bring to the community cannot be measured only in dollars and cents,??? he said.

???Everyone who earns a living from racing would be impacted and that???'s why on Friday we saw people from throughout the industry unanimously let the minister know how dangerous this proposal is.???

Premier Colin Barnett has previously said if a deal cannot be reached soon, the sale of the TAB may become a 2017 election issue.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Economic Development (1EC65); Economic Policy & Policymakers (1EC69); Economics & Trade (1EC26); Government (1GO80); Local Government (1LO75); Privatization (1PR92); Public Finance (1PU60)

REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); South Australia (1SO82)

LANGUAGE: English

OTHER INDEXING: (Colin Barnett; Mick Murray; Julie Caldwell; Colin Holt; Louie Tuia)

WORD COUNT: 472

30 June, 2015 12:49PM AWST

Concern for future of country racing over proposed TAB sale

By Karla Arnall

Country racing will be hardest hit by the proposed privatisation of the TAB, says a Geraldton racing identity.

Race horse owner and industry observer Wayne Clarkson will urge the state government to retain ownership of the TAB, saying that a sell-off would spell the end for country racing.

"Hopefully we can get the government to understand common sense and not sell," he said speaking to Glenn Barndon on ABC Mid West and Wheatbelt Mornings.

The Minister for Gaming and Racing, Colin Holt, will meet local industry at the Geraldton Turf Club on Thursday 2 July, as a part of the State Government's consultation process on the potential sale.

TAB has a social responsibility, says Mr Clarkson

Mr Clarkson voiced concern that regional meetups such as Dongara and Mingenew would be unable to continue without TAB income, which provides revenue for the racing industry.

"I think the TAB has got a responsibility to the community, to the public and a part of the spinoff of the TAB is of course an income stream," he said.

"It provides a social entertainment, it provides a place to go, if people want to bet, they bet. Most people don't. They go there, enjoy each other's company and it's a get together and that's what racing's all about."

Mr Clarkson is fearful that the privatisation of the TAB would compromise employment in the broader racing industry, impacting vets, bookmakers and jockeys.

"In some of these country towns, the state money that comes out of those places, it's absolutely gold to a lot of these people."

Disquiet in industry

The State Government flagged the potential sale in 2014. It has since been met with resistance from industry.

Earlier this year, Premier Colin Barnett conceded that the proposed sale would struggle to pass the current Parliament, but could be taken to the 2017 election.

Mr Clarkson said the commentary has created disquiet in the industry and is hurting potential investment.

"The big sale that we held in January was absolutely a catastrophe.

"There was just devastation, people selling horses, the cost to breed the horse was $10 or $15,000 respectively, they were selling horses for $2000. Alarm bells were ringing.

"Off the back of the commentary, there's so much disengagement, there's so much unknown by people, why would you invest?"

Minister for Gaming and Racing, Colin Holt, will meet local industry as a part of the State Government's consultation process on a potential TAB sale. ( Supplied - Wikimedia commons )

More from ABC Mid West WA

|                             |                                   |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| Home        | Programs          |
| News        | Weather           |
| Emergencies | Photos and Videos |
| Recipes     |                                   |

---

Top of the page

---

Change to standard view

---

|                                |                            |
|--------------------------------|----------------------------|
| Terms of Use   | Contact Us |
| Privacy Policy | © 2015 ABC                 |

Racing clubs worried about potential TAB sale

Source: Mandurah Mail (Australia)
Publication Date: July 1, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

7/1/15 Mandurah Mail (Austl.) (Pg. Unavail. Online)

News

Copyright © 2015 Fairfax Information and Learning Company; All Rights Reserved.

WITH the state government committed to the sale of TAB racing in the Peel region hangs in the balance with clubs against the proposal.

Sian Hughes, general manager of the Pinjarra Harness Racing Club, said the sale of TAB was a major issue for all three codes of racing ??? greyhounds, thoroughbred and harness -??? in the Peel region.

???Funds generated by the TAB goes directly back to the racing industry to support racing clubs in the form of stakemoney for races, to employ staff, conduct race meetings and in infrastructure funding to provide the best facilities for our participants, members and patrons,??? she said.

In the Peel region approximately one in every 22 people has an involvement in the racing industry either as an employee, volunteer or participant.

Racing and gaming minister Colin Holt said the sale was simply a proposal and that he would consult the country racing industry throughout the process.

???The State Government???s focus is ensuring an open and consultative due diligence process with the industry to make sure all the relevant information is understood,??? he said.

Ms Hughes said the Peel region had the highest proportion of harness racing industry participants in the State with more than 2000 participants in harness racing in the region.

???If the TAB were to be sold, a private buyer would not necessarily continue to invest back into the actual racing product, by increasing stakemoney or funding to clubs or infrastructure,??? she said.

???With the costs of keeping horses and preparing them to race, as well as maintaining racing clubs surely only rising in years to come, this could potentially make racing an unviable industry for participants to be involved in long term.???

Shadow racing and gaming minister Mick Murray labelled the plan ridiculous.-

???The TAB injects more than $126 million worth of funding, and a further $14m in infrastructure grants, to WA racing each year,??? he said.

???There has been talk of selling the TAB for as little as $150m, which is a ludicrously small one-off amount when you look at how much money the TAB makes.???

Ms Hughes said the club was concern that Racing and Wagering Western Australia (RWAA), experts on wagering, were not being consulted in regards to the sale of the TAB at all.

???The sale of the TAB is certainly a dangerous proposal that would have dire long term consequences for our club, other country clubs and the entire harness racing industry ??? once it???s sold there would be no going back,??? she said.

Premier Colin Barnett has previously said if a deal cannot be reached soon, the sale of the TAB may become a 2017 election issue.

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

NEWS SUBJECT: Campaigns & Elections (1CA25); U.S. Congressional Campaigns (1US07)
INDUSTRY: Athletics (1AT05); Casinos (1CA80); Entertainment (1EN08); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Horse Racing (1HO27); Marathons, Biathlons, & Triathlons (1MA39); Sports (1SP75)
REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Western Australia (1WE82)
LANGUAGE: English
OTHER INDEXING: (Sian Hughes; Colin Barnett; Mick Murray; Colin Holt)
WORD COUNT: 451

THE IMPACT OF SELLING THE W.A. TAB

The sale of the TAB would potentially have an horrific impact on Pinjarra Harness Racing Club and the entire harness racing industry.

Funds generated by the WA TAB goes directly back to the racing industry to support racing Clubs in the form of

- Stakemoney for races
- To employ local staff
- To conduct race meetings and
- As infrastructure funding to provide and maintain the best facilities for our participants, Members and patrons.

Here in the Peel region 1 in every 22 people has an involvement in the racing industry (inclusive of all three codes – harness, thoroughbreds and greyhounds) either as an employee, volunteer or participant.

If the TAB were to be sold, a private buyer would not necessarily continue to invest back into the actual racing product, by increasing stakemoney, funding to Clubs or infrastructure. With the costs of keeping horses and preparing them to race, as well as maintaining racing Clubs surely only rising in years to come, this could potentially make racing an unviable industry for participants to be involved in long term.

The WA TAB returns to Government approximately $44 Million in Wagering Tax and $27 Million in GST. It is a truly viable long term asset that not only supports the Government itself, but an entire industry and the broader community.

Every year the TAB directs 100% of its profits back to the community across the sectors of racing, community sport and community partnerships.

It's not only the racing industry that benefits from the TAB - this year the WA TAB has given back nearly $150 Million to the local community through the Community TAB program, which assists not-for-profit organisation including Lifeline, Fremantle Sea Rescue and Riding for the Disabled.

$4.5 Million in funding from the TAB goes to the Department of Sport and Recreation, which is distributed to community sport programs.

The racing industry is a significant player in the Peel economy; financially and socially; in the Peel region the economic contribution (value added) of the racing industry is over $77.2 Million and the combined direct expenditure by the racing industry on production (breeding) and preparation (training and racing) of racing animals is $50.2 Million.

The sale of the TAB is a very real prospect that could have dire long term consequences for our Club, other regional racing Clubs and the entire racing industry - once the TAB sold there would be no going back.

The views expressed here are those of the Pinjarra Harness Racing Club and are supported by our Patron, Murray Cowper M.L.A.

Hold on to reins says ex-jockey

August 3rd, 2015, 03:30PM | Written by Susanne Reilly | Southern Gazette \(http://www.communitynews.com.au/southern-gazette/\)

NEWS \(/SOUTHERN-GAZETTE/NEWS/\)

 (HTTPS://TWITTER.COM/HOME?STATUS=HTTP://WWW.COMMUNITYNEWS.COM) He was the president of the WA Jockey's Association for more than 30 years and said that in his role he negotiated increased wages, improved health and safety standards and implemented workers' compensation and superannuation for jockeys.  (HTTPS://WWW.FACEBOOK.COM/SHARER/SHARER.PHP?U=HTTP://WWW.COMMUNITYNEWS.COM)

Ryan started a jockey apprenticeship in 1962 and in 1967 he won the Kalgoorlie Cup. A few months later he won the Perth Cup and over his career he rode about 1000 winners.  (HTTPS://PLUS.GOOGLE.COM/SHARE?URL=HTTP://WWW.COMMUNITYNEWS.COM)

He said the TAB started as a way to replace the off-course betting shops so people in the industry got something out of it.

◆It shouldn't be sold,◆ he said. ◆I don't know why they want to sell it, they get so much from it for doing nothing.◆

He said what should be done instead is a facelift to Ascot and Belmont racecourses.

◆With the new stadium, they could charge parking at Belmont and make so much more money for the industry.◆

The TAB was formed in 1961 as the Wagering and the Totalisator Agency Board of WA and in its first annual report recorded a turnover of $1 million.

More about the plans to privatise TAB here.
<http://www.communitynews.com.au/news/Calls-to-keep-TAB-for-state/7673529>

You might also like

Community News

GoFundMe page set up to help Jamie Murphy pay legal fees from

(<http://www.communitynews.com.au/eastern-reporter/news/gofundme-page-set-up-to-help-jamie-murphy-pay-legal-fees-from-bali-drug-ordeal/>)

Community News

Fremantle Dockers' Shane Yarran hit with further charge

(<http://www.communitynews.com.au/fremantle-gazette/news/fremantle-dockers-shane-yarran-hit-charge/>)

Community News

City of Melville announces Bobby the cat winner of first Instagram fur

(<http://www.communitynews.com.au/melville-times/news/city-of-melville-announces-bobby-the-cat-winner-of-first-instagram-fur-baby-competition/>)

Recommended by

(<http://www.outbrain.com/what-is/default/en>)

Stay Connected

FACEBOOK  (<HTTPS://WWW.FACEBOOK.COM/COMMNEWSGROUP>) TWITTER

(<HTTPS://TWITTER.COM/COMMNEWSGROUP>) PINTEREST  (<HTTPS://WWW.PINTEREST.COM/COMMNEWSGROUP/>) INSTAGRAM

(<HTTPS://WWW.INSTAGRAM.COM/COMMNEWSGROUP/>) GOOGLE+  (<HTTPS://PLUS.GOOGLE.COM/116632992945860927392/ABOUT>)

Digital Editions

Community ePapers at your fingertips.

Trades & Services

Find a Tradie in WA.

Photo Sales

Buy CommunityPix prints.

VIEW

<http://epaper.communitynews.com.au/epaper/viewer.aspx>

VISIT LOOKLOCAL

<http://www.looklocalwa.com.au/>

ENQUIRE NOW

<http://www.communitypix.com.au/default.aspx>

Calls to keep TAB for state

Source: Southern Gazette (Australia)
Publication Date: August 4, 2015
Country: Australia
Source Type: Newspaper

8/4/15 S. Gazette (Austl.) 3

News

Copyright © 2015 News Limited Australia. All rights reserved.

Member for East Metro Samantha Rowe with trainer and vice president of the WA Race Trainers Association John Lugg. Picture: Matt Jelonek www.communitypix.com.au d441452 WITH the State Governments plan to sell the TAB going ahead, racing industry workers say they are worried what it will do to local racing

Vice president of the WA Racing Trainers Association John Lugg said the sale of the TAB would decimate local racing

We are all worried about how the decision to sell the TAB will affect the long-term sustainability of local racing, he said

The industry is already suffering from the uncertainty around its future

Premier Colin Barnett detailed in the states 2015-16 Budget that the decision to sell the TAB and pursue a sensible program of asset sales would enable the Government to build new infrastructure to support growth without putting further pressure on the states finances

But opposition spokesman for racing and gaming Mick Murray said the Government needed to heed warnings from Queensland about the condition of its racing industry under a privatised TAB

Mr Murray said Racing Queensland recently announced it was burdened with mounting and unsustainable losses

He said there was no clearer warning about where the WA racing would be in 10 or 15 years if it were sold

The numbers dont lie and Queenslands Racing and Gaming Minister has now had to intervene to try to restore some sort of workable future for their industry, he said

Belmont MLA Glenys Godfrey and East Metropolitan MLC Samantha Rowe have visited racing industry workers in recent weeks

Although the current TAB system has some flaws, it works well in general and does not negatively impact on the State Government, Ms Godfrey said

Privatising the TAB exposes the WA racing industry to more risks, so the feedback I get every time I go to the races at Belmont is the industry would prefer to work on the areas that need improvement and not sell the TAB

Ms Rowe said trainers in Ascot were very concerned about the impact of the TAB sale on the local industry and on the WA racing industry more broadly

The trainers know the sale of the TAB is not about producing a benefit to the racing industry, she said

The TAB supports thousands of jobs around the state, and many here in Belmont. It also injects millions of dollars into WA racing every year

Read what a former jockey thinks &a href="http://www.communitynews.com.au/news/Hold-on-to-reins--says-ex-jockey/7673619">here.&lt;/a>

---- INDEX REFERENCES ----

NEWS SUBJECT: Business Management (1BU42); Corporate Events (1CR05); Privatization (1PR92)
INDUSTRY: Boats & Sailing (1BO44); Entertainment (1EN08); Equestrian Events & Horse Racing (1EQ65); Horse Racing (1HO27); I.T. (1IT96); I.T. Vertical Markets (1IT38); I.T. in Small Office & Home Office (SOHO) (1IT10); Sports (1SP75)
REGION: Australasia (1AU56); Australia (1AU55); Oceania (1OC40); Queensland (1QU50)
LANGUAGE: English
OTHER INDEXING: (John Lugg; Glenys Godfrey; Colin Barnett; Mick Murray; Godfrey saidPrivatising; Matt Jelonek; Samantha Rowe)
EDITION: 1
WORD COUNT: 438

WA racing minister touts for TAB as uncertainty continues over betting agency's potential sale

ABC Esperance By Sam Tomlin

Posted Fri 4 Mar 2016, 4:59pm

PHOTO: Small racing clubs, like Leonora, fear the instability that loss of TAB revenue would bring. (ABC Goldfields: Nathan Morris)

Gamblers have been urged to wager on the horses rather than wider sports betting by Western Australia's Racing and Gaming Minister Colin Holt, in a bid to boost support for country racing clubs amid concerns over the looming sale of the TAB.

The betting agency, the last in Australia to be government-owned, could be put up for sale as soon as next month, amid speculation of considerable corporate interest.

The move has prompted fresh concerns for country racing clubs, which fear the estimated billion dollar sale to the private sector could see the industry lose access to its most reliable revenue stream.

Speaking to ABC Goldfields ahead of this weekend's Esperance Cup meeting, Mr Holt urged would-be punters to embrace a return to racetrack wagering.

"Sports betting doesn't contribute to the racing industry like wagering on the races does," Mr Holt said.

"So we certainly would like to promote that if you're going to have a wager, have a wager on the horses.

"I certainly would like to see punters support their bookies and the local tote a lot more."

Describing the shift to online and mobile betting as the biggest challenge facing country racing clubs, the Nationals Minister flagged the need for greater marketing and promotional support across regional racing.

RELATED STORY: Fremantle Port sale unlikely to happen before 2017 election, says WA Premier

RELATED STORY: WA racing industry wants $500k for consultation on TAB sale

RELATED STORY: WA Labor backs industry calls for swift TAB decision

MAP: Esperance 6450

If it does cut out, and the money does go to a private operator and the corporate sector, country racing clubs are the first to suffer.

Ken Norton, Esperance Bay Turf Club president

"[Clubs] are very good at holding events, and they've done that for many years," Mr Holt said.

"I think what we need is a general push from a marketing point of view, to get more people to the track."

More to industry than budget bottom line

The betting agency joins a laundry list of WA Government assets subject to pre-budget speculation, as the Barnett Government looks to repair the state's shaky budget position.

While Mr Holt has made it clear he will not back any sale which fails to deliver a net benefit to WA racing, the thoughts of country club officials are far away from the betting industry bidding war the Government hopes will drive up the agency's sale price.

Esperance Bay Turf Club president Ken Norton said the negative effects of agency sales had been demonstrated across Australia.

"If it does cut out, and the money does go to a private operator and the corporate sector, country racing clubs are the first to suffer," Mr Norton said.

With the racing club gearing up for its biggest race meeting of the year this weekend, he said the community aspect of local racing would be on show for all to see.

"Down here on the day, the lifesaving club will be down here shaking the tins; they'll be looking after the parking and holding a raffle," Mr Norton said.

"Anything they fundraise, the community TAB matches that dollar for dollar, so we're helping out in other areas as well."

While he said he was impressed by Mr Holt's insistence that any sale benefit the wider industry, he said such an aim would be hard to achieve in current circumstances.

"If it does sell, the money must go back into racing in WA," Mr Norton said.

PHOTO: Racing Minister Colin Holt says punters can support local racing by wagering on the horses, rather than general sports betting. (ABC News: Andrew O'Connor)

PHOTO: The success of major race meetings is a critical factor for the viability of smaller racing clubs. (ABC Goldfields: Nathan Morris)

Funding critical for smaller clubs

While flagship meetings like the Esperance Cup and Kalgoorlie-Boulder's Race Round provide a key injection of cash for clubs in major centres, country cups are even more critical for smaller racing clubs.

With the key meetings in the northern Goldfields — encompassing the Leinster, Leonora and Laverton Racing Clubs — coming after the Kalgoorlie round's high-profile triple crown of the Boulder Cup, Hannans Handicap and Kalgoorlie Cup, the smaller clubs have often struggled to attract prospective runners and punters.

But with the cup meetings representing a rare chance for the entire communities to celebrate, Leonora Shire president Peter Craig said smaller towns were contributing more and more to ensure the events were successful.

"The clubs themselves do a lot of sponsorship drives, to get the stakes money up to a level that's going to attract horses, trainers and owners alike," he said.

"Sometimes it might only be once a year where everyone can come together and catch up, so the community, shires and local businesses are fully supportive."

With long-standing ties to the Leinster District Race Club, Mr Craig said he could not see any circumstances where the TAB sale would not hit country clubs.

"Everything these days is monetary, and that funding is the biggest thing," he said.

"If it does go ahead, it's going to be to our detriment; any deal that does get done is only going to be a short-term thing."

Topics: horse-racing, gambling, esperance-6450, leonora-6438, kalgoorlie-6430

The West Australian

Video Business Sport Lifestyle Entertainment Travel Regional Announcements More

Latest WA National World Full Coverage Opinion The Digital Edition Health Festivals Place an Ad The Game

Delay on TAB sale a barrier for industry

Gareth Parker - The West Australian on May 1, 2016, 2:30 am

There is increasing scepticism that a TAB sale can be progressed before the next State election.

SHARE TWEET WHATSAPP EMAIL

The racing industry is becoming increasingly worried that the Barnett Government's TAB sale process is caught up in political limbo, damaging the commercial viability of the wagering operator and undermining confidence in the industry.

With only 12 sitting weeks remaining once the May Budget session of Parliament is complete for this term of Government, there is rising scepticism that a sale can be progressed before the next State election, due in March.

The practical effect is that the TAB could not be privatised - even if the racing industry and the party that wins the next election wanted to - before the second half of next year at the earliest.

Meanwhile, the industry fears the wagering business is becoming ever more competitive and fast-changing, potentially exposing the State-owned TAB to significant commercial headwinds while the political process unfolds.

OUR PICKS

Fremantle to cancel Australia Day citizenship ceremony

Doctors angry at lack of beds

The ultimate gift this Christmas

Myer Sponsored

Cancer drug sparks new eggs in infertile women

Petrol set to soar over Christmas as Australian dollar weakens

Wheels fall off Perth's economic growth

City mulls tallest hotel

Sting snares bkie in meth deal

12/7/2016

Delay on TAB sale a barrier for industry - The West Australian

Leading trainer Michael Grant, who is chairman of the industry body formed to respond to the Government's sale proposal, said the uncertainty was affecting confidence in the industry.

"While the TAB is being used as a political football, the TAB's ability to function as a commercial entity is compromised," he said.

"This debate has been going on for nearly two years and while the market is ever-changing, the TAB is being forced into standstill mode."

Mr Grant and the WA Racing Response Group met Premier Colin Barnett and Racing Minister Colin Holt about two months ago but the industry is waiting for an official response from Government about how the industry would benefit from a sale.

Mr Holt rejected the suggestion the TAB was being used as a political football and said he had worked hard to get the industry to a point where it now accepted there could be net benefits from privatisation.

While he admitted the legislative timeframe was tight, he said if the industry agreed a sale was in its best interests then Labor might be convinced to back the sale, smoothing the way for a speedy passage of legislation.

Shadow racing minister Mick Murray said the Government had not demonstrated how a sale was in the industry's interests and Labor would not support privatisation until it did.

"I mean the whole industry, not just Perth Racing," he said. "There seems to be a divide between the country and city racing."

The West Australian

SHARE TWEET WHATSAPP EMAIL

Your data is complicated.

Microsoft Sponsored

A tale of two harvests for WA grain growers

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN YOUR AREA

Know a good gardener?

Litter on our footpaths

My new favourite café

Friday Morning Coffee Group

Builder to replace front fence

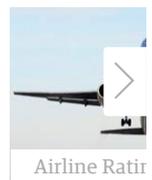

Enter your suburb Find

powered by nabo

FOLLOW US

MORE FROM THE WEST

RECOMMENDED

Bec has salon 'meltdown' amid split talk

Impending political outbreak in Italy?

AD

Australia's worst serial killer Ivan Milat tells...

Cruise control in Singapore

SPONSORED

Born before 1964? Start Saving Big on Electricity.

SPONSORED

A Beginner's Guide To Solar

SPONSORED

Baby-death dad warned not to leave daughter unattended

Home loans have never been this easy.

AD

Accused killer truck driver faints 10 times during...

End of Life Insurance in Australia

SPONSORED

powered by plista

CHRISTMAS COMES EARLY
With $10,000 Flexiglass Giveaway

CLICK TO ENTER

FLEXIGLASS

- Advertising
- Corporate
- Subscribe Now
- The Game
- Contact
- FAQs

- Editorial Policy
  - Complaints
  - Digital Edition
  - Syndication
  - Work For Us
  - Newsletters
- BACK TO TOP

LATEST NEWS FROM THE WEST

Roy Hill to recruit up to 600 workers

Roy Hill boss Barry Fitzgerald says the iron ore producer will be looking to recruit another 500-600 mineworkers over the next 18 months as the company ramps up its Pilbara operations.

The new Xbox One S.

The ultimate games and 4K entertainment system is now available to buy for $365RRP for a limited time. 500GB RRP. Actual price set by the retailer.

Xbox One Sponsored

Introducing the new Xbox One S
 4K Ultra HD Blu-ray • 4K Video Streaming • HDR

$365 RRP
for a limited time

XBOX ONE

Ben Cousins arrested again

Fallen West Coast star Ben Cousins has been arrested after allegedly breaching a violence restraining order in Canning Vale last night.

Magistrate shocked by teen 'Mr Big' bail

The teenager alleged to have been the main methamphetamine supplier to Northam has been released from prison to live in a hostel in Perth, despite a magistrate expressing her shock at the ...

Colin Barnett comes out to bat for WACA revamp

Colin Barnett has provided strong endorsement of the WACA's plans to redevelop its ground to complement the new Perth Stadium despite saying that no request for funding has been received by the ...

Pregnant bridesmaid in labour as she walked down the aisle

The expectant parents finally left at 10pm.

Fastest Methods to Top-Up Your Qantas Points

By taking up bonus point schemes, which have little or no cost, have proven to be one of the most economical ways to top-up your account balance.

finder.com.au Sponsored

The All Blacks are coming to Perth

WA has scored another major sporting coup with a blockbuster rugby union Bledisloe Cup clash between the Wallabies and All Blacks to be played at the new Perth Stadium.

SHOW ME MORE ▾

POPULAR VIDEOS

Ben Cousins arrested again

Today's top news stories - December 7

Crash causes peak hour chaos in Melbourne

TAB sale: Colin Barnett rules out lead role for racing industry in privatisation process

By Andrew O'Connor

Posted Wed 4 May 2016, 4:04pm

Tension over the proposed sale of the TAB in WA appears to have intensified, with the Premier rejecting a racing industry push to play a central role in the privatisation of the betting agency.

Senior industry figures met with Mr Barnett two months ago, seeking to establish the ground rules for the Government to engage with the industry on the sale of the TAB.

WA Racing Representative Group was appointed by the industry to represent the three racing codes - thoroughbred, harness and greyhound - but has expressed increasing frustration at the pace of negotiations.

The industry believes the sale of TAB must be a tri-party deal, involving the Government, the purchaser and the industry, which supplies the racing product.

But Mr Barnett said while the industry would be consulted, it would not control the process.

"The industry is not going to be handling the privatisation of the TAB. Some may think they will, but the Government will handle that," he said.

Mr Barnett said he believed there was now broad support in the racing industry to sell off the TAB.

"I think they rightly need to know what the Government will do with those proceeds," he said.

"I've flagged there will be an industry investment or infrastructure fund, but the industry has got to make some sensible decisions about which facilities get upgraded."

Decide on venues: Premier

The Premier said the Government wants the industry to set out its requirements.

"The big issues that we want to hear back from racing on an agreed basis is the structure of venues," he said.

"The State Government is not going to pour tens of millions of dollars into duplicate venues. We want the racing industry to work out exactly which venues will be maintained, and then we'll help the racing industry upgrade those venues."

The ABC understands the representative group has completed an industry requirements report setting out what it believes WA's racing industry needs to secure its future.

But the industry wants to establish ground rules for negotiating with the Government over a range of aspects of the privatisation, before it hands over the report.

Mr Barnett said the Government would sell the TAB, not the industry.

"It's a government process. It's a government asset and the Government will sell it. But we will certainly involve the industry and take advice, but they will not be party to the privatisation."

WA Racing Representative Group spokesman Michael Grant said he was "staggered" by the Premier's comments and said the industry had always sought to work constructively with the Government.

PHOTO: Mr Barnett says the racing industry will not be handling the privatisation of the TAB.
(ABC News: Andrew O'Connor)

RELATED STORY: WA racing industry wants $500k for consultation on TAB sale

RELATED STORY: Racing Minister urges punters to bet on horses to support community

RELATED STORY: Uncertainty over TAB sale as timeline thrown into doubt

MAP: WA

Topics: gambling, horse-racing, states-and-territories, wa

Privatisation may render family-operated TABs worthless

2 Jun 2016, 11:14 a.m.

<https://www.facebook.com/sharer/sharer.php?u=http://www.colliemail.com.au/story/3944716/privatisation-may-render-family-operated-tabs-worthless/>

http://twitter.com/share?url=http://www.colliemail.com.au/story/3944716/privatisation-may-render-family-operated-tabs-worthless/&text=Privatisation may render family-operated TABs worthless&via=collier\_mail

mailto:?subject=Privatisation may render family-operated TABs worthless&body=Hi,I found this article - Privatisation may render family-operated TABs worthless. and thought you might like it http://www.colliemail.com.au/story/3944716/privatisation-may-render-family-operated-tabs-worthless/

WA's more than 120 family-operated TAB businesses may become worthless upon privatisation, Racing and Wagering Western Australia chief executive Richard Burt has confirmed.

Responding to Opposition questioning in Budget Estimates hearings, Mr Burt said TAB licensees were not franchise owners and could provide no assurance they could derive any value from the licences upon privatisation.

He said the issue was "top of mind" but any assistance to businesses and families impacted by privatisation would be a decision of government, "similar to the issue of taxis".

Mr Burt said the Liberal-National Government had made no approach to RWWA to discuss plans for TAB licence holders in the event of a sale, nor done any analysis of the way in which other states handled their TAB licensees upon privatisation.

CS Shadow Minister for Agriculture and Food Mick Murray said small businesses have been left short.

"It is concerning to hear Mr Burt compare the situation to the one taxi drivers are experiencing where they have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars into a small business and been left very short," he said.

12/1/2016

Privatisation may render family-operated TABs worthless | Collie Mail

“The State Government has not contacted RWWA to discuss plans for the 68 licences post-privatisation and I question why that hasn’t happened as part of the planning process.

News  Business

“It is not good enough to say they aren’t franchises so we can cut them loose – these are small businesses that often represent the entire livelihood of a family.

Search...

“With no planning having been done to manage a transition, and none announced by the State Government, there is a very real possibility that these 120-plus family businesses will be left high and dry after privatisation.”

West Australian Harness Racing Breeders, Owners, Trainers and Reinspersons Association
PO Box 159 York WA 6302
Tel/Fax 96 412 105
Email botrot@westnet.com.au

Minutes for the Meeting Held Wednesday 5th October 2016, meeting commenced at 5pm.

1. PRESENT-T. Ferguson (Chairman), C. Abercromby, R. Pearce, W. Robinson, R. Olivieri, G. Butler, M. Gray and R. Deadman (Secretary).

2. APOLOGIES. Nil

3. ABSENT. Nil

4. CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

The Minutes from the meeting held 7TH September 2016 were accepted as a true and correct record of that meeting on the motion by M. Gray seconded by W. Robinson. Carried.

5. BUSINESS ARISING

The continued anomalies with Race Programming will be raised again at the next EHRB and HRCG meetings. (On Going)

The review for the Epona Mares Scheme will be delayed until further notice and will discussed further by the BOTRA Committee.

6. CORRESPONDENCE

Inward

1. John McIntosh

Free Lease-Broodmare

2. Ross Pearce

BOTRA Constitution

3. RWWA

Notice of HRCG Meeting-9th November 2016

4. RWWA

New Owners Only Ambassador-

5. National Trot Guide

Stallion Service Auction-Advertising

Outward*1/4- Bio John/BOTRA Award*All Correspondence.*5. To all Committee*Terry Ferguson Meeting With Brendon Grylls-Report*6. To all Committee*Poster and Info- Stallion Service Auction*6. ACTION ON CORRESPONDENCE

The unfortunate circumstances occurring after a claiming race held at Pinjarra led to the purchaser paying $2000 for a horse which was banned for life after bleeding. This matter will be placed (for discussion) on the HRCG Agenda.

Inward Correspondence was received and Outward Correspondence endorsed on the motion by M. Gray seconded by C. Abercromby. Carried.

8. FINANCE

There is $21,383.21 in the General Account to 31.8.2016

The Term Deposit stands at $26,421.19 and has been rolled over for 12 months at 2.65% and will be reviewed in May 2017.

This Financial Report tabled was received on the motion by C. Abercromby, seconded by M. Gray. Carried.

9. Industry Body Meetings*Spider Fund

No action. The Spider Fund AGM will be scheduled for 2nd November 2016

Hardship Fund

No New Claims. The Hardship Fund AGM will be scheduled for 2nd November 2016

Harness Racing Consultative Group

Next Meeting to be held on 9th November 2016

10.GENERAL BUSINESS

Winners of the Bio John/BOTRA Award for September 2016 were David Simmonds and Shane Young.

There was lengthy discussion on the Epona Scheme for mares. A review has been requested by RWWA from WABOTRA and WASBA. BOTRA believes a less complicated approach to distributing accumulated funding by RWWA for the Epona Scheme would be to emulate New South Wales Harness Racing with its decision to fully subsidise breeder's payments for foaling fees and eliminate payments associated with Registration fees. An email will be sent to Noel Reilly representing the WABOTRA initiative as part of the review for the Epona Mares Scheme. (On going).

A letter will be sent to RWWA requesting consideration to increase the stakemoney paid for the BOTRA Cup to $30,000.00. (Still under consideration)

Bob Fowler will be invited to a BOTRA Committee meeting to be held on Wednesday 2nd November 2016. (To coincide with the AGM for the Hardship Fund)

An item for the agenda for the next meeting of Committee will be the matter of fines in place of suspensions for drivers. (To be further discussed)

Terry Ferguson, with other members of the EHRB, met with Brendon Grylls to discuss the privatisation of the TAB. The meeting was positive and the sale of the TAB would be supported only on the basis of a positive long term benefit to the racing industry. If this did not occur, support would be withdrawn. There are still many factors to be considered and if sold, options such as virtual racing, keno and tax relief to benefit the industry must be considered. The March 2017 election could also lead to a change in Government so there are many unknowns at this stage.

The time lapse between races at all meetings was discussed. BOTRA Committee recommend that a time frame of twenty minutes between racers should be introduced and this initiative will be placed on the Agenda of the HRCG meeting for further discussion.

The need for change was seen as a necessity for the future operations of BOTRA. It was the view of some members of Committee that BOTRA did little for its members and needed to stimulate its activities to become a more vibrant industry body. The thrust to form a single united industry body has been driven by BOTRA for many years, however other Industry Groups have continually rejected the idea. There was also a suggestion that RWWA should revamp the current HRCG which is seen to be a forum held to satisfy the instructions of a Parliamentary directive rather than being a fact finding, solution solving, decision making body.

There was further discussion on making information available to the fraternity via email. Around 600 email addresses have been obtained. It was resolved to commence a Monthly Newsletter, circulated by email to involve the fraternity in issues such as- Race programming, handicapping, penalties for scratching a horse nominated for consecutive starts, standing starts, the elimination of 1700metre races at GP, conditions with handicapping, the ease out rule, continuity of mare's racing, concession drivers at GP, spread of classes in programmes at all meetings. These and many other issues will be presented in the News Letter, requesting fraternity responses and opinions to the many issues that are currently of concern in the harness industry. (On Going)

11. MEETING CLOSURE

There being no further business to discuss, the meeting closed at 6.30pm

9. DATE OF NEXT MEETING

*5.30pm Wednesday 2nd November 2016

PLEASE MAKE EVERY EFFORT TO ATTEND COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

APPROPRIATION (CONSOLIDATED ACCOUNT) RECURRENT 2013–14 BILL 2013
APPROPRIATION (CONSOLIDATED ACCOUNT) CAPITAL 2013–14 BILL 2013Second Reading — Cognate Debate*

Resumed from an earlier stage of the sitting.

MR J.E. McGRATH (South Perth — Parliamentary Secretary) [2.52 pm]: I am very glad that the Treasurer has come back from his very important opening this morning because I will call on the Treasurer for some action. When I was last on my feet, I was talking about racing industry infrastructure. This was something that was highlighted when a race meeting was abandoned at Belmont Park last week because of the state of the track. The industry is well aware that Belmont Park really needs to be re-turfed. It has not been done for 30 years and the cost is estimated to be between $7 million and $10 million. The problem is that the racing industry does not have the money to do it. Racing and Wagering Western Australia simply does not have the ability to fund other pressing infrastructure needs, unless it reduces funding from prize money. We all know that cutting prize money would make a huge impact on the racing industry. That is why across-the-codes participants have been calling on our state government to set up a racing industry infrastructure fund. In 2010, I brought a report to this chamber as chairman of the select Committee on the Review of the Racing and Wagering Western Australia Acts. While the committee identified that the Racing and Wagering Western Australia model worked in its governance of the three codes—that is, thoroughbreds, harness and greyhounds—it also identified a $70 million black hole in revenue to fund some very urgent infrastructure needs across the industry.

The committee was told that the Bunbury Turf Club, which is very close to the Treasurer's electorate of Vasse, needs something in the vicinity of $15 million to provide better facilities for the biggest thoroughbred training centre outside the metropolitan area. The greyhound industry needed close to $30 million to establish a new home at Cannington because the lease on its current site was not to be renewed. I am aware that RWWA, with the assistance of the Minister for Racing and Gaming has been able to come up with a scaled-down version that will not be as big as the facility the greyhounds currently enjoy.

These are a couple of examples that highlight the massive funding problems facing the racing industry when it comes to infrastructure. Basically, the industry injects roughly $60 million into Treasury coffers every year from wagering, yet it is unable to meet the cost of maintaining and upgrading the very infrastructure that supports that same industry. This is no reflection on RWWA or the minister, Hon Terry Waldron, who has managed to provide funds for many of the smaller projects through royalties for regions and other mechanisms. The minister is a strong supporter of the industry, but here we are talking about big-ticket items that need strong action from the government. Hence the key recommendation of our committee's report to Parliament, which was tabled in 2010, was that the government reduce the tax on wagering by an amount sufficient to establish a racing industry infrastructure fund that might start at between $10 million and $12 million in the first year, but would increase as betting turnover rose. Members should remember that these are funds that the industry generates through wagering; it is not a handout from the government. It is funds generated by the racing industry. Unfortunately, we are three years down the track and the government has not been able to act on that recommendation. To me, that is disappointing, but it leads to the question: where do we go from here? The government could agree to implement the recommendations of the committee report, but given the pressures on the state's finances at the moment—so much redevelopment and infrastructure is needed in other areas—I am not sure that the government is in a position to come up with these funds. After giving this much thought, I have come to the conclusion that there is only one way in which the government will be able to establish a racing industry infrastructure fund out of wagering revenue—that is, to privatise the TAB.

I am not saying that we should sell off the TAB. I stress that point very strongly. I am not in favour of selling off the TAB; rather we should outsource the operations of the TAB, as has been done in most other states ever since Victoria did it in 1994. This type of corporatisation has the capacity for any government to negotiate for the successful tenderer to come up with an up-front payment to gain those rights. This would be a matter of negotiation, obviously, between Treasury or the department, and whoever tendered for the TAB. In other states these up-front payments have been used to support the racing industry through the provision of new infrastructure. Some years ago the New South Wales government came to an agreement with Tabcorp for it to operate the New South Wales TAB—not to own it, but to operate it. The government recently extended that contract for another 20 years and Tabcorp made an up-front payment of $70 million. I am not saying that the Western Australian TAB would commit to the same sort of payment as the New South Wales TAB as it is a greater entity in a bigger state, but these things can be negotiated. After the negotiations and the contracts are signed, the states continue to receive a dividend from wagering and the racing codes receive a guaranteed dividend. I am especially looking at this because I feel that unless we can do something as a government—I

Extract from Hansard
[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]
p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

would like to think that the opposition would support this—the industry will lag behind other states, which are receiving this support from their state governments.

Big things are happening in the wagering industry. It is a $26 billion industry around Australia. The competition is enormous. International wagering agencies are investing millions of dollars in our marketplace. I believe one agency has invested $700 million in picking up some licences for wagering operations around Australia. There is an opportunity, and I think the face of Racing and Wagering WA will change from what we have today with the TAB shops and pub TABS, with more online wagering. It will be a different market and we need to make some decisions now as this new era approaches. This is no reflection on Racing and Wagering WA, which under Richard Burt is a very well run organisation, but do we have the best model to face the challenges ahead? Could the model be tweaked a little? I am not an economist but people working in government agencies could look at this. We could debate this subject for many hours. Today, someone must start the conversation on behalf of the industry.

In the Treasurer's budget speech last week, he indicated that the Economic Regulation Authority would be tasked with undertaking an inquiry into the micro-economic reform priorities needed for Western Australia. I was interested to see that. I inform the Treasurer and the house that I will be writing to the Treasurer to ask whether the privatisation of the state's wagering operation could be included in that investigation, and if it could be part of the 2013–14 financial year investigation. It is time the government took the racing industry seriously. This is a very important industry for employment and the Western Australian economy. The industry has massive potential but it has come to a bit of a standstill in terms of its prize money. We were told seven or eight years ago that by now we would be racing for $70 000 prize money on Saturdays, however we are racing for $50 000 and some of the races are running for only $45 000. The bigger states have moved ahead of us. We have always been a strong racing state and I would like to see some action. I have discussed this with the Minister for Racing and Gaming who wants to see more evidence to support the recommendation I am making today.

Mr M.P. Murray: Are you suggesting the privatisation of the TAB?

Mr J.E. McGrath: Not a sell-off of the TAB; just the running of the TAB. The state would continue to own the TAB, but it would be run by a private operator, just as the prisons are.

Mr D.J. Kelly: Like Serco.

Mr J.E. McGrath: A lot of private operators run transport services around the world. Private operators run a lot of things and they do it well. The member for Collie–Preston is the shadow Minister for Racing and Gaming. I have never been in favour of selling off the TAB because I have never believed in selling off the farm, but perhaps we should look at the modelling. The member would know from the race clubs down Bunbury way that Bunbury is in desperate need of money.

The ACTING SPEAKER (Ms L.L. Baker): Member for Bassendean, can we not have another side conversation, please.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Thank you Madam Acting Speaker.

Member for Bunbury, I am putting this on the table. I know it is a big decision but after what I saw happen at Belmont last week, I thought to myself that I do not know what other way out there is for the industry. It is our job to support this industry because of its importance to our state. I do not know the process, but I will write to the Treasurer about whether there needs to be some other form of inquiry. The Economic Regulation Authority could certainly look at it and see the economic benefits to be gained from it. We should consider it very seriously. Thank you, Treasurer, for stopping behind and listening to my few words.

Mr T.R. Buswell: I am looking forward to getting your letter.

Mr J.E. McGrath: You could have come and got my coat, you know; I reckon my jacket would have been a better fit.

I will now talk about local government amalgamations.

Mrs M.H. Roberts: Are you going to invite the Treasurer to your BBQ?

Mr J.E. McGrath: A lot has been said in recent weeks about the state government's plan —

Mrs M.H. Roberts: You don't want to say. I don't think he's getting an invite.

Mr J.E. McGrath: Madam Acting Speaker, the member for Midland is being very flippant about something that will not happen.

A lot has been said in recent weeks about the state government's plan to reduce the number of councils in the metropolitan area. I must put my position on record in this place because I have made some public comments,

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

some of which were repeated ad nauseam by the opposition. When the Robson report was released, two proposals placed the City of South Perth within the City of Perth, and the City of South Perth is the only local government area in my electorate. My electorate covers the entire City of South Perth. I said publicly at the time that I would not support such a move. I have always had the view that one day the City of South Perth could become like North Sydney with a mix of residential and commercial developments sitting right across the river from our great city. I have always believed that South Perth should retain its identity. When talk of council amalgamation began to swirl around, I became aware that the City of South Perth and the Town of Victoria Park had already begun talks about a possible merger. When the member for Bunbury was the Minister for Local Government, I guess they saw that the movement towards local government amalgamation was on, so they decided to be proactive. I was happy to support that, provided it did not impact adversely on the ratepayers of my electorate. The two councils after some discussion decided to come together and they had a vote, and they agreed to progress the amalgamation on one condition—that they retain the Burswood peninsula, which currently sits in the Town of Victoria Park. By then, it had emerged that the City of Perth had its eyes on Burswood so that it could announce to the world that it was a city with great icons like Crown Perth and the new sports stadium, along with Elizabeth Quay and Kings Park. I can imagine people driving into Perth from the airport and seeing a sign saying “Welcome to Perth” when they could still be in the Town of Victoria Park. Do members think they would really know which local government authority they were driving through? They would just say, “We travelled to Perth and had a great holiday.” When they go to the Crown casino, do they really know that they are in the Town of Victoria Park? I do not think so.

[Member’s time extended.]

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I wonder why the City of Perth has not set its sights on Perth Zoo, which is in South Perth. It is not called the “South Perth Zoo”—some people do call it that—but it happens to sit in the City of South Perth. The Zoo attracts 600 000 visitors a year. I wonder about the cherrypicking and whether it is necessary.

Dr A.D. Buti: They will eventually.

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Member for Armadale, someone told me today to be careful because it might happen eventually, but I do not think so.

When the City of Perth made that claim, I made a statement that I think has been repeated by the member for Victoria Park a few times. I basically said that if Burswood comes out of the planned amalgamation between the City of South Perth and the Town of Victoria Park, all bets would be off because it would be totally unsustainable. The government has since been very strong in its insistence that Crown casino and the new stadium will stay in the City of Perth. The Minister for Local Government has been very good throughout this process. All the councils I speak to think he has been very genuine in trying to bring about the best result for them, and he has worked very hard at it. He drew up a new map that excises the Crown casino and the stadium from the Town of Victoria Park. If this amalgamation goes ahead, the boundary will go around South Perth and Victoria Park and then it will move onto the Burswood peninsula and up and around the Crown casino. Crown will keep the parking, but the parking area next to the old superdome is actually owned by the Town of Victoria Park. I do not know how that will be managed. Then, South Perth and Victoria Park will keep a bit of high-rise there at the back of the casino and then go around to Belmont Park.

Dr A.D. Buti: What a mess!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: It will be difficult because, as someone pointed out to me today, if the residents of the City of Victoria Park who live in the high-rise were impacted in any way by the stadium because of louts coming home at night after the footy or the casino, by traffic or whatever, who do they go to? They cannot go to the City of Perth because they are not City of Perth ratepayers. They do not have any representation on the council. It is a difficult issue and one that I will continue to talk to the minister about.

Dr A.D. Buti: It’s a good point!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: As compensation for losing the $2.8 million in annual rates from Crown casino, the minister has extended the boundary on the southern part of the two existing councils down to Leach Highway; that represents 7 000—as the minister calls them—rooftops. Some are commercial, but they are mostly houses. They have been excised out of the old City of Canning and they will come into the new council.

Dr A.D. Buti: When he counts those 7 000 rooftops, I presume they will still be Homeswest?

Mr J.E. McGRATH: No, I think Homeswest would be in it; but Homeswest pays rates.

Mrs G.J. Godfrey: Yes.

Extract from *Hansard
 [ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]
 p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I think it does. The Minister for Local Government said that on his figures the rates lost from Burswood would be more than recovered by the rates gained by the 7 000 new rooftops. I note the minister entered the house just when I was giving him a big wrap!

Mr A.J. Simpson: That's why I came in!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: That is very admirable, but it has been pointed out that with those 7 000 new rooftops, there could be an additional cost involved for the new cities because the council does not have to spend any money in the Burswood precinct itself because it is managed by the Burswood Park Board. I have basically said to my council to go away, do the figures —

Mr D.J. Kelly: Go away full stop!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Not to go away, but do the figures and see how the financials add up.

Dr A.D. Buti: It is obvious! You will be worse off!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: They have to do the cost-benefit analysis. They will put their report in to the Local Government Advisory Board by 4 October. I have to say one thing about this: I have not had anyone knocking on my door saying, "Oh gee, isn't it great, we're going to amalgamate." I think the people of South Perth do not care whether they amalgamate or not. They are very happy where they are. They like where they live; the suburb is pretty good. I do not think they are in the mood for a change. The only thing they do say to me when I ask them about it is that it is their belief that the river should be the natural boundary. That is why we are South Perth and the City of Perth is the City of Perth. They say the natural boundary should be the river. I think that will be the argument they put to the advisory board when the two councils make their submission, but the minister has a tough job. I want to commend him. At least he is prepared to talk to the councils but—pardon the pun—there is still a lot of water to flow under the bridge on this matter. All I will say, and I have always said this from the outset, is that I will support my voters to get the best outcome. Hopefully, through the process we can come up with the desired outcome for both councils.

Just on one other note, I was a little disappointed—I was actually more than a little disappointed—that during the election campaign my party made a commitment to invest $16 million into Swan River Trust for the Swan and Canning Rivers.

Dr A.D. Buti: They broke that one, did they?

Mr J.E. McGRATH: As part of that, some $1.35 million was for restoring the rock river walls on the South Perth foreshore near Mends Street. This was something I was really delighted about; I thought, what a great thing that our government can do this. Obviously, the situation of the finances has changed and some things had to be lopped off, and this was one of them. I am disappointed. I have spoken to the Minister for Environment; I am going to work as hard as I can to get it reinstated or to see whether we can come up with that funding, because it is right opposite where we will have Elizabeth Quay. The river walls are crumbling into the river. The City of South Perth has had to put up a barrier along that section of the river where thousands of people walk and ride along that South Perth foreshore every week. It is a beautiful part of the city. For $1.35 million, which is what the city has already, it is prepared to pay its half of the cost of doing the job. They were hoping to have the money by October this year so that they could get on with the work and get it done for next summer.

All I can say to my constituents is that I apologise, because I did put that restoration project in my letter to the voters. I did get a 67 per cent primary vote, which was the highest in the state. I do not know whether that restoration project contributed to that figure or it was just the hard work that I had been doing for the last four years!

Dr A.D. Buti: At least you've been honest and apologised, while the Premier makes excuses! Another broken promise!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I am not blaming the Premier for this because, in the grand scheme of things, it is not a massive amount of funding. I note that the minister has apologised; he put the money forward but it did not quite get across the line. I will say that there was no time line on it. It was said that the money would be provided, but it did not say in the first year or the second year.

Dr A.D. Buti: It won't be provided at all!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: All I can say is that I will continue to talk to the minister about that and advocate that we get that infrastructure done as quickly as possible. I know there are other speakers who will follow me now. I just want to make one final point; that is, if I did not make a budget speech in this house and not mention Manning Road, I might as well retire. I am still waiting for the funding for Manning Road.

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

Mr W.J. Johnston: The Minister for Transport is not in the room!

Mr J.E. McGRATH: I have said this many times, but I believe that transport is the biggest challenge for any government. Manning Road is a good piece of transport infrastructure. If we could get a ramp running south on to the freeway for people coming along Manning Road going to the new Fiona Stanley Hospital, it would free up the Canning Bridge area. It will take cars off the freeway. I note that north–south connection on the two freeways is the worst area for congestion. Obviously, it is hard because we would need to go into the river to make the freeway wider, but Canning Bridge is a mess. I know that the Department of Transport has been talking to some of the residents about the possibility of some land resumption. Therefore, things are moving forward, but nothing has been allocated in the budget yet. I would like to think it would happen before I leave this place, and I am not sure how many more terms I intend to run for, but I would like to see Manning Road happen. I would die a happy man! Thank you.

MS J. FARRER (Kimberley) [3.18 pm]: I will speak to the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Recurrent 2013–14 Bill 2013 and the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Capital 2013–14 Bill 2013. On 17 April this year, less than four months ago, I rose to my feet in this Parliament to make my very first speech. In that speech I talked about the Kimberley and its people. I have an electorate that is twice the size of Victoria. I have an electorate where Aboriginal people make up the majority of the population; that electorate is a very, very long way from Perth. Some 40 000 people live there and more than half of these people are Indigenous. In many ways, we are a different world and we are certainly regarded as a different world if one were to look at the way the Kimberley people have been treated in this budget.

It is a common sight all over the Kimberley to see people standing outside courthouses because they have no money to pay for their bills or feed their families. I talked about them in my first speech; I told members how angry it makes me when I see desperation in people's faces. That desperation is increasing. When looking for the reasons why the desperation is increasing, I need not look further than this budget. I believe—it is a belief that everyone on this side of the chamber shares—that everyone should be treated equally. It should not matter who a person is and it should not matter where a person lives. But this budget shows that for the Barnett government it does matter who a person is and it does matter where a person lives.

People in the Kimberley are a long way from Perth. They are so far away that they have been forgotten. If members do not believe me, they should come up to the Kimberley and let me show them what life is like for thousands of people who need food, shelter, proper health care, decent schools and a safe place to bring up their kids. They need these things just like every other Western Australian but they do not have them. All we have heard from the Barnett government are promises, promises and promises. But those promises have turned out to be empty and to be nothing but fine words and glossy printouts. Fine words and glossy pamphlets do not feed hungry children; they do not house people living in their cars or in sand dunes or swamps; they do not give our kids the decent start in life they deserve or to help them overcome the effects of poverty and disadvantage.

I say again to members that they should come up to the Kimberley and let me show them what everyday life is like. If members come with me far away from the luxury resorts and holidaymakers, I will show them what happens to people when they have a government that breaks its promises by forcing up living costs, which is exactly what this budget has done. Perhaps members on the government side of the house would like to think about how they are going to explain to people in the Kimberley why they will have to find $1 billion every year just to pay the interest bill on the debt the government has racked up. Do members seriously suggest that I go to every man, woman and child in my electorate and tell them that their share of the debt is almost $10 000 each? When Kimberley people ask me what the debt is for, what should I tell them? This government is not keeping its promises.

The truth is that the government has created a big budget black hole and it is trying to fill that hole by pushing up taxes, power prices and the cost of car licences and rents. I cannot believe the number of calls my office in Broome gets from people who need help with their drastically increased power bills. At the same time the government is cutting public sector jobs—jobs that provide vital employment to people in towns like Broome, Kununurra, Derby, Wyndham, Halls Creek and Fitzroy Crossing. The government is cutting services that give crucial support to families in all our Kimberley towns and remote communities as they go through hard times or need a bit of extra assistance.

Let me give some examples of what is already happening to people in the Kimberley as a result of what this government is doing. In recent days there have been threatened cuts to child protection services in Wyndham. My colleague in the other place Hon Stephen Dawson last week asked the minister to explain why child protection staff in the office in Wyndham were being given forms about taking voluntary redundancies. The minister, of course, did not use words like “cuts” and “staff sackings”. Instead she tried to hide the truth by using words like “yearly operational planning cycle reviews”, “service delivery models” and “staff configurations”.

Extract from Hansard
[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]
p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

While I am on the subject of Wyndham, let me remind members that this is where the people who were forced out of Oombulgurri by this government now live. The document I am holding up shows members the sort of campsites where people are living. This paper can be tabled.

[The paper was tabled for the information of members.]

Ms J. FARRER: There is a desperate need for support for these people. They were removed from their community, not by choice, and many are now living in Wyndham in overcrowded houses. One of the things we need urgently in Wyndham is a full-time housing officer to work on the ground with these people to support them and help them make a decent life for themselves. We in the Kimberley know that if these people were living in the Premier's electorate of Cottesloe or in the Treasurer's electorate around Busselton, there would be immediate action to help them. As I said earlier, if members come to the Kimberley, I will show them that for the Barnett government it does matter who people are and it does matter where they live. Someone living in the Kimberley looking for housing or help for their family will not get it from this government in this budget.

Like other places around the state, housing is a huge issue for Kimberley people. The priority waiting list is very long and the waiting time is more than three years. Some people are homeless and some people are living in overcrowded conditions, yet the government thinks it is okay to tell people that they have years to wait for a place to live, and even when they get that place, they might not be secure. I have been fighting really hard for Department of Housing tenants in the East Kimberley who were in danger of losing their homes because of the unfair treatment they were getting from Homeswest. But we did have a win. Homeswest is now working with Kimberley Community Legal Services in Kununurra on plans to make sure that some of these back payments of rent are sorted out. I am happy to say that after the fight we put up, things have now improved and plans are in place, which has stopped people from being kicked out of their homes.

Let me tell members a bit about the patient assisted travel scheme. The scheme is just not working for Kimberley locals who are being sent to Perth for medical treatment far away from their homes. Little or no support is provided to these people who are trying to find their way around the metropolitan area. Many have never travelled by plane or train before, let alone been in a city, and this can be very scary for them. People have resorted to setting up camp in bushland. I believe that some people from the Kimberley and from the Pilbara are now living in bushland around the Perth area. In case members think I am making this up, let me read part of an article that appeared in the Eastern Reporter last Tuesday, 13 August. The article headed "How could it come to this?" states —

A group of six ill Aboriginal people, from the Kimberley and Pilbara, are camping in Mirrabooka bushland because they have nowhere else to go.

They need emergency accommodation while they receive medical treatment in Perth, but have been told they could be waiting for up to three years.

The Salvation Army has provided meals and blankets to the people who have been forced to enter private property in search of clean drinking water.

I would like the article, which tells the story about those people, tabled.

[The paper was tabled for the information of members.]

Ms J. FARRER: This is what it is like for very many of my constituents who have to leave their families and homes to live in Perth for years to receive much-needed medical treatment. These people do not choose to be in Perth. They have not come to Perth to have tummy tucks or face lifts. They have come to Perth because the medical treatment they require is not available in the Kimberley, yet they just do not get the support they need from this government. If this is any indication of what the government has done to those people, it is thanks to funding cuts that have been made to travel allowances and to measures to address serious overcrowding in Aboriginal hostels. I hate to say it, but perhaps we will see some change when we see sick people from Cottesloe and Busselton camping in bushland and being fed by the Salvos.

Mr C.J. Barnett: Do you know that there are some very poor people in the Cottesloe electorate?

Ms J. FARRER: But they are not living in the bush, are they?

Mr C.J. Barnett: Some have been, near the old cable station.

Ms J. FARRER: That is something the state should be taking care of.

Mr P. Papalia: Maybe the member should be taking it up.

Ms J. FARRER: Yes, it is something we as a Parliament should be looking at. It does not fall to one person as the responsible person; it falls to the whole of government. Until then, anyone who lives in the Kimberley will

Extract from *Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

not get equal treatment from the Barnett government. Even a service that has a great track record, such as the Kullarri night patrol in Broome, has had funding cuts. I hope the Minister for Police is listening to me, because it is the police who need help! It makes no sense to cut a program like that, which collects young kids and delivers them home safely, and which helps break up antisocial groups without involving the police.

I want to talk again about suicide. As I said in my first speech in this place, this is a very personal issue for me because my 16-year-old grandson took his own life. Only last week another member of my family had a mental health crisis and needed urgent help. It is very important that we look at the rate of suicide to see how we can prevent our young people from taking their life. All this about the high cost of living and everything else—no jobs, no accommodation—is weighing heavily on people. I guess that is happening everywhere right across the state, but I particularly refer to the Kimberley because that is where I come from.

I spent some time in Beagle Bay recently, so let me just tell members a few things about what happens in a community that has been affected by years of trauma connected with suicide and grief. In the space of just one month this year, a young boy was tragically taken by a crocodile, a young mother of two sons committed suicide, and there was another suicide of a young man. This is not rare. It happens on a regular basis, yet Beagle Bay has no youth services or before or after-school activities in the community. There is no Auskick. A lot of these kids like to play sport, but there is nothing there for them. The only oval has a dangerous building standing on it that is contaminated with asbestos. There is no full-time counsellor. The roof is falling in on the general store that belongs to the community, and I am now worried that recent break-ins to the building have caused damage to the building structure and that the whole community is now at risk from asbestos-related materials dislodged by damage to the building.

Beagle Bay is just one example of the trouble that people in the Kimberley have every day of their lives. I could be standing here talking about my recent visits to Ringers Soak, Warmun, Fitzroy, Djugerari, Mindi Radi or the outlying communities around Halls Creek. I could be telling members about what people from Balgo, Mulan, Derby or Bidyadanga need to make their lives better. I could be talking about the ranger programs that are vital to our young people up in the Kimberley who enjoy helping to maintain and look after waterways and the land. We should be putting programs in place, and the roads should be sealed so that kids can get to school and women do not have to give birth while waiting for impassable roads to be opened, as has happened at least twice recently to my knowledge. For the women in this place who know what it is like to give birth to a child, just imagine having to do it on the side of the road without medical attention. I could also be talking about communities that have to go without fuel for their generators because the hand pumps are not working.

This is 2013, yet the government is letting people all over my electorate go without decent services and proper infrastructure, all because it cannot get its budget priorities right. Communities have pleaded for assistance and help to provide their children with positive activities to participate in, yet the substance abuse, teenage pregnancies, suicides and fatal accidents continue—while down here in Perth the government builds footy stadiums and spends hundreds of millions of dollars on the waterfront development.

In my first speech a few months ago, I promised Kimberley people that I would work hard to ensure that there would be proper health services and adequate housing and education equal to those found in Perth and to provide access to opportunity for all Kimberley people. I make that promise again now. Even such a bitter disappointment as this budget will not stop me fighting for the people I care about. I just wish the Barnett government had used this budget to show how we might rid the Kimberley of poverty. Sadly, that was not the case. I table a document in relation to the patient assisted travel scheme. That concludes my contribution to the budget debate.

[The paper was tabled for the information of members.]

MR P. ABETZ (Southern River) [3.33 pm]: Having just returned from four weeks in Europe during the winter break and having had discussions with ordinary citizens and officials in Germany, Finland, Estonia and Russia, I want to say just how glad I am that I live in Australia, and more particularly Western Australia. I have much I would like to address in terms of the utter drivel and half-truths spouted forth by the opposition about this budget, but I have to limit myself to just a few matters. There can be no question that the state budget required us to make some hard choices. Although mining royalties were certainly at a record high, our GST share from Canberra was at a record low. I am very pleased to be able to say that I believe that this budget outlined in the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Recurrent 2013–14 Bill 2013 and the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Capital 2013–14 Bill 2013 is a responsible allocation of our financial resources.

Government budgets throughout the western world have been under increasing pressure due to governments living beyond their means. Many foolishly worshipped at the altar of renewable energy, with Spain and even the economic powerhouse of Germany paying an enormous penalty for that folly. While I was in Germany, I learnt

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]
p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

that the Energy Consumer Association estimates that 800 000 Germans have had their power cut off because they could not pay their rising electricity bills. They are now paying approximately 40 cents a kilowatt hour; we are paying, I think, about 23c or 24c in Australia. Last October the German newspaper Der Spiegel reported that some 200 000 of those 800 000 who had their electricity disconnected were long-term unemployed. In Germany, enthusiasm is certainly waning for what was enthusiastically called the Energiewende—the energy transition—which is estimated to have cost German domestic electricity consumers over €1 trillion by 2030. Approximately half of all the solar panels that exist in the world are located in Germany.

Mr D.J. Kelly interjected.

Mr P. ABETZ: Yes, it has been an enormously damaging industry. Short outages of electricity caused by sudden drops in output from solar and wind power have resulted in millions of euros of damage to industrial processes. The result has been that most energy-sensitive industrial processes are actually now installing massive diesel generation plants at their factories, to ensure that those kinds of damaging fraction-of-a-second shutdowns do not occur. What is the result? Germany today has a higher carbon footprint than it did before it went in this direction.

I read that in Britain the government is asking private investors to invest in funding diesel generators that will be scattered all over the countryside, because when the wind suddenly stops, diesel generators have the capacity to instantly kick in—they can be computer controlled—and away they go. The United Kingdom government simply does not have the capital to do that, so it is inviting the private sector to invest in these massive diesel generators that will be scattered around the countryside.

I guess that leads me to a few comments about the solar feed-in tariff issue, about which I got a little media attention although that was not my intention; I just wanted a review of it. My wife and I decided to install solar panels in, I think, 2009. Before we did, I did my homework and said to my wife that it would take 13 years of electricity generated from those solar panels to neutralise the CO<sub>2</sub> produced in their production. In terms of reducing the carbon footprint, solar panels have a very long payback period. I said to my wife, Jenny, “I’m sure this system is going to cause a lot of problems in how it will affect consumers, but let’s do it; we can afford to do it,” so we put it on. At that time the federal government gave $8 000 towards it and we put in $8 000. We are pretty frugal empty-nesters. Every electricity bill used to be about $140 to $220—we have gas hot water, heating and stove, so it was not that difficult—and the result has been that we do not get an electricity bill anymore. We use a little more than we produce in winter, but in summer we have overproduction, so basically we have usually been in credit, and since then we have not had an electricity bill. I said to my wife, “When you actually think about this, this is really crook. I can afford to pay for my electricity—it is not a problem—but the ordinary taxpayer is actually subsidising my electricity bill and I don’t really need the subsidy.” So I certainly concur with the sentiment of the government in wanting to scale down that scheme. I know of people who have put a four-kilowatt system on their holiday house, and because they are using hardly any electricity, except on the weekends, they are making a killing out of it, at the expense of taxpayers. That was at the tail end of the scheme, when the cost of a solar panel system was much less and it could be bought for about $4 000 or $5 000. I therefore share the sentiment of the government in wanting to rejig that scheme.

The only difficulty is that I do feel for the little people, such as the retirees on fixed incomes who have invested their $8 000 and installed solar panels, as we did, in the hope of keeping down their electricity bills, because these people have not really got their money back yet. It is true that in media releases from the minister at the time, people were told that they would be given a subsidy for 10 years. But it is also true that the written contract that people entered into with Synergy made it absolutely clear that the government had the right to vary the contract at its discretion. Therefore, when people say that the government has broken a contract, that is a nonsense. The legal contract makes it absolutely clear that the government could stop the scheme at any time. But the problem is that ethically, for the sake of the little people involved in this scheme, we do need to honour what we have said in our public statements. However, we need to find some way of refining the system so that people cannot make a killing at taxpayers’ expense. That would certainly have my support.

What some nation states have been rather slow to understand is that they cannot spend more than the revenue that flows to them, otherwise they will leave a massive debt for future generations. The people of Greece and other nations have certainly learnt that lesson the hard way. I have a cousin who lives in Spain. The people in Spain are doing it very tough. There is massive unemployment. Spain has always been held up as a place in which all these wonderful jobs have been created by green energy. The Spanish government is now saying it cannot afford to pay all these subsidies any more, and numerous of the green energy companies are going bankrupt. Energy is now so costly in Spain that most of the industries that use significant amounts of energy have moved out of the country. In Germany there is also talk of moving industries to countries in which electricity is cheaper.

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

It is fair to say that some of the pressure on this government's budget is due to the exciting and much-needed capital projects that the government has embarked upon. For example, we are well on the way with the virtual rebuilding of our hospital system. The residents in my electorate are quite excited about the completion in the not-too-distant future of Fiona Stanley Hospital. I want to comment on the member for Girrawheen's comment that there was nothing in the budget for her electorate. There was nothing in the budget specifically for my electorate of Southern River. But I, as the representative of the people of Southern River, still say that this is a great budget, because even though Fiona Stanley Hospital is not in my electorate, it will certainly benefit the people of my electorate. The widening of the freeway past South Street will also benefit my electorate.

This government has invested significantly on upgrades to the prison system. I commend the Minister for Corrective Services on introducing random drug tests for prison officers. There is a major problem with drugs getting into prisons. From what I am told, a significant route is via visitors. But another route is via a small number of prison officers. I am also glad that the repairs to Banksia Hill Detention Centre, which is in my electorate, have almost been completed after the disturbance, and that the opportunity is also being taken to install air conditioning in the units and improve them in various other ways. I am also delighted about the doubling of funding for the provision of programs in our detention centres to help offenders stay out of trouble when they are released. That is most encouraging.

Having served on the Education and Health Standing Committee, I was thrilled to read about the $4 million allocated to the ear health program for Aboriginal children in regional areas. This will be an excellent benefit, and hopefully it will pay huge dividends in reducing the number of children who start school with damaged hearing.

The adjustment to the first home owner grant is an excellent initiative. The existing grant was being used to help people buy their first home out of existing stock. What we need is more housing stock. Therefore, the increase in the grant to $10 000 for those who have a new house built, and the reduction to $3 000 for those who buy an existing house, certainly has my support.

People sometimes say that the Barnett government is too determined on building monuments. But let us not forget that in the past four years, the budget for disability services has increased by 83 per cent. The education budget this year has increased by 6.3 per cent. I am also delighted at the doubling of funding for low-interest loans for independent schools. In my area of Southern River, there are a number of very good Christian schools. There is Thornlie Christian College, which is in my electorate, and there is Carey Baptist College, which is just across the boundary in the electorate of the member for Darling Range. Both those schools have waiting lists. Part of the problem is they do not have the capital to build the classrooms that they need to accommodate all the students whose parents want to send to those schools. This funding will enable those schools to access more capital and thereby meet the demand. A lot of the children at Carey Baptist College actually come from my electorate. That school is seeking to build a second campus because of the massive demand for its educational services. However, unfortunately, the new campus will now not be open in time for the 2014 school year. That is because the school has run into all sorts of red tape and is still struggling to get all the different approvals. We thought we had it all in the bag, because the traffic issues had been overcome, but then something else came up. It seems to be a never-ending merry-go-round.

I would also like to comment on the $4 000 education cost for the children of 457 visa holders. Most of those children end up becoming Australian citizens. The greatest desire of the many South African and Indian people in my electorate who have come to this country on 457 visas is to become Australian citizens, and it is a delight to be able to attend many of those citizenship ceremonies. I would not have an issue with the $4 000 contribution if that was a requirement for the future. But it will create some issues for people who came into this country on the basis of a certain package. It will be difficult for a family with four kids to suddenly have to find an extra $16 000. This could, in fact, be a bit of a free kick for the Christian schools in my area, because their fees are less than $4 000 a year. It could also take some of the pressure off state schools. That is because most of the funding that goes to independent schools comes from the federal government. Therefore, that would be a clever way of moving the expense to the federal government and away from the state budget. But I guess we will need to see what issues will arise from this decision that we will need to address.

I am pleased to see in this budget the commitment to continue to improve community sports facilities. There is $6 million in this budget for the Hartfield Park sports complex in Forrestfield. We are very hopeful that we will see a similar amount in next year's budget for the Canning Vale sports complex on Clifton Road, which I have been working on for some time. In the last budget we were given $500 000, and $500 000 in the forward estimates for this year. There is nothing in the forward estimates in this year's budget, but I am not distressed about that because we have spent only $100 000 of the $500 000 allocated last year on preliminary investigations. The groundwater studies are underway, and the investigations into the perched watertable,

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

whether there will be enough water to irrigate the fields and the cost of reticulation et cetera are being carried out. Once that is complete, the Department of Planning will assess the site, and I note that it has $35 000 in its budget for that purpose. That will leave us with $400 000 to move it to the next stage. The public will soon have the opportunity to comment on the master plan, which is almost finalised and should be available towards the end of next month. The remaining funds from the $500 000 will be used this financial year for detailed planning to get a true indicative cost. I believe that we will see in the next budget some significant funding for the next stage of construction. I have spoken to the minister and he has assured me that the government is committed to moving this project forward.

[Member's time extended.]

Mr P. ABETZ: Also in my electorate, there is the issue of the Jandakot eastern access road from Ranford Road to the Jandakot airport, because Jandakot airport needs another access road for safety and traffic flow issues. I note that there is $235 000 in the budget of the Department of Planning to move that forward. That road will also be the access road to the sports facility on Clifton Road. In a sense, the sports facility is dependent on the Jandakot eastern access road going through.

There are some pretty amazing people in my electorate who contribute so much to the community. I want to mention Ann Nisbet, who is suffering from cancer, and has done for quite some years, yet she continues to contribute to the wellbeing of the residents of my electorate and beyond. She has been concerned about the possible impact of silica dust from a quarry near the Lumen Christi College in Gosnells, which is outside my electorate. She was so concerned about the impact that that might have on the students and staff—she used to work at the college at one stage—she funded some of the analysis of samples. I am encouraged that the new principal of Lumen Christi is committed to investigating this matter further. This work will be a great legacy that Ann leaves for this community. It shows that even when a person is struggling with cancer, they can still make a meaningful contribution to the community.

Even though I do not have any farms in my electorate, I take a very keen interest in agriculture. Much has been said about the $300 million in agricultural research funding, and I believe that is a very timely investment. Farming is very different from any other form of business. The rural sector needs a different form of finance access from that for the normal kind of business. When I worked at the agriculture department in Tasmania in the 1970s, there was what was then called the Agricultural Bank. Farm advisory officers were responsible for considering the applications that farmers sent to the Agricultural Bank. We would assess the application, write a report, send it to the Agricultural Bank and the board would decide whether to grant finance. That finance was provided at five per cent interest. At that time there was significant readjustment going on in the rural sector in Tasmania, so that finance with an interest rate of five per cent enabled farmers to perhaps buy the property next door to expand their farm to remain viable or to modernise or build a new dairy for milking cows to reduce their costs. Where would that money come from if we were to do something similar in Western Australia? We need to do that not only in Western Australia, but also across the whole of Australia. Why is it necessary? The prices of farming properties have dropped and they are difficult to sell. I was told recently by a farmer in the wheatbelt that when his property was worth $3 million and he had 66 per cent equity, he owed the bank only one-third, but now his equity is at a point at which the bank considers him to be a risk and, bang, his interest rate has jumped to 19 per cent. That guarantees the failure of that farm. There are simply no two ways about it. The farm is still the same, the machinery is still there and he has the same skills, but all of a sudden the bank is guaranteeing the failure of that farm by charging 19 per cent interest.

All members have superannuation and we make choices about how we invest our money. I would certainly be willing to invest a certain percentage of my superannuation in the rural sector at a five per cent fixed interest rate. I have talked about that idea for the past year or two with different people, and I have found that, in the community at large, there is widespread support. People are saying, “Yes, I would invest some of my superannuation in that.” With so much superannuation money chasing the share market and other investments, it may be a positive thing to have another area in which superannuation funds can invest their money. If I had received a guaranteed five per cent interest rate in my superannuation fund for every year for the last 10 or 12 years, I would have done an awfully lot better than I have done. I put on the record that that is an issue that we would do well to consider.

In closing, I will comment on the speech made yesterday by the member for Maylands, who is currently in the chair, so I am sorry that she is not able to interject should she wish to do so. The member used her time quite appropriately to talk about whatever she liked, and I want to pick up on her remarks about the issue of gay marriage. I note that she said in her speech that 10 per cent of the population identifies as same-sex attracted. That figure is often bandied about. Interestingly, that figure came about from the publication of Dr Alfred Kinsey. Dr Alfred Kinsey has now been exposed as what we would today call a paedophile. The experiments that he did on children would put him in jail today. His so-called 10 per cent figure came from

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

interviewing long-term prisoners in an all-male prison in the United States. Ten per cent of the long-term male prisoners in that prison were engaged in homosexual contact. On that basis, he says that 10 per cent of the population is same-sex oriented, which is hardly a proper scientific conclusion. Indeed, Dr Judith Reisman and Edward W. Eichel wrote a book entitled Kinsey, Sex and Fraud: The Indoctrination of a People. I heartily recommend that book, which has been around for a while, to see what has been going on in that area.

It is interesting that in the Netherlands, where same-sex marriage has been legal since the very early 2000s, fewer than 10 per cent of same-sex couples have actually exercised the right to marry. When asked why not, they say that it is because it is not marriage. As someone once said, it does not matter how often we call a circle a square; it does not make it a square. It is not discrimination to call a circle a circle and a square a square; they are two different things, so we use different words to describe them. I put it to this house that although there is no doubt that people in same-sex relationships value their relationships, they are different from marriage relationships, and we cannot escape that.

Mr P. Papalia: How does that relate to the percentage of gay people in the community?

Mr P. ABETZ: In Australia? About one to two per cent.

Mr P. Papalia: How does the contention that you just put forward relate to the percentage of gay people?

Mr P. ABETZ: Ten per cent of all those who are in permanent relationships in the Netherlands have chosen to exercise the right to marry; it is 10 per cent of those who are in that kind of relationship.

In the couple of minutes I have left, I want to add something that will change the subject a little. I believe that one of the pressures we are feeling on our budgets is the cost of family breakdown. In 2010, Access Economics was commissioned by the federal government to quantify in economic terms the value provided by positive family functioning and to conduct a cost-benefit analysis to establish the returns to government and society on investments made in supporting family functioning. The 153-page report measured three broad areas of outcome: health outcomes, observed through the occurrence of anxiety and depression, obesity and substance abuse; productivity outcomes, reflected in secondary and tertiary educational achievements and impact on lifetime earnings; and social outcomes, measured through antisocial behaviours and so on.

Access Economics' conclusion was staggering. The net present value of benefits from intervening in childhood and adolescence to prevent poor outcomes later in life was in the order of $5.4 billion per annum, in 2010 dollars. This recognises that intervention costs money today, but that benefits are realised for a long time into the future, giving a very positive return. Under this methodology, Access Economics estimated productivity gains at $2.9 billion per annum. An amount of $1.2 billion was saved from fewer addictions each year and $0.6 billion from fewer cases of anxiety and depression, and $0.5 billion could be attributed to a lower incidence of criminal behaviour and $0.3 billion from a reduction in obesity. These findings were based on the rigorous analysis of two longitudinal studies—one for children aged up to nine years and the other for older children. The key finding of the report was that positive family functioning is economically and socially valuable and that value can be quantitatively measured using the extensive and detailed “cost of illness” methodology traditionally adopted to analyse interventions in the health sector.

Similar results have come from research carried out in the United States and in other places. I believe that one of the things we really need to do as a government, in an ongoing way, is to ensure that we do all that we can to assist families to be a stable environment for kids to grow up in, and many of the things that we have in our budget serve to achieve that.

MR C.D. HATTON (Balcatta) [4.03 pm]: I rise to contribute to debate on the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Recurrent 2013–14 Bill 2013 and the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Capital 2013–14 Bill 2013. This is a responsible budget that takes into consideration the massive changes impacting on our economy. The Liberal–National government has previously delivered responsible budgets that have enabled strong economic outcomes for Western Australians. Since 2008, this government has done what is necessary for this great state to prosper in times of worldwide economic and fiscal gloom. We are the most robust of all the states, contributing to the overall sustainability of the whole country.

The Liberal–National government has encouraged business and mining investment. The growth of the mining sector has helped sustain small and medium businesses and business enterprise, which has provided employment and opportunities for individuals and families. The rate of growth in recent years has been strong; population growth in Western Australia has been enormous. More than 1 000 people are moving to Western Australia each week, which represents more than 75 000 people each year in recent years. There is no doubt that this growth has placed increasing pressure on our infrastructure—that is, hospitals, housing, roads and essential services. Over recent years, this government has managed this growth with strong fiscal planning. When hospitals have had to be built or upgraded, this government has responded for the people of Western Australia. There has been

Extract from *Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

massive investment in hospitals over the last term of government; Fiona Stanley Hospital is to be opened next year and the new children's hospital is under construction. There is also investment in hospitals in Midland, Joondalup, Busselton, Kalgoorlie and Albany, including both city and regional hospitals. They are being refurbished, upgraded and built. Medical provision in Western Australia is amongst the best in the world; we are a world leader, and this government is still investing in hospitals and has a responsible plan for staffing and management for the future. Health infrastructure investment will exceed several billion dollars over the forward estimates, and it is hard to question that sort of investment in people's health.

When schools have had to be built, this government has responded and met the needs of our young. There are five new schools near completion, and a further four to be built by 2015. More than $100 million is being spent on building high schools and colleges, and $230 million is being invested in accommodation for the new year 7 cohort to enter high school in 2015 and beyond. This is necessary planning and investment in educating our society to prosper in the future. Education, as I have said before in this chamber, is the benchmark of our society.

Policing, law and order, and protecting the people of Western Australia are always major priorities of this Liberal-National government. This budget will deliver 550 new police officers, to be recruited over the next four years, and 80 officers in 2013-14. More than $280 million will be invested over the next four years so that people can feel safe in this great state. We owe it to the people of Western Australia to be a committed government that provides safe environments, with the capacity to assist people in need and to arrest offenders. We need police on the beat, and the announcement of extra funding—$282 million—for the plan to free up the court systems means that officers can be back out policing the streets. That is what people expect and what this government will do. People in my electorate of Balcatta, many of whom are elderly, will welcome greater police visibility and access.

At the March 2013 state election, the people of Western Australia put their faith in this government, realising that it would deliver for the good of communities. It has delivered, it is still delivering, and it will continue to deliver, even in this challenging economic climate. Our economy is now changing; mining sector investment is in transition, with a movement away from construction. The drivers of growth have changed; our resource revenue base is less and declining GST revenue could seriously impact on the people of Western Australia. That is why this budget is responsible; it recognises the changing economy and what needs to be done. The Western Australian economy is forecast to grow by 3.25 per cent in 2013-14, which is the highest growth forecast for any state this year.

How do we move forward in difficult times and continue to have fiscal sustainability? The presented budget is embedded with a $6.8 billion fiscal action plan providing an operating surplus of $386 million in 2013-14 following an estimated surplus of $235 million in 2012-13. The fiscal action plan responds to significant pressure on the state to deliver services and infrastructure. There are significant demand pressures; for example, over 8 000 entered the public school system in semester 1 this year. This government is investing an estimated $582 million in 2013-14 and a total of $1.5 billion over the forward estimates into school infrastructure. In the four years up to 2011-12 there was a 6.9 per cent increase per annum in emergency presentations to WA hospitals—well above the national average of 4.3 per cent. The enormous population growth pressure in WA has put demands on hospitals. However, this government has policies and practices in place, such as the four-hour rule in emergency presentations, and has responded to people's medical requirements. A very good example of this is Fremantle Hospital, which has become an example of best practice for the whole of Australia. I congratulate the Minister for Health on his excellent vision and persistence in meeting the health needs of the people of Western Australia.

Another demand pressure relates to transport and roads. Public transport boardings reached 150 million people in 2012-13, up from 144 million in the previous year. Only 90.5 million boardings were recorded in 2003-04. We can see that rapid population expansion is putting pressure on public transport. Nearly 100 000 more vehicles were registered in 2012-13 than were registered in the previous year, and 2.2 million vehicles are now on WA roads. There is clearly a high demand on road and transport requirements. As every commuter knows, traffic congestion and public transport are key issues that people want action on. The Liberal-National government is committed to deliver road and rail infrastructure to this state. This is what the people of WA want and need. We are a government that will respond and deliver. The combined asset investment program of the Department of Transport, Main Roads and the Public Transport Authority is a record $1.7 billion in 2013-14. Over the next four years until 2016-17, this government has committed a total of $5.7 billion to transport infrastructure—a further increase in investment than over the past four years. As we have heard before in this chamber, this investment is the equivalent of four Perth-Mandurah rail lines. It is a far better infrastructure investment than the previous state Labor government could ever deliver.

I am very pleased that this budget includes a housing supply package in the response to the need for housing. There is great pressure on housing stock in Perth city and beyond, and this government will expand affordable

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

rental properties under the national rental affordability scheme. The government will re-target the first home buyer grant and will look towards simplifying and streamlining residential planning and building approvals. I see great benefits to builders, homebuyers and those in the rental market. Affordable housing, ownership and rental are key issues in the Balcatta electorate, and these budget measures and strategies will help people. An additional $47.8 million will be allocated to the national rental affordability scheme.

I am confident that this budget will deliver real outcomes for the people of Western Australia. Essential services needs will be met in health, education, and law and order, and transport needs and road infrastructure will be delivered in a measured way. Road congestion will continue to be addressed by this budget.

The budget fiscal action plan is responsible in that it reflects the tough decisions that have needed to be taken to secure the future of Western Australia. As has been said before, declining GST revenue imposed unfairly by the federal Labor government has had a major impact on state finances. To offset declining revenue input, this government's budget has introduced necessary, sensible and considered reform measures that will benefit all. There will be a reform of government service delivery models and flexibility will be brought into public sector workforce management. A voluntary severance scheme has been offered to many people and will continue to be offered; the uptake is expected to be high. It will be of benefit to many public sector workers and to the state, with savings of over $350 million in the forward estimates. The new public sector wages policy will create savings.

There will be modest tax increases and the introduction of a $4 000-a-year public school tuition fee for the children of 457 visa holders to partly cover the costs of educating these children will offer revenue gains. As a long-term schoolteacher prior to entering Parliament, I know many a time when I was in the classroom when I struggled to find a way to teach literacy to new Australians and children of 457 visa holders. These were good people—great people—but the burden on the schoolteacher in the classroom became great. We have to employ more teacher assistants and bring in new programs, and there is a definite difficulty in resourcing that. The system needs a little input, and this is a very good and fair way of doing that.

The savings gained from tax measures and public sector reform will offset deficits and continue to allow Western Australians to have essential services and quality infrastructure. Many will welcome the large infrastructure programs that are in addition to hospitals, education, rail and road. In the CBD, Elizabeth Quay and the Perth stadium will become focal inner-city destinations, adding to the vibrancy of the city. Royalties for regions in country WA will remain strong and supportive of the needs of country populations. I congratulate the Liberal–National government on the management and implementation of royalties for regions.

In my electorate of Balcatta, people will continue to have opportunities and benefits from this budget. The budget will deliver to Balcatta a major upgrade for Reid Highway between Erindale and Duffy Roads. This will greatly ease traffic congestion in that busy area and improve safety for road users. Reid Highway, from Erindale Road to the freeway, will become safer and quicker to traverse. It will be a major benefit to road users, including me and my family.

Osborne Park Hospital, in my electorate, will have a major parking and public transport upgrade. Outpatients, hospital employees, local residents and hospital visitors will benefit from a multimillion-dollar budget commitment to upgrade the Osborne Park Hospital precinct. This hospital provides a vast range of services and the upgrade of the precinct will be well received by hospital patrons and employees. I also welcome the decision to fund a much-needed bus shelter outside the hospital. It is a small investment, but a necessary one. This bus shelter will be welcomed by those who use public transport, especially elderly people, and those people who attend the hospital.

In my electorate, West Balcatta Primary School's administration block is undergoing renewal. The upgrade is a demonstration of the government's commitment to infrastructure, in this case in schools. Five of the 10 schools in my electorate now have 40-kilometre-an-hour flashing lights in school zones, as Tuart Hill Primary School now has them too. This government's commitment to install 40-kilometre-an-hour flashing lights at every school in Western Australia—more than 900 schools—in the next four years is a significant investment in children's safety. I am of the belief that the other five schools in my electorate will soon also have those very necessary safety measures.

The KidSport program is a great program.

Mr N.W. Morton: It is a good program.

Mr C.D. HATTON: As a former teacher, the member for Forrestfield knows about this program. Young children participate in physical activity for their own wellbeing and to engage in the community. The KidSport program benefits children and families. Due to this investment in this fantastic program, young children are

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

becoming more engaged. A teacher at Osborne Primary School in my electorate has engaged a range of children from different backgrounds—it is a multicultural school—in football, basketball and other events inside and outside the school. She has gone out to the community and educated them on the KidSport program, so the uptake has been fantastic.

[Member's time extended.]

Mr C.D. HATTON: The government has committed $200 to every child who applies for this grant for uniforms, sporting equipment and other needs. It really engages kids.

I will visit Osborne Primary School in a couple of weeks to present this teacher with an award, which she thoroughly deserves.

This government continues to support the very, very successful independent public schools program. In my electorate, a number of schools have already taken up this program. I know that it is working very well. The government is prepared to invest in not only the infrastructure of schools and education, but also how those schools are run, operated and staffed. I look forward to that further commitment.

This budget is a responsible budget. It meets the demands of the changing economy and the needs of Western Australians. It delivers broadly across communities. It will deliver real benefits to Western Australians and to people in my electorate. I congratulate the Premier, Deputy Premier, Treasurer and cabinet on delivering a sensible budget.

MR D.C. NALDER (Alfred Cove) [4.24 pm]: I stand in support of the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Recurrent 2013–14 Bill 2013 and the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Capital 2013–14 Bill 2013 and in so doing stand in support of the Premier and the Treasurer of Western Australia. I start my speech today by looking at the events of the past week and commending the Premier and cabinet. Wise words were once said: success seems to be connected with action. Successful organisations keep moving; they make mistakes, but they never quit. Our Premier and government have demonstrated that they are taking action to get things done with a clear vision for this state. It is not difficult to see the achievements around our state and in metropolitan Perth. We have committed $7.5 billion for infrastructure improvements in this financial year alone. An unprecedented $26.9 billion is committed to infrastructure investment over the next four years. It will be spent on hospitals, benchmarked by Fiona Stanley Hospital and a new children's hospital, and schools.

As our cities grow to the north, south and west, money will be spent on rail and roads to meet record population growth. We are investing in entertainment precincts through linking Northbridge and Chinatown with our city and developing the Perth Arena, Elizabeth Quay and a new stadium at Burswood. We are investing in law and order in our community, with 550 new officers on the beat and eight new magistrates in the courts. In education, we will spend an average of $15 621 per student this year, which is an increase of $513 a student from last year. We will invest $1.5 billion to build new schools and improve existing schools. My electorate is fortunate to receive an additional $19 million to finish the redevelopment of Applecross Senior High School. Metro Area Express light rail will connect the growing northern suburbs and the Perth CBD, and from Victoria Park in the east to the QEII Medical Centre in Nedlands in the west. This will drive growth and link communities that are independent from the city and create new hubs for trades, services and local community. This budget has a focus on these local communities. An amount of $15 million has been committed to bike paths, while $40.7 million has been committed to camping sites and low-cost holidays statewide. An amount of $10.3 million will be spent over three years to upgrade 23 police and community youth centres.

For regional areas, $300 million over five years will go to WA farmers to capitalise on the Asian demand for produce. An amount of $40 million will go to agricultural research and development. An amount of $20 million will be spent to beat pests and disease. There will a targeted review of residential planning and building approval processes.

This government has not forgotten those who need our assistance most. There are senior concessions of up to $1 412 per annum. The hardship utility grants will be provided on top of an annual average power subsidy of $369 a household. An amount of $47.8 million will go towards affordable housing. The list is comprehensive and dynamic. The budget is focused and it has its priorities right and all at a time when Western Australia is facing economic and social pressures not seen for many generations.

A government focused on action will, on occasion, misstep. On Monday morning, the Premier had the courage to admit a mistake and immediately resolve the issue following extensive community consultation over the weekend. I applaud the Premier and cabinet for the speed and manner in which the feed-in tariff issue was resolved. We now need to move on. Much more needs to be done.

A matter of public interest is an opportunity for the opposition to debate an issue that it feels is impacting the community unfairly, an issue that requires the attention of this place over all other business of the day. On

Extract from *Hansard
[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]
p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

Tuesday, the Leader of the Opposition chose the feed-in tariff as the topic of his MPI. Given the government's swift and decisive action, those opposite were left with little to argue. We were subjected to an MPI on a matter that had become of little importance. However disappointing, this is not surprising.

A focus on recent contributions from those opposite shines a light on the ineptitude of the opposition and reinforces why Labor is in opposition and why it should not be trusted to be anything but in opposition. I have sat quietly and listened closely to the words of my colleagues opposite as they have delivered their budget replies in this place. Repetition is a common theme. Criticism of the level of state debt has been popular. So has their willingness to offer additional policy after policy that would ignorantly balloon the problem. It is easy to criticise when in opposition. It is easy to make promises when in opposition. It is also laughable to think that should the Labor Party come to government in the future, it would become fiscal conservatives and —

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

Mr D.C. NALDER: Let us look at the policies and promises the Labor Party has offered their electorates in their contributions to this debate.

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER (Mr P. Abetz): Member for Armadale, I call you for the first time.

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Armadale, I call you for the second time.

Mr D.C. NALDER: Let us look at the policies and promises the Labor Party has offered the electorate in its members' contributions to the debate on these bills. I can only assume that these policies, if the opposition were to form government, would become their policies of the day.

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members!

Mr D.C. NALDER: I will go through the list quickly, and there is quite a list. I have had the opportunity to review —

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

Mr D.C. NALDER: Listen quietly, member.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Armadale, I do not want to put you on a third call.

Mr D.C. NALDER: Let us look at what every member of the opposition has had to say. Let us start with Metronet at $5.2 billion; the Metronet wi-fi, $1 million; the redevelopment of Royal Perth Hospital, $180 million; the mentioned Serco contract and over the term of the contract, $560 million; primary schools in Kwinana, $15 million; further widening of Kwinana Freeway from Armadale Road to Kwinana, $84 million—I have made rough estimates here because I have not had a lot of time, and this is what I have come up with—the Back on Track strategy, an additional $20 million; a 24-hour Ballajura police station, $12 million; an Ellenbrook swimming pool, $7 million; a pipeline, $9.5 million; extra Albany Hospital funding, $20 million; Princess Royal Drive, $3.8 million; the extra funding to Great Southern —

Mr P. Papalia: They are your government's promises.

Mr D.C. NALDER: I am interpreting what members of the opposition have said over the past two days and I assume that their wishes would become policy.

Mr P. Papalia interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Warnbro, I do not want to have to call you to order again.

Mr D.C. NALDER: The grandparent scheme, $3.6 million; more funding for Katanning victims—I do not have a figure; the Albany ring-road, $1 million; the removal of train station parking fees, $20 million; a dialysis machine in Albany, $55 000 —

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Armadale!

Mr D.C. NALDER: Here is an interesting one—9.2 per cent for environmental agencies, $18 million. What the opposition has not done is —

Mr P. Papalia interjected.

Extract from *Hansard
[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]
p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Warnbro, I call you for the first time. Somehow the member for Warnbro has dropped off the list here, but I have been told that he has been called twice before but he is not on my list, unless I cannot read the writing, so the member is very fortunate—there it is, I could not read the writing, sorry. I have called the member for Warnbro for the third time, so you need to watch your mouth.

Mr D.C. NALDER: What is interesting is that members opposite claim an extra $18 million for the 9.2 per cent they claim is missing from the budget for environmental agencies. Closer inspection of that suggests that we have actually budgeted for a 2.2 per cent increase already, so I am unsure why they want the extra $18 million. I will continue reading out the list: the axing of community grants program, $6 million; environmental awards, $100 000; and high tide and storm surge, $600 000.

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members! Interjections are appropriate but not repeated so as to drown out the speaker. I will accept a short interjection, but not one that drowns out the speaker.

Mr D.C. NALDER: Thank you, Mr Acting Speaker. I will spend a little time on this next item—the pastoral land lease buyback that was announced by the shadow Minister for Environment. Are the pastoralists of the north west aware that the shadow minister said we should not reissue leases when they come up for renewal on 30 June 2015? I will give a little credit here because if I read into the detail, he suggested we should force buyback for only 72 per cent of the leases that exist in Western Australia. What would that cost? This is what I would consider as a policy moving forward, and rough estimates on improved land would suggest that the cost would be in the vicinity of $1 billion. That does not take into consideration the 2.5 million cattle sitting out there if, all of a sudden, members opposite decided to force buyback of these leases. I do not know what they would do with that, but that is another $1 billion that I will just leave out for now. Members opposite talked about environmental works for Canning River of $300 000; an upgrade to the Canning Vale and Gosnells Police Stations, $10 million; the removal of a $4 000 fee for 457 visa holders' children over four years, $120 million; the Armadale justice centre, $100 million; keeping the ophthalmology ward open at Armadale–Kelmscott Memorial Hospital, $5.2 million; the Paganoni Road train station, $63 million —

Dr A.D. Buti interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Member for Armadale!

Mr D.C. NALDER: The orthopaedic service in Mandurah over four years, $40 million—I can stop this at any time but it just keeps going—20 police officers in Mandurah, $2.75 million; the conservation grants scheme, $5 million; a third lane for Shelley Bridge, $80 million; the bridge in Millbridge, $18 million; local high schools for the member for Collie–Preston, $6.5 million; LED streetlights, $5 million; the Katanning Police Station, $12 million; heavy rail along Reid Highway, $720 million; the Equal Opportunity Commission of Western Australia, $150 000; additional tourism spending, $24 million; the electricity price cap—which I have not calculated but the member for Midland indicated that they would cap that—is another expense that is not in the numbers at this point; the Midland railway station, $30 million; and the Midland university, $22 million. This spending is in the vicinity of $8.5 billion—plus.

Here comes the real point. Interestingly, when the Deputy Leader of the Opposition asked for a new primary school, he was asked if this would contribute to increased debt and he said, “It is paid for by increased economic management.” I am reasonably well-versed in economics and finance, but I really do not understand what he means. When I consider financial levers, we have either revenue, which is increased tax, or expense, which is starting to tackle the public sector reform, and is what we are trying to do. I do not know what the Deputy Leader of the Opposition intends. By not increasing debt, I assume, if he were in power, that he would either start increasing tax or start cutting recurrent spending. I would like him to clarify that. If we were to give no credence to the ambit claims that opposition members have made throughout their two days of speaking, how can we give any credence to the arguments on state debt? Labor has no credibility on economic and financial matters.

Several members interjected.

The ACTING SPEAKER: Members! The member for Alfred Cove has the call.

Mr D.C. NALDER: This government understands the challenges it faces in trying to position Western Australia for the future. It understands the volatility and risks it must face with commodity prices and exchange rates and it will not shirk from this responsibility to deliver the best possible outcome for Western Australia, and in so doing, where it makes mistakes, taking ownership of that concern, fixing it and moving on. This budget includes a $67.8 billion fiscal action plan over four years with new revenue measures, public sector reforms, targeted savings and program evaluation. A new approach to program and service evaluation will be embedded across the public sector with recurrent savings of $150 million over the forward estimates, and further net debt savings of

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

$200 million also targeted. We will rationalise existing programs and activities that are no longer a priority and do not provide value. This measure is expected to save $52 million in this financial year, and a total of $422 million in expenditure across the next four years. These are good reforms and I look forward to their success and to this government extending them further. This government understands the challenges in the near future and longer term of controlling and drawing down our debt position. We have our eye on the ball and the faith of the electorate to make this our key priority for the coming period. We commit to this, which places this at the fore of all government activities, because in the end fiscally conservative government is just as popular in the community as grand projects and handout sweeteners. I look forward to working with all my parliamentary colleagues across party lines as we work through what is one of the most exciting but challenging times for Western Australia.

MS W.M. DUNCAN (Kalgoorlie — Deputy Speaker) [4.39 pm]: I know that everybody thought they were going home, but I beg members' indulgence for a few minutes to conclude this debate on the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Capital 2013–14 Bill 2013 and the Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Recurrent 2013–14 Bill 2013. I note that this budget really is a new era for development in the goldfields. In tight budgetary circumstances, it is really great to see that the goldfields will benefit from over $100 million in expenditure across various programs in 2013–14 and that we will be able to make a start on the long-awaited Esperance revitalisation plan. The most exciting news of all is the $6.2 million commitment to secure the future of the Goldfields Arts Centre. This is an acknowledgment of the people of Kalgoorlie–Boulder, who made their voices well and truly heard on the need for that arts centre to be refurbished, for it to continue and for its ownership to be clarified. I thank the Premier and the Minister for Regional Development for their commitment to the Goldfields Arts Centre. This funding will certainly go a long way towards enabling that arts centre to deliver art and entertainment in the twenty-first century and, in particular, to host the Regional Arts Australia National Conference and Festival in 2014 in Kalgoorlie–Boulder.

The $6.2 million for the Goldfields Arts Centre is part of the $186 million Goldfields–Esperance revitalisation fund. That fund also includes funding for a new Kalgoorlie–Boulder community high school, $38 million for passing lanes on Great Eastern Highway and $96.8 million for local governments and the Goldfields–Esperance Development Commission to fund the priorities that have been identified in their strategic development plan, into which they have all put a great deal of effort. On top of that, they will benefit from the $16 million allocated from royalties for regions for the regional centres development plan, which will help major centres like Kalgoorlie–Boulder to plan for the future by setting out their growth plans and economic development plans. I am also very pleased to see the support for small business through the changes in payroll tax, the buy-local initiative and small business development centres. This is a time that is pretty important in Kalgoorlie–Boulder and the goldfields. With the price of gold going down and pressures on the mining industry, it is good to see that these supports are there for small business.

There are two programs in particular that I am pleased will be continued. The first is the wild dog management plan, with $2.3 million allocated over four years. That program, which was under royalties for regions, was about to conclude. The government has recognised the fact that wild dogs are a really big problem in the pastoral areas and have actually meant that many pastoralists are now unable to continue to run small stock. I am also very pleased to see the exploration incentive scheme continued, with $54.6 million for that program. It is interesting to note that the exploration incentive scheme was considered so important in last year's budget that it was to be taken back under consolidated revenue. However, given the very tight financial circumstances, the scheme looked like it might not continue. I am very pleased that it is now back under the wings of royalties for regions, because over the last four years $40 million of co-funded drilling has been undertaken, supporting over 377 projects. Not only that, but also the funding has assisted with the undertaking of geophysical surveys across the state and online tenement applications and approvals, which hopefully are making a real difference with one of those big issues that the mining industry talks about a lot—red tape.

The $6.2 million for the Goldfields Arts Centre is augmented by the $24 million in royalties for regions funding for the regional arts program, which will help arts groups, touring performances and Aboriginal art centres. I draw the attention of members to one program that I really hope will benefit from this. NG Media does great work out in the Ngaanyatjarra lands. They have a program called community for community where they are training up the local people in film, television, music and radio. The aim of the program is to help preserve their culture and language and ensure that it is passed on to the young people. This is a way to preserve their stories, songs and lives for others in the region to enjoy and hear. They are doing a fantastic job. I went and had a look at the NG Media premises in Wingellina last year. It is just an oasis out there. The kids are thoroughly enjoying it. There is some highly skilled work going on out there. The product they are delivering is going into the mainstream media.

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

A few other things that are really beneficial to my region include the $2.9 million in funding to help visitor centres; $6.6 million, or $30 000 each, to upgrade community pools; the really great assistance of $1 million in funding to assist young, talented athletes with their travel costs to get to training; and, of course, the emergency services funding, which has been touched on by other members. The other part of that is the $2 000 fuel card for volunteer emergency service groups in regional areas. That will certainly be a great recognition of the incredible work volunteers do in regional areas.

Telehealth services, which are making a great deal of difference in regional areas, are also being funded. They will be a hub, particularly in the goldfields. I have seen the telehealth set-up at the Laverton health centre. It is certainly making a great deal of difference. I heard firsthand of a person who had been quite severely injured in a car accident and was brought into the hospital and dealt with extremely well using telehealth. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate four staff from the Laverton Hospital who have been nominated for this year's WA Nursing and Midwifery Excellence Awards. When they were interviewed about their jobs, they said how much the telehealth service was making a difference. Those staff are Christine Stubberfield, who is a finalist in the primary and community care category, Elissa Stout, Jasmine Brown and Kirsten Fleming, all from the WA Country Health Service. My congratulations go to those girls. They have been in Laverton for a long time. They love where they live and they are delivering an excellent service. That is great news.

I mentioned earlier that Kalgoorlie–Boulder and the goldfields are feeling the pressure of reduced mining activity, so it was a pleasure the other day to accompany the Minister for Corrective Services in turning the first sod at the regional prison. That is a $232 million project, with a strong commitment to use local businesses and employ local people. It will provide a great benefit to the people of Kalgoorlie–Boulder. I had the pleasure of watching the development of the West Kimberley Regional Prison near Derby from planning right through almost to completion as member for the Mining and Pastoral Region. I was very impressed with the Department of Corrective Services and how it was managing that project.

Mr C.J. Barnett: That is fantastic. The prison will be fantastic; as good as it gets.

Ms W.M. DUNCAN: Just the sensitivity to the cultural needs of the Aboriginal people who will be in those prisons is something for which I would be really grateful if the minister would pass on credit to his officers. I really look forward to seeing a similar outcome in Kalgoorlie–Boulder.

In addition to the goldfields revitalisation fund there is funding under the regional development fund, the regional grants program and the regional strategic projects, which will assist with other great projects in the goldfields. I will endeavour to talk about those on another occasion because I know that we have all had a very long week and are looking forward to heading home.

One thing I would like to do just in the last couple of minutes is to follow on from the earlier acknowledgement by the Minister for Regional Development of the 100th anniversary of the National Party. Since 2004 I have been working on putting a book together that recounts the history of this great little party. We started off with Heather Dreyer and John Saint—John being a distinguished service medal holder of the Nationals—endeavouring to do this on a voluntary basis. Unfortunately, they are no longer with us—either of them—which has really set the project back. I record my grateful thanks to Associate Professor Lenore Layman, who took up this project to help me co-edit and complete this book. She is doing that really for the love of it and making a huge deal of difference with the assistance of Associate Professor Bobbie Oliver and Dr Ron Chapman. Our little party was established out of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, which was formed in 1913. Its members then set about standing for seats in Parliament in the 1914 elections. Two Country Party representatives, Charles F. Baxter and H. Carson, were elected to the Legislative Council in May 1914. Then in the Legislative Assembly election Francis Edward Sykes Willmott and Harry Griffiths, James Gardiner, Alfred Piesse, Henry Hickmont, John Cunningham, Charles Wansbrough and Thomas Harrison were elected. I draw attention to the first leader of the Nationals, James Gardiner, who is a forebear of Hon Phil Gardiner, a member of the previous government; Henry Hickmont is a forebear of Hon Brendon Grylls; and of course Francis Edward Sykes Willmott is a forebear of well-known Western Australian Deidre Willmott. We are therefore all very proud to see our little party make it to 100 years. Now, having got the manuscript pretty well complete for our book, we are looking forward to finding the money to get it printed.

Mr C.J. Barnett: I'm sure R for R will be able to help out!

Ms W.M. DUNCAN: I am working on that!

On that note, I thank you, Mr Acting Speaker (Mr I.C. Blayney), and other members of the house for allowing me this time. I greatly appreciate the budget and what it will do for the seat of Kalgoorlie.

MR T.R. BUSWELL (Vasse — Treasurer) [4.52 pm] — in reply: In the hour or so available to me I look forward to winding up the business of the house on the second reading debate on the budget for this year. I am

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]

p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

not going to say much, other than firstly to extend my surprise to members opposite at the extent to which I understand they missed me earlier today. For their information, as may have been relayed, I was in Port Hedland where Fortescue Metals Group officially commissioned its new ship loader and port at what is known as Anderson Point 5.

Of course it was a day tinged with sorrow because a contractor on the FMG site lost his life at work last night. It really reminds everybody of the dangers of working in an industry that is so important to the state. It has had a good record of late of course in that space, but no-one expects to go to work and not come home. I am sure, Mr Speaker, on behalf of members present and those not present, I can extend our sympathies to that particular young man, to his family and to his workmates. I will make one observation. We were not at that site; we were at the port. But I got a real appreciation today of the genuine concern about that outcome by the senior executives of that company who were gathered for the official opening of the port facility. I can say, having witnessed it firsthand, that their desire to respond appropriately was very, very high. Their concern obviously for the family, the friends and the workmates of that individual was significant and appropriate. To be frank, amazed is not the word to describe my feelings, but it really had an impact on me to see how something like that impacted on an entire organisation from the most senior executives down through the organisation. Our prayers are of course with his family and workmates and let us hope that sort of thing does not happen again for a long time in the state.

I suppose the flip side is that we were opening a facility there that will take FMG's capacity through that small part of Australia to 155 million tonnes of iron ore per annum. That is a lot of economic activity out of one very small part of Western Australia. Considering that the current sale price of iron ore is up around $US140 a tonne, that is an enormous amount of wealth being generated not only for the company, its investors and employees, but also more broadly for the state. I did a rough back-of-the-envelope calculation. That one small parcel of land, Herb Elliott Port, will generate, at 155 million tonnes per annum, around $1.2 billion of royalty income for the state. It is just amazing to stand there and try to understand that in economic terms. Of course we have an obligation to spend that wisely, and that is what the government tries to do through the budget process.

I listened carefully to members opposite. I acknowledge a particular contribution made by the member for Maylands. The member for Maylands' second reading contribution was obviously deeply personal for her, but I think it would have caused reflection and contemplation in anyone who heard it. I extend my thanks to her for sharing with the house a quite rich life tapestry and life journey full of a lot of obstacles that many of us would never imagine.

Of course members, as is the nature in this place, spend a lot of time explaining what we should not have done. I am not going to make too much of the politics of it. I think the member for Alfred Cove summed it up very nicely in his contribution earlier this afternoon. When we consider that the budget papers are a fixed set of documents printed in black and white, it was almost as though there were two parallel universes in operation in the chamber. I understand what it is like. I have been in opposition and I think that commentary—not that I have read what I said when I was in opposition—has been an entirely worthwhile contribution to the public debate in the state. I think whatever I said at the time was not dissimilar to what members of the opposition said this time around. However, I can tell members opposite that the government and all members of the government, whom members opposite heard from in their contribution, are of a very strong view that the fundamentals of this budget are very strong. They are very sound —

Mr M. McGowan interjected.

Mr T.R. BUSWELL: They are very strong, Leader of the Opposition, and they are very sound. The budget is the continuation of the construction of a very solid platform for this state, both economically and socially, to grow into the century ahead.

I will close with some quick comments. It is true to say that debt levels are and will be a challenge for the government to manage over this term of government. We have a job of work to do in that space. But I also remind all members present that the infrastructure we are constructing today is not infrastructure that will be used and consumed by those people in Western Australia who live here for the period of the next forward estimates. They are in many cases intergenerational investments in social and economic infrastructure. I imagine that my sons—and hopefully their children and perhaps their children—will have the opportunity to use the new children's hospital; although not my sons any more as they have graduated past a children's hospital. I also hope that they will be able to enjoy the train line to the airport, which I suspect will be there for a century at least.

Mr C.J. Barnett: They'll probably like Elizabeth Quay, I reckon.

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Thursday, 15 August 2013]
p3576d-3594a

Mr John McGrath; Acting Speaker; Ms Josie Farrer; Mr Peter Abetz; Mr Chris Hatton; Mr Dean Nalder; Ms Wendy Duncan; Mr Troy Buswell

---

Mr T.R. BUSWELL: I was about to get to that, Premier, and thank you for reminding me. Of course they will enjoy all those things: the stadium, Elizabeth Quay and the light rail network that will provide a fantastic basis upon which to construct a new approach to public transport in the state.

Mr J.H.D. Day: And the Western Australian Museum.

Mr T.R. BUSWELL: Yes, and the Museum. I am right onto that one.

Mr C.J. Barnett: I have met your boys; they are very mature.

Mr T.R. BUSWELL: It is a large expensive building full of dead things.

Mr C.J. Barnett: That is something I think they would enjoy; the Museum.

Mr T.R. BUSWELL: Unlike their father, I suspect my boys would have a far greater appreciation of the Museum, and definitely the art gallery next door!

These are long-term, intergenerational assets, but we do need to work on developing a strategy to pay down state debt. We have to lift our eyes up beyond the horizon that is currently presented by the forward estimates. These assets will clearly last beyond that time. It is a challenge and the government and I will not resile from that challenge. However, the government does not and will not apologise for borrowing that money today, in the present, to deliver that infrastructure because we think that this is the time to be providing that infrastructure.

I again thank all members for their varied contributions. I am sure that I speak on behalf of all my ministerial colleagues and those in this place who represent ministers, when I say how much we are looking forward to the estimates hearings next week when we will be able to explore some of the more detailed items in the budget papers.

Questions put and passed.

Bills read a second time.

Pursuant to standing order 222, bills and estimates referred to Estimates Committees A and B.

12/1/2016

Power station privatisation on the cards, according to WA Premier Colin Barnett | Perth Now

News

Perth Now

---

News

Power station privatisation on the cards, according to WA Premier Colin Barnett

- by: Joe Spagnolo, political editor
- From: PerthNow
- September 25, 2013 3:04PM

Share

x

Share this story

- Facebook
- Twitter
-
- Google
- Email

9

9

WA Premier Colin Barnett says WA's power stations may be privatised to pay off mounting debt.

Source: The Australian

PREMIER Colin Barnett says WA's power stations may be privatised to pay off mounting debt and get back WA's AAA credit rating.

Speaking on 6PR radio today, Mr Barnett said energy generator Verve would not be privatised - but some government-owned power stations could be sold off.

12/1/2016

Power station privatisation on the cards, according to WA Premier Colin Barnett | Perth Now

He also said some projects proposed by the government would be cancelled - or their start up timetables put back - in order to counter state debt, which Treasury forecasts will hit the $28 billion mark before the next election in 2017.

"In the 1990s there was a lot of assets sale - nothing like that is contemplated," Mr Barnett said.

"We won't be selling utilities - there won't be a sale of the Water Corporation, or Western Power or Verve or the TAB.

"But we may sell some of the components of those businesses.

"For example, you might sell a power station but not sell Verve.

"Verve has a full suite of power stations so maybe one of those might be sold.'

"But that's not privatising Verve."

Mr Barnett said there were "some contradictions" that the state, which keeps a tight rein on gambling - allowing only a certain number of pokie machines in James Packer's Crown Casino - would own TAB.

But it provided a means of supporting the racing industry so it would be retained, he said.

If the state did not have the benefit of the revenue it brought in, the government "would be facing request after request for track upgrades" and the like, he said.

Any asset sales would be ones that weren't particularly important to the wider public, he said.

Mr Barnett, under fire for losing the AAA credit rating, said he believed the state could cope with a $14 billion increase in state debt in five years.

Although he had inherited a $3.6 billion state debt in 2008, that figure was not at $18.5 billion - and climbing.

Mr Barnett conceded that the government's infrastructure program would be slowed down.

"Perhaps we went a bit too hard a bit too early," he said.

Debt costs outweigh future fund returns

The Premier also told 6PR that the future fund, designed to quarantine some of Western Australia's mining royalties for future generations, isn't making enough cash to offset the state's increased cost of borrowing.

The fund was the centrepiece of the 2012/13 budget and is being established with more than $1 billion in seed capital over four years, mainly using money from the Royalties for Regions fund.

While it's forecast to grow to $4.7 billion within 20 years, opposition treasury spokesman Ben Wyatt has cast doubt on whether it will even make a return.

Mr Wyatt says it is actually being funded by borrowings, which are used for investments, and then placed in a marginally interest-bearing account.

But the cost of debt had gone up with the state losing its AAA credit rating, so the fund was losing money, he said.

Mr Barnett conceded the fund wasn't making enough to counter higher borrowing costs, but said the loans were for capital works projects.

"We pay a little bit more on what we borrow compared to what we receive from the future fund," Mr Barnett

12/1/2016

Power station privatisation on the cards, according to WA Premier Colin Barnett | Perth Now told 6PR.

"That is true, but we're not borrowing, as such, to put into the future fund."

Mr Barnett said only one per cent of the fund would come from royalties after the seed capital was injected.

The premier said Mr Wyatt "could argue" the remainder would be debt "but that doesn't defeat the need for a future fund".

"It's all in one big pot," Mr Barnett said.

with AAP

Comments \(#social-comments\)

- facebook
- twitter
- linkedin
- google +
- reddit
- email

9 comments

Sign in

2 people listening

|  |  |          |       |                    |
|--|--|----------|-------|--------------------|
|  |  |          |       |                    |
|  |  | + Follow | Share | Post comment as... |

To comment or reply, please login or create an account.

Newest | Oldest | Top Comments

Ray

Sep 26, 2013

Barnett is the worst premier we have had in years, I did not vote for him because I know what he is like. He should have resigned years ago.

Like Reply

Peter

Sep 25, 2013

Does he really know what he is doing?

Oppositions don't win Govt - they give it away - WA put him in and now we have to live with it!

He and other Libs blame Fed Labor for their ways - he has done exactly the same- and he didn't have GFC to deal with!!!! Don't forget the "big picture" though!

Like Reply

12/1/2016

Power station privatisation on the cards, according to WA Premier Colin Barnett | Perth Now

Jarrad

Sep 25, 2013

It's time you and buswel where shown the door .

Like Reply

Shane

Sep 25, 2013

Quote- "A bit hard to early", I add comment, arrogant and competent at the start. Arrogant and competent now. Still equals incompetancy. WA voters like this overwhelmingly. I chose to stay away from my beloved home, wonder why?????

Like Reply

Greg

Sep 25, 2013

If you let Barnett sell off your power and gas it won't give you AAA for long as you will have less assets to fall back on and if you think private companies will be cheaper, think again and look what people in other states pay for their power. Plus the gov then put up other charges to cover the loss from what those asserts use to give them. All I can say is say no loudly.

Like Reply

Hutchy Hutchy

Sep 25, 2013

Barnett just admit it your a failure you go out and spend big then it bites us hard working aussies in the backside whilst you sit there with a high income. Instead of selling of assets how about you government personell whoo are high paid all take pay cuts. You threaten us with GST raise and for what to make us pay more taxes for your mistakes MR BARNETT you are a disgrace now you want to start selling our assets i think its time you hand the position over to someone who is a lot more sensible than what you are. How about you try and do the right thing by us for a change instead of thinking of your own personal gratification and image ( as look at me look what i have done it has my name on it ) get over yourself barnett everything dosent revolve around you. Maybe you should have to seek public vote for when you want to purchase or build things and that goes for the whole government in general.

Like Reply

Ray

Sep 25, 2013

Sell the new stadium and the foreshore developments first,Muja wont be worth much.

2 Like Reply

andrew

Sep 25, 2013

You don't sell your house to pay off a credit card, no you just stop living outside of you means. Once assets are gone they are hard to get back and this government needs to forget about a quick fix as the money they will gain will soon be gone and the debt level will be the same. Just stop spending Mr Barnett and leave some projects for a better time as this is a more mature thing to do. It is a shame that we as a state are poor and yet we have huge amounts of money that has come to us through mining but now has been squandered.

Like Reply

Lesley

Sep 25, 2013

Absolutely right, where has all that money gone, the projects Barnett was going to do are hardly started in any case not that we particularly needed them at this moment with the global crisis etc. The labor fed government put up a lot of the funding the the hospital and infrastructure in any case, so what has Barnett put up to build these projects, not much I would guess, they are stalled now because there is a fed lib government who won't help fund the projects. Another bell tower.

Like Reply

11/30/2016

Parliamentary Questions &amp; Answers

Question Without Notice No. 36 asked in the Legislative Assembly on 20 February 2014
by Mr M.P. Murray

Parliament: 39 Session: 1*Answered on

TAB — PRIVATISATION

36. Mr M.P. MURRAY to the Minister for Racing and Gaming:

I refer to the highly unusual public statements made by officers from Racing and Wagering Western Australia opposing the privatisation of the TAB.

- (1) What is the minister's position and the Western Australian National Party's position on the government's asset sales task force's targeting of the TAB?
- (2) What feedback from industry stakeholders has the minister received about the privatisation?
- (3) Will the TAB be privatised?

Mr T.K. WALDRON replied:

(1)–(3) I thank the member for the question. I am on record in this place saying that I do not support the privatisation of the TAB. I think that the TAB in Western Australia plays a really important part in the funding and ongoing success and health of the racing industry, which is extremely important to Western Australia. Talking about Racing and Wagering Western Australia, I have discussed this with RWWA on many occasions. RWWA does not support the privatisation of the TAB. I have given an assurance that when the time comes, if RWWA thought it was in the best interests of the racing industry to privatise the TAB, obviously I would listen to that. It is not about to do that, I can assure members of that. From speaking to industry people, there is not support for the privatisation of the TAB. That is the position at the moment.

Mr M. McGowan: Is it the government's position that it will not be privatised?

Mr T.K. WALDRON: Yes.

Mr B.S. Wyatt: Or the National Party's position?

Mr T.K. WALDRON: I do not think the Nationals actually have a formal position on it, but formally the Nationals would not support the privatisation of the TAB. I have said this in this house before: if it was in the best interests of the racing industry, the government would consider it. My experience shows that privatisations in other states, particularly in Tasmania and South Australia, have not been good for the industry. They in fact have been detrimental to the industry. Some of the other privatisations have been different because they have involved poker machines as part of that deal, which has made it a different scenario. I do not support the privatisation of the TAB.

Speech by

Hon Dr Mike Nahan MLA

Treasurer; Minister for Energy; Citizenship and Multicultural Interests

Thursday 8 May 2014

Mr Speaker, I move that this Bill be read a second time.

INTRODUCTION

Mr Speaker, the Liberal-National Government is delivering the right Budget for its time. The 2014-15 Budget responds to the changing economic circumstances and builds on the Government's achievements.

Western Australia is experiencing a challenging fiscal environment at a time when the economy has passed the investment peak, leading to a production phase which will yield a record level of resource exports.

Over the four year budget period, economic growth in Western Australia is expected to outpace growth nationally. This will be supported by projects like Gorgon, which will underpin a doubling of Liquefied Natural Gas exports, and the Roy Hill iron ore project, which will contribute to an almost one-third increase in iron ore exports. This will build on Western Australia's position as the major exporting State, currently accounting for around 48% of the nation's merchandise exports.

This year, the Western Australian economy is forecast to grow by 3.75%, down from 5.1% growth in 2012-13. As business investment continues to moderate from its recent peak, growth in Gross State Product is forecast to ease further to 2.75% in 2014-15.

This moderation in domestic economic conditions is flowing through to lower employment and wages growth. This, in turn, is resulting in weaker growth in taxation collections, particularly payroll tax – the State's largest tax base.

At the same time as our tax collections are moderating, the lagged nature of the GST distribution process means that we are receiving significantly less GST revenue from the Commonwealth, with Western Australia's per capita share of GST revenue falling to a new low of 37.6% in 2014-15, down from 44.6% in 2013-14. This compares to a per capita GST share of 93.6% in 2007-08. In fact, if Western Australia received its population share of GST, we would receive an additional $3.6 billion in 2014-15 alone.

Given the subdued revenue outlook and continuing strong demand for government services driven by a rapidly expanding population, this Budget includes a new package of revenue and savings measures totalling $2 billion over the next four years.

These new revenue and savings measures underpin an expected general government operating surplus of $175 million in 2014-15, a turnaround from the $124 million operating deficit projected in December's Mid-year Review. A general government operating surplus of $183 million is now expected for 2013-14, down from the $437 million surplus forecast in the Mid-year Review.

The new corrective measures implemented in this Budget have also enabled significant additional funding to be directed to meet ongoing demand and community expectations for frontline services, including community health and hospitals, schools, community safety, mental health, disability and child protection services.

Mr Speaker, it is important to recognise that along with the impact of population growth, the community's strong demand for services is compounded by the costs of service delivery in Western Australia. This is highlighted in Commonwealth Grants Commission data, which shows that the cost of providing the same level of services in Western Australia was 15% per capita greater than other States and Territories in 2012-13. This includes spending 41% more per capita on community safety, 17% more on health, and 10% more on schools.

A significant contributing factor to high costs is the high wages paid to police, teachers, nurses and other public servants in Western Australia compared to other States – an issue I shall return to shortly.

SECURING OUR ECONOMIC FUTURE

Mr Speaker, given the challenging fiscal circumstances and pressures on the Budget, it is clear that we need to change the way that government does business to secure our economic future. This includes:

- an increased focus on tax reform, both at State and Commonwealth levels;
- modernising service delivery models and examining the potential for asset divestment;
- containing growth in public sector wages; and
- reducing taxpayer subsidies for electricity, water and public transport through reforms to both pricing and cost structures.

Taxation Reform

In keeping with our 2013 election commitment, the State Government will soon introduce legislation to increase the payroll tax exemption threshold from $750,000 to $800,000 from 1 July 2014 and then to $850,000 from 1 July 2016. This measure, included in last year's Budget, will support employment by small and medium businesses in this State and benefit over 16,000 employers at an estimated cost of $190 million over four years.

Mr Speaker, Western Australia is now reliant on mining royalties for 22% of our total general government revenue. Royalties are a growing but volatile source of revenue, with small fluctuations in the exchange rate and iron ore price resulting in large (and often unexpected) movements in revenue. Property-based stamp duty is also volatile, and is rightly regarded as one of the more inefficient taxes in the country.

However, with GST revenue expected to account for just 8% of total general government revenue in 2014-15, the State Government currently has little choice but to rely on volatile mining royalties and inefficient State taxes.

Against this background, the State Government welcomes the Commonwealth Government's White Paper processes for national tax reform and reform of the Federation. We will continue to actively participate in these processes, including continuing to argue strongly for changes to the way in which GST revenue is distributed among the States.

We also welcome the National Commission of Audit's recommendation that GST revenue be distributed on an equal per capita basis, with fiscally weaker States being compensated by additional grants from the Commonwealth.

Managing Debt through Asset Sales

Combined with modest general government operating surpluses, planned investment in infrastructure to support our rapidly growing State, totalling $23.7 billion over the next four years, will maintain the need for increased borrowings across the forward estimates period. Net debt is forecast to reach $24.9 billion by 30 June 2015, which is manageable and affordable.

The Government will keep a close eye on the State's debt levels, and in conjunction with sound budget management, will pursue an orderly program of asset sales. This program will be overseen by the Premier.

While no decisions have been made concerning individual assets, surplus Government land, including Health Department sites at Princess Margaret Hospital, Royal Perth Hospital, Shenton Park Rehabilitation Centre and Swan Districts Hospital are currently being assessed.

With respect to Port Authorities, the Government will consider the sale of the Kwinana Bulk Terminal and the Utah Point facility at Port Hedland Port.

The Government's continuing ownership of the Perth Market Authority, the TAB and the Water Corporation's assets, such as its wastewater treatment plants, will also be reviewed.

The Government is undertaking a review of the electricity market and following that review and implementation of market reform, the Government will also consider the sale of individual electricity generation assets, such as Muja.

It is considered that these assets do not need to be in State Government ownership; however, they will only be sold where it is in the interests of the Western Australian taxpayer. The revenue generated from asset sales will be used to reduce debt levels and contribute to the cost of new infrastructure.

Wages Policy

Mr Speaker, the Government remains fully committed to the new public sector wages policy, which caps growth in wages and conditions to projected growth in the Perth Consumer Price Index (or CPI), which is forecast to be 2.75% in 2014-15 and 2.5% in subsequent years. This will be assisted by the measures contained in the Workforce Reform Bill that has recently progressed through the Legislative Council.

Limiting wages growth is not only appropriate in the current economic circumstances, it is the fiscally responsible thing to do and will help bring Western Australia in line with other jurisdictions.

Employee expenses represent the single largest cost of the public sector, accounting for around 45% of total general government expenses. Over the five years to 2012-13, growth in Western Australian general government employee expenditure averaged 8.1% per annum, significantly higher when compared to 6.3% in Victoria and 4.9% in New South Wales.

Over this same period, general government revenue in Western Australia only grew by an average of 5.9% per annum.

It is true that stronger wages growth in this State has been fuelled by a need to maintain competitiveness with wages in the private sector, along with strong demand for services driving growth in employee numbers. This is changing. Growth in private sector wages is declining and public sector wage growth in other jurisdictions is also declining.

For the ongoing sustainability of the State's finances, it is essential that public sector wage growth in Western Australia also moderates, and is capped at projected growth in the CPI.

It is also essential that government agencies manage the CPI cap on their salaries budgets. Importantly, if wage outcomes exceed CPI growth, agencies will need to accommodate this within their approved salaries budgets, meaning that staffing levels will necessarily be lower than they would have been with a CPI wage outcome.

Electricity Reform

Mr Speaker, the Government is focused on reducing the costs – and the associated subsidy – of providing electricity. Western Australian taxpayers are currently subsidising the provision of electricity by around half a billion dollars a year. Quite simply, this is not sustainable.

We have already taken significant steps by strategically reviewing Horizon Power's business model, which has produced estimated savings of $175 million over four years, and merging Synergy and Verve Energy into a single entity from 1 January 2014.

And, as recently announced, we are undertaking a review of the entire Western Australian electricity market. This will involve assessing the strengths and weaknesses of the electricity generation, wholesale and retail sectors within the South West Interconnected System and the incentives for industry participants to make efficient investments.

The ultimate objective is to reduce the State's costs of producing and supplying electricity without compromising safety and reliability of supply. In addition, the Government needs to reduce its exposure to energy market risks, which is why we are focusing on having future electricity generation being built by the private sector.

The Government will also investigate the current structure of electricity tariffs, including options around rebalancing fixed and variable charges to ensure tariffs are fair and reflect emerging trends in consumer use. We will also review concessions to make them simpler and more equitable. This work will be completed in time for consideration by the Government in next year's Budget process.

Vocational Education and Training Reform

Mr Speaker, from 1 January 2014, the Department of Training and Workforce Development introduced a training entitlement model – Future Skills WA – in line with the National Partnership Agreement on Skills Reform. The entitlement model shifts training delivery towards a contestable, demand-driven funding model that directs public subsidies towards State priority qualifications. As indicated in last year's Budget, to ensure the State's contribution to training is sustainable, the level of student tuition fees has had to be increased. On average, it is anticipated that the level of fees will rise from 7% of the total cost of training in 2012-13 to 19% by 2016-17.

Local Government Reform

The Government also remains committed to local government reform, and this Budget provides a $60 million assistance package for the proposed boundary changes to metropolitan local government. This includes $15 million in direct grant assistance to local governments, with total grants of up to $5 million to be made available in each of the next three years. In addition, local governments impacted by the reforms will have access to a subsidised loan facility through the Western Australian Treasury Corporation from 2015-16. The Government will fund a 2% subsidy on loan interest payments for total loans of up to $45 million, repayable over a five year period.

Royalties for Regions

Mr Speaker, Royalties for Regions is another area of reform, with this Budget containing changes to the structure of the RfR program.

From 2014-15, in addition to the $1 billion legislated cap on the balance of the RfR Fund, there will also be an annual expenditure limit of $1 billion.

Our decision to cap expenditure from the Fund is appropriate to ensure the State's limited funds are spent where they are most needed.

Revenue and Savings Measures

Mr Speaker, I have outlined the reform priorities the Government is pursuing that will help secure our economic future and ensure the sustainability of the State's finances over the medium term.

However, immediate action has also been required in order to deliver a general government operating surplus this year and in 2014-15. As noted earlier, these surpluses have been achieved through the implementation of new revenue and savings measures totalling $2 billion that build on last year's Fiscal Action Plan, which will save an estimated $8.6 billion.

The new measures include:

- the previously announced freeze on general government advertising and recruitment for the remainder of the current financial year;
- a 15% reduction in non-essential procurement by general government agencies in 2014-15;
- the introduction of a 75% interim dividend arrangement for the State's port authorities;
- a 5% reduction in the Asset Investment Program of most agencies to reflect improved efficiencies, along with some specific project deferrals;
- abolition of the $36 registration fee concession for private motor vehicles from 1 July 2014;
- an increase in the Perth Parking Levy of $365, to be phased-in over the next two years, with the additional revenue going towards the Perth Busport. The Government is also bringing forward the replacement of CAT buses;
- a reduction in the transfer duty exemption threshold for first home buyers from the current threshold of $500,000 to $430,000, which more closely represents the value of homes being purchased by first home buyers;
- an increase in the landfill levy rate on waste, with some of the additional revenue going towards the implementation of initiatives to manage, reduce, reuse, recycle, monitor and measure waste; and
- an across the board increase in land tax rates of 10% from 2014-15, to offset the impact of weaker than expected growth in property values.

I would also like to take this opportunity to provide an update on the Public Sector Commission's Enhanced Voluntary Separation Scheme. This program has been expanded in this Budget, and it is expected that 1,114 people will accept offers of voluntary separation, at a total estimated cost of $147 million in 2013-14. This will help ensure achievement of CPI salary cap savings of over $800 million under the Government's public sector workforce reforms. In addition, WA Police has implemented a police-only voluntary separation scheme, in which 190 non-operational officers have left the police force and will be replaced over time by operational officers.

EFFICIENT DELIVERY OF QUALITY SERVICES

Mr Speaker, these revenue and savings measures have enabled the Government to allocate significant additional expenditure in this Budget to frontline services in order to meet the demands of a rapidly expanding population.

Health

This Budget provides $8 billion for the delivery of health services in 2014-15, an increase of $447 million or 5.9% on 2013-14. This additional expenditure will provide for approximately:

- 15,000 patients to stay and be treated in hospital;
- 33,000 patients to be treated in emergency departments; and
- over 60,000 patients to be treated as out-patients.

The 2014-15 Budget settings will ensure the long-term sustainability of public hospital services across Western Australia, with the implementation of an Activity Based Funding model for hospital services from 1 July 2014.

Currently, the State Price (which is Western Australia's average cost in delivering hospital services) exceeds the national projected average cost by around 8%. However, it is intended that WA Health will transition to the national average cost by 2017-18. This will ensure the sustainable delivery of health services in Western Australia while allowing the State's hospitals to deliver the efficiencies needed to achieve national price settings, consistent with the National Health Reform Agreement. This will be a major reform.

Education

Mr Speaker, this Budget provides a total of $4.6 billion for the delivery of education services in 2014-15, an increase of $188 million or 4.3% on 2013-14. Since 2007-08, recurrent expenditure on education has grown from $2.8 billion to $4.6 billion today – an increase of almost $1.8 billion in annual spending.

As a result, Western Australian public schools are amongst the best resourced in the nation, with higher per student funding than any other State. Under the Liberal-National Government, our teachers are better paid across the board than in any other jurisdiction, and we have continued to start each school year with a teacher in front of every class.

Over the next four years, the Department of Education will spend an additional $812 million to accommodate anticipated growth in student enrolments, including the impact of the exit of the half-year cohort in 2015. This will see the number of funded full-time equivalent teachers increase in 2015 by an estimated 550.

In 2015, the Government will undertake the most significant program of reforms in public schools in recent history. A Student-Centred Funding Model will be introduced, which will allocate resources to schools in a way that is both equitable and transparent, by providing funding to schools based on the specific needs of each student enrolled. An additional, one-off allocation of $10 million has been provided to assist schools to transition to the new Student-Centred Funding Model.

Next year will also see the transition of Year 7 students to high school, bringing the State into line with the non-government sector and schools in most other jurisdictions. To prepare for this transition, the Government has invested $230 million for facilities at high schools throughout the State to accommodate these students. A further $22.4 million has already been invested in the Switch program to support primary teachers to move to secondary teaching, especially in the areas of mathematics, science, design and technology, and special education, and to assist secondary teachers looking to expand the range of subjects they can teach.

And amendments to the Western Australian Certificate of Education for implementation in 2015 will better prepare students for their working life after school, and reassure parents that their children will leave school with minimum standards of numeracy and literacy.

Mr Speaker, in last year's Budget, we announced the introduction of school fees for dependents of 457 visa holders enrolled at government schools that reflected an expectation that these visa holders should make a contribution to the cost of the education provided to their children.

While the fee was set at around one quarter of the average annual cost of educating a student in Western Australia, the Government acknowledges the potential impact of these fees on visa holder families with two or more children. I am therefore pleased to announce that we have moved to mitigate this impact by capping the fee at $4,000 each year for the first child only, beginning in 2015, irrespective of the number of children enrolled in the public school system.

Western Australia Police

Mr Speaker, this Budget provides $1.3 billion for the delivery of police services in 2014-15, an increase of $83.5 million or 6.6% on 2013-14.

To maintain a strong police force and presence in the State, the WA Police will receive:

- $25.4 million over four years to replace its Computer Aided Dispatch system, which is the frontline response to triple-0 calls;
- $5 million in 2014-15 to maintain and refurbish ageing police stations; and

- $1.3 million in 2014-15 to finalise the State CCTV strategy and establish CCTV infrastructure in crime hot spots.

I am also pleased to announce that by June 2014, the Government will have recruited the final 100 officers as part of the 2008 election commitment and expects to have recruited over 80 officers as part of the 2013 election commitment for an additional 550 officers. This will be built on in 2014-15, with WA Police planning to recruit another 180 officers during the year.

SUPPORTING AND PROTECTING THE COMMUNITY

Mr Speaker, the Government will continue supporting vulnerable members of the community with additional funding across key social services.

National Disability Insurance Scheme

The National Disability Insurance Scheme (or NDIS) is an example of how the Government is modernising its approach to delivering services and ensuring improved support for the community. Two Western Australian trial sites for the NDIS will commence on 1 July 2014 for a two year period and will benefit around 8,000 participants.

Under the agreement with the Commonwealth, a 'My Way' trial site will cover the lower South West, Kwinana and Cockburn regions and will be administered locally by the Disability Services Commission. The second trial site covering the Perth Hills will be administered by the National Disability Insurance Agency and will use the same national model that applies in other States. Western Australia will contribute around 60% of the cost of care and support packages in both trials.

Understandably, community expectations are very high for the NDIS. However, the financial elements must be carefully managed by all Governments to achieve a sustainable scheme that will improve outcomes for persons with disabilities, their families and their carers.

National Injury Insurance Scheme

To complement the NDIS, the Commonwealth Government has proposed a National Injury Insurance Scheme to provide lifetime care and support to people who sustain a catastrophic injury from a motor vehicle, workplace, medical treatment injury or general accident.

The State Government has provided in-principle support for the introduction of a no-fault insurance scheme for motor vehicle accidents. We will shortly issue a Green Paper to inform the community about the proposed changes to motor vehicle personal injury insurance cover and seek community feedback.

Social Services

Mr Speaker, this Government has made supporting the most vulnerable in our community a priority, and mental health, disability and child protection services are a big focus of this Budget.

The Disability Services Commission will receive an additional $180 million over the next four years to meet the increased number of people with disabilities accessing support services, along with a move toward individualised funding. This is in addition to the NDIS trial sites mentioned previously.

The Mental Health Commission will receive an additional $154 million over five years to care for people with a mental health issue. In addition, $29 million will be provided over three years to continue the State-wide Specialist Aboriginal Mental Health Service to deliver case management for Aboriginal people with mental illness.

This Budget also provides additional funding of $90 million over the forward estimates to enable the Department for Child Protection and Family Support to meet growth in demand for child protection services in 2014-15. As a result of this additional funding, the Department will be able to:

- support more than 4,000 children in care;
- undertake safety assessments of 18,500 children who are the subject of child protection concerns; and
- provide support for 80,000 at-risk families.

Essential Services

Mr Speaker, residential electricity tariffs will be increased by 4.5%. Water tariffs will increase by 6% and public transport fares by 4% as of 1 July 2014, along with an increase in the 50 cent student fare to 60 cents.

However, the Government will continue to heavily subsidise electricity, water and public transport, with electricity subsidies and concessions totalling $2.5 billion over the next four years, and water and public transport subsidies totalling $2.5 billion and $3.3 billion respectively.

For a 'representative' household, the standard basket of fees and charges will increase by $324.18, or 6.6%, relative to 2013-14 levels. Households in Western Australia will still have amongst the lowest expenditure on State Government goods and services compared to households in other jurisdictions. For example:

- Western Australia's 2014-15 utility charges remain lower than the national average, even prior to other jurisdictions announcing any increases;
- public transport fares will remain significantly lower than those in Queensland and New South Wales, and will remain competitive with other jurisdictions; and
- motor vehicle charges will remain amongst the lowest in Australia, particularly with respect to compulsory third party insurance premiums.

Mr Speaker, on top of a total investment of $1.2 billion in electricity-related infrastructure in 2014-15, this Budget includes additional expenditure totalling $139 million to address the critical issue of electrical safety, comprising:

- $85 million over 2013-14 and 2014-15 to replace and reinforce a total of 147,500 wood poles;
- $28 million in 2014-15 to replace conductors and overhead wires; and
- $26 million over the forward estimates for the installation of electrical safety devices in all public housing properties owned by the Housing Authority, to be funded from increased rents.

This Budget also provides for a new $20.3 million fire station to the west of the Perth CBD and a replacement $9.1 million fire station in Albany, both funded from a 5% increase in the Emergency Services Levy from 1 July 2014. This equates to an average increase per household per week of 21 cents.

The Government also remains committed to improving safety on the State's roads. In 2014-15 we will spend $100 million from the Road Trauma Trust Account on road safety projects, including $35.3 million for improvements to the Coalfields and Albany Highways and Wubin to Mullewa Road. This is an increase of $18 million on this year's program.

Sport and Recreation

Mr Speaker, this Budget continues the Government's commitment to sport and recreation, with:

- $5 million in each of 2015-16 and 2016-17 to maintain the Sport 4 All program (including Kidsport);
- $10 million over three years for the new Cockburn Aquatic and Sports Complex; and
- $3 million in 2013-14 to the Western Australian Football Commission to partially extinguish its debt.

INVESTING IN INFRASTRUCTURE TO GROW THE STATE

Mr Speaker, investing in productivity-enhancing infrastructure for the benefit of future generations has been, and remains, a major priority of this Government. This Budget provides for an Asset Investment Program of $6.7 billion in 2014-15, with total investment of $23.7 billion over the next four years.

Of note, the delivery of key health infrastructure projects has been the hallmark of this Government. The Liberal-National Government is spending $7 billion to upgrade and redevelop the State's hospitals and health services. This incorporates expenditure on three new hospitals for the Perth metropolitan area as well as four new major health campuses and six other new healthcare facilities in regional Western Australia, including:

- Fiona Stanley Hospital and State Rehabilitation Service, which have a total capital cost of $1.8 billion;
- Perth Children's Hospital, with a total cost of $1.2 billion;
- Midland Health Campus, with a total cost of $360 million;
- Karratha Health Campus, at a cost of $207 million; and
- Busselton Hospital, with a total cost of $120 million.

The Government is also investing an additional $40.1 million for critical Information and Communications Technology at Fiona Stanley Hospital.

The Government is investing $1.2 billion over the next four years to deliver new and enhanced school infrastructure across the State. By 2017-18, the Government will have delivered an additional 45 new schools, or around 1,200 classrooms, since 2008. This includes the construction of new primary and secondary schools, additions and improvements to existing schools, the completion of 16 Child and Parent Centres, and the completion of the air-cooling program.

This Government's achievements are many and growing. Mr Speaker, since 2008 we have expanded the State's road network by more than 700 kilometres. Overall, investment in the State's roads will total $3.4 billion over the next four years.

We have spent or committed $615 million to maintain and expand our bus fleet and $337 million to increase our rolling stock, including the purchase of another 66 rail cars to be delivered by 2016 at a cost of $244 million.

We have spent $7.3 billion on replacing and maintaining the State's electricity network and will spend a further $1.2 billion this coming year.

These examples reflect the State Government's extensive commitment to improving public infrastructure and services – the money the Government commits to ensure that the growing population has access to quality schools and hospitals, and the commercial life of the State is well-served by modern road, rail and power networks.

But Mr Speaker, the Government is also busily transforming the city through the delivery of the following key projects:

- the Perth City Link ($764 million), Elizabeth Quay ($441 million) and the new Western Australian Museum ($428 million), which will make Perth a more vibrant metropolis for our community and help us to attract and retain skilled workers and their families;

- Gateway WA, which is creating landmark road infrastructure around the Perth Airport and the freight and industrial hubs of Kewdale and Forrestfield, at an estimated total cost of $1 billion;
- the Government also remains committed to the MAX light rail project in the longer term and expects to receive the Project Definition Plan in the coming months which will outline broad project costs and timings;
- the Forrestfield Airport Rail Link, which will branch from the Midland line near Bayswater Station to the consolidated Perth Airport terminal and continue on to Forrestfield, at an estimated cost of $2 billion; and
- the new Perth Stadium, at a cost of $902 million, plus $339 million in transport-related infrastructure, to be completed in time for the 2018 AFL season.

Mr Speaker, a major component of the Royalties for Regions program in 2014-15 is the delivery of major infrastructure projects and ensuring the economic development of regional communities. This includes:

- $169 million over the forward estimates for the new Regional Investment Blueprint initiative to develop major State-wide economic, social and community development projects; and
- a further $515 million over the next four years for a Southern Investment Initiative to implement major projects across the Peel, Wheatbelt, South West and Great Southern regions.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion Mr Speaker, this is a responsible Budget; it is the right Budget for its time. It is a Budget that:

- responds to the State's changing economic circumstances;
- builds on our achievements; and
- focuses on delivering essential reform while also responding to growth in demand for health, education, disability, child protection and other frontline services.

It is a Budget in which tough but responsible decisions have been made to secure our economic future.

I commend this Budget to the House.

I would now like to proceed with the formal purposes of the two Appropriation Bills, which seek the sums required for services in the coming financial year. Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Recurrent 2014-15 Bill 2014 is for recurrent services, which comprise the delivery of services and administered grants, subsidies and other transfer payments.

Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Capital 2014-15 Bill 2014 is for capital purposes, providing for asset purchases and payment of liabilities of agencies.

Recurrent service estimates of $21,299,721,000 include a sum of $2,279,438,000 permanently appropriated under Special Acts, leaving an amount of $19,020,283,000 that is to be appropriated in the manner shown in the Schedule to Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Recurrent 2014-15 Bill 2014.

Capital purposes and financing transactions estimates of $2,658,336,000 comprise a sum of $173,368,000 permanently appropriated under Special Acts and an amount of $2,484,968,000 that is to be appropriated in the manner shown in the Schedule to Appropriation (Consolidated Account) Capital 2014-15 Bill 2014.

Mr Speaker, I commend the Bills to the House and seek leave to table:

- Budget Speech – Budget Paper Number 1;
- Budget Statements – Budget Paper Number 2; and
- Economic and Fiscal Outlook – Budget Paper Number 3.

TAB sale: National MP Colin Holt opposed to possible privatisation

By Jacob Kagi and Hayley Roman

Updated Fri 23 May 2014, 2:28pm

The West Australian Government is facing a stumbling block in its proposal to privatise the TAB, with the WA Nationals indicating reluctance to support the plans.

The gambling agency is one of a number of assets that will be placed under review and possibly sold in order to improve the budget's bottom line.

The Liberal Government does not have a majority in the Upper House and typically relies on the Nationals for the passage of legislation.

Nationals MP Colin Holt said it strikes him as a dangerous idea and he will need serious convincing to vote in favour of it.

"It underwrites a complete industry that's incredibly important to regional Western Australia," he said.

"It's a massive industry and it's of massive importance to our regional communities.

"At the moment the TAB plays a major role in underwriting that industry and I'd be very cautious about any changes."

The TAB will pay $126 million to the racing industry this next financial year, which goes directly into clubs around the state.

That is an increase from last year when it paid $120 million.

Mr Holt said he is concerned there will be major repercussions for regional racing if the TAB is sold.

"I think we're trying to say the industry plays a very important role in regional WA and we don't want to do anything that puts that in jeopardy," he said.

"We want to make sure it survives and thrives really and I think the TAB is an important component of that. I think we know in regional WA if we rely on commercial enterprises or commercial processes to sustain our industries, we put them at risk.

"If we're going to commercialise the TAB then in my mind we're going to put the industry in regional WA at risk."

PHOTO: The racing industry in WA relies on the TAB for funding. (Getty Images: Jonathan Wood)

MAP: Perth 6000

I think we know in regional WA if we rely on commercial enterprises or commercial processes to sustain our industries, we put them at risk.

Colin Holt

Sale only supported with safeguards

Racing and Gaming Minister Terry Waldron, who is also a National, said earlier this week that no decision had been made at this stage to sell the TAB - although it is one of the assets under review.

Mr Waldron also said if a decision was made down the track to sell, he would be arguing that the Government should put in place safeguards to meet the needs of the racing industry going forward.

"I've said this in Parliament, that I would only support the sale of the TAB if it was in the best interests of the racing industry and the community to do so," he said.

Mr Holt said he understands the state has budget pressures and solutions have to be found.

"I just don't think the TAB is one of those solutions if it means our industry doesn't grow and add to our economic value," he said.

"I've had lots of people come to me saying they can't see the benefits."

In other racing news, a horse racing club which boasts Australia's longest-running country cup will hold its final meet tomorrow night.

Harvey Trotting Club said it has been forced to close after a long-running legal dispute over ownership of the land.

The club was established in 1936 and moved to its current location at King-Lethbridge Park in the late 1970s.

Club president Ken Nottle said its closure is a huge loss to the community.

"Since 1978, the property's been developed to probably the nicest country trotting track in Western Australia. The club has been very successful and really most of it just due to the voluntary and community effort," he said.

"There aren't many towns in WA really who can boast a trotting track and it's just another form of entertainment in a smaller town that really has been lost to the community.

"Our meetings are really well supported by the public and it's a big blow to Harvey full stop."

The club has agreed to vacate the land by July 31 but will look to host occasional meets at other tracks.

Topics: government-and-politics, perth-6000, wa, harvey-6220, albany-6330, bunbury-6230, geraldton-6530, esperance-6450, kalgoorlie-6430, broome-6725, karratha-6714

First posted Fri 23 May 2014, 12:05pm

It's just another form of entertainment in a smaller town that really has been lost to the community.

Ken Nottle

12/1/2016

Racing and Wagering WA CEO Richard Burt quiet on TAB privatisation after ACT sell-off | Perth Now

perth now
Sunday Times

WA's racing chief says he can't comment on the potential privatisation of the TAB until the Barnett Government reaches its decision. Picture: File image

WA News

Racing and Wagering WA CEO Richard Burt quiet on TAB privatisation after ACT sell-off

PETER LAW, PerthNow

July 31, 2014 2:45pm

WA'S racing chief says he can't comment on the potential privatisation of the TAB until the Barnett Government reaches its decision.

WA this week became the last remaining government which still owns a gambling agency after the ACT Government sold its TAB for $105 million to Tabcorp.

WA's TAB is one of a number publicly-owned assets the Barnett Government is considering selling to the private sectors to help cut public sector debt.

12/1/2016

Racing and Wagering WA CEO Richard Burt quiet on TAB privatisation after ACT sell-off | Perth Now

Ports, wastewater facilities, the Market Authority and ex-hospital sites have also been identified as assets which could be sold off.

Racing and Wagering Western Australia CEO Richard Burt today said he had been given no indication as to when the Government would come to a decision on the future of the TAB.

Mr Burt said the Government was still considering its options and he had “no information to the contrary”.

“I really don’t want to talk about privatisation until the Government makes a decision. It’s all speculation at this stage, so let’s wait for the Government to make a decision,” he said.

“It’s speculative to be talking about what would happen or what the alternatives are.

“I’d be more inclined to get confirmation of views from the industry, but from RWWA’s point of view — which is a Government organisation — we can’t talk about something that we don’t know about.”

Concerns have previously been expressed about the impact of privatisation on the racing industry, which receives $126 million from the TAB each year.

The TAB was announced as being potentially up for sale at May’s State Budget, just months after Premier Colin Barnett ruled-out such a move.

At the time, Treasurer Mike Nahan said the TAB was an “easy saleable asset” and that he, as well as some Cabinet colleagues “find it uncomfortable for the state owning gambling outlets”.

Government probably will sell TAB, says Premier

Daniel Emerson

Colin Barnett said yesterday that the Government “probably will” sell the TAB, his strongest indication yet after previously ruling it out and then putting the agency on a list of asset sales for consideration. The Premier said the Government’s first round of asset sales, made necessary by the loss of the State’s AAA credit rating in September, would focus on land but the TAB could follow. “I think the Government probably will sell the TAB but it’s not going to be in the first group of asset sales,” Mr Barnett said.

After the credit downgrade in September Mr Barnett told 6PR “there won’t be a sale of . . . the TAB”. WA Trainers Association president Michael Grant said the Tasmanian and South Australian racing industries had been “decimated” by privatisation, whereas WA’s was performing well.

Extract from *Hansard
 [ASSEMBLY — Wednesday, 13 August 2014]
 p5204b-5213a

Mr Mick Murray; Mr J.E. McGrath; Acting Speaker; Mr M.P. Murray; MR P. Papalia; MR C.J. Barnett

---

TAB — PRIVATISATION

Motion

MR M.P. MURRAY (Collie–Preston) [6.07 pm]: I move —

That this house condemns the Barnett government for breaking its word in relation to the privatisation of the TAB.

In speaking to the motion, I must first say that I have never seen the racing industry in such a shambles in my time around the traps, and I have been having a bet since I was 16 years of age. I have never seen it. It is in disarray. Not only the situation with the TAB, but also other issues that I will not talk about, is impacting on the racing industry.

The TAB issue has started a domino effect. It has gone right through; the confidence has fallen out of the industry due to the Barnett government's mismanagement and comments made in this house by the minister, the Premier and the member for South Perth, who has not helped at all. I will read out a few of the comments. On 20 February 2014, in response to a question without notice, the minister said —

I am on record in this place saying that I do not support the privatisation of the TAB. I think that the TAB in Western Australia plays a really important part in the funding and ongoing success and health of the racing industry, which is extremely important to Western Australia. Talking about Racing and Wagering Western Australia, I have discussed this with RWWA on many occasions. RWWA does not support the privatisation of the TAB. I have given an assurance that when the time comes, if RWWA thought it was in the best interests of the racing industry to privatise the TAB, obviously I would listen to that. It is not about to do that, I can assure members of that. From speaking to industry people, there is not support for the privatisation of the TAB.

Then the Leader of the Opposition asked whether the government's position was that the TAB will not be privatised and the minister answered yes. How things have changed since February! Again, the minister, in March this year, said —

I would only ever consider the privatisation of the TAB if it was in the best interests of the racing industry ...

I do not think it is in the best interests of the racing industry—in fact, I do not think it is in the best interests of the state—to privatise the TAB at this stage ...

The TAB is performing very well, and I do not support its privatisation.

I move on to 7 May 2014, and an answer by the Premier to a question without notice, referring to comments he had made on 25 September 2013. The Premier said —

Yes, I had said previously that we were not going to sell the TAB ... I do not think any decision will be made on the TAB one way or the other for several years ... in the normal course of things ... one would not think that a government would own a betting agency.

There is doublespeak there. He also commented that the minister's statement that privatisation of the TAB was not in the best interests of the state was perfectly proper. What has changed? Maybe it was a $20 000 meeting that the government has had in the past couple of weeks with Tattersall's. A secret meeting has been held between the Premier and an industry buyer; a group that has bought other TABs and runs one of the biggest gambling institutions in Australia. What has made this change happen? What will happen in the future if the TAB is sold? The TAB is there to regulate the industry, and put money back into the industry—this financial year to the tune of $120 million. Along the way, between $30 million and $40 million was taken out as turnover tax, which goes straight to general revenue. We will be selling the goose that lays the golden egg. We will chop off its head, and then it will be gone, and then we will have real problems. Many people have come to see me over this time with great concerns, including breeders, trainers, owners, jockeys—all through the racing industry. We had a problem in the chasing industry, that there is no money to put back in. Racing and Wagering Western Australia itself, through the TAB, put in $9 million upfront, but the government did not match that. We have a huge problem ahead of us, and no wonder there is no confidence in this minister and the Premier about where we are heading. We are not heading anywhere. It is a mess. The industry now, over the TAB privatisation and other issues, is fighting itself, which is not good for the industry. It is not a good look to see committeeman against committeeman, and trainer against trainer. That sort of thing is going to bring the industry to its knees.

Recently I travelled with the member for South Perth to a conference in Hong Kong about the state of Australasian racing. Many people came up to me and said, "Whatever you do, don't sell your TAB." There was one dissenter, and he was from Western Australia, but he has convinced the member for South Perth to change his position over time; he has been nobbled by one person. Before the member for South Perth went to Hong

Extract from *Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Wednesday, 13 August 2014]

p5204b-5213a

Mr Mick Murray; Mr J.E. McGrath; Acting Speaker; Mr M.P. Murray; MR P. Papalia; MR C.J. Barnett

Kong he opposed selling the TAB. I do not know whether or not he got a sling while he was there—I am not quite sure—but since he has come back he has had a different view.

Withdrawal of Remark

Mr J.E. McGRATH: Although I respect the member for Collie–Preston, I think he has made a very unparliamentary suggestion that I might have accepted a sling from some person. That is my thinking.

The ACTING SPEAKER (Mr N.W. Morton): Thank you, member, I take the point of order.

Mr M.P. MURRAY: I unreservedly withdraw my remark. It was a slang term, and I withdraw it.

Debate Resumed

Mr M.P. MURRAY: The member for South Perth has been convinced by others to change his position. It was not the group we were with, because people there from all around Australia opposed the idea. A Queen's Counsel from South Australia begged me not to let it happen and urged me to have a look at what happened in South Australia when the TAB was sold. The Premier of South Australia did the same thing as, Paul Lennon, the Premier of Tasmania, had done previously. He held secret meetings, and then dropped them in it. The industry has collapsed. Breeders and trainers from all around Australia wonder what they are going to do if Western Australia sells its TAB. Is the shareholder then the key person, or is the industry the key? That is a very pertinent point.

Along with that, other areas really concern me. There is a rumour coming out of the National Party—I will say rumour or gossip—that members are saying that we in the lower house should not worry about the sale of the TAB, because members will let it go through and approve it. Not wanting to embarrass the Premier, the Nationals will stop it in the upper house. I see that as very dangerous. I would like to hear later from the minister what his position really is. Judging from what he has said in this house, we cannot believe him one way or the other. His words have been swapped and changed from maybes to would-bes and could-bes.

The Treasurer, in his budget speech on 8 May 2014, flagged that the ownership of the TAB would be reviewed to manage debt. If it is going to be sold to retire debt, the money certainly will not go to the industry. That block of money will be used straightaway to retire debt. The Premier alluded to that today, in saying that we will build something else and we will not retire debt. That is in direct contrast with what the Treasurer said. The Premier himself is in the chamber. I am glad to see that he has walked in. He said on 25 September 2013 that neither the various utilities nor the TAB would be sold. That has changed, and it has been publicly reported everywhere. It will not be sold immediately, but it will be considered for sale along the way. Now that the Premier is in the chamber, I ask him: when will he tell the people of Western Australia and all the owners, trainers and jockeys, who are the base of the industry, what his meeting with Tattersall's was about? That is what the industry wants to know. It is well publicised in the press that the industry is very concerned about what the Premier is doing, because it is not getting the information it needs to do its own research. A very high profile consultant has been employed at great cost to the industry to determine whether there is any way the industry can work with the government. But the government is running a sideshow, and it is not working with the industry at all.

Let us have a look at another group of people out there—the TAB owners. Although there are 280 TAB outlets in Western Australia, it must be remembered that a lot of those are at hotel venues that derive an income from them. Eight TAB agencies are currently for sale—Wembley, Bayswater, Fremantle, Applecross, Mandurah, Waterford, Victoria Park and Bunbury. Would anyone in here, given the decisions that have been made in this room, buy one of those agencies at the moment? No, because the Premier is saying that maybe it will not be sold today; maybe it will be sold sometime in the future. He should at least give those people a chance. Some of them have planned their retirements and some of them just want to get out and move on. They have been left in no-man's-land due to the Premier's inability to sell what he is going to do, or tell the people the truth. The minister is not game to stand up to the Premier. The minister had made many statements, but he has not backed up one of them. The Premier has ridden roughshod over the Minister for Racing and Gaming. The Premier should come out and tell the industry what his meeting with Tattersall's was about, what he will do with the TAB along the way and how he will do this. Is the Premier going to privatise the TAB or not? The spinoffs from this issue include whether Ascot should be sold—although we know it cannot be sold—whether Belmont should be developed or the racecourse sold and whether more money should be put into Pinjarra. All these issues have arisen because of the Premier's indecision and unwillingness to work with the industry.

Eminent people in the industry such as Fred Kersley have spoken to me at different times about their grave concerns. He has seen what has happened in South Australia. Some races on the east coast attract half the prize money of that on the west coast, which is backed up by our very good Racing and Wagering Western Australia system. I make the point that RWWA probably needs an overhaul, and I have no problem with that. RWWA has been in existence for so long that it is probably time to look at it. When stakeholders are racing for half the prize money, the owners and breeders will start to drop off. They are the lifeblood of the industry.

Extract from *Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Wednesday, 13 August 2014]
p5204b-5213a

Mr Mick Murray; Mr J.E. McGrath; Acting Speaker; Mr M.P. Murray; MR P. Papalia; MR C.J. Barnett

---

We need leadership from this government, but it is sadly lacking. The Premier is coming around the turn in the Melbourne Cup and he is last by 100 yards and is hitting the whip, but he is not going anywhere. Tattersall's can see that the Premier is a plodder. It knows he does not understand the industry. The Premier should get someone who understands the industry and work with them. That is vital.

I will get back to what the government is doing to TAB agencies. It is similar to what this government has just done to the taxi industry. The Premier came out with a statement that devalued the taxi industry. The government is now devaluing TAB agencies in exactly the same way because of its indecision and a view that is short-sighted. The government has no long-term plan, and no-one is going to buy into it. The government has to look at what it is going to do.

Let us look at the key players in the Liberal Party on the racing game. We know that the member for South Perth has been involved in sporting journalism and other issues in the industry over the years. He is also a key player in the Liberal Party, because members will remember that at one time he had the power to remove a Liberal Party leader at a barbecue in his own home—he moved him on!

In the Legislative Assembly on Thursday, 15 August 2013, the member for South Perth stated —

I am not saying that we should sell off the TAB. I stress that point very strongly. I am not in favour of selling off the TAB; rather we should outsource the operations of the TAB, as has been done in most other states ever since Victoria did it in 1994.

On Thursday, 15 May 2014, the member stated —

I have had a number of calls from concerned stakeholders in the industry about privatisation and my advice to them has been: do not be spooked by misinformation.

What information? There is no information, which is where the problem stems from. Mr McGrath continues —

Yes, the Treasurer and the Premier have confirmed that privatisation of the TAB will be considered, but it is too early to start jumping to conclusions about possible impacts on the industry or building up defences against what might happen. Moreover, I believe there could be considerable benefits for the industry coming out of a privatised model.

The first quote was from Hansard on 15 August 2013 and the second on 15 May 2014. What a change! The member has kicked with the wind one week and kicked against it the next week. That is so off. The government is leading the industry the wrong way and not showing any leadership. The government is moving backwards on the whole issue: no, we should not sell, and then yes, we should! Where do people go? They do not understand what the government is doing. Why would anyone invest in an industry if there is no leadership at the top and they do not know what the government is going to do with that industry?

I am sure that many members in this place would like to speak on this motion. The member for Warnbro and the member for Armadale are getting the same sort of complaints about what this government is doing. One thing we do know, which is very clear, is that most people in the racing industry say that they have always been treated with respect under Labor governments and have always had funding under Labor governments. That is not the case under this government. There is no doubt that royalties for regions chucked a few bob around to the country tracks, but the city tracks have ageing infrastructure. One of the issues that came out of the Asian conference was that we must provide top entertainment precincts to attract people in today's world. If we do not, attendances will drop. One of the strong pointers to when Perth Racing started to go backwards was the police presence at the Perth Cup, when the attendance of young people dropped off. The attendance figures dropped from 40 000 people to just under 15 000 in the year just gone. We have to do something to stop that drop-off in attendance and to encourage people back through the gates. If the Premier cannot tell us the truth about what is going on with some of these meetings with Tattersall's, I do not know how we will get that confidence back in the industry.

As I said previously when the Premier was not in the chamber, I believe he is being set up for a fall by the National Party. National Party members are telling people they will block the bill in the upper house because they do not want to embarrass the Premier in this place. If I were the Premier, I would sort that out in the cabinet room very quickly. Maybe it is time he jettisoned them while he has the numbers. The Premier might be able to get rid of a few of them there. They certainly have not done a fair job for the racing industry.

A recent article by Jay Rooney in The West Australian reads —

... WA Racing Trainers' Association president Michael Grant said.

“We're very concerned the State Government isn't allowing RWWA to provide all the necessary information to us. Transparency is what drives the racing industry and that's all we're asking for.

“We know the industry better than anyone and we feel we need to be a part of the process.”

Extract from Hansard

[ASSEMBLY — Wednesday, 13 August 2014]

p5204b-5213a

Mr Mick Murray; Mr J.E. McGrath; Acting Speaker; Mr M.P. Murray; MR P. Papalia; MR C.J. Barnett

That is where the government has fallen down. It has not brought the industry with it, and they are out the back wondering where they are going to go next. This is the Premier's baby. He is the one who wants to privatise the TAB. He has pointed the finger everywhere else. He has changed his tune so many times that people cannot follow where he is going. If this proposed sale is only to retire debt, what is the industry going to live on afterwards? If it is sold and the shareholders become the main stakeholders, we know what will happen in those companies—the share price will have to go up. The racing industry will be the loser, because the first thing Tattersall's will say is that it cannot give the industry that turnover tax. We should put the pressure back on the government, because that is where the problem will be. Tattersall's will not invest $120 million out of its pocket, as RWWA does at the moment, to keep the industry going. RWWA has done a fair job.

I was surprised that RWWA publicly stood up and ran down the government's position. I am sure there was a nod and a wink between RWWA and the Minister for Racing and Gaming to allow that to happen, because a government agency coming out against government policy is unheard of—in most cases, that is, because we know what happens to a director general when that happens, as we have seen happen in recent times. I would say that RWWA did that with help from the minister, who does not have the gumption to stand up to the Premier and say, "We're not going to do this. This is a good model. It's held in the highest regard over Australia." That is without doubt.

I also attended a Magic Millions get-together and a number of trainers were there—Bede Murray, one of the top trainers on the east coast, as well as Colin Webster and Ross Price. I made an effort to walk around and ask all those trainers what they thought about the privatisation of the TAB in WA. They begged me to stand up and be counted and make the Premier understand what will happen to their industry in both breeding terms and the returns to government. There will be a short-term gain, but then we will have problems. I know that some of my colleagues are keen to follow on. The opposition wants to keep these two issues separate. The first is about the racecourses, which is an entirely different issue from the TAB. The issue with the TAB is straight up and down: is the TAB going to be privatised and at what price or will there be a backdoor deal done because Tattersall's has paid $20 000 to have a meeting with the Premier? Will that group get the nod? What is the Premier going to do? When is the Premier going to come out and clear the air so that people in the Western Australian racing industry know what is going to happen in the future?

MR P. PAPALIA (Warnbro) [6.30 pm]: I rise to join the member for Collie–Preston in condemning the government for breaking its word on the privatisation of the Totalisator Agency Board. When I say that, the Premier looks questioningly at me across the chamber, but I have to say to the Premier that I and the member for Armadale, the shadow minister, are only repeating the concerns of the racing industry. We are not making this up. On Friday, I was at Larkhill Thoroughbred Training Centre to meet with a significant number of local trainers who operate at that track and to present to Chloe Azzopardi the inaugural award that I created to recognise the most diligent jockey who trains and works at that facility. She was selected by the industry, and I commend Chloe for her courage. I think that those quite small jockeys are incredibly brave for engaging in a challenging and dangerous pursuit that requires dedication, hard work and a great deal of risk. I am pleased that I will be providing that award annually. It was great to present to Chloe that inaugural award in front of some very respected and responsible trainers and participants in the industry there last Friday.

What I have to say, however, is that there is a deep feeling within the industry across Western Australia that the Premier has betrayed them. The member for South Perth's ears must have been burning on Friday because I also talked about him. I told the group assembled at Larkhill that there is probably no-one within the Western Australian Parliament who in the past was considered to be more of an advocate for the WA racing industry than the member for South Perth. I said that he is a respected individual and people knew that his heart lay with the industry. However, I said to them that the most significant indicator with respect to what the Barnett government is going to do through its grubby deals and its short-term thinking in the way of a sellout of the industry was the change in tune from the member for South Perth. When I said that, they all nodded. They knew what I was talking about because they know that there was a time when the member for South Perth stood in this place and defied any suggestion that the TAB should be sold—defended the TAB as a magnificent institution in WA that was responsible, as I am told, for distributing hundreds of millions of dollars in recent times throughout the industry. Last year alone —

Mr J.E. McGrath: It was $120 million.

Mr P. PAPALIA: It was more than that; it was $130 million in 2013–14, also returning to government, through the turnover tax, in the order of $40 million. Here we have a magnificent enterprise that returns $40 million to government and beyond to the industry, not to the deep pockets of some bloke living on the eastern suburbs of Sydney. It does not distribute to those guys with their views out over Sydney Harbour and down the harbour to the Sydney Harbour Bridge and the Opera House so that they can quaff their wine comfortable in the knowledge that the punters in Western Australia are keeping their wallets well padded. I am not talking about those blokes.

Extract from *Hansard
 [ASSEMBLY — Wednesday, 13 August 2014]
 p5204b-5213a

Mr Mick Murray; Mr J.E. McGrath; Acting Speaker; Mr M.P. Murray; MR P. Papalia; MR C.J. Barnett

---

Our money—the distribution of our money from our industry—goes directly to those thousands of people whose direct livelihood is derived from the industry in Western Australia.

Mr M.P. Murray: It's 30 000.

Mr P. PAPALIA: I am told that the figure is more widely 33 680 people who are directly involved in WA racing, with 6 737 working directly in the industry. Over 30 000-plus more widely, but 6 737 people working directly in the industry are looking with very suspicious eyes at the member for South Perth. They know the fix is in. They know that there have been secret meetings between cabinet members and secret meetings between the Premier and people who would seek to buy this industry and take all of the profits to the east coast, which would result in a massive redirection of the money that currently goes to the industry. What happens with that money now? Where does it go? The member for South Perth knows that money does not go predominantly to the metropolitan area. The vast majority, 55 racing clubs, are small operations out of the city, in the regions, that get money to maintain their tracks and facilities and to support their local communities and economies through TAB distributions. What has happened elsewhere in this country when the equivalent of the TAB in those states has been sold? Invariably the returns from the industry have diminished. What will happen with the distribution? It will become completely bankrupt, as happened in Tasmania through the grubby deal done between the Premier in that state and the Tatts representatives, and resulted in a complete collapse of the industry there. Member for South Perth, what happened in South Australia? I have been told by the professionals in the industry in South Australia that the big operators are packing up and leaving because they just cannot make a living. The trainers are leaving that state because the returns to the industry, the distributions to the industry, have collapsed. The member for South Perth knows that is true; that is the case.

Mr J.E. McGrath: That is not true.

Mr P. PAPALIA: It is the case, member for South Perth. He does not have to convince me. He will have to look into the eyes of the people who formerly respected him as one of the defenders of their industry and tell them honestly that he believes that this is the right thing to do. The member for South Perth knows that it is not. He knows what was happening. Up until very recently, he was having those barbecues; he was having another set of barbecues. He had those barbecues in the past that resulted in a couple of changes and he had more, but then the horse that the member for South Perth was backing had a complete breakdown in the middle of the track! That horse broke down and the member for South Perth—a very big jockey—has been left without a horse. The member for South Perth has been compelled to sell his soul, because the member for South Perth knows that the Premier, the economic vandal that is the member for Cottesloe, has driven state net debt from $3 billion to $24 billion this year and towards $30 billion, with no plan to tackle it. There is certainly no plan for any sales of assets in relation to the railway. We have heard that any assets that are going to be sold will just go into paying for that new debt. There is no plan for tackling debt. The Premier will have to grasp around desperately to sell what few assets are available.

It has been suggested to me that this industry might sell for a few hundred million dollars. It would be an absolute travesty if all we got in return for the sale of this industry—because that is what is going to happen; the member for South Perth is going to sell out the industry—is this tiny drop in the ocean of the huge state debt that his government through its incompetence has racked up. If that is all we will get, that will be a travesty. The member for South Perth knows that when an industry has been bought out like this in other parts of the world, not only do the distributions drop away, but also a profit-driven enterprise immediately wants more profit. The owners and shareholders want more profit. They do not want distributions to grow—and distributions in Western Australia have grown. In Western Australia, Racing and Wagering Western Australia has overseen a growth in turnover of eight per cent between 2010 and 2013, whereas on the east coast the comparative growth was one per cent. RWWA has grown that and then distributed it, so the growth in comparative distributions has also occurred. The member for South Perth knows that.

As we heard earlier, there is an argument about whether the TAB has distributed $120 million or $130 million back to the racing industry. Members will tell me that it is $130 million. It grew from $106 million in 2008–09. The minister would not dispute that. It was $106 million in 2008–09 and it is now in the order of $120 million. That is pretty significant growth. The minister knows that a private enterprise will not grow the distribution; it will grow the bit that goes back to the eastern suburbs of Sydney to pad the wallets of the blokes sitting by the harbour. That is their only objective. They do not care about the regional race clubs or the little regional towns where a lot of other people use the racetracks and the trotting tracks. The football clubs use them in the off-season. Shows are held in the facilities. Those are the sorts of things that do not count to a private operator based in Sydney on the east coast.

Mr J.E. McGrath: There are no country racetracks in New South Wales; they have all closed.

Extract from *Hansard
 [ASSEMBLY — Wednesday, 13 August 2014]
 p5204b-5213a

Mr Mick Murray; Mr J.E. McGrath; Acting Speaker; Mr M.P. Murray; MR P. Papalia; MR C.J. Barnett

---

Mr P. PAPALIA: I am glad that the member said that; he is supporting my argument. The precipice is getting closer. I am saying that that will occur.

Mr J.E. McGrath: It is wrong.

Mr P. PAPALIA: Okay. The member for South Perth should stand and look those people who trusted him in the eye because they do not trust him now. He knows the sort of people I am talking about whom I met on Friday. There were about a dozen people there. They were all trainers who had been in the industry for a long time. They do not trust the member. They do not trust what this government is doing. They do not believe that the government has their best interests at heart. If that is wrong, the government should come out and say that it will not sell the TAB. If there is going to be a study of the value of the TAB and the potential return from it, it should be absolutely transparent, unlike every single study to which the government refers in the public transport arena. The minister cowardly sat opposite, incapable of giving us any transparency at all in relation to billions of dollars' worth of taxpayers' expenditure. I would like to see some transparency. I would like the Premier to tell us what he was speaking about with those private operators. He should not have secret meetings about one of the great assets of Western Australia's community.

Mr C.J. Barnett: Sorry; I was out of the chamber but as I walked in, you were talking about secret meetings. For my benefit, can you tell me what secret meetings you were talking about or were referring to?

